

---

This is a reproduction of a library book that was digitized by Google as part of an ongoing effort to preserve the information in books and make it universally accessible.

Google™ books

<https://books.google.com>

NON-CIRCULATING

pg-142

COMMEMORATIVE HISTORICAL AND BIOGRAPHICAL RECORD —OF—
WOOD COUNTY, OHIO;
ITS PAST AND PRESENT,

EARLY SETTLEMENT AND DEVELOPMENT; ABORIGINAL HISTORY; PIONEER HISTORY; POLITICAL ORGANIZATION; AGRICULTURAL, MANUFACTURING, COMMERCIAL INTERESTS, INCLUDING OIL AND GAS; HISTORY OF THE COUNTY, TOWNSHIPS, TOWNS AND VILLAGES; RELIGIOUS, EDUCATIONAL, SOCIAL, POLITICAL AND MILITARY HISTORY, INCLUDING ROSTER BY TOWNSHIPS; STA-TISTICAL AND MISCELLANEOUS MATTER; BIOGRAPHIES AND POR-TRAITS OF EARLY SETTLERS AND REPRESENTATIVE CITIZENS, ETC.

BIOGRAPHICAL.

~ILLUSTRATED~

A Reproduction by UNIGRAPHIC, INC.
1401 North Fares Avenue
Evansville, Indiana 47711 nineteen hundred and seventy-six CHICAGO:
J. H. BEERS & CO., 1897.

BIOGRAPHICAL.

CAPT. LUTHER BLACK, of Bowling Green, is one of the most prominent citizens of Wood county, throughout which he is known and esteemed, not only as a successful business man, but also for his high character, and his splendid record as a brave soldier in the war of the Rebellion. On his father's side he is of Irish descent, his great-grandfather having emigrated from Ireland to this country at an early day. His grandfather Black was killed by accident while raising his barn in Perry county, Ohio. On the mother's side the grandfather was of Pennsylvania-Dutch stock, while the grandmother, who was a Miss Oatley, was a native of Scotland. From these sturdy ancestors our subject has inherited the best traits—traits that have manifested themselves in his long career of useful activity.

Capt. Black was born in Washington township, Wood Co., Ohio, May 18, 1836, and is a son of John and Phœbe (Skinner) Black, the former of whom was born in Mercer county, Penn., when ten years of age moving with his parents to Perry county, Ohio. In 1831 he took up his residence in Wood county, and was one of the first three pioneers of Washington township, where at that time over one thousand Indians dwelt. While living in Perry county he married and had two children, and on removing to this county he took up some unimproved land which he cleared and converted into a productive farm, in the meantime experiencing all the trials and privations incident to the life of early settlers. In politics he was a Democrat, in religious faith an Old-school Presbyterian, and he was a man of irreproachable character. He died August 21, 1861, his wife passing away at Hull Prairie in 1883, and both are buried at Tontogany, Wood county. To this worthy couple were born seven children, of whom the following record is given: (1) William resides in Newport, Mich., where he has held the offices of deputy sheriff and collector of the port; during the Civil war he enlisted at Olmsted Falls, Minn., and proved a brave soldier. (2) Elizabeth A. married A. P. Treadwell, and lives at Hull Prairie, Wood county. (3) Minerva J. became the wife of Joseph Jeffers, and died at Waterville, Lucas Co., Ohio. (4) Calvin lives at Washington, Kans. (5) Luther is the subject of this review. (6) Catherine married Dr. A. Eddmon, and lives at Tontogany. (7) Mary is the wife of Dr. E. R. Wood, of Belle Plaine, Kansas.

Luther Black grew to manhood on his father's farm in this county, attending the schools of that locality and those at Waterville, and also the seminary at Maumee. After leaving school, he for four years taught in the district schools of Wood county, and for two years in Champaign, Ill. About this time the whole world was electrified by the outbreak of the Civil war, and the patriotism of the young teacher induced him to lay aside his ferule for an army musket, and offer his services in defense of the stars and stripes. On April 27, 1861, he enlisted in Company B, 21st O. V. I., three-months' service, which was passed in Virginia, at the termination of which, his father having died in the meantime, he was obliged to return home in order to take charge of the family. There he remained until 1864, on May 4 of which year he organized Company B, 144th O. V. I., of which company he was made captain. While at Berryville, Va., he and seven of his men were taken prisoners by the Rebels and sent to Lynchburg, thence to Libby prison where they suffered the horrors of slow starvation, and where all except himself and one other fell victims to cruel treatment. Three months after his capture, Capt. Black was released by exchange, and his patriotic zeal being still unabated, in spite of the terrible scenes through which he had passed, he raised another company, of which he was also made captain. This was Company K, 185th O. V. I., which afterward saw much service in Kentucky in the vicinity of Cumberland Gap, where they had frequent skirmishes with the guerrillas. The regiment was mustered out at Lexington, Ky., in September, 1865.

F
497
W8
E7
1976
V2
JAN 27 1977

L. Black

His career as a soldier being ended by the cessation of hostilities, and the return of peace to the land, Capt. Black returned to private citizenship, and, having in the meantime purchased the old homestead, carried on farming there for two years. At the end of that time he engaged in the drug business, in Tontogany, which he conducted some eighteen years, and then, being elected county treasurer on the Republican ticket, he, in 1881, removed to Bowling Green. That responsible office he held for two terms, or four years, such being the limit of the law, fulfilling its duties in a most creditable manner. The Captain then established himself in the clothing business, and some six or seven years ago became interested in the oil wells of Wood county. On February 20, 1894, he sold out his clothing establishment, since when he has given all his attention to his oil interests. He is now a part owner in sixty-one wells in this county, and a member of various firms connected therewith, the most prominent of which is that of Black, Reese & Hazlett, who own a number of productive wells, and are doing an extensive business. He is also cultivating a couple of farms which he owns in the vicinity.

In 1860 Capt. Black was married to Miss Sarah J. Camron, a native of New York State, who died three years later, leaving one child, Frank H., who was killed by a railroad accident when fourteen years old. On January 16, 1873, the Captain married Miss Georgie A. Cooper, who was born in St. Lawrence county, N. Y., daughter of James and Almira (Brooks) Cooper, who were married in 1840. James Cooper traces his ancestry back to the year 1661, as follows:

(1) James Cooper, of Stratford-on-Avon, England, born in 1661, died in 1732; came to Philadelphia, Penn., in 1682; had eight children—Esther, James, Joseph, (2) Samuel, William, Benjamin, Isaac and Rebecca. James Cooper owned a lot on Chestnut street, Philadelphia, opposite Marble Custom-house. (2) His son William had six children—Rebecca, (3) Thomas, James, Joseph, Samuel, and Letitia. He died in 1736. (3) His son (3) James was twice married, and had fifteen children; by his first wife, Hannah (Hibbs), he had eight children—Susanna, (4) James, William, Letitia, Levi, and Benjamin; by his second wife, Elizabeth (Wager), (3) James had seven children—Amelia, Marmaduke, Meshach, Laodosia, Naboth, Noah and Alpheus.

(4) James Cooper, son of (3) James, and grandfather of Mrs. Capt. Luther Black, was born in Moreland, Montgomery Co., Penn., March 6, 1753; served in the navy and army of Pennsylvania in the Revolutionary war, and participated in the battles of Monmouth and Germantown. He was married three times: first to Naomi Nelson, by whom he had three children—Hannah, Naomi and Caroline; by his second wife, Mary (Albertson) he had no children; by his third wife, Sarah (Comely), he had children—Courtland, (5) James, Henry, William, Nancy, Hamilton, George and Amos. The father of these died May 1, 1849, in his ninety-seventh year. He was a man of strong likes and dislikes, served as judge on the bench, and was a large land holder, owning property whereon a portion of the city of Philadelphia now stands. He and his wife were both Quakers.

(5) James Cooper, son of (4) James Cooper, and father of Mrs. Black, was born November 23, 1795, in Philadelphia. He was own cousin to James Fennimore Cooper, the distinguished American novelist. James Cooper was twice married; first time to Sarah Rice, by whom he had six children—Esther, Ezra, Ruth, Hannah, William and Alonzo; by his second wife, Almira (Brooks), he had two children—Georgie A. (Mrs. Black), and James B., an inventor who resides in Minneapolis. The sons, Ezra, Alonzo and James B., were all soldiers, making for themselves an enviable military record. The father of these was a man of superior education and acknowledged ability, for which, indeed, the entire family have been noted. He was a pronounced Abolitionist, and an outspoken advocate of the cause of freedom to all mankind. Migrating to Ohio about the year 1844, he settled at Waterville, Lucas county, where for many years he served as a magistrate. During his busy lifetime he owned several flouring-mills and saw-mills, doing an extensive business in both those lines of industry. He died there in 1868, honored and respected by all who knew him. His widow, who is now passing her declining years at the home of her daughter, was born, in 1812, in the town of Champion, Jefferson Co., N. Y., daughter of Joseph Brooks, a Revolutionary soldier from Massachusetts. She was a cousin of Amos Kendall, who was postmaster-general under President Jackson's administration, and when a young man taught in the family of Gen. Clay, afterward holding many offices of honor and trust. He became an able attorney at law, and was influential in the establishment of the first Deaf and Dumb Asylum at Washington, D. C.

To Capt. and Mrs. Black have been born two children: Marie C. and James L., the latter of whom at present is a student at Oberlin College. The Captain is a consistent member of the Presbyterian Church, in which he is an elder; socially, he is affiliated with the F. & A. M., Wood County Lodge, No. 112; is a member of Crystal Chapter, No. 157, and of Toledo Commandery, K. T., at Toledo, Ohio. In politics he has always been an ardent Republican, his first vote being cast for Abraham Lincoln, and he has never failed to deposit his ballot, save twice—first when he was in Libby prison, and again, in 1880, when he was too ill to go to the polls. Capt. Black was delegate to the State Convention, and was honored with election as alternate delegate to the National Convention, to be held at St. Louis in June. He has served as president of the school board and of the gas board, and is a director of the American Foundry & Machine Co., also of the First National Bank, of Bowling Green. During the past year he has been interested in gold mining in California, being identified with a joint-stock company. In every relation in life, Capt. Black has borne an honorable part as an upright, patriotic, loyal citizen, and is justly classified among the social representative men of Wood county.

JOHN R. HANKEY, the well-known capitalist of Bowling Green, has, by his varied business enterprises, done much to develop the natural resources of this region, and to open up its commerce. In judgment of human nature, and statesmanlike manipulation of a complex situation, he has few equals; but his shrewdness is combined with rare kindness of heart, shown in many ways characteristic of the man. It has been said that if simple justice were to rule the business world, there would be no need for "charity," and the subject of this sketch is one of the first to try to bring this high ideal of human brotherhood into practical effect in his relations with his employes. In his large planing-mill at Bowling Green he inaugurated, some years ago, the co-operative system, issuing stock to his men and carrying it for them until such time as they could pay for it from their savings, and paying back money, so invested, at any time at the request of the shareholder. This plan has succeeded admirably, and to the lasting profit of all parties concerned.

The members of the Hankey family, living in Bowling Green, are descended from Louis Hankey, a native of Germany, who emigrated to America at an early day. It is related that he had just enough money to pay his way across the Atlantic and furnish his own provisions. The vessel he set sail in lost her course at sea, and the passage consumed so much more time than was anticipated. that his stock of food became exhausted long ere he reached land again, that he became indebted to the ship for part of his board. On reaching New York, he was "sold" by the ship's company, or agents, as was the custom in those days, they getting the money for his time, which he worked out with a farmer. He afterward became a minister of the Evangelical Church, and also followed agricultural pursuits. He married a Miss Less, whose father served in the Revolutionary war seven years, and our subject remembers hearing his grandmother often tell of how she could trace the path the soldiers took by the blood left on the ground from their shoeless feet. In later life Louis Hankey lived in both Stark and Summit counties, Ohio, in which latter he and his wife passed their last days. This estimable couple were the parents of seven children, as follows: John, father of the subject proper of this sketch; Catherine, married to John Himmelright, of Summit county; Jacob, who lived in Summit county, Ohio, near Akron; Lydia, married to Rev. Miller, a minister of the Reformed Church; Sarah, married to a Mr. Hawk; Louis, living in Wayne county, Ohio; and Samuel, a farmer, residing at Copley, Ohio.

J. R. Hankey is a native of Ohio, born in Wayne county, March 16, 1843, a son of John and Polly (Fostnight) Hankey, the former of whom was born in Schuylkill county, Penn., in 1814. He was a farmer and merchant by occupation, and early in life came to Ohio, first locating in Wayne county, during the war of the Rebellion moving to Medina county, where he died in 1868. He was three times married; first to Miss Polly Fostnight, who was born in Stark county, Ohio, in 1819, and by her he had seven children, as follows: Solomon died in infancy; Sarah married William Shammo, and is deceased; Lewis W. is a minister of the Evangelical Church at Tiffin, Ohio; John R., the subject proper of this memoir, comes next; then I. L.; two died in infancy. The mother of these departed this life in Wayne county in 1854, and Mr. Hankey subsequently married Miss Margaret Reach, who died fifteen months after marriage; she had one child that died in infancy. For his third wife he wedded Miss Sarah Strouse, of Richland county, Ohio, by which union there were two children: Isaiah S., of Bowling Green, and Sarah Katherine, wife of A. L. Sourwine, a farmer in Crawford county, Ohio.

Our subject lived on a farm until he was eleven years old, when he went to Marshallville. He received his education in the common schools, and when fifteen years old went to Wooster,

John R. Heanley

Ohio, where he entered the arena of business in the capacity of clerk in a clothing store. While so engaged the war of the Rebellion broke out, and at the first call by the President for three-years men to defend the Union, the lad, fired with the spirit of true patriotism, enlisted June 4, 1861, in Company E, 4th O. V. I., which was attached to the army of the Potomac, Gen. Sumner's corps, under Gen. McClellan ("Little Mac"). Private Hankey participated in many battles and skirmishes, and established for himself the record of a good, dutiful and brave soldier. He took part in the battles of Winchester, Port Royal, Port Republic, and in all the engagements in front of Richmond in 1862; was at the siege of Yorktown, the battle of Fair Oaks, the seven-days' retreat, battles of second Bull Run and Antietam, up to and including that of Fredericksburg. At second Bull Run he had a very narrow escape from death, his haversack being blown to pieces by an exploding shell. His personal injuries were not serious, but his rations were entirely lost, and for several days he had to depend upon the generosity of his comrades for food. After the battle of Fredericksburg Mr. Hankey was stricken with typhoid fever, necessitating his removal to the hospital, whence on his recovery he was transferred to the Invalid Corps, in which he served at different localities until his honorable discharge from the army, June 4, 1864, after an arduous and loyal service of three years, during which he never shirked his duty, but cheerfully and without a selfish thought risked his young life—amid shot and shell, in dreary and wearisome marches and counter-marches, in the trenches and at the storming of bastions—that the integrity of the Union might be preserved.

Returning to Wooster, Ohio, Mr. Hankey found his old position in the store awaiting him, and that his salary had recommenced from the day of his discharge. He did not remain much longer, however, with the firm, for on the first day of January, 1867, we find him engaged by a Philadelphia woolen-goods house to represent them "on the road," a line of life better suited to his natural energy and push, and no doubt palatable to a certain love he had for "adventure," inoculated into him by his army experience. With this firm he remained ten years, in all, during which time, in January, 1869, he and another established a clothing and merchant tailoring store in Findlay, Ohio (at the same time retaining his connection with the Philadelphia firm, as traveler), and they conducted the same conjointly till 1871, when Mr. Hankey sold out his interest to his partner, and removed with his family to Wooster.

In August, 1874, he and Mr. White established a clothing business at Bowling Green, Wood county, under the firm name of Hankey & White, which they successfully carried on up to January 1, 1877, at which time our subject discontinued commercial traveling. On April 1, same year, he removed with his family to Bowling Green, where they have since made their home. In that city he has become identified with various undertakings, among them being the planing-mill already referred to; he has also been interested in gas and oil enterprises, the firm of Hankey Brothers being among the most extensive promoters in that line in this region. He assisted in organizing, and was a heavy stockholder in, both the Bowling Green and the Crystal Glass Works, formerly located at Bowling Green; and stockholder in the Foundry and Machine Shop. He was one of the founders of the First National Bank of that city, and is still vice-president thereof. He has been an extensive dealer in real estate, much valuable property in and about Bowling Green having changed hands with him. He built and owns the fine new Opera House block on Main street, the Hankey block, north of the Opera block, besides the National Bank and Exchange Bank buildings. Indeed, it can be truly said of him that he has stood ready with his energy and means to assist in any and every measure tending to the development of the industries of northwestern Ohio, more especially Wood county and the city of Bowling Green, whose present prosperity is due to him more than any other one person. For thirty-nine years he has not been a day idle, having been either in the employ of others, or in business for himself.

In 1867, at Wooster, Ohio, Mr. Hankey was united in marriage with Miss Emma T. Van Houten, who was born in Wooster, in 1846, daughter of the late Philo S. and Elizabeth (Bartol) Van Houten, and three children have graced this union: Rufus P. (married to Miss Nettie Long, of Bowling Green), Harry G. and Philo S.; of whom, Rufus P. and Harry G. have an interest in their father's planing-mill; Philo S. was employed in a bank at Bowling Green, but at present, owing to impaired health, is sojourning in the "Sunny South."

Philo S. Van Houten, father of Mrs. Hankey, was born in Marcellus, N. Y., December 25, 1810, and by assiduous industry, strict integrity and indomitable perseverance rose from comparative obscurity to be cashier of the Wayne County Bank (now the Wayne County National Bank), Wooster, Ohio, an incumbency he filled with fidelity and ability for the long period of nearly a third of a century—in fact up to his death, which occurred April 9, 1881. He was a man of irreproachable private character, whose domestic life and habits were of that quiet and unostentatious kind so well calculated to endear him to family and friends.

On January 2, 1840, Mr. Van Houten married Miss Elizabeth Bartol, who was born in Elizabethtown, Lancaster Co., Penn., in 1820, daughter of Mathias and Elizabeth (Jontz) Bartol, both also natives of the Keystone State. They were the parents of three sons and three daughters—George and John (who died in Ohio); Abraham (who died in California); Elizabeth; Margaret (Mrs. William Still), and Sarah (Mrs. Michael Rahn), all now deceased. The parents moved to Wayne county, Ohio, in the summer of 1831, and there passed the rest of their honored lives. The father was called to his final rest in 1843 at the age of sixty-two, the mother dying in 1863, aged seventy-two. Mrs. Elizabeth Van-Houten was a girl of eleven years when her parents removed to Wayne county, and as will be seen was nineteen at the time of her marriage. Nine children were born to her and her husband, only four of whom survive, namely: Mary (Mrs. Wellington Curry, now of Chicago); Emma (Mrs. John R. Hankey); Edward, in California, and Anna (Mrs. Frank Eshelman), of Pittsburg, Penn. Those deceased are Jane (Mrs. Lee Scobey, who died in Wooster), Harry, Charles, John, and Caroline (who died in infancy). The mother of these was called from earth February 12, 1895. Like her husband she was a sincere and consistent member of the Methodist Episcopal Church; was an ardent advocate of the cause of temperance, and a member of the organization known as the Evergreen Social Temple. By everyone who knew her she was justly held in the highest esteem, and is affectionately remembered for her many good qualities.

In his political preferences, Mr. Hankey is an uncompromising Republican, ever taking a lively interest in the affairs of the party as a recognized leader in its ranks, in Ohio, his ability, wealth and public spirit securing for him a powerful influence in the party councils. Never an office seeker himself, yet, such is his popularity and usefulness, he has oft-times been sought after to fill positions of honor and trust. He has served as township treasurer twelve years; as member of the school board; and as trustee of the State Blind Asylum, five years. In local politics he is an honest but hard fighter, and his all-round influence enables him to assist a friend or effectually bar the way to any adversary. For years he has been one of the most zealous factors on the county executive committee, and, while honorably aggressive, has on all occasions proven himself to be a most liberal and generous opponent, true to his colors and promises, and securing alike the acclamation of his friends, and the respect of his rivals. In the fall of 1895 he was elected to the Thirty-third District of Ohio in the State Senate, the first time he has been called by election to any State office. Socially, he is a member of the F. & A. M., Royal Arcanum, I. O. O. F. and G. A. R. The family have an elegant home in Bowling Green, surrounded by an atmosphere of comfort and refinement, and enjoy the respect and esteem of a wide circle of warm friends.

ERASMUS D. PECK, M. D., deceased. Among the able and cultured people who came from the East in the early days, and settled in Perrysburg, giving to its society a notably refined and intellectual tone, none took higher rank than did the late Dr. Peck and his estimable wife.

The Doctor was born in Stafford, Conn., September 16, 1808, a member of one of the old Colonial families, and was educated in the schools of Munson, Mass., and at Yale College, where he was graduated from the Medical Department in 1829, and was well fitted for the leadership, wherever his lot might be cast. The Peck family is of English origin, and the first of the American line, William Peck, settled in Connecticut in 1720. Dr. Peck's father, Daniel Peck, was a prominent physician in his day, and married a descendant of a well-known New England family, Miss Persis Ladd, by whom he had six daughters and four sons. After his graduation Dr. Peck came to Ohio, for some time living in Portage county, but in 1834 he came to Perrysburg, where for over forty years he practiced his chosen profession. He formed a partnership, at first with Dr. E. T. Tremaine, and later with Dr. James Robertson, but in 1854 his nephew, Dr. H. A. Hamilton, joined him in practice. This partnership continued until Dr. Peck's death, which occurred December 25, 1876. A man of commanding influence in all lines of effort, Dr. Peck took a prominent place in the councils of the Republican party, which he entered on the disorganization of the old Whig party. He was a member of the Ohio Legislature in 1855-57, and in 1870 was elected to Congress, serving in the Forty-first and Forty-second sessions. He then retired from active participation in politics, and resumed his professional work. He was married in 1834 to Miss Mary Thorndyke Lincoln, a native of Jeffrey, N. H., who was born in 1808 and died in 1873.

H. E. PECK, the only child of these honored pioneers, was born in Perrysburg, April 30, 1838. He was educated in the schools of his native place, and has made his home there except one year he spent in the South, and one year in New York State. For twenty-five years he was engaged in the mercantile business, and on retiring from that he served four years as deputy collector of customs of this district. In 1873 he was married to Miss Mary C. Robinson, who was born in Middlebury, Ohio, and they have two children: Charles L. and Augustus H., the latter of whom is at school in New York.

COLLISTER HASKINS. Among that dauntless set of Eastern men who, ambitious to carve out for themselves homes from the then wilds of the West, and who left peaceful firesides and braved the dangers and privations incident to a frontier life, is he whose name introduces this memoir. Born of good parentage at North Prescott, Mass., August 25, 1799, young Haskins was early educated to habits of virtue, morality, order, industry and economy, and was therefore well prepared for the task before him. He removed to the Maumee river, settling at Waterville in 1817, and, June 16, 1818, was married to Miss Fanny, daughter of Martin Gunn, of that place, the ceremony being performed by Seneca Allen, a justice of the peace. The mother of Collister Haskins, a woman of many virtues, was an own cousin to President Franklin Pierce. The parents of Mrs. Haskins—Martin and Sarah (Winslow) Gunn—were from Massachusetts, becoming early settlers in the Maumee Valley; the Gunns were of Scotch descent.

To the marriage of our subject and wife were born children, as follows: Two (a boy and a girl) who died in infancy; Delia, who died unmarried at Portage; Wealthy, the wife of John De Witt, a farmer of Wood county; Sarah, the wife of Joseph Clark, a resident of Missouri; Henry, a resident of Butler, Ind., whose first wife was Hannah Fernside, and whose present wife was a Miss Hutchinson; Chrissa, who married Isaac Van Gardner, and resides in Portage, Wood county; Cynthia, the wife of Capt. James W. Knaggs, who resides near Portage; Charles, deceased; Eunice, the wife of Jesse Lane Roller, a prominent druggist and business man of Toledo.

Pioneer Haskins, it will be observed, was only a boy of eighteen years at the time of his marriage; but, possessed of a good constitution, and being of a resolute and determined will, he at once set out to make for himself and family a home. During his stay on the Maumee river, he passed some three years on what is known as Granger's Island. In July, 1824, he entered, from the government, land in Section 12, Liberty township, this county, and in September following removed to the east half of the northeast quarter of the same section. When his cabin was ready to be raised, his friends came from Waterville, twelve miles distant, to assist him. This cabin was built of logs, and stood near the bank of a creek, not far from the old stockade made by Gen. Hull in 1812, and which was occupied by a few soldiers during the war, as an advance post on the "middle route" to the Foot of the Rapids. Here Mr. Haskins began trading with the Indians. He kept a variety store, being supplied with such goods as were then in demand, and purchasing his goods from Gen. John E. Hunt, of Maumee City. During the first four years of his residence in Wood county, Mr. Haskins' nearest neighbor was at Miltonville, twelve miles north, and his next, twenty-two miles south. Through his efforts a post office was established at "Haskins Place," in January, 1829. He laid out the village of Portage in 1836, and was an honored citizen of that place and vicinity throughout his life. For some years after Mr. Haskins settled on the site of Portage, the Indians still lingered in their old homes, retaining almost undisputed possession of their sugar camps and hunting-grounds, although the whites were rapidly appropriating the sites of their villages and their favorite fishing-grounds. A description of the Indians of this vicinity as they were from 1825 to 1840, which is of great interest, was given to history by our subject. The death of Mr. Haskins occurred at his residence in Portage, May 7, 1872, after a life of great usefulness to the pioneer people among whom he passed the vigor of his manhood. He had lived a pious life, and when death came it had no terrors for him, his last words being: "It is all right; glory to God."

With other early pioneers, Mr. Haskins passed through the hardships and privations incident to such a life, and performed the labors, which fell to his lot, with patience and cheerfulness, never murmuring at his misfortunes or losses, but ever laboring to make others happy, sacrificing his own means, ease and quiet for others without reserve. His enemies, if he had any, were few, and his friendship was constant and sincere. He was a member of the Baptist Church. He was careful in his words and acts, calm in his demeanor, intelligent in his conclusions, and outspoken in his sentiments, when he deemed it duty to speak thus, yet always mindful lest he might needlessly give pain or offense. Such a character was not formed hastily, resembling rather the oak which is the growth of centuries. In the death of an old man, whose memory is retentive and pure, much that is valuable to society dies with him.

A. E. ROYCE. The successful career of this leading business man and capitalist, who now holds the position of president of the Commercial Banking Company, of Bowling Green, proves the truth of the old saying, "There is always room at the top." The story of the lives of such men can not too often be told, that it may become an incentive to others whose early opportunities were no greater, and whose chances for success are fully equal to those of the subject of this sketch.

Mr. Royce was born in Huron county, Ohio, July 25, 1844, and is the only child of William and Elizabeth (Scammon) Royce. His father was born in New Hampshire in 1822, removing from that State to New York, and thence to Huron county, Ohio, where he located in Fairfield township. The greater part of his life he spent in the lumber business. In 1871 he located in Bowling Green, where his death occurred in 1884. He was a Democrat, and a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church. Elisha Royce, the father of William, was a lumberman in New England, but after removing to Huron county followed farming until his death, which occurred when he was at an advanced age. The Royce family are of Scotch and Irish extraction. The mother of our subject was born in Cayuga county, N. Y., November 23, 1824, and is still living, strong in body and mind. She makes her home in Bowling Green.

Mr. Royce spent his boyhood days in Huron county, attending the common schools and working on his grandfather's farm in his leisure hours, the first money he ever earned being made in this way. On the death of his grandfather, however, the property was divided among the heirs, and he was thrown out of employment. He was then about seventeen years of age, and with the few dollars he had saved he went to Toledo, Ohio, to seek employment and to carve out his fortune. He began in a very humble way, hiring out as a common laborer, and carrying plank into a chair factory to be modeled by more skillful hands into furniture, receiving for this work seventy-five cents per day. The grit and pluck of his sturdy Scotch ancestors were soon manifested in this young lad, for he made himself so useful that at the end of ten years he was still in the employ of the same company, but no longer as a common laborer. At this time he was the chief engineer, at a salary of $110 a month.

It was during the latter part of his services in this factory, that what Mr. Royce regards as the most important event in his life occurred. Almost every evening as he went home from work, carrying his tin dinner-pail, he would meet upon the street the then opulent wholesale grocer, Peter Berdan, returning after his evening meal to look after the interests of his large business. The quiet demeanor of this successful merchant attracted the attention of our subject, and he philosophized that even Mr. Berdan must have started in an humble manner, and concluded that others with sufficient tenacity of purpose could do the same. Evening after evening he passed the old merchant in his regular walk to the store, and gradually Mr. Royce formed his resolution to give up his salary and position, and start in business for himself. Thus, without having the slightest knowledge of it, Mr. Berdan wielded a strong influence over our subject, who often points out this incident as an illustration of the unconscious power each individual in society exerts for good or evil upon the younger generation around him.

With the courage of his convictions, Mr. Royce resigned his position, and with money he had saved up, purchased a horse and wagon, made his own harness, and began business as a huckster. This he carried on in Toledo, then removing to Bowling Green, where he rented a vacant room and started a grocery store. He hauled his entire stock of goods, about $150 worth, from Toledo at one load, in his one-horse wagon, put them up on the shelves of his room at night, and at early dawn had the doors opened to customers. Thus the first great step in the career of one of the most successful men in northern Ohio had been attained, and his first ambition, which was to have a business of his own, was gratified. It was on a small scale, to be sure, but from this humble beginning Mr. Royce has built up a large and flourishing trade. As his means increased he extended his operations in various directions, investing largely in property in Bowling Green, which then village he foresaw was destined to become a place of importance in trade in northern Ohio, especially as a grain center. He sold out his grocery stock in 1884. Prior to this he had embarked in the grain business, buying a car-load of corn, had it shelled by hand, and shipped it to Tontogany on the little railroad which was at that time the only one running through Bowling Green. He was obliged to act himself as fireman in order to get this shipment to market at Toledo, and thus may well lay claim to being the pioneer grain shipper of that section of the county. Subsequently Mr. Royce built a small corn crib, which was afterward converted into an elevator, run by horse power, which he operated alone for some years, finally taking in as a partner Mr. J. J. Coon, of Toledo. The manner in which this business has succeeded is best told by its present condition, this firm now owning two large elevators, besides a mill in Bowling Green, and a mill in each of the following places: Tontogany, Custar, Hoyt's Corner, North Baltimore, and Dunbridge. Mr. Royce has entire charge of the business, and has enlarged it from that one car-load of corn, shelled by hand, to 110 car-loads per week.

A. E. Royce

Soon after selling out his grocery business, in 1885 Mr. Royce organized the banking firm of Royce, Smith & Coon, and opened a private bank in Bowling Green, which was re-organized in 1890, under the laws of the State, as a stock company with $100,000 capital. This is one of the soundest financial institutions in Ohio, and Mr. Royce is its first and only president. He also owned the second oil well drilled in this county, but finding he had already all the business he could attend to, he soon disposed of his interests in that direction. He owns a large amount of property in Bowling Green, and erected what is known as the Royce Building.

Our subject was married October 31, 1867, to Elizabeth Curson, who died in 1877. One child was the result of this union, Maud, who was born November 29, 1871, and is the wife of F. E. Whitaker, a merchant of Bowling Green. The present wife of Mr. Royce, to whom he was married January 31, 1888, was Miss Hattie Cargo, and they have one child named Ethel. Mr. Royce is a Republican in politics, but in local affairs is not bound by party lines, voting for the men he considers the best for the offices. Socially he belongs to the I. O. O. F. and the Royal Arcanum, and is prominent in all philanthropic work and enterprises which have for their object the welfare of the community.

HON. ASHER COOK (deceased) was born in Luzerne county, Penn., May 3, 1823. In early childhood he came with his parents to Richland county, Ohio, and a few years later moved to Perrysburg, in Wood county. After a few years residence there, the family removed to Chicago (then a mere village), but not liking the place they soon returned to Perrysburg, where the subject of this sketch spent the remainder of his life. The journey from Chicago to Perrysburg, about 250 miles, was overland, and Asher, who was a mere lad, traveled the whole distance on foot, driving a few cattle, which, with a team, constituted the bulk of his father's possessions. The father was a stone mason and plasterer by occupation, and the son learned and followed the same trades for a short time. He worked as a common laborer in the construction of the Mad River railway (now the Sandusky division of the Cleveland, Cincinnati, Chicago & St. Louis railway); also served for a time as a common sailor upon the lakes. His ambition and thirst for knowledge, however, soon led him into a higher and broader sphere of usefulness. Without means, other than the earnings of his daily labor, he acquired a thorough knowledge of the common branches of learning, as well as several of the higher, and he had an especial liking for the study of languages. Without the benefit of a college training he was able to read, with ease, Latin, French, German and Spanish. His large private library contained no less than 275 volumes in those languages, and he spoke German and French almost as fluently as he did the English language.

Having acquired the necessary general education, he studied law, and in 1849 was admitted to the bar. In the practice he was associated with, and pitted against, the ablest lawyers in north-western Ohio, and was second to none of them in ability and knowledge of the law. The late Chief Justice Waite once said of him: "In knowledge and understanding of the fundamental principles of law, Asher Cook has no equal in the Maumee Valley." Immediately on his admission to the bar, our subject was elected prosecuting attorney of his county, and in 1852 was elected probate judge.

In 1853, Judge Cook was married to Miss Amanda Hall, youngest daughter of Judge Jairus Hall, of Vermont. She died during the cholera epidemic, of 1854. Soon after her death Judge Cook went to Europe, and spent a year in study at Paris and Heidelberg, after which he returned to Perrysburg and resumed the practice of law. In 1858 he was married to Miss Sophia Hitchcock, eldest daughter of W. J. Hitchcock, then a prominent merchant of Perrysburg.

In politics, Judge Cook began life as a Democrat, and when his party became divided on the Slavery question, he cast his lot with that branch of it known as the "Free Soil Party." He took an active part in the organization of the Republican party, being a member of the Pittsburg Convention, at which that party, as a National organization, had its birth. Several months before the Pittsburg Convention, a public meeting was held at Portage, in Wood county, at which resolutions were adopted embodying the principles contained in the Pittsburg platform. In calling this meeting, and in framing the resolutions which it adopted, Judge Cook was the leading spirit. The organization formed at that meeting is claimed, and believed to have been, the first of the local organizations out of which sprang the party which has cut so large a figure in American history. At the opening of the Rebellion, Judge Cook raised, and commanded Company C, 21st O. V. I., during its service under the first call for volunteers, and commanded his company at the battle of Carrick's Ford and in other engagements. He afterward raised and commanded Company F, 144th O. V. I. From 1862 to 1864 he represented Wood and Ottawa counties in the Fifty-fifth General Assembly of Ohio. He was a delegate to the Convention which nominated Gen. Grant for the Presidency in 1868. In 1873 he was elected to the Convention to revise the State Constitution, and was made chairman of its committee on education. He showed marked ability in the deliberations and debates of the Convention, and was recognized as among the best constitutional lawyers in that body of able men.

Throughout his professional and political career, Judge Cook's great ability, his unquestionable integrity, his genial courtesy and fairness won for him the profound respect and esteem of his associates and competitors. Fond of travel, he in 1879 spent a year traveling with his wife over Great Britain and Continental Europe, and in 1883 he did the same, extending his travels to Egypt and Palestine. As a Free Mason he was active and prominent, and in his daily life exemplified all that is best in the doctrines and teachings of the Order. His domestic and social life was full of tenderness and sympathy for others, and filled with unostentatious acts of charity which were known at the time only to himself and the recipients of his bounty. He continued in the active practice of his profession until his death, which occurred January 1, 1892.

W. M. RICHARD, one of the prosperous farmers of Perry township, is a descendant of that old pioneer family of Jacob Richard, who came from Ashland county, Ohio, to Wood county in 1851. That gentleman was the grandfather of our subject, and his parents were John and Catherine Richard. In Eagleville, this county, he was born July 13, 1857, and after completing his education at Pleasant Grove school in Perry township, he gave his entire time to the cultivation of the old homestead. There his first ideas of farming were obtained under the able direction of his father, and after the latter's death he took entire charge of the place, which he now owns and operates.

After the removal of his widowed mother to Bloomdale, where she now resides, Mr. Richard kept "bach" for several years; but on April 22, 1894, he was joined in wedlock with Mrs. Alice Black, widow of Lafayette Black, and daughter of John and Charity (Reigle) Sherwood. She was born in Wyandot county, Ohio, July 29, 1856, and by her former marriage has one child—May, born January 9, 1880.

Mr. Richard has been quite successful in his life work, and his neat farm shows the thrift and enterprise of the owner, who is an unassuming gentleman of excellent character, upright and honorable in all things. He is a member in good standing of the Church of Christ, at Eagleville, as are also his wife and daughters, and he uniformly supports the principles of the Republican party. On the 1st of March, 1889, he met with quite an accident while sawing wood, losing three of the fingers off his right hand, and, although handicapped to some extent, he has become able to perform almost all kinds of farm labor.

HARMON SWERLEIN, an enterprising young agriculturist, residing near Weston, was born in Wyandot county, Ohio, September 26, 1857, a son of John and Theresa Swerlein, both natives of Germany, and pioneer settlers of Wyandot county. Our subject was educated in the district schools of the vicinity of his birthplace, and worked upon his father's farm until he attained his majority. In 1880 he bought a farm of 135 acres, partly in Weston township and partly in Grand Rapids, which he has improved, remodeling the house and barns, and cultivating the land after the most approved methods.

In 1879 he was married to Miss Ellen Speck, of Wyandot county, who was born April 27, 1852, in New Pittsburg, Wayne Co., Ohio, the only child of John and Ann Speck, who were born in Chambersburg, Penn., the former of whom died in 1869, the latter in 1859. Mrs. Ellen Swerlein was a student of Heidelberg College, and for many years a prominent teacher of Wyandot and Seneca counties. Our subject and wife have no children. Mr. Swerlein's industry, integrity and good sense have secured to him, in an unusual degree, the respect of his community. In politics he is a Democrat.

WILLARD V. WAY. We quote from the address of D. K. Hollenbeck, Esq., delivered at the dedication of the Way Library and its presentation to the people of Perrysburg, November 23, 1892 (and from which this sketch is taken), our subject being the donor, and to whom reference is made:

"We are now met to call to remembrance the acts, and in a fitting manner to do honor to the name of another, whom I believe I am fully justified, in the words of the poet, in designating as 'One of the few, the immortal names, that were not born to die.' I feel that upon us, as residents of this village by reason of the benefits and advantages, which do, and will, accrue to us personally in this instance as the 'favored few,' is imposed the duty, and to us is granted the pleasure and opportunity of recognizing in a befitting manner, one of the greatest benefactors our village has ever known, and 'one whom we should delight to honor;' and it has been deemed quite proper and appropriate that at the time of transferring this building to the care and custody of the council of this village, for the use and benefit of whose citizens it has been provided, some record be made of its origin and present condition, and also that proper recognition be awarded to him whose generosity has conferred upon the present and future residents of our village this library building, the several thousand volumes of books already provided and to be placed therein, and the many thousand more of volumes which as time passes will find places on these shelves.

"Willard V. Way was born in Springfield, Otsego Co., N. Y., August 3, 1807. His father, Samuel Way, was a farmer in very moderate circumstances, and the early life of the son was spent on the farm, he periodically attending the country schools, such as they were at that early date, as his condition of health would permit (he in his young days suffered from ill health). Before reaching his majority, the family were fully convinced of the fact that he would be unable to earn a livelihood, and his attention was turned to acquiring an education, hoping that by his head, so to speak, he might be enabled to accomplish that which he was precluded from doing with his hands. After taking a preparatory course in Hardwick Academy, one of the popular educational institutions of its class of that day, at the age of twenty-three, he entered Union College, from which he graduated in due course, after being subjected to many privations and hardships in providing the means for his college expenses, made necessary by reason of his father's limited means. His case is but another one of the many thousands in proof of the old but true saying that, 'where there's a will there's a way.' On leaving college Mr. Way entered the law office of Bangs & Haskell in the village of LeRoy, in the State of New York, but his legal studies were completed in the office of Payne & Wilson, in Painesville, Ohio, and he was admitted to practice in this State in 1832, from which date he soon became and was widely known as an honored member of that most honorable profession. After having been thus admitted, and after having traveled over several of what were then known as the 'Western States,' Ohio included, in search of a location, in 1834, he settled in Perrysburg, no doubt to a greater or less extent drawn hither by the beautiful location of the village on the banks of the beautiful river now so aptly and appropriately called, the 'Hudson of the West;' and here he remained until his death, and he now sleeps in the cemetery at the foot of the granite shaft erected to designate his resting-place to future generations.

"Soon after his location in Perrysburg, Mr. Way was married to Miss Sophia Hodge, then living in Buffalo, N. Y., who survived him until September 20, 1892, when she departed this life at Mansfield, in this State, at the age of eighty-five years. Several years since, after her removal to Mansfield, as the result of a fall, Mrs. Way became and remained almost helpless, and a great sufferer until her final departure, and she is now at rest beside her husband—

Sleeping the sleep that knows not breaking,
Morn of toil, nor night of waking.

"If there are any who were living in this vicinity at the time of Mr. Way's location here, we need not remind them that those were 'pinching times,' and Mr. Way was obliged, with the other pioneers of this then comparatively new country, to endure all the privations and hardships incident to that early day, and in the years immediately following, as the occasions were presented, like some of his cotemporaries who thought a position of affluence would thereby sooner be attained, than by a strict attention to the business of his chosen profession, he was lured into the whirlpool of speculation, and for the time being, financially ruined. But he 'would not down.' His reverses seemed but to incite him to more vigorous action, and to create in him a more settled purpose and firm determination to recover the ground he had thus lost, and to attain that position for which he had been striving; and, as the result of after years of toil, privations and hardships, he found himself in independent circumstances, and we, his friends and neighbors, now know that all his labors and self-denials were not alone to accumulate means for his own self-gratification, but, as well, to advance our interests individually, as the interests of our village. Mr. Way's attachment for the home of his adoption seems never to have weakened or wavered, and the time that elapsed between the date of the execution of his will and the date of his death shows conclusively that the final disposition of his estate was not the result of any hasty conclusion, but rather made after calm and mature deliberation. If, in the words of another, I was asked—

Breathes there a man with soul so dead,
Who never to himself hath said,
This is my own, my native land?—

I would answer, possibly there does, but I am certain that, in the light of recent events, you would unite with me in the earnest protest that Mr. Way was imbued with an entirely different spirit.

“Mr. Way was a strictly honest man, and withal prudent and economical, and, while living, was sometimes charged by his more inconsiderate friends and fellow citizens with being inclined to carry his ideas of economy, at least in public matters, to that extreme, that the work in hand was sometimes weakened, rather than profited by by his suggestions. However, when one calls to mind the circumstances surrounding him in the early years of his residence in our village, and the struggles he then passed through, I think his peculiarity in this regard is very easily and satisfactorily accounted for, and subsequent events lead me to say that Mr. Way was evidently misjudged.

“Willard V. Way departed this life on August 25, 1875, now more than seventeen years since, leaving a Last Will and Testament, with the conditions of which, no doubt, you are all more or less familiar. After making certain bequests amounting in the aggregate to over $15,000.00, by the 8th item in his will Mr. Way devises and bequeaths to this village all the remainder of his estate (except what is given for a public park), to be used in establishing a public library in this village for the use of its inhabitants under such regulations as may be prescribed by the council of the village, subject to the following conditions: $15,000.00 of his estate shall be invested in safe public interest-bearing securities, to remain a perpetual fund belonging to said village, the interest of which, only, is to be used in the purchase of books and works properly belonging to a public library. The remainder of the bequest for the use of a public library may be used as the council of said village may deem most for the interest of the library in the purchase of a lot, and erection of a suitable building for the library and literary halls, and purchase of books, and for no other purpose. It was to give effect to the conditions in this latter clause that the council, on March 25, 1890, requested the executors to purchase a site and erect a library building thereon, and that duty having been performed, it now remains for them, and becomes their duty, to give some account of their stewardship.

“Mr. Way also left $5,000, the interest of which to be used to defray the expenses of a scholar to any college he may choose, the scholar, to receive the benefits, to be the one from the graduating class of the Perrysburg High School standing the highest every fourth year. In politics, Mr. Way was a Democrat, and in his younger life he took quite an active part in political affairs. At one time he served the people of the county as prosecuting attorney.

“For many years prior to his death he was a confirmed invalid, and suffered greatly, although during those latter years he traveled a great deal, searching for some relief or specific whereby the hand of death might possibly be stayed ‘yet a little longer.’”

L. C. COLE, of Bowling Green, who has more than a local reputation as a lawyer, orator, politician, and business man, is a descendant of an old English family, the American branch being traced to three brothers—Joshua, Elijah and Ezekiel—who came over to Maryland in the time of Lord Baltimore. They were Baptists in faith, and did not remain in that colony during the struggles which resulted in religious toleration, but went to other sections, one to New England, one to Virginia, where his descendants still live, and the other, the ancestor of L. C. Cole, to Washington county, Penn., whence, as the country developed, later generations came west, settling in Ohio.

Thomas Cole, the father of our subject, was born in 1808, in Jefferson county, Ohio, where he spent his life in agricultural pursuits, and died in 1859. He married Miss Mary Jackman, a native of the same county, born in 1814, who survived him many years, dying in 1882. Four children were born to them: Caroline, who married I. J. Jackman, of Wellsville; L. C., whose name introduces this sketch; Isaac, who died at the age of fourteen; and Elizabeth, the wife of W. P. Cooper, of Wellsville.

S. C. Coe

The subject of this sketch first saw the light September 14, 1849, and grew to manhood at the old home in Jefferson county. He attended college at Mount Union and Richmond, and afterward read law with Judge Robert Martin, of Steubenville, Ohio. In 1872, at Newark, Ohio, he was admitted to the bar, and began the practice of his profession at Massillon, Ohio, where he remained from June, 1873, to April, 1887, when he came to Bowling Green. His ability soon won him the confidence of the people of Massillon, and he was elected to various important official positions. From 1875 to 1880, he was city solicitor until his election in 1884 to the State Legislature, in Stark county, where he served two terms. Being an influential and outspoken Democrat, his side of the House nominated him for Speaker, and came within one vote of electing him.

Having become interested in the Bowling Green Glass Co., Mr. Cole decided to locate there, the better to look after that and other business enterprises. The glass factory burned down in 1891, and as the gas was exhausted in that vicinity the company did not rebuild. Mr. Cole is at present president of the Swayzee Glass Co., at Swayzee, Ind., and looks after the financial interests of that concern. He is a director of the First National Bank, of Bowling Green, and a member of several leading oil companies, operating in Wood county and in Tennessee. Aside from his prominence in business and professional circles, Mr. Cole is an enthusiastic Democrat, takes an active interest in political affairs, in which his influence as a leader in that party is widely recognized. He was a member and secretary of the State Central Committee six years; member of the Executive Committee four years, and secretary of the same during the memorable campaign of McKinley and Campbell, in 1891. Being urged by his political friends to permit himself to be nominated for probate judge of Wood county, in 1894, he consented—unwillingly on his part, on account of the extent of his private business—but at the election, though running well ahead of his ticket, he was defeated. Socially, Mr. Cole is a member of the F. & A. M., Order of Elks, Knights of the Maccabees, Royal Arcanum and K. of P. In religious faith he and his family are members and active workers in the M. E. Church.

In his amiable and cultured wife, formerly

Miss Martha J. Douglass, to whom he was married in 1872, Mr. Cole has a true helpmeet. She was born in 1849, in Richmond, Ohio, where they were fellow students, and where they formed an attachment in which intellect as well as heart found congenial companionship. They have had two children, Tom D. (aged sixteen) and Nellie S., the latter of whom died in June, 1895, at the age of fourteen. Mrs. Cole is the daughter of Thompson and Rebecca (Dougherty) Douglass, the former of whom was born at Pittsburg, Penn., and was a son of Robert Douglass, a native of Scotland, and, on his mother's side, a direct descendant of the Stuarts. Thompson Douglass was thrice married, first time to Martha Johnson, by whom he had one child, Emery Pyle, who served in the war of the Rebellion, and died in the army. The second wife of Mr. Douglass was Rebecca Dougherty, who bore him six children: Leonidas, who enlisted in the Union army at the age of eighteen, and died of sickness in 1862; Homer, deceased in 1881; Martha J. (Mrs. Cole); Mary, who died in 1882; Theodore, living at the old home in Richmond, Ohio; and Ida, wife of G. McIntyre, a farmer of Carroll county, Ohio. The third wife of Thompson Douglass was Emeline Wallace, now his widow, and still living at the old home.

Mr. Cole stands in the front rank of the leading business men of Wood county, and is one of the most prominent and prosperous. His fame as an erudite and accomplished scholar, a ripe lawyer, a brilliant orator and a close student of political economy, is not confined to the city of his adoption, but extends throughout the entire county, and even far beyond its limits.

JACOB RICHARD, deceased. Between 1740 and 1750 two distinguished families came from Europe and settled in southern and southeastern Pennsylvania—the paternal ancestors from Germany, the maternal from Switzerland. Fleeing from oppression and persecution in the Fatherland, they sought homes and happiness in the New World, where some of them joined their destinies in business and marital relations.

Jacob Richard was born July 31, 1803, near Pleasant Unity, Unity township, Westmoreland Co., Penn., the second child but first son of John and Mary (Poorman) Richard. His grandparents were Jacob and Polly (Radebaugh) Richard, both of whom were residents of Franklin county. His grandfather was married five times, and had children by four of his wives. The old homestead was in Letterkenny township, Franklin county, and is quite fully described in the public records. He died upon it at the age of eighty-three. His children, in the order of birth, were: (1) John, the father of the subject of this memoir, born in Franklin county, and died there in May, 1835. (2) Mary (called "Polly") married Peter Poorman, of Hamilton township, same county. (3) George, who lived in Somerset, Perry Co., Ohio, and died July 31, 1864, in his eighty-fourth year; he was a wealthy, patriotic merchant, and a zealous Republican and Methodist. (4) Elizabeth, married to Jacob Humbarger. (5) Susannah, married to Jonathan Foltz, an uncle of M. A. Foltz, present proprietor and editor of the Public Opinion, of Chambersburg. (6) Jacob. (7) Sarah, married to Henry Snider. (8) Daniel.

John Richard, the eldest son, was married in 1800 to Mary Poorman. He died in May, 1835, and his widow in January, 1847. They had seven children, viz.: (1) Elizabeth, married to Jacob Mykrantz. (2) Jacob, our subject. (3) Catherine, married to Rudolph Sease. (4) Polly, married to Joseph France. (5) John, now living in Gratiot county, Mich. (6) George, who died several years ago in Pittsburg. (7) Margaret, married to George Bear.

Jacob Richard, the second in the above mentioned family, removed with his parents to Westmoreland county, Penn., sometime prior to 1811, and spent his youth upon the farm, acquiring the rudiments of an English education, consisting of reading, writing and arithmetic. The study of the New Testament and the reading of U. S. History were obligatory; English grammar and geography were not taught. On November 4, 1823, he was joined in matrimony to Rebecca, youngest daughter of Charles and Elizabeth (Stough) Richard. She was born in what is called "Culbertson's Row," Franklin Co., Penn., December 16, 1804. Her father, Charles Richard, was one of a family of two brothers, John and Jacob, a half-brother, Conrad, and three full sisters: Maria, married to a Sullenberger; Catherine, married to a Lose; and Rebecca, married to Henry Crow.

Charles Richard was born in Berks county, Penn., September 27, 1755, and died in Westmoreland county, same State, August 17, 1852, in his ninety-seventh year. He was married April 22, 1774, to Elizabeth Stough, who died January 13, 1826, in her sixty-ninth year. After his marriage he entered the Revolutionary army, and was with Washington at Long Island, White Plains, Trenton and Valley Forge. He crossed the Delaware with Washington, and aided in the capture of the Hessians, on Christmas Day, 1776; passed through the siege and horrors of Valley Forge during the memorable winter of 1777-78. With a furlough in his pocket, and a pair of new shoes in his knapsack, he lay down on the night of December 23, 1777, intending to start home the next morning, but during the night his shoes were stolen. Undaunted, he started, as planned, and traveled fifty miles in his stockings, leaving bloody tracks to mark his route. From the marriage referred to sprang eight children, viz.: George; Charles; Molly, married to Henry Smith; William; Elizabeth, married to George Fortney; John; Sarah, married to Jonathan Fry; and Rebecca, who married Jacob Richard, and died May 6, 1881.

Returning again, Jacob and Rebecca had three sons born to them in Westmoreland county: John, July 14, 1825, deceased October 8, 1878; Reuben, May 23, 1829, lost on the ill-fated "Sultana," April 27, 1865; and Charles, October 3, 1831, now residing at Bloomdale, Ohio. In 1835 the family removed to Ashland county, Ohio, where they resided until March 26, 1851. Five other sons were born at Ashland, viz.: William S., a resident of Bloomdale; George, November 28, 1837, killed at the raising of a barn near Eagleville, May 18, 1861; Franklin, March 27, 1841, a resident of Bloom township; J. Fraise, a sketch of whom follows; and Simon, March 29, 1846, at present residing in Bloomdale.

In 1851, the Richard family was removed from Ashland county to Wood county, arriving, March 29, at their destination on what is now the farm owned by W. S. Richard, a mile north-east of Bloomdale. All was wilderness and discouragement. The little round-log, one-story cabin stood in the midst of a dense forest. Without, on every hand, were water, and frogs, and owls, and wild game—in short, all the elements of pioneer life in a new country. With brave heart and resolute will, assisted by a loyal wife and industrious boys, the father went to work to establish a home and hew out a fortune. Gradually, as by magic, the heavily timbered forest was converted into fertile fields and blooming orchards, and the very elements of discouragement became sources of rich development and substantial comfort.

Time passed on. The family of boys became one of men. Mr. Richard, the father, was honored by his neighbors with their confidence, and several times he served them in the responsible position of township assessor. The trying period of war came. Five sons went into the service of their country—Reuben in Company B, 102nd O. V. I.; John, Charles and J. Fraise in Company B, 111th O. V. I.; and W. S. in Company E, 144th O. V. I. The first four entered the service in the autumn of 1862, and all returned except Reuben, who, as an exchanged prisoner from the Cahaba death-pen, was a victim of the "Sultana" disaster.

Jacob Richard was a man of good judgment, somewhat impulsive, but generous, kind, honest, industrious and law-abiding. Politically, he was reared a Democrat, and supported Douglas for the Presidency in 1860. When the war broke out, and his sons and neighbors entered the service of their country, he abandoned his old party and became first an ardent Unionist, and afterward, by necessity, a determined Republican. Religiously, he was reared a Presbyterian, but some five years prior to his death he was immersed and joined the Church of Christ, at Eagleville, in whose faith he peacefully expired on the night of April 1, 1891.

Rebecca, his wife, was reared a member of the Reformed Church, but during her residence at Ashland, Ohio, she became a member of the Presbyterian Church, of which her husband was a deacon at that time. She was kind, affectionate, industrious, devoted to her family, and a considerate and peaceable neighbor. She was known in the community as "Aunt Becky," and was universally beloved. She had no enemies. Her later life was saddened by several trying events: first by the sudden death of her son George, on May 18, 1861, by a falling plate in the raising of a large barn at the home of Robert Jacobs, two and one-half miles north of her home; secondly, by the enlistment of her five sons in the army; thirdly, by the tragic death of Reuben; fourthly, by the death of John, October 8, 1878, after enduring, unhurt, the experiences of an active soldier's life for three years; and, lastly, by the death of her life partner, as related.

It may not be amiss to note a peculiarity or two respecting these families. (1)—On the paternal side Jacob and John were favorite names. In the present instance Jacob had two sons whom he named John and Jacob. He was the son of John, who, in turn, was the son of Jacob, and so on. (2)—So far as the record goes, the two ancestral families were always law-abiding citizens, not one of them having ever been convicted of a heinous crime. (3)—On the maternal side three generations had representatives in three wars, all of whom were named Charles—all musicians: Charles Richard was a fifer in the Revolution, his son Charles in the war of 1812, and his grandson Charles in the war of the Rebellion. (4)—All of them have been intensely American and patriotic in their sentiments. [Contributed by Prof. J. Fraise Richard, of Washington, D. C.]

PROF. J. FRAISE RICHARD, Educational Evangelist, historian and literary writer, was born near Ashland, Ohio, January 18, 1844, and is the seventh son of Jacob and Rebecca Richard.

At the age of seven our subject removed with his parents to Bloom township, Wood county, and his youth was spent in clearing up and working the farm which 'Squire W. S. Richard now possesses, near Bloomdale. His education prior to the war was secured in the district school known as "Hopewell," and included the ordinary English branches. His intense thirst for knowledge was not gratified, however, by simple school studies. He read all the books and papers which came within his reach, and did his most effective study in front of the fireplace whose light was furnished by burning chips and hickory bark. By these aids he was enabled to teach his first school at Eagleville, in the winter of 1860-61, he being then but sixteen years of age. The autumn of 1861 was spent by him at Seneca County Academy, under Prof. Aaron Schuyler, the prince of mathematicians, logicians and psychologists.

On the 5th of August, 1862, his books packed to return to the Academy, Prof. Richard responded to President Lincoln's call for troops, and enlisted as a member of Company B, 111th O. V. I., and went with his regiment to the field, serving in Kentucky and Tennessee. Unsolicited on his part, he was made postmaster of the regiment, and served successfully as chief clerk at brigade, division corps, army and department headquarters, a portion of the time for Gens. Cox, Foster, Stoneman, Schofield and Palmer. He was twice offered a captain's commission, the latter time as assistant adjutant-general in the regular army. All such military honors he declined, however, and in September, 1865; he returned to civil life, to enter upon his educational work which had been interrupted for three years. He attended the Northwestern Christian (now Butler) University, at Indianapolis, and after one year's study of language, mathematics and logic, transferred his studies to Lebanon, Ohio, where he graduated from the business, scientific and classic courses at the National Normal University, in August, 1869. He was an instructor in the institution until August, 1870, when he organized the Northwestern Normal School at Republic, in the building previously occupied by Profs. Thos. W. Harvey and Aaron Schuyler. This institution soon outgrew its facilities; and, the citizens neglecting to supply ampler apartments, it was, upon the request and assurance of Charles Foster and other citizens, removed to Fostoria in the autumn of 1874. The attendance the first year in the new site was 508 students, exceeding the facilities possessed. Owing to lack of suitable buildings, the school was consolidated, in the autumn of 1875, with the Normal School at Ada, which fact gave that school its strength and efficiency. The Republic school was the progenitor of the large schools at Valparaiso and Angola, Ind., and of others in the West. It was an educational leaven, whose influence has extended from ocean to ocean.

Prof. Richard superintended the public schools at Alliance, Ohio, in 1877-78; was principal of a flourishing Normal School at Mansfield from 1878 to 1882; lectured in institutes in a number of States from 1882 to 1885; spent his time in historical writing from 1885 to 1889; and since 1890 has been employed in the City of Washington (his present home) in official, educational and literary work. For thirty-five years he has been a writer for the secular, religious and educational press, his writings being published in mediums of general circulation.

On October 6, 1867, our subject was married, at Freeport, to Miss Emma D. Strong. From this union have issued two sons: Livy S., and Vernon I. The former is editor-in-chief of the Scranton (Penn.) Tribune; the latter is a mere boy, living with his mother in Ohio.

Prof. Richard's first vote was cast in 1864, at Knoxville, Tenn., for Lincoln and Johnson. Since then his affiliation has been with the Republican party. He is a staunch Republican, but does not belong to the party in a servile sense. Religiously, he has been identified with the Church of Christ since June 2, 1862. He has never smoked a cigar nor chewed a quid of tobacco in his life, nor has he tasted a drop of any intoxicants, even beer, since May, 1859. Indeed it can truly be said his life work has been a source of inspiration and encouragement to the young.

J. C. LINCOLN, M. D., who is one of the best known and most highly respected physicians and surgeons of Bowling Green, where he also carries on an extensive drug business, was born in Albany, N. Y., May 22, 1844.

Leonard Lincoln, the father of our subject, was also a native of Albany, where he was born in 1812, and where he was married, in 1835, to Miss Ada Boughton. The Lincoln family were among the early settlers of New York State, as were also the ancestors of Mrs. Lincoln, among the latter being Maj. Reuben Boughton, a hero of the Revolution. Mrs. Lincoln was born in the same city and the same year as her husband, and was the only daughter among eighteen children, her father having been married three times. In 1844 Dr. Lincoln's parents came west, settling first in Watertown, Wis., where the father followed farming until 1852, when his wife died and he removed to Winona, Minn. There he resided about ten years, when he went to Marshalltown, Iowa, where he still lives. He belonged to the Democratic party until the war of the Rebellion, when he became a Republican; in religious faith he is a member of the Baptist Church.

Our subject is the youngest of two children. His elder brother Charles was born in 1841, and the story of his life reads like a romance, although similar to that of many who took part in the trying scenes of the war between the North and South. At that time the family was living in Minnesota, and he joined the first regiment of volunteers, going at once to the front and taking part in the first fatal battle of Bull Run. There he was taken prisoner, with a number of others, and carried first to Richmond, afterward confined in the terrible stockade at Andersonville, and later at Castle Pinckney, where he was finally exchanged and sent home. Three times during this period he made his escape, hiding in the forest, and for days living upon raw and parched corn. Each time he was recaptured, the last time when within only two or three miles of the Federal lines. This was a few days previous to his exchange, and when he was released he was sent to the hospital at Washington completely broken down in health, and a shadow of his former self, being reduced, by a course of slow starvation, from a strong young man weighing 190 pounds, to an emaciated invalid whose weight was but eighty pounds. When sufficiently recovered, he returned to Minnesota, and during the Indian troubles in that State, in 1863, he assisted in organizing the Second Minnesota Cavalry, of which he was made first lieutenant, afterward promoted to captain, and which was stationed at Fort Ridgely, where he died from the effects of hardships endured during his life in Confederate prisons.

Dr. Lincoln made his home with his parents, and had commenced the study of medicine when the Civil war broke out. After the battle of Bull Run, in which his only brother, above mentioned, was engaged, and whose name was reported in the list of the killed, our subject determined to offer his services to the cause for which his brother had sacrificed his life. He accordingly recruited 347 men for the 1st Minnesota Regiment, the same in which his brother had served, and joined the command at Camp Stone as assistant surgeon. A year had passed since Charles had been taken prisoner, and the family was still under the impression that he was dead, as his letters to the members had been intercepted by the Rebel authorities. Dr. Lincoln was at this time camped with his regiment near Savage Station, when an officer informed him that a boat-load of Federal prisoners was being exchanged, and he received intimation that his brother was among them. The boat, however, passed out of sight just as he reached the landing, and he was unable to confirm the report. Some time later Dr. Lincoln was seriously wounded at the battle of Fair Oaks, and was sent to hospital in New York City, where he remained three months, it afterward transpiring that his brother was in the same city all the time, although neither knew of the other's presence.

J. C. Lincoln

On recovering from his wound, Dr. Lincoln returned to his home in Minnesota, after which he became a student in Lawrence University, at Appleton, Wis., remaining there three years. He then read medicine for a year with Dr. Ford, of Winona, after which he entered Rush Medical College, at Chicago, from which he was graduated with the degree of M. D. in 1871. In Franklin county, Iowa, he began the practice of his profession, but, the climate not agreeing with him, he came to Ohio and located near Fostoria, where he remained until 1873. Since that date he has been a resident of Bowling Green, where he has built up a large and lucrative practice, identifying himself also with the leading interests of the city, taking a leading place in all matters pertaining to its advancement. He has been a member of the city council and of the board of education; was medical pension examiner under President Harrison, and was the unanimous choice of Wood county for congressman some two years ago. He has large property interests in Bowling Green, among which is his handsome residence, one of the best in the city, built at a cost of $14,000, and the fine brick structure occupied by his large and well-kept drugstore and office. He is also half-owner of the Lincoln & Tuller block, and it is chiefly due to his enterprise that these handsome structures have been erected. He is a member of the State Medical Society, and also of the American Medical Association, and belongs to the I. O. O. F., the G. A. R., and F. & A. M.

Dr. Lincoln has been twice married, his first wife being Miss Emma Norris, of Fostoria, Ohio, who was born November 1, 1854, and died December 12, 1883. Two children were born of this union: John H., a graduate of the high school of Bowling Green, and now a partner in his father's drug store; and Eudora, who graduated from the Bowling Green High School, in 1895, and is now a student in Oberlin College. The second wife of Dr. Lincoln, who was Miss Nettie Willard, is a cousin of Miss Frances E. Willard, of W. C. T. U. fame. Dr. Lincoln and his wife are popular in society, and their charming home is the abode of refined and cultured hospitality.

E. B. BEVERSTOCK, a prominent agriculturist of Washington township, living near Tontogany, was born in Rutland county, Vermont, October 5, 1835.

His grandfather Beverstock came from England in the latter part of the last century, but of his history and that of his family but little is known. Daniel Beverstock, our subject's father, was born in Swanzey, N. H., in 1793, and during the war of 1812, he took charge of the family of his brother Silas, who entered the army. Among the family relics treasured by our subject are two artistically designed specimens of Indian workmanship, a peace club and a war club, captured from the savages by his uncle, Silas. Daniel Beverstock, who was a farmer by occupation, married Miss Sabrina Barney, a native of Vermont, and came to Ohio in 1855. After one year passed in Wood county, he located in Richland county, where he died in 1876; his wife in 1865. He had been a Democrat throughout his life, but his last vote was cast for Hayes. There were nine children in his family, namely: Alma S. is the widow of Asa Spaulding, of Richland county; Constant resides near St. Paul; Lyman W. died in Vermont; J. B. (deceased) was formerly a grain dealer in Richland county, and later in Huron, Ohio; Silas is a farmer at Lexington, Ohio; Fannie is the wife of Homer Wells, of Cass county, Mich.; Loraine, who never married, lives in Cassopolis, Mich.; our subject comes next; and Ann lives in Lexington.

E. B. Beverstock, to use his own words, "graduated out of a spelling book at the common schools of Vermont," and his parents being poor, he commenced working at the early age of eight years. He was nineteen years old when he came with his parents to Wood county, and for some time worked by the month; but finally settled on a farm of his own on the confines of the present village of Tontogany, where he now owns 150 acres of land. On December 8, 1859, he married Miss Victoria Virginia Kuder, a native of this county, born June 12, 1839, a daughter of Solomon Kuder, a sketch of whom appears elsewhere. She died January 14, 1882, leaving seven children: Otis, a well-known resident of Bowling Green; Edward and Ella (twins), the former a rising young attorney of Bowling Green, member of the firm of James & Beverstock, while Ella is the wife of Reuben Johnson, of Tontogany; Arthur J., born March 24, 1866, and married March 1, 1890, to Miss May Klinepeter; Belle, born November 13, 1867; Clarence, born September 4, 1877; and Edna, born January 25, 1880, are all at home.

Mr. Beverstock entered the army in 1862, enlisting in Company G, 1st Regiment, O. L. A., assigned to the Army of the Cumberland, first in the Fourth, and later in the Fourteenth army corps. He took part in over thirty battles and skirmishes, among them the engagements at Stone River, Chickamauga, Lookout Mountain, Missionary Ridge, Franklin and Nashville. At Stone River he received two bullet wounds within five minutes—one in the ankle and one in the instep—on which occasion eight men and twenty-two horses were killed, twenty-two men wounded, and four guns and two caissons were taken by the enemy. Returning home, in June, 1865, he resumed the peaceful occupation of farming, which he still continues. His present residence, a fine building, was erected in 1878. A Republican in politics, he is a leader in his party. He served as county commissioner six years, and was one of the four appointed by the Judge of the Common Pleas court, in March, 1894, to act on the building and furnishing of the new court house, which cost in the neighborhood of $300,000; for several years he also served as township trustee. Socially, he is a member of the I. O. O. F., K. of P., and G. A. R., has been president of the agricultural society and is now its treasurer. Mr. Beverstock is a man of superior intelligence, a great student of the Bible and of the better class of literature, and he takes an interest in all progressive measures, both at home and abroad.

EDSON GOIT (deceased), for many years a prominent and successful member of the Wood County Bar, and an extensive merchant and land owner, was born in Oswego county, N. Y., October 17, 1808.

While he was yet an infant his father died, and during his boyhood he found but little time or opportunity to improve his mind by the aid of books, but such chances as presented themselves he availed himself of, and by the time he was twenty years old he was capable of teaching, and did teach a district school. Before he was of age he started for the Western country, as Ohio was then called, at which time, when there were neither railroads or canals, and but few wagon roads, a journey from New York thither was of no small magnitude. However, with all his worldly effects tied up in a bundle, young Goit surmounted all difficulties, "took the road," and soon found himself at Tiffin, in Seneca county. Here he worked at odd jobs, taught school both there and in Fremont, comparatively insignificant villages in those early days, in the meantime reading law with Abel T. Rawson. In due course he was admitted to the bar to practice law, and, being desirous of seeking the best possible place for a young attorney to establish himself at, he chose Findlay to commence business in, a village some thirty-five miles distant. Mr. Goit had but little money, but plenty of energy and muscle, so with his rather scanty wardrobe and a few law books tied up in a package, he set out on foot for his new destination. On his arrival at Findlay, then the small country town of Hancock county, which had recently been set off from Wood county, he took up his abode with the family of the late L. Q. Rawson, and became the pioneer of the legal profession in that part of the State. But there was no demand for his services; Blackstone and Coke were at a discount, and by the end of six months, nearly all his means being gone, he decided to leave the place. However, things suddenly took a turn for the better, prospects gradually brightened; business came, clients increased in number, and all thoughts of leaving Findlay vanished from his mind. Mr. Goit now went to board with William Taylor, who kept the tavern. While he was here Mrs. Taylor's sister, Jane Patterson, and brother, arrived from Pennsylvania on horseback, and not long afterward (February 21, 1833), Mr. Goit and Miss Patterson were married. From that time on his fortune seemed to be made. Frank, straightforward and generous, he made friends with all with whom he came in contact; settlers began to come in very fast, and business rapidly increased. By the year 1840 he had accumulated quite a competence, at that time owning nearly 2,000 acres of the best land in and about Findlay, besides having over ten thousand dollars in ready cash.

Owing to close application to business and overwork, his health began to fail, so he decided to vary his occupation somewhat, which proved to be an unfortunate step. He engaged extensively in mercantile business, and, besides a large store in Findlay, he opened branch establishments in Bluffton, Gilboa and Ottawa, all of which he had to entrust largely to the management of clerks, for he was still carrying on considerable law practice, as well as much other business, and taking an active part in politics, and in every public enterprise in the town and county. He endorsed notes, and went bail for young men who were trying to get a start in business, than which nothing seemed to afford him more pleasure, for he was a man of broad generosity, and had a large confidence in his fellow men. Such, and other generous traits in his character, led him, unfortunately, into much pecuniary difficulty, and in 1857, when the financial panic swept over the country, he found himself but ill-prepared for it, and by the time the dark clouds had passed he beheld his fortune a mere wreck. In the midst of all this others as well as himself had been ruined, and where he happened to be bondsman, creditors fell back on him, so that he found himself harrassed from all sides. But he did not succumb to the storm, and at this point is where his manhood and sterling honesty shone brightest. He made no assignment, nor did he go into bankruptcy, but went to work with renewed power and energy. Every one had faith in his integrity, and as he went on converting his property into means whereby to pay debt after debt, dollar for dollar, he found himself at the end with but little of his former fortune left. It is a satisfaction to know that in spite of all his misfortunes, Mr. Goit had in his later days a comfortable competence left for himself and remaining family, and as he himself said a short time before his death, "After so many ups and downs in my life, I am glad that if I do not get well I shall at least die square with the world."

To the marriage of Mr. Goit with Miss Patterson were born Edson Goit, Jr., January 8, 1838; William, June 26, 1840; Laquirna, April 14, 1843, and Theodosia, April 8, 1846. Mrs. Goit's death occurred April 24, 1863, at Findlay, Ohio, and on December 19, 1865, Mr. Goit was married to Sara Ann McConnell, and to the marriage were born: Ida Mary, May 19, 1867—died June 29, 1869; and Theodoro E., September 11, 1869—died January 9, 1886.

Edson Goit, Jr., in 1885, was married to Mary Beck, and they are residents of Kincaid, Kans. William Goit, on January 27, 1861, married Mary K. Freeman, and to them was born one son, L. C. William died September 1, 1896. Theodosia Goit, on March 29, 1866, was married to George W. Trichler, M. D. Dr. Trichler was a native of Bellefontaine, Logan Co., Ohio. He was a gallant officer of the 57th O. V. I. during the late Civil war, serving as captain of Company G, and after the war removed to Riga, Mich., where he practiced his profession for twenty-three years, and where he was actively and prominently identified with the affairs of the place. He served several terms as postmaster, and for years conducted a drug store. In 1889 he removed to Bowling Green, Ohio. His death occurred September 27, 1890. To the marriage of Dr. Trichler and Miss Theodosia Goit were born: W. S. Trichler, December 29, 1867, now a practicing physician, who, on October 9, 1893, was married to Theresa Thiel (born May 4, 1867), and to them was born, October 7, 1895, a daughter—Lucile; Alice, born September 30, 1871, was on June 23, 1890, married to E. C. Lossing, of Bowling Green, associate editor of the Tribune, and they have two children—Milton, born April 2, 1891, and Gladys, born September 20, 1894; and Theodosia May, born May 1, 1879.

It is said of Mr. Goit by all his clients, that he would not, for the sake of money, encourage litigation. In his professional capacity he was a peace-maker among men, always counseling the settlement of difficulties, without going into court, if it was consistent with the honor of both parties. He was a sincere friend, and in his most prosperous days never forgot those who were his friends at the beginning, when he was poor. He died in 1880, at the age of seventy-two years, revered and honored as an upright, earnest, honest man, with but few blemishes, few enemies, and almost numberless devoted friends. In religious faith he was a member of the Presbyterian Church; in social connection, he was affiliated with the I. O. O. F., subordinate lodge; in politics he was an ardent Republican.

Mr. Lossing, whose name is mentioned in connection with this family, is a native of the State of Michigan. He was engaged as a teacher for several years before coming to Bowling Green, some half dozen years ago. He was one of the practical men connected with the Glass Works, and since the establishment of the Evening Tribune, August 22, 1892, he has been identified with that paper, first as reporter, and since August, 1894, as associate editor. Mr. Lossing is a bright young man, and we predict for him a future. He is a cousin of Benson J. Lossing, the historian.

A. J. MANVILLE, M. D., was for many years a well-known druggist of Bowling Green, and, in former years, a leading medical practitioner of that place. He first saw the light May 9, 1834, in Plain township, in what is now the city of Bowling Green, and was the second white child born in that township. His parents were Eli and Elizabeth (Maginnis) Manville, and his paternal grandparents were pioneers of Delaware county, Ohio, where his father probably was born.

Eli Manville was also a physician, and took his first course in medicine at the medical college at Lexington, Ky., in the days when Henry Clay, then in his prime, was a patron of that institution. He subsequently was graduated and took the degree of M. D. from the Ohio Medical College, Cincinnati. His first permanent location was at Terre Haute, Ind., where he formed a partnership with an old-established physician, and practiced his profession for a short time. Dr. Manville was soon afterward elected a member of the Indiana Legislature, and became to some extent engaged in general business. He owned two flat-boats, which he loaded with all kinds of produce, shipping to New Orleans; this enterprise, however, proved a disastrous one, as both the boats and their cargoes were sunk in the Mississippi. This crippled him financially, and, returning to Delaware county, Ohio, he there resumed his medical practice, and shortly afterward was married to Elizabeth Maginnis. In 1834 Dr. Manville removed to Wood county, and settled on the prairie which was afterward the site of the township to which he gave the name of Plain. Here he practiced for a number of years; but as the place was sparsely settled, and the opportunities for making money were few, he joined the western tide of emigration, going to Illinois and locating in a small town, finally removing to Chicago, where he died in 1865.

The mother of our subject, who was of Irish descent, was born September 28, 1813, in Virginia, her parents having temporarily located in that State on the way from their home in Pennsylvania to their final destination in Knox county, Ohio. There were three children in the family of Mr. and Mrs. Eli Manville, namely: A. J., the subject of this sketch; Ann Maria, deceased wife of John Mears; and Amanda E., who died when about seventeen years old.

The early days of our subject were also the pioneer days of Bowling Green, which was then but a small settlement, and his advantages for an education were only such as could be derived from the primitive schools of that time. At the age of fifteen, owning forty acres of wild land, worth about one hundred dollars, given him by his mother, he commenced life in earnest. He began by occupying his land, building a log cabin, and working as much as he was able at clearing off the heavy growth of timber with which it was covered, and otherwise improving it. By industry and economy he was enabled to purchase twenty acres of land adjoining the original forty acres. He continued the occupation of farming until November, 1863, when, by the advice of his mother, he commenced the study of medicine with Dr. G. J. Rogers, a pioneer physician of Bowling Green, who gladly accepted him as a pupil, and who proposed that they buy a small drug store which was then offered for sale. This they did, and the young student spent his time in reading up for his profession and in attending to the store, in the latter way acquiring a knowledge of drugs and the compounding of medicines so necessary to physicians. In October, 1864, he entered the Medical College at Ann Arbor, Mich., studying there for one year, then returning to the drug store for another year, after which he entered the Bellevue Hospital Medical College, New York City, graduating from that institution in 1866 with the degree of M. D. During his course at the latter college he studied under some of the most famous professors in America, among them being Drs. Austin Flint, senior and junior, Surgeon-General Hammond, Lewis A. Sayers and Dr. Frank H. Hamilton, all of whom are of international repute.

After his graduation Dr. Manville returned to Bowling Green, and entered into partnership with Dr. Rogers, carrying on a drug store at the same time. He had an extensive practice from 1866 until 1875, when, on account of failing health, he was forced to gradually withdraw from active work in his profession, and from that time on devoted his time chiefly to the drug business, which was finally carried on under the firm name of Bolles & Manville. He was engaged in the drug business from 1863 until January 1, 1896, when he sold out his interest, and during part of that time was interested in two stores. Dr. Manville is one of the most widely known citizens of Wood county, and has always taken an active part in public affairs. He was instrumental in having Bowling Green made the county seat, and was treasurer of the Bowling Green & Toledo Railroad Company, which built the short line between Tontogany and Bowling Green. In pol-

Andrew J. Manville, M.D.

1907

1908

1909

•

itics he is a Democrat; socially he is a prominent member of the Masonic Order. He belongs to the Wood County Medical Association and the Northwestern Ohio Medical Association.

On January 17, 1872, Dr. Manville was married to Miss Alice J. Sholes. They have one child, Iona, born September 11, 1875, in Bowling Green, who is attending the female college at Glendale, Ohio, where she is taking a special course in art and music, and expects to finish her education; she is a most estimable young lady. The Doctor has always invested all his spare means in real estate, and in addition to his fine home in the city, which comprises one block, is the owner of several town lots and also some farm lands in the county. He spent the winter of 1895-96 in Florida.

EDWIN H. SIMMONS, an enterprising farmer of Perrysburg, is a native of Huron county, where he was born November 2, 1855. He came to Wood county when eight years old, and went to school at Thompson's school house, in District No. 3. He remained at home on the farm until 1883, and then went to Dakota and Wisconsin for a while to view the western country, subsequently returning to Wood county.

On January 25, 1888, Mr. Simmons was married to Miss Mary Hundley, whose birth took place in Perrysburg, September 22, 1865. Two children have been born to them, Alma, and Ray. After his marriage our subject settled down in Perrysburg, having bought forty acres of land, on which, in 1887, he built a substantial house. In politics he was a Democrat, and was elected trustee of Perrysburg township last spring, by the largest majority (180) ever given to the candidate for that office in that township. He is a member of Fort Meigs Lodge, I. O. O. F., at Perrysburg, and has been given the position of agent for the Lime City Farmers Mutual Fire Association. He is up to date in all matters pertaining to his business, and the Association has secured a valuable man in Mr. Simmons. He is energetic and progressive, and has numerous friends both in a business way and personally.

Robert Simmons, the father of our subject, was born in Cambridgeshire, England, May 10, 1832. In 1852 he was united in marriage with Miss Sarah Jane Van Sickle, who was born in Delaware county, Ohio, February 27, 1836. They came to Wood county in 1863, and Mr. Simmons bought a farm in Perrysburg township, then full of timber, and he had to clear a space large enough to build a house upon. Later he increased his property, and became an extensive land owner. Mr. and Mrs. Simmons are both living, and reside in the town of Perrysburg. This couple had four children, namely: Edwin, our subject; Ira C., born June 18, 1860; Adelbert, born March 18, 1864; Florence May, born December 29, 1866. All are married except Florence.

Mrs. Simmons is a descendant of the Holland Dutch, who settled in New York State. The progenitor's name was Ferdinand Van Sickle, who was born in Holland about the year 1638, and came to America when a young man.

JOHN AULT, one of the leading citizens of Wood county, and a resident of Lime City, was born in Bavaria, Germany, March 1, 1843, and is the son of George and Anna (Pinsil) Ault. Both parents were also natives of Bavaria; where they married in 1841, coming to America in 1852. Four children were born to them: John, Anna, Joseph, and Martin.

Our subject spent his boyhood in Lime City, and attended the district schools, supplementing this education by three years at a college. He was married May 18, 1875, to Miss Barbara Munger, who was born in Perrysburg in 1847, and they had nine children, as follows: Mary, Elizabeth, George, Frank, Joseph, Bertha, Edmund, Helen, and William. Mr. Ault has always resided near Lime City, settling first on the old homestead of forty acres, which he afterward sold. He now has a substantial house on 200 acres of land adjoining his old home. His energies have been well directed, and he is recognized as one of the leaders in Wood county. For five years he has been a trustee of the township, and secretary of the Lime City Farmers Mutual Benefit Fire Association, of which he was one of the chief promoters. He is a member of the commission appointed for building the county court house. In religious faith he is a member of the Roman Catholic Church. Mr. Ault is intelligent and progressive, and an earnest worker in the interest of the community in which he lives.

CHARLES E. AUVERTER has led an industrious and useful life, and has worked his way upward step by step, until he now occupies a leading position among the substantial and prominent farmers of Wood county. He has spent his entire life in this county, his birth having occurred in Henry township, January 1, 1856. His parents, Michael and Rachel (Milbourn) Auverter, are now living retired in North Baltimore.

To the public-school system our subject is indebted for his educational privileges. At the age of nineteen he began to learn the carpenter's trade, but made his home under the parental roof until his marriage. On the 13th of February, 1883, in Henry township, was solemnized the marriage of Charles Auverter and Miss Della Beatty, who was born February 22, 1862, and is a daughter of Hiram and Delila (Willford) Beatty. The young couple began their domestic life upon their present farm, Mr. Auverter having purchased forty acres of land in the fall of 1882, and in the spring of 1883 he erected a pleasant dwelling. Farming, however, is not his chief occupation, as he gives the greater part of his attention to carpentering. He has also worked to a limited extent in the oil fields, and has been a very industrious and energetic man. Upon his own land he has developed ten oil wells, four of which are now running.

In his political affiliations, Mr. Auverter is a Democrat, and for some years has served as supervisor. He has also filled the office of school director, and the cause of education has found in him a staunch friend. In fact he is the champion of all movements that he believes calculated to advance the general welfare, and is therefore a valued citizen of the community.

JUDGE HENRY H. DODGE, a leading attorney of Bowling Green, and for many years Judge of the Court of Common Pleas, was born in the town of Pompey, Onondaga Co., N. Y., February 4, 1830.

His grandfather, Ezra Dodge, a native of Windsor, Conn., and a soldier in the Revolutionary war, removed to New York State in 1800, taking up a "Soldier's Claim" in the township of Pompey, where he died in 1816, at the age of sixty-two.

David F. Dodge, our subject's father, was born at Windsor, Conn., September 8, 1787, and when thirteen years old accompanied his parents to their new home, where he spent the remainder of his life, dying at eighty-two years of age. He was a Whig until that party disbanded, when he became a Democrat. During the war he joined the Union party. He married Ada H. Roberts, a lady of Huguenot descent, and a native of Windsor, Conn., where her father had located after being driven from France by the revocation of the Edict of Nantes. She was born in 1797, and died in 1878. Our subject's parents were both Presbyterians in early life, but in 1838 they were converted to the Catholic faith, to which their surviving children adhered. They had three daughters and one son, our subject. Diane, deceased, was the wife of Francis Manahan, a hardware merchant of Utica, N. Y.; Mary, deceased, was the wife of Daniel G. Wheaton, a farmer of Pompey, N. Y.; and Cynthia became a sister of charity. She died in 1893 at Mount St. Vincent's Academy on the Hudson, in New York City, after more than forty years of devoted service. She was known as Sister Maria, and was one of the chief officers of the institution, performing the combined duties of secretary and treasurer for many years. For a few years before her death she held the arduous office of Prefect of studies in the school.

The Judge was educated in the old Pompey Academy, at Pompey Hill, until at the age of sixteen he was sent to St. John's College, New York City, where he was graduated in 1849. He spent the next two years working on his father's farm, and then began the study of law with Victory Birdseye, of Pompey. In the fall of 1852 he came to Perrysburg, Wood county, and finished his preparation for the bar in the office of Spink & Murray. After his admission in 1855, he went into partnership with James Murray, Mr. Spink having died, and continued in practice with him until Mr. Murray was elected Attorney-General of Ohio, in 1859. Our subject then formed a partnership with the late James R. Tyler, which lasted until 1869. Afterward he had as a partner, for a short time, Edson Goit, of Bowling Green, now deceased, and later was associated in the practice of law with Jasher Pillars. In 1877 he was elected Judge of the Court of Common Pleas. He was on the Bench for ten years, making an enviable record for judicial ability, and on his retirement in 1888 he resumed his law practice, taking as a partner John W. Canary.

In 1857 Judge Dodge married Sarah Wilkison, who was born December 20, 1837. Of their two children, the eldest, Mary, born in 1860, married Ernest G. Miller, and went to Creede, Col., where she died December 12, 1893, leaving two children, Hobart and Mary D., who now live with our subject. Frederick D., our subject's son, is the General Agent for Bloch Bros'. Tobacco Co., of Wheeling, W. Va. Judge Dodge is an influential member of the Democratic party, and has been a leader in many progressive movements in the community.

CAPTAIN DAVID WILKISON (deceased), of Perrysburg, was born at or near Buffalo, in February, 1800, and at an early age went on the Lake as a sailor. In 1815 he sailed up the Maumee river on the schooner "Blacksnake," commanded by his uncle, Jacob Wilkison. This was a small craft to venture upon the lake, being but twenty-five ton burden. At that time nothing but a wild forest was to be seen where Perrysburg now stands. The "Blacksnake" brought up as passengers the family of Mulhollen, who later kept the noted tavern, "Vienna;" also a Mr. Hunter and family, Scott Robb, and a Mr. Hopkins, who settled on land above the present village of Perrysburg. At that time Fort Meigs contained about forty soldiers, who were taken to Detroit by the schooner on her return trip.

In 1817, the "Blacksnake" was in command of Capt. David Wilkison, and made several trips to the Maumee, bringing new settlers, goods, etc., and carrying back fish. In 1818, Capt. Daniel Hubbell bought a controlling interest in the schooner "Pilot," and Capt. Wilkison was placed in command, running between Buffalo and the Maumee Rapids. By that time the Valley of the Maumee began to produce a surplus of corn, and the "Pilot" was well loaded on her return trips with corn and fish. Capt. Wilkison continued upon the lakes, running in connection with the Maumee trade until 1828, at which time he removed his family to Perrysburg. Up to this time he had been in command, successively, of the schooners "Blacksnake," "Pilot," "Mary Jane," "President," "Superior," "Guerriere" and "Eagle," the latter being a schooner of sixty tons, built at Port Lawrence, now Toledo, in 1828, at a cost of $3,000. The "Eagle" continued under the command of Capt. Wilkison until 1835, doing a profitable business, as was the case with all lake vessels at that period. Capt. Wilkison left the "Eagle" to take command of the new steamer, "Commodore Perry," continuing in charge of her until 1845, when he took command of the steamer "Superior," running between Perrysburg and Buffalo. He continued to run this steamer until the close of navigation in 1852, when he retired after having spent thirty-seven years upon the lakes, in all of which time he never lost a vessel or steamer, nor did he ever meet with any serious accident. His remarkable success as a navigator was owing to his superior judgment, his coolness under most trying circumstances, and his perfect knowledge of the lake.

After retiring from the lakes Capt. Wilkison devoted himself to the cultivation of his farm adjoining Perrysburg, until he lost his sight. Subsequently his sight was partially restored, and, some years prior to 1873, he was placed in charge of the lighthouse just below Manhattan, the duties of which he discharged until about the year 1872, when he returned to Per-rerrysburg very much broken in health. In the prime of his life he possessed qualities of mind and heart which commanded the respect and secured the friendship of all who knew him, and no man sailed on the lakes who was better known. The Captain was an ardent Whig up to the time of the disruption of that party, and he then became a Republican. At the time of the great celebration at Fort Meigs in 1840, the Captain brought Gen. Harrison to the fort in his steamer Commodore Perry, and entertained a large number of visitors who came to take part there. Although somewhat bluff and a little austere in manner, Capt. Wilkison had the kindest of hearts, and no one ever appealed to him in vain for sympathy or aid in misfortune. His death occurred September 8, 1873.

The widow of Capt. Wilkison, Caroline M. (formerly Forbes), survived him, dying in 1877. He left five children, all but one of whom are still living. William D. Wilkison, the eldest son, was an invalid for many years prior to his death. John E. Wilkison was a partner of Charles Foster & Co., of Fostoria, until the disastrous failure of Mr. Foster carried the bank down with him. The failure was not in any manner owing to any mismanagement of the bank affairs, as the books showed that the bank was prosperous, and had been making money up to the date of the failure of Mr. Foster. Mr. Wilkison is now engaged in the Insurance business at Cleveland. Capt. Wilkison's eldest daughter is the wife of Isaac P. Thompson, and now resides in Perrysburg. Mr. Thompson was a part owner, and his partner, C. C. Roby, was the master of the steamer "Griffith," which was lost on Lake Erie in 1850, accompanied by a loss of life that spread mourning over the land. Sarah, the second daughter, is the wife of Judge Henry H. Dodge, and now resides at Bowling Green, Ohio. Caroline, the youngest daughter, is the wife of Earl W. Merry, the well-known banker of Bowling Green.

C. L. HUDDLE, proprietor and editor of the North Baltimore Times, is a native of Tiffin, Ohio, born October 23, 1866. He is the son of Louis and Ellen (Hershberger) Huddle, both of whom were born in Bloom township, Seneca Co., Ohio. Mr. Huddle lived with his parents during the early part of his life, and attended the Sidney (Ohio) High School. He then went to work in the office of the Shelby County Democrat, at Sidney, and learned the printer's trade, after which he was employed as foreman on the Mt. Gilead Sentinel for a year, and then worked two years as foreman of the job printing department of the Lima Republican. At the end of that time the Republican and Gazette consolidated, forming the Lima Republican-Gazette, with which our subject still retained the position of foreman of the job printing department. In January, 1891, he accepted a position as foreman on the Fostoria Times, which he held until July 1, 1893, at that time moving to North Baltimore, where he secured control of the North Baltimore Times, which he has run successfully ever since. It is Democratic in principle, and is one of the most popular and extensively read papers in southern Wood county. Mr. Huddle is an energetic worker, knows what will interest the people of his community, and, as a consequence, has materially increased the circulation of the Times within the last two years.

The parents of our subject lived in Bloom township until 1871, when they went to Shelby county, going from there in 1886 to Lima, and thence to Fostoria, locating finally in Tiffin, where they reside at present. Mr. Huddle is a machinist by trade. He is a member of the I. O. O. F., and in politics upholds the principles of the Prohibitionists. Mrs. Huddle is a member of the Baptist Church. Four children were born to them: Hershel J. lives in Cincinnati, and is a stenographer for the Union Central Life Insurance Company; Benjamin C. is located at Gann Valley, S. Dak., where he is States attorney, C. L. is our subject; Adelma C. resides at North Baltimore, and is connected with the Times.

WILLIAM S. HASKELL, the popular and efficient retiring mayor of Bowling Green, and member of the well-known law firm of Mears & Haskell, has been a resident of the city some twenty years, and well deserves prominent mention in the pages of this volume.

Mr. Haskell is a native of Michigan, born in Detroit, April 11, 1850, and is a son of Rev. Samuel and Elizabeth (Granger) Haskell, who had five children, as follows: William S., whose name introduces this sketch; Samuel, deceased at the age of three years; Frank D., secretary of a paper manufacturing company, with residence at Kalamazoo, Mich.; Belle, who died at the age of eleven months; and Henry (married), chief clerk in the office of the Grand Rapids & Indiana railroad, with residence at Kalamazoo, Michigan.

Rev. Samuel Haskell, D. D., was born March 20, 1818, in Maine, where he was reared to early manhood, receiving a good commonschool education. At the age of eighteen, the then "Far West" presenting many attractions to youths of ordinary ambition, our subject set out, alone and on horseback, from his Eastern home for Illinois, arriving in due course at Cairo. Entering land from the government near Rock river, near where now stands the city of Rockford, he made his home there for some three or four years, then, selling out, returned to the East, Suffield, Conn., being his objective point. Here he prepared himself for college, in time entering Brown University at Providence, R. I., where he graduated in the class of '45. After this he commenced a course of study at the Theological University of Hamilton, N. Y., a Baptist institution, graduating in the class of '47, thoroughly equipped, intellectually speaking, for the pulpit or platform. Mr. Haskell was then called to the First Baptist Church, of Detroit, Mich., his first charge, where he remained from 1847 to 1852; from there he was called to the First Baptist Church, of Kalamazoo, which he served as pastor from 1852 to 1871, from the latter date up to 1888, filling a similar position with the First Baptist Church at Ann Arbor, Mich. Being now seventy years of age, Rev. S. Haskell resigned his pastoral labors, and was elected Professor of Biblical research at Kalamazoo College, which professorship he still retains, although he is now in his seventy-ninth year. A man of high literary training and attainments, he has left indelible footprints of his ability that will be visible long after the original has withdrawn from the arena of life. In 1895 he wrote a work on Heroes and Hierarchs, and during his active lifetime has issued many pamphlets, etc., including a "Pioneer History of the Baptist Church of Michigan," and "Pioneer Addresses on Michigan History," besides contributing a mass of literary matter to various Baptist periodicals and newspapers throughout the country. In his political preferences he was originally a Whig, and since the organization of the party has been an equally zealous Republican. Socially he is a member of college societies, and he is universally respected and esteemed. His wife Elizabeth (Granger), the mother of William S. Haskell, died in 1887 at Ann Arbor, Mich.; she was related to the Grangers of historic renown, one of whom was in President Harrison's cabinet in 1841, and the other served in 1801 under Jefferson and Madison; each was postmaster-general.

William S. Haskell, of whom this sketch more particularly relates, was two years old when his parents moved from Detroit to Kalamazoo, Mich., at the common schools of which latter city he received his elementary education, then taking a two-years' course at the high school. In 1865 he commenced studies at Kalamazoo College, taking the Freshman and Sophomore years, then taught two years, after which he entered the junior year at the University of Michigan, Ann Arbor, graduating there in the classical course in 1872. Mr. Haskell then commenced teaching school at Three Rivers, Mich., where he was superintendent one year, after which he taught at Middletown, Ind., from 1873 to 1877, in August of which latter year he came to Bowling Green. Here he served as superintendent of schools from 1877 to 1883, during which time he organized the present system, and graduated the first two classes—of '82 and '83. Desiring to retire from educational work, Mr. Haskell declined re-election to the office of superintendent of schools, and commenced the study of law in the office of Cook & Troup, passing his examination and being admitted to the bar in 1885. At once commencing the practice of his profession at Bowling Green, he continued in the same until 1887, in which year he was appointed secretary-treasurer of the Hankey Lumber Co., transacting all the legal business of that firm, in which he is now a stockholder. In July, 1894, he resigned his position with that company, in order to enter his present partnership with Mr. Mears, in the practice of law, Mears & Haskell being recognized as one of the strongest legal firms in northwestern Ohio, and enjoying a wide and influential clientele.

W. S. Haskell

In 1875 Mr. Haskell was married in Vigo county, Ind., to Miss Eliza Weeks, who was born in Hartford, that State, daughter of Harvey and Mary (Piety) Weeks, the father a native of Kentucky, the mother of Virginia; he died in 1865, and she is now a resident of Terre Haute, Ind. To Mr. and Mrs. Haskell have been born four children, named respectively: Stella, Frank, Mary and George. Mrs. Haskell is a member of the Baptist Church, a member and president of the school board of Bowling Green, elected thereto in 1895.

A Republican in politics, our subject has been a life-long supporter of the principles embodied in the platform of that party. He has served in various offices of trust and honor; member of the school board two terms from 1884; member of the Wood county board of examiners two terms; member of the city council two terms, and while serving his second term was appointed mayor of Bowling Green to fill the unexpired term of A. B. Murphy. In 1894, such is his popularity and superior administrative qualifications, he was re-lected to that incumbency which he filled with characteristic ability and zeal through the term. Socially, Mr. Haskell is a member of the F. & A. M., Wood County Lodge No. 112, and of the K. of P., Kenneth Lodge No. 158. By perseverance, energy and assiduous application, he has successfully surmounted many difficulties in the course of his career from boyhood, and has worked his way up steadily to an honorable position in professional life.

DANIEL WEBSTER LEVERS is one of the native sons of Wood county, born in Plain township, May 11, 1861. His parents were William H. and Liddy (Vernon) Levers. He obtained his education in the district schools of the neighborhood, and at the age of nineteen laid aside his text books to learn, in life's school, the difficult lessons of experience. Throughout his boyhood he spent his vacation months in work on the home farm, and was thus employed until his marriage.

On October 22, 1890, in Bowling Green, Mr. Levers led to the marriage altar Miss Della Bordner, who was born July 13, 1870. He purchased from his father forty acres of land, erected thereon a good substantial dwelling, and has made many other excellent improvements. In the spring of 1895 he purchased an additional forty acres, and now has a valuable farm which in return for his care and cultivation yields to him a good tribute. He is an intelligent, enterprising agriculturist who follows progressive methods, and is regarded as one of the substantial citizens of the community. In politics he is a Republican, and has served for three terms as supervisor, but has never been active in political affairs, preferring to devote his time and energies to his business pursuits.

CAPTAIN THOMAS MAWER, a prominent and well-known agriculturist of Washington township, was born in Montreal, Canada, March 14, 1835. His father, William Mawer, was born in Leeds, England, in 1789, and was a butcher by trade. He married Jane Thompson, and they had twelve children: William (1), who died in infancy; William (2), who lived in Illinois, and died in 1893, aged eighty-one years; Matthew (1), died in infancy; Matthew (2), who died in 1838, aged eighteen; John, died in 1839 at the age of sixteen; George (1), died in 1827, aged eight years; Septimus, a farmer in Washington township; Jane (1), who died in infancy; Jane (2), wife of Jacob Huff, of Milton Center; Margaret, who married Philip Smith, and after his death wedded D. Lashley, but is now deceased; George (2), who died in the army, aged thirty-one; and Thomas. On October 7, 1830, the parents and six children took passage on a sailing vessel for Canada, and on reaching that country remained until 1837, then lived in New York State a year, and in 1838 came to Ohio, where the father engaged in the building of a canal, and, purchasing the Indian island from a board of missions, he there made his home until his death in 1843. His wife died in 1858.

Our subject acquired his early education in the old log school house near his home, in Washington township, Wood county. When a child of eight years his father died, and two years later he began work at four dollars per month; the following year he received five dollars a month, then took up the cooper's trade, which he followed while fitting himself for the profession of school teaching, to which he devoted his energies some two years. At the breaking out of the Civil war he was the first man in Washington township to enlist, becoming a member of Company B, 21st Regiment O. V. I., under Capt. Carr and Col. Norton. He enlisted in the three-months' service, and from Cleveland, Ohio, went to Charlestown, W. Va., and in August, 1861, returned home. On July 15, 1862, he re-enlisted, received a commission, raised a company, which became Company A of the 100th Regiment, O. V. I. For meritorious service he was promoted from the rank of second lieutenant to that of first lieutenant, then to captain. He was mostly engaged in skirmish duty and border warfare in Kentucky, and participated in the battles of Hickman, Ky., and Limestone, Tenn., at which latter engagement he was taken prisoner, and was held in captivity some fifteen months. He was in Libby prison at a time when the Union soldiers were given only one-fourth of the regular rations. From Richmond he was sent to Macon, Ga., where he was kept in a stockade during the months of May, June, July, until about August 1, 1864, and was allowed there two ounces of beef and two teaspoonfuls of beans for a meal. About August 1 he was removed and taken to Charleston, S. C., with 1,700 officers, and placed in different parts of the city for the purpose of protecting it from the bombardment of the Federal forces. "Here they were kept about three weeks, when the Union commander placed a like number of Confederate prisoners on the parapets of his fort, who would be kept there under fire as long as the Union prisoners were." Lieut. Mawer was first placed in the Charleston jail, but in a short time was removed to the jail yard, which was enclosed with a high stone wall. While confined in the latter place a terrific storm occurred and the water stood a foot deep in the jail yard. He, with the other prisoners, was compelled to lie in the water (for it did not pass away for twenty-four hours) and sleep, if they could. "Owing to the exposure he experienced, Mr. Mawer was taken sick, and had to be sent to Rickerville hospital, when many of the patients had yellow fever, which he fortunately escaped. In November of that year he, with some others, was sent to Savannah, Ga., and there paroled." Lieut. Mawer was sent to Annapolis, Md., and placed in the hospital, and was so emaciated that he weighed but eighty pounds. His mind was so affected he hardly realized he was within the Federal lines; was afflicted with scurvy and other diseases common to prison life (was fifteen months a prisoner of war). He remained in the hospital about two months, then was sent home. In February, 1865, he was offered a lieutenant-colonelcy of a new regiment being organized at the time, but on account of not being exchanged he could not accept it. He returned to his command in North Carolina as soon as he was exchanged. During the time he was a prisoner he was promoted to the rank of captain, and on his return to the regiment he took charge of his company, and was present when Gen. Johnston surrendered, the 100th Regiment, O. V. I., taking charge of Johnston's arms and ordnance, and remaining until mustered out, June 22, 1865, thence was sent to Cleveland, Ohio, was paid, and discharged July 3, 1865.

On his return home in July, 1865, Capt. Mawer purchased 180 acres of land, forty of which he afterward sold. It was covered with timber and water, the former of which he cut into lumber and sold. He drained and tiled his land, and as fast as possible transformed it into productive fields. He now has a fine house upon the place, three acres in orchard, a good barn and tool house, a granary and a cooper shop.

On October 15, 1865, he was married to Helen Jane Batt, who was born in New York, October 29, 1843, a daughter of John and Ann (Watkins) Batt, natives of the Empire State, who came to Ohio in 1855. The father was a cooper by trade, which he followed for many years. He died in Waterville, Ohio, in 1891, his wife in 1890. They had five children: Levi, deceased; Mrs. Mawer; William, a cooper of Waterville; and John and Bert, deceased. Mrs. Mawer for seven years prior to her marriage engaged in teaching at Waterville, and is a lady of culture and refinement. They have five children: John V., born May 24, 1867, married Harriet Roe, and operates the home farm; Anna, born October 27, 1868, is the wife of Erwin Ellsworth, a harness-maker of Oak Harbor, Ottawa Co., Ohio, and they have one son—Erwin; George C., born October 19, 1871, married Anna Lao, and is now a veterinary surgeon at Oak Harbor—a graduate of Ohio University—they have one child, Helen; Elbert C., born December 9, 1878, is at home; Frank, born October 6, 1881, died August 17, 1882. Capt. Mawer is a member of the Masonic fraternity and the Grand Army of the Republic. For three years he served as a justice of the peace, and then resigned; for fifteen years he was a school director; for fifteen years member of the township board, and has also been supervisor. In politics he was formerly a Republican, but is now a Democrat. In 1883 he ran on the Democratic ticket for representative, and, though defeated, ran ahead of his ticket; he also made the race for member of the State Board of Equalization, but was not elected.

OWEN W. MALONEY, the well-known tank manufacturer of Bowling Green was born in Crawford county, Penn., June 4, 1865. He is of Irish descent on the father's side, while his mother's ancestors were Scotch, and he combines in an unusual degree the best qualities of both races, his sound judgment and unyielding perseverance being accompanied by geniality and pleasing humor.

Henry Maloney, his father, was also a native of Crawford county, Penn., but now resides in West Virginia where he has been engaged in the milling business for many years. He is a Democrat in politics, and a prominent member of the Baptist Church. He married Miss Hannah J. Troutman, a native of Perrysville, Clarion Co., Penn., by whom he had four children: Mary, who died in childhood; Owen W., our subject; Carrie M. and William (twins), the former now the wife of Charles Silkes, of Sisterville, W. Va., an oil operator; the latter is in the mining business in Missouri.

Owen W. Maloney spent the greater part of his boyhood in Cabell county, W. Va., and attended the schools of Milton. His first business venture was in gardening, but after two years of this he went to Emlenton, Penn., and secured employment in the oil fields, as pumper. In 1888 he came to Wood county, and began the business of tank building at Cygnet, where he remained until 1891, when he transferred his business to Bowling Green. His time is now occuried with his constantly increasing work in this line, manufacturing his tanks from the rough, and employing two men steadily, and eight during the busier seasons. He is also interested in an oil company now operating at Haskins. He was married July 29, 1889, to Miss Malinda Jolly, a native of Emlenton, Penn., born June 29, 1867, and they have three children: Roy, George and Wayne, all of whom are at home. Politically Mr. Maloney is a Prohibitionist, and he belongs to the I. O. O. F. and the K. O. T. M. Lodges.

JUDGE EDWIN TULLER (deceased) was one of the oldest pioneers of Wood county, and, as a leading factor in many events that have marked her progress, he has left the impress of his strong personality upon the history of this region. The family is of Scotch and English origin, the first of the American line being the Rev. John Tuller, who settled in New England at an early day. Roswell Tuller, our subject's father, was born near Simsbury, Conn. He was a soldier in the war of 1812, and took part in the battle of Fort Meigs and that of the Thames, at the latter being shot, bayoneted and left for dead on the field; but he recovered from his wounds, and finally came with his family to Delaware county, Ohio, where he was killed by lightning in 1824. His first wife was a native of Connecticut, and died in Ohio, leaving a large family of children. His second wife, Mrs. Sarah (Holcomb) Harrington, who was also born in Connecticut, was a widow with four children. Two sons were born of this union, George, who died in infancy, and our subject. The mother died in Monroe, Mich., in 1858, and of the three families of children, Judge Edwin Tuller was the last.

Our subject was born in Delaware county, Ohio, July 28, 1821, and after the death of his father accompanied his mother to Worthington, Ohio, remaining until the age of fourteen, when, in October, 1835, he came to Maumee City, and clerked in the store of a canal contractor. Later a half-brother and brother-in-law opened a store there, under the firm name of Harrington & Hunter, and he worked for them until 1840, when they sold out. After two years passed in the store of Horace Waite, he, in December, 1842, went to Otsego (where he had already bought land) with a stock of goods of his own, remaining two years, and then bought a farm and settled down to agricultural pursuits and milling for a time. He had already begun to read law, in the office of James Coffinberry, of Maumee; was active in local politics, and one of the participants in the famous mass-meeting at Fort Meigs in 1840, "hard cider and log cabin" campaign. He remembers meeting Henry Clay at Columbus, clad in his "Kentucky jeans."

On March 22, 1846, the Judge married Miss Catherine Kuder, who was born near Circleville, August 8, 1824, and six children came of this union: (1) Alice A., March 26, 1848, married Marshall F. Pennywell, and has two children—Maggie (who married John Losh, and has two sons—Arthur and Edwin), and Eva, the wife of Dr. Lee Willard. (2) Catherine C., August 12, 1850, married Adelbert L. Petteys, of this county, and has one son—Charles. (3) Martha Jane, born November 24, 1855, died October 3, 1860. (4) Flora M., February 6, 1857, married Lester Hoover, of Union county, and has two living children—Flossie and Eva. (5) Harriet Ellen, November 10, 1859, married John J. Donald, of Wells, Minn. (6) Melvinia, born November 17, 1861, died April 14, 1864. The mother of this family died in 1871; and on June 8, 1887, the Judge married Miss Nellie Paul, who was born in Rochester, N. Y., October 13, 1856, and was educated in Columbus, Ohio, where her parents were prominent people. She is an active worker in the Presbyterian Church.

In 1863 our subject was appointed probate judge, and was re-elected two terms; in 1865 he was admitted to the bar. During his third term as probate judge he resigned on account of impaired health. He then began the practice of law in connection with James R. Tyler, and resided in Perrysburg some eighteen months when he moved to Tontogany, where he continued his practice for many years. In political circles he was an influential worker, first as a Whig, and later as a Republican, and his well-known abilities caused him to be called many times to the service of the people. He was postmaster at Otsego for several years, and justice of the peace of his township some thirteen terms; was Internal Revenue assessor, appointed in 1861, and served till his appointment as probate judge in 1863. Since 1872 he has been a member of the F. & A. M. His death occurred August 29, 1896, at the age of seventy-five years, and a large circle of friends and acquaintances were left to mourn the loss of this grand old man.

JACOB EBERLY (deceased), a worthy member of the noble army of pioneers of Wood county, was a native of Pennsylvania, born in Huntingdon county, July 14, 1804, and departed this life in his Wood county home, on the Portage river, October 31, 1894.

When he was a boy of some eight or nine summers, his widowed mother removed with her family from Huntingdon county, Penn., to Dublin, Franklin Co., Ohio, where she passed the rest of her days, dying March 14, 1868, at the advanced age of ninety-four years. Of her children, those who reached their majority were John, Jacob and Nancy—John by four years the senior, and Nancy two years the junior, of Jacob, all now deceased. Nancy married George Evans, and, as did also her brother John, remained at Dublin during her life. Hon. Eli P. Evans, now occupying the common pleas bench in Columbus, Ohio, is the fourth son of Nancy.

Jacob Eberly remained at Dublin, Ohio, until of age, and then set out to commence life for himself, first stopping at Fremont, Ohio, for a few months, then proceeding farther, reached Waterville (at that time in Wood county) on March 3, 1826. Here he made the acquaintance of Elizabeth Cox, whom he married October 28, 1827. In this "Village on the Maumee" Mr. Eberly remained, carrying on his trade of blacksmithing, until 1833, when he removed upon 127 acres of land pleasantly located upon the Portage river, one mile northeast of the town of Portage, in Wood county, where he thereafter resided. Here he also engaged at his trade, and for fifteen years or more applied himself with much energy, realizing a liberal income, for that day. A large factor in the success which attended his efforts, however, was the untiring energy, perseverance, ingenuity and economy of his faithful life companion. Through their joint labor, at the expiration of some fifteen years, aside from keeping up the excessive doctor bills growing out of the new and undrained condition of the country, and maintaining a large family, they had paid for and largely improved and drained, the homestead. As the avails of the farm increased, the cares and responsibilities grew lighter, so that during the balance of his life, aside from superintending the farm, Mr. Eberly devoted much time to reading, keeping well informed upon current events, and the political issues of the times. Personally quiet, even-tempered, generous and thoughtful, he enjoyed the esteem and confidence of his neighbors. In earlier life he was (though against his wish) elected township treasurer; served the term, and was re-elected for twenty-five years thereafter; was requested to become a candidate for more responsible places, but preferred the quiet domestic life he lived.

Over sixty-one of the sixty-seven years of the married life of this honored couple, and extending to the year 1894, were passed in peace and happiness upon the old homestead, in which year, on

MRS. ELIZABETH EBERLY.

JACOB EBERLY.

Yours Truly
W. S. Eberly

the 31st day of October, Mr. Eberly passed away in his ninety-first year, and seventeen days thereafter, in her eighty-ninth year, his companion followed. Six children survive them: Joseph C., Matilda Johnson, William S., Elliott, Harriet E. Doud, and Benjamin C.

A graphic description of the homestead and its occupants at an early day is given by O. P. Jaques, a nephew of Mrs. Eberly, in a letter written to a member of the family a few days after the death of Mr. Eberly. Mr. Jaques, who is a prominent citizen of Warsaw, Ind., had made a visit at their home a short time prior to the death of Mr. Eberly, and this sketch will close with the following extract from his letter, which is dated Warsaw, Ind., November 7, 1894:

"When I last saw the dear old man, how plain was it to be seen that he was fast nearing the end of his long life; and I fancy that when he saw that Aunt could not recover, he did not care to live. A plain, good, honest man; a true and devoted father and husband has gone. * * * What a remarkable married life! and how I am moved when thinking of them! Called back in memory, to the beginning as it were, of my life, one of the first places on earth impressed on my young mind, was the home of Aunt and Uncle Eberly, and although near sixty years have passed since that time, how visibly every feature of that pioneer home, with all of its environments at that time, presents itself to me now! A large two-story hewed-log house, with brick chimney; a double round-log barn; four or five small fields cleared out of the dense wilderness; a garden fenced with pickets near the house; another smaller log cabin near the steep bank of the creek; the well in the yard with the old-fashioned windlass. In the cabin near the creek was Uncle's smith shop, where he could nearly always be found so full of life and energy, happy and cheerful, and so industriously carrying on his business. In and about the house could always be seen the prominent figure of Aunt, surrounded by her large family of little children (the oldest but little older than myself), so full of vigor and perseverance, with her strong will-power, faithfully and industriously doing and discharging the duties of a true young wife and mother, in a new country. I love to reflect upon her noble traits of good, true womanhood."

WILLIAM S. EBERLY, senior member of the well-known firm, in Bowling Green, of Eberly & Son, merchants, was born near Portage, Wood Co., Ohio, December 19, 1836, and is a son of the late Jacob and Elizabeth (Cox) Eberly.

Our subject passed his boyhood days working on his father's farm during the summers, and attending the district school in winter time. At the age of twenty he began to teach, winters, thus securing means whereby he was enabled to avail himself of better schools, at the close of each winter term. He taught some four or five winters, attending Fostoria Academy for a time, and also Otterbein College; but his school course was interrupted by his acceptance of the office of deputy clerk of the common pleas court, which had been tendered him by the clerk. During the three years or more he was employed in this office, he at odd times studied law, under the preceptorship of Hon. Asher Cook, of Perrysburg, and he was admitted to the bar August 7, 1868. Opening a law office in Bowling Green, he continued for a short time, then removed to Fostoria, where he soon built up a good practice. Here, about the year 1874, he formed a partnership with Alex. Brown, attorney at law, but Mr. Eberly, after a few years, retiring from the partnership, returned to Bowling Green, and in the fall of 1877 was elected clerk of the common pleas court of Wood county, at the expiration of the term being re-elected—the two terms extending from February, 1878, to February, 1884. In the latter year he again opened an office at Bowling Green for the practice of law, but in a few days he was seized with a severe attack of pleurisy, from the effects of which, after a long prostration, he was partially restored to health, yet the effect upon his nervous system rendered him unfit to again engage in his profession, or, indeed, in any business, until the discovery of the great oil field of Wood county. Owning eighty acres of land in the heart of this field, his attention was for several years engaged in its development, since which time he has secured a lucrative income from its product.

Mr. Eberly and his son, Joseph F., under the firm name of Eberly & Son, are carrying on a leading retail boot and shoe business at Bowling Green, in a valuable brick block, of which our subject is the owner. He resides in a pleasant, commodious home, embracing eleven acres, and situated in the outskirts of the thrifty and progressive town of Bowling Green. A lover of reading, Mr. Eberly devotes much time to his extensive library of well-selected books, embracing history, biography, science, and all the subjects that interest modern thinkers.

Early in the summer of 1866 Mr. Eberly met and made the acquaintance of Miss Hattie A. Chubb, of Perrysburg, Ohio, upon her return from Delaware, where she had been attending college. On the 30th of July, in the following year, they were joined in marriage at the home of her father, Rev. R. H. Chubb, then in Perrysburg. Educated, intelligent, graceful in movement, charming in conversation, refined by instinct and by discipline, beloved and venerated by her family, Mrs. Eberly lived her life of forty-seven years, when, after a long sickness, on August 5, 1893, she passed away. The children of this union all survive, viz.: Charles B., Lora O., Joseph F., Ralph J., and W. Neil.

ANDREW J. GARDNER, M. D., of Grand Rapids, was born July 19, 1827, in Hubbard, Ohio, which has been the home of his family since the year 1801, when his grandfather, John Gardner, a native of North Ireland, settled upon a farm in the then frontier region of Trumbull county. He married Elizabeth Pothour, a native of Pennsylvania, and their son Andrew, our subject's father, was born in Hubbard, in 1805. He married Emeline Roberts in 1826, also a native of Hubbard, whose parents came from Connecticut. She was born in 1804. He was an auctioneer, and later in life also followed farming. He (since 1860) was a Republican in politics, and he and wife, from early life, were united with the M. E. Church. He died at Hubbard January 26, 1868, and his widow still resides there at the age of ninety-two years. Of their six children our subject was the eldest; Lydia, next younger, resides with her mother; Harmon G. was a soldier in the artillery service during the Civil war, and died at Memphis, Tenn.; Caroline married Rev. N. G. Luke, and died in Pennsylvania; Mary Ann is the wife of J. F. Corll, of Hubbard; Dillon P. enlisted at Youngstown, in 1861, in Company B, 19th O. V. I., under Col. Beattie, and served four years. He now resides near Martinsville, Indiana.

Dr. A. J. Gardner lived at Hubbard until he was ten years of age, when he accompanied his father to Youngstown, and there attended school for several years. He read medicine for some time with Drs. Woodbridge and Garlick, and then entered the Medical Department of Western Reserve College, graduating in 1848. For a few months he practiced his profession in Sharon, Penn., and five years at Youngstown and Cleveland, Ohio. In 1853, he came to Grand Rapids, Ohio, where he has since resided, and for thirty-six years has conducted a drug store.

On May 5, 1850, the Doctor was married, at Cleveland, Ohio, to Miss Meribah S. Denison, a native of Norwich, Conn., born June 30, 1830. She passed away July 3, 1894, at Grand Rapids, Ohio. There is one child, Lydia Leanora, now at home. In all measures for local improvement the Doctor has always been a leader. He is a member of the Presbyterian Church, as was also his wife. Politically he is a Republican, not particularly active, however, in party affairs in seeking office. He was a delegate to the State convention that nominated John Brough for governor. He is a Royal and Select Mason, belonging to Council No. 33, at Toledo.

MELVIN L. DEVORE is one of the enterprising merchants of Wood county. He was born at Tidioute, Warren Co., Penn., December 11, 1869, and is of French lineage. His grandfather, however, was a native of the Keystone State, and his father, Luke Devore, was born near Meadville, Crawford Co., Penn., where he was reared to manhood. In Warren county, he married Sophia A. Garret, who was born in Pennsylvania, and they have since lived in that county, owning there a farm of 138 acres. They have three children—Garret, a farmer of Warren county; Melvin L., and Alfred, at home.

Our subject first attended school in his native county, and completed his education by a collegiate course in Erie, Penn. Up to his sixteenth year he assisted his father in the work of the home farm, and then engaged in teaching school in Warren county for two terms. Subsequently he engaged in clerking in a grocery store in his native county for about four years, and in the fall of 1893 he came to Wood county, where he purchased a half interest in his present business, which is now conducted under the firm style of Devore & Otterback. He is an enterprising merchant, progressive in his methods, and keeping fully abreast with the times in all particulars.

Mr. Devore was married in Tidioute, Penn., in 1893, to Miss Evà Henry, who was born in Erie county, in November, 1870. Their only child died in infancy. Mr. Devore is a Democrat in politics, and a member of both the subordinate lodge and encampment of the I. O. O. F. of Tidioute. He and his wife occupy an enviable position in social circles, and are leading young people of the community in which they reside, while Mr. Devore occupies a prominent position in commercial circles.

ALFRED THURSTIN, who has the honorable distinction of being the oldest living pioneer of Bowling Green, Ohio, was born in Chenango county, N. Y., April 20, 1806, and is the son of Eli and Margaret (Koons) Thurstin.

Eli Thurstin was born in New York City, and married in Livingston Manor. He came to Ohio in 1835, and subsequently bought a large tract of land in De Kalb county, Ind., and a portion of his family went there with him. He and his wife remained there awhile, finally returning to Ohio, taking up their residence with our subject and his first wife, near Bowling Green, where they eventually departed this life, he at about the age of sixty-seven years, and she when about eighty.

Alfred Thurstin, our subject, grew up in New York State, and came to the site of what is now Bowling Green, in October, 1833. He secured some land on which he built a log house, and then returned to New York where he married Miss Emily O. Pike. She accompanied him to his new home, where she died in 1879. To them were born the following children: (1) A. A., born in 1836, married, and lives in Bowling Green. He has one son, Frank; who is also married, and has a son, Myron. (2) Wesley S., born in 1838, and has had six children, all but one of whom are living: Jesse, Wilbur, Alice, Wesley, Ethel, Mattie, who is deceased. (3) Alfred Earl, born October 1, 1847, married Miss Edna Foot, who was born in Vermont October 18, 1855. Their children are: Nellie, wife of Andrew Shulson (their marriage took place February 20, 1875); Dora, died January 16, 1885, when seven years old; Alfred, died in 1887, when four weeks old. (Andrew Shulson is a contractor by occupation, and was in Florida for several years, but has recently returned to Bowling Green). (4) R. S., born in 1852, married Miss Ada Fairchild, and they have three children, Dora, Robbie and Ada. R. S. is with the Snow Flake Lime Co. Dora married W. B. Cornwell, and is deceased.

Our subject's second marriage took place January 11, 1888, his wife being Mrs. Martha Louise Van Tassel, a woman of education and intelligence, and unusual business capacity.

Mr. Thurstin's farm was located on the east side of what is now Main street. He laid out and sold the first lots, and built the first house in the town. The town now occupies the land used by him as a farm, on which he lived twenty-five years before Bowling Green was started. He, together with his sons and others, got up the first petition to have the county seat moved to Bowling Green. He was originally a Whig and afterward became a Republican, casting his first vote in New York for Governor DeWitt Clinton. He attended the great mass meeting held at Fort Meigs during the "hard cider" and log-cabin campaign.

J. H. WHITEHEAD, M. D. This prominent physician, and well-known citizen of Bowling Green, is a native of Wood county, his birth having taken place in Plain township, July 20, 1841.

The parents of our subject, John and Eunice (Purden) Whitehead, were natives of New Jersey, the former born in 1806, the latter in 1811. They were married in Brooklyn, N. Y., and had a family of five children, as follows: J. H., our subject; Daniel P., a farmer in Lucas county, Ohio; Theodore D., a carpenter, residing at Storm Lake, Iowa; Ellen F., wife of David Hartman, a farmer of Wood county; and Charlotte E., widow of John J. Parsons, who was killed at Deep Bottom, Va., in the war of the Rebellion. The mother of this family died in 1867, the father on May 12, 1895, at the age of eighty-four years. He was a carpenter by trade, and came to Wood county in 1833, locating at the old Mission, on the Maumee river. Later he removed to within a mile and a half of Bowling Green, where the subject of this sketch was born. He erected many of the residences and other buildings put up in the county in an early day, and was one of the prominent citizens of this community.

Dr. Whitehead attended the village schools during his early boyhood, and was a student in the high school at Bowling Green at the time of the breaking out of the Civil war. In 1861, at the age of nineteen years, he enlisted in Company H, 67th O. V. I., under Col. A. C. Voris, now Judge Voris, of Akron. The Doctor served throughout the entire war, was with Gen. Shield in the West Virginia campaign, with Gen. Gilmore in South Carolina, and with Gen. Ord at Appomattox. He participated in twenty-two battles and skirmishes, including the first battle of Winchester, siege of Fort Sumter, charge on Fort Wagner, Morris Island, and charge at Fort Gregg. In front of Petersburg, while under Gen. Butler, May 9, 1865, he was wounded, in consequence of which he was sent to Newark, N. J., and after an absence of some five months was promoted to lieutenant and adjutant. At Appomattox he was in command of a company, having risen by merit from private through all the grades, including corporal, sergeant, orderly-sergeant and first lieutenant. At the close of the war, in which he made an enviable record as a brave and faithful soldier, our subject returned home and resumed his studies in the school at Perrysburg, of which Prof. Ewing was then superintendent. After completing his course at this school, he engaged in teaching, a vocation he followed several years.

In 1871 the Doctor began reading medicine with Dr. John Osborne, of Portage, Ohio, subsequently entering the Cleveland Homeopathic College, from which he was graduated in 1874, and since that time he has been practicing in Portage and Bowling Green. For four years he was a member of the board of county school examiners, was also a member of the city council four years, and of the board of education three years. He is a member of the Ohio State Homeopathic Society, and local examiner for the Northwestern Life Insurance Company.

On July 2, 1867, Dr. Whitehead was married to Miss Susan Osborne, who was born, in 1842, in Tuscarawas county, Ohio, daughter of Dr. John and Julia (Buchtel) Osborne, the former of whom was born at Harpers Ferry, W. Va., the latter at Bethlehem, Penn. They had a family of six children, as follows: Timothy, a farmer of Wood county; Parsey, wife of J. H. McMahan, a stockman of Wood county; Lavinia, wife of G. F. Munn, a farmer and oil man; Louisa, wife of F. M. Carr, a farmer of Wood county; Susan (Mrs. Dr. Whitehead); and Catherine, deceased. Dr. Osborne died in 1887; his widow is yet living, now at the patriarchal age of ninety-six years. To Dr. and Mrs. Whitehead have been born two children: Kate, now the wife of Bert Case, and John, who was accidentally killed at the age of fifteen while hunting. The Doctor owns a business block in Bowling Green, besides numerous private residences, and has invested to some extent in the oil fields of Wood county. In his profession he holds high rank, has an extensive practice, and is highly regarded by his fellow citizens.

I. L. HANKEY, one of the successful oil producers of Wood county, and a director of the First National Bank of Bowling Green, was born in Wayne county, Ohio, July 7, 1849.

The members of the Hankey family living in Bowling Green are descended from Louis Hankey, a native of Germany who emigrated to America at an early day. It is related that he had just enough money to pay his way across the Atlantic, and furnish his own provisions. The ship lost its course at sea, and the passage consumed so much more time than was anticipated that his stock of food gave out, and he became indebted to the ship for board. On reaching New York City he was sold by the ship's company, as was the custom in those days, they getting the money for his time, which he worked out with a farmer. He afterward became a minister of the Evangelical Church, and also carried on farming. He married a Miss Less, whose father served seven years in the Revolutionary army, and our subject remembers hearing his grandmother often tell how she could trace the path of the soldiers by the blood left on the ground from their shoeless feet. In later years Louis Hankey lived in both Stark and Summit counties, Ohio, in the latter of which he and his wife spent their last days. This estimable couple were the parents of seven children, as follows: John, father of our subject; Catherine married John Himmelright, of Summit county; Jacob lived in Summit county, near Akron, Ohio; Lydia married Rev. Miller, a minister in the Reformed Church; Sarah married a Mr. Hawk; Louis lives in Wayne county, Ohio; Samuel is a farmer, residing at Copley, Ohio.

John Hankey, father of our subject, was born in Schuylkill county, Penn., in 1814, and was three times married. His first wife was Miss Polly Fostnight, who was born in 1819, and died in 1854. She became the mother of seven children, viz.: Solomon died in infancy; Sarah married William Shammo, and is deceased; Lewis W. is a minister of the Evangelical Church at Tiffin, Ohio; John R. is fully represented elsewhere in this volume; I. L. is the subject of these lines; two died in infancy.

John Hankey followed farming until the death of the mother of these children, when he went into the dry-goods business with another man. He soon after bought out his partner, and a couple of years later sold out his store and purchased a stock of clothing with which he opened a store in West Salem, Wayne Co., Ohio, in 1859. In 1861 he removed to Burbank, in the same county, and some years later disposed of his business and went onto a farm in Medina county, Ohio, where he died in 1867. Like his father, he was an ordained minister in the Evangelical Church, but did not preach on account of bronchitis. Mr. Hankey's second wife was Miss Margaret Reach, who died fifteen months after marriage; she had one child who died in infancy. Mr. Hankey's third marriage was to Miss Sarah Strouse, of Richland county, Ohio, by whom he has two children: Isaiah S., of Bowling Green, and Sarah Katherine, who married A. L. Sourwine, a farmer of Crawford county, Ohio.

I. L. Hankey, whose name opens this sketch, is the architect of his own fortunes, and is a fine illustration of what can be accomplished by pluck and energy. His childhood was shadowed by the death of his mother, after which sad event he went to live with an uncle, Jacob Hankey. When his father was again married he returned home; but his happiness there was cut short by the death of his step-mother, and the next day he was taken back to his uncle's. There he remained until his father's third marriage, when he spent a short time with the family. After their removal to Medina county, our subject joined the family, and drove a team for his father during the construction of the Broad Guage railway through that county.

J. L. Hawley

When about seventeen years old Mr. Hankey left home with one dollar in his pocket and went to Wooster, Ohio, where he found employment in a brick yard. He was next engaged in driving a wagon for a peddler, working for him some six or eight months, during which time he made a trip to Oil City, Penn., where for the first time he saw oil wells in operation. His next enterprise was to learn the trade of plumber and gas fitter, and from this he went to work on a farm, and later sold patent medicines through the country. He finally drifted into Bowling Green, where his first employment was as hack driver between Bowling Green and Haskins, and subsequently as a clerk in a grocery store.

On December 22, 1870, Mr. Hankey was married in Bowling Green to Miss Sadie Abbott, who was born in Huron county, Ohio, September 28, 1850. He then started a grocery store of his own, but this not proving a success, he began selling sewing and washing machines. In fact, he was a "hustler," and thoroughly tested anything at hand which seemed likely to lead to financial success. In 1874, Mr. Hankey established a clothing business, with his brother, J. R. Hankey, as partner, the firm name being Hankey Brothers. In this he was engaged for ten years, then sold out and went on the road for six years as traveling salesman for A. L. Gans & Co., of Philadelphia. During this time he became interested in the oil business in Wood county, his ventures being very successful. Four years ago Mr. Hankey gave up all other business to attend to his growing and valuable interests in this direction, and to-day he stands in the front rank of a few most successful oil producers in the Wood county field. He is connected with a series of gas and oil companies, and is also a director in the First National Bank of Bowling Green.

Mr. Hankey has taken an active part in all local affairs, and is a public-spirited citizen, whose worth is appreciated. He is a member from the Third ward in the city council, and has been a member of the school board. In politics he is a Republican, and socially he belongs to the I. O. O. F., Daughters of Rebekah, Royal R. A. C., K. O. T. M. He has always been very patriotic, and, when in his early manhood, was a member of the State Militia for five years. In 1863 he ran away from home and tried to enlist at Wooster, Ohio, but was rejected on account of his youth.

30

Mr. and Mrs. Hankey have had four children, of whom three are living: Minne W., wife of Harry Cook, agent of the T. & O. C. railway, residing at Bowling Green; John W., who is a partner with his father in the oil business (he married Bertha Brown, and they have one child, Don Brown); Ralph Blaine, at home; and Olive Octive, who died when three months old.

Mrs. Hankey's parents, Sylvester B. and Maryette (Caswell) Abbott, were both natives of New York State, the father born in 1812, near the Catskill mountains, the mother in 1813. They were married in Ohio, whither she came with her parents, and seven children were born to them, viz.: Reuben, of Bowling Green; Elizabeth (Mrs. Bryan Niles), of Blissfield, Mich.; Melville, of Bowling Green; George, a farmer in Gratiot county, Mich.; Sadie (Mrs. Hankey); Alice (Mrs. S. Ordway), of Bowling Green; and Louis, a farmer, in Wood county. Sylvester B. Abbott was first married to Abzina Morrey, and their son, John Abbott, is a doctor in Illinois. Mr. Abbott was a lawyer by profession. He came to Wood county in 1853, owned a fine farm here, and died in Bowling Green in January, 1890. His second wife dying in December, 1875, he subsequently wedded Helen Robins, by whom he had two children: Grace (who died when eleven years old), and Jerry (a farmer of Wood county).

B. F. SPILKER. The subject of this sketch is one of the young enterprising farmers of Perrysburg township. He was born in Perrysburg October 28, 1866, and is a son of Christian and Mary Ann (Budt) Spilker, the former of whom was born in Germany, and came to Wood county when twelve years old. He married in this county, and began farming in Perrysburg township, which he made his permanent home and died there in 1888. The wife still resides on the old homestead. Their children were ten in number, as follows: Christian H., resides in Perrysburg; Mary A., his twin sister, is now Mrs. Libbin, of Toledo; Olive married Mr. John Henry, of Perrysburg; Thomas Jefferson is a telegraph operator, and lives with our subject; W. F. is married, and lives in Perrysburg township; B. F., our subject; Edward resides in Perrysburg; Charles Peter is at home; Carstin is a resident of Toledo; Flora is at home.

Our subject was reared in Perrysburg township, where he received his education. In 1889 he bought his present farm of forty acres, which he has cultivated and improved, and on which he erected his residence in 1891. He was united in marriage in Perrysburg April 16, 1891, to Miss Anna L. Schaller, who was born in Perrysburg township July 10, 1870, and is the daughter of Daniel Benedict Schaller, an early pioneer of the township. Two children have been born to Mr. and Mrs. Spilker, namely: May E., who died August 29, 1892; and Orcel Benedict. Mr. Spilker is affiliated with the Democratic party, and, with his wife, is a member of the United Brethren Church at Dowling.

FRANK KABIG, one of the most enterprising and successful of the self-made men of Bowling Green, was born in Plymouth, Richland Co., Ohio, October 19, 1852. His father, Anthony Kabig, was a native of Neuberg, Germany, and was married there to Miss Magdalen ———, with whom he not long afterward crossed the Atlantic to find a home in America. He was a butcher by occupation, and carried on that business in several towns in Ohio—Wooster, Plymouth, Bettsville, Fort Seneca—before finally locating in Bowling Green, where he died in 1886, at the age of seventy-two. His wife died in 1882. They were consistent members of the Lutheran Church from their youth. Their three children, Edward, Caroline (now Mrs. Christoph Lehmann) and Frank, are all living in Bowling Green.

Our subject's education was acquired in the public schools of the different towns in which his parents lived during his boyhood, and at the age of seventeen he began to learn the butcher's trade with Christoph Lehmann, then of Tiffin, now of Bowling Green. He worked for him ten years, and then entered into a partnership with him, which lasted for two years. In 1882 he bought a lot and built a market of his own, and for fifteen years has carried on a constantly growing trade, which has been developed by his own energy and rare business judgment. By careful investments in real-estate and other securities, he has greatly added to his wealth, and now owns 320 acres of land in Wood county, and many valuable pieces of property in the city of Bowling Green, including a half-interest in the Kabig & McKinsie block.

In 1880 he was married to Miss Fannie Mickle, a native of Wood county, born August 19, 1852. They have no children of their own, but are rearing a girl, who is now nine years of age. Mr. Kabig is a Democrat in politics, and takes a prominent part in all progressive local movements, wherein his shrewd practical judgment has been no less effective than in the business lines, in which he has made such a marked success. Socially he is a member of the I. O. O. F. at Bowling Green.

CAPTAIN J. W. KNAGGS, a well-known agriculturist and oil operator residing near Portage, was born May 22, 1832, at Maumee City, Ohio. His paternal grandfather, Whitmore Knaggs, was a native of England, who came to America in Colonial times and located at Detroit, where he engaged in farming. He gained the confidence of the Indians in his vicinity, and at the time of Hull's surrender he was taken to Quebec and kept in close confinement—the British refusing to exchange him because they feared his influence over his savage neighbors. His farm near Detroit was stripped of everything portable, and his buildings burned, leaving his family destitute. In later years he was an Indian Agent under the U. S. Government. He died at his old homestead. He and his wife were Roman Catholics, and all their descendants are followers of the same faith. They had five children: Whitmore, deceased; George, who died at Maumee City, in October, 1866; James, now a resident of College Hill, Ohio; Elizabeth, deceased, who married a merchant at Detroit; and John W., our subject's father, who was born near Detroit in 1800, and in early manhood engaged in trading with the Indians of northwestern Ohio, and later locating near Toledo, where he owned four farms.

Our subject's father married Miss Melinda Gunn, who was born in 1810, at Salem, Mass., and died in Toledo, in 1889. Seven children were born to them: Mortimer, who died at three years of age; Eliza, who married Tim O'Connell, of Toledo, and died in 1842; Adaline, the wife of Dr. W. W. Jones, of Toledo; James W., our subject; Henry, a resident of Springfield, Mass.; Sophia, the wife of Henry Hitchcock, of Toledo; and Maria, who married Mr. Valentine, the editor of a paper in New York City.

Capt. Knaggs attended schools during boyhood in Toledo, and later assisted his father in the management of his farms. He came to Wood county in 1845 to see some land, and there met and married Miss Cynthia Haskins, who was born in Portage, February 6, 1832. After their marriage they spent one year at Toledo, and then returned to Portage where they have since resided. Their five children are all living. Lottie married G. Carlin; Forest, a farmer in Portage, is not married; Ivy is the wife of Charles Vandenburg, and has one child—Ruth; Mortimer lives at home; and Wellington, a farmer at Portage, is married to Cora Gunn, and has one daughter, Myrtle, and one son, George. When the war broke out Capt. Knaggs enlisted in Company C, 21st O. V. I., and was commissioned 1st lieutenant; and at Nashville, in 1862, he was promoted to the rank of captain and placed in command of Company B. He was wounded at Stone River and discharged for disability, but after a short stay at home he returned to the front only to find that he could not endure the strain of active service. Coming home, he again engaged in farming and later in oil producing. He now owns 120 acres of land and four oil wells. A patriotic and popular citizen, he is a prominent worker in the Republican party, and shortly after his return from the army he was elected clerk of the court of Wood county. He is a member of the F. & A. M.

I. V. WIREBAUGH, a prominent physician and surgeon of Prairie Depot, has been remarkably successful in his chosen calling owing to his ability, professional knowledge and skill. He is a native of Ohio, born in Tod township, Crawford county, August 11, 1863, a son of John and Elizabeth (Horner) Wirebaugh, well-to-do and successful farming people, the latter now living. Our subject was reared like most farmer boys, assisting his father in the labors of the field, and attending the district schools of the neighborhood. In 1886 he began the study of medicine under the direction of Dr. Chesney, of Bucyrus, Ohio, and the next year attended a course of lectures at the Western Reserve Medical College, from which he was graduated in March, 1890, after completing the three-years' course and continuing his studies during vacations with Dr. Chesney. He began practice at Tiro, Ohio, where he also owned an interest in a drug store, but gave most of his attention to his profession. In December, 1892, he sold out his business there, and on January 31, 1893, he closed a deal for property in Prairie Depot, and on March 4, following, opened an office there, where he has since been successfully engaged in practice. He is a talented and skillful physician, and has attained his present honorable position among the medical fraternity by his own unaided exertions. He gives the closest attention to his business, and surely an honorable career lies before him in his chosen calling.

On June 10, 1896, Dr. Wirebaugh was married to Celia Sage, a prominent young lady of Prairie Depot, who was for several years a successful teacher in the schools of that place.

The Doctor takes quite an active interest in civic societies, belonging to the Knights of Pythias, Independent Order of Odd Fellows, and the Knights of the Maccabees.

H. A. HAMILTON, M. D., of Perrysburg, one of the oldest and most honored members of his profession, is descended from a long line of physicians and surgeons. Of his ancestry the Centennial Edition of the Hartford County Medical Association says: "One of the most distinguished names upon the roll of physicians in our locality, whether during the last or the present century, is that of Hamilton. Early in the eighteenth century Josiah Hamilton, then a boy, came to Boston from Edinburgh, Scotland. He studied medicine and located for practice in the town of West Brookfield, Mass. He begat Josiah, Jr., who also became a physician, and followed his father in practice in the same town. About the middle of the century Josiah, Jr., begat Asa, who also studied medicine, and commenced practice at the age of seventeen or eighteen, so precocious was he in the art inherited from his father and grandfather. Dr. Asa Hamilton early left Brookfield and settled in Somers, Conn. He with his young wife and infant son made the journey on horseback. This Somers physician was the most distinguished of his family, and became an officer and surveyor in the Revolutionary army. He was a remarkably fine-looking man, physically, and exceedingly popular in his professional capacity. He was one of the early members if not a charter member of this society. Although he lived only about twenty years after he commenced practice, his reputation for skill in surgery became extensive. On one occasion his services were sought from East Windsor Hill, a village only eight miles from Hartford. He lived about twice that distance in the opposite direction, and this call was worthy of note because it shows that his reputation enabled him to encroach upon the domains of the surgeons of a capital city. This fact seems to us quite remarkable, for their reputation is now so pronounced that we surgeons eighteen miles away can hardly keep our minor surgery out of their hands.

"Horatio Arnold Hamilton, who when an infant rode into Connecticut with his father, Dr. Asa, on horseback, early in or just before the Revolutionary war, in due time studied medicine also, and practiced in Somers until his two sons, Horatio Asa and Erskine Erasmus, who also and Desire (Cook) Adams, came to Delaware county when that region was a wilderness. They were at first undecided whether to locate there on "Derby Plains" or at the present site of Columbus; but the finding of a peach tree growing in the woods at the former place turned the scale in its favor. They were devout Methodists, and their house was for many years a regular place of meeting for that society. Both lived to advanced age. Mrs. Adam's sister, Cassandra (Cook) Converse, was the mother of Hon. George L. Converse, of Columbus. Jay Cooke, the financier, was a relative of the family. John Adams and his wife reared a family of seven children named as follows: (1) Ursula, the widow of Dr. L. P. Sigler, formerly of Upper Sandusky, and later of Garden Grove, Iowa. (2) Calvin, a fruit grower in Placer county, Cal. (3) Abraham B., who married Mary Murphy, our subject's aunt. (4) Martha S. (Mrs. Murphy). (5) James, deceased, formerly a resident of Delaware county. (6) John, the recorder of Placer county, Cal. (7) Elijah, formerly recorder of Delaware county, and now a resident of Columbus. Our subject is the eldest of a family of eight children, the others being: (2) Lovett, now in Washington. (3) Delano, who died at the age of twenty-two. (4) Grant, at home. (5) Ernest, deceased at the age of twenty-one. (6) Farrah, a student in the Ohio State University at Columbus. (7) Gertrude, married to George E. Thrall. (8) Cora, at home.

A. B. Murphy

Mr. Murphy attended the district school until he was twelve years old, and then entered the Sunbury High School, and two years later the Ohio Wesleyan University, where he graduated from the scientific course in 1885, with the degree of A. B. He was one of the editors of the college paper, The Transcript. In 1884 he won the college prize for oratory, and in February, 1885, took the second place among eight contestants in the State oratorical contest at Oberlin, Gov. McKinley being one of the judges. He began the study of law with John S. Jones, of Delaware, and in 1886 entered the senior class of the Cincinnati Law School, graduating the following year. He also engaged in oratorical contests there, obtaining second place. On the advice of J. D. Cox, Secretary of the Interior in Grant's cabinet, he came to Bowling Green in the fall of 1887, and engaged in general practice. In November, 1890, he was appointed mayor to succeed Andrew Mears, and in the following April was elected to that office. In 1892 he was re-elected, but resigned to take the office of prosecuting attorney January 1, 1894. He is acknowledged to be the most polished speaker of his age in this part of Ohio. He is a close student, but occasionally breaks the routine of professional life by social diversions and hunting expeditions. Mr. Murphy is a Republican in politics; socially he is a member of the K. of P., the K. O. T. M., and the Phi Delta Theta.

On Thanksgiving Day, 1893, our subject was married to Miss Lizzie Kershner, a native of Liberty Center, Henry county, and they have one child, Nellie F., born January 28, 1895. Mrs. Murphy's parents, Andrew R. and Lanie (Andrix) Kershner, were natives of Pennsylvania, and were married in Ohio. They had eight children, viz.: Jennie and Alice, who both died in infancy; Kate, wife of Rev. W. P. Bender, a minister of the M. E. Church; Mrs. Murphy; George Washington, of Bowling Green; Zella, at home; Adaline, teaching in the Bowling Green schools; and one whose name is not given. The father was a hotel-keeper. He served in the 160th O. V. I., during the Civil war, and was wounded in the service. He died May 15, 1879; the mother resides at Fostoria. Mrs. Murphy was born August 16, 1868, was educated at Liberty Center under the superintendency of George H. Poulson, now of Cleveland, Ohio, and commenced teaching when sixteen. She taught four years in the Bowling Green schools.

GEORGE RETHINGER, of Custar, is a native of Ohio, born in Lucas county, February 13, 1848, a son of John and Mary C. (Long) Rethinger. Our subject passed his boyhood on his father's farm, receiving the usual winter school advantages, later taking a business course at Toledo. In early manhood he worked on a farm during the summer, teaching school in the winter season, till 1874, in which year he came to Custar, and entered the general merchandise store of Ingram, Keeler & Co., in the capacity of clerk and bookkeeper, remaining there some nineteen months, or until the firm was burned out. Mr. Rethinger then taught the parochial school of Custar for one winter, after which he embarked in the grocery trade, in course of time, in connection therewith, engaged in the grain and live-stock business, and expanding his grocery store into one of general merchandise. This he conducted some nine years, then selling out, and again taking up the profession of teaching, this time in the public schools, in which he continued for one winter. Once more he commenced general merchandising, including, as before, the grain trade, having a partner in the person of Abram Phenix; but at the end of one year our subject purchased his partner's interest, and conducted the business for his own account until the winter of 1895, when he retired from it. He is now representing Southworth & Co., in the grain business at Custar, managing their elevator, and buying grain.

On June 8, 1876, Mr. Rethinger was married to Miss Catherine Dunigan, daughter of Manus and Bridget (Burns) Dunigan, the former of whom died in 1877, and the latter resides in Springfield, Ohio. To Mr. and Mrs. Rethinger were born ten children, as follows: Charles J., Lucy R., Mary P., Frederick J., Bridget A., George Leo, Lawrence I., Anna G., Andrew Raphael, and Agnes C. (who died July 26, 1895, at the age of eight months). The entire family, including the parents, are members of the Catholic Church; socially Mr. Rethinger is affiliated with the Catholic Knights of St. John, and the Catholic Knights of Ohio.

GILBERT T. KNAUSS. Devoting his energies to farm work is this native son of Ohio, who now owns and operates a farm in Middleton township. He was born in Medina county, June 2, 1852, and is a son of George Knauss, one of the early settlers of this locality. When only two years of age he came with his parents to Wood county, and attended school in Plain and Center townships. He worked with his father on the farm, aiding in its development, and also learned the trade of a blacksmith, which he followed for two years in Plain township. At the age of nineteen he came to Middleton township, where he owned forty acres of land, and at once began the development and improvement of his property. He has erected a comfortable country home thereon at a cost of $1,500, built good barns, laid many rods of tiling, and set out an excellent orchard. In connection with the development of this property, he has also engaged in conducting a blacksmith shop, and has been quite successful in his business. His son now cares for the farm, while he is devoting his energies entirely to the work in the smithy.

Mr. Knauss was married on June 18, 1871, to Frances Grover, who was born in Ballville township, Sandusky county, September 3, 1848. They now have four children—George Franklin, born September 26, 1872; Nora M., born February 20, 1877, now the wife of Allen Ewing, of Plain township; Florence May, born November 19, 1878; and Edna M., born August 9, 1889.

Mr. Knauss has ever been a loyal citizen, a fact which he demonstrated when only eleven years of age by attempting to enlist in the army, but on account of his extreme youth his father prevented him. He has for a number of years served as school director, and was instrumental in securing the establishment of a school near his home. In politics, he is a Republican, and in religious faith adheres to the United Brethren Church. He is a broad-minded man, possessed of excellent qualities, and is deservedly numbered among the leading citizens of the community.

FRANK A. REID, a well-known attorney of Bowling Green, was born at Ottokee, Fulton Co., Ohio, December 4, 1852. His grandparents, James and Priscilla Reid, were born near Edinburgh, Scotland, and a few years after their marriage they came to America, locating in Pennsylvania and later in Hancock county, Ohio, at a point since known as Reid's Corners, where Mr. Reid, who was a ship carpenter by trade, engaged in business as a housebuilder. He was also a justice of the peace for many years. Seven of their children grew to maturity; James, who lives in Van Wert Co., Ohio; William, a character sui generis, a carpenter, a shoemaker, a lawyer and world-wide traveler, who died at Sedalia, Mo.; John H., our subject's father; Raine, a resident of Paulding county, Ohio; Alexander G., living at North Baltimore, Wood county; Sarah P., the wife of Edward Koons, of Lawrence, Kans.; and Thomas C., who died at Bowling Green, Ohio, September 7, 1892.

John H. Reid was born in Pittsburg, Penn., February 11, 1823. Not being content with a common-school education and the carpenter's trade, he determined to enter Oberlin College, where, by working in the harvest field in summer, and doing odd jobs during term time, he succeeded in paying his expenses and graduating. He then read law in Findlay, and on being admitted to the bar located at Delta, Fulton county, where, in 1851, he was elected prosecuting attorney. There he remained until 1853, when he moved to Perrysburg, Wood county. He had previously married a native of this county, Miss Aurelia Augusta Howard, who was born at Grand Rapids January 30, 1826. On his appointment as postmaster in Perrysburg, his wife, a lady of fine mental ability, took charge of the office while he devoted his time to his profession. In 1863 he organized Company D, 86th Regiment, O. V. I., and went to the front as their captain. The company went through the campaign which resulted in the evacuation of Cumberland Gap, Capt. Reid receiving a severe sunstroke while in the mountains. His company had enlisted for six months, but were kept on duty nearly a year. After returning home he again entered the army, this time as quartermaster of the 144th O. V. I., in the 100-day service. Shortly after the regiment went to the front Frank A. joined his father at Fort Dix, Md., and saw considerable of army life during that summer. They took part in the operations in the vicinity of Annapolis and Harper's Ferry. At the close of the war Capt. Reid resumed his practice at Perrysburg, and at the time of the contest over the county seat he was retained on the side of Bowling Green, whose interests he heartily espoused and earnestly defended in the highest courts of appeal. Victorious in spite of the array of learned counsel on the opposing side, he removed to Bowling Green, where he carried on his practice, the latter part of the time in partnership with our subject, until a stroke of paralysis gave warning of his approaching death, which occurred on November 1, 1885. As a judge he had few equals in soundness of logic and subtlety of analysis. As an advocate he was remarkably successful, and when occasion required he could rise to an impassioned yet graceful eloquence. So well balanced was he in his acquirements and gifts that it is difficult to make a distinction, and mention any leading characteristic. Before the war he was a Democrat, but studying the issues of that time he became a Republican.

He and his wife, who survives him and resides at Chattanooga, Tenn., were members of the Presbyterian Church. Of their children, five grew to adult age, of whom Frank A. is the eldest; J. Howard, born May 13, 1860, died September 30, 1886; James R. and Richard W. are clothing merchants at Chattanooga; Mary Augusta lives with her mother.

The Howard family, from whom our subject's mother descended, were prominent in the history of the Maumee Valley. Thomas Howard, our subject's great-grandfather came from Yates county, N. Y., in 1823 with his wife, a daughter, Sidney, who afterward became Mrs. Howard Davidson, and his three sons—Edward, Robert A., and Richard M. W.—with their respective families. Part of the family came by water, the rest taking the land route and driving their live stock. They first located at Fort Meigs, but later removed to the Rapids of the Maumee, Gilead, where they made their home for many years. Thomas Howard (who was born November 15, 1758), died there May 25, 1825. His son, Robert A. Howard, our subject's grandfather, was born November 10, 1798, and survived all the other members of the band of pioneers. His last years were spent in what is now Pike township, Fulton county, where he died November 26, 1872. The Toledo Commercial of December 4, 1872, gave an extended obituary notice, and mentioned his valued services as a justice of the peace in Fulton county, an office which he held for many years, and used as a means of quietly adjusting difficulties, his kindly advice as a man of well-known impartiality being as potent in its influence as his judicial decisions. After Fulton county was established he was employed to transcribe the old records, and later was elected county recorder. His wife, formerly Miss Priscilla Nelson, was highly esteemed by all who knew her. After a half century of married life, they died within a year of each other. Of their nine children five are now living: A. A., of Mason, Mich.; Col. N. M., a prominent business man of Omaha; Edwin A., of Hillsdale, Mich., formerly an Indian agent in Dakota under President Grant; James W., of Fulton county, Ohio; and Aurelia Augusta (Mrs. Reid).

Frank A. Reid was less than a year old when brought to Wood county, and he received his elementary education in the public schools here. He then entered the Law School at Ann Arbor, where he was graduated in 1877. Until his father's illness he practiced with him, and since that time he has continued alone, conducting his extensive practice with unusual ability and marked success. He is an active and influential Republican, and during Garfield's campaign was organizer and president of the Garfield Club. On June 15, 1878, he was married to Miss Alice Lundy, born November 15, 1856, the daughter of Henry and Margaret (Smith) Lundy, who came from Pennsylvania to Wood county in 1836. Mr. Lundy was prominent among the pioneers of Wood county, was for years a director of the County Infirmary, trustee of Center township, and took a leading part in securing the location of the county seat at Bowling Green, contributing generously toward the new court house. Mr. and Mrs. Reid have two children: Earl A., born August 30, 1879, and Helen A., born March 27, 1881.

LEONARD DANIELS (deceased), who was a highly respected citizen of the county, born in New York December 5, 1811, died at his home in Middleton township in 1871, esteemed by all who knew him. He was one of a family of ten children born to William and Prudence (Prior) Daniels. In his early life he learned the carpenter's trade, and followed that occupation for some years.

On February 15, 1856, Mr. Daniels was united in marriage with Miss Martha Worth, a native of the Empire State, born on the 2d of May, 1817. She was one of a family of ten children, whose parents were Thomas and Mary Worth. By the marriage of Mr. and Mrs. Daniels were born nine children, namely: D. W., a farmer of Washington township; Prudence, wife of G. A. Simmons, of New York; Amon J., who is operating the old homestead; Herbert R., who is in the West; Jesse M., a carpenter; H. C., who is living in Bowling Green; D. L., a farmer; Alice M., wife of E. H. King; and Inez M., wife of V. R. Porter, of Bowling Green.

The subject of this review continued his residence in the East until 1866, when he came with the family to Wood county, where he purchased 100 acres of land, on which the widow now resides. It was then wild and unimproved, but he at once began to clear it, and worked long and earnestly in transforming it into richly cultivated fields. He continued his work until 1871, when death relieved him of his labors. He was a man of sterling integrity and commendable worth, and had the confidence and good will of all who knew him.

After his death Mrs. Daniels took up the work where her husband laid it down, and, with the help of her sons, has succeeded in clearing the farm and bringing it under a high state of cultivation. Many rods of tiling have been laid upon the place, and, thus drained, it has been transformed into richly cultivated fields. A good residence and barns add to its value, and it is now highly improved. Mrs. Daniels deserves great credit for carrying on the work as she has done, and she is still, at the age of seventy-eight years, keeping house for her sons.

HON. BENJAMIN F. JAMES, a prominent young attorney of Bowling Green, of the firm of James & Beverstock, and ex-representative of Wood county in the State Legislature, was born near Mt. Gilead, Morrow Co., Ohio, April 30, 1863.

His paternal grandfather, Edmund James, a native of Wales, came to America when a young man, locating near Granville, Ohio, where he met and married Miss Esther Griffith. She had come from Wales in childhood with her parents, who settled at the "Welsh Hills," in Licking county. After their marriage they remained some years in the same locality, and then moved to Chesterville, in Morrow (then Knox) county, where they spent the remainder of their lives. They had ten children, among whom was William D. James, our subject's father, who was born near Chesterville, December 22, 1815. He was a farmer and stock dealer by occupation, and an active politician, first in the Whig, and later in the Republican, party, being one of five in his locality to vote the latter ticket during the war. Strange to say, in 1894, each one of this little band was represented in the State Legislature; William D. James, by his son, the subject of this sketch; John McConica, by his son Senator Thomas H. McConica, of Findlay; Benjamin Philips and David Thomas (cousins of William D. James), by Senator Dudley B. Philips, of Manchester; while Hugh G. Rogers, one of the survivors of the quintette, was there in person as member from Morrow county.

Our subject's mother, Sarah (Meredith) James, was born in July 30, 1818, at Chester-ville, the seventh of the ten children of William and Mary (Farmer) Meredith. Their respective families had emigrated from England to America in 1800, and settled near Chesterville, where, after their marriage a few years later, Mr. Meredith and his wife also located upon a farm. Our subject's father died May 13, 1875, his mother on September 27, 1894. They also had ten children, of whom Benjamin F. is the youngest. Lucretia married T. H. Peterson, of Longley, Ohio. Milo, a private in Company D, Third V. C., died at Nashville, Tenn., September 10, 1862. Mary E. is the widow of Capt. James A. Moore, of Olathe, Kans., and now resides in Fulton, Ohio. James H. is a farmer in Fulton, Morrow county. Milton D. is the president of the Globe Building & Loan Association of Columbus, Ohio, and a prominent real-estate dealer there. Robert W., formerly a stock dealer at Marengo, Ohio, died May 9, 1883. Keturah is the wife of G. L. Donals, of Helena, Ohio. Jennie E. died July 9, 1883, the wife of A. A. Crawford, county commissioner of Morrow county. Ellsworth W., who died December 5, 1889, was a stock dealer in the same county.

Mr. James spent his boyhood upon his father's farm, and up to the age of fifteen was mainly employed in outdoor labor. But he was not one to be contented with the peaceful but monotonous life of a farmer, and he determined to secure an education and take a place in public life. The next six years were passed in different educational institutions, the Chesterville High School, the Ohio Wesleyan University, Dennison University, at Granville, and the Chicago University, where he was graduated June 11, 1884, at the age of twenty-one, with the degree of A. B. The following year he took the professorship in Latin and Greek in Burlington College, Burlington,

Benj. J. James

Iowa, which he resigned at the close of the year to enter Yale University, New Haven, Conn., although he was tendered the presidency of the college, which he declined. At Yale he took post-graduate and law studies, and on June 28, 1887, he received the degree of LL. B. In October of that year he began to practice his profession, first in partnership with Judge G. C. Nearing, and later with Edward Beverstock, his present partner. Although the firm of James & Beverstock is one of the youngest in the county, they already have an extensive practice, having law offices both in Bowling Green and Toledo, Ohio.

Mr. James is highly gifted as an orator, and his speeches at the bar and before public assemblies are regarded as masterpieces by competent judges. He is a born politician, and his abilities were promptly recognized by the older members of the Republican party. In 1890 he was chosen vice-president of the Ohio Republican League, and a year later a vice-president of the National League. In local politics he was also a leader from the first, and in 1890 he was elected city solicitor, resigning that office in 1891, after his election to the General Assembly. His first term gave him a reputation as a tireless worker, and a fearless champion of any measure which he believed to be right, and he was re-elected in spite of strong partisan opposition. He has the happy faculty of making friends, seldom forgetting a face or a name, and there are few other men in this county who have as wide a circle of acquaintances. He is a 32° Mason, holding his membership in the Cincinnati Consistory, and he belongs to the Zeta Psi, a college fraternity, as well as the Phi Delta Phi, a legal fraternity, having been the founder of the Yale Chapter during his attendance there.

CHRISTOPHER FINKBEINER, ex-recorder of Wood county, and one of the most prominent residents of Bowling Green, was born June 9, 1845, in Wurtemberg, Germany, where his ancestors on both sides had for many generations been worthy and industrious citizens. His parents, Friedrich and Mary A. (Audee) Finkbeiner, came to America in 1847, settling finally in Perrysburg, Wood county. The father was a miller by trade, but after coming to this county found more profitable employment as a carpenter and contractor. He took a hearty interest in the welfare of his adopted country, and sent three of his sons to the defense of the Union. Previous to the war he was a Democrat, and then became an ardent Abolitionist and Republican. He died January 17, 1863, aged forty-eight years, and his wife in 1865, at the age of fifty. Of their large family four lived to adult age: Frederick and John, who have been engaged in mining in Arizona and the West since the war closed; Christopher, our subject; and Mary, the youngest child, now the wife of Charles Church, of Toledo, Lucas Co., Ohio.

Our subject, who is the third son, was two years old when he came to this county, and his education was obtained in the common schools of Perrysburg. His first business venture was driving a dray, which occupation he followed until December 4, 1861, when he enlisted in Company E, 72nd O. V. I., under Gen. Sherman. During the advance upon Corinth, he contracted typhoid fever, and July 25, 1862, he was discharged for disability, and sent home. On July 1, 1863, he again enlisted, this time in Company L, 3d O. V. C., joining in time to take part in the battle of Chickamauga, the pursuit of Gen. Wheeler, and the engagements at Missionary Ridge and Knoxville. In the spring of 1864 his regiment joined Sherman's forces at Cartersville, Ga., and took part in his famous campaign. After the capture of Atlanta they followed Hood into Alabama, and in the last engagement with his troops, October 25, 1864, near Gadsden, our subject was wounded, necessitating the amputation of his right foot. Until March 16, 1865, he was a patient in various hospitals—at Rome, Chattanooga, Nashville, Jefferson Barracks, at St. Louis—and then declining to enter the Invalid Corps he came home. For a short time he worked in a stove factory in Perrysburg, later clerked in a store, and September 30, 1867, he opened a store of his own, dealing in books and notions. After four years he moved his stock to Napoleon, where he remained two years, and then sold out to take a position as traveling salesman for a firm of dealers in wooden ware. During the next seven years he visited in their interests points in Canada, and the northern States from Massachusetts to Colorado. Under Garfield's administration he was appointed postmaster at Perrysburg, and after four years and a half he opened a store for notions and gents' furnishing goods, which he carried on until his election to the office of county recorder in 1888. He served the people of the county in this capacity two terms, his faithful and efficient service having been rewarded in 1891 by a re-election.

On January 1, 1867, Mr. Finkbeiner was married to Miss Mattie A. Bellville, a native of Perrysburg, born November 8, 1847, and they have had four children: Fred J., born November 5, 1867, is living at Bowling Green, Ohio; William A., born September 13, 1869, is a merchant at Perrysburg (he married Miss Winnie See, and has one son—Donald A.); Helen Gertrude is now at home; and Jessie Belle is also at home. Mr. Finkbeiner is one of the influential Republicans of Wood county, and he is a member of the I. O. O. F., the N. U. and the G. A. R.

HENRY S. CHAPIN, editor and proprietor of the Democrat, Bowling Green, is a native of Connecticut, born January 4, 1835, at Collinsville, Hartford county, a son of Ariel S. and Mary D. (Jones) Chapin, natives of Berkshire county, Massachusetts.

Ariel S. Chapin was a son of Amos and Rebecca (Sheldon) Chapin, who were also of Berkshire county nativity. Mary D. (Jones) Chapin was a daughter of Barnabas and Ada (Harmon) Jones, of the same locality in Massachusetts, and on both sides of the house they followed agricultural pursuits. Both families (Chapin and Jones) moved in 1836 from Massachusetts to Lenox, Ashtabula Co., Ohio, where they bought land and cleared up farms. Ariel S. Chapin, father of our subject, lived in Collinsville, Conn., for a time, being there employed in some of the manufactories of that place, though his occupation in the main was that of a farmer. The son, Henry S., was a year old when his parents came to Ohio, and but seven years of age when his father died at Lenox; the mother passed from earth, in 1893, at the home of our subject in Bowling Green. They were the parents of two children: Harriet, who married J. C. Frankeberger, of Sidney, Shelby Co., Ohio, and died there in 1868; and Henry S., our subject, who has never married.

Henry S. Chapin attended the common schools; also the Union school of Jefferson, Ashtabula Co., Ohio, and worked on a farm until he was seventeen years of age, when he commenced learning the printing business in the office of the Weekly Telegraph, Ashtabula. At the end of two and one-half years he left there, and during the succeeding two years attended the Union school at Bellefontaine, Ohio. Returning to the printer's trade, he, from 1856 to 1862, was a compositor on Cincinnati and St. Louis newspapers, and in October of the latter year, in connection with F. J. Oblinger, he purchased the Perrysburg Journal, which they jointly conducted two and one-half years. In 1864, Mr. Chapin went with Company E, 144th O. V. I., Capt. Asher Cook, on the "100-days' service." In the spring of 1865 he bought the Republican, of Peru, Ind., and published the same until 1868, in which year he went to Toledo, and opened a job printing office, being associated therein with James Timmons. At Toledo, in 1872, he commenced the publication of the Sunday Journal, which later he sold to Sherwood & Canfield. On April 26, 1876, he commenced the publication of the Toledo Daily Bee, and had charge of that paper eight years, afterward becoming connected with the Toledo Post, which two years later was sold, and for a short time, in 1888, he was identified with the Toledo News. During the year 1889, and up to August, 1890, he was editor of the Post, of Columbus, Ohio, and on September 1, 1890, took charge of the Bowling Green Democrat, which he had purchased, and he has since conducted it with his well-known ability.

GEORGE WILLIAMS was born in Heistenbach, Province of Nassau, Germany, January 4, 1847. His father, Ludwig Williams, a native of Germany and a farmer by occupation, was twice married, first to Katharina Danzer, by whom he had two children, Anton and Clara. For his second wife he married Louisa Fischer, and to this marriage one child was born, George, the subject of this sketch, who remained at home until the age of fourteen years, attending school from the age of six until fourteen. November 1, 1858, the father died, and the widow and son were left with but little, and the former was of necessity compelled to work hard from day to day in order to make ends meet. March 15, 1861, when in his fourteenth year, himself and mother left the old home in Germany, and came to Washington township, Wood Co., Ohio, and made their home with a half-brother of the son, Anton Williams, who had come to this country several years before. The first three years after his arrival George remained with Anton, working on the farm, then for four years he worked for Anton Opperman, and one year for Nelson Kuder, farmers of the same township. Following this in 1869, he rented forty acres of land in Middleton township, on which himself and mother made their home for five years.

On October 5, 1873, at the age of twenty-seven, Mr. Williams was married to Emma Hartman, of Middleton township, and the union was blessed with one son, George Frederick, born April 2, 1884. March 1, 1874, he bought seventy-three acres of land near Haskins, Middleton township, at fifty-four dollars per acre, paying $800 down. The land was in a poor condition, only a few acres being cleared, and the improvements—buildings, fences, ditches, etc.—were poor indeed, and Mr. Williams was required to work hard to clear and improve this land, and under the burden of 12 per cent. interest part of the time. The present buildings on the place are good and substantial, and the other improvements correspond. This simple record of actual achievements shows better than praise the industry and enterprise of the man. July 27, 1874, the mother died at the age of sixty-one years, having lived only four months and twenty-seven days with them in their own home. The wife's mother, aged seventy-four years, is spending the evening of her life with them. Mr. Williams is a member of the Lutheran Church, of which he is a trustee, and he has been superintendent of the Sunday-school since the organization of the Church, at Haskins, twenty-three years ago. He has been a school director for two terms, and assessor also for two terms.

Faithful in the discharge of every duty, energetic, and possessed of an unusual measure of common sense, Mr. Williams has won the esteem and confidence of all who know him.

JOSEPH E. BURNHAM, M. D., one of Wood county's rising young physicians, and junior member of the well-known firm of Sage & Burnham, of Prairie Depot, belongs to the homeopathic school of medicine. A native of New York, he was born at Pottsdam, St. Lawrence county, May 1, 1865, a son of Aaron and Sarah (Nesbit) Burnham, the former born at Augusta, Maine, and the latter in New York. The father was a citizen of Pottsdam, where he died at the age of seventy-two years, but his wife is still living at that place.

The Doctor is the third child and eldest son in the family, and was reared to manhood in his native town. His elementary education was obtained in the public schools, where he learned rapidly, and at the age of sixteen years entered the Pottsdam Normal School, an advanced institution, where he pursued his studies for two years and a half at different times, his attendance being interrupted by school teaching, which he followed very successfully. The illness of his father necessitated his leaving the Normal, where he had intended to take a full course, and then followed the profession of teaching in the West.

In 1889 our subject entered the office of Dr. H. D. Brown, of Pottsdam, one of the most successful practitioners of northern New York, and there began the study of medicine. In the fall of 1892 he became a student in the Cleveland Medical College, from which he was graduated with high honor in the class of 1895, standing second in a class of forty-two. He began practice at Port Clinton, Ohio, but on November 18, 1895, he located at Prairie Depot, and has since been associated with that successful old practitioner, Dr. Sage. He is a thorough student of his profession, keeping well informed on the recent discoveries in science, and his worth and merit have been justly recognized. Politically, he is identified with the Republican party.

W. H. WOOD, the well-known ex-surveyor of Wood county, and a prominent resident of Bowling Green, is a native of this county, born at Tontogany, July 13, 1836.

The family is of English origin, and the founders of the American line were early settlers in Virginia, where his grandfather, Judge Joseph Wood, was born about 1768. He removed to Marietta, Ohio, where he surveyed the first seven ranges that were officially located in Ohio, being accompanied by a guard to keep the Indians at bay. In later years he served as probate judge of Washington county.

His son Emilius, our subject's father, born in 1793, was the third white child born in the old fort at Marietta. He was educated at the university at Athens, Ohio, and became a surveyor, and for twelve years was county surveyor of Perry county where he married his first wife, Miss Addie Fuller, who died in 1833 leaving two children—A. J., now in Oklahoma, and E. R., a resident of Belle Plaine, Kans. His second wife was Miss Sarah North, who was born in Philadelphia, Penn., in 1817, and came with her parents, Joseph and Catherine North, to Wood county in 1828, to settle in the wilderness. Her mother, after their arrival, was lost in the woods for three days and nights, staying in a tree at night to keep out of reach of the wolves. She found her way home by following a small stream to the river. Our subject was the eldest of eight children by the second marriage. The others were: Adeline Amelia, Caroline Aurelia (deceased), Catharine Lucelia, John R. (deceased), Josephine Adelia, Emeline Ophelia, and Angeline Fidelia. Our subject's father came to Wood county, in 1834, and settled at Tontogany, and for many years was engaged in surveying the wild and unbroken forests. During his later years he followed farming as an occupation. His death occurred in 1875 while on a visit in Iowa. (His wife had died in 1871 at the age of fifty-four). In politics he was a Republican, and he took a leading part in all the progressive movements in the community. The first Masonic lodge in the county was organized in his house where the lodge met for six years, and he was the second to hold the office of Master. At one time he rode to Zanesville on horseback, once to Marietta and once to Columbus, to attend Grand Lodge meetings.

Our subject's early education was acquired in the district schools near his home, and in the high school at Waterville and Maumee City. He taught for five terms, and in the intervals worked on the farm. In 1862 he enlisted in Company D. 111th O. V. I., and served in the army of the Cumberland. For some time he was detailed as hospital guard, having been sick and unfitted for more serious duty, and here his fine abilities as a musician were found useful. During the first and last years of the war he was with his regiment, and marched across Kentucky and Tennessee, taking part in the engagement at Fort Saunders, Tenn. He was mustered out at Salisbury, N. C., June 27, 1865, and discharged at Cleveland, Ohio, July 13, 1865. After the war closed he spent eighteen months in Missouri, and then returned to Wood county, where he has since been engaged in his profession. He has laid out over 15,000 miles of ditches, not to mention other work. He was elected county surveyor in 1871, and held the office for four terms, to the satisfaction of all concerned. In 1865 he married Miss Josepha R. Hoskins, who was born in Portage county, Ohio, in August, 1844. She is of the family of Morse, the inventor, and her grandfathers were in the Revolutionary war. Mr. Wood has for many years been the organist of the M. E. Church. He is a Republican, and a member of the G. A. R., No. 46, Wiley Post, and of the I. O. O. F.

R. S. PATTY, a highly esteemed citizen of Bowling Green, is one of the most extensive oil operators in the country, his interests being located in Pennsylvania, West Virginia, and Indiana. He began work in the oil fields when quite a young man, being first employed as a driller and pumper. Later he became a contractor for drilling wells, first doing business for himself as a member of the firm of Patty Brothers, their wells being located near Bradford, Penn. This firm afterward extended their operations to West Virginia, Indiana, and Kentucky, and in 1889 to Ohio.

Of late years the firm of Patty Brothers has also engaged in the gas business, and is at present conducting extensive plants at Weston, W. Va., under the name of the Weston Natural Gas & Fuel Co., and at Logan, Ohio, as the Logan Natural Gas & Fuel Co. The latter supplies the Boys' Industrial School at Lancaster, and is preparing to extend their line into Circleville and to Chillicothe. At Weston, W. Va., they supply, among other public institutions, the State Insane Asylum with light and heat. Our subject and his brother were the promoters of these companies, and now control them.

The subject of this sketch was born in Armstrong county, Penn., June 16, 1852, and was reared there, his education being limited to the common schools. He was married December 15, 1876, to Mary E. Smathers, who was born in Clarion county, Penn., March 15, 1859, daughter of Isaac (a lumberman) and Harriet (Reed) Smathers, both yet living, who are parents of eight children: Sarah, Lawson (who died when a young man), Mary E., Malinda, John, Robert, Amelia, and Palmer (deceased when young). Mrs. Patty is descended from the Hulling family, and her great-great-grandmother was a sister of Daniel Boone. Three children have been born to Mr. and Mrs. Patty: Harry L., Roy Levern, who died when young, and Eddie R. The family occupy a palatial residence in Bowling Green, whither they removed in 1889, Mr. Patty's main office being in the Times building, Pittsburg, Penn., where he directs the affairs of his extensive business. He is essentially the architect of his own fortune, a genial gentleman who has won his way to success by energy and enterprise, and to-day is conceded to be one of the best business men, and most successful operators in the oil fields of this or any other State. In his political predilections he is a stanch Republican, but has no time to spare for office hunting or office holding. He is a member of the Presbyterian Church, of Parkers City, Penn.; Mrs. Patty of the Church of the same denomination at Bowling Green.

The parents of our subject, James (a carpenter by trade) and Nancy (Speer) Patty, were both born in Pennsylvania, the father, in 1800, in Westmoreland county, of Scotch-Irish descent, the mother, in Armstrong county, in 1817. Both passed away in the latter county, she in 1864, and he in 1882. The father of James Patty, also named James, was a native of Westmoreland county, Penn., and one of the early settlers of Gettysburg, that State. Our subject was one of five children, namely: James, who was a member of the oil firm of Patty Brothers, and died in 1894; R. S.; Belle, who was a prominent school teacher in Armstrong county, Penn., and is now deceased; George, who, it is supposed, was murdered while drilling wells in the West; and Elizabeth, the wife of Samuel Blakely, of Marion, Indiana.

R. S. Patty

T. T. ROSENDALE, M. D., one of Fostoria's rising young physicians and business men, is a native of West Millgrove, Wood county, the son of that well-known and successful practitioner, Dr. Charles R. Rosendale. His early education was obtained in the district school of his native village, his first teacher being Miss Sally Buckingham. In 1887 he entered the Northern Indiana Normal School, where he remained three years. He had previously read medicine with his father and Dr. C. A. Henry, of Fostoria, and in 1890 he entered Western Reserve Medical College at Cleveland, from which he was graduated with the degree of M. D. in 1893. In 1892 he made a trip to Europe in the interest of his profession, and immediately after graduation entered into active practice, taking an office in the opera block at Fostoria, where he is still located. In common with all young professional men he found it no easy matter at first to compete with older practitioners, but each year has found him steadily gaining in the confidence of the people, and he now enjoys a practice highly creditable for one of his years and experience. In 1894 he attended the University of California, where he pursued post-graduate work, giving special attention to dissecting.

On September 10, 1895, the Doctor was married to Miss Madge P. Harris, a native of Virginia, who is the daughter of V. H. and Augusta P. Harris. Mrs. Rosendale was graduated from the Fostoria High School in 1885, and in the scientific course from Buchtel College, Akron, Ohio, in 1889.

Dr. Rosendale is one of the wide-awake, progressive young men of Fostoria, seeming to inherit the business tact and shrewdness of his father, whose success in life has but few parallels in Wood county. In addition to his practice he has extensive business interests, which receive careful attention. In 1895 he erected on Perry street one of the finest houses in the city, where he and his wife entertain their large circle of friends in a delightful manner. Politically he is a staunch Republican, taking an active part in the politics of the city.

CAPTAIN J. B. NEWTON, one of the most prominent citizens of Bowling Green, with the chief interests of which city he has for many years been identified, was born September 10, 1837, in Chenango county, New York.

His grandfather, Daniel Newton (1), a native of New England, born May 9, 1786, settled in Chenango county, N. Y., in early manhood, and married Miss Patty Bell, who was born in Connecticut, July 8, 1788. Their son, Daniel Newton (2), born October 12, 1810, married Miss Sarah Burdick, also a native of Chenango county, born February 10, 1810. They were married January 12, 1834, and six years later came west, located in Wood county, Ohio, first in Center township, and later (eight years afterward) in Bowling Green. In 1864 they removed to Roachton, but in 1876 they came back to Bowling Green, there to pass their declining years. They were both earnest and consistent members of the M. E. Church, and faithful workers in every line of Christian duty. Mr. Newton was originally a Whig, later a Republican, and was an intelligent student of public affairs. He died March 20, 1881, his wife having preceded him to the grave, November 18, 1872. Of their six children, three grew to adult age: Louis M., born October 8, 1834, now a leading resident of Garnett, Kans.; J. B., our subject; and Jennie, who married L. D. Stearns, now of Willapa, State of Washington. The deceased are: Jeremiah C., born September 20, 1842, died August 19, 1849; James L., born August 9, 1846, died December 4, 1846; and Chloe E., born July 21, 1847, died July 31, 1847.

Capt. Newton's early education was restricted to an attendance at the district schools near his home. When the Civil war broke out he was among the first to enlist for the three-years' service, in August, 1861, joining Company A, 14th O. V. I. His regiment was assigned to the 14th Corps, army of the Cumberland, commanded by Gen. Thomas, and served through the campaigns in Kentucky; Tennessee, Mississippi, and Georgia, taking part in the historic march to the sea, and was present at the surrender of Johnston. Capt. Newton was promoted from private through the grades of corporal, sergeant-major, second lieutenant, first lieutenant, to the rank of captain; as second lieutenant he was detailed as adjutant, and served in that capacity until promoted to captain. During the latter part of his service he was detailed mainly on brigade staff duty. At the close of the war he went to Washington and participated in that "Grand Review," and was finally discharged at Cleveland, Ohio, in July, 1865. He was never wounded, and never absent from his command, except once, by reason of sickness, in 1862.

In 1868 he married Miss Maggie Blackwood, who was born in Oakland county, Mich., January 23, 1844, and four children came of this union: Welles B., born April 17, 1869, now a druggist in Toledo; Clyde B., born May 22, 1874, a student at Alma, Mich.; Earl W., born June 8, 1881; and Mary Belle, born November 27, 1882. Soon after his return from the army, Capt. Newton was elected county auditor, and served three terms of two years each. He then engaged in agricultural pursuits in Center township some fifteen years, during which time he did an extensive business in feeding and shipping stock. When the gas boom came to Bowling Green, the Buckeye Glass Co. was among the first to utilize the new product, and selected him to manage the financial affairs of the company. The Ohio Flint Glass Co. was incorporated in 1891 for the manufacture of table glassware, and the attendant lines common to that branch of the business. When the natural gas, for fuel for manufacturing purposes, failed at Bowling Green, the company decided to remove their plant to the gas fields of Indiana. They selected Dunkirk for their location, and entrusted Capt. Newton with the management of the affairs of the company. In 1895 he was elected president thereof, and given charge with general management of its affairs, retaining his residence in Bowling Green. Politically he votes the Republican ticket, is very influential in party affairs, and takes a leading place in all public movements; he has always been ready to assist in any movement tending to advance the interests of the city, and was one of the early clerks of the corporation as soon as he became of age. Socially he is a member of the G. A. R., Wiley Post, No. 46; of the I. O. O. F. and Encampment, and a member of the Loyal Legion in the Ohio Commandery.

COLONEL M. F. MILES, a representative farmer of Montgomery township, was born in Chesterville, Morrow county (at that time Knox county), Ohio, December 10, 1838, and is a son of Davis and Julia A. (Denman) Miles. His grandfather, Enos Miles, was born in Chester county, Penn., July 3, 1786. He married Miss Elizabeth Frame, who was born April 3, 1790. They came to Ohio in an early day, bought up tracts of land, and Mr. Miles named Chester township, also Chesterville. A man of means, he erected a large brick hotel and other buildings, one of which he fitted out as a school and boarding-house; but his ideas were far too advanced for those days, and his venture involved him in financial difficulties. Mr. Miles died in Chesterville, May 18, 1840, and his wife on August 18, 1871. Their children were Davis, Euclid, Enos, Jane and Catherine.

Davis Miles, the father of our subject, was born in Chester county, Penn., in 1814, came to Ohio with his parents, and was married in Chesterville in 1837. His wife was a daughter of Joseph Denman, a farmer. At the time of his father's death, Davis took charge of his affairs, which were much involved; but he took an extension of time, and was able to hold the property. He conducted the hotel business successfully, and when the property was divided it was not by a forced sale. At the organization of Morrow county Mr. Miles was chosen first sheriff. He owned considerable land adjacent to the village of Chesterville, and hired almost all of his work done, although in early life he was an active farmer. He was a man of excellent judgment and common sense, and possessed a strong natural intellect. He was a staunch Republican, a prominent man in his community, and served two terms in the Ohio Senate. The children of Mr. and Mrs. Miles were as follows: M. F., our subject; Enos W., a traveling salesman, of Mansfield, Ohio; and Mary C., who died young. Mr. Miles passed away August 6, 1865, and Mrs. Miles in 1876, and both are buried at Chesterville. They were members of the Baptist Church, in which, later in life, Mr. Miles took an active part; socially he was a member of the Masonic fraternity.

The early schooling of our subject was obtained in his native village schools. At the age of twenty he entered the Ohio Wesleyan University, at Delaware, where he remained one year. For two years he was a student in the University of Michigan, at Ann Arbor, and while there enlisted in the students' battalion, whose services were rejected on account of the quota of men being already filled. Mr. Miles returned home, and on September 14, 1861, enlisted in Company B, 43d O. V. I., under Gen. C. Smith, and went into camp at Mt. Vernon, Ohio, where he was appointed sergeant. On January 9, 1862, he was promoted to the rank of second lieutenant, and assigned to Company A, 49th Regiment, then camped at Green River, Ky. On February 14, 1862, the regiment was ordered to Bowling Green, Ky., and thence to Shiloh, advancing to the assistance of Gen. Grant. His regiment participated in that battle, and with other forces held their position from 11 A. M. to 4 P. M., when the enemy was obliged to retreat. The other battles in which our subject took part are as follows: Corinth, Lawrenceburg, Stone River, Liberty Gap, Crab Orchard, Chickamauga, Murfreesboro, Mission Ridge, Rocky Face Ridge, Cassville and Pickett's Mills. In the battle of the last mentioned place, which occurred May 27, 1864, the 49th entered the fight with 560 men, and lost 224. After the fall of Atlanta our subject returned with his regiment to Nashville, participating in the battles of Franklin and Nashville. On June 15, 1865, it was taken to Texas in order to quell any continuance of the Rebellion, it forming a part of the 4th Army Corps. On September 30, 1862, Mr. Miles was promoted to first lieutenant, and assigned to Company B, 49th Regiment. On March 2, 1863, he was made adjutant of the same regiment, and was then transferred to Company H, and promoted to the rank of captain of that company. On October 4, 1863, he was made major, and March 29, 1865, promoted to lieutenant-colonel. On June 26, 1865, he was mustered out, but in November of the same year he was sent to Victoria, Texas, and was not finally discharged until December 31, 1865.

After the close of the war, Col. Miles engaged in the lumber business at Logansport, Ind., for some time, and then went to Chicago and started in the retail drug trade on State street, at the corner of Taylor. He had a previous knowledge of this business, but failing health compelled him to give it up and return to Wood county. Here he was married, October 11, 1866, to Miss Maggie E. Diver, a native of Montgomery township, born June 30, 1843, the daughter of Osman and Esther F. (Robinson) Diver, the former of whom was born August 23, 1809, and the latter April 2, 1818. Mr. Diver was twice married, his first wife being Miss Margaret Kinnaman, who bore him three children, two of whom — Franklin and Laura — grew to maturity; by his second wife, Mr. Diver had three children — Maggie, Osman A., and Harriet M.

Col. Miles began the business of flour-milling in West Millgrove, Wood county, in 1868. The mill burned down in 1872, and he and O. A. Diver built on its site the present structure, with which our subject was connected for twelve years. Since retiring from that business he has resided in Montgomery township, in Section 29, where he has a comfortable home and carries on farming, having over 377 acres under his direction. He has always been a Republican, and in 1887 was elected sheriff of Wood county, serving two terms, but retaining his residence in Montgomery township during his service. Both he and his wife are members of the Christian Church, in which he has been an elder for many years. He is also secretary and treasurer of the 19th District Ohio Christian Missionary Society. Socially he belongs to the Masonic order in Fostoria, and to the G. A. R. Col. Miles, as he is always called, is a prominent citizen of Montgomery township, is a man with a keen conception of right and wrong, loyal and trusted, and a strong supporter and earnest advocate of whatever is for public good.

Mrs. Miles is State president of the Christian Woman's Board of Missions, an auxiliary to the Christian Church, which is a grand organization. She went to school at Fostoria, Ohio, and at Oberlin, later graduating at the Seminary at Mt. Vernon. She is a woman of considerable literary ability, her writings being mostly on religious subjects, which have been printed in the leading publications of that character.

GEORGE C. STEVENSON, a member of the firm of Matthews & Stevenson, leading grocers of Bowling Green, who is even better known as a breeder of blooded horses, was born June 2, 1844, in county Down, Ireland.

His grandfather, James Stevenson, was an officer in the British army, a quartermaster under Sir John Moore, and while in Ireland on a recruiting expedition he was so charmed with the beauty of the country that he resolved to return there to live, if it were possible to do so. Some time afterward, having been wounded in the battle of Waterloo, he was retired from service, and he purchased an estate in county Down, whereon he spent the rest of his life.

William Stevenson, the father of our subject, was born in Spain, eight days before the battle of Coruña, in which Sir John Moore was killed. His early life was passed mainly in Ireland. At the age of nineteen he came to America, but returned to Ireland, where he was married to Miss Jane McAlpine, a descendant of one of the oldest and most powerful of the Scottish clans. In 1851 he came to America again, bringing his family, and located first at Pittsburg, Penn., and finally settled in Ashtabula county, Ohio, where he engaged in the lumber business. Our subject was second in order of birth of six children: James, the eldest, lives in Seneca county, Ohio; Margaret is the wife of Charles Scoville, of Ashtabula; Mary (deceased) was the wife of V. L. Chapin; W. J. is a resident of Williams county, Ohio; William died in Pittsburg, Pennsylvania.

Our subject was educated in an academy at Ashtabula. When the Civil war began the martial spirit inherited from both paternal and maternal ancestry impelled him, though a boy in years, to join in the struggle. On August 20, 1861, he enlisted in Company K, 83d P. V. I., and served throughout the war, receiving his final discharge June 18, 1865. He was in the battles of Big Bethel, Yorktown, Malvern Hill, Cold Harbor, Spottsylvania, North Anna, Chancellorsville, Gaines Mills (where he was slightly wounded), Laurel Hill and Charles City Cross Roads. In 1862, at Malvern Hill, he was shot through the right lung, and the night after the battle his captain, who had hunted him up, got the surgeon to examine and dress his wounds; but Mr. Stevenson was then informed that he could not live till morning, as he was bleeding internally. Thus confronted with death, this worthy descendant of heroes declared that, having done his duty, he was satisfied. He could die in no better cause. About 7 o'clock the next morning, however, a negro discovered him, and, lifting him up, gave him a drink of whiskey, which so revived him that he managed to walk or crawl some five miles, when he was picked up and taken to Harrison's Landing. Thanks to his wonderful constitution, he recovered, and at the end of eleven months re-enlisted in his old company. At Cold Harbor, in 1864, he fell on the field with two wounds. At Laurel Hill he was rendered unconscious by the concussion of a shell, and when found by his lieutenant he was bleeding from the mouth, nose and ears, but he soon had his external wounds dressed. After the close of the war, Mr. Stevenson engaged in the lumber business in Ashtabula county and that vicinity, and in 1874 located in Dunbridge, Wood county. In 1886 he began breeding fine horses, roadsters and trotters, a business in which he still continues, and he owns a fine stock farm in Middleton township. On May 22, 1895, he bought an interest in a grocery store in Bowling Green, formerly owned by Henry Hughes.

In 1866, Mr. Stevenson married Miss Viola L. Reeve, who was born in Ashtabula county, August 2, 1850. They have six children: E. K.; Jennie, who married O. N. Grover, a teacher at Dunbridge, and has one child—Genevra; Lamira L.; Ethel A.; George R., and Clyde V. The family reside at Bowling Green. They are members of the Presbyterian Church, and active in various forms of philanthropic work. Mr. Stevenson is a leading worker in the Republican party in this county. He served two years as trustee of Middleton township, and also as member of its board of education, of which he was president one year. Fraternally, he is a member of the F. & A. M., and of Kenneth's Lodge No. 158, K. of P., of Bowling Green; he also belongs to Robert Stewart Post No. 690, G. A. R., of Dunbridge. The Reeve family came from Connecticut. Mrs. Stevenson's parents, H. A. and Lamira (Peck) Reeve, were born in Ashtabula county, Ohio, where they were engaged in farming. The father is still living; the mother died in 1871. They had five children, three sons—Wells H., Ellsworth S. and Wilson—and two daughters—Viola L. (Mrs. Stevenson), and Celia Adele. The Reeves were noted Abolitionists in ante-bellum days, their home being a station on the famous "Underground Railroad." Capt. James Reeve, Col. Arthur Reeve, Harrison F. Reeve (all three of whom died in the army during the Civil war), and Capt. L. C. Reeve, Mrs. Stevenson's uncles, were valiant defenders of the Union cause.

DANIEL MERCER (deceased), who in his lifetime was one of the most prominent of the pioneer citizens of Bowling Green, better known as "Uncle Dan" throughout his wide circle of acquaintances, was born August 3, 1826, in Columbiana county, Ohio, where his ancestors were among the earliest settlers. He was of mixed German, English and Irish blood, and manifested the best qualities of each strain.

His father, William Mercer, was born in Columbiana county, and was there married to Miss Margaret Ikirt, a native of Pennsylvania. They came to Portage township, Wood county, in 1836, and settled in the woods where they made their first dwelling out of brush supported by a couple of trees. Our subject was ten years old at that time, and can well recall the howling of the wolves around them, and his fear lest they should break through the frail shelter. A log cabin was built later, and the land prepared for crops, the father seeking work after the seed was planted, in order to supply his family with food. He died at the early age of forty-three, and his wife at thirty-seven, the lives of both having been shortened by the privations and exertions of pioneer life. Of their fifteen children, twelve grew to maturity, our subject being the eldest: Elizabeth married Josiah Milburn; Elizabeth married W. Johnson; Pierce was a farmer in Liberty township; Mary Ann married Cornelius Simons; Harriet married George Babcock; one son, Bielby, lived in Indiana; Margaret and Martha (twins), the former was Mrs. Robert Johnson, and the latter is now Mrs. Frederick Amos, of Portage township; Rufus is a farmer in Henry county; Euphemia married Russell Chilcote, of Perry township, and Caroline married John Boozer, of Bloom township. None of this large family are now living except Daniel and the four younger children.

Uncle Dan's early educational advantages were limited, but he made the most of them, and at the age of seventeen gained an insight into the principles of arithmetic in seventeen days. He was twice married, first time at the age of twenty to Miss Susan Roberts, who died August 22, 1865. Ten children were born to this union. (1) Emeline, married Sheldon Welton (now deceased), formerly of Liberty township; they had twelve children—Emmett, who married and has one child; Norton; Lillie, who married and has one child; Della; Daniel; Myrtle, who married George Brubaker, and has one child, and John, Edna, Ruth, Clayton, Anna and Clarence, the six last being still at home, except Ruth, who is deceased. (2) Delascos lives in Liberty township; he married Louisa Donsey, and has five living children—Lucy, married to James White, and has one child; Eddie, a student at Bethany (W. Va.) College; Clarence, Tillie and Abraham G.; two others died in early life. (3) Apalinda first married Samuel Whitaker (now deceased), and had two children—Thomas E. and Ella E.—both attending Bethany College; she afterward wedded John Knight and had two children, one of whom, Deyo, is living. (4) Alcenus is a farmer in Liberty township; he married Ella Ducat, and has four children—Rosa, Libbie, Normia and Lloyd. (5) Elmira married Robert Place, of Liberty township, and has two living children—Alfred, a student at Bethany College, and Alta. (6) Eugene married Jerusha Bay, and has three children—Mable, Virnie and Edith. (7) Ruth married Robert Marbel, of Bowling Green, and has one son—Leonidas. (8) Cyrenus married Alice Dubbs, and has one son—Ira. (9) Flora and (10) Florence (twins) are married, Flora to Milton Tellers, of Plain township, and Florence to Clarence Griner.

Daniel Mercer

Mr. Mercer was married the second time, June 24, 1866, to Mrs. Lucy A. Aller, who was born in Genesee county, N. Y., July 23, 1828, daughter of Asahel and Lucy (Johnson) Martin. By her former marriage with Zacheus Aller she had nine children, of whom seven are living: (1) Margaret, married to Porterfield Mercer, and has five children—Frank, Ethel, Manley, Marian and Emma. (2) Nelson (now deceased), married to Julia Lowe (now deceased), and had three children—Millie, Leory and Porterfield. (3) Zerelza, married to James Miller, and has four children—Ernest, Grace, Royal and True. (4) Elliott, married to Cora Hunt, and has three children—Ernest, Bertha and Lucy. (5) Henry, married to Addie Swartz, and has two children—Elmer and Blanche. (6) Amos, not married. (7) Rebecca, married to Dowling Mercer, and has three children—Lorenzo, Ina and Hazel.

31

By his second marriage "Uncle Dan" had two sons: (1) Leonidas, pastor of the Christian Church at Ravenna, Ohio; was educated at Bethany (W. Va.) College and Chicago University, and ordained in 1891; he is married to Jessie Green, of Alliance, Ohio. (2) Robert, a farmer near Bowling Green; he completed his education in Hiram College, Ohio, and is married to Miss Millie De Lano; like his father, he is an ardent Prohibitionist. All of these nineteen children have been reared together by our subject, and all are members of the Church. He lately gave each of them $2,000, making $4,000 in all to each, he having previously given $2,000 to each one.

About two years after his second marriage Mr. Mercer bought a farm of 400 acres in Liberty township, where oil was afterward discovered, and at the time of his decease he had an income from sixty-five wells. In 1889 he retired to Bowling Green, there to spend his declining years, and he employed his time devising new ways to do good with his money. He was a liberal patron of the Christian Church, of which he had been a member some fifty-three years, and an elder for thirty years. He took the lead in the financial affairs of the Bowling Green society, and made large donations in other places, helping to build more than twenty churches. He also gave generously to Bethany College, Hiram College and other educational institutions, and was extremely liberal to Churches, regardless of creed. Politically, he was formerly a Democrat, but in later years was a Prohibitionist, taking an active interest in all temperance work. Daniel Mercer, the subject of this sketch, died September 23, 1896, and was buried in the cemetery at Rudolph.

MURRAY P. BREWER, one of the proprietors of the Wood County Sentinel, and editor of the same, is a native of Ohio, born November 23, 1849, and received his schooling at Westerville.

In 1868 he went to Toledo and engaged in the printing business as a practical printer, and in 1870 came to Bowling Green, here taking a position on the Wood County Sentinel—the official organ of the Republican party. In 1873 he became sole proprietor of the Sentinel by purchase from C. W. Evers, later selling to Rudolph Bros., and was then for one year one of the proprietors of the Wauseon Republican. In 1884 he again became one of the proprietors of the Sentinel, and has been its editor ever since. He is one of the ablest writers in Ohio, and always alert to the interests of his town and county. He has been mayor of Bowling Green two terms (1882 and 1884), and served ably and well on the school board many years, also in the city council 1877-1879-1881-1885-1886-1894-1895 and 1896.

On January 8, 1873, Mr. Brewer was married to Miss Luella G., daughter of Norton and Ella R. (Wells) Reed, natives of Ohio and New York State respectively, the father being of Scotch origin. To our subject and wife have been born children as follows: Charles R., John W., Harry and Dixie.

E. L. SPAFFORD, the well-known young civil engineer of Bowling Green, is a descendant of one of the earliest pioneers of this region, his great-great-grandfather, Major Amos Spafford, who was born in Sharon, Conn., April 11, 1753, having been for some time deputy revenue collector at Perrysburg. The Major's eldest son, Samuel Spafford, our subject's great-grandfather, was commissioner of Wood county, from 1822 to 1828; he died at Perrysburg in 1831, at the age of fifty-six. Amos Spafford, the grandfather of our subject, went to California during the "gold fever" of 1848-49, and was never heard from afterward. His son, Ara C. Spafford, our subject's father, was born in 1835, and in 1861 enlisted in Company C, 21st O. V. I., and served in the army of the Cumberland until he was stricken with yellow fever, from which he died October, 1864, at Camp Sorghum, South Carolina.

On the maternal side, also, Mr. Spafford is descended from a family which has held a prominent place in the history of northwestern Ohio, his mother, formerly Miss Amanda M. Baird, being the daughter of G. W. Baird, a man of recognized influence in business and political circles, and a representative in the Legislature from this District, in 1841-42. E. L. Spafford is the second in a family of three children. The eldest, Clifton A., lives in Providence, R. I.; the youngest died in infancy. His mother, who was born September 18, 1838, is still living, and has contracted a second marriage with F. H. Thompson, of Perrysburg; they have had two children—L. A. and Edward.

Our subject was born at the old homestead in Perrysburg July 8, 1861, and received his early education in the schools of that town. The foundation, thus laid, has been added to by subsequent reading and observation, until he has become noted for his broad and accurate information. His technical studies in engineering and surveying were pursued under the able guidance of Prof. Hubbard, at Perrysburg. At the age of nineteen he began teaching, and, after seven years of successful work in this county, he engaged in the practice of his chosen profession, working as an assistant to the county surveyor. His ability and skill, combined with absolute fair dealing in disputed cases, has brought him an extensive business in this and adjoining counties.

On May 4, 1894, Mr. Spafford was married to Miss Mildred Kramer, of Bowling Green, who is a worker in various philanthropical movements, and an active member of the M. E. Church. One son, James Francis, born January 1, 1896, has blessed this union. Mr. Spafford is a straight Republican in politics; socially, he belongs to the I. O. O. F. Lodge No. 77, of Perrysburg.

PROF. J. N. BAKER, a prominent educator, of Wood county, now residing in Bowling Green, was born near New Lisbon, Columbiana county, Ohio, May 9, 1843.

His father, Abraham Baker, was born in 1808, in Adams county, Penn., and came to Ohio, with his parents, when a little boy; his mother, who was Miss Elizabeth Cope, before her marriage, was a native of Harper's Ferry, Va., and came to this State, with her parents, at the age of eighteen months—both families settling in the vicinity of New Lisbon. Poverty was no obstacle in the eyes of lovers in those days, and in 1830 our subject's parents were married, although they had nothing to live upon but the young husband's wages as a day laborer. In 1850, they bought a farm of ten acres, which they sold four years later, when they removed to a farm in Section 31, Bloom township, Wood county. Here they spent the remainder of their days. They were Quakers in religion, with all the sterling moral qualities of that sect. Mr. Baker died May 27, 1888, aged eighty years; his wife August 15, 1894, aged eighty-six years. Of their six sons, five served in the Civil war, and the other had a willing spirit, but failed to pass the examination. Their two daughters married men who volunteered and went to the front. John C., the eldest son, enlisted in the 47th O. V. I. He now resides at the old homestead. Sarah A. married J. R. Slaughterback, of Hancock county, a private in Company E, 21st O. V. I. Joshua C. was drafted, but was discharged on account of physical disability; he now resides in Hancock county. Elisha M., served in Co. D, 5th Mo. Cav. during the war, and now lives in Auburn, Nebr. Jason C., a private in Co. E, 21st O. V. I., under Gen. Sherman, was killed at Vining Station, Ga., July 9, 1864. Isaac P. served in Co. G, 21st O. V. I., and died in the hospital at Nashville, February 6, 1863, of pneumonia, caused by exposure during the battle of Stone River. Mary C. married Frank Pattee, of White Beach, Wisconsin.

Our subject was the sixth child in this patriotic family. He was about twelve years old when his parents came to Wood county, and he received his early education in the district schools of Bloom township, and in the high school at Findlay. Before completing his course, the war broke out, and August 9, 1862, he enlisted in Co. G, 99th O. V. I., taking the rank of corporal. He served under Buell, Rosecrans, and Sherman, and took part in the battles of Perryville, Ky., Chickamauga, Lookout Mountain, Missionary Ridge, Buzzard's Roost, Resaca, Ringgold, Dalton, Dallas, and others of the Atlanta campaign. He was wounded at Kenesaw Mountain, June 21, 1864, and sent to Regimental Headquarters, but returned to duty in three weeks. After the capture of Atlanta, his regiment formed part of the force under Gen. Thomas, sent against Hood, and took part in the two-days' struggle at Nashville, in which that campaign ended. The 99th was then consolidated with the 50th Ohio, and transferred to the East, and was engaged at the capture of Wilmington. They re-joined Sherman at Goldsboro, and were discharged from the U. S. service at Salisbury, when the war closed, and finally mustered out at Camp Dennison, Cincinnati, in June, 1865.

Returning to Findlay, Prof. Baker resumed his studies, finishing the course in the Findlay High School, in 1866. He has ever since been engaged in educational work, teaching two years in the A Grammar Grade at Findlay; three years as superintendent at Carey; two years at home, where he bought a farm and spent his spare time in cultivating it; nine years as superintendent at Portage; three years as superintendent at North Baltimore, and seven years in the A Grammar school at Bowling Green. He then resigned, intending to retire from professional work, but was prevailed upon to take charge of the schools at Tontogany, where he spent last year. He is now resting. While attending school at Findlay, he taught three winters' terms in the country, making, in all, thirty years of work. He married Miss Lévinia Shellabarger, one of his pupils at Carey, who was born in that town, November 3, 1852. She has been a true helpmeet, sympathizing heartily in all his plans, and has taught with him in the schools of Portage, North Baltimore, grammar grade, and Bowling Green, in the A Primary grade. Prof. Baker has been a member of the board of county examiners for four years. He is a Republican in politics, and a member of the G. A. R., Wiley Post, of which he has been commander for two terms.

ROBERT STEWART DAVIDSON. The Davidson family is of Scotch origin, and the subject of this sketch, a prominent business man of Scotch Ridge, Webster township, traces his genealogy back to Robert Davidson, who was a farmer, born in Linlithgow, Scotland.

His son, Robert Davidson (2), grandfather of our subject, was also born in that country, and was one of seven children. He came to America in 1834, and settled at Perrysburg, Ohio. A few months later, going to Pennsylvania and buying a large tract of land. While on his journey homeward he died, when four miles from Fremont, on the Maumee and Western Reserve Pike. His wife was a Miss Margaret Murdock, also a native of Scotland. Nine children were born to them: Robert, who is now a retired farmer, living at Scotch Ridge; William; Jeanette; James; Walter, father of our subject; Anna; Andrew; Thomas and Margaret.

Walter Davidson married Jane Stewart; both were natives of Scotland, born in 1822. They came to America in 1832, when children. For a time they lived in Perrysburg, Ohio, afterward removing to Webster township. Their family consisted of the following children: Robert Stewart, subject of this sketch; Maggie, born in 1845, married Thomas Shanks, and lives in Webster township; Mary, born in 1847; Sarah, born in 1849, married Frank Stevens, of Webster township; Andrew died when about two years old; Thomas, living in Webster township; Mattie is the wife of Charles Muir, of the same township. The father was county commissioner for six or seven years. He died April 14, 1891, aged sixty-nine years; his wife died some four years previous.

Robert Stewart Davidson was born in Scotch Ridge, Webster township, this county, April 1, 1843. He attended the district school, which in those primitive days was held in a log school house with rough slabs for benches, a puncheon floor, and a slit in the side of the walls, covered with greased paper, doing duty as a window. When eighteen years old his patriotic impulses were stirred by the call to arms, and he offered his services to assist in putting down the Rebellion, enlisting on October 22, 1861, in Company H, 67th O. V. I., his regiment being assigned to the Eastern Division of the army. His term of service expiring, he re-enlisted in February, 1864, and remained until the close of the war, being mustered out December 7, 1865. Mr. Davidson took part in some of the most noted engagements of the war, among them being the battles of Winchester, Va.; two battles at Fort Wagner, Chester Station, Va.; Bermuda Hundred, two battles at Wier Bottom Church, Va.; Petersburg and Appomattox. He was wounded at Fort Wagner and Chester Station, and has the record of a brave and faithful soldier, of which he may well be proud.

Mr. Davidson was married August 14, 1872, to Miss Alice Stevens, who was born January 28, 1850, in Monroeville, Huron Co., Ohio. Eight children have blessed this union, namely: Jennie May died when eighteen months old; Walter is in business with his father; Maggie; Daisy; Bruce, died when two years old; Frank, Arthur and Laura. Mr. Davidson established a general merchandise business in Scotch Ridge, in 1872, being at the outset in partnership with his father, under the firm name of Davidson & Son, and which style is still used, although the senior partner died some years ago. Mr. Davidson erected the large building which he now occupies, in 1883, and has built up an extensive trade by his strict attention to the details of his business, his well-known integrity, and genial personality also attracting to him many warm personal friends. He has been greatly prospered during the twenty-three years of his active business life, and is one of the highly esteemed residents of the township. Mr. Davidson has always taken an active part in politics, in which he affiliates with the Republican party. He has been treasurer of Webster township for twenty-four years, first being elected in 1869, and serving for twelve years; after an interval of two years he was again re-elected, and has held the position ever since. He is the treasurer and a stockholder in the Pemberville Creamery, and is the treasurer of the United Presbyterian Church, of which he is a member, and is now treasurer of the Wood County Farmers' Mutual Fire Association, which has an assessable stock of $1,000,000.00, and is steadily increasing. He is also a member of Wiley Post, G. A. R., at Bowling Green, and is prominent in all public enterprises. He owns a farm of sixty-two acres near Scotch Ridge, on which he resides, where he has a delightful home.

FRANK W. DUNN, a well-known resident of Bowling Green, was born on the east coast of England December 18, 1841, and is the eldest in the family of four children born to John F. and Miriam (Wright) Dunn.

The mother and two of the daughters died in 1847, and a few years subsequently the father emigrated to Canada, bringing with him his two remaining children—the subject of this sketch and his brother Robert. Members of the family on the paternal and maternal sides had previously emigrated from the mother country, some of them having settled in Canada, others in the United States. For a time, Frank lived with his uncle on a farm near Toronto, and afterward with an old friend of his father. After a residence of about two and a half years in Canada, the father and his two sons came to Ohio, settling in Bloom township, this county, on a tract of land adjoining the village of Eagleville, where some of his father's relatives were then living. The land purchased was covered with heavy timber; the surrounding country was new; money was a scarce commodity, and a good deal of hard work was necessary to make a comfortable home.

With a view of earning money to assist his father in paying for and improving his land, our subject went to Lorain county, in the spring of each year, for several seasons, and worked on a farm, during the summer months, returning to Wood county in the fall. In September, 1862, while employed on a farm in Lorain county, he enlisted, for three years, in the Hoffman Battalion, afterward merged into the 128th Regiment, O. V. I. He remained in the service until June, 1865, and was honorably discharged, by reason of the termination of the war. In September, 1865, he went to Alpena, Mich., then a very small village, and spent the winter in the pineries north of that place. Returning to Ohio in the spring of 1866, he followed the pursuits of a farmer for several years, in Perry township, Wood county, and was twice elected assessor of the township, at the second election receiving every vote cast in the township. In the winter months, he usually taught a term of district school, in either Bloom or Perry township. In 1873 he came to Bowling Green, and has resided here ever since, excepting two years spent in western Kansas.

For several years Mr. Dunn was deputy sheriff of Wood county, and at intervals has been employed in all the various offices of the county. In 1880, he was one of the United States census enumerators, and was clerk of Center township, for two years. While living in Kansas he was elected and served as county recorder.

In the spring of 1888, our subject was married to Miss Emma J. Loomis, the eldest daughter of Daniel Loomis, of Bowling Green. She was deputy clerk of courts, in Wood county, for several years, and has the distinction of being the first lady legally appointed to an office in the county, the late Judge Pillars making the appointment. Subsequently she filled the office of deputy recorder of the county. Mr. Dunn is a member of the firm of Robert & Frank W. Dunn, abstracters of land titles, who have made a specialty of this work for more than twenty years.

Frank W. Quinn.

GEORGE W. GAGHAN, auditor of Wood county, and one of the most capable and popular business men of Bowling Green, was born in Whitehall, N. Y., May 3, 1850.

His parents, George and Mary (Finney) Gaghan, were born in Ireland, the father in 1816, the mother two years later. They came to America in 1849, settling in Whitehall, where they lived some eight years, in 1857 removing to Toledo, where they remained two years. In 1859 the family removed to Medina, Medina Co., Ohio, where they also resided two years, thence removing to West Millgrove, Wood county, where, in 1865, they rented a farm near Tontogany. Here they lived three years, at the end of that time buying a farm in Milton township, where Mr. Gaghan died. Politically he was a Democrat. An upright citizen, and an energetic worker, he never spared his strength when he set himself a task to accomplish. His life was extended beyond the limit of three-score and ten, his death occurring September 23, 1892. His wife, and six sons and daughters survive him, of whom our subject is the eldest; Catherine is the wife of J. Dubbs, of Milton township; Mary married Nate Corhell, of Jackson township; James lives at the old home in Milton township; Rosa married Wesley Sharp, of Hammansburg, Wood county; Myrtle is the wife of Caleb Roe, of Jackson township.

G. W. Gaghan acquired the rudiments of his education in the common schools near his home, and at about the age of fifteen came to Bowling Green, to find or make for himself a place in the business arena. For two years and a half he clerked in the general store of C. F. Button, and for four years with S. L. Boughton, in the same line. Possessing in a marked degree those innate qualities of character which win public confidence, he had by this time gained a host of friends, and on venturing to invest his savings in a stock of dry goods, his enterprise found ready support. He continued in business with a growing trade until late in the year 1887, when he was burned out with a loss of $3,500. He then engaged in the oil business, in which he continued some two years. In 1888, he rebuilt the Gaghan Block, which is a fine property. In 1889, he was appointed postmaster of Bowling Green, receiving the appointment from Harrison without solicitation on his part, and held the office until January 1, 1894, when he gave it up, having been elected to his present position the previous November. Since October 15, 1894, he has ably discharged the duties of county auditor, to which office he was re-elected in November, 1896. He did not come to this work an untried and inexperienced official, having held many minor offices in which the public had learned his worth. As township clerk, and for ten years treasurer of Center township, and as a member of the city council for twelve years, his integrity, good judgment, energy and public spirit had been fully proven. What Mr. Gaghan lacked in collegiate training has been made up by close observation and private study, the love for which college life does not always develop. He has always been a recognized leader in the local ranks of the Republican party, for whose interests he has devoted both his time and means. He has served on the County Central Committee, and is regarded as one of the party's best men in Wood county.

Mr. Gaghan was married, March 14, 1872, to Miss Alice A. Pike, who was born in Bowling Green in 1853, and they have two children, Byrdie and Mabel. He is a member of the K. of P. and Modern Woodmen of America.

JOHN GAGHAN, who is one of the agriculturists of Jackson township, has lived an honorable and upright life. His career, however, is unmarked by events of thrilling experience, but is that of a man who has faithfully performed his duty. He was born in Wood county, January 15, 1868, of parents George and Mary (Finney) Gaghan, who for a time resided at West Millgrove, then in Washington and Milton townships respectively. In the latter our subject began his education, acquiring a fair knowledge of the English branches. He was brought up as a farmer's boy, and his training in that line of labor was not meager. He early displayed an industrious, energetic nature, and these qualities are among his marked characteristics, and have been important factors in his success.

Mr. Gaghan remained at home until twenty-four years of age, and then removed to his parents' farm, comprising eighty acres of land which was given him by his father. He was married in Milton township, Thanksgiving day, 1892, and at once took up his residence on his land where he has since had a comfortable and pleasant home. The work of improving the property has all been accomplished by him, for it was an unbroken wilderness when it came into his possession. His characteristic energy, however, has transformed it into a fine farm, and he now has a valuable and richly improved tract of land.

Mrs. Gaghan bore the maiden name of Sarah Srohl. She was born in Ottawa county, Ohio, in January, 1873. By her marriage she has become the mother of one child, an interesting little daughter, Myrtle, born July 20, 1894. The parents are widely and favorably known in this locality, and have many warm friends. In politics, Mr. Gaghan is a Democrat, unswerving in his support of the principles of the party.

DANIEL W. HUFFMAN, farmer and fruit grower, Washington township, was born September 12, 1841, in Dauphin county, Penn., the third son of John and Nancy Huffman.

Our subject's boyhood was passed on his father's farm, which he assisted in clearing up, while in the winter months he also attended the district school. He was seven years old when he accompanied his parents from Pennsylvania to Weston township, Wood county, and when he attained his majority, he began to work for his father on wages. In 1867 he bought his first land, forty acres, and, when he had improved it to a considerable extent, sold it and bought sixty acres. On disposing of this last property, he bought eighty acres in Washington township, and has transformed it into a valuable farm, highly improved. In 1872, he bought eighty acres adjoining, and now has a quarter section, all under a high state of cultivation. Thereon he erected a comfortable country residence, at a cost of $2,000.00, and has built commodious barns and other necessary out-buildings. In addition to the cultivation of grain he raises some fine varieties of fruits, which find a ready sale on the market. For the past ten years he has also engaged in stock raising.

On May 2, 1864, Mr. Huffman enlisted at Tontogany, in Company B, 144th O. V. I., under Capt. Black and Col. Miller. The regiment went to Columbus, Ohio, thence to Baltimore, Md., participated in the battle of Monocacy, July 9, 1864, and August 13 following, our subject was taken prisoner, by Col. Mosby, while he was guarding a wagon team en route from Harper's Ferry to Winchester. It was the more aggravating to Mr. Huffman, as on that very day his term of enlistment had expired, and he fully expected he would be sent home as soon as the wagon train should arrive in Winchester. After capture, he and three fellow prisoners (two of whom were John Phillips, of Tontogany, and Hugh Stewart, also of Wood county) were placed on mules and started off, under guard, to join the Rebel army at Culpeper, Va. At the end of some forty-eight hours' ride, however, Mr. Huffman succeeded in effecting his escape by hiding in the bush, his guard being not over ten feet from him when he made his dash for liberty. This was on a Monday morning, and the following Saturday night he found himself within the Union lines, near Alexandria. During the nights he tramped along with great caution, in daytime keeping close or resting himself, never once stopping at any house for fear of capture, but living on green apples and anything else he could find in the woods. He suffered much from hunger and exposure, which resulted in an attack of rheumatism. On September 14, 1864, he was honorably discharged at Columbus, Ohio.

In 1866, Mr. Huffman was married to Carrie Phillips, who was born April 27, 1844, a daughter of John Phillips, of Washington township. They had four children: Arthur, who died in infancy; Alice, wife of Charles Bassett, of Weston township, by whom she has three sons—Wayne, Clyde and Cecil; and Eva and Howard, both at home. The family is one of considerable prominence in the community, and the home is noted for its hospitality. Mr. Huffman has been school director for a number of years, and clerk of the board. He was also supervisor for some years, and is now serving his fourth term as trustee. He belongs to Walter A. Wood Post, G. A. R., of Tontogany, and in politics is a Republican. His possessions have been acquired entirely through his own efforts, and his career demonstrates what can be accomplished through earnest labor.

NORTON REED, a prominent capitalist and real-estate holder of Bowling Green, has been a conspicuous factor in the growth and development of the commercial interests of this region. Coming to this county in 1865 with ample means, his energy and financial ability soon made him an acknowledged power. In the removal of the county seat from Perrysburg, he gave noteworthy evidence of those qualities which insure success in the business world.

Mr. Reed is of Scotch descent, his grandfather, Samuel Reed, having come from Scotland to America in the last century, locating in Connecticut. His son, Samuel (2), our subject's father, was born in Hartford, in that State, in 1791, and in 1814 came to Ohio, settling first in Erie county, but finally in Huron county, where he died in 1865. He married Miss Hannah

Brown, who died in Milan, Erie county, in 1884. They had six children: Mary, the widow of the late Volney Beverstock, of Milan, Ohio; Edwin, a resident of Toledo, Ohio; Norton, our subject; Helen Jane, the wife of Thomas J. Butman, of Milan; Harriet, Mrs. Thomas Bradley, of Milan, Ohio, and Samuel, who lives at Carthage, Missouri.

Our subject first saw the light in Erie county, Ohio, January 18, 1821, and received his early education in the district schools there, and in Huron county. He was married in 1845 to Miss Ellen R. Wells, who was born September 4, 1823, in New York. Their three daughters are all married: Julia, born October 14, 1848, is the wife of W. C. Martin of Bowling Green and the mother of four children—Martia, deceased, Norton, Jo., and Frank. Helen W., born May 18, 1850, married George Wooster, of Bowling Green, and has one daughter—Carrie. Luella G., born September 6, 1851, married M. P. Brewer, editor of the Sentinel, of Bowling Green, and has four children—Charles R., John, Harry, and Dixie.

Mr. Reed followed farming as an occupation for some time after his marriage, first in Ridgefield township, Huron county, and then in Oxford township, Erie county. Since 1865 he has had his home in Bowling Green (with the exception of two years spent in Fulton county), and his fine brick residence is an ornament to the city. Mr. Reed takes a philosophic view of life, and enjoys the privileges which his wealth bestows. He spends a portion of each year in travel, and of the last nineteen winters, one has been spent in California and the rest in Florida, where he owns a large tract of wild land. His first vote was cast for James K. Polk, and he has remained a Democrat to the present time.

JOHN S. MAHONY. This gentleman, who spent his early manhood in active labor, and mainly in agricultural pursuits, is now living retired in Fostoria, Ohio, but still owns some valuable oil land in Montgomery township. A man of great energy and more than ordinary business capacity, his success has been largely due to his own efforts and sound judgment, by which he has been enabled to make wise investments and take good advantage of his resources.

Mr. Mahony was born at Liverpool, England, December 31, 1828, and is one of the four children—two sons and two daughters—of Thomas and Ellen Mahony. His father, who was a successful grain merchant, died when our subject was only four years old, leaving his family in comfortable circumstances, and they continued to carry on the business. In the common schools John S. Mahony received a fair education, but at the age of thirteen years he formed the acquaintance of a sea captain who took a liking to him, and, despite the pleadings of his mother, he shipped on the "Mary Gray," where he was chore-boy. They sailed for Brazil, but the voyage ended with a shipwreck on the Falkland Islands, while en route for Valparaiso, Chili, where they lived for a month on a desert island, but were finally taken by a schooner to Port Egmont, and later were taken on board a New Zealand vessel, the "Bolena," which came to that port for water. He and another boy appealed to the governor of the Falkland Islands for passage home, but were refused. Finally, however, by working his passage, he got back to London, and then, after an eighteen-months' absence, to his home in Liverpool, where he found the family mourning for his supposed death. Mr. Mahony then clerked in the American wholesale house in Liverpool of James McHenry & Co. until the hard times caused him to lose his position, and then he went as a sailor to New Orleans, whence he went to Havre, France, and on that trip returned to New York with immigrants. For a time he sailed along the Atlantic coast and to the West Indies, but, on January 26, 1849, he left New York for San Francisco, having been taken with the gold fever, and arrived there the following August. He became part owner of a small boat engaged in rafting on San Francisco bay, and remained in California until June, 1854, engaged in rafting and mining. He returned to New York by way of the Panama route.

Before leaving the Golden State, Mr. Mahony had been told, by a fellow-worker, of the "Black Swamp" in Wood county, Ohio, where he proceeded after his arrival in New York, and purchased 120 acres of partially improved land in Sections 3 and 10, Montgomery township; but before he located thereon he made a visit to his mother in England, who died the following year. Farming was entirely a new business to our subject, who, under many difficulties, secured a knowledge of the business, and his first attempts at plowing will never be forgotten. He also made several runs on the lakes in the fall after the farm work was done.

On February 21, 1855, in Montgomery township, Mr. Mahony was married to Miss Lorinda F. McFerren, a native of Wood county, and a daughter of Ezekiel and Hannah McFerren, and they have become the parents of five children—

Ellen A., now Mrs. R. C. Canfield, of Washington; Kate E., wife of E. D. Tandy, of Colorado; Clara E., wife of Charles A. Whaley, of Washington; Mattie G., at home; and John F., a hardware merchant of Fostoria, Ohio.

Resolving to aid his adopted country in her struggle to preserve the Union, Mr. Mahony enlisted in 1861, leaving his plow standing in the field, and became a member of Company K, 21st O. V. I. He was in all the battles in which his regiment participated until September, 1863, when, after the battle of Chickamauga, Ga., he, with his regiment, was taken prisoner, and for seventeen months he was confined at Richmond, and in other Confederate prisons. Was mustered out May 15, 1865. He has never regained his former health. From private he received one promotion after another until after the battle of Stone River, when he was given a commissioned office, and later received a first lieutenant's and captain's commission. He was mustered out May 15, 1865, when his services were no longer needed, and returned to his home with an honorable war record.

Until 1893 Mr. Mahony continued the cultivation and improvement of his excellent farm, and then removed to Fostoria, where two years later he built his elegant residence on West Fremont street. He comes from a good English family, and he has given to his children excellent advantages. In religious belief he is a Congregationalist, while his estimable wife belongs to the Presbyterian Church. He is a charter member of Hamilton Post, G. A. R., of Bradner, Ohio, in which he served as its first adjutant. He is a stanch Republican, a firm believer in high protection, and is one of the most progressive and enterprising men of the county, who has here secured a comfortable competence and the regard of all with whom he comes in contact.

W. M. TULLER, M. D. Among the physicians of Bowling Green none bears a higher position in the respect and esteem of the community than does the subject of this sketch, who well merits the confidence the public reposes in him, and who has attained to success in his professional career by his force of character and devotion to his work.

Dr. Tuller was born in Delaware county, Ohio, July 7, 1848. On the paternal side he is of Dutch descent, John Tuller, the original American ancestor, having come from Holland some two hundred years ago. Roswell Tuller, the grandfather of our subject, was born in 1794 in Connecticut, was a lifelong farmer, and died in February, 1866, in Delaware county, Ohio. He married Nancy Thompson, who was born in 1797 in New York State, and died in 1876. Roswell Tuller was a soldier in the war of 1812, in which his father, also named Roswell, served as captain.

Alvin Tuller, the Doctor's father, was a native of Delaware county, Ohio, born August 5, 1817, was married, and engaged in farming there until after the birth of all his children, who were five in number, viz.: Adelbert D., a farmer in Wood county; Mary A., the widow of Isaac W. Yoakam, who was killed in Franklin county; one who died in infancy; W. M., and Milo A., living in Wood county, Ohio. Mr. Tuller subsequently removed to Franklin county, and in 1893 to Bowling Green, where the family still reside. His wife, whose maiden name was Elvira Maynard, was born in Franklin county October 30, 1819, and was there married. Her parents, Stephen and Mary (Philips) Maynard, were both natives of Massachusetts, the father coming to Franklin county, Ohio, when he was nineteen years old. He was a farmer by occupation, and lived to be eighty-three years old. The mother died at the age of thirty-nine years. They had four children—Matilda, Elvira, Darwin and Augustus. The Maynard family is of English and Scotch descent.

Until sixteen years of age our subject remained at home, attending the common school and assisting his father on the farm. He then entered Central College, in Franklin county, Ohio, and after completing the course taught school for six years, after which he began reading medicine with Dr. H. Hendrickson, of Columbus, Ohio. He subsequently took a course in the Cincinnati College of Medicine and Surgery, from which he was graduated in 1876, coming immediately thereafter to Bowling Green and beginning the practice of his profession, in which he has ever since been engaged. When Dr. Tuller first took up his residence in the place the town was composed of small wooden buildings, and was primitive in all its surroundings. He has been a witness of its growth and prosperity, and his practice has grown and prospered with it. For the past eight years he has been the physician and surgeon for both railroads passing through Bowling Green—the Cincinnati, Hamilton & Dayton and the Toledo & Ohio Central. Of late years Dr. Tuller has confined his practice more especially to consultation and office business, in which he has a large clientage, being known far and near as a man of deep learning and great skill. He is a member of the Northwestern Ohio Medical Association, the American Medical Association, and also of the National Association of Railroad Physicians and Surgeons. Socially he affiliates with the Subordinate Lodge and Encampment, I. O. O. F., with the K. O. T. M. and the Woodmen of the World, and although prevented by his arduous professional duties from attending as much as he would like to, he is an enthusiastic supporter of these fraternal organizations.

Willis M Fuller M. D.

Financially Dr. Tuller has been very successful. He was one of the number who drilled the first gas well in this locality, and has ever since been connected with the company as an organizer, it proving a very profitable business. He is a stockholder in the First National Bank at Dunkirk, Ind. In politics he is a Republican, has held the offices of mayor and member of the city council, and has also been one of the board of city examiners of schools. In every relation of life he has borne his part well, and he is one of the representative men of the county.

On July 4, 1871, Dr. Tuller was married to Josephine Mott, who was born July 24, 1846, at Rockaway Beach, L. I., daughter of Henry Mott, who was a sea captain. Their union has been blessed with five children: Willis Ray and Lillie May, living, and Jessie, who died when five and a half years of age; Bertha, who died when two and a half years old, and one that died in infancy.

CHARLES J. SAGE. The subject of this sketch was born in Washington county Va., April 11, 1836, and was one year old when his parents moved to Erie county, Ohio. He attended the common schools of his time, but his opportunities were limited and much inferior to those of the present day. The death of our subject's father, when the former was a little over four years old, lost to him a valuable friend. Fortunately he had a good mother and older brothers—the latter, though young, seemed competent to discharge the duties thus thrown upon them. When our subject was eleven years old his widowed mother and her family came to Wood county, and located a short distance west of Prairie Depot, where Charles attended school. In the summer of his sixteenth year he left home and was employed as driver on the Wabash canal at a salary of $12 per month. The following summer he again worked at that business and received $15 per month. When eighteen years old he began to learn the trade of a carpenter under his eldest brother William, of Huron. He spent some time with him and then went to Coldwater, Mich., where he worked with his brother-in-law, M. H. Parker.

In the summer of 1856 Mr. Sage went to Chicago, where he worked awhile, and then returned to Michigan, and Ohio, until 1859, when a desire to go west possessed him, and he went to Atchison, Kans., hired out as a teamster and drove an ox-team of six yoke through to Salt Lake City, Utah, from which place he went on to Sacramento, Cal., which he reached after a journey of four months. He hired out to a rancher, and later worked at his trade. In the spring of 1861 he went to Nevada, in the vicinity of Virginia City, where new mines had been discovered. Here he followed his trade and bought a blacksmith shop in the mountains; not being a blacksmith himself, he hired a smith, and he did the wood work. This proved to be a good business, and Mr. Sage stayed in the Far West until the fall of 1865, when he returned to Ohio and spent the winter of 1865-66, and in the spring of the latter year returned to his business in the mountains, which he subsequently sold out, and went to work for the government at Fort Churchill, Nev., as wheelwright, until the fall of 1867, when he again went back to Ohio.

Mr. Sage was married in Perrysburg November 17, 1868, to Miss Marian C. Benjamin, of Montgomery township, a native of Summit county, Ohio, where she was born February 3, 1845. Her parents were Aaron and Laura (Markham) Benjamin, the former of whom was born in New York State and the latter in Massachusetts. They were married in New York, and went to Tuscarawas county, Ohio, losing their money on the way, by robbery. Mr. Benjamin bought a farm in Tuscarawas county, and from there moved to Summit county, and, when Marian was nine years old, they went to Scott township, Sandusky county, and finally to Montgomery township, where Aaron died February 4, 1883, nearly eighty-four years old. His wife died March 22, 1895, over eighty-seven. Their family consisted of six children: Nelson lives in Florida; Aaron was a blacksmith and shoemaker by trade, but followed farming much of his later life; and all living but one.

At the time of our subject's marriage his finances were reduced very low; but being a good mechanic, he could always find something to do, and eventually got a start. In 1872 he located on the lot where he now lives, and where, in 1889, he completed an elegant house, arranged after his own ideas and under his personal direction. To him and his wife two children have been born, namely: Celia, an educated young lady, is a teacher in the Prairie Depot schools; Charles B. is at home. Mr. Sage is a staunch Republican, and has served four years as township clerk, six years as justice of the peace, councilman for one term, and mayor of Prairie Depot for one term. Mr. Sage is a well-known mechanic of considerable skill, he has a comfortable home, an excellent family, and is highly respected and one of Prairie Depot's best citizens.

J. C. EBERLY. The subject of this sketch is a farmer of Portage township, and has the distinction of being the first white child born in that locality, his birth taking place March 18, 1834.

Jacob Eberly, the father, was born in Huntingdon county, Penn., July 14, 1804, and moved to Franklin county when but a child. He learned the blacksmith's trade, and when a young man came to Northern Ohio and worked at his trade in Upper Sandusky, Fremont and Toledo. He was married in Waterville, Lucas county, to Miss Elizabeth Cox, daughter of Benjamin Cox, who was born September 20, 1806. Mr. Eberly began life as a poor boy, and early in the '30s he came to Portage township and took up eighty acres along the Portage river, in Section 6, which was then in a wild state, the forests being full of game, large and small. Mr. Eberly made a clearing, in which he built a cabin 16 x 20 feet, and a blacksmith shop. It was strictly a pioneer settlement, and the earliest in the township. The farmers would come from a distance of eight and ten miles to have work done for them, which they would engage to be done for days ahead. In this way he became well known by the farmers for miles around. He was a Whig and later a Republican, and served a longer term as treasurer of Portage township than any other incumbent of the office. He died October 31, 1894, at the advanced age of ninety years, his wife following him to the better land November 17, of the same year, and they both rest in the Portage cemetery. They were the parents of the following children: Jane, born October 6, 1828, died August 14, 1830; John, born June 3, 1830, died December 17, 1850; Mary, born June 2, 1832, married Elisha Prescott, and died November 24, 1858; Martha, married Allen Hampton, and is deceased; J. C., our subject; Matilda, born April 2, 1835, married John Johnson, of Toledo; William, December 19, 1836, is a merchant of Bowling Green; Elliott, September 10, 1838, lives in Center township; Harriet B., March 17, 1841, became the wife of L. L. Dowd, of Norwalk, Ohio; Benjamin C., January 11, 1843, is a resident of Bowling Green; Lucy, January 8, 1845, married John Sargent, and later wedded Albert Goumont. She is now deceased.

Mr. Eberly was a great hunter, and had but one superior and he was "Squire" McMahan, in hunting deer in his section of the county. He was compelled to give up his trade when forty years old, and spent the remainder of his life upon the farm. His death had been predicted forty years before it occurred.

Our subject was reared as a farmer's boy, and attended the district schools in Portage township, and for one term he went to the graded school at Waterville. He began to learn the carpenter trade, but gave it up and returned home where he remained until August 7, 1862, when he enlisted at Portage in Company A, 100th O. V. I., under Capt. John A. Shannon. They camped for a while at Toledo, and then went to Covington, Ky., where our subject was confined in the hospital for a time, and then rejoined his regiment at Lexington. During an engagement at Resaca he was struck by a fragment of a shell, and was sent to the hospital at Chattanooga, where he remained for several weeks. After the fall of Atlanta, he went there and again joined his regiment, with which he remained until it reached Newbern, N. C., when he was taken with typhoid fever and confined in the hospital at that place, and later was removed to Fort Schuyler, N. Y., where he recovered, and was finally discharged from the service there.

Mr. Eberly returned to Portage after the war, and went to work on a farm. December 2, 1866, he was married to Miss Martha L. McFerren, who was born in Montgomery township, March 21, 1842, and who was the daughter of Ezekiel and Hannah (Lloyd) McFerren, both of whom were born in New York. Mrs. Eberly was a school teacher in her younger days. Our subject located in Section 7, on eighty acres of land which was owned jointly by himself and his brother William, and only a few acres of which was cleared at that time. Our subject later bought out his brother's interest, and became sole owner. He now has ninety-five acres. Mr. and Mrs. Eberly had two children, Grace, born August 20, 1880, died November 20, 1883; and Hazel, born November 3, 1883, now living at home. Mr. Eberly is a staunch member of the Republican party, and in former years was one of Portage's greatest workers in the cause. He never held office, being in politics not from selfish motives but to assist in the success of his party. In 1894, he built a fine home where he dispenses hospitality to all his friends, of whom he has a large number. His wife is a member of the United Brethren Church, and they contribute freely to its support.

HIRAM ADDISON CRAW is one of the early pioneers of Wood county, and for many years one of its prominent agriculturists. He is now, after many years of active labor, spending the evening of his life in quiet and ease at his home in Bowling Green. He was born in Fairfield, Franklin Co., Vt., March 9, 1829.

His parents, John and Laura (Boardman) Craw, the former of whom was born in Suffield, Suffield Co., Conn., October 25, 1787, and the latter in West Corinth, Orange Co., Vt., November 14, 1789, were married December 14, 1809, in West Corinth, and lived in Fairfield, Franklin Co., Vt. In the fall of 1835 they came to Ohio, settling in Ridgefield township, Huron county, where they bought a farm and lived until 1851, then removing to Wood county and locating in Plain township, four miles north of Bowling Green. The father died in that city July 7, 1883, the mother having passed away March 13, 1871, while living on the farm. The mother early in life was a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church, but in February, 1858, with her husband and one of her daughters, Almira Gregory, and her husband and the subject of this sketch and his wife, all fully believed and indorsed the Seventh-Day Adventist faith, and commenced to observe the Sabbath of the Lord according to the Scripture and Bible plan, and have observed it ever since. But the organization of the Church did not take place until October 6, 1861, at Battle Creek, Mich., by a conference, by the vote of which it was recommended that the Churches enter into organization, adopting the following as a Church covenant: "We, the undersigned, hereby associate ourselves together as a Church, taking the name Seventh-Day Adventists, covenanting to keep the commandments of God and the faith of Jesus Christ." All of the above-named family united with this body, and are still connected with it, except the father of the subject of this sketch. He was as firm a believer in the truth and practice of it as any one of the family to the day of his death, and felt assured that he would have a part in the first resurrection at the second coming and appearing of the Blessed Master. In accordance with the views of this sect the Sabbath begins at sundown on Friday evening, and ends at the same hour on Saturday evening. Mr. Craw, Sr., while a religious man and an earnest Bible student and believer in its doctrines, never united with any Church. He was originally an old-line Whig, subsequently becoming a Republican, was a man of much intelligence, and was highly esteemed by all who knew him.

This worthy couple were the parents of six children, of whom the following record is given: Matilda, born October 14, 1810, married Addison Fay January 19, 1832. They settled in Fairfield township, Franklin Co., Vt.; in 1834 came to Ohio, and for a number of years lived in Huron county, and in 1850 came to Plain township, Wood county, adjoining Bowling Green, where Mrs. Fay died October 27, 1864, and her husband in 1892; Prudence D., born May 20, 1814, was married May 21, 1834, to Peter Hathaway (they lived in Milan township, Huron county, but after some years the county was divided, and Milan and where Mr. Hathaway lived on the Huron river became a part of Erie county, and they continued to live there until he died, when she sold out and moved to Adrian, Mich.); Almira, born June 26, 1817, was married in Fairfield township, Franklin Co., Vt., December 29, 1834, to Levi S. Gregory, and they now reside in Bowling Green; Horace B., born October 7, 1820, died in infancy; Boardman, born June 29, 1826, also died in infancy; Hiram A., our subject.

The paternal grandfather of the latter was Reuben Craw, one of the early settlers of New England, who died in Vermont. His maternal grandfather, Amos Boardman, was born in England, November 17, 1764, and was married February 4, 1789, to Prudence Chapman, who was born March 3, 1768, in Corinth, Vt. They were farmers, and lived in West Corinth, Orange Co., Vt., where he died July 31, 1854, and his wife July 21, 1851. Their family comprised the following children: Laura, the mother of our subject, born November 14, 1789; Betsy, born October 16, 1792, died August 15, 1802; Erastus, born August 3, 1795, died January 25, 1842; Almira, born December 5, 1797, died July 4, 1876; Edna, born December 10, 1799, died November 3, 1827; Direxa, born September 19, 1801, died October 5, 1802; Electa, born March 17, 1803, died in West Corinth, Vt., in 1892; Hiram, born October 3, 1805, died April 14, 1871; Direxa (2), born March 20, 1808, died January 6, 1812; Hatsel, born January 2, 1811, died April 13, 1851.

Hiram A. Craw lived in Huron county, Ohio, where he attended school and assisted his father upon the farm until the removal of the family in 1851 to Wood county. He was married June 2, 1853, to Miss Ann Hall, who was born in Olivesburg, Richland Co., Ohio, June 19, 1833, and is the daughter of James and Jane (Ralstin) Hall. Mrs. Craw's grandfather Hall was a hatter by trade, and on one of his expeditions after furs it is presumed he was killed by the Indians, as he never returned. After his death the mother bound out her two children, of whom one was the father of Mrs. Craw, to families in Pennsylvania. The people who took the sister moved away from the State, and the two were separated for the remainder of their lives. Mrs. Craw's father was married in Pennsylvania and came to Ohio, settling first in Richland county, afterward living in Hancock county, two and one-half miles north of Findlay, and finally, in the fall of 1843, taking up his residence in Wood county. He was a wheelwright by trade, but later in life turned his attention to farming. He died in Bowling Green, February 3, 1883, when about eighty years of age. His wife died in Plain township, in 1863. Their family consisted of four children, namely: Olivia, who was married December 12, 1850, to F. E. Meagley, and lives in Middleton township, Wood county; John R. was married April 26, 1853, to L. R. Gregory, and lives in Bowling Green; Ann, wife of our subject, and her twin sister, Jane, the latter of whom died at Findlay when seven years old; Juliett, born July 9, 1836, was married August 16, 1851, to John T. Sweet (deceased), and lives in Bowling Green.

Our subject first settled on a farm in Plain township, where he owned 120 acres of land. This he cleared up and improved, adding to it at various times until he had three hundred acres in one tract. Here he carried on general farming until his removal, on Thanksgiving day, 1882, to Bowling Green. He still owns 160 acres of this land, which he rents out, and is also the owner of four city lots. When Mr. Craw first settled in this county everything was in a primitive state, and he has been a witness of, and an important factor in, its growth and development. Among his early recollections are those of the school he attended in his boyhood days, which was in an old log school house in the Webb settlement, Ridgefield township, Huron county. He still has in his possession, and in a good state of preservation, the old Elementary Speller and English Reader, which were the text books in those days, the latter of which was given to him April 5, 1836. These antiquated volumes, with their coarse paper and coarse wood cuts, are a real curiosity in these days of handsome printing and illustrations.

When Mr. and Mrs. Craw returned from their wedding tour in Huron county, Ohio, all he had was fifty cents in cash; but, as they both say, they were willing to work. The following children have blessed their union: Laura Jane, born February 25, 1854, died March 15, 1861; Prudence D., born October 4, 1855, married Herbert L. Denman, and has one child, Blanche; John B., born May 1, 1857, married Miss Ada Boardman, and lives on his father's farm (they have four children, Lorin, Iva, Howard and Cressa); George S., born May 23, 1860, married Anna Loomis, and has one child, Roland; Hiram O., born February 3, 1862, died January 6, 1885; Ira Lemon, born December 1, 1863, married Mazie Whetstone, and has two children, Eva and Hazel A.; and two younger children who died in infancy. Our subject and his wife have been members of the Adventist Church for some thirty-eight years, and have taken an active part in Church work. He is a man of high moral character, and holds an honored place in the community. Mr. Craw has been a leader in local affairs, and has held some responsible offices. He was supervisor of his township for six years, was constable for two years, and assistant postmaster at Lovett's Grove for fifteen years, afterward being appointed postmaster and serving two years, when the post office was discontinued. Progressive in his ideas, he saw at an early day the advantage of draining the soil, and has used tiling on his farm for a number of years.

The great-aunt of Mr. Craw, Jemima Mitchell, had fourteen children, and each of these had fourteen (making one hundred and ninety-six grandchildren), who, with their children, brought the number of her immediate descendants to two hundred and twenty-six.

ROBERT S. PARKER. If history teaches by example, the lessons inculcated by biography must be still more impressive. We see exhibited in the varieties of human character, under different circumstances, something to instruct us in our duty, and to encourage our efforts, under every emergency. As an illustration of the results of youthful enterprise and earnest effort, the life of this prominent attorney and successful man of Bowling Green cannot fail to be of interest, especially to the ambitious young man still struggling on the lower rounds of the ladder.

The Parker family, to which the subject of this sketch belongs, is of English origin. In the history of Westford, Massachusetts, by Rev. Edward R. Hodgman, A. M.; Cutler's History of Jaffrey, New Hampshire; the Genealogy of John Parker, of Lexington, and his descendants, by Theodore Parker, and other authorities, his ancestors may be traced by clear and unbroken records as far back as 1470, and by less perfect records to a much earlier date. In these records we find many divines, the most notable being Matthew Parker, seventy-first Archbishop of Canterbury and Primate of all England (1559-1575). The Thirty-nine Articles were passed by convocation under his presidency in 1562. There were also many lawyers in the family in England, and it is a somewhat curious and striking fact that among the lawyers were several bearing the name of Robert.

R. S. Parster

Mr. Parker is thoroughly American and democratic in his tastes and sentiments, and therefore lays no store by the titles, knightings, coats of arms and the like which are noted in these records; but he respects and reveres his ancestors because they proved themselves God-fearing, law-abiding, self-respecting and honorable men and women—having the solid virtues of the substantial yeomanry of the country. He is especially and pardonably proud of the honorable record made by his family as patriots in the Revolutionary war. Of this family was Jonas Parker, a typical "minute man," who, after being wounded at the battle of Lexington, disdained to retreat from the "Red-coats," though cautioned to fall back by his commanding officer, but kept his ground, and was bayoneted by the British soldiers; he being the first Revolutionary soldier thus slain. In the celebrated painting, "The Battle of Lexington," which hangs in the Lexington town hall, he appears as the central figure. Of him Edward Everett said: "History, Roman History, does not furnish an example of bravery that outshines that of Jonas Parker." His is one of the names of the eight martyrs for American independence cut in the granite monument erected on the Common or Green at Lexington by a grateful people to their memory.

Capt. John Parker, also of Lexington, who was in command of the "minute men" on that occasion, and who fired the first shot that was fired at the British soldiers, was a full cousin of said Jonas Parker; and there were in the company, and in the fight, Corp. Ebenezer Parker, nephew of Jonas; and Thaddeus Parker, a brother of the Captain. Later in the day, on the march to Concord to intercept the British, Capt. Parker's company was reinforced by troops from Woburn, with which were two of his nephews—Edmund and Josiah Parker; and from Reading came seventeen more who bore the name of Parker, under the command of Capt. Brooke, and they also took part in the hot fire which was poured in upon the enemy's column during the remainder of that eventful day.

In the rosters of the Continental troops enlisted in Middlesex county, Mass., in the Revolutionary war, are found a great many Parkers who served as officers and privates, more of that name than any other, unless the Fletchers and Proctors may equal them in number. These three families were related by many intermarriages; representatives of all these families removed to Windsor county, Vt., soon after the close of the Revolutionary war, and their descendants are quite numerous in that State at the present time, as well as in Middlesex county, Massachusetts.

Theodore Parker, the famous Unitarian divine, was of the same family. In the war of 1812, and in the war of the Rebellion, this family displayed the same spirit of patriotism as in the Revolutionary war.

At the time of the war of the Rebellion the subject of this sketch and his only brother were mere boys, too young to enter the military service, but his half-brother, Edwin, enlisted at an early period of the war, and served until near its close, when his left leg was shattered by a shot, and he was compelled to retire from the service. Three of his half-brothers, of the family name of Robinson (his mother's children by her first husband), were also in the Union army. When Cincinnati, Ohio, was threatened by Morgan's raid, and volunteers were called for, Abel F. Parker, the father of Robert S., though verging on three-score-and-ten, enlisted to assist in the defense of that city, and his children keep and prize the "Squirrel Hunter's Discharge," which he received at the termination of that service.

The first ancestor of Mr. Parker in America was Abraham Parker, who was born in Marlborough, Wiltshire, England, in 1612. The exact date of his coming to America is not known, but it was about 1634. He first settled in the town of Woburn, Middlesex Co., Mass., where he married Rose Whitlock in 1644. He removed to the town of Clemsford, same county, upon its incorporation in 1653. His son Moses was born in Clemsford about the year 1657; he married Abigail Hildreth, daughter of Richard Hildreth, and removed to Westford, same county, where his son Aaron was born in 1689. Samuel, second child of Aaron, was born in 1717; he was married in 1739 to Sarah Fletcher, daughter of Deacon Joshua Fletcher.

Leonard, the fifth child of Samuel, was born at Westford in 1745; he married Mary Foster in 1768. Early in this century he removed with most of his family to the Holland Land Purchase, in the vicinity of Arcade, Wyoming Co., N. Y., and the large tracts of land which they there took up and improved are still owned and occupied by some of his descendants. His son Abel was born in Westford in 1773, was married to Catherine Edgar, and removed with her to Cavendish, Vt., where in the year 1800 their eldest child, Abel Foster Parker, the father of the subject of this sketch, was born.

About 1818 Abel Parker also removed with his family to the vicinity of Arcade, N. Y., at which place Abel Foster was married, in the year 1824, to Maria Strong. The children of this marriage were Edwin (mentioned above), who died at Findlay in 1883; Julia Ann, unmarried, residing at Findlay, Ohio; Lucy, married to John Martin, and residing at Lima, Ohio; and Albert, who died in infancy. In 1836 Abel F. Parker removed with his family to Findlay (then called Fort Findlay), Hancock Co., Ohio, where he spent substantially all the remainder of his lifetime, and where he died in 1881. His wife Maria died in the year 1849, and in 1852 Mr. Parker married Mrs. Sallie Ann (Gail) Robinson, who was born in Wyoming county, N. Y. She was a daughter of Rev. Samuel Gail, a pioneer of western New York, many of whose descendants are living in Erie county, N. Y., where he died. The children of this union are Frederick Foster, a business man of Conneaut, Ohio; Robert S.; and Dora Alice (unmarried), who lives at Findlay, Ohio. By her marriage with Mr. Robinson, her first husband, Mrs. Parker had seven children, all but one of whom are still living, namely, Samuel G., a farmer in Hancock county, Ohio; Benjamin Oscar, a farmer and manufacturer of brick and tile in Putnam county, Ohio; John Edgar, formerly a locomotive engineer, and now employed at the Hamilton County (Ohio) Court House; Henry Harrison, a market gardener, of Findlay, Ohio; William Franklin, a locomotive engineer of Bellaire, Ohio; Mrs. Eleanor Woodruff, of Findlay, Ohio; and Elizabeth, who died in infancy. Mrs. Sallie Ann Parker died at Findlay, Ohio, in 1864.

While a resident of New York, Abel F. Parker was agent for the Wadsworths and other owners of the Holland Land Purchase; upon his removal to Findlay, Ohio, he was for a time principal of the Findlay schools, but, applying himself to the study of law, he was soon thereafter admitted to the bar, and, until his health gave way, devoted most of the remainder of his life to the practice of that profession in Hancock and adjoining counties. He ranked with the leading members of the bar in that part of the State, in his day. He was a public-spirited man, taking a prominent part in politics, and in all enterprises that tended to promote the interests of the people of his section. In political sentiment he was originally a Democrat, and held high rank in the councils of his party; served as postmaster under President Pierce, and for three terms held the office of prosecuting attorney of Hancock county, Ohio. In 1860 he severed his connection with the Democratic party, and supported Abraham Lincoln for the Presidency, and thereafter ardently and loyally championed the principles of the Republican party. He was a gentleman of the old school, courtly and deferential in his manner, faithful in his friendships, and universally esteemed for his personal worth and integrity. He was a charter member of the Masonic Lodge at Findlay, and a member of the I. O. O. F. He was a great reader of good books, also a close observer of events, and consequently was possessed of extensive general information, which, united with a cheerful and vivacious disposition, fluency of speech and forcible style of discourse, enlivened by wit and humor, made him an entertaining and instructive companion.

Robert S. Parker, whose name introduces this biography, was born March 8, 1855, in Findlay, Ohio, where he attended the public school until he was twelve years old. In early youth he learned the cigar-maker's trade, which he followed seven years, during part of which time he also attended school, and when not attending school he pursued his studies at home. In 1874 he commenced the study of law in Findlay with Shaffer Brothers, with whom he continued one year, and the following year read law under his father, meanwhile supporting himself by working at his trade, his father and sister reading to him while he made cigars. The mother having died, our subject and his father kept "bachelor's hall," the son doing the cooking and other housework. In April, 1876, just after attaining his majority, Mr. Parker was admitted to the bar, and immediately thereafter opened an office in North Baltimore, Ohio, where he remained several months, practicing in partnership with William H. Anderson. In September of the same year he came to Bowling Green, where he has ever since been engaged in the active duties of his profession. The first year he practiced alone, and then became associated with Col. John A. Shannon, under the firm name of Shannon & Parker, this connection lasting for about two years, when it was dissolved. Mr. Parker practiced alone from that time until 1890, when he and R. B. Moore established the firm of Parker & Moore, which continued some five years, since the end of which time Mr. Parker has practiced with E. M. Fries, under the style of Parker & Fries.

Our subject has been eminently successful in his profession, and holds a leading rank among the lawyers of Wood county and vicinity. During his twenty years of active professional life he has never missed a term of court in Wood county, and has a large and lucrative practice, principally in the northwestern counties of the State. For two terms he served as prosecuting attorney of Wood county, and he was nominated by the Republican party for judge of the Court of Common Pleas, but shared the fate of others of his political faith in the "Foraker landslide;" in three of the four counties of the judicial district, however, he ran ahead of his ticket. In the fall of 1894 he was indorsed by the Wood county delegation for representative in Congress, but was defeated in the convention by James H. Southard, of Toledo, at present representing that District in Congress.

On May 1, 1879, Mr. Parker was married to Miss Susan Thomas, who was born November 5, 1859, in Bowling Green, Ohio, daughter of George H. Thomas, who was a native of New York State. He was a carpenter by trade, but in his later years was proprietor of the "Thomas House" (now the "Russell House"), and was widely known in Wood county; he died in 1890; Mrs. Thomas is still living. Mrs. Parker had two sisters: Emma, deceased wife of William H. Rudolph (also deceased), and Flora, widow of Edward Fryberger, of Bowling Green. Two children came to Mr. and Mrs. Parker: Edward Foster, born January 31, 1880, and Julia Alice, born June 8, 1887. In religious connection the family are Presbyterians. Mr. Parker is a member of the I. O. O. F., being connected with Centennial Lodge No. 626; also of Green Encampment, Bowling Green, and is Colonel of the 4th Regiment, Department of Ohio, of the Patriarchs Militant. He is a director of the First National Bank of Bowling Green. Highly popular, and held in much esteem by his neighbors and fellow-citizens, he occupies an enviable social as well as professional position.

JONATHAN W. MYERS, who was called from earth September 21, 1892, is remembered by the people of Wood county as one of its most worthy and useful citizens. His birth occurred in Trumbull county, Ohio, December 11, 1810, a son of John and Rachel (Wolfecale) Myers, the former born August 8, 1783, and the latter October 28, 1787. The names and dates of birth of the brothers and sisters of our subject are as follows:

Mary Ann, March 30, 1809; Robert C., October 30, 1812; John, October 2, 1814; Reason, September 16, 1816; Pleasant, December 21, 1819; Elizabeth, February 25, 1822; Jacob B., September 2, 1824; Rachel M., May 2, 1827; Agnes J., August 3, 1829; Margaret, May 11, 1833; Robert C., died November 9, 1834, John, July 12, 1842, and Rachel M., October 11, 1844.

On April 3, 1834, Mr. Myers, of this review, led to the marriage altar Charlotte Hull, who was born February 5, 1812, and they became the parents of four children, namely: Henry B., born January 7, 1835, making his home in St. Louis, Mo.; Mary Ann, born September 24, 1836, is the wife of G. M. Barnd, of Bloomdale; Caroline, born November 27, 1838, is the wife of Benson Clayton, of Van Buren, Hancock Co., Ohio; and John A., born January 5, 1847, makes his home in Hancock county. The mother of this family died in 1849, and was buried in Hancock county.

In Bloom township, on December 30, 1849, was celebrated the marriage of Mr. Myers and Miss Elmira Robbins, a daughter of Daniel and Rhoda (McCarty) Robbins, and a native of Franklin county, Ohio, born October 23, 1827. To this union three children were born—Rachel L., who died in infancy; Ella E., widow of L. D. Hatfield, of Bloomdale; and Jonathan E., of Campbell county, Tennessee.

Daniel Robbins, the father of Mrs. Myers, was one of the first settlers of Bloom township, Wood county, locating near Bloomdale, when it was still a wilderness. He was born September 5, 1795, in Fishing Creek township, Columbia Co., Penn., and was a son of Thomas, and a grandson of William Robbins, a resident of New Jersey. Thomas Robbins lived and died in Fishing Creek township, and by his marriage with Elizabeth Kline, became the father of nine children—William, Abraham, Thomas, Daniel, John, Mathias, Isaac, Charity and Mercy. In eastern Pennsylvania, the parents of Mrs. Myers were married, and the mother, who was born October 17, 1802, was a daughter of John and Sarah (Thomas) McCarty, the former born November 8, 1773, and the latter in May, 1776. In their family were the following children—Mary, Rhoda, Margaret, Phoebe, James, Martha, Samuel, Sarah, and Elida. After his marriage Daniel Robbins lived in eastern Pennsylvania until 1825, when he removed to Franklin county, Ohio, but in October, 1833, came to Wood county, locating on what is now the northeast corner of Main and Vine streets, but was then an unbroken forest. His was the third family to find a home in Bloom township, and their first dwelling was a rude log shanty with a blanket hung up for a door. There they lived for six weeks when a more substantial log house was erected. Mr. Robbins died January 7, 1879. His wife had passed away in the fall of 1874, and they now sleep side by side in the cemetery at Fostoria. In 1834 Mr. Robbins and wife assisted in forming a Religious Society at the Vicker's home, and taught singing at private houses. Mr. Robbins held the office of justice of the peace for several years. He was formerly a staunch Whig, but on the organization of the Republican party he joined its ranks. In the family were seven children—Ellinda, born in Columbia county, Penn., married Joseph Urie, and died in Bloomdale in 1892; Jackson died in the same city, July 27, 1892; Elmira is next in order of birth; Rhoda A. married John Bolan, and died in Indiana; Margaret is the wife of G. W. Locke, of South Bend, Ind.; Russell B. died in Iowa; and Minerva is now Mrs. Peter Bussey, of Fostoria, Ohio.

In the fall of 1844, Mr. Myers located in Bloom township, and his first purchase made him the owner of 160 acres, now comprised within the corporate limits of Bloomdale. To that tract he later added 100 acres, all of which was an unbroken forest, but he cleared his land, making it one of the best farms of the county. He was entirely self-made, having started out in life at the tender age of ten years, and assisted his widowed mother in paying for the home place. By good management and close attention to the details of his business, he left at his death a good property, and Mrs. Myers still resides on the home farm. For forty years she has been a faithful member of the Methodist Episcopal Church, to which her husband also belonged. He now rests in the cemetery at Fostoria, and an acquaintance of forty years thus writes of him: "He was industrious, always busy—not a lazy drop of blood coursed in his veins. He was honest. This was one of his peculiar traits of character. He deigned to stoop to nothing groveling or low. He was generous, as the unfortunate always found in time of need."

Jackson Robbins (a brother of Mrs. Elmira Myers) was born in Franklin county, Ohio, March 17, 1826, and was but a small boy when his parents removed to Wood county where he grew to manhood, and November 9, 1848, was married to Miss Mary A. Beam. To this marriage were born eight children, namely: Emma, Jacob, William, Mary, Richard, Clement, and two who died in infancy.

Mr. Robbins owned forty acres of land in this county, on which he erected a dwelling, but soon after the Civil war sold the place to W. H. Redfern (now deceased) and purchased eighty acres north of Findlay, Ohio, where his wife died June 18, 1884, and on July 9, 1887, he was married to Clara May, and to them was born a daughter. During the Findlay boom Mr. Robbins sold his farm to some capitalists of that place for a goodly sum, and moved to Bloomdale, where he purchased a home, which was within several hundred feet of the place where his first days in Wood county were passed, under a shanty made by driving some forks into the ground, the covering of which consisted of bark and blankets. His death occurred July 27, 1892. His pastor, Jason Young, officiated at his funeral. His remains rest in the cemetery at Findlay. He was greatly endeared to his sister (who wrote this brief sketch) and to all who knew him. He was a good citizen and an excellent neighbor. He was a Methodist, and in politics an unwavering Democrat.

CAPTAIN OMAR P. NORRIS, a leading agriculturist of Perry township, with residence near "Norris" Station, T. & O. C. R. R., post office Longley, was born in Wayne county, Ohio, November 18, 1838, and comes of English and Scotch ancestry.

Hon. John Norris, father of our subject, was born April 22, 1813, in Fort "Findlay," Wayne county, Ohio, and became one of the most prominent and influential citizens of Perry township, Wood county. Amos Norris, his father (grandfather of our subject), was born October 16, 1779, in Huntingdon county, Penn., and was married to Mary Shaver, of the same nativity, born February 16, 1788, of English descent, a daughter of Maj. John Shaver, who served in that rank during the war of the Revolution. Amos Norris and his wife moved from their native county to Ohio in 1802, making their home in Wayne county until 1814, when they removed to Ashland county, being the first white settlers in the neighborhood, at which time the Indians were troublesome, some of them, after Hull's surrender, murdering three families in Wayne county, so that the pioneers had to build a fort in which they and their families could take refuge. This fort was named "Findlay," and in it was born Hon. John Norris. Amos Norris and his wife both died in Orange township, Ashland county, he at the age of sixty-five, and she, when seventy-six years old. He assisted in the organization of that township, and was one of the rugged old pioneers well adapted by nature for the work of pioneer days. A brief record of their family of five sons and three daughters is as follows: John (deceased) was the eldest; Vachel was drowned at the age of twenty-one, near Orange, Ohio; Nancy married Marsham Bowman, and died in Ashland county, Ohio; Temperance wedded W. J. Rigby, of Fostoria, Ohio; William, a farmer, died in Orange, Ohio; Amos was a lawyer and State Senator of Minnesota sometime in the "fifties," and afterward in the "seventies" judge of courts in Florida, whither he had gone for the benefit of his health, and died there; Andrew, who was a Doctor, died in Farmer City, Ill.; Sarah, the youngest of the family, was twice married, and died in Ashland county, Ohio.

Capt. O. P. Morris

John Norris

Hon. John Norris was reared in Wayne county, Ohio, attending school "off and on" in what is now Orange township, Ashland county, until he was fourteen years of age. Having accidentally cut his foot, so badly that he was unable to move about, he took that opportunity to learn the trade of a shoemaker, which he picked up so readily, and was so industrious at, that he made a pair of shoes the first day he worked. After he learned his trade he taught several terms of school, during the winter months only, receiving for his services eight dollars per month, meanwhile "boarding round" at the homes of his scholars. With this exception, he remained under the parental roof until his marriage, March 19, 1834, in Wayne county, Ohio, to Miss Rebecca Cuthbertson, who was born May 28, 1815, in Washington county, Penn., a daughter of Thomas and Margaret (Brownlee) Cuthbertson, both natives of Scotland, the mother born in Glasgow, the father a stocking weaver by trade. After marriage the young couple commenced house-keeping in Orange, Ashland county, Ohio, but soon afterward they took charge of his mother-in-law's farm in Wayne county, and continued thereon until 1843, in the fall of which year they came to Wood county, settling on 160 acres of unimproved land in Perry township, no clearing having been done until after they moved on the place. Mr. Norris had previously visited the locality, and built a common log cabin on the premises, which originally comprised 240 acres. In 1845 he sold eighty acres, with the proceeds of which he paid off some of the indebtedness he had incurred in the purchase. In April, 1880, retiring from the labors of the farm, and also on account of the burning of his home in Perry township, he moved to Fostoria, and here passed his declining years. The family born to John and Rebecca Norris were as follows: Omar, who died in infancy, in Wayne county, Ohio; Thomas C., who entered the service as captain of Company B, 111th Regiment, O. V. I., was promoted to major and commissioned lieutenant-colonel, mustered out with the regiment as major, and died in Fostoria, Ohio, in 1867, from injuries received in 1865, near Salisbury, N. C., in jumping from a flat-car that was off the rails, in a train carrying the regiment of which he was then in command; Amos was killed by the premature discharge of a cannon while celebrating July 4, 1863, at West Millgrove, Ohio; Omar P., the subject proper of this sketch; Mary, married to W. H. Kiger, of Prairie Depot (P. O.), or Freeport, Wood county; William B., who was a fine scholar in his younger days, and died at the age of forty-two; James H., who served in Company H, 49th O. V. I., was promoted three times for bravery—twice in the company, and promoted to sergeant while in the signal corps, which he voluntarily left to please his captain—and was killed in the battle of Pickett's Mills, or Dallas, Ga., May 27, 1864, while leading his company as sergeant; Jane, who married Capt. Thomas H. Chance, of Fostoria; Fanny, married to Andrew G. Yates, of Perry township; Annie, wife of C. H. Stewart, of Fostoria; Emma, who was the wife of Dr. J. C. Lincoln, and died at Bowling Green; John H., a prominent physician of Fostoria; and Frank M., a farmer of Perry township.

The mother of this family was a daughter of Scotch parents who were born and reared in the land of Wallace, Bruce and Burns, coming to this country at an early day. After a wedded life of half a century she passed from earth March 17, 1884, at Fostoria, Ohio, aged sixty-nine years, and was buried on the anniversary of her wedding. She and her husband joined the Methodist Episcopal Church, at their marriage, and remained consistent members of the same. She died in the triumph of a living faith in Christ, her Redeemer. She wanted and took Him for her all-in-all, in Time and Eternity. She was a very conscientious woman, and when her sons enlisted to go to the war, she stood up in a large audience and exclaimed: "Boys! It almost breaks my heart to see you go; but do your duty. Your country demands your help; be brave, and die with your face to the foe, and be men." She and her husband commenced in the woods twice during their married life—once in Wayne county, where they cleared up heavily-timbered land, some fifty-seven acres, then after ten years moved to Wood county, and here also cleared up heavily-timbered land, about 200 acres.

In 1885 Hon. John Norris married his second wife, Lydia A. Crum, of Columbiana county, Ohio, who survives him, living in a fine home he deeded her. Here he passed the declining years of his life, dying May 23, 1896, of blood poisoning, aged eighty-three years and one month, a useful member of society all his life. In his political preferences he was originally a Whig, later a Republican, and was one of the staunchest supporters of the party in Wood county. In 1843 he was appointed township clerk, to fill the vacancy caused by the death of U. M. Corey; was then elected to the same office two terms; then as treasurer two consecutive terms; then as trustee two terms; then as justice of the peace two terms of three years each; then as assessor three terms. In 1872, when the county was for the first time entitled to a representative the people selected Mr. Norris to represent the county in the Sixtieth General Assembly, as a Republican. This was the first of the three-years' fight between Bowling Green and Perrysburg, as to which should be the county seat, Bowling Green in the end winning the prize. He was renominated for a second term as representative, but was defeated at the polls, on account of the county-seat fight; but he did not sour, or leave the party, or its principles. In religious faith he was for over sixty years a member of the M. E. Church, toward which he contributed liberally, and held office in the same. As a farmer he was systematic and progressive; as a public official he was straightforward and honorable; as a man no one was better known or more highly honored. He was hale and hearty up to the illness that caused his death, and not long before the final summons came, he said: "I wonder why it is that I am living, and so many former friends and acquaintances gone forever from this world! But I bide my time."

Capt. Omar P. Norris during boyhood attended the district schools near his home, and after studying for a term in an academy at Republic, taught for three winter terms. He then entered Prof. Turner's school at Fostoria; but the war breaking out before his term was finished, he joined the army, as did every other male student in that school. Our subject enlisted, in April, 1861, in Company H, 21st O. V. I., three-months' regiment, and was rejected at Camp Taylor, Cleveland, Ohio. In June, same year, he re-enlisted, this time in Company G, 25th O. V. I., soon rose to the rank of sergeant, and was in all the marches and engagements of that regiment up to and including the battle of Greenbrier, W. Va., was honorably discharged for disability November 21, 1861, and returned home. In August, 1862, he entered Company B, 111th O. V. I., and served until the end of the war, coming out with the rank of captain, having served in every intermediate rank except that of corporal. He and fifty-two men of Company B, of whom he was in command as first lieutenant, were sacrificed, while on picket duty, to let a division get "out of a hole," on midnight of November 15, 1863, near Lenoir Station, East Tenn., when the Rebel general, Longstreet, crossed the Tennessee river with his army, en route for Knoxville. Lieut. Norris and his men were surrounded and taken prisoners early on the morning of November 16, 1863. They were all stripped of their hats, overcoats and shoes, by the Rebels, and sent to Atlanta, Ga., thence to Richmond, Va., where he and his men were separated, Lieut. Norris being sent to Libby Prison, and his men to Belle Isle. Of those fifty-two men, thirty-six died in Rebel prisons. [See "Ohio in the War."] Lieut. Norris was in Libby Prison until May, 1864, when he was sent with all other officers, confined in Libby at that time, to Salisbury, N. C., from there to Augusta, from there to Macon, and from there to Savannah, Ga., where he lay at the point of death for several days, and was reported as dead in the New York papers, by chaplains who were exchanged at Savannah, and mourned as dead by his parents and friends at home. From Savannah he was sent to Charleston, S. C., where, for twenty-nine days, the Federal prisoners were under fire of the Union guns at Morris Island, and where, too, the yellow fever was raging among the prisoners confined in the city jail yard, among whom was Lieut. Norris. From Charleston he was sent to Columbia, S. C., where many of the officers died of yellow fever, among them being Capt. William Bender, 123d O. V. I., of Fostoria, Ohio, and Lieut. Asa Spafford, 21st O. V. I., of Perrysburg, Ohio. Lieut. Norris escaped from Columbia, traveled over a hundred miles, and was then tracked up by blood-hounds and recaptured, taken back to Columbia and out to Prison Camp, where he soon afterward escaped again, at a great risk of his life. After traveling thirty-four nights, he reached the Union lines at Sweet Water, E. Tenn., December 27, 1864, having passed through many hardships and privations, and experiencing narrow escapes. He rejoined his regiment at Washington, D. C., February 8, 1865, and returned to the seat of war by the old ship "Prometheus," that narrowly escaped foundering off Cape Hatteras, North Carolina. His regiment landed near Fort Fisher, N. C., and engaged in the North Carolina campaign. Here Lieut. Norris was promoted to captain of Company I, to date November 17, 1864. Capt. Norris was in all the marches and engagements of the North Carolina campaign, and received his final discharge July 12, 1865, at Salisbury, N. C. [See History of the Regiment, by Capt. W. S. Thurstin, 111th O. V. I., Toledo, Ohio.]

After his return home he sold goods for ex-Gov. Foster, of Fostoria, for two years, then traveled a year selling a patent-right of his own invention, and then settled upon his farm in Perry township, where he has since carried on the business of stock raising, giving special attention to sheep. He has been twice married, first time, in 1869, to Miss Frona Patton, a school teacher, a daughter of Lieut.-Col. John J. Patton, O. V. I. She was born January 1, 1850, in Quincy, Logan Co., Ohio, and died December 9, 1876, leaving three children: Ida, a school teacher, who married George E. Reed, enrolling clerk of the 72d General Assembly, and now editor and proprietor of the Prairie Depot Observer (they have two children—Frona and Mary); Emma, a school teacher, who now lives at home; and Belle, a successful teacher of the county. For his second wife Capt. Norris married Miss Libbie Yates, daughter of John W. Yates, first sergeant Company H, 49th Regiment, O. V. I., of Crawford county, Ohio, who was killed December 16, 1864, in the engagement at Nashville. Mrs. Libbie Norris was born September 9, 1857, and was a teacher in Wood county for some time. Three children were born of this union: Omar, Fannie and Thomas.

A man of broad views and liberal judgment, Capt. Norris wields great influence in the community, and so fully does he enjoy the confidence of the public that he has been elected to the office of chairman of the board of education of Perry township. He has served two terms as treasurer of Perry township, also two terms as justice of the peace (refusing to serve longer), and was also a candidate before the county convention for commissioner. In 1895 he was elected to represent Wood county in the State Legislature (Seventy-second General Assembly). He was the author of two general Bills, which passed the House; one Bill was defeated in the Senate; the other, the "Anti-treat Bill," was smothered in the Senate committee. He also introduced three local Bills, all of which became laws. Capt. Norris took an active part in the Presidential campaign just closed. He delivered eight speeches in favor of the election of McKinley, protection to American industries, reciprocity and a 100-cent dollar, and is now happy over the election of Major McKinley as "President of our greatest nation on earth."

D. A. HAYLOR, the efficient and popular superintendent of the public schools of Bowling Green, and one of the prominent educators of this State, was born February 14, 1851, in Yorkshire, England.

His father, John Haylor, and his mother, Ann (Marshall) Haylor, were both natives of the same locality. As a mechanic and merchant, the father was successful and well-to-do, but came to America with his family in 1866 for the better opportunities it afforded. The family lived for two years in Oberlin, Ohio, and then removed to a farm in Henrietta township, Lorain county, afterward moved to one in Russia township, where they remained until the father's death in 1891. They were leading members of the M. E. Church, with which they united in early life. Of their nine children all are living, and five have settled in or near Oberlin, where their mother now resides. Sarah married Jacob Hales, of Ridgeville, Ohio; Henry is a dry-goods employe at Canton, Ohio; D. A., is the subject of this sketch; John is a farmer near Oberlin; William is in business in that city; Herbert, merchant and farmer, living at Irving, Kansas; and Anna, Mrs. Fred Papworth; Clara, Mrs. John Papworth; and Walter, all reside in or near Oberlin.

Our subject attended an excellent private school in England until the age of thirteen. After coming to America he continued his studies in the district schools of Lorain county, working at the same time with his father on the farm, and at the shoemaker's trade. So well did he improve his opportunities that he received the position of teacher in the same place where he had been a pupil, and there and elsewhere he taught during the winter terms until the age of twenty-three, when he entered Oberlin College to fit himself for a professional teacher. He supported himself during five years of study, earning over one thousand dollars and completed a seven-years' classical course. He took the degree of B. A., and has also finished a professional course for teachers. He ranked among the first in a class of fifty-five, and received the president's recommendation for the first place among their applications for teachers. During his senior year he was engaged as a tutor in mathematics. Since graduation he has been continuously and successfully engaged in educational work; one year in Seville, Medina county; two years in Perrysburg, Wood county; six years in Bryan, Williams county, and from 1889 to the present time he has been superintendent of schools in Bowling Green, and is a member of the city board of examiners. He has been an active institute instructor and lecturer. In each of the above places the schools secured under his management a reputation for thorough work and judicious control that has never been questioned, but has brought to him and the communities both honor and permanent good.

He was married in 1882 to Miss Netta G. Lawrence, of Perrysburg, and has three children, Ruth, Vida and Janet. His high scholastic attainments and fine natural abilities give him an influential place in intellectual circles. He and his wife are leading members of the Presbyterian Church, and generous supporters of all educational and philanthropical movements in the community. In politics he is a Republican.

EDWIN R. SAGE, M. D. No man in Wood county is better known or has a larger circle of warm friends than this popular physician, who for over thirty years has ministered to the sick and suffering of Montgomery township. He was born at Windham, Conn., January 18, 1825, and is a son of George and Lucy (Davis) Sage.

The early education of our subject was obtained in the district schools of Erie county, Ohio, whither his parents moved when he was eleven years of age. The father dying when Edwin was fifteen years old, he was thrown upon his own resources, and at eighteen began learning the trade of a shoemaker at Berlin Heights, Ohio. At this he worked for three years, being paid at the rate of $30, $35, and $40 per year, out of this paying for his board and clothing. When twenty-one years of age he was sent on horseback to Prairie Depot for a yoke of oxen, and while there was urged to start a shoe-shop, as there was none in the village at that time. He returned to Berlin Heights, and soon afterward took the stage to Lower Sandusky (now Fremont), from which place he walked, carrying his kit of tools, to Prairie Depot. This was in 1846. In the office of Dr. Hutchins he found the only available space for his bench, the use of this place being tendered him by the Doctor, who took a great liking to him. This was a fortunate crisis in his life, for he had a craving for scientific study, and, being surrounded by medical books and appliances, he took up the study of medicine.

Six months later Dr. Sage returned to Berlin Heights, where he spent the winter of 1846 and 1847. In the latter year his widowed mother, with his brothers and sisters, removed to Wood county, where he had procured a lot of land, he himself remaining in Berlin Heights until 1848, in which year he cast his first Presidential vote for Martin Van Buren, the Free-soil candidate. In 1850 he went to Chagrin Falls, Ohio, where he worked at his trade until the summer of 1857, at which time he took up his permanent residence in Wood county, at Prairie Depot, and the following year "hung out his shingle" as an M. D. During his stay at Chagrin Falls Dr. Sage had read medicine with Dr. H. W. Curtis, and had seen some practice, answering calls for his tutor, which the latter was unable to personally attend. On October 8, 1858, Dr. Sage was married at Perrysburg, Ohio, to Miss Sarah M. Yant, who was born in Bethlehem, Ohio, December 12, 1835, a daughter of John and Dorothea (Usher) Yant, the former a hotel-keeper, whose death took place in Crawford county. Three children have been born to the Doctor and his wife, namely: Rose D., the wife of F. B. Hill, of Chicago Junction, Ohio; Eddie, who died when two years old; and Edward R., who is in the United States railway mail service (on January 20, 1896, he married Evelyn Wingar). At the time of his marriage Dr. Sage was a poor man, and for many years had a "hard row to hoe." His patients were also poor, as they were mostly people coming in and settling on new farms, who had little or no money for doctors' bills. He, however, was energetic and hopeful, and struggled on until times were better, and his practice became lucrative. Dr. Sage has thousands of dollars in fees that many physicians would have collected, but his kindness of heart would not allow him to insist upon payment from people he knew were unable to spare the money. In all his thirty-one years of practice, he has never refused to answer a call because his patient was poor. Dr. Sage is to-day one of the most successful practitioners in Wood county, is well known for miles around, and his many acts of benevolence and liberality have endeared him to the hearts of the people. No man ever doubts his word, and his patients have the most implicit confidence in his ability as a physician.

Politically Dr. Sage was formerly a Democrat and a Free-soiler, and voted for Gov. Wood, the Democratic candidate for that office. After the formation of the Republican party, however, he adopted its principles, and has ever since been one of its staunchest adherents. He served as clerk of Montgomery township for one term, and in 1875 was elected to the State Legislature, at the close of his term being re-elected. Socially he is a member of the Masonic order. Dr. Sage has 108 acres of excellent land near Prairie Depot, from which he derives a comfortable income. When the call on the Ohio National Guards was made, Dr. Sage was a member of Company K, 144th regiment, Col. Miller commanding. At Berryville, Va., thirty-one of the company were taken prisoners, two killed, and two wounded, Dr. Sage being one of those taken prisoner. He was in the Lynchburg, Va., prison, and also in Libby, at Richmond, Va. He served as second lieutenant, and experienced some severe hardships, as he was on the march most of the time. No man stands higher in the community, or is entitled to higher respect from his fellow citizens than Dr. E. R. Sage.

Edwin R Sage

JOHN MEILY HOFFA, editor of the Wood County Tribune, was born December 9, 1854, at Myerstown, Lebanon Co., Penn., a son of Levi and Susan (Meily) Hoffa. Mrs. Susan (Meily) Hoffa, mother of our subject, was born July 21, 1831, a daughter of Henry and Margaretha (Vogt) Meily, the latter of whom was born October 24, 1792, and died November 29, 1847. She was a daughter of Mathias Vogt, who was born February 24, 1756, and died March 2, 1839; his wife Sophia, was born December 12, 1767, and died October 9, 1855. This long-lived couple had three sons and two daughters, our subject's grandmother, Margaretha, being one of them. To Mr. and Mrs. Henry Meily were born children as follows: Two sons died in infancy; John married Kate Zinn, and died in Lebanon county, Penn.; Catherine, now deceased, was the second wife of Thomas Bassler, and had one child; Rebecca is the wife of Isaac Stoner, and they reside in Franklin county, Penn; Mollie is the wife of Christian Strack, who resides near Myerstown, Penn.; Eliza is the widow of Jacob Bixler; Fanny is the deceased wife of Henry Glick; Mary is the wife of Henry Seltzer, and makes her home in Dauphin county, Penn.; Sallie is the wife of Samuel Noll, she resides in St. Joseph, Mo.; Susan, the mother of our subject, comes next; she has her home in Lebanon county, Pennsylvania.

Levi Hoffa was born at Myerstown, March 9, 1827, and was a son of Philip and Elizabeth (Blecher) Hoffa, also natives of Lebanon county, the former of whom was a tailor by trade, which occupation he followed up to the time of his death. To them were born children as follows: (1) Levi, father of our subject. (2) Cyrus Samuel, a graduate of Gettysburg College, Gettysburg, Penn., and who was a German Evangelical Lutheran minister; shortly after the breaking out of the Civil war, in 1861, he enlisted in the 90-days service, and after his term of enlistment had expired, re-enlisted, this time in Company F, 4th Penn. Cav., was taken prisoner, and died in Andersonville. (3) Sarah, wife of Henry Wagner, resides at Lebanon, Lebanon Co., Penn. (4) Mary M. is deceased; (5) Catherine; (6) Melinda, born June 25, 1836, died May 27, 1857; by occupation she was a school teacher. (7) Leah Amelia, born February 6, 1839, married Henry Wise, and died March 27, 1860; she was also a school teacher. (8) Maurice J. (now deceased) was the youngest of this family. Levi died May 8, 1856, the father of two children: Mary Alice, born October 14, 1853, is now the wife of George W. Umberger, by whom she has one son, Herbert (they reside in Lebanon county, Penn.); and John M., our subject. There is also another son in the family, William Gurten Hoffa (a child of Mrs. Levi Hoffa by her second husband, Cyrus Samuel Hoffa), born August 24, 1864, and now a wholesale dealer in barbers' supplies at Philadelphia.

John Meily Hoffa, whose name introduces this sketch, received his education in Pennsylvania, in part at the district schools and an academy, in part at the "College Palatinate," at Myerstown, which institution had been organized out of the academy. On leaving college he, in 1872, commenced to learn the trade of a printer in a job office at Myerstown, and in 1874 opened a job office in the same town, which he carried on until 1876, in that year moving to Palmyra, Penn., where he continued in the same line of business until 1878, when, in connection therewith, he established the Londonderry Weekly Gazette. In the course of about a year he sold out, and in 1880 removed to La Rue, Marion Co., Ohio, and bought the News of that place, the publication of which he continued until 1882, when he disposed of his interest therein. In 1883 he moved to New Carlisle, Clark Co., Ohio, and bought the Sun, publishing the same until 1890, in which year he disposed of his property there up his residence in Ottawa, Putnam Co., Ohio, and bought the Ottawa Gazette. In 1893 he sold this out, and purchased a one-fourth interest in the Wood County Sentinel (Daily and Weekly), at Bowling Green, which interest he still owns. In the fall of 1895 he also purchased stock in the Daily and Weekly Tribune, at the same place, consisting of 92½ shares, and in March, 1896, he assumed the editorial management of that paper, his present incumbency. Later he purchased more stock, and now owns nearly half of that plant. These papers are a success, having few, if any, equals.

In 1875, John M. Hoffa was married at Palmyra, Penn., to Miss Ida J. Zimmerman, who was born January 3, 1859, at that town, a daughter of Abram and Maria (Kieffer) Zimmerman, the former of whom, a stonemason by trade, was born May 13, 1831, a son of John Peter, a farmer, and Sarah Zimmerman. The latter couple were the parents of children as follows: Henry; Abram; Daniel; Elizabeth, wife of Henry Miller of Annville, Lebanon Co., Penn. (they have three children—John, Joseph and Catherine); Sarah, wife of Mr. Farling, of Lebanon county, Penn.; and Kate. Mrs. Maria (Kieffer) Zimmerman was a daughter of John Kieffer, who was also born in Lebanon county, Penn., and who married Sarah Horstick, born August 10, 1817, and by her had two children, viz.: Maria (Mrs. Abram Zimmerman), born April 24, 1840; and Reuben, a coal dealer at Annville, Lebanon Co., Pennsylvania.

To Abram and Maria Zimmerman were born children as follows: Ida J. (Mrs. Hoffa), born January 3, 1859; Lizzie Loretta, born in 1861, married Joseph Horstick, and they reside at Palmyra, Lebanon Co., Penn., and have no children; and Anna Lenora, married Albert Detwiler, and they reside at Harrisburg, Penn. (have two children). The father of this family died November 2, 1886; the mother is now living at Hummelstown, Dauphin Co., Pennsylvania.

To our subject and wife have come four children, to wit: (1) Mary J., born May 6, 1876, married to Clarence W. Griswold, at Ottawa, Ohio, where he is agent for the Findlay, Ft. Wayne & Western railroad and the American and National Express companies; they have two children—Ella Meily and Linn. (2) Meily Valentine, born February 14, 1878, died of typhoid fever October 29, 1891, at Ottawa, Ohio; (3) Harry Levi Marcellus, born April 6, 1881; (4) Abram Zimmerman, born September 21, 1886, at Ottawa. Mr. and Mrs. John M. Hoffa are members of the Lutheran Evangelical Church. Socially he has been affiliated with the P. O. S. of A. since he was eighteen years of age, joining Camp No. 192 thereof at Palmyra, Penn.; he held the position of State master of forms and ceremonies, and for one year was State trustee in Ohio; also was district president at large. At La Rue, Ohio, he organized a camp of the P. O. S. of A. and also united with Day Lodge No. 28, I. O. O. F., at La Rue, and is a past noble grand, and still retains membership in that society. At Richland he joined the Encampment, there being none at La Rue. He became a member of La Rue Lodge No. 463, F. & A. M., and affiliated with New Carlisle Chapter No. 57 and New Carlisle Council No. 30, both at New Carlisle. While residing at Ottawa, Ohio, being within the jurisdiction of Lima, he became a member of Shawnee Commandery No. 14, Knights Templar, and on moving to Bowling Green he associated with the Ancient Accepted Scottish Rite of the Valley of Toledo, being a member of Miami Lodge of Perfection, Fort Industry Chapter Rose Croix, at Toledo, and Northern Light Council, Princes of Jerusalem. He also belongs to Lake Erie Consistory, at Cleveland, Ohio, which includes the 32nd degree in Masonry. At Palmyra he became a member of Castle No. 7, Knights of the Mystic Chain; at New Carlisle he joined the Knights of Pythias Lodge; while at Ottawa he united with the K. O. T. M. and the National Union. A Republican in politics, Mr. Hoffa served as corporation clerk at New Carlisle, and on the board of health until he removed from that place. He was a member of the Building and Loan Association there, a director for two terms, also vice-president until he removed, and at the present time is vice-president of the Building and Loan Association at Bowling Green, which is a branch of the Cleveland Indemnity and Loan Association.

F. T. HEDGE, the senior member of the well-known firm of F. T. Hedge & Co., is at the head of the largest tile factory in Wood county, and is one of its most successful and enterprising business men. He is a native of Ohio, born in York township, Medina county, May 5, 1853, and is the second son and third child in the family of George B. and Kate (Crawfoot) Hedge. He was quite small when brought to Wood county, where he acquired his education in the district schools, and previous to his seventeenth year worked upon the home farm and in his father's mill. At that time Mr. Hedge began learning the saddler's trade with Andrew Emerine, at Fostoria, Ohio, where he worked for two years, when failing health caused him to abandon that trade for a time, though he later followed it for several years, in fact, until 1885. In the early "eighties" he began brick and tile making in Montgomery township with his brother G. W., buying an interest in the business of Russel Morgan. His father afterward became a partner in the enterprise, but later sold his share to another brother, H. W., and the firm assumed the present title, that of F. T. Hedge & Co. They are now extensively engaged in the manufacture of tile, having a large plant erected in 1892, the main building being 40 x 98 feet, four stories in height, with a wing 36 x 82 feet. Our subject thoroughly understands the business in all its departments, the arrangement for drying being originated by him, and very economical.

At the home of Harlow Hill, in Montgomery township, on February 13, 1887, was celebrated the marriage of Mr. Hedge and Miss Martha Caskie, who was born near Carey, Ohio, May 3, 1858, and is the daughter of James and Matilda (Smith) Caskie. They began housekeeping in Montgomery township, on Section 18, and in 1892 remodeled their residence, and now have a comfortable and pleasant dwelling. The home has been brightened by the birth of two children—Jay C., born January 19, 1889; and George B., born October 9, 1892. Mr. Hedge uses his right of franchise in support of the men and measures of the Democratic party, but takes no active part in political affairs; socially he is a worthy member of Petroleum Lodge No. 499, K. of P., of Prairie Depot; of Prairie Depot Lodge No. 646, I. O. O. F.; and Crystal Encampment No. 271. Like all of the members of the well-known Hedge family, of Montgomery township, he is prosperous and well-to-do, his success being mainly due to his own ability, enterprise and industry, and as the result of his efforts he has secured a comfortable competence, which is justly merited.

B. L. ABBOTT, a prominent attorney at law of Bowling Green, was born in Townsend township, Huron county, July 5, 1850. His grandfather Abbott came at an early date with his family to Huron county, from Trumansburg, Yates county, New York.

Our subject's father, James R. Abbott, was about seventeen years old at the time of this removal, and he at once devoted his energies to serving the best interests of the people among whom his lot was cast. He united with the Baptist Church before he had attained his majority, and supplying the deficiencies in his education by private study, he prepared for the ministry. His first charge was in Huron county, where he remained many years. He then preached at Reading, Mich., for seven years, after which he moved to Grand Rapids where his active usefulness was cut short by a stroke of paralysis, caused by overwork. The last twelve years of his life were spent in the home of our subject at Bowling Green. He was married in 1842 to Miss Caroline Smith, who was born in 1824, and is now residing with her son, Fred E. Abbott, at Bowling Green, the youngest of her five children. The others were Amanda (deceased), who married Daniel Howe, of Crawford county, Ohio; James R., a resident of Montcalm county, Mich.; B. L., our subject; and Ida, the wife of Frank S. Joels, of Fredonia, New York.

Our subject's early life was spent in Michigan, where he acquired a knowledge of vocal music which afterward served him well. In 1871 he came to Bowling Green and studied law with an uncle, Philander S. Abbott, a well-known lawyer. He had intended to take a course in literature and law at Michigan, but the illness of his father compelled him to become the "bread winner" for the family, and in the emergency he resorted to the teaching of vocal music. His professional studies were postponed for several years, but after his marriage, in 1876, to Miss Mary L. Marshall, he resumed them, and August 13, 1878, was admitted to the bar. His wife is a native of the Buckeye State, born September 20, 1854, and she is an admirable helpmeet, cultured and sympathetic. They have five children: Floyd L., Henry L., Emergene L., Lilah Belle, and Lorene.

Mr. Abbott began to practice law with a former preceptor, Edson Goit, and the partnership lasted until the death of Mr. Goit. He has a good civil practice, and has been unusually successful in the conduct of business entrusted to him. Recently he engaged in oil producing, has sunk three paying wells and has others under way. Politically he is a Republican, and he has held several important official positions. In 1886 he was elected mayor, and for more than thirteen consecutive years has been a justice of the peace. About two years ago his friends were surprised at a new departure, seemingly out of his line, when he announced his discovery of a cure for baldness, which he christened "Baldoline." His well-tryed integrity lent credit to his claims for the new remedy, however, and the test of experience has abundantly confirmed them in every case where the treatment has been properly given.

HON. ROBERT J. COLLIN, mayor of Tontogany, and a leading druggist of that town, was born July 21, 1849, in Medina, Ohio. His parents Ephraim and Matilda (Hall) Collin, were both born near Ely, Cambridgeshire, England, his father in 1825, and his mother in 1828. They were married there, and in 1848 came to the United States making their home near Medina, Ohio, until 1853, when they came to Wood county; but in the following year, owing to the breaking out of cholera in that section, they returned to Medina county, and bought a farm at Chatham Center. They sold this in the fall of 1860, and in the spring of 1861 they came to Wood county, where they purchased wild land near Perrysburg, which they cleared and improved, converting it into a fine farm. Here they remained until the fall of 1874, at that time selling out their possessions in Wood county, and once more returning to Medina county, where they now reside. Mrs. Collin is a faithful adherent of the M. E. Church. Mr. Collin was an early Abolitionist, and one of the first in his locality to unite with the Republican party. They are the parents of four children: Robert J., our subject; Sophia, wife of Joseph Carpenter, of Perrysburg; Charles, a farmer in Medina county; and Wilson, deceased at the age of sixteen years.

Robert J. Collin, the subject proper of this sketch, received his education in part at the country district schools of Medina and Wood counties, three years at the high school of Perrysburg, and one year at Berea, graduating in 1875, at Valparaiso, where he had been studying two years. When he came to Wood county, in 1853, bears and wolves abounded, and around on his father's farms near Perrysburg, in 1861, deer were frequently seen in droves. He taught five terms in district schools and two years in Miami schools, and then began to read medicine in Perrysburg, in 1876, a year later coming to Tontogany, where he bought an interest in a drug store since carried on under the firm name of Davis & Collin. This is one of the most substantial business enterprises in the vicinity. In addition to his drug business he is interested in farm land, owning property in Washington township, also in Kansas.

On June 24, 1879, Mr. Collin married Miss Alice Hannah, a native of Ottawa county, Ohio, born August 28, 1854, and they have two children: Arthur, born September 16, 1880, and Harry, born December 4, 1885, who have already given their allegiance to the church of their ancestors, the Methodist, of which Mr. Collin has been a prominent member for years. For the past eighteen years he has been superintendent of the M. E. Sunday-school. The same sterling characteristics which have led to Mr. Collin's success in other lines of effort, have made him a favorite candidate for official position, as he is now serving his third term as township clerk, and was in April, 1895, elected to the office of mayor of his town. Socially he is a member of the F. & A. M., Tontogany Lodge No. 451.

EDWARD R. SAGE, one of the most highly respected citizens of Montgomery township, is descended from an old New England family, and is a representative of the seventh generation from David Sage, who was born in Wales, in 1639, and came to Middleton, Conn., in 1652. The grandfather of our subject, George Sage, was born in 1772, and his wife, Harriet, in 1774. The father of our subject, also named George, was born July 4, 1801, in Middleton, Conn., and was married in Chatham, Conn., June 26, 1821, to Miss Lucy Davis, also a native of Connecticut, born November 4, 1799.

The father of our subject was a manufacturer and dresser of cloth, and followed that business for a time in Connecticut. In 1838 he removed with his family to Washington county, Va., where he settled near Glade Springs. He rented a fulling-mill and carding-machine, which he operated some ten years. He then came to Ohio, traveling all the way in wagons, camping out most of the time at night, and occupying four weeks on the road. He settled in Vermilion township, Erie county, where he remained one winter, then going to Harts Grove, Ashtabula county, where he bought 160 acres of land in partnership with another man. On this farm was a fulling-mill and carding-machine, which was run by water-power, and they subsequently built a gristmill on the same stream. Mr. Sage's partner proved to be dishonest, and two years later the firm failed. Mr. Sage had nothing left but a team of horses and eighty acres of land in Cook county, Ill., which latter proved upon examination, by a person sent for that purpose, to be of so little value that it was not worth the taxes. Mr. Sage was obliged to return to Erie county, where he died of bilious fever, July 22, 1840. He was naturally a robust, hearty man, and his early death was a great blow to his wife who was left with nine children to care for. Mr. Sage had but a limited schooling, but was a man of much natural ability, honest and industrious, a member of the Episcopal Church, and an old-time Democrat. His wife was a Methodist. She lived to be seventy-five years of age, and died in Huron, Ohio, and both are buried at Berlin Heights.

The children of this worthy couple were as follows: William G., born in Windham, Conn., October 26, 1822, lives in Huron, Ohio; Edward R. and Edwin R. were born in Windham, Conn., January 18, 1825; Harriet M., born in Windham, February 10, 1827, is the wife of M. H. Parker, of Coldwater, Mich.; Orrin W., born in Washington county, Va., September 1, 1829, enlisted, in 1864, in Company K, 144th O. V. I., and was taken prisoner with his entire company (only nine of whom escaped) at Berryville, Va. (he died in the Rebel prison at Salisbury, N. C.); Elizabeth

Edward H. Stage

J., born in Washington, Va., December 26, 1831, is the widow of Timothy Gould, of Prairie Depot; Louise, born in Washington county, Va., March 9, 1834, is the wife of Byron Case, of West Toledo, Ohio; Charles J. was born April 11, 1836, in Washington, Va.; James M., born in Harts-grove, Ashtabula Co., Ohio, April 21, 1838, died in childhood.

Edward R. Sage, the subject of this sketch, had a limited education in the common schools of his day, whose curriculum seldom extended beyond the "three R's." His father's early death left the family dependent upon their own exertions for a livelihood, but they managed to keep together, the boys learning various trades and the mother working at weaving. When sixteen years old Edward began learning the shoemaker's trade under Isaac Fowler, who had a country shop between Vermilion and Huron. For four years the lad worked in this place at a salary of $4 a month, out of which he kept himself and had money left to give his mother. After his uncle was elected sheriff of Erie county, Mr. Sage started a shop of his own, which he carried on for a time. In the meantime his twin brother, Edwin R., had come to Wood county and bargained for 108 acres of land, and the family decided to follow him and locate on the property. Accordingly, in 1847, the mother, with six of her children—Edward R., Orrin, Elizabeth, Lucy, Charles, and James—came by team and settled in Montgomery township, making their home temporarily near the land mentioned. About a month afterward they were given possession, and a log cabin was their first home. This property was school land, and was bought in the name of William, the eldest son, it being intended as a home for the family, and that all the sons should aid in paying for it. The mother lived there for a short time, and then returned to Erie county, where she died. The three brothers—William, Edward, and Edwin—worked the farm together until it was paid for; about 1860 our subject purchased the property from his brothers, and has lived there ever since. Since that time he has sold a portion of it for town lots, and has now about ninety-five acres remaining. Most of the improvements on the place have been made by him, he having, in 1858, built the house which he now occupies.

On October 2, 1851, Mr. Sage was married at Freeport, Ohio, to Miss Caroline Yant, who was born in Stark county, Ohio, June 30, 1828. Her parents were John and Dorothea (Usher) Yant, and her father was a hotel-keeper. Of this union five children have been born, namely: Roswell E., who died in childhood; Lucy D., now Mrs. Frank King, of Prairie Depot; John, residing with his parents; Charles, living at Prairie Depot; and William E., who is farming with his father. Mr. Sage, who is a self-made man, with the assistance of his good wife has prospered in the world, and is one of the substantial farmers of the township. He was in former days an Abolitionist, but has for many years been a staunch Republican. He has held a number of important local offices, being for eight years treasurer of the township, for six years justice of the peace, and also township assessor. He has served two terms as mayor of Prairie Depot, and has been a member of the city council. He and his wife are members of the Congregational Church. A man of genial disposition, who preserves the vigor and enterprise of youth, he is exceedingly popular with all who have the pleasure of his acquaintance. No citizen stands higher in the community or is more deserving of the esteem and respect in which he is held.

H. A. LEASE, a well known and leading citizen of Bowling Green, was born in Seneca county, Ohio, July 16, 1835. His parents were Joseph and Delilah (Olmstead) Lease, the former of whom was born in Frederick county, Md., in 1806. He followed farming until coming to Bowling Green, when he took up gardening as an occupation. He was a man of unusual mental powers, a great student of the Bible, which he knew by heart, although a free-thinker in his religious views, and looked upon life through the eyes of a philosopher. In politics he was a Democrat. He was a Scotchman by descent, and was a thrifty and industrious man. His death took place in Bowling Green, November 12, 1884. His wife was born in Frederick county, Md., in 1812, and died April 28, 1891. Their two children were H. A., and Mary E., the wife of R. Gust, a capitalist of Fostoria, Ohio.

Our subject was reared to manhood in his native county, where he attended college for seven months, afterward teaching school and reading law at the same time. In September, 1858, he went to California where he taught school and mined until 1860. In 1861 he was admitted to the bar in the Supreme Court of California; was appointed district attorney of Colusa county, by the county commissioners, and served in that incumbency one term; was made assistant sergeant-at-arms of the Legislature of that State, in 1861, and served as copying clerk for the same body in 1863-64. He then went to Eldorado county, where he was employed as clerk in the office of the Placerville route of the Pacific railway until 1866, when he returned to his home in Ohio. In 1867 he was admitted to the bar in Ohio. In 1869 he located in Bowling Green, and in the winter of 1870 was made enrolling clerk of the Ohio Senate, which position he filled for two sessions of the Legislature (1872-73), being at the same time engaged in the practice of law. Owing to ill health Mr. Lease has been obliged to give up active work, and now devotes much of his time to literary pursuits, a most congenial occupation, as he is a man of remarkably bright intellect, keen observation, and retentive memory. Upon the organization of the Bowling Green & Toledo Railroad Co., Mr. Lease was elected attorney for the same, and continued an official of the company as either attorney, director, auditor or general manager until the road was sold to the C., H. & D. R. R. Co. In politics he is a Prohibitionist, and uses his influence in promoting the interests of that party, believing it to be the best means by which our country can be free from the curse of intemperance. He is an active member of the Presbyterian Church, and in all public enterprises does his part as a loyal citizen. He has been quite successful in business, owning considerable property in Bowling Green, among which is that known as the Lease Building. Mr. Lease is unmarried, "and for free silver."

REV. HENRY DOTY, one of the leading ministers of the United Brethren Church, now the pastor of the congregation at Bowling Green, has shown in the twelve years since his ordination a rare combination of practical business talent, with spiritual power as a preacher. Although well fitted to make his way to financial success in worldly lines, he abandoned a prosperous business in early manhood (the management of a mill belonging to his father-in-law), in order to devote his energies to the Church, and while his earnest exhortations and convincing logic have turned the thoughts of many to the truths of religion, some trace of the natural financier is to be found also in churches built or repaired, or old debts paid, in every place where he has been stationed.

Mr. Doty was born October 30, 1851, near Findlay, Ohio. His parents, John and Margaret (Walters) Doty, were both born in Fairfield county, Ohio, his father on October 20, 1816, and his mother in November, 1823. On the maternal side he is descended from an old Virginia family. His parents still occupy the same farm upon which they located fifty-two years ago, and attend the same Church with which they then united.

Their eight children are all living: (1) Margaret J., the wife of Thomas Cole, of Hancock county; (2) W. C., a resident of the same county; (3) Elijah, a lumber dealer at Leipsic, Ohio; (4) Henry, our subject; (5) Edward, a farmer in Hancock county; (6) John L., who lives at the old homestead; (7) H. Walter, a prominent young attorney at Findlay; and (8) Flora Emma, the wife of Rev. W. R. Arnold, the pastor of the U. B. Church at Bascom, Ohio. Our subject improved the educational opportunities afforded by the public schools of Hancock county, and then entered the Union Biblical Seminary at Dayton, graduating in 1888. He had previously been ordained at Helena, Ohio, September 21, 1883. His first charge was on Hoytville circuit, where during a two-years pastorate he had 175 accessions, and built a church. At North Baltimore he spent two years, received 195 new members, built one church at a cost of $4,000, and repaired two others. He then came to Bowling Green, where he found the Church in a discouraging state; but with the help of the faithful and energetic women of the Society he raised between five and six hundred dollars, and purchased a bell and other needed supplies. During his one-year's stay at that time eighty-five new members were received. In the two years following, on Sycamore circuit, he received 200 new members, and built a brick church costing $5,000, repaired two others and contracted for a parsonage. He then went to Dayton, where for three years he pursued a course of study in the Union Biblical Seminary, having charge during the last two years of his stay there of Miami Chapel (the old Mother Church of his denomination in Dayton), and taking into fellowship 200 new members. Here $1,800 was raised for repairs, and sundry debts to former preachers and presiding elders were paid, among them some of ten years' standing. His next charge was at Chicago Junction, where some debts were settled, and a parsonage built and paid for and 175 new members enrolled. In September, 1891, he returned to Bowling Green, where he has well sustained his reputation as an earnest worker. About 350 members have been added, and the church has been repaired at a cost of $4,000, all of which, except the amount raised by Bishop Cassel at the rededication, was solicited and collected by the pastor. On September 23, 1895, at the Sandusky Annual Conference, he was elected presiding elder of the Fostoria District, and is now serving his second term as P. E. of the same District.

In all his arduous efforts our subject has been ably seconded by his wife, who was formerly Miss Sarah E. Bishop, a native of Hancock county, born January 27, 1856. They were married May 30, 1872, and have two children: Eva B., born January 13, 1874, who is a student in Otterbein (Ind.) University, and John D., born October 11, 1878, who is at home, and is now attending the high school. Our subject is independent in politics. Fraternally he is a member of the I. O. O. F. Lodge at Bowling Green.

EDWARD BEVERSTOCK, the junior member of the well-known law firm of James & Beverstock, Bowling Green, was born in Tontogany May 8, 1862. As one of the brightest of Wood county's sons, the people of this locality look upon his success in his chosen profession with pride, and regard his future as assured. Reared upon a farm, his educational advantages were limited to an attendance at the neighboring district school until January, 1883, when he entered Oberlin College, where he completed the classical course and graduated in 1889, with the degree of A. B. Having determined to enter the legal profession, he took the course offered by the Cincinnati Law School, defraying his expenses while there by acting as librarian of the School and secretary of the Faculty. The degree of LL. B. was conferred upon him May 27, 1891, and he was admitted to the bar a few days later.

In August of the same year Mr. Beverstock entered the office of Hon. Benjamin F. James, and in November they formed a partnership which still continues, with an office also at Toledo, Ohio. This firm has become better known, and acquired a larger practice, than any other has done in an equally short time in this county. Mr. Beverstock is a close student and is remarkable for his well-balanced abilities. With a clear insight into legal principles, and the power of ready application, he possesses also a high order of practical talent. In politics as well as in legal affairs his advice is valued, and he was chairman of the Wood County Republican Central Committee for the year 1894.

Mr. Beverstock was married July 7, 1891, to Miss Elizabeth Ferguson, who was born in Oakland county, Mich., February 1, 1866. They have two daughters, Mary V. and Helena I. Mr. Beverstock and his wife are prominent members of the Presbyterian Church.

A. M. RUSSELL, the deputy auditor of Wood county, and a prominent resident of Bowling Green, is an official whose worth has been proven in various positions of public trust. He comes of sturdy Scotch-Irish ancestry, and possesses many of the admirable traits of character which distinguished that race.

His father, James W. Russell, was born in Washington county, Penn., in 1784, and came to the Western Reserve in early life, locating upon a farm in what is now Mahoning (then a part of Trumbull) county, where he married Miss Jane A. Wolfcale, a native of Virginia, born near Harper's Ferry, in 1792. She died in 1847; her husband lived at his old farm to an advanced age, and died in 1870 at the home of a son in Paulding county. They reared a family of ten children, as follows: Nancy, born in 1812, married John Cushman, and lives in Michigan; John, born in 1814, died in Wood county in 1884; Robert, born in 1816, died in Bowling Green in 1860; Caroline, born in 1818, married Davis Randolph, and lives in Mahoning county; James M., born in 1821, died in Paulding county, in September, 1879; Jonathan W., born in 1824, died in Trumbull county in 1855; Betsey, born in 1826, married John Williams, of Trumbull county; Abraham W., born in 1829, lives at Ithaca, Mich.; Martha Jane, born in 1832, is the widow of John Moore of Mahoning county; and our subject, the youngest.

A. M. Russell was born March 7, 1835, and remained at home until the age of fifteen. He attended Antioch and Oberlin Colleges for some time, and later engaged in teaching and clerking in a dry-goods store. On the breaking out of the Civil war he enlisted at the first call to arms, and went to the front as first lieutenant of Company G, 14th O. V. I. At the end of his three-months' term of service he returned home, and being injured on the way, at Columbus, did not re-enlist until 1863, when he went as a private in Company C, 68th O. V. I., and served until the end of the war, receiving by well-earned promotion the rank of sergeant-major. His regiment was attached to the army of the West, and took part in the battles at Atlanta and Bentonville, besides many other lighter engagements. After being mustered out, July 10, 1866, he came to Bowling Green as deputy treasurer, and later clerked in a hardware store at Perrysburg until his appointment as county treasurer in September, 1868, to serve out an unexpired term. So well did he perform the duties of the office that he was elected on the Republican ticket for the succeeding term, serving until 1871. For the next four years he was in the drug business at Perrysburg, but sold out in 1875, and a year later began clerking in different offices in the county court house. In 1879 he was again elected county treasurer, and since his term expired, in 1881, he has served as deputy auditor under three administrations.

Mr. Russell has been twice married, first time in 1861, to Miss Rachel A. Carey of Paulding county, who died in less than a year afterward. His second wife was Miss Alta Sullivan, who was born in Defiance county, July 7, 1843. They have two children living: (1) Charles H., born June 21, 1867, is a druggist's clerk at Bowling Green (he is married to Miss Charlotte Morrison), (2) Maude, born September 23, 1875, a young lady of fine social gifts, lives at home. Mr. Russell is a member of the G. A. R., and of the Masonic fraternity.

HON. ELIJAH P. EMERSON, of Bloomdale, is one of the representative citizens of Wood county, a business man and farmer, having won a distinguished success in every line of effort which he has entered. He is a self-made man, who as a boy walked into Ohio, accompanying the slowly-moving wagons which conveyed his parents and their household goods to their new home on the frontier.

Mr. Emerson was born January 23, 1834, in Berkeley county, Va. (now W. Va.), which had been for many years the home of his father's family. His grandfather Emerson was a slaveholder, but his father, Noble Emerson, being opposed to this, in early manhood determined to seek a home in a free State. He had been employed in boyhood as a boatman on the Potomac, and as a steersman on the Chesapeake & Ohio canal, but later he learned the cooper's trade, which he followed throughout life. He married Miss Mary Keesecker, and had ten children, of whom three were born in Ohio. In 1833 the family removed to Beaver county, Penn., and in May, 1848, they came to Mexico, Wyandot Co., Ohio, traveling in a small two-horse wagon, our subject with others walking most of the way, a tedious journey for even a healthy lad of fourteen. One day his feet became sore, and mounting one of the horses he rode for a few miles; becoming weary, he fell asleep, tumbled off the horse without waking up, and narrowly escaped being run over. The father had but limited means, and on reaching Mexico found employment at his trade, later buying the shop, the trade in potash and in pork barrels furnishing him a good business. In 1859 he moved to Sycamore, where our subject's mother died December 7, 1862. The father survived her thirty years, dying September 10, 1892, at the age of eighty-three, and their remains now rest in the cemetery at Sycamore. Two years after his wife's death he moved to Pike county, Mo., and bought a farm, which he sold later. He worked at his trade for some time, and in 1871 came to Eagleville to live in the home of our subject. He was a man of industrious habits, was over six feet two inches tall, and was spare in flesh. While he was no politician he took an intelligent interest in all the questions of his time and was a regular voter, being a Whig in his early years and later a Republican.

Our subject is one of six surviving children of the following family: Samuel B. died in Ohio, a wealthy man, after many years spent in the practice of medicine at Eagleville; Elijah P. comes next; John M. enlisted in Company G, 123d O. V. I., and it is believed is one of the many who perished in Andersonville prison; Rachel A. died in Virginia; William W. lives in Bloomdale; Enoch died in Virginia; Mary J. is the wife of Rufus W. Lundy, a hardware merchant of Myrtle Point, Ore.; Milton L. is a prosperous resident of Sycamore, Ohio, a blacksmith by occupation; Frank N. lives in San Francisco; Rufus A. is a merchant at Bloomdale.

Elijah P. Emerson attended the subscription schools of his time until he was fourteen years old, and after coming to Ohio availed himself of the privileges afforded by the district schools. Later he studied for three terms at Heidelberg College, Tiffin, and one term in the Seneca County Academy. At the age of twenty he began teaching, and was very successful; he taught thirteen terms in Wyandot and Seneca counties, and spent his vacations making shingles, owning a complete outfit, shaving-horse, drawknife, froe and brake. He received twenty-five cents per hundred when the timber was prepared, and $3.75 per thousand when the wood was taken from the stump, white and red oak being used principally. In March, 1865, he went to Pike county, Mo., and taught there for a short time. On April 17, 1866, he was married at Crawfordsville, Ohio, to Miss Catherine Smalley, and they began housekeeping at Eagleville, where Mr. Emerson previously fitted up a home. His brother, Dr. Emerson, who was then practicing there, had pointed out an opening for a mercantile business, and, as our subject had several hundred dollars saved, he made the venture. The cost of goods was high after the war, and his stock was small, but trade increased year by year, bringing him prosperity.

In 1874, when Bloomdale was only a cross-road, he built a store there, which was conducted by his brother R. A., and in April, 1877, he sold it to him and another brother. In the spring of

E. P. Emerson

Kate Emerson

1878 he sold his Eagleville store. In 1882 he opened a dry-goods store in Bloomdale, but sold it after a few months; in 1889 he bought a hardware store in Bloomdale for a son, but subsequently sold it. He has been engaged in farming since 1876. He was then the owner of eighty acres in Bloom township, but had not given much attention to it, and one day, at a sale of the "French farm" of 232 acres, he made a bid merely to enliven the proceedings, and the farm was "knocked down" to him. The business was new to Mr. Emerson, but that could be said of all his other enterprises, and, despite the predictions that his uniform good fortune would desert him if he tried farming, he ventured, and succeeded. He now owns 352 acres in Bloom township, and fifty-eight and one-half acres in Hancock county, which he works in a thoroughly systematic and progressive manner.

Politically Mr. Emerson has been identified with the Republican party nearly all his life. He cast his first Presidential vote for John C. Fremont, and continued to vote regularly with that party until 1890, when, feeling fully convinced that nothing would be done by the Republican party to seriously interfere with the whiskey traffic, he began to enter his protest to the manufacture and sale of intoxicants by voting with the only party that makes public declaration of its intention, if clothed with power, to close the saloon by stopping the manufacture and removing the national sanction of partnership in the business, viz.: the Prohibition party. He has never aspired to office, but has been chosen to different positions. At one time he was clerk of Bloom township, declining a second term; from January 1, 1867, to 1875, he was postmaster at Bloom (now Ted), and when the office was transferred to Bloomdale he became the first postmaster there, serving until 1877. In 1883 he was elected to the Legislature as Wood county's representative, and filled the place four years.

He served four months in the Civil war, enlisting April 22, 1861, in Company G, 15th O. V. I., with Capt. Tyler, in the 100-days' service, being sent to West Virginia. On his return home he prepared to go again, helped to raise a company for the 123rd Regiment, and was one of the three men whose activity in recruiting was to be rewarded by positions of honor in the company. Mr. Emerson was elected by the men to the office of second lieutenant, but through some manipulation of the County Central Committee he was not appointed.

A prominent feature of Mr. Emerson's charming home is his library, filled with well-selected books which he finds pleasure in perusing. He and his wife are leading members of the Church of Christ, in which he has been an elder, and for many years he was superintendent of the Sunday-school. He contributes also to the support of other Churches in the locality. Their nine children were as follows: John J. died in infancy; Scott S. is a farmer in Bloom township; Olive L. married Benton Leathers, of Bloom township; Horace W. is at home; Dow P. died in infancy; Howard H. is at home; Elijah P., Jr., died in childhood; Lola E. and Florence E. are at home. Socially, Mr. Emerson was for some years a member of the I. O. O. F., but on moving to a distance from a lodge he "dropped out," and for the same reason he has withdrawn from active membership in Urie Post No. 110, G. A. R., of Bloomdale.

Mrs. Kate (Smalley) Emerson was born August 20, 1844, near Rowsburg, Ashland Co., Ohio. She was the sixth child born to Isaac and Elizabeth (Smith) Smalley, whose family was subsequently augmented to the number of seventeen—eleven sons and six daughters—of which number but seven grew to manhood and womanhood. At the age of nine years Mrs. Emerson was brought by her parents to Wyandot county, Ohio, and settled on a farm adjoining the village of Crawfordsville, near the site of the memorable spot where Col. Crawford was burned by the Indians. Her father was classed among the progressive farmers of his day. He was strongly imbued with the belief that a well-raised child—one to whom the parents had faithfully discharged their duty—should be sent out to combat the realities of life, fully panoplied in head, heart and hands for whatever position fate held in store or whatever condition circumstances might develop. Hence Mrs. Emerson was early sent to the district school, and during the intervals between terms was schooled by the mother in the duties pertaining to housekeeping. Not infrequently she was also found in the field with her father, dropping corn—at which she was an adept—digging potatoes, and aiding in gathering corn and storing fruit, etc. Early in her 'teens she commenced teaching in the district schools, at which time she assumed all charges for clothing, and also managed by economy to pay her expenses at a select school in Carey for three terms. Mrs. Emerson was during the war of the Rebellion an active sympathizer in the cause of the Union, and spent much time in soliciting and forwarding supplies for the sanitary and commissary departments of the army. She is naturally inclined to faith in the teachings of Christianity, and early in life united with the Methodist Church, of Carey, Ohio. When she removed to Wood county with her husband, not finding near her home a Church of her first connection, she united with the membership of the Church of Christ, at Eagleville, and has remained a consistent Christian and constant attendant at the various services, and a helper in the many labors of the Church up to the present. She served as superintendent of the Sunday-school several years, and in the Church diligently labored to unite the congregation with the missionary wing of the Church.

During the period of her teaching she met Mr. Emerson—her subsequent husband—at a teachers' examination. An attachment—mutual—was formed, that afterward culminated in their union for life, which was sealed April 17, 1866. Together their life barque has floated down the stream of time for over thirty years. Of the nine children born to Mrs. Emerson, six remain to bless her life—three having passed to the silent beyond. Like nearly all mothers she is devotedly attached to her children, and no sacrifice of time or labor is withheld when duty calls. Her father and mother are dead. Her brothers and sisters have all been married, and are living in their own homes. The elder brother, Allen, is known as Judge Smalley, and M. A. has recently been appointed and confirmed as U. S. marshal of northern Ohio. The distinguishing characteristics of Mrs. Emerson's life are patient industry, devotion to home, family, kindred and friends, and a conscientious regard for the rights and feelings of others.

FRANK A. BALDWIN, a leading attorney of Bowling Green, whose abilities and attainments won for him at an early age a high standing among the legal fraternity, was born near Geneva, N. Y., July 30, 1854.

His parents, Sanford and Juliette (Smith) Baldwin, were also born in New York State, the father December 7, 1825, at Saratoga Springs, and the mother October 12, 1827, at Seneca Falls. Soon after their marriage they came west, in 1846 settling at Perrysburg, Wood county, where Mr. Baldwin soon became a prominent and influential worker in municipal affairs, holding various official positions during his residence there. In 1860 he moved to Weston and opened a hotel, which he conducted some twelve years. He then transferred the active management to other hands, and he and his wife settled down in Weston to spend their declining years free from business cares; there he died August 1, 1895. They had twelve children, five of whom grew to maturity: Mary, the wife of W. R. Worth, who manages the hotel at Weston; Hattie, the wife of Judge Young, of Bowling Green; Frank A., our subject; Nellie, the widow of Dr. G. W. Pennington, of Weston; and Lulu, a bookkeeper for J. W. Long & Co., of Weston, who lives at home with her parents.

Our subject attended the public schools at his home during his boyhood, and later studied in the high school at Toledo, and the Eastman Business College, at Poughkeepsie, N. Y. Under the direction of J. R. Tyler, of Perrysburg, and McCauley & Pennington, of Tiffin, he prepared for the bar, and was admitted April 12, 1877. In June of the same year he began the practice of his profession at Weston, and a few months later he received an extraordinary evidence of the esteem of his fellow citizens in an election to the responsible office of prosecuting attorney of Wood county; as he was the Democratic candidate this is the more remarkable, Wood county having been a Republican stronghold ever since the Civil war. Retiring from this office at the end of two years, he engaged in practice at Bowling Green. An able advocate, his professional efforts have been attended with uniform success, and at the present there are but few cases of importance in which he is not retained on one side or the other, this being especially true of those which involve questions of criminal law. Mr. Baldwin is at present a member of the building committee for the Wood county court house. In 1879 he was married to Miss Clara Foote, who was born April 22, 1855, in Washington township, where her father, Joel Foote, was a prominent resident for many years. He died February 22, 1896.

D. H. HILL, the deputy recorder of Wood county, and one of the most able and hard-working officials in the service of the county, was born in Milton Center, June 30, 1841.

His father, William Hill, was born in eastern Ohio, and in 1836 came to Wood county, locating in Milton Center upon wild land which he cleared and cultivated. He was prominent among the pioneers of his neighborhood, and was a Whig in politics. He raised a family of twelve children—two girls and ten boys—the subject of this sketch being the youngest. Only three of the twelve are now living, viz.: Mrs. Eliza Stewart, wife of Robert Stewart, of Bowling Green, Ohio; Joseph B. Hill, of Piqua, Ohio; and the subject of this sketch.

Our subject attended the district school in boyhood, and afterward learned the carpenter's trade. In May, 1862, he enlisted for three months in Company K, 84th O. V. I., and went to the front. He returned home October 1, of that year, and three weeks later joined Company G, 10th O. V. Cav. for three years; was appointed sergeant January 18, 1863, and first sergeant in September, 1864. His regiment was assigned to the army of the West, and did gallant service under Kilpatrick. In May, 1865, our subject was promoted to the rank of second lieutenant of Company C, but was wounded during a skirmish at Ringgold, Ga., was sent to the hospital, and was mustered out with his company, July 24, 1865. After his return he followed farming at Milton Center, and for some years was postmaster there. Since September 2, 1895, he has held the office of deputy recorder, giving faithful and efficient service. In 1889 he was married to Miss Susan Masks, a native of Wood-county, and they have one child—E. A. Hill, of Custar, Ohio. Politically our subject is a Republican; socially he is a member of the G. A. R.

G. W. HELFRICH, the efficient manager and secretary of the Wood County Tribune Company, was born in Tiffin, Ohio, February 14, 1854. His grandparents, John and Barbara Helfrich, came from Germany to America in 1832, and died in Pennsylvania at an advanced age.

His father, Adam Helfrich, was a native of Darmstadt, Germany, born May 4, 1828, and when four years old came with his parents to Franklin county, Penn. In early manhood, in company with some other young men, he walked to Tiffin, Ohio, where he secured work in a grist-mill at ten dollars a month. He was married there to Miss Margaret Ruch, and not long after he bought eighty acres of school land near McComb, Ohio, to which he removed. Not being a skilled chopper of trees, and lacking money to hire help, he was obliged to resort to primitive methods of preparing logs for his new dwelling, burning them into proper lengths, after "pacing them off" for want of a better way of measuring them. However, he built the house. After a year he sold that property and bought twenty acres in the same county, six miles east, lived there ten years, then bought 116 acres within one-half mile of the first eighty acres, where he made his permanent home. During the Civil war he enlisted in Company G, 21st O. V. I., assigned to Gen. Rosecrans' army, 14th Army Corps, commanded by Gen. Thomas, 2d Division, commanded by Gen. James S. Neegly, 2d Brigade, Col. John F. Miller. At the battle of Murfreesboro he was captured and taken to Libby prison; but was released on parole eleven days after, having had nothing to eat in the meantime but some "hard tack." Taken to Annapolis he there contracted the smallpox, and lay for seven weeks in the hospital. Returning home, with his health ruined, he never received a pension because, having never been ill for a day before entering the army, he had no "family physician" who could certify to his physical condition previous to that time, as required by the pension office. Politically, he was a Jacksonian Democrat, and in religious faith was a member of the U. B. Church. His death occurred September 29, 1892. His wife who was born in Canton, Stark county, Ohio, September 2, 1831, died December 11, 1895, at her home at Deweyville, Ohio. Our subject is the eldest of their nine children; the others being B. F., a butcher and stock buyer at North Baltimore, Ohio; Mary L., the widow of E. L. Ward, Findlay, Ohio; Jacob R., who is engaged in the real-estate business at Eldon, Mo.; Amanda Cordelia, who died when sixteen months old; Permillia J., the wife of E. O. Dexter, of Chicago, Ill.; Calista A., who married John Arnold, of Findlay, Ohio; Charlotte Elizabeth, the wife of M. Brooks, of Shawtown, Ohio; and Caroline May, the wife of Byron Powell, of Benton, Ohio.

G. W. Helfrich was educated in the district schools near McComb, also in the high school at Findlay, and at the age of eighteen began to teach. After two terms he secured employment in a drug-store, and shortly afterward bought a half-interest in a harness shop, investing his entire capital, thirty-five dollars. This concern was closed by the sheriff two weeks later for old debts contracted prior to his entering the business. With most men this would have ended the matter, but a certain indomitable perseverance which is characteristic of our subject revealed itself, and he determined to go on, with no money, no tools, no stock, no custom, and no knowledge of the business. He borrowed a few tools, and as he was opening the shop a tanner called to collect an old bill for leather. After discussing the situation Mr. Helfrich obtained credit for forty-eight pounds of leather, which he brought on his back from the tannery, ten miles distant. He had never watched any one make a set of harness, but he was not to be daunted by a trifle like that, and he proceeded to manufacture one according to his own ideas. As trade came in he gradually learned the business, being assisted usually by the well-meant advice of his customers. This proved vexatious at times, and wishing to perfect himself in the trade, he went to Ottawa, Ohio, where he worked under special instruction for seventeen months, and then returned to his old shop, from which time it was distinctly understood that the proprietor would accept no suggestions as to his methods of work. He established a fine trade, and in 1882 sold a half-interest to his brother, who took charge of the shop, while our subject opened a store for the sale of agricultural implements. Nine months later a fire destroyed everything he owned except a small dwelling house, he having no insurance, and was $2,000 in debt. He then went "on the road" as a salesman for different firms, and in a short time paid every cent he owed, besides $800 security for others. With the exception of a short interval in the grocery business, and, later, in a real-estate and life insurance enterprise at Bowling Green, he continued to travel until January 1, 1894—in all ten years—when he assumed the duties of his present position, of which he is making a great success. Previous to that time the liabilities of the Tribune were $4,000 more than the assets; in less than two and a half years the Tribune was out of debt under his management, and a steady increase in circulation and advertising patronage promises rich rewards in the future.

Mr. Helfrich was married, in 1875, to Miss Mary M. Hardy, who was born in McComb, March 27, 1856. They have had three children: Myrtle Pearl, born February 15, 1876; Edward Earl, born June 27, 1878; and Hazel Lurain, born February 21, 1891. Our subject and his wife and children are members of the Presbyterian Church, and actively interested in its work. In politics he is a Republican, and he is a member of the K. of P., the I. O. O. F. and T. T. M. A. of Toledo, in all of which he is an enthusiastic worker. In and out of the Lodge rooms, no society or business is lowered any by having Mr. Helfrich as one of their number, but are bettered, morally, socially and financially.

LEWIS W. McCRORY. There is in the character of this gentleman some of the qualities of the Scotch-Irish ancestry from which he is descended—the thoroughness and unflinching purpose of the former, and the adaptability to circumstances of the latter. His fellow-townsmen recognize him as a gentleman of sterling worth; for his life has ever been an honorable one. He was born in the town of Wooster, Wayne Co., Ohio, November 5, 1835, and is a son of Samuel and Hannah (Pennypacker) McCrory. His father was born in Mifflin county, Penn., May 7, 1795, and was reared as a farmer boy. Subsequently he removed to Wayne county, Ohio, locating on a farm near Wooster, where he resided for twelve years. On October 6, 1836, he came to Wood county, and purchased eighty acres of wild land in Henry township, on which he erected a small log house. His death occurred in 1866, that of his wife on July 3, 1845. Their children were: John, who was born November 20, 1819, served as a soldier in Company H, 21st O. V. I., and died February 6, 1873; Mary, who was born March 19, 1820, became the wife of Reason Whitacre, and died in Bloom township; James, born March 13, 1823, died in Liberty township; Elizabeth, born May 15, 1825, became the wife of Isaac Whitacre, and died in Bloom township; Jacob, born March 14, 1827, died at the age of four years; Hannah, born March 7, 1829, married John Otterbach, and died in Liberty; Samuel, born April 12, 1831, died on the old homestead in Henry township; Daniel, born February 17, 1833; Lewis W., our subject, comes next; and Liddy Ann, born December 26, 1837, became the wife of Jefferson Shinebarger, and died in Liberty township. The mother of this family having passed away, the father married Eliza Shaffer, and they had four children: Eliza Jane, born January 13, 1847, died in Henry township; Philander, born November 20, 1848, a merchant of East Toledo, Ohio; Lucinda, born July 19, 1853, died in girlhood; Nancy, born in 1850, now the wife of Frederick Sheron, of Portage township. The mother of these died December 28, 1859.

Lewis W. McCrory was only a year old when his parents removed to Wood county. He was educated in the district schools near his home, and in the usual manner of farmer lads was reared to manhood. He was married in Portage township, February 10, 1856, to Caroline Lucy Gorton, a native of Bloom township, whose parents came from Rhode Island to Wood county at an early day. They began their domestic life on a farm of twenty acres of wild land in Liberty township, and Mr. McCrory continued its cultivation until June 9, 1862, when he enlisted at Portage in Company A, 100th O. V. I. Soon after the regiment went to the front, and was assigned to the army of the Cumberland. He participated in the important battles of the campaign of that year, and September 8, 1863, at the battle of Limestone Station, was captured by the enemy and conveyed to Lynchburg, whence he was afterward first taken to Libby prison, then to Belle Isle, lastly to Castle Thunder; he was at the last two on two different occasions, and March 13, 1864, was conveyed to Andersonville, where he remained until March 27, 1865; until April 24, he was at Vicksburg, and on April 27, he was put on board the "Sultana." When the vessel was within seven miles of Memphis the boilers exploded, and 1,700 men lost their lives. Mr. McCrory clung to the wreck for hours, but it finally took fire and he was obliged to let go his hold. He was also in the water nine hours before he reached the shore, and narrowly escaped drowning. At length he was taken to Memphis in a boat, from there to Cairo, Ill., on the steamer "Silver Spring," and was discharged at Columbus, Ohio, May 21, 1865.

Mrs. L. W. McGrovy

L. W. McCrory

In the meantime the news of the terrible disaster had spread northward, and Mrs. McCrory was told that her husband was dead. When he appeared before her alive and well, the shock was too great for her, and caused her death seven days later. Their children were, Melissa, born December 10, 1856, now the wife of George Gorton, of Providence, R. I.; Silas Augustus, who was born October 13, 1858, and resides in Portage; Frances Imogene, born September 6, 1860, wife of William George, of Liberty township; and Lewis La Fayette, born August 5, 1862, now in North Baltimore, Ohio. Mr. McCrory was again married, this time on March 11, 1866, to Julia A. Taylor, who was born November 7, 1840, in Ashland county, Ohio, a daughter of David and Eliza (Myers) Taylor. They have always lived on their present farm, Mr. McCrory having in the fall of 1865 sold his first purchase and bought eighty acres in Section 25, Liberty township. They have four children: Florence May, born January 20, 1867, wife of E. C. Marvin, of Liberty township; Mary Gertrude, born September 30, 1868, died November 10, 1883; Tryphena, born December 25, 1870, died January 27, 1874; Delia May, born February 4, 1874, now the wife of Albert Roberts, of Liberty township.

In his business interests, Mr. McCrory has prospered, and is known as a man of unquestioned integrity and honorable dealing, his success being well merited. He has greatly improved his place, and has recently erected upon it a handsome residence, wherein hospitality reigns supreme. In politics he is a staunch Prohibitionist, and in religious faith he is an active member of the Disciples Church, in which he is serving as deacon. Since the fall of 1874 he has also been a member of Whitney Lodge No. 589, I. O. O. F., of Portage.

JAMES HUGHES, one of the oldest and most highly respected residents of Bowling Green, known to young and old as "Uncle Jimmey," was born in the County of Sussex England, July 26, 1819. His father, James Hughes, was also a native of Sussex, born in 1799, and previous to his emigration to America, in 1857, he was a farm laborer. His wife, whose maiden name was Sarah Bachelor, was born in the same county, in 1801, and both spent their last years on a farm near Tontogany, Wood county, where Mr. Hughes, Sr., died in 1876, Mrs. Hughes surviving him until 1890. While living in England they were members of the Established Church, and, in this country, of the Episcopal Church. The subject of this sketch is the eldest of their four children, the others being Charlotte, who died in youth; Harriet, the widow of James Ellis, of Wood county; and Ann, who married James Challen, of Tontogany.

Our subject was married in England, December 31, 1844, to Miss Ann Evans, who was born November 8, 1829, the groom being twenty-five years of age, the bride a little over fifteen. The father of Mrs. Hughes, James Evans, was a farm laborer at Malsey, Sussex county, and several generations of her family had been tenants of the same house in which she was born. He was a man of regular habits, and a devoted adherent of the Church of England, often walking ten miles to hear a favorite preacher. He married Jane Greenfield, also a native of Malsey. He had no brothers or sisters, and his wife was the only one of four children to live to maturity. Fifteen children were born of this union: Maria, who married William Challen, and came to Wood county, Ohio, in 1857, had also fifteen children; James came to America, and died after his return to England; William and the twins, Hannah and Samuel, all died in England; Elizabeth (deceased), married A. Mead, and lived near the old home; Jane, now Mrs. Phillips, lives in England; Ann became Mrs. Hughes; Sarah is the widow of Luke Marsh, and the mother of twelve children; Ellen (Mrs. White), lives in England; Alfred is a resident of Sussex, England; two whose names are not known; Susan, and Mary Cornwell. The youngest child was born when her mother was fifty-two years old. She married, and has a son who came to this country and now lives in Bowling Green. Mrs. Hughes' father died at the age of eighty, her mother when seventy-two.

After their marriage our subject and his wife lived near the old home for ten years. In 1854, they came to America on the sailing vessel "Southampton," which was five weeks and three days on the voyage. For over two years they lived in Erie county, and then settled upon a farm in Plain township, Wood county, which he still owns. Of their eighteen children twelve grew to maturity, and eleven are still living: James lives in Bowling Green; he married B. McMillen, and has three children—Mina, Rollo and Bertha. Harriet is the wife of Todd Brown, of Plain township, and has five children—Carrie, Jesse, Howard, Blanche and Ethel. Rose married Albert Avery, of Wood county, and has three sons—Harley, Homer and Allen. Hugh, who lives in Bowling Green, married Kate McCaulley, and has one son—Harry. Henry is a merchant in Bowling Green. John married Racy Bowerman, and is a resident of Bowling Green. Orlando married L. English, and also lives in that city; they have four children—Viola, Arthur, Gertrude and Flossie. Frank married Bertha Mearing, and lives in Plain township; has one daughter—Helen. Adonna married Albert Huffman, and has two children—Harrison and Aleta. Emma married Henry Ostrander, of Chicago, Ill., and has one son—Harry. Burton married Chloe Rader, and lives in Bowling Green; they have two children—Florence and Floyd. Sarah Ann married Henry Newton, of Perrysburg, and died leaving three children—Adonna, Willard and Coy—of whom, Adonna married George Haskill, of Columbus, Ohio, and has one child—Gladys; Willard married Gertie Hartman, and lives in Toledo; Coy is married and lives in Toledo. Mrs. Hughes passed away January 26, 1896.

Mr. and Mrs. Hughes visited England in 1866, and again in 1882. The last time the trip out was made in eight and one-half days, a striking contrast to their first voyage; but coming back the ship struck a sand-bar near Sandy Hook, and they were detained for three days just outside of New York harbor. Mr. Hughes has not united with any Church since coming to this country. In politics he is a Republican.

EDWARD ROE (deceased), who at the time of his death was a wealthy retired farmer of Bowling Green, was one of the fortunate men whose fertile acres have of late years given up their long-concealed treasures, and enriched their owners by copious supplies of oil. He was born May 12, 1838, in Monroe county, Mich., where his father, Dominick Roe, was also born, in the year 1784.

The family is of French-Canadian descent, and are counted among the early settlers of Michigan. Dominick Roe was a typical pioneer, robust and powerful, and possessed of perfect health, never knowing a day's illness until death came to him in 1861. His first wife was a lady of French-Canadian stock, Miss Lucy Bumean. For some years they lived in Michigan, but in 1847 they came with their family to Liberty township, and settled in the swampy woods among the muskrats, deer and bears. Here, in time, a large farm was cleared and a comfortable home made. Eleven children were born of the first marriage, of whom the following lived to maturity: Dominick and John (now deceased); Lucy, living near Detroit; Olive (now deceased); Stephen, living in Lucas county, Ohio; Victoria, the wife of Peter Malask; Jane (now deceased); Justus, now living in Michigan; and Edward, our subject. Three others died in childhood. Our subject's father was married, second, to Miss Viana Leveret, by whom he had three children: Margaret (now Mrs. L. Garno); Mary, the wife of David De Sadler; and Eliza (the wife of Frank Ducat).

Edward Roe was about nine years old when he came to Wood county. He grew to manhood upon the old farm which he helped to clear, and November 14, 1860, he married Miss Margaret Ducat, a lady of French descent, born in Michigan December 30, 1841. Her father, Anthony Ducat, was born April 20, 1815, in the same State. He died May 8, 1892, in Wood county, where he had located fifty years before. His wife, Margaret Renardo, died in early womanhood. After their marriage Mr. and Mrs. Roe lived upon a farm in Liberty township, removing some years later to another in Portage township. Ten children were born to them: Caleb, August 26, 1861, married Myrtle Gaghan; Robert, August 20, 1863, married Miss Addie Elder and had two daughters—Emily and Cora; Eliza, January 29, 1865, died at the age of fourteen months; Sherman, January 22, 1867, a farmer in Portage township, married Miss Bertie Creps, a native of Wood county, born October 15, 1871, and has two children—Burtzell and Floyd; Hiram, September 5, 1870, married Miss Myrtie Miller, and has two children—Loren and Harry, the younger of whom died in infancy; Alfred and Albert (twins), died at the same time and were buried in the same coffin; Louis, December 18, 1875; Lucetta, September 28, 1878; and Guy, April 7, 1880, are all at home.

After many years spent in farming his 280 acres, Mr. Roe began testing for oil with encouraging results, and he owned ten wells at the time of death. A few years ago he and his wife came to Bowling Green to secure for their younger children advantages of education and society denied the dwellers in rural districts. During the Civil war Mr. Roe served for eleven months in Company A, 182d O. V. I., and took part in the engagement at Nashville. In politics he was a Republican. He passed from earth August 22, 1896.

ALBERT FRONEY, senior member of the leading dry-goods firm of A. Fronee & Co., Bowling Green, has been a resident of that city since the commencement of its progressive period. He is a distinctively self-made man, one who took the tide of fortune at its flood, and carried himself to one of the highest places attainable in the commercial circle of Wood county.

Born in the kingdom of Hanover, Germany, September 23, 1842, he was, in 1847, brought by his parents, Augustus and Caroline (Gyer) Fronee, to America, landing at New York on the first day of July that year. For a time the family lived at Buffalo, N. Y., then removed to Elmore, Ohio, at that time a mere village in the wilderness, where the parents both died in 1873, within a few days of each other, the father at the age of seventy, the mother when sixty-four. They had a family of five children as follows: Henry, now a resident of Bay City, Mich.; Rachel, wife of George Gossman, of Elmore; George, a farmer at Kewaunee, Wis.; Albert, subject of sketch; and Sophia, wife of Daniel Eckert, of Elmore.

Albert Fronee received his education at the public schools of Elmore, and at the age of sixteen, in 1859, commenced his business career as clerk in a dry-goods store at Pemberville, Wood county, his salary at first being sixty dollars per annum. In this connection, with the exception of a four-months' experience in the army during the war of the Rebellion, he remained until December 1, 1865. So valuable were his services in the store that before the end of the first year his salary was raised, and five years later he became a partner in the concern. On May 2, 1864, he enlisted in Company C, 144th O. V. I., was appointed first sergeant the same day, and served until the muster-out of the command August 31 following, after a short but useful campaign in Maryland and the Virginias.

In December, 1865, Mr. Fronee embarked in business, and soon won not only popularity but also success in the village where he first entered on his life's mission. He was one of the petitioners for the incorporation of Pemberville of 1876, treasurer of the town in 1877, and a watchful guardian of the public interests of the ambitious village of Pemberville. Elected treasurer of Wood county, he came to Bowling Green in 1886, took possession of the office and served one term, refusing point-blank to accept a second election on the grounds that the salary attached to the office did not warrant the financial risk carried by the incumbent. This political diversion was based on business principles, without any sentiment attached, and the experience of one term was quite sufficient to show him that mercantile life suited him better than official life. In 1889, selling out his business in Pemberville, he set out on a four-months' trip to Europe, visiting his birthplace and other points of interest. Returning to Wood county, he established in Bowling Green his present business, along with Mr. Boughton, under the firm name of Fronee & Boughton, and with the exception of a four-months' trip through the Western States, his family accompanying him, the business thus established has claimed almost all his working hours, down to the present time. In 1892 he built a business block on South Main street, and in 1895 he erected his present three-story store building, 42 x 125, the first and second floors of which are occupied as the store proper, the third floor being utilized as a store-room. The store is equipped with all the latest improvements and accessories to be found in a first-class establishment of its kind, and filled with a large and well-selected stock of dry goods, carpets, etc., to the value of over $50,000, employment being given to some dozen clerks. Mr. Fronee's sole partners now are his son, B. J., and son-in-law, Mr. Moore, each of whom, like the senior member himself, holds an important place in the commercial and municipal economy of Bowling Green.

Politically Mr. Fronee has been an ardent Republican since the formation of the party, and has well served his adopted county and city in various capacities, being a man of great public spirit, and taking a generous interest in every measure tending to benefit the community at large. In 1891 he was elected a member of the common council of Bowling Green, and in 1892 was a member of the City Hall building committee. A reference to the chapter on Plain township, to the political chapter of the general history of the county, and to the sections of the chapter on Bowling Green, dealing with municipal affairs, will disclose the fact that once in a while Mr. Fronee is drawn into public affairs, perhaps not infrequently against his inclination. With the leading institutions of Bowling Green he is closely identified, and he was one of the organizers of the First National Bank, of which he is a director. In addition to the business blocks, etc., already mentioned, he built a hotel and some private residences at Pemberville, also two stores, besides his residence in Bowling Green, two of the finest in the city.

On October 24, 1863, Mr. Fronev was married to Miss Sarah J. Pember, who was born at Pemberville, July 8, 1842, a daughter of James Pember, the founder of that village, and one of foremost pioneers of the county; he never ran for office, but he possessed great influence in political circles, and took an active interest in the movements which resulted in the formation of the Republican party. He lived to the age of seventy-five years. To Mr. and Mrs. Fronev were born four children, as follows: Augusta, who died of diphtheria at the age of thirteen; B. J., a partner with his father; Florence, at home; and Stella, wife of Fred Moore, also a member of the firm of A. Fronev & Co. The family attend the Presbyterian Church, and are held in the highest respect. Mr. Fronev is broad-minded and liberal in his ideas, is charitable to the poor and needy, and in his unusually successful business career has developed the industry, sound judgment and frugality so characteristic of the German-American.

WILLIAM W. HILL, M. D., one of the leading physicians and surgeons of Weston, is a native of Ohio, born in the township where he now resides, September 6, 1845, and is the eldest in a family of ten children born to John and Hester (Crom) Hill. The birth of the father occurred September 9, 1822, in Stark county, Ohio, where he lived until 1831, when with his father, William Hill, he came to Wood county, locating in Milton township, where his father purchased some government land, and with the help of his sons began the arduous task of clearing and cultivating the same. William Hill came to this country from England after the Revolutionary war.

John Hill remained upon the farm of his parents for several years, but after his marriage to Hester Crom he removed to Weston township, where he purchased a farm and immediately set about making the necessary improvements. In early life he was a member of the United Brethren Church; but after his removal to Milton township, Wood county, where there was no Church of that denomination, he united with the Christian Church. At the end of an exemplary Christian life he passed peacefully away August 10, 1887, at the age of sixty-four years.

The mother of our subject was also a native of this State, born in Harrison county, January 5, 1821, and with her parents moved to Wood county, in 1831, locating in Washington township, where she lived until her marriage. Her father was an early pioneer preacher, who traveled through this country when it was inhabited mostly by Indians and wild beasts of all kinds. Like her husband she was first a member of the United Brethren Church, and afterward joined the Christian Church. Her death occurred November 9, 1894, when she was seventy-three years of age.

At the early age of ten years our subject started out in life for himself. As his father was in limited circumstances, and the family large, it became necessary that the older children should do all in their power to assist in maintaining the others. Although young, William was strong and willing to work, and soon found employment on a neighboring farm, where he was hired by the month. When a little past fifteen years of age he enlisted in Company G, 10th O. V. C., with which he served for three years. On May 13, 1864, he was slightly wounded in the left hip by a piece of shell at the battle of Resaca, Ga., but as the wound was not serious he did not go to hospital; again, at the battle of Kenesaw Mountain he received a slight flesh wound in the right leg while supporting a battery. On August 20, 1864, he was again wounded, this time at the battle of Jonesboro, Ga., the ball striking him in the left leg about half way between the ankle and the knee, shattering both bones very badly. He was sent to Kingston field hospital, where he contracted gangrene in the wound, which proved very serious. Being granted a furlough in October, 1864, the Doctor returned home and remained at Perrysburg, Wood county, under the care of Drs. Peck and Hamilton for three months. When able to walk on crutches, he was ordered to report to David's Island, in New York harbor, where he remained until the close of the war, being honorably discharged, June 12, 1865. After his return home, he did not recover from the effects of his wound. For seventeen years he was a constant sufferer, being at times compelled to walk on crutches, and in 1886 his life was despaired of. As a last resort his leg was amputated, since which time he has enjoyed good health.

After his return from the war Dr. Hill attended the Weston schools for a time, there receiving a fair education, after which he was engaged in teaching. Later he became clerk in a store, but after a short time decided to adopt the medical profession as a life work, and in 1874 he began reading medicine. In 1880 he entered the Western Reserve University at Cleveland, Ohio, and in 1883 entered Toledo Medical College, from which he was graduated. July 11,

William W. Hill M.D.

1883, the Doctor began practice in Weston, where he was reared from childhood, and from the start met with success. His practice is now large and rapidly increasing in the town and throughout the country, and he is known as one of the leading physicians and surgeons of Wood county.

On August 25, 1869, Dr. Hill was married to Miss Elvira A. Hathaway, and by this union there are two sons: (1) Charles E., born March 10, 1872, is a prominent young business man of Toledo, Ohio, where he is working for the large firm of Armstrong & Co.; he was married November 20, 1895, to Helen Gibson Canary, and they now make their home in that city. (2) Fred M., the younger son, was born March 31, 1874, and is also a thorough business man, having charge of the telephone business of Bowling Green, Ohio, where he now makes his home. On April 11, 1894, he wedded Florence E. Holbrook. The family are members of the M. E. Church.

Dr. Hill is a member of the Wood County Medical Association, the Northwestern Medical Society and the Ohio State Medical Association. Having started out in the world with nothing, and at the same time being a cripple, the prominence to which he has attained is due to his own individual efforts and perseverance. In all matters pertaining to his profession he is interested, and in addition to his duties as a general practitioner he does a large amount of surgical work.

In politics the Doctor is an ardent Republican, believing in the principles of true government, free schools, free speech and above all the right of franchise to all, irrespective of race or color. He has never actively entered into political affairs, but has filled the offices of mayor, clerk and member of the board of health. He is an earnest supporter of the temperance cause, as he himself never smokes or chews tobacco, or drinks anything stronger than tea or coffee. He gives his aid to anything that will build up the town or advance the interests of the community. The Doctor has been a Mason twenty-eight years, being a member of the Grand Rapids Lodge No. 289 and Crystal Chapter No. 157, Bowling Green. He is also a member of Neibling Post No. 20, G. A. R., of Weston; of Kenilworth Lodge No. 340, K. of P., of Weston; and also of Anthony Wayne Tent No. 140, K. O. T. M., of Weston, in all of which he has been active, especially in the Masonic Order, having filled most of the Chairs in the Blue Lodge.

Mrs. Hill is the youngest in the family of eleven children born to Elihu and Anita (Mallory) Hathaway, both of whom were natives of Queensbury, Warren Co., N. Y., the former born November 18, 1797, and the latter on July 1, 1804. They were married February 23, 1820, at Westfield, Medina Co., Ohio, and the father was a pioneer farmer in Lorain county, where the mother died October 31, 1865. The father subsequently came to Wood county, where he passed away March 12, 1876. She was a member of the M. E. Church, he of the Baptist; in politics he was a Democrat of the Jacksonian type. Daniel Mallory, Mrs. Hathaway's father, was a merchant in New York State; he was murdered while on his way to enlist in the war of 1812.

GILES C. ROCKWOOD, a prosperous farmer and oil producer of Plain township, was born in Jefferson county, N. Y., August 19, 1819. The paternal grandfather of our subject lived for many years in the State of New York, and there died. Three of his sons were: Asa, who lived and died in Pittsfield, Lorain Co., Ohio; Roswell, who spent the most of his life in Champion, N. Y.; and David, the father of Giles C.

David Rockwood was born in 1777 in New Hampshire, and was reared to farm life. When a young man he came with some of his older half-brothers to Cherry Valley, N. Y., and, as they kept "bachelor's hall," he was their cook. In later years their parents came to New York State, also locating in Cherry Valley, and David and his half-brother William moved into Jefferson county, N. Y., and bought land. David was united in marriage in that county with Miss Ruby Rounds, a native of Westchester county, N. Y., and while living in that State they became the parents of six sons and one daughter, namely: Henry, a resident of Elyria; Benjamin S., who went west many years ago and has never since been heard from; Emeline, widow of David Gott; F. W., a prominent farmer of Lorain county, Ohio; Giles C., the subject of this sketch; David P., of La Grange Centre, Ohio; and Almon A., residing in California. Another child, Pauline, now the widow of Hiram Buswell, was born in Lorain county, Ohio. Mr. Rockwood was a well-to-do farmer in New York, and traded his farm there for 600 acres in La Grange township, Lorain Co., Ohio, for which place he set out in June, 1826, driving a team of horses.

Five sons and the daughter came with the parents, the other son traveling by the water route with the household goods. Asa Rockwood, a brother of David, came at the same time. The journey to New York occupied ten days, and they came by Cleveland, where at that time there was no bridge across the Cuyahoga river, and where Mr. Rockwood was offered land, now the site of the public square, at four dollars an acre, or land on the west side of the city at twenty shillings an acre. However, they pushed on to Elyria and thence to La Porte, where the family remained while the father went out to look over the land he had bargained for at La-Grange. Upon seeing this he was so disappointed that he concluded to return to Cleveland and invest in land there, but was dissuaded from this by Belden, Ingersol and Mennels, three of the leading men in Grafton township, who induced him to remain in La Grange in order to more thoroughly settle up the country. He remained on the 600-acre farm, a portion of which he traded to Nathan Clark for a like amount in Lot No. 49, and built thereon a rude house of logs, covered with elm bark, into which he moved. This was shortly after supplanted by a better one.

Mrs. Rockwood died and was buried in La-Grange township, and Mr. Rockwood married for his second wife Miss Polly Graves, who bore him five children, all of whom died young. He was always a farmer, and after moving on his farm in the northwest corner of La Grange township sold some of it, giving it out for work on other parts of the tract. He was stirring, energetic and active up to the age of sixty-five, when he retired from business. His death, which occurred in 1877, when he was 100 years and one month old, was the result of old age. In politics he was originally a Whig and later a Democrat, and in religious connection he was a member of the Christian Church.

G. C. Rockwood, subject of this sketch, came to Lorain county with his parents when he was about eight years old. His boyhood days were spent in a manner common to the lads of those pioneer days in the West, but of which the present generation can know but little. His services were required at an early age to help chop the timber, clear away the underbrush, and prepare the primitive soil for cultivation. School houses were few and far between, and such as they were were built of logs, the chinks daubed with mud, the floor, generally the bare earth, and the seats and desks of slabs. In these, school was held during the winter months, when out-door work was almost impossible, and happy the boy who could attend even for that limited season and get a smattering of "three R's." Yet from these rude temples of learning have come some of our brightest and most powerful intellects, men who have made their mark in the history of our country.

When old enough Mr. Rockwood learned the trade of cabinetmaker and also of a house-builder, which occupations he followed for a number of years. In 1852 he went to California, where he remained eleven months, going and coming via the Panama route, after this making his home in Lorain county until 1864, when he removed to Wood county and located on his present farm of ninety-one acres. On this place he has five oil wells, some of which have been running for two years. He also has the lease of some oil producing land, and has, at this writing, just drilled a fifteen-barrel well. His operations so far in this line have been very successful and bring him in a handsome income.

Mr. Rockwood was married May 30, 1845, to Miss Laura A. Wack, who was born in Dorset, Vt., February 19, 1819, and who is still living. Three children have been born to them, namely: Emma V., who is the wife of Judge Guy C. Nearing, of Bowling Green, Ohio, and has one child, Charles; Hoyt O., married Miss Lucia Miehle, July 4, 1872, and died when about twenty-seven years old, his wife also dying soon afterward, leaving two children; Frank died when an infant. Mr. Rockwood took charge after his son's death of the two orphan children and reared them as his own. The elder of these, William P., was a bright, studious, ambitious young man and his death, which occurred July 3, 1892, when he was twenty years old, was a sad blow to his grandparents. The other child, Ernest, makes his home with his grandfather. Mr. Rockwood is a man of strong character and of high principles, and is worthy of the esteem in which he is held. For many years he was an infidel, but later accepted the belief of the Spiritualists and finds much comfort in their doctrines. He was at first a Republican in his political affiliation, and for a time was with the Greenback party, but afterward joined the Democratic ranks.

ALLAN W. RUDULPH, a leading real-estate dealer of Bowling Green, was born in Center township, Columbiana county, Ohio, September 19, 1853, and is the son of Joab and Mary A. (Wheatley) Rudolph.

The father of our subject was born in Scott county, Ky., June 26, 1820, and the mother in Wheeling, W. Va., July 4, 1824. They were married at New Lisbon, Ohio, and lived at that place, and in the vicinity, until 1855, when they came to Wood county and settled on a farm in Middleton township. They made this their home until 1867, when they took up their residence in Bowling Green, where they spent the remainder of their lives. Mr. Rudolph was a merchant, and was engaged in business until 1890, when he retired from active life, his death occurring two years later, in October, 1892. He was a prominent man in his community and helped to organize the Republican party in his State. He held various township and city offices and was a leading member of the Swedenborgian Church. To this worthy couple twelve children were born, of whom the following record is given: William H., deceased, formerly deputy sheriff of Wood county; Emma A., deceased, was the wife of Frank C. Culley; George W., Sarah, Harriet and Adelbert died in infancy; Alice I. became the wife of J. D. Dolles, a druggist of Bowling Green, and died in 1874; Ernest E. married Addie F. Close and died in 1871; Allan W., our subject; James W., a physician, died in Bowling Green in 1881; Herman J. resides in Bowling Green; Mary May, the wife of R. B. Moore, a lawyer of Bowling Green, died in February, 1896.

Titan K. Rudolph, the paternal grandfather of our subject, resided at different times in Columbiana and Carroll counties. He moved temporarily to Kentucky and while there left home on horse back, intending to go to Atlanta Ga., but as he was never heard from, it is supposed that he was murdered in the mountains. The name Rudolph is of German origin, but the family has been known in America since an early day. Our subject's great-uncle, Michael Rudolph, went from this country to France, and is supposed to be identical with Marshal Ney, who played such a prominent part in the history of that nation.

Mr. Rudolph's maternal grandfather, Charles Wheatley, was born and reared in Maryland, going thence to Wheeling, W. Va., where he engaged in buying and selling stock, driving cattle over the mountains to the New York and Baltimore markets. He also met an untimely death, being murdered for his money while on one of his trips, and his wife dying soon after their children were left to the care of strangers. At the time of her parents' death Mrs. Rudolph was a mere child and she and our subject's father were married at a very early age, he being nineteen and she fifteen years of age. Allan W. Rudolph was only eighteen months old when his family came to Wood county, and thirteen years of age when they settled in Bowling Green. He attended the public schools of that city for one year, when he left home and went to Michigan where he learned the trade of printer with F. C. Culley, at Eaton Rapids. He early developed the instincts of a newspaper man, and at the early age of nineteen years was both editor and proprietor of The Sentinel, published at Bowling Green, which he conducted for twenty years, a part of the time in connection with C. W. Evers and M. P. Brewer. During this time, however, he had for a short period disposed of his interest in the paper, and was engaged in the drug business, and in 1887 was appointed clerk of the court to straighten out the affairs of the previous occupant of the office, who had proved a defaulter. Mr. Rudolph finally retired from the newspaper business September 15, 1893, since which time he has been dealing in real estate, and is one of the most active and enterprising men in Wood county.

Our subject was married February 25, 1875, to Libbie A. Kitchen, who was born in Center township, Wood county, February 15, 1856. Two children have been born to them, Gerald Kitchen and Katie Wheatley. Mr. Rudolph is one of the organizers and a member of the board of directors of the Equitable Building & Loan Co., and is also secretary of the Water Works Co. He belongs to the I. O. O. F., Encampment and Subordinate. In politics he is a Republican, and takes an active interest in all public enterprises.

WILLIAM WEDDELL, deceased. The subject of this sketch was one among the foremost of the able and enterprising men who have redeemed Wood county from its original state and established modern ways of life throughout its borders. He was born at Perrysburg March 20, 1839—his father, William Weddell, a Scotchman by birth, having settled there in 1832. He married Miss Margaret Dunipace, who was also born and educated in Scotland, and had three children: George, deceased, formerly the clerk of Wood county; William, our subject, and Margaret, deceased. The father of our subject was a contractor and builder by occupation. In politics he was a Republican, and he was a staunch and consistent adherent of the United Presbyterian faith. His sterling character speedily gained for him the confidence of the people, and his death, which occurred in 1840, was felt as a loss by all who knew him.

Our subject received his early education in the common schools of Webster township, and worked on the homestead until he was twenty-six years of age. He was married on Thursday, December 29, 1864, to Miss Isabell Zimmerman, who was born July 22, 1846, a daughter of William and Isabella (Householder) Zimmerman, a well-known resident of Webster township. Five children were born of this union, whose names are as follows: (1) Minnie, who was educated in the Pemberville High School, the Normal at Ada, Ohio, and Valparaiso, Ind., is now a successful teacher in Wood county; (2) Margaret is also a school teacher; (3) Sarah J. married J. G. Hurr, a telegraph operator at Bellevue, Ohio, and has had three children—Max, George (deceased), and an infant daughter; (4) William L., and (5) Isabell. On August 26, 1861, Mr. Weddell enlisted in Company K, 21st O. V. I., under Capt. Canfield, but was discharged January 9, 1862, on surgeon's certificate. He was a member of the Ohio Militia, being commissioned lieutenant of Company G, 1st Regiment.

Previous to his marriage he bought 160 acres of land in Webster township, near Pemberville, and built a handsome brick residence costing $3,000—one of the finest in the township. He was a good financier and was highly respected, not only for his ability, but for his integrity and manliness. He was a Republican in politics, and was justice of the peace and supervisor for a number of years, and school director from 1864 to the time of his death, which occurred July 11, 1895. He was a prominent member of the United Presbyterian Church at Scotch Ridge, as are also his wife and daughters, Minnie and Margaret, and a generous supporter of every good cause. He belonged to Benedict Post, G. A. R., No. 26, of Pemberville, in which he held for a number of years the office of Commander.

THOMAS W. KNIGHT, M. D., who is successfully engaged in the practice of medicine, in Portage, was born in Taunton, England, January 8, 1855, and is a son of Thomas W. and Eliza (Warren) Knight.

The father of our subject was a native of Somersetshire, England, born April 7, 1821, a son of Richard and Ann (Warren) Knight, the former of whom was a well-to-do farmer, owning 1,053 acres of land whereon his death occurred in 1828; his wife survived until 1855. They had a numerous family, no less than twenty-two children, including the following named: Amy; Ann; Richard, a wealthy wool-grower, who died in Australia; William and Anna, who died in England; Samuel, who died in London; John, who died in England in early manhood; Elizabeth, who passed away in the same country; and Thomas W. The parents of our subject had a family of nine children: (1) Sophia, born March 3, 1851, is the wife of Henry Lucal, of Sandusky City, Ohio. (2) John, born September 1, 1852, married Appelinda

Mercer, widow of Samuel Whitaker; he now resides in Wood county. (3) Our subject comes next. (4) Fred, born September 25, 1856, died at the age of twenty-five years. (5) Samuel, born July 10, 1858, married Ella Hostetter, and is living in North Baltimore. (6) Eliza Jane, born January 14, 1860, married John Robertson, and after his death wedded Manning Goddington; they are now living in New Jersey. (7) Amy, born January 31, 1862, is the wife of John Groh, of Wood county. (8) Ellen, born December 27, 1864, is the wife of Jacob Sommers, of Wood county. (9) William Henry, born January 5, 1867, died at the age of nine months. (The three youngest children were born in America).

The parents of this family were married May 22, 1850, in Plymouth, Devonshire, Eng., where Mrs. Knight was born March 23, 1825. Prior to his marriage, Mr. Knight worked in a grocery store for seven years. He afterward embarked in merchandising on his own account in Taunton, but disposed of his business in 1856, and with his family removed to the Isle of Guernsey. There he rented a farm and remained until 1861, when he came to America, sailing from Southampton, England, September 29, 1861, and after a voyage of fifteen days landing at New York. For eighteen months Mr. Knight and his family resided in Sandusky City, and then went to Ottawa county, Ohio, where he engaged in farming and grape-growing. After three years he returned to Sandusky City, locating on a farm near there, which he operated for seven and a half years, when he disposed of that place, and removed to another farm where he engaged in fruit culture. In March, 1876, he came to Wood county, and purchased the Mungen farm, which was his place of abode until the spring of 1884, when he sold, and has since lived with the Doctor. His wife died June, 1873, and lies buried in Clyde cemetery. The father was a staunch Republican in politics, served as trustee of Portage township for three years, and is honored and esteemed by all who know him.

Our subject, as will be seen, was an infant when his parents removed to the Isle of Guernsey, and attending a French school there he learned to speak that language very fluently. He also continued his literary education in the public schools of Sandusky City, Ohio, and afterward taught school for a number of years in Wood county. The study of medicine he took up under the direction of his mother, who for many years was engaged in practice, and in 1890, he entered upon a four-years' course in

Thomas W. Knight, Sr.

*Yours Respt
Thos. W. Knight M.D.*

Hahnemann Medical College, Chicago. On his graduation he came to Portage, where he has since successfully been engaged in practice, and now has a large and lucrative clientele. In addition, he owns twenty acres of land and four dwelling houses in Mungen, one house and three lots in Portage, and a quarter interest in eighty acres in Liberty township, a quarter interest in the one-sixth royalty of thirteen oil wells in Liberty township, and oil wells in Portage township.

On December 14, 1884, Dr. T. W. Knight was married to Christina Sommers, who died March 9, 1889, leaving one son, Walter A., born June 24, 1886. Our subject was afterward married, April 4, 1893, to Miss Maud Book, who was born June 27, 1871. They have one son, Roy, born November 28, 1895. The Doctor and his wife are well known in their locality, and have many warm friends who esteem them highly. In politics he is a Republican, and a strong advocate of temperance. He has served his township as clerk for one year, and for nine months was township trustee, filling out an unexpired term caused by a removal.

JOHN E. CARSON, deceased. The honored pioneer agriculturist of Grand Rapids township, whose life forms the theme of this biography, was born in Pennsylvania in 1826, the son of John E. and Jane Carson, both of whom were natives of the same State. He was the eldest of their six children, the others being Elisha, James M., Margaret, Oliver and Elija.

The family came to Wood county in 1835, locating on Beaver creek, in what is now Grand Rapids township, and here John E. Carson received his education. He supplemented his district-school course by private reading and study, and fitted himself for teaching; for several winters he taught in this county, working in the intervals upon the homestead, of which he took entire charge after the death of his father, caring for his widowed mother. He was married March 30, 1854, to Miss Sarah McCabe, a lady of Scotch descent, born April 17, 1836, and the seventh daughter in the family of twelve children of James McCabe, a well-known farmer of Lucas county, Ohio, who was born in Pennsylvania, and married there to Miss Sarah Uhler, who was also a native of the Keystone State, of German parentage. Mrs. Carson's father died at his home in Lucas county, August 20, 1878, and her mother survived him ten years, passing away at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Rebecca Mower, October 6, 1881, aged seventy-seven years.

A year after his marriage Mr. Carson bought 160 acres of land near Grand Rapids, to which he removed, having built a log cabin and made other improvements. He cleared 140 acres and continued to cultivate it until his death, which occurred March 13, 1878. Fourteen children were born to Mr. and Mrs. Carson, ten of whom were twins. (1) Emma, born April 21, 1855, married John Stephens, of Grand Rapids. (2 and 3) Jennie and James (twins) were born June 21, 1857; the former married Albert Whitney Weston; the latter died in childhood. (4 and 5) Luther E. and Lucy W. (twins) were born March 18, 1861, and the former now manages the homestead for his mother; he married Miss Lula Gestice and has three children; Lucy W. died in infancy. (6) John J., born October 8, 1862, is a farmer in Weston township; he married Miss Mary Judson. (7) Harriet E., born June 11, 1865, married L. D. Judson, of Grand Rapids. (8) Addie, born August 20, 1868, died at nineteen years of age. (9 and 10) Dora and Leonard (twins) were born October 12, 1870; the former married Harris Heath, of Portage, and the latter died in childhood. (11 and 12) Nellie and Florence (twins) were born February 21, 1873; the former married John Ducat, of Sugar Ridge, and the latter died when nine months old. (13 and 14), also twins, died in infancy.

Mr. Carson was for a time a soldier in the late war, enlisting in the one hundred days' service in 1861, in the 144th O. V. I. But ill-health compelled him to return home where he sustained the cause of the Union to the best of his ability, giving liberally to secure troops, and hiring a substitute, John D. Gestice, whose daughter Lula is now the wife of Luther Carson. [To him he gave ten dollars a month in addition to the pay allowed by the government.] Mr. Carson was a man of unusual ability and influence, standing high in the esteem of his neighbors. A kind husband and father; his death was a sad loss to the home circle, but in his wider sphere of usefulness he was sincerely mourned. He was an elder in the Presbyterian Church, in which Mrs. Carson has also been a leading worker for many years, especially in the Home Missionary Society. He was a Republican in politics, and was supervisor for two terms, and also served as school director, and was at all times ready to help forward any measure tending to benefit the community. After his death Mrs. Carson conducted the estate, displaying marked executive ability, and adding many improvements, including a tasteful and commodious dwelling house. Of late years, however, she has delegated the care of the estate largely to her son.

... JOHN W. BROWNSBERGER, the well-known furniture dealer and undertaker of Weston, was born in Perrysburg, Ohio, March 24, 1843. His parents were both natives of Lancaster and Cumberland counties, Penn., the father, John Brownsberger, born March 27, 1800, in Lancaster county, and the mother, Barbara (Failor) born August 30, 1804, in Cumberland county. They were married November 18, 1824, and in 1833 they came to Wood county, locating on a farm four miles east of Perrysburg. John Brownsberger was a weaver, having been bound out in childhood, after the death of his father, as an apprentice to that trade. He made much of the linen and woolen cloth, used by his family, from flax and wool grown on his own farm, for some years, and also filled occasional orders from outside parties. For twenty years he kept the toll-gate on the Maumee and Western Reserve pike. After the death of his wife on March 18, 1878, he moved to East Toledo, where he died June 2, 1885. He was a Democrat before the war, then becoming a Republican, and he and his wife were both members of the Evangelical Church. They had nine children, eight of whom grew to maturity: Joseph, born August 20, 1825, was killed by accident at Toledo October 3, 1879; William, born September 6, 1827, was a shoe dealer at Maumee and Toledo, and died at the latter place December 23, 1892; Ann E., born February 24, 1829, married Benj. F. Myers, (since deceased) and now resides in Toledo; Mary, born February 28, 1833, married Henry Girkins, of West Toledo; Andrew J., born January 28, 1835, was a soldier in Company A, 100th O. V. I., and was fatally wounded at Limestone Station, Tenn., September 8, 1863. (His brother, John, our subject, carried him off the field, and he died in the hospital September 26, following, at Knoxville, Tenn.); Caroline, born January 28, 1839, married John Farley, of Toledo; John W., our subject; Sidney, born September 20, 1845, lives near Sheboygan, Michigan.

John W., whose name opens this sketch, obtained his education in the district school near his home, in the high school at Perrysburg, and the high school at Maumee, where he completed the business course. He clerked in a grocery store at Maumee until August, 1862, when he enlisted in Company A, 100th O. V. I. His regiment was assigned to the army of the Ohio, served in Kentucky and Tennessee, until after the Atlanta campaign then participated in the battle of Nashville, Tenn., after which they went to Wilmington, N. C., and fought to Goldsboro, N. C., where they joined Gen. Sherman's forces, then returning from the sea. Mr. Brownsberger was taken prisoner on the same day that his brother was wounded, and spent the next six months and a half at Libby prison, Belle Isle, and Castle Thunder. He was company clerk throughout his service, and at Franklin, Tenn., was promoted for gallant conduct to the rank of corporal. June 20, 1865, he was mustered out at Greensboro, N. C., and after the disbanding of his regiment at Cleveland a few weeks later he returned home. During the following winter he took a business course at Toledo, and in March, 1866, opened a store in Weston, dealing in groceries, boots and shoes and other commodities. An attack of small-pox interfered with his plans, and he disposed of the business and for some time clerked in the largest store in Toledo. He then went to work for Earl W. Merry in the recorder's office, where he made out a set of geographical abstract books for all the land of the county. He afterward worked in the county clerk's office, and during the latter part of C. W. Evers' term as sheriff, he served as deputy so acceptably that in October, 1868, he was himself elected sheriff. After serving two terms of two years each, he returned to Weston, and built a planing mill which he sold a year later. For ten months he was record keeper for the county probate court at Bowling Green, and for six years following was deputy county clerk. From 1882 to 1895 he was engaged in various enterprises, in the undertaking business at Toledo, and with the Clover Leaf railroad as conductor, and later as express agent and baggage master. In May, 1892, he opened his present establishment in Weston, where, if energy and integrity count for anything in business life, he should make a success.

He was married February 24, 1869, to Miss Lucy J. Bonney, who was born in Penn Yan, N. Y., February 19, 1850. Their only son, John L., was born June 2, 1870, and died October 30, 1873. They have two daughters, of whom the elder, Bessie May, born August 1, 1872, was educated at Bowling Green and in the high school at Toledo, where she graduated in 1891; she taught for one and a half years with unusual success, but left the profession to become the wife of C. K. Merrill, of Toledo. Mabel Bonney, the younger daughter, born February 1, 1879, is attending school at Toledo.

Mrs. Brownsberger is of English descent. Her parents, Lester and Caroline (Merritt) Bonney, were natives of New York State, the father born in 1813 in Yates county, the mother in 1826 in Hammondsport, N. Y.. They were married in New York in 1842, and had a family of six children: William A.; Sarah L. (Mrs. John E. Clark, of Weston); Lucy J. (Mrs. Brownsberger); Jethro, who was killed on the railroad when twenty-six years old; Merritt H., residing in Weston; and James F., who died in infancy. In 1863 the Bonneys came to Ohio, where the father engaged in agricultural pursuits. He died in Weston in 1883; the mother is still living. She is a member of the Presbyterian Church, to which he also belonged. In politics he was a Democrat.

Mr. Brownsberger is a man of high spirit. His friendship is steadfast and his enmity impetuous. During his service as sheriff of Wood county he was known as a man who was absolutely fearless in the discharge of the duties of the office, and his ability and trustworthiness in that capacity are still spoken of by his fellow citizens. In the first year of his term, on July 3, 1869, a murder was committed at Bowling Green, and the mob attempted to lynch the murderer, the notorious Dave Phillips; Mr. Brownsberger was at Perrysburg, which was the county seat, but he reached Bowling Green on horseback within an hour, and rescued the man, although the rope was already around his neck. On various other occasions he displayed rare courage and coolness, and his official record is indeed one of which he may be proud. Mr. Brownsberger is an influential worker in the Republican party. Socially he is a member of the G. A. R., the U. V. U., and the F. & A. M. In religious connection he and his wife are members of the Presbyterian Church, and take great interest in Church work.

SAMUEL E. VAIL, editor of the Sentinel, of Bowling Green, was born May 3, 1863, at Findlay, Ohio, the youngest born of the three children of Samuel B. and Eliza Vail. The other two are Frank B. (unmarried), born October 3, 1861, at present a compositor on the Chicago Record; and Cora M., born February 28, 1862, married to C. C. Potter, of Bowling Green, by whom she has one son—Rolland—and two daughters—Myrtle and June.

Samuel B. Vail, father of our subject, during the Civil war, enlisted February 2, 1864, as a member of Company A, 49th O. V. I., and was ordered to Chattanooga, Tenn. On May 27, same year, during the preliminary movement of Sherman's march to the sea, Mr. Vail was killed at the battle of Pickett's Mills, and was buried by the Confederates, who were left in charge of the field. He was twenty-eight years old at the time. After the close of the war the widowed mother, with her three children, removed to Bowling Green.

On the paternal side, Samuel E. Vail is of Scotch origin; on the maternal side his ancestors were of Pennsylvania-Dutch stock. Edwin Vail, paternal grandfather of our subject, came in an early day from Connecticut to Ohio, locating first in Cleveland, but soon thereafter removing to Hudson, Ohio, where he married Hannah Post, also a native of Connecticut (she was one of a family of thirteen children). To Edwin Vail and his wife were born five sons—Cyrus, Alfred, George W., Samuel B. and Charles—and two daughters—Harriet and Mary. Some time during the "forties" the family moved to Findlay. Cyrus died in 1895, at Arlington, Ohio, where he had lived many years; Samuel B. was killed in battle as above related; Harriet (Brower) died, in 1896, at Hudson, whither she had removed from Bowling Green fifteen years previously; Mary (Mungen) died at Findlay in 1894. Of the sons now living, Alfred still resides in Bowling Green; George W., is a physician at Port Angeles, Wash., and Charles has his home in Findlay, Ohio. The father of this family died at Findlay in 1868; the mother passing away at Hudson in 1883.

Enos P. Lease, the maternal grandfather of our subject, was born in Pennsylvania; Catherine Oswald, the grandmother, was born in Girard, Trumbull Co., Ohio. The father of Enos P. was a soldier in the war of 1812. During the "forties" the family removed to Hancock county, locating in the vicinity of Arlington, soon after which the father died; the mother survived until 1874. The children who grew to adult age were: sons—Henry, Nelson, Ferris, George and Enos Lease; daughters—Clara (Reel), Eliza (Vail), Rebecca (Fabun), Lucy (Holmes), and Mary (Long). Nelson died in 1890, at Warren; George in 1886; Enos in 1878; Clara in 1861. Rebecca, Lucy and Mary still reside at Arlington, while Eliza, who is now sixty-one years old, makes her home in Bowling Green.

To return now to the life history of the subject proper of these lines, Samuel E. Vail. In 1870 he was admitted to the Ohio Soldiers' and Sailors' Orphans' home, where he remained until 1876, at which time he entered the Bowling Green schools, attending same two years, in 1878 commencing the printing trade in the office of the Wood County Sentinel. Five years later, at the age of twenty, he went to Lawrenceburg, Ind., where, associated with others, he conducted a daily newspaper; soon afterward he located at Toledo, and until 1886 "worked at the case" on various daily newspapers of that city. In the fall of that year he accepted a proposition from Brewer & Co., and became manager of the Sentinel, of Bowling Green; four years later bought an interest in the firm (Brewer & Rudolph), the new firm becoming Brewer, Rudolph & Vail. Upon Mr. Rudolph's retirement in 1893 the firm became Brewer, Vail & Hoffa, and by a change in the present year (1896) is now known as Brewer, Vail & Co. Mr. Vail's connection with the Sentinel has been for an almost uninterrupted period of eighteen years.

On September 8, 1884, Mr. Vail was married to Miss Elsie D. Long, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob F. Long, who in 1867 had removed from Sandusky county to Center township, Wood county, and to Bowling Green in 1871; they were the parents of three children: Frank M., at present engaged in the dry-goods business at Bowling Green; Elsie D. (Mrs. Vail); and Nettie, wife of R. P. Hankey, of Bowling Green. To Mr. and Mrs. Vail was born December 19, 1885, one son named Merl De Witt. Seven years ago Mr. Vail built himself a pleasant home on the corner of West Wooster and Maple streets, Bowling Green, where he still resides.

BENJAMIN F. KERR is descended from a family who were pioneers in the country east of the Alleghanies, and married into one of the families who were forerunners of civilization in the beautiful Valley of the Maumee. Inheriting and imbibing, by such connection, that desire for an independence which made him self-reliant, industrious and economical, and which led to the success in life he has attained, a rank among the foremost business men and men of means in Wood county, and among the leading merchants of Grand Rapids.

The ancestors of Mr. Kerr were of Scotch origin. His great-great-grandfather, James Kerr, accompanied by his wife, came from Scotland to this country with their family in 1765, settling in the State of New Jersey, and near the city of Philadelphia, Penn. A son of these pioneers, Joseph Kerr, was married in New Jersey, and soon afterward, in 1782, in company with several other families, moved to Western Pennsylvania, settling in Beaver county. Here he and his neighbors, among whom were Adam and Andrew Poe, whose names have gone down in history, had many thrilling adventures, and many narrow escapes, while fighting the Indians, who were troublesome and treacherous in those times. At this place, in 1785, a son, David, was born to Joseph and his wife, grew to maturity, and in 1824 with his family moved to Richland county, Ohio.

Jesse, the father of the subject of this sketch, was born in Beaver county, Penn., March 4, 1817, and at the age of six years came to Ohio with his parents. He grew up in the country, assisting his father to clear up a farm, received a good common-school education, and when a young man taught school during the winters. On September 14, 1837, he was married to Miss Eliza Evans, and in 1848 they moved to Lucas county, Ohio, where Jesse Kerr bought land and cleared up a farm. In politics he was a Whig, later a Republican. His death occurred July 2, 1862.

Eliza (Evans) Kerr was a descendant of Thomas Evans, who came to this country with his family from Wales in 1796, making his home for a time in Philadelphia. Subsequently he removed to Cumberland county, Penn., where his death occurred. David, a son of Thomas Evans, was married in the State of Pennsylvania, and with his wife and children moved to Ohio in 1824, settling in Richland county. Eliza, the mother of our subject, was a native of Cumberland county, Penn., born May 24, 1818; her death occurred in 1892.

To the marriage of Jesse and Eliza (Evans) Kerr were born ten children, four of whom died in infancy, the others being: John W., a resident of Lucas county; Benjamin F.; Nancy Ann, the wife of Jeremiah Walter; Thomas B., a resident of Zanesville, Ohio; William E., a merchant of Grand Rapids; and Charles F., who is in the United States postal service in Texas.

Benjamin F. Kerr was born in Richland county, this State, February 7, 1843, and was five years old when the family settled in Lucas county. He received a good common-school education at Maumee, and, on the breaking out of the Civil war, was among the first to offer his services to his country, enlisting in August, 1861, when eighteen years of age, in Company I, 14th O. V. I., commanded by Col. James B. Steadman. During the winter of 1861-62 this regiment was in service through Kentucky, and, owing to the exposure and hardships to which the men were subjected, the command sustained a great loss of men, and Mr. Kerr was discharged on surgeon's certificate of disability, August 22, 1862. In February, 1864, he returned to the army, accepting a clerkship with Capt. S. H.

P. H. Kern

Lunt, a disbursing quartermaster, then at Knoxville, Tenn. Mr. Kerr remained with the army in this capacity until November, 1865, serving in the Atlanta campaign. After hostilities had ceased he assisted in removing the dead from the battlefields of Chickamauga and Missionary Ridge to the National Cemetery at Chattanooga, this work being in charge of the Quartermaster's department. He had saved some money, and on leaving the service, in November, 1865, he purchased an interest in a general store at Chattanooga. Here he remained in business until in April, 1866, when he disposed of his interests and returned home.

On October 24, 1867, Mr. Kerr was married to Miss Ann S. Pratt, the youngest daughter of Jonas and Susan (Reed-Griffith) Pratt. Jonas Pratt was a son of William and Bertha (Brown) Pratt, natives of Massachusetts, who came to Ohio in June, 1818, and settled near Perrysburg, in what subsequently became Wood county.

William Pratt was born and raised in Boston, Mass., and was the son of Amos Pratt, a native of Wales, and a ship-builder by trade. William Pratt learned the ship carpenter's trade, and worked with his father in Boston. At the beginning of the war of 1812 he had a ship-yard in Canada, and employed a number of men. To avoid being impressed into the British army and compelled to fight against his native land, he fled from Canada to the United States, leaving a vessel on the stocks and all his property (which was afterward confiscated by the British Government). On arriving at his former home in the United States, he recruited a company of cavalry and entered the service of the United States as a captain of cavalry, and remained in the service until the close of the war.

Mr. Pratt then built a small sailing vessel on Rundecroix creek, near Rochester, N. Y. When completed, he loaded into this vessel his household goods, a supply of provisions, his family and a crew, sailed down the creek into the Genesee river, then into Lake Ontario, up the Niagara as far as they could go and then took the vessel out of the Niagara river and transported it around the Falls with oxen. Launching the boat in the river again, above Niagara Falls, they came through Lake Erie to Orleans (now Perrysburg), Wood Co., Ohio, arriving there in June, 1818. This boat was afterward used in the trade between Orleans and Buffalo for a good many years.

Jonas Pratt owned a farm near Perrysburg, and for a time he served as sheriff of the county. In 1836 he sold his farm and moved on a quarter section of land he had bought in Henry county, two miles up the river from Grand Rapids, on which Mrs. Kerr was born June 13, 1846. Here Jonas Pratt died in 1852. Susan (Reed-Griffith) Pratt was born near Utica, N. Y. (later moving to Rochester, N. Y.), and was a daughter of Amos and Mary (Smith) Reed, natives of Connecticut, the former of whom, who was a well-educated man, and a graduate of Yale college, died in Rochester, N. Y., in 1810, leaving a widow and several small children to fight life's battles alone. The widow and children (except the eldest son, Amos, Jr.) came to the Maumee river in 1815. Susan Reed was first married to William Griffith, of the firm of Gibbs & Griffith, who carried on a general store on the Perrysburg side of the river. Mr. Griffith died in 1828, and in 1831 the widow was married to Jonas Pratt. A short time after the death of Mr. Pratt his widow and the children moved to Gilead (now Grand Rapids), where the widow resided the rest of her life, dying at the residence of her daughter, Mrs. Kerr, September 19, 1893, aged ninety years, eight months and one day.

In September, 1866, our subject succeeded Messrs. Laskey & Bro. in a general merchandise and grain business at Gilead. Their predecessors were Laskey & Co., who in 1851 were the successors to Frank Hinsdale, who in 1838 succeeded Nicholas Gee, who established the business in what is now Grand Rapids in opening the first store in the village in 1833. Mr. Kerr is therefore in direct line of succession from the first business opened up at that point. He will soon have rounded up a thirty-years' career of business here—almost a third of a century—a period covering nearly that of all his predecessors combined, quite a span of years of devotion to active business; but the reward has come, for although he has not made any rapid stride on the road to wealth, he has by close application to business, careful management, and by industrious and economical habits, accumulated quite an estate. He has built one of the finest residences in this section of the country, a building modern and complete that would be a credit to any city. Crowning a beautiful hill, it commands a grand view overlooking the river and charming Maumee Valley. He possesses several fine farms in the vicinity. Verily he is the architect of his own fortune.

To Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin F. Kerr have been born seven children, two of whom died in infancy, the others being: Carrie, who married J. K. Williams, of Delphos, and has a son, Clifton F., born January 9, 1896; Clifton C., a student at Oberlin; and Jessie May, Frank E. and Glen B., all three yet at home. Both Mr. and Mrs. Kerr are identified with the Presbyterian Church, and every progressive and helpful movement in the community finds in them generous support. Mr. Kerr is a member of the G. A. R., was one of the charter members of Bond Post No. 24, of Grand Rapids, and in all respects is a thoroughly representative American.

COLONEL A. B. PROBERT, of Bloomdale, one of Wood county's most prominent citizens, has been for many years a leader in military circles in the State.

He is of English descent, and his grandfather Probert was a gentleman of wealth and culture, but reverses came, and our subject's father, James Probert, who was born in England November 16, 1802, was obliged to make his own way from the early age of eight years. He was married in his native land in 1829 to Miss Sarah Davies, and in 1831 came to America with his wife's brother, David Davies, and his own family, which then included two children. They had but little money when they landed in New York, and the wife and little ones were left there while the two men made their way by river, canal and lake to Cleveland, Ohio, having twenty-five cents left on their arrival. They found work and soon sent for Mrs. Probert and the children. In January, 1835, they moved to Pittsfield, Lorain county, then a pioneer section, a roadless wilderness, where a home was made on wild land after great labor with unsatisfactory tools. The mother on one occasion walked, carrying the son George, from their home in the wilderness to Cleveland, a distance of thirty-eight miles, to obtain urgent necessities for the family. Land advanced in price and a competence was gained and retained. His farm of 200 acres was in one square tract, a beautiful property. In 1852-53 he visited England, and was loud in the praises of his adopted country, "the land of the free." The questions as to the thousands of slaves here, always cut him deeply, and he replied with a sense of shame. He was a Democrat at that time but the attitude of his party on this question caused him to vote for Fremont, and he was from that time a Republican. When taunting remarks were made by his former associates, his answer was, "I have not left the old party; they have left me. I stand yet on the one time Democratic platform." Although a regular voter and earnest student of public affairs he was not an aspirant for office. He was a man of fine mental ability and was well-informed although he had had practically no schooling. His later years were passed in Oberlin, where he died May 5, 1876, at the age of seventy-four years. While he was of light build he was active and wiry, and bid fair to live twenty years longer, but an acute attack of pneumonia brought his life to a sudden close. His wife survived until December 17, 1892, when she died at the age of ninety-one years and six months, and the remains of both are at rest in Pittsfield cemetery. (Our subject's grandfather on the mother's side, and grandmother on the father's side, each lived to be upward of a hundred years.) Of their seven children our subject is the youngest. Eliza married Calvin C. Freeman, of Russia township, Lorain county; John was a farmer and later a merchant in Oberlin, where he died about 1891; George now owns and conducts the old home farm; James died at home in 1865; David G. resides in Oberlin; and Sarah V. married John Watkins, of Pittsfield.

A. B. Probert was born at the old homestead, October 15, 1844, and was reared as a farmer boy, attending the neighboring district schools. In 1861 he did his first independent work, hiring out to a farmer in the vicinity. The following year he entered the preparatory school at Oberlin, but the urgent calls for recruits for the army appealed to his patriotism, and his studies were given up. October 6, 1863, he enlisted in Company F, 12th Regiment O. Cav., but on account of a disturbance on Johnson's Island, near Sandusky, where 3,500 rebels were imprisoned, his regiment was divided and he with others cheerfully accepted the assignment to infantry duties there. While there he had an attack of measles, from the effects of which he has never fully recovered. They remained until February, 1864, and then rejoined the cavalry troops, leaving Camp Dennison in May, 1864, and taking up the work of fighting bushwhackers on the border between Kentucky and Ohio. Gen. Sherman, having seen this regiment, telegraphed Secretary Stanton asking that it be assigned to him, which was impossible under the circumstances, and the refusal caused deep regret on the part of the regiment. Their first actual battle was at Mt. Sterling, although they were continuously engaged in light skirmishes. Three months after Mr. Probert's enlistment he was promoted over eight corporals to the rank of sergeant, having displayed rare military ability and skill in the saddle, although but a boy in years. He was not wounded, though he was always on duty up to the time of his discharge on June 8, 1865, save a time when on leave of absence on account of illness. He resumed farm work on his return home, and in the fall of 1866 entered Oberlin College, but failing health compelled him to again relinquish his studies; however, he has always been a great reader, and is thoroughly posted on the topics of the day.

Mr. Probert was married, December 24, 1869, to Miss Chastina M. Worcester, a native of Pittsfield, daughter of Joseph W. Worcester, who was born in Vermont in 1812 and was for years a citizen of Oberlin; he is now deceased. Three children were born of this union: Merton A., an expert stenographer, who is serving temporarily in the superintendent's office of the Adams Express Co. at Columbus, and is taking a medical course in Starling Medical College, of that city; Jessie, who died aged two years, and Oliver M., now at home.

After his marriage and two years of farming, our subject engaged in teaming in Oberlin for several years. Later he worked fourteen months as baggage agent at Oberlin for the L. S. & M. S. railroad, and was also for some time a brakeman. He then went into the grocery business with his brother John, under the firm name of Probert Bros., and carried it on profitably for five years. Selling out in 1881, he came to Bloomdale, where he has since resided. He bought eighty acres of timberland in Perry township which he cleared and now owns, and later he bought an interest in a drug store, disposing of that to buy a hardware and grocery business which he conducted for seven years under the firm name of A. B. Probert & Co.; in 1889 he retired from mercantile business. He is an active and influential Republican, and was the first mayor of Bloomdale, an honor conferred for his efforts as agent of the citizens in securing the corporation charter, and he has served in other positions of trust. In 1894 he was elected to his present office of justice of the peace.

Col. Probert has a natural talent for military work and organization, and was captain of the first known mounted torchlight company, so strong at Oberlin in the Garfield campaign. During the Blaine campaign he organized a torchlight company at Bloomdale, which created much enthusiasm and led to the formation in 1885 of Company H, 2d O. N. G., with Col. Probert as captain, he having been the leader in the organization. This was a fine body of soldiers, ranking among the foremost in the State and embracing men of wealth, influence and position, and its appearance overcame Asst.-Adgt.-Gen. Dill's objections to its acceptance as a part of the State militia. In 1886 Capt. Probert was promoted to the position of lieutenant-colonel of the 2d Regiment, which he held five years. He is a leader in G. A. R. circles, and at the National Encampment in Columbus in 1889, when fourteen G. A. R. posts of Wood county appeared in the parade as a regiment, he was chosen colonel of the organization, and was re-elected the next year. During the great parade the Wood county batallion was one of the few to remain intact from the start to the disbandment. Later our subject was elected brigade commander of the Fourth District, G. A. R., of Ohio. He was also chosen to represent one district of five counties of Northwestern Ohio, at the National G. A. R. Encampment in Boston. He is now serving his fourth term as commander of Urie Post No. 110, of Bloomdale. He was admitted to practice as a pension attorney in 1892, and has met with great success. In the Masonic Fraternity, which he joined in 1867 at Oberlin, he has held several official positions.

H. L. BYINGTON, M. D., the oldest practicing physician of Risingsun, and one of the most successful men of his profession in the county, is a notable example of a self-made man. He is of English descent.

His grandfather, Nathaniel Byington, was a farmer in Vermont, during the greater part of his life, and was a hard-working man, often earning his slender income by shoe-making; but never accumulated a competence. The old homestead was near Weybridge, where his son, Edmund H. Byington, the Doctor's father, was born, the youngest of a family of four sons and one daughter. He married Miss Helen M. Langdon, a native of New Haven, Vt., and the daughter of Ward Langdon, who was at one time a member of the Vermont legislature. This family was also of English origin. The young man had but limited means, yet he and his bride started for the new lands in the West, as the frontier lines in Franklin county, N. Y., was then called, and locating upon a small tract of land in the woods they toiled on through all difficulties until prosperity dawned upon them. Their success was not won by self denial, but by industry and good management; they now own two farms containing more than 250 acres of valuable land. They have fortunately both been spared to enjoy the fruits of their labors, and are among the most highly respected citizens of their vicinity. Mr. Byington is one of the staunch supporters of the Democratic party, has always been prominent in public affairs, and has served creditably in numerous township offices. The last years of his father, who lived to be over eighty years old, were made comfortable in his home, and four children were reared to maturity: Alice (Mrs. Jason J. Carpenter), of North Yakima, Wash.; Harlan L., our subject; Emerson, a farmer in Franklin county, N. Y.; and Jennie (Mrs. Theodore Fitch), of the same county.

Dr. Byington was born on a farm in East Constable township, Franklin Co., N. Y., April 22, 1851, and passed through the usual experiences of a farmer's son, attending the district schools and helping at home with the "chores" and on the farm. Later he studied at Franklin Academy, and at eighteen began to teach, following the profession successfully some four winters. He then pursued more advanced studies at Malone, N. Y., and, as he always had a desire to follow the medical profession, took especial interest in anatomy and hygiene while there. He was too proud to ask his father for money to continue his studies in this direction, and, shortly after attaining his majority, he started for Omaha, Neb. He had only ten dollars in his pocket when he left home, as his father was a believer that a little hardship would be good for him, and this sum was soon exhausted. He stopped, while en route, in Erie county, Ohio, where an uncle lived, and found employment as a locomotive fireman on the Sandusky division of the B. & O. R. R., and later fired on the construction train on the main line of the same road, which was then being laid west from Chicago Junction, the completed portion at that time reaching Attica, Ohio. He then began teaching in Perkins township, Erie county, and determining to study medicine he took a preliminary course with Dr. Knestrick, of Bloomingville. During the summer he studied in the mornings, and worked on a farm in the afternoons in order to pay his expenses. In the fall of 1874 he entered the Physio-Medical College at Cincinnati, and was graduated in February, 1876, standing third in the class. His professional career was begun in Fostoria in the fall of 1876, against a formidable array of old practitioners. As a total stranger he experienced the usual trials of a young physician, but he succeeded in establishing a good practice. In the fall of 1880 he removed to Risingsun where speedy recognition of his abilities brought him a large and lucrative practice. The Doctor successfully removed eight pieces of skull-bone from the left temple of George Jonas which had been thrust into his head two inches by the kick of a horse, and covered the opening with a silver plate, which he prepared from a coin he took from his purse, it being nearly as large as a silver dollar. He also performed several successful delicate and difficult perineal operations, and others of a general nature, by which he gained an enviable reputation as a surgeon.

On September 6, 1882, Dr. Byington was married in Fostoria to Miss Emma E. Shaw, a native of Hancock county, Ohio, and a daughter of Thomas and Eliza Shaw. She is a lady of fine mentality, was well educated in the schools of Findlay, Ohio, and taught successfully in Fostoria. The Doctor has a pleasant home and office, built by himself. Of their three sons the second died in infancy; the others are Warren S., born June 17, 1885; and Ralph, born September 26, 1895.

The Doctor contributes liberally toward the Churches of his locality, although not a member of any, and he is always ready to encourage and assist movements for the benefit of the thriving little city where he has made his home. As a citizen, not as a politician, he served six years as a member of the Risingsun council, but he has frequently declined nominations to political positions. In August, 1893, he was appointed a member of the Board of Pension Examiners, and still holds that office. In principle he is a Democrat, but occasionally supports men of other parties. A man of practical ideas in business as well as in professional life, he has acquired a fine competence, and is regarded as one of the substantial men of the place, owning extensive interests in oil holdings, and engaging largely in loaning money, and buying and selling notes. Despite his varied lines of work, he is fond of travel, recreation and hunting; has been in sixteen different States, Canada and old Mexico, and several seasons have found him in the game haunts of the West and South. Socially he was a charter member and first chancellor commander of Lodge 329, K. of P., at Risingsun.

WILLIAM ECKERT, one of the intelligent, progressive agriculturists of Portage township, was born April 20, 1847, at Buffalo, N. Y., son of Martin Eckert, a native of the "Fatherland," who was born February 2, 1808.

Martin Eckert came to the United States when a young man, lived for a time in Eastern Pennsylvania, and made his first permanent location in Buffalo, N. Y. Here he married Margaret Zimmerman, who was born in Alsace, Germany, and came to the United States, where her parents also passed their remaining days. Mr. Eckert had learned shoemaking in Germany, and he followed his trade in Buffalo, also engaging in market gardening, in which he continued for a number of years. They lived near Cold

Wm. Eckert

Wm. Eckert

Spring, a suburb of Buffalo, and their produce was taken to Washington Street Market. In the panic of 1857, however, Mr. Eckert lost much of his property, and in the fall of 1861 he came west to Ohio, living in Scott township, Sandusky county, where he rented land. He was a large active man in his younger days, and after coming to Ohio he engaged in farming, but from 1867 until their deaths he and his wife made their home with our subject. He died at the latter's home in Portage township in February, 1891, his wife preceding him to the grave in April, 1882, and both are buried in Bradner cemetery. They reared a large family, all of whom were born in Buffalo, as follows: Jacob, who is a farmer of Portage township; Ellen (Mrs. John V. Hall), of Buffalo, N. Y.; George, a carpenter, who died in Boston, Mass.; Martin, Jr., of Montgomery township, Wood county; Sarah (Mrs. William Wilson), who lives in Buffalo; Charles, who died of cholera in Buffalo; Louise (Mrs. Jacob Bowers), of Scott township, Sandusky Co., Ohio; and William. Mr. Eckert was originally a 'Whig in politics, but on the formation of the party he became a Republican, and was an ardent supporter of its principles.

William Eckert received all his education in the schools of his boyhood home, and was thoroughly trained to farming, remaining at home, with one month's exception, until his enlistment in the Union army, on March 26, 1864, at Rollersville, Ohio. He became a member of Company I, 72nd O. V. I., the regiment at that time being home on veteran furlough, and returned with them to the field, seeing his first active service at Paducah, Ky. He participated in the battles of Brice's Cross Roads (or Guntown), Tishomingo, Tupelo, Oldtown Creek, Abbeville, Little Harpeth, Nashville, Spanish Fort, and Mobile, the command marching from that city to Montgomery. En route they learned of Lee's surrender, and soon after of Lincoln's assassination. They remained in the service, doing guard duty and repairing railroads, until September 11, 1865, when they were mustered out at Vicksburg, and received the final discharge at Columbus, Ohio. Mr. Eckert is now a member of Randall Post No. 53, G. A. R., at Freeport. During his service our subject was never absent from duty on account of injuries or sickness, but he was separated from his regiment a short time after the battle of Brice's Cross Roads, in which they were defeated; he and many others worked their way through the woods to Memphis, and during the journey it was, naturally, difficult for them to keep together.

In the spring of 1866, Mr. Eckert began to do farm work for others, and after six months rented a farm in Montgomery township, Wood county, from Conrad Shefler, which he worked for two years, and after that rented more land, until he bought his present farm in Portage township. At the time of his marriage he had $200, besides a limited supply of farming implements, and he lived on different places in Wood and Sandusky counties until April 20, 1878, at which time he settled on his place of eighty acres in Section 15, Portage township, which he had bought four years previously, and which he had improved to some extent after it came into his possession, it being new land when he bought it. He now owns 160 acres, ninety of which are under cultivation, and which he has taken from its primitive condition. He has improved the land with buildings, and has placed over 1,200 rods of drain tile in the land, which has increased its fertility considerably. He is known as a most thorough, systematic farmer, and has the respect of all who know him for his industry and integrity. He is a thoroughly self-made man, having commenced life with no capital but his own energy and ambition, and he is now in prosperous circumstances, and able to support his family in comfort. In 1892 he built a fine barn, 40 x 72 feet in dimensions, and all the other improvements on the place are in keeping.

On November 30, 1871, Mr. Eckert was married, in Scott township, Sandusky county, to Miss Lenora Sheseley, a native of that township, who was born March 30, 1850, daughter of John Sheseley, who came hither from Pennsylvania. Children have been born to this union as follows: Clarence R., September 9, 1872, who is a teacher; Adda, January 26, 1874; Mabel, November 20, 1875 (died in August, 1879); Laura, April 28, 1877; Wilmer, August 18, 1878; Rolland W., July 23, 1883; Ralph E., January 26, 1885; Florence M., January 20, 1889; Floyd H., August 12, 1890; and Benjamin F., February 9, 1893. Mr. and Mrs. Eckert are members of the Methodist Protestant Church, in which he holds the office of trustee. He is a Republican in politics, and never fails to cast his ballot; but aside from that takes no active part in politics or public affairs, although he has served as school director in District No. 9. Socially he is a member of I. O. O. F., Prairie Depot Lodge, No. 646.

EXEA DUCAT, one of the most prominent of the retired agriculturists who have made their home in the pleasant city of Bowling Green, was born of French-Canadian parentage, on the Ohio and Michigan line, near Toledo, February, 18, 1828.

His parents, Joseph and Victoria (Jacob) Ducat, were born in Detroit, Mich., the former in April, 1805. Eleven children were born to them, our subject being the second. Joseph, the eldest, is now living in East Toledo, at the age of sixty-eight. The third, Alexander, born in 1830, died June 27, 1874. Julius, born March 10, 1834, died September 12, 1895. John is a resident of Rudolph, Wood county; Gilbert, of Bowling Green; Theodore, of Toledo; Marshall, of Bowling Green; Frank, of Ducat, Wood county; and the two youngest, Frederick and Victoria, died in childhood. Mr. Ducat's parents moved to Liberty township, Wood county, in 1851, and settled upon a large tract of land which is now very valuable. His mother died in Ottawa county in 1864, his father at the homestead in Liberty township, in May, 1871.

Our subject enjoyed the usual experiences of a healthy country boy during his youth, and became in time one of the most successful farmers in the locality, cultivating a tract of 200 acres of land which he still owns, although of late years he has left the active work to other hands. He was married May 6, 1851, to Miss Elizabeth Momee, of Toledo, who was born February 8, 1836. They have had nine children, as follows: Elizabeth, born June 1, 1852, died August 27, 1858; the second, born June 1, 1853, died the same day; Mary V. born April 15, 1854, was married December 4, 1873, to Paul McCrory, and died November 8, 1874; Peter Exea, born June 8, 1856, married Josephine Mantal, and has one son—Clarence; Thomas Jefferson, born March 12, 1859, married Emma Gano, and has four children living; Charles Henry, born October 14, 1863, died aged fifteen; Matilda Jane, born November 26, 1864, married Quincy Mercer, of Wood county; Lucy Ann, born June 7, 1871, died a year later; Fulton Daniel, born May 4, 1874, married Alta V. Bordner, and has one daughter. Mr. Ducat is a highly esteemed citizen, and uses his influence in quiet but effective ways to forward every measure which has for its object the good of the community. He is a leading member of the Christian Church, and in his political preferences of late years has been an ardent Prohibitionist.

NATHANIEL L. HANSON. New Hampshire was first visited by Europeans in 1614, the first settlements being made at Cochecho (Dover) and Portsmouth, in 1623. Thomas Hanson, senior, was among the early settlers and lived at Coche-cho (Dover), was taxed 1654-55, received from the Crown, or Protector, a grant of one hundred acres of land near Salmon Falls, N. H., dated November 11, 1658, was admitted a freeman, April 5, 1661, died 1666, and his will was approved June 27, 1666. His widow was taxed 1666-1672, and killed by Indians, June 28, 1689. These people were English. Their children were Tobias, Thomas (2), Isaac, Timothy and two daughters. Of the last four no record is left. Tobias was killed by the Indians May 10, 1693, his wife having been made captive June, 1689, at the time his mother was killed.

Thomas Hanson (2), second son of Thomas, Sr., was born 1643, first taxed 1664 to 1677, at Cochecho (Dover), and his will bears date February 10, 1710. His children, of whom any record is left, were Thomas (3) and John (1). Thomas (3) was born in 1680, built a house at "Knox Marsh" near Dover in 1700 (still occupied—1883—by William Twombly). His children were (by Margaret Maul) Thomas (4), Robert, Timothy (2) (see "Timothy hay," Standard dictionary), Maul, Jonathan and Samuel; (by Hannah Newell) Solomon, Ebenezer and Abigail. He died 1728, his will bearing date September 18, 1728, and it shows the ownership of slaves in New Hampshire at that date.

John (1), brother of Thomas (3), married Elizabeth Meador, May 23, 1703, and lived at "Knox Marsh." His children were Hannah, Sarah, Elizabeth, John (2), Isaac (2), Daniel, Ebenezer (2), Caleb, Mercy and Abigail. On June 27, 1724, their home was attacked by Indians; John (2), Isaac and the father being in the field, and Hannah, being at church—all escaped harm. Ebenezer and Caleb (youngest of the boys) were dashed against a stone and killed. Sarah, Elizabeth, Daniel, Mercy (fourteen days old), the mother and the nurse were all taken captive, and, by forced marches for hundreds of miles through the then unbroken wilderness and swamps of the wildest section of our land, were taken into Canada. Pursuit proved fruitless. Without doubt the boys were killed because too young to make the march, and too large to carry, while the mother was spared for the larger ransom expected. Though still feeble, she was compelled to carry her fourteen-day-old babe, but was treated with some barbaric tenderness, sharing the chief's food, and by night his tent, and allowed to prepare nourishment for her babe when no longer able to nourish it herself. The following year the husband and father proceeded to Canada, and ransomed his wife and three of the children. He returned to Canada again in 1727

to redeem the remaining child, Sarah, and perished at Crown Point, N. Y., on his return. Mercy Hanson, the fourteen-day-old captive, born to John (1) June 13, 1724, was among these ransomed children, and lived to marry one Nathaniel Hanson (1), and became the mother of seven children, viz.: Paul, John (3), Nathaniel (2), Ebenezer (2), Caleb (2), and two daughters. Of these children, Ebenezer Hanson (2) was born April 12, 1759, married Abigail Caverno September, 1789, lived in Strafford, N. H., and died May 26, 1826. The children of Ebenezer (2) and Abigail Hanson were Caverno, Paul, John (4), Ebenezer (3), Hannah, Judith, Nathaniel (3), Caleb (3), Abigail, Sarah and Jeremiah. All these lived to an advanced age.

Nathaniel Hanson (3), father of our subject, was born in Strafford, N. H., May 11, 1807, married Marjorie Evans, of the same place, dwelt at Barnstead and died October 5, 1891, his wife having preceded him on March 9, of the same year—both having lived more than four-score years. The old home stands in shadow; the sunshine falls less sweetly among the many reminders—the reverently folded garments, the hat, the cane, and the old family Bible that lay on the stand. The immediate family of Nathaniel (3) and Marjorie E. Hanson, consisted of eight sons and one daughter, viz.: John (5), Caleb W., Levi H., Nathaniel L., Ebenezer, Lewis F., Joseph B., George and Jennie B.

Nathaniel L. Hanson, fourth of the above named brothers, submits this genealogy by request, interesting chiefly in the fact that it covers a period of nearly three hundred years, embracing eight generations inclusive of his own family, and in that it shows something of the trials of the earliest settlers of our land. The names of those constituting the collateral branches of the family in the different generations, as gathered by him from court and other records, are here omitted.

The names of his own children are George Murray, Myra Hamilton, Elizabeth Murray, Fred Green (died in 1876), Raymond Evans, Luther N. and Ralph Trowbridge.

Our subject, Nathaniel L. Hanson, was reared in New Hampshire, quit the farm at fifteen years of age, and the shop at eighteen, was privileged to attend the public schools but twenty-five months in all this time, and one or two terms at the "select" school. In 1857 he entered the academy at New Hampton, N. H., taking the Latin and Greek course, having made a good start in the former in the shop, without an instructor. He graduated from this academy in June, 1860, second in a class of thirteen gentlemen, all but two of whom entered college. In the fall of the same year, with just funds enough in hand to meet the expenses of the first term, and obliged to rely absolutely upon his own resources, he entered upon a four-years' course at Dartmouth College, Hanover, N. H., having been admitted on examination prior to graduation at the academy, taking the 25th position in a class of eighty-one members, which by later accessions enrolled an even hundred. Divers causes, chiefly the Civil war which broke out the following spring, left but fifty of this class to answer roll-call on graduation day, four years later, Mr. Hanson being among them. He had already been elected principal of the Grammar schools at Troy, Ohio, and came west soon after graduating in 1864. The following summer he was elected superintendent of schools at Sidney, Ohio, which position he filled for three years. In 1868 he was elected principal of the State street schools, Columbus, Ohio, succeeding T. C. Mendenhall, now president of Worcester (Mass.) Polytechnic Institute, and formerly at the head of the U. S. geodetic coast survey. At the holidays of this year Mr. Hanson received what he regards as two flattering propositions, viz.: An addition of $500 in salary ($1,700 per annum), to take the principalship of the Ludlow street schools, Dayton, Ohio; and the hand of Miss Lida McC. Murray, of Sidney, Ohio, in marriage; both of which he accepted, retaining the latter to this day (1896), and the former until the fall of 1871, three years, when a coveted opportunity to go into business presented itself, and he came to Perrysburg, Ohio, to accept a subordinate position in the Exchange Bank, then just starting under the auspices of Dr. E. D. Peck, as president, and F. R. Miller as cashier. He continued with this firm until the spring of 1879, when, Dr. Peck having deceased, the firm retired from banking, and Mr. Hanson established the Citizens Bank, continuing the business under that title until the spring of 1892, when it was reorganized as a State Bank and incorporated as the Citizens Banking Company, with a subscribed capital stock of $50,000.00; he became the cashier and responsible manager, and continues such to the present time.

In politics he is a Republican, and in religious belief is a member of the Presbyterian Church. He is a member of the Greek letter fraternity, Delta Kappa Epsilon, is a member of the board of education, is serving his second term as a member of the city council, and is, and has been for ten years, a member and the

Ohio and Michigan line, near Toledo, February, 18, 1828.

His parents, Joseph and Victoria (Jacob) Ducat, were born in Detroit, Mich., the former in April, 1805. Eleven children were born to them, our subject being the second. Joseph, the eldest, is now living in East Toledo, at the age of sixty-eight. The third, Alexander, born in 1830, died June 27, 1874. Julius, born March 10, 1834, died September 12, 1895. John is a resident of Rudolph, Wood county; Gilbert, of Bowling Green; Theodore, of Toledo; Marshall, of Bowling Green; Frank, of Ducat, Wood county; and the two youngest, Frederick and Victoria, died in childhood. Mr. Ducat's parents moved to Liberty township, Wood county, in 1851, and settled upon a large tract of land which is now very valuable. His mother died in Ottawa county in 1864, his father at the homestead in Liberty township, in May, 1871.

Our subject enjoyed the usual experiences of a healthy country boy during his youth, and became in time one of the most successful farmers in the locality, cultivating a tract of 200 acres of land which he still owns, although of late years he has left the active work to other hands. He was married May 6, 1851, to Miss Elizabeth Momee, of Toledo, who was born February 8, 1836. They have had nine children, as follows: Elizabeth, born June 1, 1852, died August 27, 1858; the second, born June 1, 1853, died the same day; Mary V. born April 15, 1854, was married December 4, 1873, to Paul McCrory, and died November 8, 1874; Peter Exea, born June 8, 1856, married Josephine Mantal, and has one son—Clarence; Thomas Jefferson, born March 12, 1859, married Emma Gano, and has four children living; Charles Henry, born October 14, 1863, died aged fifteen; Matilda Jane, born November 26, 1864, married Quincy Mercer, of Wood county; Lucy Ann, born June 7, 1871, died a year later; Fulton Daniel, born May 4, 1874, married Alta V. Bordner, and has one daughter. Mr. Ducat is a highly esteemed citizen, and uses his influence in quiet but effective ways to forward every measure which has for its object the good of the community. He is a leading member of the Christian Church, and in his political preferences of late years has been an ardent Prohibitionist.

NATHANIEL L. HANSON. New Hampshire was first visited by Europeans in 1614, the first settlements being made at Cochecho (Dover) and Portsmouth, in 1623. Thomas Hanson, senior, was among the early settlers and lived at Coche-cho (Dover), was taxed 1654-55, received from the Crown, or Protector, a grant of one hundred acres of land near Salmon Falls, N. H., dated November 11, 1658, was admitted a freeman, April 5, 1661, died 1666, and his will was approved June 27, 1666. His widow was taxed 1666-1672, and killed by Indians, June 28, 1689. These people were English. Their children were Tobias, Thomas (2), Isaac, Timothy and two daughters. Of the last four no record is left. Tobias was killed by the Indians May 10, 1693, his wife having been made captive June, 1689, at the time his mother was killed.

Thomas Hanson (2), second son of Thomas, Sr., was born 1643, first taxed 1664 to 1677, at Cochecho (Dover), and his will bears date February 10, 1710. His children, of whom any record is left, were Thomas (3) and John (1). Thomas (3) was born in 1680, built a house at "Knox Marsh" near Dover in 1700 (still occupied—1883—by William Twombly). His children were (by Margaret Maul) Thomas (4), Robert, Timothy (2) (see "Timothy hay," Standard dictionary), Maul, Jonathan and Samuel; (by Hannah Newell) Solomon, Ebenezer and Abigail. He died 1728, his will bearing date September 18, 1728, and it shows the ownership of slaves in New Hampshire at that date.

John (1), brother of Thomas (3), married Elizabeth Meador, May 23, 1703, and lived at "Knox Marsh." His children were Hannah, Sarah, Elizabeth, John (2), Isaac (2), Daniel, Ebenezer (2), Caleb, Mercy and Abigail. On June 27, 1724, their home was attacked by Indians; John (2), Isaac and the father being in the field, and Hannah, being at church—all escaped harm. Ebenezer and Caleb (youngest of the boys) were dashed against a stone and killed. Sarah, Elizabeth, Daniel, Mercy (fourteen days old), the mother and the nurse were all taken captive, and, by forced marches for hundreds of miles through the then unbroken wilderness and swamps of the wildest section of our land, were taken into Canada. Pursuit proved fruitless. Without doubt the boys were killed because too young to make the march, and too large to carry, while the mother was spared for the larger ransom expected. Though still feeble, she was compelled to carry her fourteen-day-old babe, but was treated with some barbaric tenderness, sharing the chief's food, and by night his tent, and allowed to prepare nourishment for her babe when no longer able to nourish it herself. The following year the husband and father proceeded to Canada, and ransomed his wife and three of the children. He returned to Canada again in 1727

to redeem the remaining child, Sarah, and perished at Crown Point, N. Y., on his return. Mercy Hanson, the fourteen-day-old captive, born to John (1) June 13, 1724, was among these ransomed children, and lived to marry one Nathaniel Hanson (1), and became the mother of seven children, viz.: Paul, John (3), Nathaniel (2), Ebenezer (2), Caleb (2), and two daughters. Of these children, Ebenezer Hanson (2) was born April 12, 1759, married Abigail Caverno September, 1789, lived in Strafford, N. H., and died May 26, 1826. The children of Ebenezer (2) and Abigail Hanson were Caverno, Paul, John (4), Ebenezer (3), Hannah, Judith, Nathaniel (3), Caleb (3), Abigail, Sarah and Jeremiah. All these lived to an advanced age.

Nathaniel Hanson (3), father of our subject, was born in Strafford, N. H., May 11, 1807, married Marjorie Evans, of the same place, dwelt at Barnstead and died October 5, 1891, his wife having preceded him on March 9, of the same year—both having lived more than four-score years. The old home stands in shadow; the sunshine falls less sweetly among the many reminders—the reverently folded garments, the hat, the cane, and the old family Bible that lay on the stand. The immediate family of Nathaniel (3) and Marjorie E. Hanson, consisted of eight sons and one daughter, viz.: John (5), Caleb W., Levi H., Nathaniel L., Ebenezer, Lewis F., Joseph B., George and Jennie B.

Nathaniel L. Hanson, fourth of the above named brothers, submits this genealogy by request, interesting chiefly in the fact that it covers a period of nearly three hundred years, embracing eight generations inclusive of his own family, and in that it shows something of the trials of the earliest settlers of our land. The names of those constituting the collateral branches of the family in the different generations, as gathered by him from court and other records, are here omitted.

The names of his own children are George Murray, Myra Hamilton, Elizabeth Murray, Fred Green (died in 1876), Raymond Evans, Luther N. and Ralph Trowbridge.

Our subject, Nathaniel L. Hanson, was reared in New Hampshire, quit the farm at fifteen years of age, and the shop at eighteen, was privileged to attend the public schools but twenty-five months in all this time, and one or two terms at the "select" school. In 1857 he entered the academy at New Hampton, N. H., taking the Latin and Greek course, having made a good start in the former in the shop, without an instructor. He graduated from this academy in June, 1860, second in a class of thirteen gentlemen, all but two of whom entered college. In the fall of the same year, with just funds enough in hand to meet the expenses of the first term, and obliged to rely absolutely upon his own resources, he entered upon a four-years' course at Dartmouth College, Hanover, N. H., having been admitted on examination prior to graduation at the academy, taking the 25th position in a class of eighty-one members, which by later accessions enrolled an even hundred. Divers causes, chiefly the Civil war which broke out the following spring, left but fifty of this class to answer roll-call on graduation day, four years later, Mr. Hanson being among them. He had already been elected principal of the Grammar schools at Troy, Ohio, and came west soon after graduating in 1864. The following summer he was elected superintendent of schools at Sidney, Ohio, which position he filled for three years. In 1868 he was elected principal of the State street schools, Columbus, Ohio, succeeding T. C. Mendenhall, now president of Worcester (Mass.) Polytechnic Institute, and formerly at the head of the U. S. geodetic coast survey. At the holidays of this year Mr. Hanson received what he regards as two flattering propositions, viz.: An addition of $500 in salary ($1,700 per annum), to take the principalship of the Ludlow street schools, Dayton, Ohio; and the hand of Miss Lida McC. Murray, of Sidney, Ohio, in marriage; both of which he accepted, retaining the latter to this day (1896), and the former until the fall of 1871, three years, when a coveted opportunity to go into business presented itself, and he came to Perrysburg, Ohio, to accept a subordinate position in the Exchange Bank, then just starting under the auspices of Dr. E. D. Peck, as president, and F. R. Miller as cashier. He continued with this firm until the spring of 1879, when, Dr. Peck having deceased, the firm retired from banking, and Mr. Hanson established the Citizens Bank, continuing the business under that title until the spring of 1892, when it was re-organized as a State Bank and incorporated as the Citizens Banking Company, with a subscribed capital stock of $50,000.00; he became the cashier and responsible manager, and continues such to the present time.

In politics he is a Republican, and in religious belief is a member of the Presbyterian Church. He is a member of the Greek letter fraternity, Delta Kappa Epsilon, is a member of the board of education, is serving his second term as a member of the city council, and is, and has been for ten years, a member and the secretary of the board of managers of the Way Public Library. Mr. Hanson is a citizen of high standing, and a leading man in his community, and although rather reserved in disposition, is found on nearer acquaintance to be a most genial and companionable man. He is very domestic in his tastes, and although giving much time and attention to the details of his business, and to matters concerning the public welfare, he finds his greatest happiness when surrounded by his books and family in his pleasant home.

GEORGE W. WILKINSON, one of the self-made men of Ohio, a prominent editor of Wood county, and a worthy representative citizen of North Baltimore, is a native of the State, having been born March 15, 1859, in Logan county.

At an early age he was left an orphan, his father having died when he was an infant, succumbing to exposure experienced at the battle of Pittsburg Landing, in 1862; after which, until he was eighteen years old, young George made his home with his grandfather, John G. Wilkinson, during which period he acquired a common-school education. Fully realizing he was not yet properly equipped in an educational point of view, for suitable life work, our subject, on leaving the home of his grandfather, went to Sidney, Ohio, where for three years he attended the public schools, at the end of which time he took up the profession of teaching, which he followed several years. For one year he had charge of the grammar department of public-school work at Deshler, and for two years he served as superintendent of schools of that place. During the year 1885-86 he leased and conducted the Deshler Flag, and then purchased the Beacon, of North Baltimore, which, under his able management, has become one of the leading journals of Wood county.

Politically, Mr. Wilkinson is a Republican, and a representative in his party. For several years he has been a member of the County Central Committee, of which he has been chairman and secretary. He has also been several times a member of the executive committee, serving now in that capacity; is also serving as member of the County Election Board, by appointment from the Secretary of State, and is chairman of that board. Mr. Wilkinson has served four terms as trustee of the North Baltimore Gas Co., during which time he was its secretary. At this writing he is president of the board of examiners of teachers, for the city of North Baltimore. He is also serving his second term as secretary of the Buckeye Press Association, of Ohio, an organization of printers and editors, consisting of about two hundred members, he being one of the originators of the association. He is a practical, artistic printer, and has one of the finest and best equipped offices in the State.

In 1885, Mr. Wilkinson was united in marriage with Miss Ella M. Thomas, daughter of Rev. A. C. Thomas, of North Baltimore, born April 21, 1868, and educated in the common schools of Ohio. Mrs. Wilkinson is a valuable assistant to her husband, being in perfect sympathy with his work, and taking editorial charge during his temporary absence. To their union have come two children, namely: Gerald T., born in 1889, and Claire W., born in 1892. Mrs. Wilkinson is a member of the M. E. Church, at North Baltimore, and she and her husband enjoy the highest regard of the best citizens of the community in which they live.

GILBERT DUCAT, a wealthy retired agriculturist of Bowling Green, and a descendant of a well-known French-Canadian family, was born in Michigan, near the Ohio line, July 10, 1839.

His father, Joseph Ducat, was born in Detroit, Mich., in 1805, and on arriving at manhood he married a native of the same city, Miss Victoria Jacob. He was a farmer by occupation, and some years after his marriage came with his family to Ohio, locating first in Wood county, later removing to Ottawa county, where Mrs. Ducat died in 1864. The family soon after returned to Wood county settling in Liberty township, and here, in 1871, the father died. Both parents were devout adherents of the Roman Catholic Church. Eleven children were born to them: Joseph, a resident of East Toledo; Exea, of Bowling Green; Alexander, deceased; Julius, deceased; John, of Rudolph, Wood county; Gilbert, our subject; Theodore, residing in Toledo, Ohio; Marshall, in Bowling Green; Frank, in Ducat, Wood county (named in honor of this family); and Frederick and Victoria, who both died in infancy.

Gilbert Ducat, our subject, spent his early life chiefly in Wood county. The conditions of pioneer life were not favorable to education, and he received no schooling; but good natural abilities enabled him to overcome in a measure this lack of opportunity for learning. On November 25, 1865, he was married to Miss Amelia Ganger, a lady of French-Canadian descent, who was born March 31, 1844, in Michigan, the daughter of Lewis and Olive (Roe) Ganger. At the age of thirteen she came with her parents to Rudolph, Wood county, where her father still lives at the age of seventy-seven. Her mother, who was born in 1818, died in 1890. Mrs. Ducat was the second of their eleven children. The eldest, Victoria, now deceased, was the wife of Julius Ducat. The third, Harriet, is the wife of Paul Groneau; Mary married Victor Puye; Matilda married. Fred Crostalker, of Bowling Green; Ellen is the wife of Lewis Sanglier; George lives in North Baltimore, Wood county; Daniel, in Liberty township; Cyril, near Rudolph; and Napoleon; the youngest child died in infancy. Mr. and Mrs. Ducat settled upon a farm in Liberty township after their marriage, where four children were born to them, none of whom lived to maturity except the third, Napoleon, who was born August 21, 1868, and is now at home. The names of the others with the dates of birth and death are as follows: Henry, born January 30, 1867, died February 9, 1868; Louis Franklin, born November 6, 1873, died in May, 1875; Abraham, born in 1869, died in 1882. Fortunately for our subject his farm lies within the "oil belt," and some years ago four wells were sunk upon it from which he has since derived a good income. In 1889 he retired from active business and removed to Bowling Green. He and his wife are faithful members of the Roman Catholic Church, as all their ancestors have been, and their wealth enables them to take an active part in many worthy enterprises. In politics Mr. Ducat is a Democrat.

Geo. W. Wilkinson

ABNER CUMMINGS (deceased) was a prominent and representative citizen of Wood county, highly esteemed by all who knew him. He was born in Cleveland, Ohio, April 23, 1829, and acquired his education in the public schools of that city. He afterward removed to Tontogany, Ohio, where he learned the carpenter's trade, and later entered eighty acres of land from the government in Washington township, and bought an additional eighty acres. This he operated and improved for a time, and then sold eighty acres and purchased the Crum farm of eighty acres. On selling this property, he removed to Haskins, where he purchased a farm of similar size, which is now the abode of his widow.

In 1855 Mr. Cummings was united in marriage with Christina Cameron, who was born in Caledonia, N. Y., a daughter of James and Maria (Davis) Cameron, of Scotch and English descent. Our subject and his wife became the parents of six children: Helen, born June 29, 1858, now the wife of G. A. Repass; Lillie, born December 19, 1861, now the wife of Edward Centurg, a railroad man, Toledo, Ohio; Lucy, born April 9, 1864;

Annette, born August 28, 1866; Fred, born March 12, 1870, and in 1892 married Jennie Jenson, by whom he has two children, the eldest, Lenore, born April 30, 1893, and Delos Abner, born August 28, 1896; and Mary, who was born December, 1867, and died in 1869.

During the Civil war, Mr. Cummings enlisted in Company B, 144th O. V. I., under Capt. Black, and participated in a number of engagements. In politics he was a Republican, served as trustee and supervisor of Weston township, and for a number of years was school director at Tontogany. He was a prominent member of the Methodist Episcopal Church, was superintendent of the Sunday-school, and his many excellent qualities gained him high regard. He died in 1878, respected by all who knew him. His widow still resides on the old homestead, and the family is one of prominence in the community. Mrs. Cummings is a member of the Methodist Church at Tontogany; her daughters are members of the Baptist Church, and their circle of friends is limited only by the circle of their acquaintances.

AMOS DEWESE, a well-known resident of Weston township, was born August 18, 1823, in Paris township, Stark county, Ohio. The first ancestor of the family of whom a record is given was Carl, the great-grandfather of our subject, who lived in Berks county, Penn., and was a soldier in the Revolutionary war. He had seven children—John, William, Elizabeth, Samuel, Powell, Thomas and David. His son Samuel became a captain in the Revolutionary army, and also served in the war of 1812, a biography of his life being published previous to his death.

Thomas Dewese, who was the grandfather of our subject, was born in Berks county, Penn., May 4, 1770. He was a school teacher in early life, and later became a farmer. He was married to Miss Catherine Bessey, who was born May 18, 1767, and they emigrated to Stark county, Ohio, in 1808; where they both died at advanced ages. Their children were as follows: (1) Lutice, was married July 7, 1808, to Jasper Daniels, who was a preacher in the Disciples Church. They emigrated to the West, and he died in Illinois; (2) Samuel, the father of our subject; (3) Elizabeth was married July 18, 1815, to John Wickerd (he died in Hancock county, Ohio, and she in Michigan); (4) Catherine became the wife of Thomas Ebe September 7, 1817, and both died in Wayne county, Ohio; (5) Sarah was married March 19, 1820, to Andrew Livingstone, and both died in Wayne county; (6) Martha W. married Christian Shiveley October 30, 1821, and both died in Wayne county; (7) Uriah married Mary Snyder February 22, 1824, and died in Stark county; (8) Rebecca married Isaac Kelley August 23, 1827, and she was accidentally burned to death (her husband removed to the West); (9) Thomas was married October 6, 1830, to Sarah Watkins. Thomas Dewese and two other families were the first pioneers who settled in Paris township, Stark county, Ohio.

Samuel Dewese, father of our subject, was born in Bucks county, Penn., March 5, 1793, and emigrated with his father's family in 1808 to Stark county, Ohio. On May 13, 1814, at the age of twenty, Mr. Dewese enlisted at the village of Canton, under Capt. James Drennan, for the war of 1812, and served under Gen. Harrison until the expiration of his term of service. He was discharged at Detroit, Mich., May 14, 1814. When first enlisted he went to Cleveland, Ohio, and from there to Fort Stephenson, now Fremont, arriving there the day after the battle, when the fort was so gallantly and successfully defended by Major Croghan. From this place his regiment was sent to Fort Ball, and from there to the mouth of the Portage river; there the command took flat boats and crossed over the lake to Detroit. While at Detroit in the winter of 1814, Mr. Dewese was sent by order of Gen. Harrison as a scout to the Thames river. The mission was a difficult and dangerous one, but the young man accomplished his object. After his discharge Mr. Dewese returned home and labored on a farm. On May 16, 1815, he married Miss Sarah Boyer, who was born in Stark county February 19, 1798, and died August 6, 1824. They had six children, as follows: Margaret, born February 20, 1817, married Asa Hutchinson, and was the mother of thirteen children, and died in Wood county; Thomas, July 26, 1818, died in Canton, Ohio, July 20, 1892; Caroline, May 10, 1820, was postmistress in Fork Top, Mecosta county, Mich., and was the oldest incumbent of that office in the State, when she lost the position in 1894; Amy, December 26, 1821, married James Hutchinson, and died in Bowling Green March 14, 1891; Amos, the subject of this sketch; the sixth child died in infancy. Mr. Dewese was married, a second time, November 16, 1828, taking for his wife Miss Annie Switzer, of Stark county, who died after the birth of twelve children, and was buried at Weston, Ohio. The children of the second marriage are as follows: Jesse died in Wood county, and left a family; Dennis died when a boy; Franklin died in childhood; Mary Ann married John Wade, and died in Wood county; Noah died in childhood; Samuel was a soldier in the Civil war, and resides in Michigan; Uriah, a farmer of Weston township, was also a soldier in the Civil war; Parmilla married W. Wade, and lives in Iowa; Gurselda is the wife of Charles Bassett, and lives in Weston; Chauncey died while a prisoner at Danville, Va., November 6, 1864, during the Civil war. The other two children died in infancy.

Amos Dewese, the subject of this sketch, received but meager school advantages before coming to Wood county, and of his first experiences in this wilderness let the following article, written by him, for the Weston Herald, and published in 1883, speak for itself:

DEWESE CORNERS, February 17, 1883.

"Ed. Herald: As this day is my fortieth anniversary in Wood county, I will, with your permission, give your many readers a brief sketch of my first year of pioneer life in the county. I came here February 17, 1843. The snow was eighteen inches deep when I started from Hancock county without one cent of money, but a few clothes, and a dry chunk of bread constituting my pack; my shoes out at the toes; and carrying a few books. In the evening I crossed the line and saw a hunter riding an old horse, to the tail of which was tied a large deer. I followed a trail and came to a Mr. Robbins', of Bloom township, where I stayed all night. Early next morning I started for Mr. Frankfanter's, at Bloom Centre, found my old friend Joseph Shelia, and made my home with him, and went to chopping to get me a pair of boots. Mr. S. and I rode through the woods to Ridsen and Rome (now Fostoria), for an axe. We found a few, but as they wouldn't trust either of us, we had to return without it. Then I went back to Hancock county, got my axe, and was rich. I took a job of a Mr. Buisey to chop seven acres, for which he gave me a rifle and some second-hand clothing. I finished the job on March 24, when the mercury was twenty degrees below zero, that winter being still known as the 'hard winter.'

"I began work for Mr. Solether April 1; snow and ice on the ground, and sleighing. He gave me a watch. While working there a Mr. Jonathan Stull came into the clearing. He had a bag on his shoulder with a peck of ears of corn that he had got from a Mr. Daniel Milbourn. Mr. Stull was much depressed and discouraged on account of the terrible hard winter. We talked of Adventism, as the Millerites said the end of the world was at hand. Mr. Stull said he prayed for it every day, as he had seen all the trouble he had wanted to see. He said he had eight head of horses, and all had died; twenty-eight head of cattle and two hundred and sixty head of hogs, and all were dead. I had to pass Mr. Stull's cabin often. He told me that he had been married twelve years, and they had ten children, all of whom were almost nude. Not one had a full suit of clothes. They hadn't a bed nor a window in the house. He was the owner of a three-quarter section of good land. 'There,' said Mr. Stull, 'I have one peck of ears of corn in this sack, and when I take it home and grind it in the hand-mill, and mix it with water, bake and eat it with my wife and ten children, God knows where the next will come from. They must starve.' He wept like a child. [Mr. Stull was the founder of Jerry City.]

"During my stay with Mr. Buissey I had to go to and from Mr. Shelia's. I had to pass a number of cabins, forsaken and uninhabited. They looked gloomy enough, surrounded by ice and water and the dismal swamp. A number of wild hogs had taken possession of a new one which had belonged to a Mr. John Ford. They had piled in on top of each other, and there perished from cold and hunger. When out hunting for coons and minks, whenever we found hogs they were invariably dead. I next worked for Mr. Whitaker two weeks, and received $3.25 in June. Then I went to Milton Center, and cleared five acres for James Hutchinson for a pair of two-year-old steers. In July I went to James Bloom's, worked for Bloom and Henderson Carothers, helped cut forty-five acres of wheat, and cut and haul a hundred tons of tame prairie hay, for which I received one pair of boots and fifty cents in money—a sum total in money for the year, $3.75. In the beginning of the winter of the year 1843 I went to Ralph Keeler's to work for my board and go to school in the old log school-house in Weston. Mr. Keeler took sick, and as I had to take care of him and his stock, I lost the benefit of the school. I worked for him three months for twenty-five dollars, to take my pay out of the store.

"I will attempt to describe the old Taylor school house. It was located in the back part of the lot now owned by Mr. Henry, on Main street. It was true pioneer in style, with punch-eon floor, benches and desks made of the same. Round logs cut off, with ribs and weigh-poles to hold down the clapboards; windows, one row of glass, each eight by ten; writing desk, punch-eon laid on pins driven in the wall. The teacher, Mr. Jesse Osborne, of New York State, received twenty-five cents a day, or five dollars a month. The scholars were Miss Mary Taylor, George, Lewis, Thomas and William Taylor; Samuel McAtee, who lived with Andrew Moorhouse; Olmsted, Amelia and Melicent Keeler. The teacher was paid by the parents, there being no school fund at that time. Mr. Taylor lost about forty-five head of cattle; Mr. Keeler seventy-five head, while the Sargents, Elsworth, Saulsbury and Green lost about the same proportion during that terrible winter, never to be forgotten by the old settlers. Many had to move out of the Black Swamp before spring. So ended my first year as a PIONEER."

The vicissitudes of Mr. Dewese's early life were relieved by the sports of the hour, and he often engaged in the hunt and the chase when heavy game was abundant in the Black Swamp. He was not content, however, and yearned to cast his fate with the possibilities of the "Far West." He had all the preparations made to take a Western trip, when his father came to Wood county, entered land, and prevailed upon our subject to do the same and remain with him. True to a strong impulse of family unity that has been handed down to the latest generation of the Dewese family, he allowed the parents' advice to prevail, and on March 1, 1851, he entered the land which forms a portion of his present magnificent estate. On this he built a log house and commenced to make general improvements, and for two years kept "bachelor's hall." On November 3, 1853, Mr. Dewese was united in marriage to Miss Sarah Green, who was born August 17, 1829, in Liverpool, England, and came to this country with her parents in 1834.

Of this marriage three sons were born, of whom the following record is given: (1) William, born March 21, 1856, was married January 25, 1887, to Miss Caroline Elizabeth Sautter, who was born in Huron county, August 17, 1866. They have two children, Donald R., born September 17, 1891; and Floyd M., born May 4, 1893. (2) George J., born April 30, 1858, was married November 29, 1881, to Miss Lucy Lee, whose birth took place January 7, 1864. They have one child, Sarah E., born January 20, 1887. When twenty-three years of age George J. entered the mercantile business in Weston under the firm name of Oswald & Dewese, they being the successors of A. J. Munn. Two years later he sold out his interest and went to farming, which he carried on until June, 1885, when he was appointed postal clerk, his run being between Toledo and Cincinnati. He held this position for about fifteen months when he returned to agricultural pursuits, in which he finds this most congenial occupation, and now resides in a pleasant home on a portion of the Dewese estate, close to the suburbs of Weston. He is a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church at the latter place. (3) Amos R., the youngest son of our subject, was born August 24, 1865. He is unmarried, and assists his father in the management of his estate.

Of the many pioneer couples whose names link the present advanced state of affairs in Wood county with its most primitive conditions, none have taken a more active part in the progress made than Mr. and Mrs. Dewese, and but few have been spared to such a ripe and healthful old age as this worthy pair, who still retain all their faculties and evince that eager interest in passing events which they manifested in the vigor of life. The following account of their silver wedding is taken from a Toledo paper:

"At an early hour last evening, November 7, 1878, the many friends of Mr. and Mrs. Amos Dewese began to gather at their elegant residence, about two miles north of Weston, until about from seventy to ninety guests had assembled to participate in the festivities of the occasion, and to congratulate the happy couple upon the joyful return of the twenty-fifth anniversary of their wedding day. We must say that a more pleasant company it was never our good fortune to witness. Every one seemed to catch and imbibe some of the happiness of the bride and groom. As we wandered through the elegant home of our hosts, and noticed the gentlemanly deportment and manly bearing of their sons, and the marks of comfort and luxury on every hand, and thought that twenty-five years ago the then young bride and groom, in what was then almost a wilderness, with no other fortune than brave, honest and willing hands, with no other wealth but industry, integrity and economy, had grappled as pioneers with poverty and nature's unbroken soil, we could not refrain from admiring the work of a quarter of a century, and almost envied the wedded pair their joy as they looked back over the twenty-five years of their happy union. After an hour and a half spent in social greetings, friendly congratulations and kindly expressed wishes of future happiness for the bride and groom, the company assembled in the parlors, and the Rev. M. L. Donahey invoked upon the happy couple the blessing of God, and in a neat and appropriate speech, in behalf of the donors, presented to them the many beautiful gifts of their friends, to which Mr. Dewese, with his wife leaning upon his arm (with as much of happiness and less of doubt than twenty-five years before), responded with a grateful acknowledgement. After some good music and singing, the company gathered around the bountifully spread tables and partook of a repast, which they all seemed to enjoy. Then, after a little more chatting, a little more visiting, a little more singing, and (alas in some instances, we are informed) a little more flirting, the guests scattered to their respective homes, each one saying, 'What a pleasant time we have had;' 'How nicely everything passed off.'"

Honorable citizenship with financial independence has been the ambition of Mr. Dewese, and that this has been more than satisfied is easily learned in Wood county. There is no name in the county better known than his, nor is there a home more abundantly filled with the choicest products of the earth. The hospitality of the Dewese family is known far and near, and as agriculturists they are accepted authorities for miles around. Two of the sons live with their parents on the old homestead, which is a palatial residence erected in 1877. The harmony that exists in the family is remarkable; the interest of one is the interest of all, and although each of the sons has an individual property of his own, the main estate is held in common. The sons of Mr. Dewese received only a common-school education, as did their father, but the breadth and scope of their reading, and their original manner of thinking, make them among the best informed people of Wood county. As samples of physical manhood, these men have certainly no equal in any one family in the county, the father having the frame of a giant, and the smallest of the three sons weighing one hundred and ninety pounds.

Mr. Dewese was formerly a Republican, but he says he watched the evils of protection as they gradually gained a hold upon the country to the detriment of the agricultural masses, he asserted his right to think for himself, disavowed allegiance to the Republican party, and became a Democrat. Party organizations have tried to whip him back into the Republican ranks, but in vain, as he is firm in his belief that he is on the right side of the question.

B. L. PETERS, a prominent pioneer of North Baltimore, and an active business man and property owner, was born in Guernsey county, Ohio, July 13, 1830, and was the son of Abraham and Edith (Runyan) Peters.

Abraham Peters, the great-grandfather, came with his wife from Germany in Colonial days, and located in Rockingham county, Va., where he took up 900 acres of land under what was

D. C. Peters

Tillie Peters

Hammy Peters

B. L. Peters

known in the English law as "Tomahawk Right." The land followed up the narrow strip along one stream a great distance, and down another. The old people died there, and the estate passed into the hands of our subject's great uncle. The grandfather, also named Abraham, was raised in Rockingham county, Va., where he married a Miss Catherine Zircle, and, after remaining in Virginia for a while, they came to Guernsey county, Ohio. They had the following children: Abraham, Isaac, Solomon, Reuben and Daniel. They all settled in Guernsey county before Ohio became a State, and the old people died there.

Abraham Peters, father of our subject, grew to manhood in Guernsey county, and after his marriage remained there until 1834, when he moved to Richland county, bought a farm, and lived there until the fall of 1847, at which time he came to Henry township, Wood county. He bought land one mile and a half north of what is now North Baltimore, made his home and reared his family there. He died in February, 1879. His wife was born in Berks county, Penn., September 8, 1808, and died in Henry township February 1, 1895. They were the parents of nine children, as follows: B. L., our subject; William; Sarah, who married D. Hough, and died in Michigan; Mary E., deceased; John C., who lives in Henry township; Angeline, married to Jacob Ackerman; Franklin living in Henry township; Edith A. and Emily J., twins (Edith married Joseph Grove, and they live in Michigan; Emily is unmarried).

John Brown, the maternal grandfather, was born in New Jersey, of English parents, and was a soldier in the Revolutionary war. All of our subject's ancestors were longlived. His grandmother was 112 years old at the time of her death, and his paternal grandfather was 103.

B. L. Peters was about eighteen years old when he came to Wood county. He attended school until sufficiently qualified to obtain a teacher's certificate, which he secured, and then began teaching. Most of his learning was obtained at home by diligent study, which he carried on at night with the aid of a blazing log and hickory bark, in an old-fashioned fireplace; but he was ambitious to learn, and succeeded, even under all the existing difficulties. He had a special talent for mathematics. For about seven years he alternated between teaching and working on a farm, in the meantime being married March 24, 1853, to Miss Fanny Ackerman. Their children were as follows: William L., deceased when two and one half years old; David E., whose sketch appears elsewhere; Sarah C., who married Joel Rogers, by whom she had two children—Arthur and Louis (after her husband's death she married J. B. Todd, of Bowling Green, and two children were born to them—Lee and Fanny); Bassett H., a merchant in North Baltimore, who married Florence McLaren, daughter of Dr. McLaren; Fannie J., who died when eight years old; Lydia, now the wife of J. C. Solether, one of the county school examiners, and superintendent of Jerry City High School; Hallie; Loren; Pliny; Harry; and McClellan, who is employed in a store in North Baltimore (he married Miss Ollie Genter, and they have two children—Don and Lenora).

Mr. Peters settled on a farm in Henry township until the fall of 1873, when he assisted in laying out the town of North Baltimore. He started the first store, and owned and edited the first newspaper in the place, the North Baltimore Enterprise, which he subsequently moved to Bowling Green, where it is known as the Bowling Green Democrat. After disposing of the paper, Mr. Peters devoted his time to the development of North Baltimore. His work in that direction was most important, and it is largely due to his efforts that the town is in its present flourishing and prosperous condition. He owned a great part of the land on which the town is now situated, helped to organize the First National Bank, was interested in the first sawmill, owned the first store, was the first agent on the Baltimore & Ohio railroad, and was a heavy dealer in grain; he is now engaged in the real-estate and insurance business. He upholds the principles of the Democratic party; is a member of the United Brethren Church, and is strictly temperate in his habits, although he never took the pledge. For thirty years he has been a notary public and justice of the peace. Mr. Peters' importance to North Baltimore cannot be estimated, and he is justly considered the pioneer father of the town. He has served as mayor of the city four years, and has held one or another of the township offices of trust ever since he was twenty-three years old.

Mrs. Fanny (Ackerman) Peters was born October 7, 1832, in Lancaster county, Penn., near Harrisburg, the eldest daughter of David and Catherine Ackerman, who moved to Wood county, Ohio, in May, 1838, settling on wild land. Here Mr. Ackerman cleared up a new farm, and became one of the most prominent men in the community. He served as township trustee for many years, and held other offices of trust. His wife was one of the most industrious and persevering of women, ever ready to give a helping hand in time of need or sickness, and her daughter Fanny seems to have inherited her mother's good qualities. While quite young she was beloved and respected by all who made her acquaintance. In 1859, she and her husband identified themselves with the United Brethren Church, and she has been a prominent member of that society ever since. Having purchased a portion of the old homestead, on which oil was afterward discovered, she has become worth several thousand dollars in her own right. She is one of the pioneer women of Wood county, and has done much to make North Baltimore the prosperous town it is. Always cheerful and contented, not easily discouraged, ever ready to assist the poor and needy, Mrs. Fanny Peters is held in great respect by those who know her best.

D. E. PETERS, assistant cashier and director of the First National Bank of North Baltimore, was born in Henry township, Wood county, October 16, 1855.

Our subject's early years were spent on a farm, and in attending the public schools. He then worked in his father's store, and, when the newspaper then known as the North Baltimore Enterprise (now the Wood County Democrat at Bowling Green) was organized, without previous experience or preparation, demonstrated his natural abilities in that line by taking charge of it. The paper, which was a thoroughly popular Democratic weekly, was moved to Bowling Green, our subject retaining the management of it, and remaining with it until it was sold, when he returned to North Baltimore. He soon afterward formed a partnership with Jeff. Richcreek as retail carriage dealers, and after continuing in this business two years closed out and clerked for one year in a dry-goods store in North Baltimore. In 1885 Mr. Peters moved to Charlotte, Mich., and engaged in the wholesale and retail grocery business. Two years later he returned to North Baltimore, and entered the insurance business with his father, continuing in that until the opening of the First National Bank, of which he became one of the stockholders and accepted the position of assistant cashier. He is still identified with his father in the insurance business, and is also secretary of the Home Savings & Loan Association. He is a stanch believer in the principles of the Democratic party. Socially he is a member of the Knights of Pythias.

Mr. Peters was married, November 13, 1876, to Miss Tillie Crosser, who was born in Henry township, March 6, 1857, and received her education in the public schools of Denver, Wood county. Two children have been born to this union, Pearl and Deloy. Mrs. Peters is a daughter of Daniel and Nancy (Archer) Crosser, both of whom were born in Richland county, Ohio, the former in 1806, the latter in 1816; the father died in 1871 in Wood county, the mother in 1890. They are buried in the "Ten-Mile cemetery." They became the parents of eleven children, nine of whom are living. They were pioneers of Henry township, Wood county, and entered their land from the government. Mr. Crosser was a great hunter.

C. G. McCAULEY, proprietor of the marble works at Bowling Green, and a prosperous business man of that city, was born in Stark county, Ohio, May 24, 1854. He is a son of Joseph and Ruth (Reed) McCauley. Joseph McCauley was born of Irish parents, in Chester county, Penn., August 8, 1820. He was married, in 1844, in Salem, Columbiana Co., Ohio, removing to Lima, Ohio, where he died. His wife, Ruth Reed, was born in Salem, in 1824, and is now residing in Lima.

The subject of this sketch obtained his education in the public schools, and when thirteen years old began learning the trade of a marble cutter, in which he served an apprenticeship of five years. He worked for a time at his trade at Lima, and at Fort Wayne, Ind., where for two years he was also employed as fireman of an engine on the C. H. & D. railway. He then became a commercial traveler for J. D. Halter, of Lima, Ohio, selling monuments, etc., which occupation he followed for two years. In 1877 he located permanently in Bowling Green, and on April 15 of that year established his present business, in which he has been successfully engaged ever since.

Mr. McCauley possesses the advantage of a thorough acquaintance in all the details of his business, being not only a stonecutter and marble finisher of the highest order, but also a firstclass salesman, and it is due to his ability in this direction, as much as anything else, that his trade has grown so rapidly and has spread over such a large extent of country, his goods being placed on the market not only in Ohio but in Michigan, Pennsylvania and Indiana as well. He is a man of untiring energy and industry, and has an enviable reputation among the business men for square dealing and honest methods.

Mr. McCauley was married June 4, 1879, to Miss Florence E. Reid, who was born in Trumbull county, Ohio, January 10, 1856, her parents being Thomas C. and Margaret M. Reid, who removed to Wood county, Ohio, in 1866. Five children have blessed this union, namely: Ina, Arthur (died October 10, 1885), Florence, Reid, and Floyd. Our subject is a Republican, and while not a politician in the ordinary sense of the word, takes an interest, as every good citizen should do, in affairs relating to his own county and State. Socially he belongs to Centennial Lodge, No. 626, I. O. O. F.; Canton Alpine, No. 26, I. O. O. F., at Bowling Green, Ohio., and Lodge No. 53, of the Elks, at Toledo. He holds a high place in the regard of his fellow men, and is one of the worthy citizens of Wood county.

S. S. HOPKINS. Among the substantial and prosperous citizens of Bowling Green, must be classed the man whose name opens this sketch, and who commands the respect of the community as a man of enterprise, and also as a brave soldier of the Civil war. He was born in Huron county, Ohio, February 23, 1839, and is the son of George and Hannah (Smith) Hopkins. The Hopkins family is of Irish and Welsh ancestry. Moses Hopkins, father of George Hopkins, and grandfather of our subject, died in Erie county, Ohio.

The father of our subject was born in Genesee county, N. Y., in 1802, and came to Erie county, Ohio, in 1823, walking all the way. At that time there was only one house where the city of Cleveland now stands, and everything was in the most primitive condition. Mr. Hopkins was a wagon maker by trade, and he was offered every inducement to remain there, but he was bound for the then "Emporium of the West," Milan, Erie county, and would not be persuaded to stop short of his destination. He remained at Milan until 1844, when he went to DeKalb county, Ind., and seven years later returned to Ohio. In 1824 he crossed Lake Erie on the first and only steamer plying on that lake, and was in Detroit, Mich., when its population numbered only two hundred souls. He died in 1864. His wife died at Napoleon, Henry county, when ninety years of age.

Of the nine children born to George Hopkins and his wife, eight grew to maturity, as follows: Mary Ann, wife of L. Weaver, of Napoleon, Henry county; Smith, who died in Henry county, Ohio; Charles B. lives in Illinois. He is an architect and was superintendent of the construction of the State building in Tokeka, Kans. (during the war he served in a mechanics' regiment, building bridges, pontoons, etc.); Harriet became the wife of L. Smith, and died in 1874 in Iowa;

Carolina married Milton Stout, of Henry county; Homer P. lives in South Bend, Ind. (he served in the army of the Potomac from its organization until Grant captured Richmond); George resides in Cincinnati, Ohio (he enlisted when but fifteen years old, and served through the entire war, going with Sherman to the sea); S. S. is subject of this sketch.

S. S. Hopkins spent his younger days in Henry county, where he attended school and learned the trade of a blacksmith. He was married August 20, 1863, in Henry county, to Miss Mary E. Reynolds, who also was born in Baltimore, January 18, 1845, and four children have blessed their union: John G., born September 15, 1864, married Miss Flora Van Tassel; Laura is the wife of A. Peters, of Bowling Green; Edward, born November 25, 1868, married Nettie Phenix, and they have one child, Fern; Mina May, born August 4, 1870, is the wife of Oliver Shearer, of Plain township.

Mr. Hopkins began his married life in Henry county, and followed his trade in the town of Florida, until 1865, when he removed to Napoleon, where he remained for ten years, and in 1875 returned to Florida. From the latter date until 1884, he lived successively in Defiance, Napoleon, and Toledo, coming to Bowling Green in the latter year. Since making his home in Bowling Green Mr. Hopkins and his sons have carried on a large business, doing not only horse-shoeing but carriage work and painting. He is an energetic, active man, remarkable for his youthful appearance, and is to-day seemingly not over forty years of age. He is a consistent member of the Presbyterian Church, and is prominent in the I. O. O. F., in which he is a past grand, and at present is past chief patriarch in the order at Bowling Green. When the Civil war broke out, Mr. Hopkins was the first man to enlist from Erie county, Ohio, going out with Company D, 8th O. V. I., for three months. At the expiration of his term of enlistment, he returned home to care for his aged parents, who had been left alone by the enlistments of the other three boys.

PERRY G. EMMETT, one of the oldest and most respected of Wood county's agriculturists, now residing near Fenton, Webster township, is a native of Lincolnshire, England, born April 26, 1820. It is supposed that the family are descended from the famous Irish patriot, Robert Emmett.

His father, John V. Emmett, a sailor by occupation, married Miss Martha Banks, of Cranuel, England, and reared to adult age a family of seven children, of whom the subject of this sketch is the eldest. The others are—Thomas; Charles; Martha, the wife of Thos. Yarwood, of England; Elizabeth, wife of Charles Roper, of Fenton, Ohio; Ann, the wife of G. Graves, of Paulding county; and George, a resident of Buffalo, N. Y. Four other children died in early infancy. The later years of Mr. Emmett's parents were passed upon a farm in England, his father leaving the sea for agricultural pursuits some years before his marriage.

Mr. Emmett received a limited education in his native country, and was sent out to work at an early age, tending sheep for his board and clothes. At twelve he began working on a farm at one shilling a week, and continued farm labor until the age of twenty-one, when he secured employment on public works. As soon as he had saved enough money, he came to America, landing at Quebec, in 1844. After remaining in America about six months, he returned to England, and remained there five years, returning to this country in July, 1849, landing at New York, thence going to Chicago, where he engaged in brick making. In 1850 he bought eighty acres of land in Huron county, which he cultivated for a short time, and then sold, moving to Erie county, remaining until 1858 when he came to Wood county. His first purchase was a tract of forty acres; but his thrift and enterprise have enabled him to add to it until he now has one hundred acres under cultivation. His attention is given chiefly to stock and grain raising, and he was the first to introduce Lincolnshire sheep into this county.

On October 26, 1851, Mr. Emmett, married Miss Emily Hunt, a native of Franklin county, N. Y., born April 28, 1830, the daughter of John and Nancy (Lloyd) Hunt. Six children were born of this marriage: Martha, the wife of Isaac Dent; Perry, born June 19, 1854; Isaac, born April 26, 1856; Mary E., the wife of Henry Williamson; George W., who manages the old homestead, and Elizabeth, who died in infancy. Mr. Emmett has always taken an active interest in public movements, and in politics he is an independent voter.

George W. Emmett, our subject's youngest son, was born in Webster township, Wood county, September 10, 1871. He was educated in the schools near his home, and has always been his father's assistant, in later years relieving him entirely of the work of the farm. Industrious, sober, and clever, he is a worthy descendant of this honored family, and his genial manners make him popular wherever he is known.

On July 26, 1894, he married Miss Ruby Coger, who was born in Elmore, Ohio, February 4, 1877, the daughter of Orlando and Katie (Boland) Coger, prominent residents of Troy township.

SOLOMON KUDER, deceased. The subject of this sketch, one of the honored pioneers of Wood county, and for many years a farmer near Tontogany, was born near Lancaster, Penn., September 4, 1790. In early manhood he entered the service of his country as a soldier of the war of 1812, and served one year.

He was married December 22, 1816, at Circleville, Ohio, to Miss Catherine Row, who was born near Philadelphia, Penn., April 7, 1800. Her parents came to Ohio across the mountains in a wagon. In 1821 Mr. Kuder moved to Tiffin, where he engaged in milling, and in 1836 he came to Wood county and entered a tract of 1,100 acres of land at the government price, with a view to stock-raising; but his cattle being afflicted with murrain, he abandoned that enterprise and engaged in agriculture. He was prominent among the early settlers, having resided near Tontogany about thirty-seven years, and previous to the Civil war was a member of the Whig party, later becoming a Republican. His wife died June 15, 1870, and on Friday, August 15, 1873, at 2 P. M., Mr. Kuder passed to his long rest, aged eighty-two years, eleven months and eleven days, after many months of suffering.

Fifteen children were born to this union, of whom only three are now living. The names, with dates of birth, and of death of those deceased, are as follows: John, October 3, 1817, died September 3, 1818; Elizabeth, March 25, 1819, died September 25, 1819; Malinda, October 13, 1820, died August 2, 1888 (she was formerly the wife of Alexander Alcorn); Nelson, August 21, 1822, died April 30, 1888 (he was a farmer); Catherine, August 8, 1824, was the wife of Judge Tuller, of Tontogany, and died in 1870; Margaret Ann, July 17, 1826, is the widow of John McColley, of Tontogany; Josiah Hedges, July 16, 1826, died July 6, 1882 (he was a farmer here); Mary Jane, April 30, 1830, died September 13, 1850; Eliza, December 25, 1831, married Barnard Phillip, of Washington township; Wellington, November 18, 1833, died April 7, 1841, having met his death by accident; Sarah M., February 2, 1836, died March 9, 1890 (she had been a teacher in early life); Martha Hortensia, October 13, 1837, never married, but with her sister Sarah remained at home and was the mainstay of her parents, caring for them tenderly in their declining years; Victoria Virginia, June 12, 1839, died January 14, 1882 (she married E. B. Beverstock); Harrison, November 14, 1840, died November 13, 1854; and Caroline, born September 16, 1842, married E. Ketcham, and died December 10, 1869.

Solomon Fuder

Mr. Kuder divided his choice lands among his children as they reached maturity, and he and his wife had the satisfaction of seeing them settled near them, and of receiving in old age their affectionate care. He was a pensioner of the war of 1812, and received also a land warrant for his services at that trying period. Miss Martha Kuder has in her possession, among other valuable relics, her father's pension papers, and a deed made to him which was signed by the hand of Andrew Jackson.

A. L. MUIR, president of the Wood County Tribune Company, and editor of both the daily and weekly editions of the Tribune, was born in Webster township, Wood Co., Ohio, January 5, 1857. Thoroughly identified with the best interests of his native county, he takes a conspicuous part in public affairs, and it is to his competent editorial management, that the growing popularity of the Tribune, with the reading public, is due.

John Muir, grandfather of our subject, was born in Scotland, and came to America in 1832, locating at Perrysburg, Wood county, and moved to Webster township, where he built the first Presbyterian church out of logs. Notwithstanding the hard work and privations of pioneer life, he lived to the ripe old age of ninety-six. His wife, in her maidenhood was Mary Prentiss. John Muir, Jr., our subject's father, was born on a farm near Aberdeen, Scotland, in 1824, and was eight years old when his parents established their home in this county. He received no regular schooling in his boyhood, and was engaged in agricultural pursuits from early years. During the Civil war he served for three years and three months in Company L, 3rd O. V. C., under Gen. Kilpatrick, army of the Tennessee, holding rank as corporal and sergeant. He is one of four living children out of a family of seven, all of whom lived to the age of forty and over. He is an ardent Republican, and has taken an active part in local affairs, serving for some time as director of the County Infirmary. He married Miss Catharine C. Pember, a member of the old pioneer family for whom Pemberville was named. Her father, Carlisle Pember, was a native of Pennsylvania, and came in 1832 to Wood county, where he located on the "Dutch Fields" at the forks of the Portage river, now Pemberville, and erected sawmills and gristmills. He married Elizabeth Radabaugh, and reared a family of four children. Our subject's parents have been for many years leading members of the U. B. Church at Pemberville, where they still reside. Seven children were born to them: Elizabeth, the wife of James H. Muir, of Pemberville; John, a guard in the penitentiary at Columbus; Robert, a collector at Toledo; Mary, the wife of Frank Cook, of Chicago, Ill.; A. L., our subject; Charles, a farmer in Webster township, and James P., the assistant superintendent of schools of Pemberville.

Our subject acquired a good education in early life in the Maumee Seminary, and the academy at Fostoria, which he has supplemented by continuous reading and observation. He followed teaching as a profession for thirteen years, and in 1887 was elected clerk of the county courts, being at the time the youngest official ever elected in Wood county. He filled this position for six years and six months, to the complete satisfaction of the public, and on his retirement in 1894 he bought an interest in the Tribune, where his abilities and knowledge find a constantly widening field of usefulness. He was married, in 1889, to Miss Addie Thurstin, who was born near Bowling Green, April 12, 1869. They have had two children: Ruth and Wallace. Politically Mr. Muir is a Republican, and he is prominent in the various fraternal societies, the K. of P., I. O. O. F., and is a Master Mason in Wood County Lodge.

N. R. HARRINGTON, a prominent attorney, of Bowling Green, was born August 27, 1860, in Pickaway county, Ohio, of English descent. His grandfather, William Harrington, was one of the early settlers of Trumbull county, coming from Vermont, and locating there in 1819. He died at the age of ninety-one.

W. A. Harrington, our subject's father, was born in Trumbull county, in 1829, and died there June 5, 1893. From 1858 to 1880 he followed farming in Pickaway and Madison counties, but he returned to his native place to spend the remainder of his days. He was a justice of the peace in Trumbull county for many years, and took an influential part in the local work of the Republican party. He married Miss Helen M. Ross, who was born in New Hampshire in 1835, and died in 1883. They were both active members of the Presbyterian Church, and leading spirits in the various progressive movements in their society. They had four children, our subject being the eldest; two died in infancy, and the other, Minnie M., is now the wife of Orlo Woodruff, of Rock Creek, Ohio.

Our subject received excellent instruction during his boyhood in the public schools of Warren, Ohio, and started in business life as the book-keeper for the Lima Paper Mills, of Lima, Ohio, and later was made secretary and superintendent of the works. He resigned in 1884 to study law, in the office of his uncle, C. A. Harrington, of Warren, a partner of William T. Spear, now justice of the supreme court of this State. While reading law he served as deputy clerk of court, for some time. He was admitted to the bar in March, 1887, at Columbus, and in the following May began the practice of his profession in Bowling Green. In 1888 he formed a partnership with Robert Dunn, in law and abstracting, which continued until 1890, when he went into business with his present partner, Frank Baldwin. In 1888 he was elected city solicitor on the Republican ticket, and made a fine record; but since the expiry of his term he has devoted himself to private practice, in which his marked abilities have already won him a high reputation. Mr. Harrington was married January 1, 1887, to Miss Laura Belle Case, of Trumbull county, and has three children: Edward A., Helen M. and Frank A.

REV. ANDREW HAYS, one of the most widely and favorably known citizens of Wood county, has for over half a century been engaged in the work of the ministry. He was born in Hanover township, Beaver Co., Penn., May 6, 1818, and is a son of Henry and Hettie (Marshall) Hays, the former a native of Maryland, and the latter of Hancock county, W. Va. They were the parents of seven children—Louisa, who became the wife of John Wade, died in Richland county, Ohio, and was buried at Plymouth; Marshall, a tailor, of Fostoria, Ohio, died in 1890; James, who also died in Fostoria, was for forty-nine years a successful school teacher; Andrew is the next in order of birth; David is a wealthy citizen of Fostoria; Thomas, who died in that city, was the proprietor of the "Hays House;" and Sarah A. died while young. The mother of this family died in Pennsylvania, and in Beaver county, that State, the father wedded Jane McCormick, by whom he had a son—John, who passed away in Charlotte, Mich., after reaching manhood.

Henry Hays owned a good farm in Beaver county, Penn., where he was regarded as one of the substantial farmers of that section; but in the spring of 1834, resolved to come to Wood county, where with his family he arrived on May 1, making the journey in a covered wagon, where the boys slept at night. While en route the family stopped in Richland county, Ohio, with a married daughter, Mrs. John Wade, and the father came on to enter his land. He secured 240 acres in Sections 20 and 29, Perry township, and then returned for his family. Nature was still undisturbed in this locality, and they had to cut their way through the dense timber to their home, where Mr. Hays died April 10, 1837, and was buried near Olive Branch church, in Hancock county. The funeral sermon, which was delivered by Wesley J. Brock, was among the first preached in the neighborhood. After it was over the minister offered to conduct services every two weeks if a place could be secured, and Mrs. John Chilcote offered her cabin home for the purpose. From that humble beginning sprang the beautiful edifice of Union Church, in Perry township. The father had served in the war of 1812, was a member of the convention held in Perry Center that organized Perry township in 1835, and was a Democrat in politics. He belonged to the Presbyterian Church, as did also Andrew's mother.

Andrew Hays was sixteen when he came to Wood county, and his primary education was secured in the district schools of his native county. When he left Pennsylvania he was but an ordinary scholar, but, as work was quite plentiful in those pioneer days, he did not continue his literary studies for three or four years. After his conversion at the age of nineteen years, he began reading some, and his first instruction here was in the South Ridge school. Later he attended a more advanced school taught by Lemuel L. Gorsuch, and for one year was a student in the seminary at Norwalk, Ohio, which was among the first Methodist schools in the State. While there he was licensed as an exhorter, and in the winter of 1844-45 was licensed to preach, since which time he has been a local minister, the year 1895 ending his fifty-third year as an expounder of the Gospel.

At Fostoria, Ohio, October 24, 1844, Mr. Hays was united in marriage with Miss Caroline Thomas, who was born in Chartiers township, Washington Co., Penn., August 23, 1823, and was a daughter of Joseph Thomas, a pioneer of Hancock county. Four children blessed this union: Edwin R. and Lorin N. were both attorneys of Knoxville, Marion Co., Iowa, where Edwin died February 26, 1896; Celestia died at the age of twenty-three years; and Emma B. is the wife of Edward Myers, of Tennessee. The mother of these children departed this life September 28, 1872, and was buried in Fostoria. In that city, on October 17, 1873, Mr. Hays wedded Mrs. Jane Thomas, widow of Cyrus Thomas, who was killed during the Civil war. She was born January 8, 1843, and bore the maiden name of Jane York, daughter of Cyrus York, who was a native of Hardin county, Ky. By his second marriage Mr. Hays has a son, Norman M., born May 28, 1877.

Our subject went to housekeeping in a small log cabin on his farm, but it was a happy home, where good cheer always abounded, as it does in the more comfortable home of his later years. For many terms he taught school, receiving fifteen dollars per month, and as low as twelve dollars, barely enough to supply the common necessities of life. However, he now has a good farm of 117 acres. During the war he supplied pulpits for miles around, has probably married more couples than any other minister in Wood county, and has officiated at over 1,000 funerals. He is well preserved for one of his years, both mentally and physically, has a very wide acquaintance throughout this territory, and is held in the highest regard by all who know him. His first Presidential vote was cast for William Henry Harrison, the Whig candidate. Being an Abolitionist from principle, he joined the Republican party on its organization, and now on account of his views on the temperance question he is a staunch Prohibitionist, believing it his Christian duty to do all in his power against the liquor traffic. He made the first Prohibition speech in Perry township, and probably in Wood county, and for three or four years cast the only Prohibition vote in Perry township.

ADELBERT D. TULLER is one of the leading agriculturists of Center township. His farm, with its tasteful and substantial buildings, its neat fences and general air of thrift and comfort, forms one of the most attractive spots in the landscape of the township. As a citizen and business man, our subject stands high in the estimation of his neighbors. In the various enterprises inaugurated for the advancement of the community, he has been a cheerful and ready assistant, and takes a lively interest in the progress of the people around him.

Mr. Tuller was born in Liberty township, Delaware Co., Ohio, September 26, 1839, and is a son of Alvin and Elvira (Maynard) Tuller, and brother of Dr. W. M. Tuller, of Bowling Green. His early life was spent after the manner of most farmers' sons, his education being carried on in the district schools during the winter, while in the summer he aided in the work of the fields. He remained with his father until 1864, when he enlisted in Company D, 20th O. V. I., at Delaware. From there the troops proceeded to Camp Chase, then to the Mississippi and Black river. For a time they were stationed at Cairo, Ill., and participated in the Atlanta campaign. Mr. Tuller was in all the engagements in which his company took part, and at the close of his service was honorably discharged at Louisville, Kentucky.

On returning to Ohio, our subject worked on the old homestead in Delaware for a time, and then removed to Licking county with his parents, where he operated eighty acres of land. He next went to Franklin county, where he farmed 110 acres for fourteen years, at the expiration of which time he came to Wood county, locating in Center township. In connection with the cultivation of the eighty-acre farm belonging to his brother, the Doctor, he also owns eighty acres, which was entirely unimproved at the time of his purchase.

In Delaware county, Ohio, in October, 1867, Mr. Tuller was united in marriage with Martha E. Smith, who was there born on March 27, 1845. She was called to her final reward December 17, 1869, and Mr. Tuller was subsequently wedded to Elizabeth A. Shanholts, of Licking county, born in 1849. Five children graced the second union, namely: LeOda, born April 26, 1872; LeElda, who was born November 12, 1874, and is the wife of Azro Perrin; Linden, born March 23, 1876; Olland, born February 12, 1878; and Worthy R., who died in infancy. The mother of these children died August 10, 1891, leaving many friends to mourn her loss. In politics Mr. Tuller is identified with the Republican party, being a strong believer in its principles. He is numbered among the honest, industrious and enterprising citizens of the township, and is respected throughout the community for his sterling worth and unbounded liberality.

RUFUS B. MOORE, attorney at law, formerly the junior member of the well-known firm of Parker & Moore, Bowling Green, was born March 30, 1860, in Hancock county, Ohio, and is a son of Levi and Margaret (Line) Moore. His father was born in Fairfield county, Ohio, in 1824, and his mother in the same county in 1826. They were married December 1, 1844, and celebrated their golden wedding in 1894, on their farm in Wood county. Mr. Moore, Sr., was reared upon a farm in the north part of Fairfield county, and received his education in the academy at Lythopolis, teaching for one year before his marriage, and for the same length of time afterward. He then entered the ministry of the United Brethren Church, becoming an itinerant, and was presiding elder of Sandusky Conference for a number of years. He was also for a time financial agent of Otterbein University, at Westerville, Ohio. In pursuit of his calling he made his home at various places, among them being Fostoria, Galion, Green Springs, Westerville, Elmore, and Bowling Green, retiring from active work about two years ago.

Five children were born to the parents of our subject: Melissa, who married A. H. Berry, and died at Galion in 1880; Alida, who is at home with her parents; Flora E., who is a graduate of Otterbein University, married the Rev. P. B. Lee, and lives at White Cloud, Kans.; Rufus B.; and Cara A., who after teaching in the high schools of Hicksville and Fostoria, is now a stenographer in her brother's law office.

The subject of this sketch was graduated from the high school at Galion, Ohio, in 1878, with the highest honors of his class, and also with the same grade from Otterbein University, in 1883, where he took a full classical course. His father being in moderate circumstances, Mr. Moore paid nearly all his school expenses by teaching during the vacations, and during part of the school terms. After finishing his college course, he taught for one year in the grammar school at Bowling Green, then going to Cowley county, Kans., where he was superintendent of schools and high-school teacher at Burden for two years. During the summer vacation of 1885, he went out on the western prairies about fifty miles from any railroad, and into a new country, built himself a sod house, and took up a claim of 160 acres from the government, which he duly proved up, and for which he received a deed. In 1886 he returned to Bowling Green and studied law with R. S. Parker, being admitted to the bar in June, 1888, and immediately after formed a partnership with that gentleman under the firm name of Parker & Moore. This partnership was continued until January 1, 1895, when Mr. Moore opened an office, and has since been doing business for himself. In the spring of 1887 he was elected township clerk, and has been re-elected at the end of each term ever since. In the spring of 1892 he was elected city solicitor of Bowling Green, and is now serving his third term in that office, having been re-elected in 1894 and 1896. He is a young man of more than ordinary intelligence and business ability, and in the important positions he has held has gained the confidence and esteem of the entire community. He is popular with all classes of society, and has a brilliant future before him.

Mr. Moore was married January 1, 1889, to Miss May Rudolph, youngest daughter of J. R. and Mary Rudolph, who was born in Wood county, May 5, 1864, and died February 19, 1896. They have three children: Murton R., Donald R., and Harold B. In politics Mr. Moore is a Republican, and fraternally belongs to the K. of P. and I. O. O. F. He is a member of the United Brethren Church of Bowling Green, and does his share in supporting all public and philanthropic enterprises.

The paternal grandfather of our subject, Levi Moore, was born near Hagerstown, Md., in 1779, and came to Ohio in 1799. He married Miss Sarah Bright, and his sister Debbie became the wife of Major Bright, whose descendants are numerous in Hancock county. Levi Moore settled near the present site of the city of Columbus; removing from there to the northern part of Fairfield county, he took up land which is still in possession of the family. He died in 1858, and his wife in 1861. The Moore family is of English descent.

GEORGE KNAUSS. The history of this leading farmer and prominent citizen of Plain township, if written out in full would be an interesting story of the trials and hardships of pioneer life in the early days of this great State, and also an illustration of what may be accomplished by a strong will and persistent energy in the face of all obstacles.

Mr. Knauss was born in Wurtemberg, Germany, March 21, 1830, and when a young man of eighteen years came with his parents to America. He had obtained a good education in the excellent schools of his native land, but could not speak a word of English. On November 23, 1852, he was married to Miss Catharine Hirsch, also a native of Germany, born May 23, 1829. They settled on a rented farm in Medina county, Ohio, and from there came, in 1854, to Wood county, where our subject worked for his father for two years, receiving for his services thirty-three and one-half acres of land. On this the young couple settled in a log house which Mr. Knauss built, and then the hard work of his life began. During the daytime he worked for neighboring farmers at fifty cents a day, and at night cleared his own land, and made such improvements as he was able. Many a time the sound of his axe was heard, while the blaze of his fire, burning the brush, was seen long after midnight, and daylight of the next morning found him up and ready to go to work again for the small pittance which supported himself and wife.

George Marx

Catharina Kuangs

In 1856 Mr. Knauss rented a piece of prairie land, broke it up, and raised a good crop by which he cleared $600. This was his first real start in life, and this money was made under the greatest difficulties, for he was afflicted with that scourge of the early settlers, chills and fever, and worked straight on when really not able to be on his feet. Often when his wife brought his dinner to the field, so that he could eat while the ox-team was feeding, she would find him lying on the ground too sick to taste the food. Yet in spite of all this he persevered, and soon was on the high road to prosperity. A man with such pluck and endurance is bound to win in the end; and now Mr. Knauss, with his fine farm of 500 acres, his handsome home, one of the best in the county, and filled with all the comforts and luxuries one could wish—surrounded by affectionate children and grandchildren, and with the loving companionship of his faithful wife who with him has borne the burden of care—can look back upon the hardships of his early years with complacency, and spend the remainder of his days in peace and contentment.

Ten children have blessed this happy home, of whom the following record is given: (1) Katie W., born September 5, 1853, is the wife of August Kaeding; they have seven children—George, Martin, Bertha, Edward, Adolph, Minnie, and Meta L. (2) George G., born May 23, 1855, is unmarried, and lives with his parents. (3) Mary J., born October 13, 1857, is the wife of John Hilt, of Fremont, Ohio, and has two children—George and Theodore. (4) Matilda B., born December 16, 1859, is the widow of William Friedrich, (5) Adolph C., born March 9, 1862, married Mary Knettle (they live in Wood county, and have one child, Katie). (6) Anna E., born November 20, 1864. (7) Fred C., born May 13, 1867. (8) Helena C., born December 16, 1869, married James Brim, and they have three children—Walter, Ethel and Mabel. (9) Louise M., born February 2, 1873, died July 21, 1875. (10) Bertha O. L., born February 9, 1876. These children are all members of the Lutheran Church, and were educated in the district school.

Our subject's parents were George and Elizabeth (Barbera) Knauss, both born in Wurtemberg, Germany, the former on January 23, 1803, and the latter on February 12, 1809. They were married in Germany, and came to America in 1848, locating first in Medina county, Ohio, and in 1854 removing to Wood county, where the father died at Bowling Green April 10, 1879, and the mother on October 29, 1880. Fifteen children were born to them, of whom five grew to maturity, as follows: George, the subject of this sketch; John, a farmer in Wood county; Amelia, wife of C. Heiser, of Riga, Mich.; Paulina, married to Levi Linegar, and living in Nebraska; Gilbert, a farmer in Wood county.

Mr. Knauss is known throughout the county as a progressive, public-spirited man, in favor of public enterprises, and always ready to assist in projects for the welfare of the people. He was the chief advocate of the stone road north of Bowling Green, and contributed time and money for building the same. He gives it as his opinion that the chief reason why the German born citizens, who located in this part of Ohio, have outstripped the native-born farmers in the accumulation of wealth, is because of the superior education of the Germans in agricultural matters, they having a better knowledge of the proper methods of tilling the soil, drainage, etc., and being able to make their land produce all it is capable of. Mr. Knauss is a well-informed man, a capable manager, and is highly esteemed by all who know him. In his political predilections he is a Democrat, but in voting he selects the man who, in his estimation, is best fitted for the place. He and his family are all members of the Lutheran Church.

JOSEPH E. BAIRD, clerk of the courts of Wood county, and one of the most courteous and popular officials at the county seat, was born November 12, 1865, at Perrysburg, where his parents still reside. Proud of being a "Wood county product," he has thoroughly identified himself with the interests of this locality, and in return the community has bestowed upon him a hearty indorsement at the very outset of his career.

C. C. Baird, his father, was born in 1830 in Stark county, Ohio, and came at an early age with his parents to Wood county, where he grew to manhood. He engaged in the hotel business at Perrysburg, and has also been prominent in the political work of the Republican party, holding various offices, from constable to sheriff of the county. He was elected to the latter position in 1872, and served for two terms, after which he returned to Perrysburg. In 1858 he was married to Miss Elizabeth Croft, who was born at Cleveland, Ohio, in 1838.

Our subject, who is one of ten children born of this union, was obliged to depend upon his own exertions for an education, and was still further handicapped by the loss of a leg when he was ten years of age. But his worthy ambition was supported by fine mental gifts, and the resistless energy which a life of high moral ideals and correct habits develops, and he triumphed over every obstacle. After graduating from the high school at his native place, he taught for some years with marked success, was also assessor for two terms in his township, being elected on the Republican ticket in a strongly Democratic neighborhood. Entering the Law department of the University of Michigan, he was graduated therefrom in 1893. In August of that year he became the candidate of his party for his present position, and three months later was elected by 1,638 majority, being 319 more votes than were cast in his county for the head of the ticket, Governor McKinley. His native town usually gives a Democratic majority of 175, but he carried it by 275 votes. The universal esteem in which he is held is largely due to his excellent principles and good habits, as well as to his recognized talents. Socially, he is a member of the K. of P., and the I. O. O. F. lodges, both of Perrysburg.

LEWIS C. EDGAR, attorney at law, and the popular mayor of Prairie Depot, Montgomery township, was born in Stark county, Ohio, December 18, 1846, and was a child of two years when his parents came to Wood county. Robert Edgar, the father of our subject, was born in Cork, Ireland, and came to America when eight years old. He was married in Pennsylvania to Miss Jeannette Perrine, a lady of Scotch extraction. He was a poor man, and made his living by his trade, which was that of a carpenter, when he settled in Section 13, Montgomery township; later he came to Prairie Depot, where he died at about the age of eighty; his wife passed away when over seventy-six years old. They were the parents of thirteen children, our subject being the youngest, all but one living to maturity. In politics Robert Edgar was first a Whig, later a Republican.

Our subject received a limited education. He lived at home until his enlistment in January, 1864, when but a little over seventeen years old, at Freeport, in Company C, 72nd O. V. I., under Capt. Samuel J. Snyder. The first engagement was at Paducah, Ky., and the next with Sturgis' raid, in which our subject was taken prisoner near Ripley, Miss., and conveyed to Andersonville and other Southern prisons, where he remained nine months. He was then paroled and went to Camp Chase, where he was discharged in June, 1865. Returning to Prairie Depot, he attended a select school, later going to Lebanon, Ohio, where he taught for awhile, and then attended school for two terms at Oberlin. In all he taught for thirty-five terms, eighteen of which were at Prairie Depot, and all, with the exception of one, in Wood county. In 1873, Mr. Edgar began to read law with Lockwood & Everett, in Toledo, and later with Haines & Price. His study was interrupted by his teaching, but, in 1880, he resumed his reading with Brown & Guernsey, of Fostoria, and in the spring of 1882 was admitted to the bar and opened an office in Bowling Green, where he remained until 1887, when he returned to Prairie Depot, and has lived and practiced there ever since.

On January 2, 1876, Mr. Edgar was married, in Montgomery township, to Miss Ida Gould, who was born in Scott township, Sandusky Co., Ohio, August 29, 1855, a daughter of John and Harriet (Cook) Gould. Mr. Edgar is a Republican; in his younger days was clerk of Montgomery township, and also served as a member of the board of education. In 1889 he was appointed mayor to fill an unexpired term, and with the exception of one term, has served continuously since. He is a charter member of Petroleum Lodge No. 499, K. of P., at Prairie Depot, and he and his wife are members of the Church of Christ, in which he is an elder, and she is superintendent of the Mission Band. She is also a member of the Y. P. S. C. E., and the C. W. B. of M. Mr. Edgar gives his entire attention to his professional and official business.

W. J. WHITE, secretary and treasurer of the Zihlmann Glass Company, was born in Monroe county, Ohio, May 28, 1864. His parents, William and Mary (Schindler) White, were both born in Ohio, the father dying in Monroe county when our subject was about five years old. Mrs. White resides at Switzer, in the same county. To this couple were born three children, namely: Our subject, W. J.; Charles E., who lives at Switzer; Tillie C., who married C. E. Smith, and lives in Cumberland, Maryland.

Mr. White remained in Monroe county until eleven years old, when, being obliged to make a living, he went to Powhatan, and clerked in a store during the summer and attended school in the winter. He learned the German language, which he reads and speaks as well as he does English. In 1886 he gave up his position in Powhatan and went to Cumberland, Md., where he secured a situation as shipping clerk in the Cumberland glass factory. He stayed with that company until the Zihlmann Glass Company was incorporated, in 1889, when he came to North Baltimore and accepted the position of shipping clerk. He soon proved himself to be a capable, energetic business man and was rapidly promoted to various offices until, in 1892, he was given the responsible position of secretary and treasurer, besides attending directly to the shipping, which is quite extensive, as they ship material all over the United States, to Canada and to Mexico. Mr. White is not married. He is a Republican in politics, a member of the I. O. O. F., the Encampment, and the Canton Alpine, of Bowling Green. He is also captain of Co. K, 2nd Infantry, Ohio National Guards, and the company's success and prosperity are largely due to his energies in its behalf. Mr. White is a thoroughly competent business man, and has the entire confidence of his employers. He is a director in the Zihlmann Glass Company, and also is one of the owners of the Columbia drug store, which is doing a flourishing business.

Mr. White's grandfather lived for awhile in Rome, Italy, where he spent his childhood. He was a butcher by trade, and died in Monroe county, Ohio. The maternal grandparents were from Switzerland, and the grandmother died at the extraordinary age of one hundred and four years. Mr. White is a leader in society, where his sincerity and genial nature have made him popular with all with whom he comes in contact.

JAMES G. HICKOX, the well-known and popular cashier of the Exchange Bank of Bowling Green, one of the oldest and most reliable financial institutions of northern Ohio, was born in Washington, Conn., August 9, 1861, son of C. L. and Mary R. (Grant) Hickox. Our subject's early education was obtained in the schools of his native town. Coming west in 1881, he found congenial employment in Toledo, Ohio, with the banking firm of Raymer, Seagrave & Co., and later with the First National Bank of Toledo, with which he was connected for some years. Seeing an opening in the real-estate and loan business with George Ketcham & Co., he invested his means with that firm, and, resigning his position in the bank, gave his attention to their interests.

On July 1, 1890, he became connected with the Exchange Bank at Bowling Green, as partner and cashier, and his energy, experience and ability have contributed largely to the growth and development of its already extensive business.

Genial, cultured, and possessed of admirable social traits, Mr. Hickox is popular with all classes. He is a ready and influential supporter of any progressive movement in his locality, taking special interest at present in the Wood County Fair Association, of which he is treasurer, and a leading stockholder.

WILLIAM W. DUNIPACE, ex-commissioner of Wood county and a well-known pioneer of Webster township, residing near Scotch Ridge, is a native of Wood county, born in Webster township January 7, 1842. He is of Scotch descent; his grandfather, William Dunipace, was born in Scotland, and Robert Dunipace, our subject's father, was born in 1809, near Edinburgh, in Cregmille castle.

In 1834 Robert Dunipace emigrated to the United States, and for four years resided at Perysburg, building boats for Lake Erie and the Maumee river. He moved to Webster township about 1839, where he entered 160 acres of land, which he cultivated during the remainder of his life. He married Jane Muir, a native of Scotland, and had eleven children, of whom our subject is the eldest living. Of the others, the survivors are Margaret, Robert, Samuel, and Jane; Mary, Mary P., James, John and George are deceased. John died April 20, 1871, from injuries received while in defense of the Union cause, having served in Company I, 144th O. V. I. Our subject's parents were faithful and consistent members of the United Presbyterian Church, to which our subject and his family also adhere. The father was for many years an elder in the Church. He was an influential Whig in early days, and took part in the great mass meeting at Fort Meigs. An honest, industrious, kindly man, his death in February, 1882, was deeply lamented by the entire community.

William W. Dunipace began his education in a log school house in his district with Miss Martha Gilbert for his first teacher. June 30, 1863, he enlisted in Company D, 86th O. V. I., Capt. John H. Reed commanding. His first service was in Morgan's raid, when he took part in the capture of John Morgan, and acted as guardsman on the way to Columbus. His regiment was later assigned to the force under Gen. Burnside, and was at the surrender of Cumberland Gap, September 9, 1863. Mr. Dunipace was discharged at the expiration of his term of service, being mustered out with his company February 10, 1864, returned home, and for some time attended the Normal School at Maumee. He then learned the carpenter's trade, and began the construction of bridges on contract in different parts of the county. He taught school in 1868, and the same year he bought eighty acres of land in Webster township, to which he has since added until he owns 180 acres of choice land, chiefly devoted to stock raising.

On December 31, 1868, he married Miss Lizzie Adams, who was born in Montgomery township, Wood county, September 20, 1845. Her parents were Thomas and Mary (McGill) Adams, who came from Scotland in 1831 and settled upon a farm of 240 acres in Montgomery township, where Mr. Adams died in 1878, his wife surviving him until 1891. They had eleven children: James, John, Robert and Jennie (twins), Lizzie, Helen, Cornelius, Thomas, George, Frank and Minnie.

Mr. Dunipace and his wife have had eight children, whose names with dates of birth are here given: Mary, April 25, 1870, is a school teacher in Montgomery township; Robert, February 16, 1872, is a student at Ada, Ohio; John, August 20, 1874, a graduate of the Fostoria Academy, is now engaged in teaching; Bertha, January 30, 1878, William, October 10, 1879, Hazel, December 19, 1886, Harley, April 8, 1888, are all at home; and George, who was born October 22, 1884, died at the age of three years. Mr. Dunipace possesses the honesty, energy and thrift so characteristic of his race, and stands high in the esteem of his neighbors. He has held various offices, having been township clerk, school director, member of the board of education, assessor, and in 1886 was elected county commissioner on the Greenback ticket. He is now a Populist in politics. He belongs to the G. A. R., Benedict Post, of Pemberville.

WILLIAM PERRIN, deceased. In a brief sketch of any living citizen it is difficult to do him exact and impartial justice, not so much, however, from lack of space or words to set forth the familiar and passing events of his personal history, as for want of the perfect and rounded conception of his whole life, which grows, develops and ripens, like fruit, to disclose its true and best flavor only when it is mellowed by time. Daily contact with a man so familiarizes us with his many virtues that we ordinarily overlook them, and commonly underestimate their possessor. Nevertheless, while the man passes away his deeds of virtue live on, and will in due time bear fruit, and do him the justice which the pen fails to record.

Mr. Perrin, who during life was one of the most prominent farmers of Center township, was born in Madison township, Franklin Co., Ohio, January 1, 1816. His father, Joseph Perrin, was born and reared in Pennsylvania, where he wedded Mary Fletcher, and from there, in 1812, rode to Franklin county, Ohio, on horseback. They were the parents of the following children: Barbara, Jacob, Jonathan, John, Susan, Mary and William, all of whom have passed away, except Susan, and the father and mother both died in Franklin county; the former was drowned.

Our subject was but eight months old when his father died, and he was adopted by his uncle, William Perrin, who gave him good educational advantages. On his farm William grew to manhood, aiding in its cultivation, and caring for his uncle during his declining years. For several years after the latter's death he still continued the operation of that farm. On November 14, 1839, he was united in marriage with Mary A. Breckenridge, and to them were born five daughters: Margaret J., born October 28, 1840; Eliza J., born May 16, 1847, now the wife of A. B. Ebright, of Columbus, Ohio; Susan, born July 29, 1850, now the wife of P. H. Stevenson; Theresa A., born July 31, 1853, now the widow of William Wade; and Mary A., born December 1, 1856. The mother of this family died May 29, 1858, and for his second wife Mr. Perrin chose Miss Rhoda M. Needels, who was born April 28, 1833, a daughter of James Needels, a farmer of Madison township, Franklin Co., Ohio. By this marriage there were six children, namely: William, born September 3, 1860, and died in 1861; Sarah W., born October 13, 1863, now the wife of John Ralston, by whom she has a son, Le Roy, born in 1892; Frank F., born February 8, 1865, a farmer of New Mexico; Azro S., born September 15, 1868, and married Le Elda Tuller, by whom he has one child, Ray T.; Jonathan A., an oil operator, born February 13, 1871, and married to Mary English; and Minnie R., born April 21, 1874.

In 1866, Mr. Perrin disposed of his property in Franklin county, and removed with his family to Center township, Wood county, where he purchased 320 acres of partially improved land, which he ditched, tiled and fenced, making it one of the most valuable tracts in the township. Besides his own fine residence he erected two other dwellings upon the place, and gave a large portion of his farm to his children, though his widow still retains forty acres, the cultivation of which she superintends. The cause of education ever found in Mr. Perrin a warm friend and supporter, he donating the land for a school house near his home, also furnishing the stone for the foundation, and superintending the construction of the building. For several years he held the office of supervisor, and was also trustee of his township. He was a man of progressive and enterprising ideas, which he endeavored to carry out, and gave his support to all objects calculated to benefit his township or county. He laid aside life's cares after a pure, honorable and useful career, actuated by unselfish motives, prompted by patriotism and guided by truth and justice, passing away March 25, 1895, leaving a loving wife and children to mourn the departure of a kind and indulgent husband and father. His death was deeply regretted throughout the county, for he was widely and favorably known. His political support was given to the Republican party. The family are members of the Methodist Episcopal Church, of which he was a member for over fifty-one years.

Wm Perrin

Mrs. Perrin was one of a family of fourteen children, of whom seven are now living: Cyrus F., a farmer of Franklin county, Ohio; Curtis L., of Columbus, Ohio; Mrs. Perrin; Mrs. Rebecca E. Brown, of Franklin county; Mrs. Mary Ann Brown, of Franklin county; Mrs. Jennie L. Wilkins, of Wapakoneta, Ohio; and Mrs. Lizzie N. Kile, of Columbus. The parents, James and Sarah A. (Stevenson) Needles, were both born in Franklin county, Ohio, the former in 1808. They died in 1860, and December 4, 1874, respectively. Philemon Needles, his father, was born in Delaware, and when a young man settled in Franklin county, where he owned a large property. Mrs. Perrin's parents were noted for their purity and good deeds. Their industry and economy brought forth abundant fruit, hence there was a competency during their lives, and a heritage for their children.

Mrs. Perrin spent two years at Delaware (Ohio) Wesleyan Female College, thus laying the foundation for an intelligent, useful life. She has never ceased to be a student. What she learned last year did not satisfy her. She is up to the times, and takes an interest in the advancement and enterprise of the day. When she came to this vicinity there was no school, Sabbath-school or literary privileges. Mr. Perrin's efforts were ably seconded by her to secure a school district, and the first election of officers was held in her best room. When the school house was completed, she did not cease her efforts until there was Sabbath school, and no assistance she could give was ever considered grievous. Through shade and shine she was in her place, doing anything assigned her, teaching infant or Bible class, or in the absence of the superintendent, filling his office creditably. Her work has not been a failure.

When her children and others were advanced far enough to be benefited by literary exercises, she urged the young people to organize for that purpose, and at their request wrote a constitution and by-laws for them, became a member, and made it a rule to be prepared for any duty assigned her. In her reading, if she saw anything either in poetry or prose suitable for any one to read or speak, it was carefully put by. The young ladies and gentlemen soon learned where the supply might be found, and the smaller ones where to get good pieces. "Little acts of kindness, little deeds of love," have been the factors which have bound old and young in loving cords to their friend and neighbor. She is an humble follower of Christ, and has been a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church since she was eleven years of age. Her children rise up and call her blessed.

B. F. DAVIS, M. D., a prominent physician and druggist, of Tontogany, was born at Painted Post, Steuben Co., N. Y., October 11, 1836, of old New England stock—his great-grandfather Davis, and grandfather, Arthur Davis, having both been born in Rhode Island.

J. P. Davis, father of our subject, was a native of Norwich, Chenango Co., N. Y., born in 1810. There he married Miss Mary Darby, who was born in December, 1809, near New Berlin, N. Y., a daughter of Rufus Darby, a farmer who was of English and Scotch ancestry, although her family had long been residents of New England. For some years after their marriage, our subject's parents lived on a farm at Painted Post, and in 1837 they came to Ohio, settling on an eighty-acre farm near South Bloomfield, Morrow county. Here Mrs. Davis died in 1859, leaving seven children, namely: B. F., our subject; Harriet E., since deceased, who married N. H. Patton, of Bryan, Ohio; William R., living in retirement at Traer, Iowa; Arnold, who was a soldier during the Civil war in the 20th Regiment, O. V. I., was killed at Atlanta, and buried there in the National Cemetery; Albert L., deceased, who graduated in the Medical Department at Ann Arbor in 1871, and was in practice with our subject until his death, in January, 1877, when he was aged thirty years; Morgan, residing at Mount Liberty, Ohio; and Malon R., a traveling salesman and resident of Toledo. By Mr. Davis' second marriage with Miss Joanna Bishop, three children were born: Minnie, the wife of N. D. Huddleston; Cora Converse; and Ella. In 1864, J. P.

Davis moved to Mount Liberty, where he died three years later. Politically he was a Democrat until the Slavery question became a party issue, when he joined the Republican ranks.

Our subject attended the district schools until he was sixteen, and then a select school at Centerburg. At the age of nineteen he began to teach, and afterward studied one term in college at Iberia, Ohio, and one term in Delaware. In the spring of 1859 he entered the office of Drs. Russell & Thompson, of Mount Vernon, Ohio, where he studied medicine, and then in the winter of 1861-62 attended lectures at Ann Arbor, Mich., and the winter of 1862-63, at Starling Medical College, Columbus, graduating in February, 1863. In 1861 he enlisted in the three-months' service, in Company B, 4th O. V. I., Capt. H. B. Banning (afterward a general) commanding, and in the fall of 1862, when Cincinnati was threatened by Kirby Smith, he was one of the "Squirrel Hunters." On March 11, 1863, he was commissioned assistant surgeon of the 44th Regiment, O. V. I., which served in the 23d Army Corps, under Gen. Scofield, Gen. Burnside commanding the department. In February, 1864, the regiment veteranized, and was made the 8th O. V. C., after which it served in the Lynchburg raid under Gen. Averill, and took part in the campaign in the Shenandoah Valley, under Sheridan. The Doctor was at the battle of Winchester, and was an eye-witness of the historic ride which turned at Cedar Creek the fortunes of the day. Part of his regiment was captured at Beverly, W. Va., in January, 1865, taken to Richmond, and released on parole. On being mustered out in 1865 Dr. Davis located in Tontogany, and has since followed his profession with marked success. In 1872 he and his brother opened a drug store in Tontogany, conducting the same jointly until the death of the latter in 1877, after which our subject carried it on alone till the fall of that year when R. J. Collin became associated with him in business, under the firm name of Davis & Collin.

Dr. Davis has been twice married, first in 1865 to Miss Elizabeth White, who was born in Delaware county, in 1846. She died in 1878 leaving three children, the first born having died in infancy. The names and dates of birth of the younger three are: Hattie E., born August 11, 1870; Frederick W., March 7, 1873; and Bernard Francis, July 22, 1875. Dr. Davis married, second, Mrs. Sarah A. (Carpenter) Ross, who was born in Maumee in 1845. In politics the Doctor is a Republican, and he is an influential worker in all measures for local improvements. He is a member of the G. A. R., of the F. & A. M., No. 451, Tontogany, and of the Wood County Medical Association.

LE ROY VAN TASSEL. From Holland to America came the founders of the Van Tassel family in 1795, and settled in the beautiful valley of the Hudson, where their descendants lived for several generations. Luke Van Tassel, the father of our subject, was born on the banks of that river, and at the age of seventeen years became a fifer boy in the war of 1812. He subsequently removed to Lorain county, Ohio, afterward to Indiana, and was engaged in making castor oil, and later became a resident of Wood county. In 1836 he took up his residence in Plain township, near Bowling Green, whence he removed to Missionary Station farm. He afterward lived at Waterville, and later at Turkey Foot Creek for two years; also two years on the Hedges farm. In 1849, he purchased sixty acres, on which our subject now resides. He was married in 1818, at Chautauqua, N. Y., to Sallie Richmond, and they became the parents of eleven children, namely: Amelia, first the wife of Francis T. Lane, deceased, then the wife, of A. H. Plant, deceased; Lyman; Ann, wife of Josiah Kuder; Silas, of McClure, Ohio; Isaac, and Olive, deceased; Harriet, wife of Hiram West; Sidney; Le Roy; Luman and Reuben. The father of the subject of this sketch died December 2, 1869, on the farm in Washington, township, and the mother on September 29, 1894.

Our subject was born in Lorain county, Ohio, May 11, 1834, and was educated in the district schools. He became a mechanical engineer, and for fifteen years was employed as head sawyer in some of the principal sawmills of his and adjoining counties. The pursuits of civil life, however, were interrupted May 2, 1864, by his service as a member of Company B, 144th Regiment, O. V. I., in the Civil war. He was discharged on August 31, following, and on his return home engaged in farming.

Mr. Van Tassel was married July 20, 1862, to Martha Alcorn, and to the union were born seven children, as follows: Carrie, born July 5, 1863, now the wife of James McWilliams, by whom she has three children; Willard, born October 10, 1864, is a resident of Toledo, Ohio; Helen, deceased; Effie J., born October 4, 1867, now the wife of William Hariman; Laura E., born February 8, 1869; Florence, born September 27, 1870, wife of Herbin Gill; and Lulu, born December 24, 1889.

Mr. Van Tassel is a warm friend to the cause of education, and for six years served as school director. He is a member of the Grange, of which he served as master one year, and chaplain two years. In politics he is a Republican, and socially is connected with Neibling Post, No. 20, G. A. R., of Weston. He and his wife are members of the Baptist Church, and are most highly esteemed people. They have a pleasant home in the midst of a highly improved farm, and their friends throughout the community are many.

William W. Hariman, who married their third daughter, was born in Plain township, July 25, 1854, and is the only son of Jonathan and Ann (Wickham) Hariman. In 1890 the marriage of the young couple was celebrated, and their union is now blessed with two children—John L., born January 22, 1891; and Homer L., born August 3, 1893. In 1891 Mr. Hariman purchased his present farm of forty acres, which has been tiled and drained, and is now a very valuable property. He is a member of Kenilworth Lodge, K. of P., of Weston, and a Democrat in politics. He and his wife attend the United Brethren Church.

CHARLES O. IRELAND, a reliable and intelligent young agriculturist of Liberty township, residing in Section 25, was born in that township in 1869. His parents, Thomas and Laura (Newberry) Ireland, were born, reared and married in Clermont county, Ohio, whence in 1864 they removed to Liberty township, Wood county, where the father purchased eighty acres of unimproved land, which he at once began to develop, making his home thereon until his death, in 1884. In politics he was a Democrat, and served his township as supervisor; in religious belief he was a faithful member of the Disciples Church. His widow still lives on the old homestead. Their family comprised six children: Mrs. Nancy Steel, of Liberty township; Edward, who died in Clermont county; George, who is married, and makes his home in Liberty township; Alex, who died in that township in 1866; Charles O.; and Mrs. Mary Schrader, who resides on the old home farm.

The subject of this sketch has spent his entire life in Liberty township, and received the rudiments of his education in the district schools, which he has supplemented by considerable reading, and is well posted on the current topics of the day. He is the owner of a good farm of twenty acres of highly productive and fertile land, which by industry and good management he has brought to a high state of cultivation.

His income is increased not a little by the product of three oil wells upon his place, which bring him from $120 to $140 per month.

In 1888, in Liberty township, Mr. Ireland was married to Mrs. Sarah R. Robinson, widow of Joseph Robinson. She was born in Clermont county, Ohio, and is a daughter of A. M. Lang, of Liberty township. Mr. Ireland has never taken a very active part in politics, although keeping well informed upon matters of general interest, and uniformly voting the straight Democratic ticket. Socially he is a member of Wings-ton Lodge No. 553, K. of P., and he is classed among the most respected representative citizens of the community.

GEORGE B. SPENCER, M. D., a leading physician at Weston, was born in Cayuga county, N. Y., December 16, 1844.

The Spencer family originated in England, and the ancestors of the American branch came to this country in Colonial times. William Spencer, our subject's great-great-grandfather, was a soldier in the Revolutionary war on the side of the colonies, and afterward settled in New Jersey where he passed the remaining years of his life. His son Nathan, and grandson John, the grandfather of our subject, were lifelong residents of New Jersey.

Nathan Spencer, the father of our subject, was born there in 1817, and in early manhood removed to New York State, where he married Miss Louise Barhite, a native of Schenectady, N. Y., born in 1822. He came with his family to Ohio, in 1848, locating in Huron county, and there his wife died in 1850. They were members of the Presbyterian Church, and staunch Abolitionists. During the days of the "Underground Railroad" they fed and helped many an escaping slave on his way to Canada, and Mr. Spencer was an influential worker in the Republican party from its beginning. He died in Olena, Huron county, in February, 1888. Our subject was the second of a family of three children. Melissa, the eldest, married Lewis Toan, of Weston, and died in 1892. The youngest, Mary, is the wife of Randall West, of Little Sioux, Iowa.

George B. Spencer's boyhood was passed in Huron county, where he availed himself of the educational advantages offered by the district schools. In September, 1861, when but little over sixteen years of age, he enlisted in Company F, 3rd O. V. C., and served three years and two months, receiving his discharge in November, 1864, before he was twenty. He served in the army of the Cumberland, and took part in the battles of Pittsburg Landing, Stone River, Chickamauga, Missionary Ridge, Atlanta, and many minor engagements. He was captured three times and twice escaped from the hands of the enemy. On January 15, 1863, he was captured by Morgan's men, and was paroled by Morgan. He still retains the parole he received from him, as a relic of those stormy days. In the Kilpatrick raid around Atlanta, in 1864, he received a slight wound while charging a bridge, and he had several close calls during the course of his service; at Stone River his cap was shot off, and on another occasion bullets pierced his clothing.

After his return from the war he entered Oberlin College, where he remained one year, and then began the study of medicine with Dr. Sykes, of Plymouth, Richland county. He finished his professional course, in Western Reserve Medical College, graduating in 1867 with honors, being made valedictorian of his class. He at once engaged in practice, first in Tiffin, where he spent a year and a half, and later in Shiloh, Richland county. In 1870 he located permanently in Weston. Here he soon became popular, not only as a physician but as a citizen, and he has held different offices of public trust. He has taken great interest in local and educational affairs, having been a member of the Weston board of education, member of the council, a county school examiner for nine years, and for the past three years clerk of the school board. He has been a trustee of the cemetery at Weston for some time, and is now clerk of the board, and takes considerable pride in fitting it up and improving it; an ornamental fountain has recently been erected there through his exertions, and he is at this time working for the erection of a soldiers' monument, that will be not only an honor to all soldiers, but a splendid ornament to the cemetery. In the fall of 1887 the Doctor was elected a member of the Legislature for Wood county, an office which he filled for two terms with fidelity and ability. He was chairman of the committee that built the Soldiers' Home at Sandusky, and was secretary of the committee on insane asylums during both terms.

In 1868, Dr. Spencer married Miss Sarah K. Strong, who was born in Plymouth, Ohio, June 1, 1849. They have three children: William H., the eldest, graduated in pharmacy from the State University at Columbus, was married in 1893 to Miss Rena La Dow, of Plymouth, Ohio, and now conducts a drug store at Oberlin; George, who was married in 1893 to Miss Grace Pugh; and Mary. Dr. Spencer is a broad-minded man, taking an intelligent interest in all the questions and movements of the day. He is a member of the Wood County Medical Society, and, being a member and health officer of the board of health of his village, meets every year with the Ohio State board of health. Socially, he affiliates with Kenilworth Lodge No. 340, K. of P., with Weston Lodge No. 560, A. F. & A. M., and with Neibling Post No. 20, G. A. R., Weston, of which he was second commander, serving two years in that capacity. He has been taking considerable interest in horticulture for several years, and now has a fine fruit orchard of ten acres just north of town. He was for several years editor of the Weston Free Press, a weekly newspaper, and gained quite a reputation as a writer of comic sketches and locals.

PHILIP W. HEYMANN, a prominent retired agriculturist of Grand Rapids township, Wood county, was born June 22, 1822, in the village of Kaltenholtzhousen, Province of Nassau, Germany.

Mr. Heymann received his education in his native land, and, in 1847, came alone to America, the voyage, which occupied fifty-two days, being made in a sailing vessel. He landed at New York with but two dollars in cash, he having loaned a friend on board the vessel some forty dollars, which, by the way, was never returned. In New York, however, Mr. Heymann found a friend of whom he borrowed eight dollars, and with this small sum he was enabled to travel west to Sandusky City, Ohio, from there proceeding to Huron county, where, in Lyme township, he bought on credit a farm of 198 acres, which he improved. In the following year his parents, John G. and Mary (Opperman) Heymann, emigrated to this country, bringing with them the rest of their family, and twenty-five hundred dollars in cash, with which the father bought a farm in Lyme township. Here the parents passed the rest of their pioneer lives, the mother dying in 1872, the father nine years later. They were leading members of the German Reformed Church. Their family numbered ten children, as follows: Jeannette, Anna, Philip W. (our subject), William, George, Henry, John P., Catherine, William F., and Margaret, all yet living except Jeannette, Anna, William and Margaret.

When the subject of these lines left the parental roof, in 1852, his father gave him a team and two hundred dollars, and bringing his wife and two children (for in the meantime he had married) Philip came to Wood county, settling on his present farm of 160 acres in Weston (now Grand Rapids) township, at that time all unimproved woodland. Their first home in this wild spot was a little log cabin, with neither doors nor windows, and from this humble beginning Mr. Heymann has evolved a valuable estate, having ditched and tiled it thoroughly, planted thereon a fruitful orchard, and erected commodious and comfortable buildings. He and his worthy wife reared their family of children well, and helped each to secure nice homes, Mr. Heymann preferring to do so during his lifetime, and when his children really needed such aid, to allowing them to wait until his death, at which time the property would be divided up, though, it may be added, he has still a good residue to leave. He now enjoys a well-earned leisure, leaving to others the active work of his estate.

P. W. Heymann

On October 9, 1849, Philip W. Heymann was married at Sandusky City to Miss Mary Morehead, who was born October 9, 1832, a daughter of George Morehead, one of the early settlers of Huron county, born in January, 1795, in Harrison county, W. Va. When a mere boy of seventeen Mr. Morehead enlisted under Gen. Harrison in the struggle of that day with the British and Indians along the Maumee river, but was taken ill and sent home. He married Miss Charity Paton, and by her had three children: Mary (Mrs. Heymann), Emily (wife of Joseph Morris, of Nebraska), and Andrew J. (a prominent resident of Huron county). Mr. and Mrs. Heymann have had five children: (1) Louisa, born August 18, 1850, married to William Ross, of Weston township. (2) G. Albert, born November 5, 1851, is a farmer of Grand Rapids township; he married Sarah Dull, who died December 11, 1888, the mother of four children; G. Albert afterward married Mrs. Jennie Pratt, a widow, and by her has one son. (3) Lester W., born August 17, 1857, is also a farmer in Grand Rapids township; he married Stella Roland, and has four children. (4) Anna L., born August 18, 1859, died at the age of eighteen; and (5) Flora May, born March 14, 1862, is the wife of J. F. McKee, a prominent resident of Grand Rapids township.

Mr. Heymann is one of the most intelligent and progressive citizens of his locality, and by his integrity, geniality and good judgment has won the friendship and esteem of a wide circle of acquaintances. He has been school director for a number of years, and is a ready and generous promoter of any worthy cause. In politics he was originally a Democrat, afterward becoming a Republican, but of late years has been a staunch Prohibitionist. In Germany he served in the German army four years. Ever liberal supporters of the United Brethren in Christ, he and his good wife are unceasing in their works of philanthropy and charity, and none stand higher in the estimation of the community in which they live.

HENRY C. FEARNSIDE. One does not have to carry his investigations far in the Wood county history to find that the Fearnside family has been prominent in its development and upbuilding, and a worthy representative of this family is the present subject of our sketch. He was born in the town of Washington Hollow, Dutchess Co., N. Y., October 20, 1833, and is a son of Thomas and Ellen (Robinson) Fearnside. His father was born near Leeds, Yorkshire, England, in 1792, was a self-educated man, and possessed superior business ability. He worked in a woolen-mill, owned and operated by his father, until eighteen years of age, when he removed to Scotland and was employed by his uncle, Benjamin Fearnside. His wife was born in Fochabers, in 1795. In connection with his brother, Mr. Fearnside rented and operated a factory for the manufacture of woolen goods. About 1821 he went to Liverpool, and took passage on a sailing vessel bound for New York. When out only a few days they encountered a severe storm, and the ship lost most of its rigging; but after a long and perilous voyage of ninety days they reached their destination. The food supply, however, gave out, and the passengers for some time only had one biscuit per day. Mr. Fearnside rented a building on Manhattan Island, where he engaged in the manufacture of woolen goods. He was there joined by his wife and family a year later, and carried on business for about six years, when he removed to Glenham, N. Y., and later to Dutchess county. Subsequently he went to Clark county, Ohio, and prepared a home for his family, who came to the West a year later. After seven years he removed to Wood county, and purchased 105 acres of wild land in Liberty township, where he carried on agricultural pursuits until his death. He passed away in January, 1871, and his wife died May 4, 1889.

Mr. and Mrs. Fearnside were the parents of the following named children: Thomas, who died in California; Mrs. Martha J. Corey, of Urbana, Ohio; James, of Michigan; William, who died in southern Illinois; George, a merchant of Oregon; Hannah, who became the wife of Henry Haskins, and died in Kendallville, Ind.; John, of Toledo, Ohio; Henry C.; and Benjamin, who died at the age of two years. Our subject was a youth of fifteen when his parents came to Wood county. No event of special importance occurred in his childhood, and he remained at home until his marriage, which was celebrated in Liberty township, April 25, 1865, Miss Anna E. Sizer, of Huron county, Ohio, becoming his wife. She traces her ancestry back to Antonio de Sozier, who located in Massachusetts soon after the landing of the Pilgrims. The orthography of the name was changed to its present form by the Massachusetts Legislature.

Mrs. Fearnside was born in Woodstock, Ulster Co., N. Y., May 31, 1843, and is a daughter of Franklin and Abigail (Bloomer) Sizer, the father born in Hampden county, Mass., in 1806, the mother in Greene county, N. Y. He was a carpenter by occupation, and on his marriage located in Greene county, N. Y., whence he removed to Greenwich, Huron Co., Ohio. In 1858 he settled in Liberty township, Wood county, where the mother died in 1883, the father in 1888. Their children were Clarissa C., wife of Anson B. Abbott, now of Weston, Wood county; Daniel W., who died in Waterville, Ohio, in 1876; Abraham F., who served in the Civil war in Company A, 14th O. V. I., and was accidentally drowned July 29, 1862, at Pulaski, Tenn., while bathing in the river; and Mrs. Fearnside.

On their marriage our subject and his wife located on the old homestead, and he has since given his entire attention to farming. Their union has been blessed with four children: Martha, wife of William Haskins, of Waterville, Ohio; George W., assistant cashier in the Commercial Bank of Bowling Green; William F. and Benjamin, at home. Mr. Fearnside is a stalwart Republican in politics, but has never been an office seeker. He belongs to the Methodist Church, and is an intelligent, well-read and popular man, highly esteemed by many friends.

THOMAS N. BIERLY. No citizen of Pemberville has contributed more to the development of its highest interests than has the subject of the following paragraphs, who is well known throughout northwestern Ohio as an able attorney and a man of superior business qualifications. With but limited means, when a young man, and with no influence to assist him, he nevertheless, by indefatigable energy and tireless determination, has gained a position of importance among the professional men of the locality, and occupies an influential place in the legal fraternity of Wood county.

Before presenting in detail the events that have given character to the life of Mr. Bierly, some mention of his ancestors may appropriately be made. The family has been identified with the history of America for a number of generations, and its members have invariably been patriotic and honest men. He traces his lineage to Prussia. His great-great-grandfather, who was born in that country, participated in the conflict usually known as the Thirty Years war, in which he was severely wounded. On coming to America, he settled in Pennsylvania, though it is not known whether his home was in Bucks or Lancaster county. For many years he led a secluded life, and his last days were spent on the top of Blue Mountain, where he died unattended by any friends.

Anthony Bierly, the great-grandfather of Thomas N., was a soldier in the Revolutionary war, serving through the entire period of the conflict. His house and all of his property were destroyed by the Indians; but, undaunted by the misfortune, he worked his way once more to prosperity and success. He was a man of some education, and was looked up to as a leader among the early settlers of Center county, Penn. His son Nicholas was born near Sunbury, Penn., in 1775, and married Miss Lucinda Buchtel, a native of Center county, and a descendant of German ancestors. Her father was obliged to work seven years in payment for his passage from his native country to America. Aside from this fact, but little is known of the early history of that branch of the family. The last days of Nicholas Bierly were spent in the home of his son, George, to whom he bequeathed the farm.

The father of our subject, George Bierly, was born in Center county, Penn., July 17, 1819. His character is in some respects unique. Possessing no educational advantages except four months in school during his boyhood days, he nevertheless became one of the best posted men in his locality. He has been a thoughtful reader of ancient and modern history, and is particularly posted concerning current historical topics. In early life he learned the trade of a wheelwright, and later adopted the occupation of an agriculturist. Possessing the brave and patriotic spirit of his ancestors, he enlisted in the army during the Mexican war, but saw no active service. For seven years he was connected with the Pennsylvania militia. In 1857 Mr. Bierly came to Ohio and settled on a farm near Bradner, where he still makes his home. A Republican in his political belief, he has advocated the principles of that party since the time of President Lincoln's first election. Among the pioneers of Wood county he was a leader, and by his fellow citizens he was often selected to occupy positions of trust and honor. His wife, Sarah, born January 21, 1821, is a daughter of James Magee, who was born in Londonderry, Ireland, but was of Scotch descent.

Two years before the family removed to Ohio, the subject of this notice was born in Center county, Penn., February 21, 1855. He grew to manhood in Wood county, and has known no other home than this. Even in boyhood he was prominent among his schoolmates on account of his superior talents and recognized ability. Being a diligent student, he availed himself of every opportunity to acquire knowledge, and early laid the foundation for the broad fund of information he possesses to-day. At the age of seventeen he took an examination for a West Point cadetship, and stood fourth in his class of twenty-three, with an average of over seventy-seven per cent. He attended the Normal School at Republic, Ohio, and taught several terms of school. When the time came for him to select a life occupation, Mr. Bierly chose the profession of law, and carried on his readings with the late Hon. James R. Tyler, of Perrysburg. Immediately after his admission to the bar, in 1877, he opened an office in Pemberville, where he has since conducted an increasing and profitable practice. As a member of the Democratic party, he has been active in local politics, and is a leader in the councils of his party. He has served as mayor several terms, has been president of the school board, and was a candidate for prosecuting attorney, to which he would have undoubtedly been elected had it not been for the large Republican majority in the county.

The landed possessions of Mr. Bierly are extensive and valuable, including residences in Pemberville and three well-improved farms in Wood county, besides the "Crystal Hotel" at Bradner and other real-estate interests. His dwelling, one of the most attractive homes in Pemberville, is situated on the east side of the river, and is a substantial frame structure, a model of architectural beauty, and surrounded by a wide-spreading and well-kept lawn. Into their pleasant home Mr. and Mrs. Bierly welcome their hosts of personal friends, and extend a cordial greeting to the stranger within their doors. Mrs. Bierly was, in maidenhood, Miss Jennie Furbush, and is a native of Wood county, where her entire life has been spent. Four children bless the happy home, Clarence, Lulu, Everett and Neva.

Possessing a generous and philanthropic nature, Mr. Bierly has made a fortune, not for the purpose of hoarding it, but that he may do good, and render the lives of others happier. He contributes liberally to the support of his parents, whose declining years are made comfortable through his thoughtful attention; and he is also generous in aiding other members of the family who need assistance. His benefactions, however, are not limited to the circle of his relatives, but extend to all worthy enterprises. The public library of Pemberville is a standing monument to his generosity; most of the books and shelving were donated by him, and he has taken the liveliest interest in the success of the work. On Christmas of 1894 he presented each of the Sunday-schools of the city with one hundred books as a free gift. Fraternally he is connected with the Odd Fellows and the Royal Arch Masons, and for some time served as master of the Masonic lodge at Pemberville. On April 1, 1895, Mr. Bierly moved to Toledo, Ohio, where he opened an office at No. 310 Valentine Building. He has recently purchased a fine residence at No. 1521 Twenty-second street, where the family now reside.

CAPTAIN A. W. ADAMS, postmaster of North Baltimore, and a veteran of the Civil war, is a native of Seneca county, Ohio, born November 28, 1838. He is the son of Martin and Martha (Dillon) Adams, both of whom were born in Jefferson county, Ohio, the former in 1800, and the latter in 1807. They were the parents of the following children: George W., who is in the insurance business in Chicago, Ill.; Thomas, a dentist in Springfield, Ohio; Henry Clay, a lieutenant in the 25th Kansas Regiment, who was killed during the Civil war; Pollie, deceased, wife of — Hall, of Pueblo county, Colo.; Andrew J., deceased; A. W., our subject; Francis Marion, who was killed in Colorado; Rhoda D., who died in Nebraska; Eli R., residing in Toledo; Peter C., living in Springfield; Campbell, who died in Troy, and Jennie, living in Columbus.

Capt. Adams remained in Seneca county during his childhood, attending the district and graded schools. In the fall of 1861 he enlisted in Company K, 49th O. V. I., and contributed his mite in the cause of preserving the Union. He was promoted through the various ranks to the position of captain, receiving his commission at Nashville, Tenn., and served in that capacity during the remainder of the war, being mustered out of service November 30, 1865. The Captain participated in all the battles with his company, among them being those of Chickamauga, Stone River, Nashville and Franklin. He took part in twenty-eight pitched battles and numerous skirmishes, and was fortunate enough to escape without receiving a wound. At the close of the war Capt. Adams returned to Tiffin, Ohio, and was engaged in the shoe business for one year. Selling out in 1868 he went to St. Paul, Minn., and after a short residence there to California, where he engaged in the lumber business. From California he went to Nevada, where he remained a year, afterward spending another year in Minnesota before he returned to Ohio, coming first to Toledo, in this State. He finally settled on a farm in Bloom township, Wood county. This place is situated in Section 28, and comprises 240 acres, on which there are three oil wells, which produce 180 barrels per day, he receiving a royalty of one-sixth. In 1886 the first gas well was drilled on this farm. In 1893 Capt. Adams was appointed postmaster at North Baltimore, and in this capacity has made himself one of the most popular citizens of the town. He adheres to the Democratic party, and is a staunch believer and admirer of its principles.

Capt. Adams was married in Toledo, December 22, 1874, to Miss Minnie K. Maybee, who was born in Monroe county, Mich., March 14, 1849, and they have two children, Grace M. and Maude; the former graduated from the public schools of North Baltimore May 29, 1896; Maude is now in the class of 1898, same school. The Captain is of distinguished appearance, a most genial companion, his many and varied experiences making him an interesting conversationalist, and his travels have given him an excellent insight into human nature, with a power of self-restraint that makes him an admirable public official.

SOLOMON FRIES, ex-commissioner of Wood county, and one of the substantial agriculturists of Bloom township, furnishes a demonstration of what right ambitions, hard work, wise management and an economical wife will enable one to accomplish. He was born November 24, 1824, in South Whitehall township, Lehigh Co., Pennsylvania.

His family is of English origin, the first to come to America being John Fries, his grandfather, who settled near Philadelphia. He died there suddenly, of cholera, leaving five children penniless. They were sent to relatives in Lehigh county, and there Abraham Fries, our subject's father, was reared, attending school but little and learning the shoemaker's trade at an early age. He married Miss Mary Smith, a daughter of Henry Smith, a well-known resident of Lehigh county, and of their family seven grew to adult age: Gideon, of Lehigh county, Penn.; Mary, deceased wife of John Acker, of Lehigh county; Solomon, our subject; Amos now living in Lehigh county; Samuel, who died in Alabama about 1885; Violetta (now Mrs. Ezra Hildebeitel), of Allentown, Penn., and Elias, who resides in Bowling Green. Abraham Fries won creditable success in life, without the aids upon which so many others have based their progress. He and his wife were devout adherents of the Reformed Church; in politics he was a Democrat, but took no active part in public affairs. His death occurred in 1858, when he was seventy-six years old, his wife having passed away some years before, aged fifty-six. Her parents came from Scotland, and settled near Philadelphia.

The subject of our sketch attended a German subscription school, the only one of any kind in his neighborhood, which itself was German. In May, 1841, he began to learn the trades of bricklayer, stonemason and plasterer. His mother had died three years before, when he was fourteen, and his father, being consumptive, had early impressed upon his children the necessity for their becoming self-supporting. Three years were spent by young Solomon Fries as an apprentice, during the first of which he received nothing; during the second he received his board, but no wages, and for the third he got his board and twenty-five cents per day. His trade he followed continuously for ten years, and although Allentown, Penn., was burned about that time, and labor was in demand, he never received more than seventy-five cents per day, and sixty-five was considered good wages. In the fall of 1851 he came to Tiffin, Ohio, traveling by the Erie canal to Buffalo and a lake steamer to Sandusky. From that point he took the Mad River railroad (now the Big Four), arriving October 28, 1851, at his destination, where he was welcomed by some old friends named Strauss. Work was scarce and money scarcer, and, winter coming on before any regular employment was found, he offered to work for his board. Still unsuccessful, he determined to make the most of his time by attending an English school, although he was twenty-seven years old at the time, and this he attended only twenty-two days. After he paid his tuition, on April 1, 1852, he had only the small sum of $1.84 left. He would have returned to Pennsylvania had he been able to secure the means, but things soon took a turn for the better, and he found some work at carpentering, and, later, steady work at his trade. During the dull season in winter he would chop wood for twenty-five cents a day and board, the highest price he ever received being thirty-five cents per cord.

Salomon Lries

On February 21, 1856, Mr. Fries was married in Tiffin to Miss Louisa C. Steckel, a native of Lehigh county, Penn., born April 29, 1836. Her father, a blacksmith by trade, came to Ohio in 1840 with his wife Caroline (Leisenring) and their two children. They located first in Butler county, but later, in 1844, moved to Seneca county. On October 10, 1860, Mr. Fries bought 160 acres of land in Bloom township, Wood county, partly cleared, with a small barn and a log cabin, to which he brought his family April 16, 1861. He had saved enough money to begin farming to good advantage, and it was not long before he had his farm in good condition. For some time he worked at his trade, but later he gave his entire attention to his estate, to which he has added until he now owns 743 acres, much of which is the best land in that vicinity. In 1876 he built a model barn, and in 1882 he erected the finest brick farm house in the township, and one of the best in the county. He has done the most of this work himself, and his fine orchard was planted by him, with the help of his wife, who has been an able assistant to him in all his efforts. Seven children were born to them: Zenobia is at home; William A. is a farmer of Bloom township; Jennie died at four years of age; Selinda married Albert Ickes, of Webster township; Edward M. is a lawyer at Bowling Green; Anna married Frank Slotterbeck, of Bloom township, and Cora is at home.

In local affairs and in the work of the Republican party Mr. Fries is prominent, his sound common sense and well-known integrity having gained him the entire confidence of a wide circle of acquaintances. For twenty-two years he was a member of the school board of his district, and has also been trustee and supervisor of Bloom township. In the fall of 1881 he was elected county commissioner, and held that office for six years following, with credit to himself and satisfaction to the public. He and his amiable wife stand high in the esteem of the community.

MARCUS A. MCKENDREE, M. D. Among the many excellent physicians residing in Bowling Green may be found the subject of this sketch who, with his estimable wife, also a member of the medical fraternity, holds a leading place in both professional and social circles.

Dr. McKendree is the son of James and Elizabeth (Baldwin) McKendree, the former of whom was born in 1801 in county Antrim, Ireland, and came to America when eighteen years of age. His parents were natives of Scotland, who removed to Ireland, and there died. The wife of James McKendree was born in 1818 in Pawlet, Vt., and their marriage took place in Erie county, Penn., where for some years they carried on farming. In 1856, when the subject of this sketch was three years of age, his father removed with his family to Ohio, and kept what was called the "State Line House," an old-time country inn, which stood on the State line between Ohio and Pennsylvania, between Ashtabula and Erie counties, Mr. McKendree owning land on both sides of the line. There they lived for twenty years, the father dying in 1874. The mother of our subject resides in Erie, Penn. Her parents came from Rutland county, Vt., and settled in Erie county, Penn., where they both died, the mother surviving her husband for twenty years, and living to the good old age of eighty-four years.

Mr. McKendree, Sr., was a prominent Mason and Odd Fellow, and his son has many of the emblems which he wore in the high degrees of the former order. In politics he was a Democrat, and was a highly esteemed citizen. He was twice married, his first wife being a Miss Snow, by whom he had two children, James, a farmer in Rulo, Neb., and Nancy, who became the wife of George Nash and lived in Erie county, Penn., both now deceased. By his second marriage seven children were born, namely: William J., living in Lima, Ohio; Albert, in Erie, Penn.; Irvin P., in Conneaut, Ohio; Helen and Robert E., residing in Erie county, Penn.; Josephine E., married to Frank Colman, and also living in Erie, Penn.; and Marcus A.

The subject of this sketch was born in Erie county, Penn., July 19, 1853, and his boyhood days were spent in the old inn which his father kept on the State line. He remembers sundry amusing incidents which occurred during his residence there, the house being the scene of many romantic weddings. At that time no marriage license was required in Pennsylvania, and many couples would come to the "State Line House" to be married, as the parlor and sitting room were in that State. The literary education of our subject was obtained at the Conneaut High School, after which he commenced reading medicine at home, and later with Dr. Schooley, of Weston. After teaching school for a time he entered the Eclectic Medical Institute at Cincinnati, from which he was graduated in June, 1884, and for two years thereafter was associated with Dr. Schooley in the practice of medicine at Weston. He then took up his residence in Bowling Green, where he has since been successfully engaged in general practice. He has been connected with the Pension Board since September, 1893, and is at present its secretary. He is a member of the State Eclectic Medical Society and of the Northwestern Ohio Medical Association. Socially, he is a prominent member of the Encampment, Uniform Rank, I. O. O. F., and is the physician for the Order of the Maccabees in Bowling Green.

Dr. McKendree was married December 25, 1876, to Lydia Walford, who was born in New York City, December 8, 1858. Mrs. McKendree graduated from the Toledo Medical College in March, 1893, after having read medicine for some time with her husband, and has a large practice. She makes a specialty of the diseases of women, and is very successful in her treatment. She is the medical advisor of the L. O. T. M., in Bowling Green. Both she and her husband are popular members of society.

JOHN D. MUIR, a leading agriculturist of Webster township, Wood county, was born in that vicinity, January 15, 1841. His father, James Muir, was born in Scotland, and in 1832 came to Wood county and entered 160 acres of land in Webster township, where he died April 18, 1857. He was a Republican in politics, and one of the earliest supporters of the United Presbyterian Church at Scotch Ridge. He married Miss Marion Dunipace, a native of Scotland, and had twelve children, of whom our subject is the eldest. Margaret, Jane and James reside with their mother at the old homestead; Mary married John Hagamier; Susan married H. C. Swan; Jessie married Charles Greiner; William, Isabel, Frances, and Alice are deceased.

Mr. Muir went to school during boyhood in an old log house in District No. 4, Webster township, his first teacher being Miss Carruthers. He worked upon the farm until 1861, when he enlisted in Company K, 21st O. V. I., under Capt. S. S. Canfield. He participated in a number of hard-fought battles, and in January, 1863, received an honorable discharge. Soon after he re-enlisted for five years in Company G, 64th battalion, which consolidated with a battalion from Wyandot county, forming the 144th O. V. I. (Col. Hunt commanding). After the consolidation, Lieut. Muir was transferred from Company G to E. He was ordered to Toledo September 16, 1863, where he was commissioned second lieutenant, and then sent home, September 19, to order his company to report at Camp Lucas, Toledo, Ohio. A collision occurred September 20, on the D. & M. R. R., while the new recruits were on their way to Toledo, and several were killed and injured. Among the latter was Lieut. Muir, who was unable to go to the front for some time, but finally, in May, 1864, rejoined his regiment at Wilmington, Del. He returned home at the close of the war, and in 1866 bought forty acres of land, and built a log cabin with only one window and one door, and to this primitive abode, on May 2, 1866, he brought his bride, formerly Miss Eliza Loomis, a daughter of Dudley and Mary (Wallace) Loomis. Five children were born of this union, whose names with dates of birth are as follows: Philinda, December 30, 1866, was for ten years a successful teacher in the public schools, and now travels as saleslady for a Kansas firm; Dudley J., June 2, 1868; Minnie, September 20, 1870, married Charles Urban; Fannie, July 15, 1874, married July 18, 1896, to Byron H. Callin; Mabel, August 2, 1875, is at home. Mr. Muir is now living in Toledo, having retired from active business. He is a Republican in politics, and has held various offices of trust, having been school director for twelve years, and also trustee and supervisor. He is a member of the F. & A. M., No. 516, of Pemberville; of Manateau Club, and A. P. A., of Toledo, and of Benedict Post G. A. R., No. 26, of Pemberville, of which he is commander. DUDLEY J. MUIR, our subject's son, was born at the old homestead in Webster township, near Scotch Ridge. He was educated in the schools of that neighborhood, and for a time was employed as traveling salesman for a firm in Chicago. On October 7, 1890, he married Miss Kaddie Beard, daughter of Alex and Mary (Shoemaker) Beard. She was born March 25, 1870, in Perrysburg township. They are leading members of the U. B. Church. Mr. Dudley Muir is a Republican, and a member of Camp A. Jolly, Sons of Veterans, No. 301, of Pemberville.

FRANK W. ROGERS, M. D., specialist in diseases of the eye, ear and throat, although still a young man, stands at the head of his profession, and is one of the most successful practitioners in the State. He is a native of Ohio, born in Norwalk, April 3, 1863, and is the son of Samuel J. and Fanny M. (Wilson) Rogers.

Dr. Rogers is the youngest of four children—three sons and one daughter—all of whom are living. During his boyhood he attended the schools of his native town, after completing the course in which he began reading medicine under Dr. Gill, of that city. For two years he was a student in the medical college at Ann Arbor, Mich., after which he entered the Chicago Homeopathic College, Chicago, from which he was graduated in 1888. He began the practice of his profession in Bowling Green, and after a time took a course in the New York Post-Graduate School. In the colleges both at Chicago and New York he made a special study of the diseases of the eye, ear, nose and throat, in which line he has achieved a wonderful success. He is a fine scholar, devoted to his work, of which he is very fond, and is popular with his brother practitioners. He has recently established an elegant office in the Spitzer Building, Toledo, Ohio, thereby giving his patrons the advantage of better railroad facilities, and gaining a central location for all northwestern Ohio.

Dr. Rogers has been successful not only in his professional career, but also financially. Dependent on his own exertions and his ability and energy, he has acquired a nice competence, most of his interests being located in Bowling Green. He owns the block on West Wooster street, in which he has the finest suite of offices in the county, and is one of the four partners in the Swayzee Glass Company, located at Swayzee, Ind. This company does a large business in the manufacture of fruit jars, oil cans, bottles, etc., and employs about one hundred men; they own their own gas wells. Dr. Rogers is a Republican in politics, and is one of the most popular young men in the city. On February 4, 1895, he was married to Alzora M. Downer, daughter of Wellington and Mary (Marlatt) Downer, of Mitchell, S. Dak. She is a lovable woman, a friend to every one, domestic in her life and an invaluable companion.

Samuel J. Rogers, the father of our subject, was born in Watertown, N. Y., November 14, 1826, and was the third in a family of twelve children. When eight years of age he came with his father's family to Norwalk, Ohio, where he was married January 26, 1851, to Fannie M. Wilson, who was born in the latter city January 31, 1833. He was a cooper by trade, but after his marriage he took up farming and made a comfortable fortune. In his early days he exchanged half of a cravat for two oak trees, worked them up into barrels which he hauled to Huron to sell, thus making his first start in business. Politically he was a strong Abolitionist. He was a descendant of Gen. Harper, who was in command at the battles of Bunker Hill, Lexington, and other noted engagements in the Revolutionary war. Frank W. Rogers, a brother of Samuel J., enlisted in the Third Ohio Cavalry during the Civil war, and died at the hospital at Louisville, Kentucky.

Mrs. Rogers was a member of the Methodist Church. Her parents were Levi and Lucy (Kellogg) Wilson, the former of whom was born at Scranton, Penn., of Scotch and German ancestry, and settled in Norwalk in an early day, where he was married and lived until sixty-three years of age. In early life he was a cooper, but he afterward followed the occupation of a farmer. He was a large, powerful man, a giant in strength and endurance. Until the time of the Civil war he was a Democrat in politics, but he became an ardent Republican during that period. His wife was one of the twelve children of Martin Kellogg, one of the leading pioneers of Norwalk, who died in 1892 at the advanced age of one hundred and six years.

EDMUND G. BAKER. There are numerous fine farms in this county which will compare favorably with any others in the State as regards production, and, also, as to the improvements which have been made upon them. Many of these places are owned by men comparatively young in years, who started in the world with but little more than an unlimited amount of energy and perseverance, and who are succeeding to an eminent degree in building up a comfortable home in Wood county. As a representative of this class of agriculturists, great pleasure is taken in presenting the name of the subject of this notice, who is living on a good farm of ninety-nine acres in Troy township, which was first opened up by Henry Baker, of Pemberville, Ohio. Our subject bought the place in 1888, and the following year moved thereon. He now devotes his time to its cultivation, and also to stock dealing, making a specialty of handling sheep.

Mr. Baker made his advent into this world September 1, 1858, in Woodville township, Sandusky Co., Ohio, at the home of his parents, Sandford G. and Phoebe (Osborn) Baker. His father was born in 1817, in Vermont, and with his father, Elijah Baker, came to Wood county, in 1838, locating on a farm in Troy township, near Luckey. The latter's wife bore the maiden name of Lavina White, and was a native of Vermont. After residing on that farm for some years, the grandfather removed to Woodville township, Sandusky county, where he bought a farm of Sardis Burchard, on which the father now lives. His death occurred in that township in 1864, in his ninetieth year, and his wife died in September, 1862.

In 1840, in Troy township, Sandford G. Baker was united in marriage with Miss Almira Webster, a native of Connecticut, and a daughter of Joseph Webster, one of the honored pioneers of Troy township, who died in Hillsdale, Mich. Mrs. Baker died in 1856, leaving three children who yet survive: Mrs. Helen Morse, of Missouri; Mrs. Emily Osborn, of Iowa; and John W., who resides at Burgoon, Sandusky county. In Woodville township, Sandusky county, the father again married, his second union being with Miss Phoebe Osborn, and their wedding was celebrated in 1857. The lady was born in Erie county, N. Y., and is a daughter of Joseph and Catherine (House) Osborn. Her father died in the Empire State, after which her mother moved to Sandusky county, Ohio, where she later became the wife of Mr. Benedict, but both are now deceased. In his younger days, Mr. Baker was a great hunter, and at that time had ample opportunity to indulge in that sport all over Wood county. For two years he kept a public house at Lemoyne, and then removed to his present farm in Woodville township, Sandusky county. By his second union he had eleven children, ten of whom are still living, namely: Edmund G., whose name introduces this review; Ida, who is taking a literary course at Ann Arbor, Mich.; George, a teacher in the public schools in Kansas; Mrs. Belle Price, who previous to her marriage also engaged in teaching; Rose, at home; Sanford, an attorney at law of Seattle, Wash.; William P., who is studying electrical engineering in the University of Michigan; Arthur, who is studying medicine in the same institution; and Kate and Charley, both at home.

After pursuing his studies for several years in the district schools of Woodville township, Edmund G. Baker entered the normal at Valparaiso, Ind., where after two years he was graduated with the class of 1882, and on returning to Sandusky county served as superintendent of the Woodville school for two years. His marriage was there celebrated December 3, 1884, Miss Linda Herman becoming his wife. She is a native of that county, born January 27, 1860, educated in Woodville, and is a daughter of Henry and Clarinda (Webster) Herman, early pioneers of Sandusky county, who still make their home in Woodville township. By this union three sons have been born: Mark, born October 18, 1885; Roscoe, born April 17, 1888; and Ralph, born January 29, 1893.

F. H. THOMPSON, ex-county commissioner, farmer and fruit raiser, of Perrysburg township, was born in Rutland, Vt., July 28, 1839, a son of Augustus M. and Ann Maria (Slawson) Thompson.

Augustus M. Thompson was born near Poughkeepsie in 1814, and first came to Perrysburg in 1832, settling there permanently in 1836. He afterward took up farming on the Stone road, and then returned to mercantile business in Perrysburg, where he died in 1875. Politically he was a Whig. Mrs. Thompson was born in Rutland in 1814, and died in Perrysburg in 1891. Six children blessed their union, namely: Helen, who died when five years old; F. H., our subject; Arrietta, now Mrs. Charles Dustin, of Toledo; Charles A., who lives in Massachusetts; Emma, the wife of W. S. Weed, of Toledo; and John P., residing in Perrysburg.

Our subject was an infant when his parents came to Perrysburg, where he went to school for a short time, and then left to work in his father's store. Later he was employed on a railroad in the positions of brakeman and conductor, respectively, on a freight train. In 1863 he was agent for the C. H. & D. R. R., at Perrysburg, in which position he remained for over a year, then resigning to take a situation in a dry-goods store. In April, 1861, he enlisted in Company C, 21st O. V. I., and served nearly four months. On December 21, 1865, he was married to Mrs. Spafford, whose maiden name was Amanda Baird. For a year after his marriage he clerked, and then came to a farm in Perrysburg, where he has sixty-seven acres of land, forty-five of which are laid out in apple trees, to the cultivation of which he has devoted much of his time. From these apples he makes cider, and he has an extensive custom trade.

Mr. Thompson is a Republican, and was for two years trustee of the township. In the fall of 1886 he was elected county commissioner and served two terms—six years—consecutively. He has made a wide reputation as a county officer; he is a clear thinker, a natural student of human nature, and has posted himself so thoroughly on the law pertaining to the duties and powers of county and township officials that he has become the recognized authority on all technical questions. He has a mind naturally adapted to research, and is too cautious to proceed blindly with a project, but prefers to stick to the old adage: "Know first that you are right, and then go ahead."

By her first marriage, Mrs. Thompson had three children: Clifton Amos, who married Grace Cooper, and has two children—Grace and May; Elmer, a civil engineer in Bowling Green, who married Mildred Kramer, and has one child—James Francis; and Waldo, who died when two years old. Two sons were born of her marriage with Mr. Thompson: (1) Leland Albert, born March 15, 1868, at present in charge of the water supply on the Clover Leaf R. R. (he married Miss Carrie Pierce, and they have one child—Esther M.); and (2) Edward A., born March 21, 1870.

F. M. Thompson

F. M. YOUNG, cashier of the Commercial Banking Co., of Bowling Green, and a leading citizen of Wood county, was born September 12, 1845, in Mercer county, Ohio. Until sixteen years of age Mr. Young made his home at Wapakoneta. Soon after the breaking out of the Civil war, although only a boy, he decided to offer his services in defense of the old flag. He accordingly enlisted, August 7, 1862, for three years, in Company K, 99th O. V. I., and served throughout the war, being mustered out with his regiment June 26, 1865, at Salisbury, N. C., with the rank of orderly sergeant. He was sent to Camp Dennison, Ohio, and received his discharge July 17, 1865. The regiment to which he belonged was assigned to the Western division of the army, and participated in every battle of the campaign, twenty-four in all, besides many skirmishes. After the fall of Fort Fisher the regiment was assigned to the Eastern division, and marched through the Southern States, taking part in all the engagements in that section. The 99th went into service with 1,021 men, but lost so heavily, in killed and wounded, that although several times recruited, it was so reduced in number that it was finally consolidated with the 50th O. V. I., and it was as sergeant in that regiment that our subject was serving at the time of his discharge.

After the close of the war Mr. Young settled in Plattsburg, Mo. Here he was employed in the office of the clerk and county recorder until 1871, when he returned to Ohio for the purpose of assisting his father, who was then in feeble health. He located in Weston, where, in 1872, he was married to Miss Hattie Baldwin, who was born in Perrysburg, Ohio, August 8, 1852. Three children have blessed this union: Mabel, Charles and Robert. After his marriage Mr. Young was engaged in the insurance business until 1877, when he was appointed to a position in the U. S. Revenue office at Toledo, and removed his family to Perrysburg. He was "civil serviced" out of position for participating in politics, and returned to Weston. Having been elected probate judge in 1884, he removed to Bowling Green, which has since been his home. In 1892 Mr. Young was made secretary of the American Foundry & Machine Co. On December 15, 1892, he was appointed cashier of the Commercial Banking Co., which responsible position he continues to hold to the satisfaction of all concerned.

Mr. Young is a strong Republican, and as may be inferred from his war record, is an active member of the G. A. R., of which he founded the first post under the new rules in Wood county, at Weston. He is also a member of the Masonic Order, I. O. O. F. and Royal Arcanum. He is deeply interested in whatever pertains to the welfare of his community, and is one of its most highly respected citizens.

T. J. Young, the father of our subject, was born in 1820 in Shelby county, Ohio, where for many years he followed farming. He was subsequently made postmaster at Wapakoneta, which office he held from 1852 until 1863, removing in the latter year to Wood county. His death took place in 1888 at Celina, Ohio. He was a staunch Democrat. He married Lydia A. Shipman, who was born in 1826 in Mercer county, Ohio, the daughter of Herman and Sarah Shipman, both of whom were of Dutch descent; the former was born in New Jersey, the latter in Pennsylvania. Mrs. Young died in 1872. Their family comprised three children, namely: Lenora, who married J. S. Bodkin, now of Spencerville, Allen Co., Ohio; Sarah, who became the wife of H. H. Keil, of Weston, Ohio; and our subject.

John Young, the paternal grandfather, was a native of Kentucky. He was a great hunter, and his brother William was a friend and companion of Daniel Boone. The Young family is of Scotch origin.

JAMES H. LA FARREE, the efficient manager and secretary of the Bowling Green Natural Gas Co., enjoys in a marked degree the confidence of the stockholders in that prosperous enterprise, and has won, by his energy, integrity and good judgment, an enviable reputation throughout the community. He is a native of Wood county, born September 26, 1837, on his father's farm, near Stony Ridge.

His grandfather, David La Farree, came from the vicinity of Strasburg, which then belonged to France, over a hundred years ago, and settled near Chambersburg, Penn., where his son, James La Farree, our subject's father, was born January 9, 1797, and spent his youth. Arriving at manhood, James La Farree married Miss Elizabeth Sifford, who was born in Maryland March 12, 1800. Her father, Christian Sifford, was a prominent citizen of Frederick City, Md., and had been an under-professor at Heidelberg University previous to his coming to America. She was one of a large family, of whom six—John,

Louis, Daniel, Ann, William and herself—lived to old age.

After their marriage, our subject's parents came to Ohio, locating at Lancaster, in 1820. Later they went to Maryland, where they remained two years, and then returning to Ohio, again settled at Lancaster. In 1832 they moved to Perrysburg, Ohio, and bought government land near Stony Ridge, in Wood county. At that time the old Western Reserve and Maumee turnpike was not built, and these courageous pioneers had to make their way through the woods as best they could. Mr. La Farree was a cabinet maker by trade, and carried on that business for some time in addition to his farm work. He was a Democrat, as every member of the family has always been, and he had at first only two fellow-partisans in the township. He and his wife were members of the M. E. Church. He died of cholera, August 2, 1852, his wife surviving him until September 10, 1888, when she died at the old homestead. They had seven children: John, born March 20, 1820, was a resident of Troy township, and died December 12, 1888; Augustus, born March 5, 1826, was a soldier during the first years of the Civil war, and died August 3, 1865; Cornelia, born March 31, 1831, is the wife of M. B. Richmond, of Crawfordsville, Ind.; Samuel, born March 22, 1834, lived at Umatilla, Oregon, and died May 16, 1866; James H. is the subject of this sketch; George W., born February 9, 1841, lives in Perrysburg; Frances, born April 12, 1844, is the wife of Samuel Swope, of Troy township.

James H. La Farree was educated in the district schools near his home, and in the public schools of Perrysburg. Not content with these opportunities, he has followed an extended course of private study, and kept well posted on the subjects which interest the best minds of the day. At the age of fifteen he learned the cooper's trade with a neighbor, Joshua Chappel, and afterward taught school for some time. He then engaged in bridge building, and later became foreman of the planing-mills at Perrysburg, holding that position thirteen years. In July, 1880, he came to Bowling Green, and became foreman in a planing-mill; but on becoming connected with the Natural Gas Co., he undertook the management of that business. Since July 1, 1886, he has had exclusive control of their interests.

In April, 1861, Mr. La Farree enlisted for three months in Company C, 21st O. V. I., and served in West Virginia; but after two months' service, being taken sick, he came home, and was sick for nearly two years. In February, 1865, he re-enlisted, in Company G, 189th O. V. I., and served several months in northern Alabama and Tennessee, being discharged in September, 1865, with the rank of orderly sergeant.

In 1863, Mr. La Farree was married to Miss Ella G. Norton, who was born in Perrysburg May 12, 1846. They have six children, all living in Bowling Green: Lloyd, Erne, Alice, Kate, Daisy and Rex. Another daughter, Winifred, died in 1880, at the age of four years. Since 1863 Mr. La Farree has been a Mason, and he is a member of Phoenix Blue Lodge, Perrysburg, and Crystal Chapter, Bowling Green.

Chester Willis Norton, Mrs. La Farree's father, was in his day one of the leading men of Wood county. He was a native of Henderson, N. Y., born about 1820, and came in an early day to Perrysburg, Wood county, with his father, Chester Norton, who was a merchant. Chester W. Norton was married in 1842 to Theresa Curtis, who was born in New York State about 1827, daughter of Jairus and Susan (Alexander) Curtis, natives of Vermont who settled at Perrysburg in a very early day.

JOHN MCMAHAN. The subject of this personal narrative is one of the most successful stock raisers and progressive farmers within the borders of Perry township, owning a good homestead of eighty-five acres in Section 11. He has made his special field of industry an eminent success, and is highly esteemed and respected by those who know him best. A native of Ohio, he was born in Spencer township, Hamilton county, January 14, 1816, and is the eldest of the four children of Hugh and Elizabeth (Stump) McMahan, the others being Mary, wife of John McCloy, of Cincinnati, Ohio; Andrew, who for over forty years ran a sawmill, and died in Cincinnati, in August, 1894; and Jane, wife of Edward Collins, also of the same city. When only a boy, his father died, but his mother kept the family together, living in a small house given her by her father. She passed away in Hamilton county in 1836.

John McMahan attended the subscription schools, paying fifty cents a month tuition, and the wood used for fuel was also contributed by the pupils. He followed various occupations during his youth, and as he lived near where the Little Miami river flows into the Ohio, he often made a few cents by catching minnows for the gentlemen who came out from Cincinnati to fish. At the age of twenty-two, he began to work at the carpenter's trade, at which he was able to earn $1 per day, and followed that business for many years.

In Hamilton county, in August, 1843, Mr. McMahan wedded Miss Martha Matthews, a native of Indiana, and a daughter of George Matthews. To them was born a son—Walter, who died in Florida, in February, 1894. After the death of his first wife, our subject married Sarah Seaman, who was a daughter of William Seaman, and was born in Hamilton county, Ohio, where she departed this life, leaving one child—Martha, now Mrs. Lewis Beckman, of Perry township.

In March, 1857, Mr. McMahan came to Wood county, walking from Tiffin to Fostoria, and on his arrival in Perry township erected a house for Nathan Hatfield. In the following October he was united in marriage with Miss Jane A. Hatfield, a native of Ashland county, Ohio, and a daughter of Nathan Hatfield, and they became the parents of the following children—Sarah J., who was born November 4, 1859, and became the wife of Charles Shunk, of Perry township, where she died; Nathan E., who was born December 26, 1861, and died while young; Hugh, who was born December 6, 1865, and is a farmer of Perry township; Louisa, who was born March 16, 1864, and died at the age of nineteen years; William H., who was born February 2, 1869, and lives at home; Warren P., of Perry township, born September 7, 1874; and Minnie D., born February 18, 1877. After ten weeks of illness, the mother of this family died August 2, 1895, and her remains were interred at Fostoria, Ohio. She held membership with the Evangelical Church.

In the fall of 1857, Mr. McMahan went to Cincinnati, where for two years he worked with his brother in a sawmill, but in March, 1860, returned to Wood county, purchasing forty acres of new land in Section 33, Perry township, only a few acres of which had been cleared. He erected a two-story frame house upon the place, 18 x 32 feet, with a kitchen, 14 x 16 feet, and one story in height. For sixteen years he was employed in the sawmill of Nathan Hatfield, but in April, 1878, removed to his present farm in Section 11, Perry township, where about half of his eighty-five acres had been cleared, and on the place stood a small log house, a short distance east of his present home. The neat and orderly appearance of the property manifests to the most casual observer the thrift and care of the proprietor, and shows conclusively that he understands his business thoroughly. He has erected all the buildings upon his farm, and, besides general farming, has been very successful in the raising of hogs, never having lost a single one by cholera, when they were dying all around him. His first vote was cast for William H. Harrison, later he became a Democrat, but for nearly twenty years has now voted with the Republican party. On that ticket he was elected justice of the peace in Perry township, where he served for three years. He joined the I. O. O. F. in Cincinnati, with which he held membership for a number of years, and for fifty years has been a consistent member of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

J. B. WILSON, of Bowling Green, the well-known deputy treasurer of Wood county, holds in a marked degree the esteem of the public as an able and energetic official, having served the county in several responsible positions. He is a native of Wood county, born in Grand Rapids, December 31, 1853.

His father's family was originally from Germany, but his grandfather, John Wilson, was born in Pennsylvania, and in early manhood came to Ohio, where he was prominent among the early settlers. He died in Stark county September 27, 1866, at the age of seventy-five years. His son Matthew, our subject's father, was born in Fayette county, Penn., February 12, 1812. After coming to Ohio with his parents he married Miss Elizabeth Blythe, who was born in Jefferson county, Ohio, October 31, 1823, the daughter of a leading pioneer, Samuel Blythe, later of Weston, Wood county. He was of mixed English and Scotch blood, and his parents settled in Jefferson county during the territorial period. Our subject's parents lived in Wayne county for four years after their marriage, and then moved to Grand Rapids, Wood county. From 1853 to 1867 Mr. Wilson, Sr., was employed in a store as clerk. They returned to Wayne county to spend the remainder of their lives, and died there—Mr. Wilson on January 27, 1887, and his wife on December 7, 1891. They were devout adherents of the Methodist Church.

Our subject was the youngest of their three children. David, the eldest, lives in Wayne county, and C. H. in Chicago, Ill. With the exception of a few years in Wayne county during boyhood, Mr. Wilson has spent his life in Wood county. In 1879 he was made principal of the schools of North Baltimore, holding that position until 1881, when he resigned to accept the office of deputy auditor of Wood county. His faithful service was appreciated by the people, and after six years as deputy he was elected auditor, being re-elected on the expiration of his first term. He has recently accepted the appointment as deputy treasurer. He was married December 31, 1878, to Miss Catherine Simon, a native of Wood county. They have four children—Milo D., Cecil B., Charles and Gladys. Politically he is a Republican, "dyed in the wool," his father having been an early supporter of that party. He was a delegate to the National Republican Convention at Minneapolis in 1892, and voted for Hon. Wm. McKinley for President. He is a member of the I. O. O. F. and the K. of P.

DERASTUS LEE. It is an undisputed fact that Bloom township contains some of the leading farmers of Wood county, and among the foremost of these is the gentleman whose name introduces this sketch. He is the representative of one of our pioneer families, those who endured the hardships, privations and difficulties attending a settlement in the "Black Swamp" in the early "forties," and whose labor transformed the heavily timbered wilderness into productive fields. He passed his youth in the midst of the most primitive surroundings.

His grandfather, Lemuel Lee, was born in Connecticut. He was compelled to make his own way in the world from an early age, owing to the death of his father and the scattering of the family, and when a young man he came to Ohio, locating in Columbiana county. At that time Ohio had not yet been admitted as a State; within its limits was to be found much land upon which no "pale-face" had ever set foot, and in fact it was only along the eastern border that it was safe for a white man to take up his abode. Lemuel Lee married a Miss Jackson, and they had a large family, of whom six sons and two daughters lived to adult age. He was not a man to accumulate property, and in his circumstances there was but little opportunity to do so, but he made an honest living. He died about 1854.

George J. Lee, one of the older sons, born in 1806, was our subject's father. Reared on a frontier farm, his schooling was very limited; indeed, to use his own expression, he was "educated with the grubbing hoe." During his boyhood but few schools were to be found, and they were the subscription schools patronized by the well-to-do classes. He was a large boy before he ever attended one, and then the humiliation of reciting in classes composed of children much smaller than he almost drove him to leave school, which he would have done had it not been for the encouragement of the teacher, his uncle, James Gordon. This one term of three months was the limit of his educational advantages. On February 4, 1830, he married Miss Hannah Wollam, a native of the same county, born in 1805. Her father, Henry Wollam, was a well-to-do farmer of that neighborhood, owning an excellent farm which he had redeemed from its primitive state, and improved with some unusually good buildings for that time. Before his marriage George Lee had learned the tanner's trade; but an attempt to engage in it met with little success, and he settled upon a farm on Beaver creek, where our subject first saw the light. As time passed, and the future of his children became an important problem, he decided to go farther west where land was cheaper, and September 25, 1841, he started for Wood county with his household goods in a large wagon, on which his wife rode with the younger members of the family, which then included six children. This conveyance was drawn by two oxen, with two horses as leaders. Ten days later they arrived in Montgomery township, having made a short visit in Richland county with friends, and a temporary home was made with John Vosburg until a suitable location was found. Mr. Lee entered 160 acres of land, which was in its primitive condition—not one tree having been cut upon it—and his first work was to clear a spot for the building of his log cabin. His brother, Henry, had accompanied the party, and he entered eighty acres adjoining, then returned home, where he died a few years afterward, having no direct heirs, and a one-third interest fell to our subject's father, who later bought the remaining two-thirds. He also bought another tract of forty acres, and at the time of his death owned 280 acres. He was a man of influence in his community, Democrat of the "Jacksonian stripe," and he took great interest in public affairs. For many years he and his wife were members of the Protestant Methodist Church. This venerable pioneer couple lived several years beyond their "Golden Wedding Anniversary"; they died within two and one-half years of each other, both having passed four-score years, and their remains rest in West Millgrove cemetery.

Ten children were born to them as follows: Henry, January 10, 1831, living in Jerry City; Derastus, April 27, 1832; Samuel, August 29, 1833, died in Bloom township, May 16, 1855, of consumption; Mary J., April 7, 1835, married Adam Graham, of Montgomery township; Jackson, June 19, 1837, enlisted August 15, 1861, in Company H, 49th O. V. I., was wounded at

Derastus Lee

Mary E Lee

Chickamauga, September 19, 1863, and died the next day, his body never being recovered; Milo, March 15, 1839, died in Bloom township, April 30, 1858, of consumption; Sarah A., October 18, 1840, married Philip Brubaker, of Bloom township; Susanna, May 9, 1842, is the wife of Benton Musser, of Gratiot county, Mich.; John H., September 11, 1844, died of consumption, January 13, 1862, in Bloom township; and Benjamin F., October 27, 1846, died March 23, 1847.

Derastus Lee was about nine years old when he came to this county, but there was plenty of work upon his father's farm, and even at that age he could "pick brush" in the clearing. With no modern machinery and but few tools, and those of the rudest sort, the work of the farm and household required the help of all, and schools were but little thought of, so that his educational opportunities were very limited. After he attained his majority he for one term attended the select school taught by Alfred Kelley, the pioneer teacher of West Millgrove. His own experience has given Mr. Lee a great desire to see facilities for education brought within the reach of everyone, and he is the ardent supporter of any improvement in the schools of to-day. On September 25, 1858, he married Miss Mary E. Vallance, a native of Ashland county, born June 22, 1837. Her parents, James and Elizabeth (Brubaker) Vallance, came to Wood county in September, 1849, settling in Perry township. She had fared no better than her husband in educational advantages, attending the schools of her day for about three months. At the time of his marriage Mr. Lee had by work and "dickering" secured a team of horses, a wagon, a plow, and a harrow, the first horse, which he bought of his uncle, Lemuel Lee, being paid for by $30 in money and the chopping of ten acres of timber. With this outfit he started in business on his own account, taking the old homestead on shares. His residence for the first eleven years was in an old log school house which he had fitted up. There were many days of toil and but few of recreation in those years; but he and his wife were young, strong and ambitious, and their mutual affection made their old cabin a happy home. During this period Mr. Lee bought 160 acres of timber land in Section 12, Bloom township, which he still owns although he has never lived there. In the spring of 1871, he purchased eighty acres in Section 10, to which he moved. For twenty years he was engaged in threshing, in addition to farming, sometimes with a partner, sometimes without. His work was always faithfully done, and while thus employed he gained a wide circle of friends in different parts of the county. He did not spare himself over his tasks, and frequently when he had been busy up to a late hour of the night, he has crawled up to the side of a straw stack to sleep till morning. He has added to his land at various times until he now has nearly 800 acres, making him one of the largest landowners in Wood county, and most of his property is good farming land, which can not be said of some other extensive holders. Probably there is not another instance in Wood county of a poor boy becoming, through his own efforts, the owner of so large an estate. Industry, wise and economical management, and shrewd bargaining have made this progress possible, his estimable wife deserving, also, a large share of credit.

Of their ten children, eight are now living in Bloom township. The names of all, with dates of birth, are as follows: James W., February 17, 1860, is a prosperous young farmer; Laura E., March 3, 1861, married Abraham Loe; John F., September 25, 1862, is a well-to-do farmer; Jacob E., July 31, 1864, is at home; Charles W., October 11, 1867, died February 2, 1868; Hattie E., February 6, 1869, married Samuel Dennis, of Bloom Center; Perry M., March 12, 1871, is a progressive young farmer; Florence, June 4, 1873, married Elza Wright, of Bloom township; Mary Ettie, October 1, 1875, died March 21, 1876; and Rhoda V., December 25, 1878, is at home. Among the foundation stones of Mr. Lee's tasteful and commodious residence is a relic of pioneer times — the top stone of an old hand-mill once belonging to his father's neighbor, Peter Painter, and many a time during his boyhood did Mr. Lee walk through the woods which lay between the two farms, carrying corn which he converted into meal with the aid of that stone.

Coming from a family in which consumption has claimed several members, Mr. Lee's death has been often predicted, yet he is hale and hearty, and bids fair to live many years. At the age of sixty-four he can perform a day's work which would do credit to one twenty years his junior. In October, 1894, he met with a serious injury. While nailing a board on a fence the nail broke and a flying piece struck him in the left eye, entirely destroying the sight. He is a good neighbor, kind-hearted, out-spoken, and a man of strict integrity. In politics Mr. Lee is a Democrat, and he is one of the chief counselors of the party in his locality. He formerly attended conventions and caucuses with great regularity, but he has never been an office seeker, and, although he has served creditably as trustee of his township, he has often declined to become a candidate for other positions. He once led the "forlorn hope" against the overwhelming Republican majority in the county, having been selected by his party as the candidate for county commissioner, and he succeeded in reducing the majority—a notable achievement, as things stood.

FREDERICK YEAGER, a prominent citizen of Perrysburg, and a brave veteran of the Civil war, was born in Perrysburg, Wood Co., Ohio, February 22, 1844, a son of John J. and Elizabeth (Helfrich) Yeager. The grandfather, also named John J. Yeager, was a soldier in the French army, and died in France. The grandmother, whose maiden name was Margaret Liber, came with her second husband, Lorenze Hirtzel, to this country in 1854, and both died of cholera at Perrysburg eight weeks after their arrival. Mr. Hirtzel had also been a soldier in the French army. The maternal grandparents of Mr. Yeager were farmers in Lucas county, Ohio, where they died and were buried. They were members of the Roman Catholic Church.

John J. Yeager, father of our subject, was born June 7, 1821, in Alsace, France (now in Germany), and was married to Elizabeth Helfrich, a native of Germany, born November 19, 1819, in Hessen-Darmstadt. In 1840, prior to their marriage, they came to America, becoming acquainted at Perrysburg, where their wedding took place May 16, 1843. He was a farmer by occupation, and was thus employed until the breaking out of the Civil war, when, loyal to the interests of his adopted country, he decided to offer his services in defense of the government. Accordingly he organized a company, of which he was made captain, and which became a part of the 111th O. V. I. He entered the service in the fall of 1862, remaining therein some eighteen months, during which time he was present at the siege of Knoxville and in other noted engagements. In February, 1864, he was taken so ill that he was obliged to resign his command and return home. In 1868 he was made commissioner of Wood county, which office he held until 1871. His death took place at Perrysburg April 27, 1891. In religious faith he was a Methodist, in politics a Republican, and he was a most worthy citizen. His wife died January 16, 1890, leaving their only child, the subject of this sketch.

Frederick Yeager attended the common schools of his native village during his boyhood, and had entered Baldwin University at Berea when Gov. Brough called out the 100-day men to serve in the war of the Rebellion. The patriotic impulses of the young student would not allow him to remain inactive at a time when the youth, as well as the grey-haired men, of his State were pressing to the front, and, like his father, he joined the Union forces, enlisting in Company F, 144th O. V. I., in which he served until August 24, 1864. On October 5, same year, he re-enlisted, this time in Company E, 181st O. V. I., and took part in the battles of Murfreesboro, Decatur, and Nashville, after which he became a member of the 23rd Army Corps, 2nd Division, 3rd Brigade; he was present at Raleigh, N. C., where Johnston surrendered to Sherman, April 20, 1865. He was honorably discharged at Salisbury, and returned to his home at Perrysburg, where he carried on farming for three years, embarking in mercantile business, in which he was engaged for the succeeding twenty-two years.

In politics a Republican, he has filled public positions of honor and trust, including township clerk (one year), to which office he was elected in 1870, though the township is strongly Democratic; township treasurer four years, from 1877 to 1881; was on the school board eleven years, and mayor of Perrysburg two years. In 1891 he was elected county treasurer, and was the second man born in the county to hold that office. In 1893 he was re-elected, and has filled the responsible position to the satisfaction of the public, and with credit to himself. He is a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church, and is prominent in the G. A. R., filling all the chairs in that order. On December 5, 1865, he was married at Perrysburg to Miss Fidelia E. Kreps, who was born September 1, 1844, and four children have blessed this union, as follows: Minnie E., born January 16, 1867, now the wife of S. H. Sanford (both are teachers in Little Rock University, Little Rock, Ark.); John O., born April 6, 1870, employed in a mercantile house in Toledo (he married Sarah Lindsey, and they have one child—Madeline); Merton F., born September 12, 1873, still at home; and George Legrand, born July 7, 1876, also at home. Mr. Yeager has always held a prominent place in the community, and is highly esteemed as a loyal and public-spirited citizen.

HON. E. F. DAY, mayor of Risingsun, is also one of the most prominent business men of that vicinity, being the head of a well-known firm of contractors and builders, and of the oil company known as Day, Burnett & Winchell.

His grandfather, Dr. Stephen F. Day, was a successful physician in Wayne county, Ohio, where he continued his practice to an advanced age. His wife, Elizabeth (Strause), a native of Pennsylvania, died in her seventy-sixth year in Montgomery township, Wood county, at the home of their son, Stephen F. Day, Jr., our subject's father. He was born in Wayne county, February 28, 1827, and came to Wood county at the age of fifteen. He lived near Longley until his marriage, in September, 1849, in Scott township, Sandusky county, to Miss Mary A. Phillips, who was born in Stark county, Ohio, October 26, 1828, the daughter of David and Mary A. (Bates) Phillips. The young couple began housekeeping near Risingsun, upon an uncleared tract of eighty acres, which Mr. Day sold after making some improvements. In the fall of 1860, he purchased 150 acres in Scott township, Sandusky county, and lived there until 1883, when he moved to a farm in Gratiot county, Mich. Later he went to Coffee county, Tenn., but, not liking the place, he only remained one winter, and returning to Wood county traded it for forty acres in Section 1, Perry township, where he now resides in a comfortable home. When a young man he worked at the carpenter's trade, but farming has been his chief occupation. Of his family of ten children all are married and well settled in life. They are—Emily, Mrs. Martin Shively, of Risingsun; Ezra F., our subject; Charles H., of Risingsun; David, of Seneca county, Ohio; Jane, Mrs. Edwin Ballinger, of Risingsun; Emanuel, a resident of the same town; the twins, Rosetta (Mrs. William Bovie, of Scott township, Sandusky county), and Rosanna (Mrs. Charles H. Williams, of Risingsun); Willis, who also lives at Risingsun; and Effie, Mrs. Eli Holtenbaugh, of Seneca county, Ohio.

Mr. Day first saw the light September 3, 1852, in Section 25, Montgomery township, and his early education was such as the district schools of that day and locality afforded. He was stout and active, and helped his father to clear up two farms during his boyhood; but at twenty-one he began to learn the carpenter's trade, for which he had already shown remarkable aptitude. Under the training of Adam Shively, of Scott township, Sandusky county, he readily mastered the details of the business, and then continued for two years as a partner. After this he engaged in contracting and building, and he has put up some of the finest residences in that locality. His ability as a mechanic is of the highest order, and he draws his own plans after a system which is unexcelled for simplicity and effectiveness. In the spring of 1896 his brother C. H. became associated with him in the business.

On January 17, 1878, Mr. Day was married in Tiffin, Ohio, to Miss Charlotte Riley, the daughter of Thomas and Hannah (Mossgrove) Riley. They began housekeeping in Risingsun, in a very comfortable home which he had previously prepared, and here six children were born to them: Alfred J., Ada L., Bessie E., Homer F., Ethel, and Minnie. All are at home, and the first two are members of the class of 1896, Risingsun High School. Their mother departed this life November 17, 1891, and her mortal remains were consigned to earth in Trinity cemetery, Sandusky county. Mr. Day has since formed a second matrimonial alliance with Miss Ida Mills, of Ohio county, W. Va., the daughter of James Mills.

As a financier, Mr. Day has shown marked ability. His earlier years were by no means prosperous, and he was obliged to borrow money for the first ham that he ever had in his house; but his industry and shrewd management have brought a good reward. He owns eighty-three acres of land in Seneca county, and some very valuable town property for residence and business purposes, in Risingsun, and his oil interests and other enterprises now bring him, under his constant and judicious care, a fine competence. In principle he is a Democrat, but party lines are secondary with him to the public welfare. No man commands more fully the confidence of his fellowmen, and he began his public service at the age of twenty-one as clerk of Scott township, Sandusky county. He was the first mayor of Risingsun, and has since been elected several times, this being his fifth term. His decisions have never been reversed in the courts, and it may be said that he displays rare legal talent, all the more remarkable from his lack of early training. He has drafted ordinances and documents such as other incumbents of the office have not attempted; as an enemy to the disorderly element he has the esteem of the better classes. His popularity is proven by his repeated election to this office, and he has also served as treasurer of the village, and has been a member of the council every year except one since the incorporation of the town. Socially, he is a member of the I. O. O. F.

JUDGE GUY C. NEARING, of Bowling Green, now (1896) serving his second term as judge of the probate court of Wood county, has for nearly twenty years been a prominent member of the legal fraternity in the county.

He comes of old pioneer stock, and is of German descent. His grandfather, Guy Nearing, left central New York in 1817 to settle in Perrysburg, Ohio, where he died in 1840 at an advanced age. He was a contractor by occupation, interested in canal construction, and in a number of important buildings, among them the old court house and jail at Perrysburg, and a mill on the river. He was twice married; by his first wife he had three sons—Horatio, Zepheniah and Neptune (our subject's father)—and by his second wife he had two daughters, and three sons—Freeman, Henry and Emilius; of these Freeman died in infancy; Henry lives near Tontogany; and Emilius (who was deaf and dumb), followed the carpenter's trade in Fulton county until his death, in August, 1890. Of the daughters, one married, and died in Wood county; the other died in infancy.

Neptune Nearing, our subject's father, was born in New York State in 1808, and died in Wood county in 1844. He learned the cabinet maker's trade in his youth, but was engaged chiefly in assisting his father on his contracts. For a few years he conducted a hotel at Texas, Ohio, and then retired to his farm in Plain township. He returned to New York State for a wife, and married a distant relative, Mrs. Stella Nearing Parsons, who was born in Vermont in 1809, and died in 1890. Of their three children, the eldest, Scott, died in infancy; Sarah Rosetta is now the wife of J. Hayes, of Chicago, Ill.; our subject being the youngest.

Guy C. Nearing was born at the old farm in Plain township March 12, 1843, and had the ordinary educational advantages of a country boy of his time. In 1861 he enlisted as a private in Company B, 6th O. V. I., was first sent to West Virginia, was later transferred to the Ohio region, and finally to the army of the Cumberland. He was in several noted battles—Shiloh, Stone River, Chickamauga and Missionary Ridge—and after three years' service received an honorable discharge, leaving the army with the rank of sergeant. In December, 1862, he was wounded at Stone River, and fell into the enemy's hands. He was sent first to Nashville, and later to Louisville, and was absent from his command until the following May.

On his return home he attended school for a short time in Perrysburg, and then engaged in teaching during the winter time, though he was a farmer in summer. Thus he continued until 1873, when he began to study law. In 1876 he was admitted to the bar, and opened an office in Bowling Green, where his strong vitality and commanding presence, his gift of accurate and rapid analysis of legal principles, and his untiring energy, brought him quick recognition in professional circles. He is also interested in various commercial enterprises, being a director in the First National Bank, having extensive investments in the oil fields of Wood county, and owning a farm of 120 acres in Center township. Politically he is a Republican, and he is regarded as a leader in county and municipal affairs, holding various offices. He has been a member of the city council, city solicitor, clerk of Center township, and since 1891 has been probate judge, having been re-elected to this second term by a large majority over an able and active competitor. He is a member of Wiley Post No. 46, G. A. R., and also takes an active interest in fraternal organizations, being a prominent Mason, a valuable member of the Blue Lodge, in which he has filled all the chairs, and a Royal Arch Mason; he also affiliates with the subordinate lodge, I. O. O. F., in which he has passed all the chairs.

On December 13, 1865, our subject married E. V. Rockwood, a native of Lorain county, born January 27, 1846, and they have one son, Charles R., who is deputy probate judge. As leading members of the M. E. Church, they take a prominent part in the social and philanthropical movements of that progressive body, and are also ready friends of every worthy enterprise outside of denominational lines.

Giles C. Rockwood, father of Mrs. Nearing, was born, in 1819, in New York State, and was a carpenter by trade. He came to Ohio with his parents in 1829, and was here married, in 1845, to Laura C. Wack, by whom he had three children: E. V. (Mrs. Nearing); Hoyt O., who died in October, 1877, leaving two sons—William P. and Ernest C.; and Frank P., who died in infancy. In 1849 Mr. Rockwood went to California, and was absent ten months. Mrs. Rockwood was born, in 1819, in Vermont, and in 1834 came to Ohio with her parents, Frederick W. and Hannah Wack, the former of whom was born in Colchester, Conn., and moved to Vermont. Frederick W. Wack was the only child of Frederick Wack, who came to this country from Germany when a boy, and died while serving in the Colonial army in the Revolutionary war.

SYLVESTER ABBOTT, in whose death the community lost one of its most valued citizens, was born July 13, 1812, near Boston, Mass., and at the age of five years came to Greene county,

Sylvester B Abbott

N. Y., where he acquired his education and learned the trade of carpenter and joiner, following that pursuit until his removal to Ohio, in 1833. He located in Huron county, where for a time he again engaged in carpentering, and then fitted himself for the legal profession, being admitted to the bar at Toledo.

In Huron county he was married, January 25, 1836, to Alzina Morey, by whom he had one child, John, born October 27, 1836, who is now a physician in Illinois. The mother died January 27, 1837. On May 3, 1838, Mr. Abbott wedded Maryette Caswell, and they became the parents of eight children, namely: Reuben, born April 11, 1839, of Bowling Green; May Elizabeth, born April 10, 1841, now the wife of Byron Niles, of Michigan; Melvin L., who was born June 2, 1843, is a merchant of Bowling Green; George M., who was born August 26, 1847, is a farmer of Michigan; Sarah, born September 28, 1850, is the wife of I. L. Hankey; Alice E., born April 20, 1855, is the wife of Sylvester Ordway, of Bowling Green; Lewis, born December 1, 1857, is a farmer of Wood county; one died in infancy. The mother of this family passed away November 24, 1875, and for his third wife Mr. Abbott, on March 22, 1876, wedded Helen Robins, a lady of culture and refinement, who successfully followed school teaching. She is a daughter of Eliakim and Susanna (Brown) Robins, the former a carpenter of Huron county. To this union have come two children: Celesta G., who was born July 24, 1879, and died February 23, 1891; and Jerry B., born June 4, 1881, still at home.

Mr. Abbott practiced law in both Huron and Wood counties, coming to the latter in 1853, at which time he purchased 160 acres of land in Center township. In connection with law practice he carried on agricultural pursuits, planting an orchard and making many other excellent improvements, while the well-tilled fields yielded to him a handsome income. He continued farming until his death, which occurred January 16, 1891. For several years he served as justice of the peace, discharging his duties with most conscientious fidelity. He was ever faithful to a trust reposed in him, whether of a public or private nature. His business career and his home life were alike above reproach, and he had the warm regard of many personal friends. Mrs. Abbott is still living on the homestead in Center township, and is an intelligent lady of genial manner and kindly disposition, who is held in the highest esteem by her neighbors and the community at large.

LORIN SMITH, one of the most prominent and highly respected farmers of Montgomery township, was born October 11, 1822, in Kiltzheim, Baden, Germany. In his native country his name was spelled Lorentz Schmitt. His parents were John J. and Anna M. (Bauman) Smith, the former of whom was a farmer in Baden, and owned a nice little home of twenty-six acres, where he lived in comfort, and was considered well off.

The parental family consisted of the following named children: John J., Jr., Emily, Frank, Frances, Margaret, Eva, and Lorin. As they grew up the question of finding homes for them was a matter of concern to the parents, and, as glowing reports of the wealth and land of the United States had reached the old country, it was decided to send the eldest son, John, and his sister, Emily, who had then reached the years of maturity, to investigate the truth of these stories of the New World. They accordingly came to the United States, and at Stockbridge, Mass., soon found employment, the son in a hotel. Emily was married soon after her arrival in this country. The reports sent back to the family were so satisfactory that two years later Frank and Frances joined their brother and sister, and were so pleased with the success with which they met that it was decided best for the rest of the family to come also. In 1830, the parents and other children left their old home, driving to Paris, France, with their own team. There the horses and wagon were sold, and they went by boat down the river Seine to Havre, where they took passage for the United States on a three-masted vessel, "The Baird," which had formerly been a mail vessel, and was taking her first trip as an emigrant boat. Their destination was New York, and they were fifty-two days on the ocean, during which time they had a narrow escape from capture by pirates.

At New York City the family was met by the son, John J., and they concluded to come to Ohio, then considered the "Far West." This western trip had been under consideration for some time by those of the family already in the United States, and was one of the motives which induced the parents to emigrate. The journey was made up the Hudson river to Albany, thence over the Erie canal to Buffalo, and by lake to Cleveland, Ohio, where a house was rented and a temporary home made, while the father and eldest son looked about for suitable land to purchase. Land could be bought where the great city of Cleveland now stands, for eight dollars per acre; but learning that there was better land farther west they set out on a journey which ended in Peru township, Huron Co., Ohio. The incident which caused them to locate here was a common one in the history of the western States. Halting at a spring to drink they found the water exceptionally cool and clear, the land in the vicinity and the location on the ridge between the sources of the Huron rivers favorable to health and industry. The physical features of the country corresponded with their correct ideas of agriculture, and they lost no time in obtaining the land, which had been somewhat improved, and on which an excellent orchard was then growing. This farm was known as the "Old Johnson Farm" at the time of their purchase. The family were moved to Huron county from Cleveland with an ox-team.

The Smith family had a fair amount of money on their arrival in America, as their property in Baden had brought in considerably over $1,000, and they were able to begin life in this country in a very fair way. After a few years residence in Huron county the father began to look around for more cheap land. A large portion of Wood county was then government land, but it was known as the "Black Swamp," and did not tempt many settlers. The father was a good judge of land, and seemed to think that Wood county had a great future. He entered, after looking around, 162 acres in Section 5, Montgomery township, and the deed, signed by Andrew Jackson, bears the date of December, 1835, and is now in the possession of our subject. A few years after the family located in Huron county, the other members of it came west from Massachusetts, except Emily, who had married Joseph Keller, and died in Boston. Of the other children, John J., Jr., died in Huron county, Ohio; Frank died in the same county in 1872; Frances died in Freedom township, Wood county; Margaret married Peter Stang, and died in Huron county; Eva is the widow of Joseph Addleman, and lives in Huron county; our subject is the youngest of the family.

Lorin Smith had studied in the schools of his native land, and was a very bright boy, being able when seven years of age to both read and write the German language. After coming to Huron county he attended school there and obtained a good education. He worked on the farm with his father, and, being an obedient son, the latter showed his appreciation by giving him 162 acres of government land in Montgomery township, Wood county, out of which, however, he was to give his sister Frances fifty acres, which he did. This was in 1841, and two years later Mr. Smith visited his land, and made some improvements on it. In the fall of 1844 he built a cabin of hewed logs, 20 x 30 feet, which had a shingle roof, the shingles for which he himself cut from oak trees. Being thus provided with a home, the young man secured for himself a wife in the person of Miss Mary T. Addleman, to whom he was married in Huron county, January 7, 1845. Mrs. Smith was born March 19, 1824, in the same village in Baden as her husband, and is the eldest child and only daughter of John P. and Mary Addleman. Her parents left Baden in the spring of 1831, and drove with their own team to Paris, where they waited two weeks for the horse market to open. Selling their horses, they went by boat to Havre, sailing from there on the vessel "Henry III," which landed them at New York City after a voyage of fifty-four days. They spent the winter of 1831-32 in Buffalo, and in the spring of the latter year bought a farm three and a half miles from that city, where they lived until the fall of 1836. In that year they moved to Huron county, two and a half miles southwest of Norwalk, where they spent the remainder of their lives. Their family consisted of four sons and one daughter. On January 14, 1845, our subject and his bride started to their new home in Wood county. Three teams were necessary to haul them and their goods, the roads through the timber being very bad. Two days were occupied in the journey, which was a rough and tedious one. They at once began to make improvements upon the place. Their cabin was a good one, but sparsely furnished, and the country about them was in a primitive condition. Many of their friends had predicted their failure to put up with such a pioneer life. This, however, only aroused their determination, and instead of disheartening them inspired them to new effort. A plentiful supply of provisions had been brought, which sufficed until the land produced its first crops of wheat and corn. Maumee was the nearest milling point, and it required two days under the most favorable conditions to make the trip. In June, 1847, the aged parents of our subject came to make their home with them, and on September 21, of the same year, the mother died and was buried upon the farm. She was sixty-seven years of age. The father lived with our subject until 1853, when he returned to Huron county, and there died at the age of eighty-four years. This worthy couple were consistent members of the Catholic Church, and were honest, industrious German people. The father was never naturalized, and consequently never voted, but in all things was loyal to his adopted country.

In the course of a few years the results of Mr. Smith's long days of hard work were manifest in the fertile fields and blooming orchards into which the land had been transformed. He bought eighty acres additional; but when the Civil war broke out, and it was very hard to procure sufficient help, he disposed of this property. The old log house continued to be the home of the family, and in it all the children were born. These are as follows: Mary T., born October 27, 1845, is now Mrs. Peter Hettel, of Wapakoneta, Ohio; Caroline J., born November 22, 1847, is the wife of James Fish, of Freedom township, Wood county; Louisa A., born April 25, 1850, is the wife of William Davidson, of Center township, Wood county; John L., born April 13, 1854, died December 21, 1885; F. B., born October 31, 1856, was married October 22, 1895, to Miss Julia Shepler, of Bradner, Ohio (he is a farmer in Freedom township); Charles L., born April 4, 1859, was married December 19, 1889, to Miss Nellie Brandeberry, of Pemberville, Ohio; Frances A., born May 4, 1862, was married October 29, 1889, to George Adams, of Montgomery township. In 1869 Mr. Smith built his present elegant brick residence, which is the finest farm house in Montgomery township, and one of the best in the county. He has added to his original property at various times until he now owns 276 acres, and he has given his sons 170 acres. The land is rich in oil, and is admirably adapted to farming purposes.

The life of Mr. Smith presents an excellent example of what industry, perseverance and good management can accomplish. No man has worked harder than he, and many a moonlight night, in his early days, has found him toiling away until a late hour. He has become a master of the art of agriculture, and is able to procure the best results from his work. He has developed his splendid farm from its primitive condition, and in doing so has spent the best years of his life. With his excellent wife, who has shared in all his labors and privations, he deserves the greatest credit for the success to which he has attained. This estimable couple have passed their fifty-first year of married life; have reared a large family, of which they may justly be proud, and have accumulated a handsome competency in an upright, straightforward manner. No one can accuse Lorin Smith of dishonesty, or question his integrity. In all his business dealings he has never been sued, and he is to-day a man whom everyone respects. He became a naturalized citizen in 1843, but though a loyal Democrat has never been an office seeker. Both he and his wife are members of the Catholic Church, although not able to attend the services on account of the distance. Notwithstanding the many trials and years of toil through which Mr. Smith and his wife have passed, they are well preserved, and Mrs. Smith, although over seventy-two years of age, is still able to do her own house work. Their life has been full of usefulness, and in the evening of their days, which they are enjoying in ease and comfort, they can look back over the past years with the consciousness of duties well performed.

HIRAM JOHNSON, an honored veteran of the Civil war, who is now living retired in Liberty township, was born in Lisle, Broome Co., N. Y., July 27, 1837. His father, Stephen Johnson, was also a native of the Empire State, and when a young man learned the trade of wood turning, which he followed until his marriage to Eunice Thurston, also a native of New York. Several years later they removed from Broome county, to Bradford county, Penn., where Mr. Johnson took up land, and followed farming in connection with his trade. In 1855 he located thirty miles northwest of Chicago, in Lake county, Ill., where his death occurred about 1865, and his wife survived him only two years. Their children were Liddy, deceased wife of Peter Tanner, of Iowa; Girard, who became a farmer in Minnesota, but has not been heard from for ten years; Hiram; and Edwin, a farmer of Wisconsin.

Mr. Johnson, of this review, was educated in the schools of New York and Illinois, and at the age of twenty-two began learning the mason's trade, which he has followed through much of his life in connection with farming. During the Civil war he manifested his loyalty to the government by enlisting, in 1862, in Kankakee, Ill., as a member of Company K, 76th Ill. V. I. He participated in the battle of Shiloh, then went down the Mississippi river to the Gulf and to Mobile, Ala., participating in the battle at that place and the siege at Fort Blakely. Being taken ill, he was sent to the hospital in New Orleans, where he remained until honorably discharged in 1865, when he at once returned to his home in Paxton, Illinois.

Mr. Johnson was married in Ford county, that State, in 1859, to Liddy Metzger, who was born in Ohio, in 1837, and for twelve years they lived in Paxton. In 1871 they came to Wood county, taking up their residence on six acres of land in Liberty township, which he still owns. For many years he followed his trade, and since 1892 has derived a good income from two oil wells that he has sunk upon his place, and which are excellent producers. This has enabled him to lay aside active business cares. Mr. and Mrs. Johnson have three children—Corbin, of Lucas county, Ohio; Edgar and Clarence, at home. In politics, Mr. Johnson is a Republican.

NARCISSE SANGLIER, deceased, was one of the most prominent residents of Liberty township, Wood county. He was born October 24, 1827, in Loir-et-Cher, France, and was a son of Jacob Sanglier, a merchant, who died in that country. Our subject was one of a family of seven children, namely: Virginie, who died in France; Pascal, a scholar and linguist, who married an heiress, and died in Egypt many years ago; Narcisse, subject of this sketch; Adrian, now living in France; Victor, a resident of Tiffin, Ohio; Ovid, still living in his native land; and Adeline, who died in France.

For ten years after attaining his majority our subject was employed as a baker in Paris, and then crossed the Atlantic to America. He landed in New York, made his way to Cleveland, and for one year was employed in the Berea Stone Quarry. He then removed to Milton Center, Wood county, and after a year took up his residence in Liberty township. He was married in Milton Center to Lucine Kubler, who was born in Switzerland February 8, 1838, daughter of Howard and Celestine (Kuinn) Kubler. Her parents were both born in 1810 in Canton Berne, Switzerland, and came to America in 1853, locating in Cleveland, Ohio. The father followed farming in his native land, but worked as a laborer after coming to this country. He died in 1858. Both were members of the Roman Catholic Church. In their family were four children—Mrs. Sanglier; Louise, who died in Cleveland; Joseph, who died in January, 1895, in Denison, Texas; and Christopher, who went west several years ago, since which time no news has been received of him.

Upon their marriage, our subject and his wife located in Liberty township, where he carried on agricultural pursuits. He first purchased twenty acres, wild and unimproved, but he added to his farm from time to time until he became the owner of a valuable property, which he continued to cultivate until his death, May 3, 1894. In 1887 the first oil well was drilled on the farm, which now contains fifteen wells, and these are a good source of income to the family. Mr. Sanglier was a capable business man, and by his well directed efforts acquired a handsome property.

In the family were ten children: Mary, at home; Nelson, who died at the age of twelve; Justin O., whose sketch follows; Ashel; Louise; Martha, who was married September 3, 1895, to C. C. La Point, of Erie, Mich.; Lucy, deceased; Rose; Maggie and Alice. ASHEL SANGLIER, who operates the farm, was born October 6, 1867, and throughout his life has aided in the work on the old home place. He acquired his education in the district schools, is a young man of excellent business ability, and now owns 140 acres of land on which are two oil wells. The landed possessions of the family aggregate 1,020 acres. Ashel Sanglier was a member of the Democratic Central Committee for four years, and also served on the executive committee for one term. In April, 1896, he was, by the choice of his friends, nominated for trustee, and was elected by a majority of thirty-three votes, thus overcoming a Republican majority of 120, and is also a member of the county board of election. No better recommendation could be given a young man than this flattering compliment. The entire Sanglier family are members of the Roman Catholic Church.

LUCY SANGLIER, now deceased, was born on the old Sanglier homestead in Liberty township, September 17, 1874. She grew up under the care of her parents, and at an early age manifested unusual mental activity. As she budded into womanhood her rare qualities of mind and heart crystalized into an ambition for education. She attended the district school until 1894, when she entered the Ursuline convent, in Toledo, Ohio, where she completed the full course of study required by that institution, giving special attention to vocal and instrumental music. Having mastered the elements of education essential to a full round complete womanhood, she returned to her home, where she continued to discipline herself; and by that subtle knowledge, known only to a woman of culture and refinement, wound herself around the hearts of her old associates, and made herself doubly dear to the members of her immediate family.

She became revered as a companion, and respected as a model for others. Her high degree of mental and personal culture was only equaled by her zeal in practice of religion. She had aspired to make herself something more than ordinary as an individual, and had attained much of her ambition; but that Mighty One "That doeth all things well," called her to immortality at a period when it was least expected—just when she had attained full maturity of womanhood, and when she was most dear and most useful to all who knew her. September 26, 1896, was the fatal day when the silent hand of the Divine Master stole through the lattice of her room, and with His magic power beckoned the spirit forth, leaving all that was mortal of Lucy Sanglier like a waxen figure—white and motionless.

NARCISSE SANGLIER.

MRS. LUCINE SANGLIER.

Those who mourn and miss her have the sacred consolation of knowing that if it is possible for the human soul to attain the ideality the Christian sees through the eye of faith, then, e'er her last pulsation ceased, the halo of a glorious eternity crowned her.

JUSTIN O. SANGLIER, one of the wealthiest and most enterprising farmers in Plain township, was born in Liberty township, Wood county, March 2, 1865, the son of Narcisse and Lucine (Kubler) Sanglier.

Mr. Sanglier was brought up on his father's farm, attending the district school, and assisting in work at home until his marriage, on February 7, 1893, to Miss Adaline Cousino, whose birth took place in Michigan, July 31, 1867. Three children have been born to them: Martha B., Clara L. and Louis C.

Mr. Sanglier is now the owner of one of the finest farms in Plain township, comprising 120 acres of highly cultivated land, upon which are many improvements, and a very large brick residence, in which the family make their home. The Sanglier family is well known throughout the county as wealthy and influential people, and our subject, by his industry and progressive methods, is rapidly adding to his already large possessions. He is popular throughout the community. In religious belief he is a devout member of the Catholic Church. Politically he is a staunch Democrat.

JESSE HAGER, one of the most prominent representatives of the commercial interests in this county, was born March 22, 1865, in the town of Bloomville, Seneca Co., Ohio, and is a son of Christian and Mary (Snyder) Hager, the latter of whom is now deceased.

Our subject was only a boy when his parents came to Wood county, and he was reared on the old family homestead in Jackson township. There he assisted his father in clearing and developing the eighty acres of land, and otherwise improving the property. His education was acquired in the district schools of the neighborhood. At the age of twenty-one he left home and entered the employ of the W. F. Dewey Company, of Hoytville, with whom he remained or about a year. He next secured a clerkship in the company's store, where he remained about three years, when he was promoted to the position of bookkeeper, and also made manager of the store. Since that time he has done all the buying for the store, paid all the employes, and has not only gained the confidence of the company but also won a high position in commercial circles, and is now one of the stockholders and directors in the business. He has the faculty of ably managing and directing others, and his just treatment has gained him the respect of his employes, and the confidence of his patrons.

On June 20, 1880, in Hoytville, Mr. Hager was united in marriage with Miss Emma J. Dennis, who was born in 1870 near Findlay, Ohio. They made their home in Hoytville, and occupied a high position in social circles, making many friends, and Mrs. Hager's decease, which occurred April 20, 1896, after an illness of four years, was widely mourned. She was buried in the McComb (Hancock county) cemetery.

In addition to his other property Mr. Hager owns a third interest in the Hoytville opera house, and a half interest in a large grain elevator. He is truly a self-made man, and has not a dollar that he has not himself honestly earned. His political support is given to the Democratic party, and he is a wise counselor and able leader in its ranks. He has been honored with a number of local offices, for four years capably served as mayor of Hoytville, has also been township clerk and township trustee, and is now the efficient postmaster, and treasurer of the corporation, also of the school district and township. Socially he is connected with the Knights of Pythias fraternity of Hoytville.

I. S. BOWERS, M. D., one of the leading physicians of Perrysburg, was born in Canada West, now the province of Ontario, December 14, 1856. Jacob Bowers, his grandfather, was a native of Pennsylvania, and by occupation a lumber dealer, owning large tracts of land in this country and in Canada, and operating a number of saw-mills. He made frequent trips to Canada, and at one time took up his residence there, and passed his last years in Ontario, where he died. His son, Isaac W., our subject's father, was born in Pennsylvania in 1824, and on arriving at maturity engaged in his father's business, to which he succeeded at the death of the latter. He married Miss Jane Camp, a Canadian lady, who was two years his junior, and for some years they resided in that country, removing to Michigan when our subject was four years old. In 1876 he came to Perrysburg, where the family resided until 1887, in which year he moved to Ypsilanti, Mich., where he died suddenly September 22, 1893. He was a highly esteemed citizen, a consistent member of the M. E. Church, and in politics a stanch Democrat. He left a widow and six children, viz.: Parmelia, the widow of A. F. Shepard, formerly of Toledo, Ohio, who was killed in a railway accident at that city; Cordelia, the wife of W. M. Thompson, of Owosso, Mich.; Frances Mary, who married Edward Harris, of Monroe county, Mich.; I. S., our subject; Freeman E., a prominent young attorney of Perrysburg; and Estella J., one of the most popular young ladies of the best circles of Perrysburg social life.

Dr. Bowers received his elementary education in the Michigan district schools, later attending the high schools at Perrysburg and Monroe. At an early age he commenced the study of medicine with an uncle at Fond du Lac, Wis., but on his father's removal to Perrysburg he became associated with him in the "wood-pulp" business, which he continued for two years, when he resumed his studies under the direction of Dr. Rheinfrank, of Perrysburg. He was graduated from the Detroit Medical College in 1881, and at once located at his home, where his wide acquaintance and high standing gave him an advantage not to be found among strangers. He had previously practiced as an under-graduate with his preceptor, and from the first he has met with encouraging success, his practice increasing in value and extent each year.

Our subject was married to one of Perrysburg's amiable daughters, in the person of Miss Sophia Witzler, who was born in March, 1856, and they have two children, Merlin and Helen. In politics the Doctor follows the faith of his father, voting the Democratic ticket, and at the present time he is president of the board of pension examiners of Wood county. Socially he is a member of the I. O. O. F., Fort Meigs Lodge, and has passed the chairs, and the K. of P., in which latter organization also he has passed all the chairs, been chancellor of Perrysburg Lodge, and is now serving as deputy grand chancellor. He holds high rank among his professional brethren, and belongs to the American Medical Association, the Northwestern Ohio Medical Association, the Ohio State Medical Association, and the Wood County Medical Society.

JOHN A. STEARNS, a wealthy, retired agriculturist, residing in Bowling Green, is a native of Ohio, born July 6, 1839, in Montgomery township, Wood county, a son of Justus Stearns.

John A. Stearns was about twelve years old when his father moved to Perry township, and his boyhood was mainly spent in the hard toil of clearing his father's two farms, and helping in the sawmills, so that his educational opportunities were quite limited. In 1864 he enlisted in Company E, 144th O. V. I., for one hundred days, and at the end of the term came home.

On January 1, 1862, Mr. Stearns was married to Miss Elizabeth Myers, a native of Crawford county, Ohio, born February 5, 1842. They have had five children, of whom four are living: Elmer, born November 20, 1862, a farmer and oil pumper at Bays, married Miss Naomi Buvinger, and has one child—Flora; William S., born October 31, 1865, married Miss Minnie White, and they live in Liberty township; Charles, born May 24, 1868, married Miss Lillie Lashway, and they have one child—Lawrence; Frank, born July 4, 1870, married Miss Estelle Parker, and they have one child—Helen; and Alma, born September 8, 1872, died October 2, 1873. Mr. and Mrs. Stearns also reared an adopted daughter, Ada Daily, who was born February 11, 1868. She married Fred Hendricks, of Plain township, and they have one child—Ina.

After his marriage Mr. Stearns lived for two years on a farm in Perry township, and later moved to Plain township, where he now owns 300 acres of land which is given to general farming. At the present time he is also interested largely in oil producing. After living at the farm for over thirty-three years, Mr. Stearns and his wife moved to Bowling Green to enjoy the wealth which has come to them during their years of effort. They are prominent members of the Presbyterian Church at Bowling Green. In politics he is a Republican, and has held an influential place in the party councils for many years, and was for six years a trustee of Plain township. Socially he is affiliated with Lodge No. 641, I. O. O. F., the G. A. R., Neibling Post—both of Weston.

Mrs. Elizabeth Stearns is a daughter of Josiah and Elizabeth (Parks) Myers, both natives of Hampshire county, W. Va., where they were married, and afterward, in 1839, moved to Ohio, the journey being made in a covered wagon. There were born to them eight children, viz.: William, Samuel, Lambert and John, all of whom served in the Civil war, Samuel and John veteranizing (they camped one winter on or near their grandfather's farm in West Virginia; many of their relatives served in the Confederate army); Evaline, wife of B. Jones; Elizabeth, wife of our subject; Anna, Mrs. C. Wooley; and Camilla, wife of Joseph Davis. There was also an adopted son, named Sidney Brows, who served in the Civil war, the family thus (the sons-in-law having also joined the army) giving no less than nine able-bodied men to the Union cause.

On arriving in Ohio, Mr. Myers took up government land in Crawford county, where he lived from 1839 till 1866, in which latter year he removed to Missouri where he died in 1879, his wife in 1870. His father, William Myers, was a native of Pennsylvania; the father of Mrs. Myers, Samuel Parks, was a minister of the M. E. Church, in Virginia. In his political preferences, Mr. Myers was an ardent Whig, later a no less zealous Republican, and a true friend to the bondman, his Ohio home being for a long time known as an "Underground railroad station," where fugitive slaves were cared for and given a lift on their desperate "run to Canada." In addition to his prominence as a successful agriculturist in Crawford county, he acted as guardian for many estates, so great was the confidence reposed in him by the people, and he served with much ability and characteristic fidelity in various public offices of honor and trust, among which may be mentioned that of county commissioner, an incumbency he filled for several years. No one was better known in Crawford county, and when he left no one was more missed than Josiah Myers.

JUSTUS STEARNS (deceased). As one of the pioneer agriculturists of Wood county, a good citizen, and an enterprising and prosperous business man, the subject of this sketch held for many years a prominent place in the community with which his activities identified him. The family of which he was a worthy representative is an old one, and it is probable that the numerous branches in this country could all be traced to three brothers, Isaac, Charles and Nathaniel Stearne, who came from England in the ship "Arabella" with Gov. Winthrop, and landed at Salem, Mass., June 12, 1630. The spelling of the name has been changed by many from the original Sterne to Stearns, Sternes, Sterns, Starns or Stearnes. Richard Sterne, Archbishop of York during the reign of James II, was of this same family in England.

The late Justus Stearns was born in Clifford township, Allegheny Co., Penn., July 8, 1810, where his grandfather, John and William Stearns, Silas Otis and James Stearns, who were natives of Connecticut, had settled in the latter part of the eighteenth century. John Stearns reared a large family, among whom was a son Janies, our subject's father, who was born August 5, 1777. The family moved to Pennsylvania a few years later, where John Stearns died, his wife surviving him several years, and dying at the age of eighty years. James Stearns was married in Allegheny county, Penn., to Miss Abilene Hardin, a daughter of Amos Hardin, and settled upon the farm where our subject was born, remaining there until the fall of 1822, when he moved to a farm near Bloomingdale, Richland Co., Ohio, his household goods being transported by an ox-team in primitive fashion. He died there of lung disease, May 5, 1837, and his wife survived him until in September 1861, when she died in Berrien county, Mich., at the home of their youngest son. Both were members of the Baptist Church. While he made a comfortable living, he was not a man to accumulate great wealth, nor did he possess the robust physique with which his sons were endowed. Ten children were born to this estimable pioneer couple, the names with dates of birth being as follows: Lydia, January 6, 1804 (married James Wells, and died in Berrien county, Mich.); Amos, January 8, 1806 (he was a farmer in Troy township, DeKalb Co., Ind., where he died); Phœbe, January 21, 1808 (married Hiram Stevens, and died in what is now Morrow county, Ohio); Justus, July 8, 1810; William, February 17, 1814 (he was a farmer in Chautauqua county, Kans., and died there); Rhoda, February 16, 1817 (married Asa Fields, and moved to Utah, where she died); Masena, March 24, 1819 (married, first, William Hebbert, and, second, Dayton Mills, and died in Berrien county, Mich., November 29, 1895); Wealthy, October 22, 1821 (married William Herbert (deceased), and resides at Bloomdale); Silas, March 15, 1823 (died in Berrien county, Mich.); and Otis, in February, 1829 (he is now a farmer in Berrien county). With the exception of Amos, all of the sons followed the political faith of their father, and were Old-line Whigs.

Justus Stearns attended school at his native place for some years, but at the age of twelve he came to the new farm in Ohio, where the hard toil of pioneer life occupied his time. He was a strong, robust boy, and, his parents being poor, he often worked hard and late to obtain needed articles of clothing. His only capital was a strong constitution and a mind fertile in resources, but he managed to make his way in life and attain more than an ordinary degree of success. He was married, March 1, 1832, in Richland county, to his first wife, Miss Sarah A. Davis, and in the following year he moved to Wood county with his wife and one child, Mary J., and entered land in Section 31, Montgomery township. He made his home there in the midst of the wilderness, building his first cabin on the east branch of the Portage river, and many years of toil and privation were undergone before the forest became a well-ordered farm. Five children were born to his first marriage: Mary J., July 28, 1833 (now the widow of J. H. Bucher, of Perry township); Silas D., August 9, 1835 (resides in the State of Washington); James H., September 9, 1837 (died in Perry township in May, 1860); John A., July 6, 1839 (now resides in Bowling Green); Orrin, May 9, 1841 (died in Perry township). The mother of these died April 12, 1843, and was buried in West Millgrove cemetery. On July 3, 1843, Mr. Stearns was married, near Greensburg, Sandusky county, to Miss Eliza Cross, by whom he had five children: Sarah A., the widow of Wilson Patterson, of Weston, who died July 18, 1894; Newton and Nelson, twins, the former of whom is a farmer in Plain township, the latter deceased in infancy; and two other children who died at an early age. The mother died July 28, 1850, and on October 10, 1850, Mr. Stearns married Miss Mary Hall, a native of Fairfield county, born January 12, 1822, daughter of Joseph and Mary (Mills) Hall. Her great-grandfather came from Ireland at an early date. Five sons and two daughters were born of this union: Josiah H., a prosperous farmer, of Perry township; Benton, a farmer of Weston township; J. D. and C. D., prominent farmers of Perry township, and Wilson E., a well-known farmer of Plain township; Belle and Laura died in childhood. The mother of this family died April 16, 1887, and was buried in Weston. On July 17, 1888, Mr. Stearns was united in the bonds of matrimony for the fourth time, his bride being Mrs. Mary A. Keyes, whose maiden name was Schooley; she had been twice married, first to a Mr. Silverwood, and, second, to Samuel Keyes. She survives, and now resides in Bowling Green, in an elegant residence completed shortly before the death of Mr. Stearns.

In the fall of 1850 Mr. Stearns moved to West Millgrove and built the first hotel in that place; but not liking that business he soon gave it up. In the spring of 1851 he traded his first farm to R. W. Kelly for a farm in Perry township, and some money to boot. Here he lived for more than thirty years, adding to his possessions from time to time until he owned over 700 acres. Soon after the completion of the B. & O. railroad through Deshler, Ohio, Mr. Stearns and his sons, J. H. and S. D., became interested in a town site there, and in various industries, mercantile and manufacturing, and also in a hotel enterprise, all of them requiring an outlay of many thousands of dollars. The ventures were attended with success for a time, but later proved a failure, leaving heavy obligations to be met. A forced sale of his extensive property would have caused serious loss, but with rare business sagacity he devised a way out of his difficulty. He sold to his sons, J. H. and S. D., some of his real estate located in Perry township for a good price, taking their notes, and, as they were of the energetic, clear-headed sort who can make the most of a chance when they get it, they promptly paid their notes as they matured, enabling him to pay his debts without serious inconvenience, the whole business reflecting credit on all concerned. Mr. Stearns possessed great foresight, and the debts of his own contracting were never the source of any trouble to him, his temporary reverses being caused through entanglement with the affairs of others. In 1885 he moved to Plain township, where he had bought a large tract of land, which was supposed to be worthless, but he improved it and sold it at a handsome profit. His last years were spent in Bowling Green, where he died September 8, 1888, and his remains now rest beside those of his third wife, at Weston. He was a man of great vitality and strength, and his feats of lifting at "raisings," in his prime, were remarkable. For over fifty years he was a member of the Disciples Church, to which he contributed liberally, and he was throughout his life a leader in any enterprise or movement which appealed to his judgment as likely to benefit the community.

HERMAN MANNHARDT, native of Wurtemberg, Germany, was born May 17, 1846; entered the common schools of his country at the age of five years, the Latin or high school at seven, and completed the course when fourteen years old. He then immediately began the study of medicine with his father, Dr. F. Mannhardt; at sixteen entered the standing army, was promoted from step to step to assistant surgeon, in which capacity he served during the Austro-Prussian campaign of 1866. He took his discharge in 1867, and immediately came to Galion, Ohio, where he practiced medicine with his father until 1868, when he came to Custar, and has resided and practiced his profession there ever since. In 1876 he went to Cincinnati, took a course of lectures and graduated.

In 1870 Dr. Mannhardt was married to Louisa Wingert. Socially he is an Odd Fellow, a Knight

H. Mannheimardt

Templar and K. P.; politically he is a Democrat. He has been mayor of Custar ten consecutive years, and for twenty years clerk of the board of education.

J. H. STEARNS. This prominent and prosperous farmer of Perry township is a member of the well-known family of that name in the county, and of which a sketch appears on a preceding page.

Our subject was born in Perry township, November 8, 1851, the eldest child of Justus and Mary (Hall) Stearns. His education was obtained in the district schools of his locality, and he was brought up on the same farm which he now owns and resides on. On September 17, 1871, he was married to Miss Ella, daughter of Adam and Mary Wininger, who was born in Loudon township, Seneca Co., Ohio, October 9, 1853. The young couple went to housekeeping on the farm of Mr. Stearns' father. The T. & O. C. railroad was then in progress of construction, and Mr. Stearns, Sr., had a contract for grading which he sub-let to our subject, on the completion of which the latter received in pay eighty acres of land in Jackson township, this county. About 1874 or 1875, soon after the B. & O. R. R. was put through to Deshler, Mr. Stearns bought land extensively near that place, eighty acres of which he platted in town lots, and sold to an advantage. During his residence at Deshler, which was about three years, he was engaged in filling contracts for ditching, timber, etc., and at the end of this time he returned to Perry township, and bought 120 acres of the farm on which he now resides. His various investments had brought in a large amount of money, but owing to his kindness in going security and bail for people who left him to pay their indebtedness, he lost a considerable portion of his property. He now, however, is the owner of 210 acres of as good land as can be found in Wood county, and is prospering as a man of his indomitable courage and perseverance is bound to do. In spite of his adverse fortune at times, he has known no such word as discouragement, and has at once set about remedying any disaster that might overtake him. In an expressive Western phrase he is a "hustler," and has not a superior in the township for ability to succeed in what he undertakes. "Cy," as he is familiarly known, is popular throughout his community, and has many warm friends, who admire his industry, go-aheadativeness and cheerful disposition.

In politics Mr. Stearns is a Republican, and has served his township three terms as assessor.

He has also been the treasurer of the township; but has refused a re-election. He is a member of the Evangelical Church at Salem, in which he has held offices of trust and honor. He is a liberal contributor, not only to his own Church, but to other religious denominations, and has assisted in the organization and building of various religious and other institutions. Socially he belongs to the Knights of the Maccabees, at Fostoria.

To Mr. Stearns and his wife came five children, namely: Emma J., born December 29, 1874; John A., born June 23, 1878; Wilber H., born October 11, 1880; Alice E., born April 14, 1884; and Justus, born September 4, 1886. The beloved wife and mother passed to her final rest October 2, 1894, and was buried in the cemetery at Fostoria. She was a most estimable woman, and a consistent member of the Evangelical Church. Her departure was deeply mourned by her family, but Mr. Stearns is devoted to his children, and endeavors to fill the place of the departed one by unremitting attention to their comfort and interest in their welfare.

C. F. MUNGER, a farmer of wide reputation in Perry township, is a native of Brunswick township, Medina county, where he was born August 6, 1842, his parents being Caleb and Anna (Fairfield) Munger.

The subject of this sketch first went to school in Seneca county, Ohio, to which place his parents moved when he was six years old. He was reared to the duties of farm life, and, as he was an only son, was early taught the rudiments of the work. He lived at home until October, 1861, when he enlisted in Company B, 55th O. V. I., to which he was transferred from Company F, at his request. He served continuously with his regiment, in which he played the cornet, until, in Louisville, Ky., he suffered from a partial sunstroke, and was taken to Perry township by Orrin Stearns, where he was ill for some time. He first enlisted for three years, at the expiration of that time re-enlisting for the remainder of the war. Owing to his bad health he sought other work than that of farming, but none suited him so well, and he returned home and went to work for his father.

On September 26, 1869, he was married, in Perry township, to Miss Amanda Stewart, who was born in Crawford county, Penn., February 5, 1847. Her parents, Samuel and Mary M. (Renner) Stewart, came to Wood county in 1849. The father was a tailor in his younger days, later taking up farming. He died in Fostoria, Ohio, at nearly eighty years of age, and his wife at the age of seventy-two. Their family consisted of eight children, four boys and four girls. Our subject went to housekeeping on the home farm after his marriage, and entered into partnership with his father, which continued until about 1888, when he paid off the other heirs and became sole owner of the eighty acres; he has since added to this, now owning 110 acres. In 1862 a substantial brick residence was built, and here our subject lives, his father living with him. Mr. and Mrs. Munger are the parents of four children, namely: Edith, now Mrs. Lemuel Good, of Seneca county; Anna L., who married John Strawman, of Seneca county; and Raymond and Charles P., both residing at home.

Mr. Munger has always been a staunch Republican, and has served as trustee of Perry township, and two terms as assessor. He has been for many years director of School District No. 1. Both he and his wife are members of the Methodist Episcopal Church, in which Mr. Munger is steward.

Caleb Munger, the father of our subject, was born in Connecticut November 6, 1802, and the mother in Massachusetts in 1803. Both were school teachers, and received a fair education. They moved to Brecksville township, Cuyahoga county, whence they went to Brunswick, Medina Co., Ohio, then to Liberty township, Seneca county, and in the spring of 1859 they came to Perry township, where Mr. Munger bought eighty acres of land in Section 25, about thirty-five of which were cleared, and on which were a log house and barn. Here Mrs. Munger died in 1882, and was buried in Fostoria. Two children were born to this couple, Ann S.; now the wife of W. P. Dicken, of Seneca county, and our subject. Mr. and Mrs. Munger were brought up in the Congregational faith; but when they came to Seneca county there was no such denomination in their vicinity, so they joined the Presbyterian Church, of which they were original members in Fostoria.

Politically Mr. Munger was originally a Whig and Know-Nothing, later joining the Republican ranks. He cast his first vote for John Quincy Adams. He has voted for every President since that time, and has never missed an election. He has never sought office, but has always taken an active interest in the success of his party. He is a well-preserved man for his advanced years. When eighty-one years old he broke his right leg, but in four weeks was able to walk around—an exhibition of remarkable vitality. He was reared as a farmer's boy, his father owning a small farm, and obtaining a living by the hardest kind of work. Mr. Munger was employed in burning charcoal, cutting hoop-poles, etc. The Munger family is remarkable for its longevity: The father of our subject is over ninety-three; one of his sisters died at the age of ninety-five, and another at ninety-three, while a third lived to be eighty-seven. Edward, an uncle of our subject, is living in Chicago at the age of eighty-four years.

HENRY PADGHAM, an intelligent and energetic farmer, and a substantial and reliable citizen of Perry township, having his home in Section 26, was born in the County of Kent, England, September 19, 1829, and is a son of Thomas and Elizabeth (Underdown) Padgham. The father, who was born in England, January 29, 1794, decided to seek a home in the United States with the hope of bettering his financial condition, and consequently, in the spring of 1851, he started with part of his family for the New World, including the following members: Joseph, of Farmington, N. Y.; Walter, a farmer, who died in Iowa; Elizabeth, who was married, and died in Michigan; Philip, judge of the district court of Allegan, Mich.; David, an agriculturist of Manchester, N. Y.; Annie, wife of N. Aldrich, of Washington, D. C.; and Alfred, who died en route, and was buried at sea. Two sons, Thomas and John, had preceded the family, coming in 1845, and were living in New York State, while our subject and his brother William did not arrive in this country until 1853. In the family of twelve children all but two grew to adult age. Until the death of his wife, in 1863, the father made his home in the Empire State, and then came to Perry township, and lived with our subject for awhile. Life seemed to lose its charm for him after the death of his wife, and he died in Michigan at the age of eighty-five years. He had three brothers who lived to be over eighty-three years of age—John, who died in Australia; Joseph, who passed away at the home of our subject; and William, who died in England. In politics the father was an ardent Republican.

In the common schools of England Henry Padgham received his education before his twelfth year, and as a farmer boy he worked until eighteen years of age. At that time he enlisted in the standing army of Great Britain for twelve years, but before the expiration of that term concluded to come to America, where their family was then living, and bought his release for twenty-five pounds, English money, or $125. He had served for five years and one hundred and sixty-three days, a portion of the time in London and in other parts of England. On July 31, 1853, he and a brother, William, took passage on the "Patrick Henry," which landed them at New York, September 7, following, and from there they went to Farmington, the same State, where their parents were then living. For four years our subject worked as a farm hand near that place, after which he located near Fostoria, Ohio, where his brothers, William and Thomas, were residing. For eighteen years the former was employed by C. W. Foster.

JOHN CURRENT.

MRS. CAROLINE CURRENT.

The first home of Mr. Padgham in Wood county was with his brother Thomas, whom he helped to clear his farm during the first year, and later worked as fireman in Crocker's mill, at Fostoria. On November 27, 1860, he purchased forty acres of land in Section 26, Perry township, only about nine acres of which had been cleared, and a log cabin constituted the improvements. He had secured the land from William Jones, and had gone in debt for half the amount, but he went earnestly to work, and each season saw more of the land ready for cultivation. He now has fifty acres of rich and arable land, upon which are good and substantial buildings, but for the past five years he has left its cultivation to others, and now practically lives retired from active farm work.

At Victor, Ontario Co., N. Y., in November, 1857, our subject was united in marriage with Miss Julia Padgham, of the County of Kent, England. She died on September 27, 1883, from paralysis, and was buried at Fostoria. Mr. Padgham later wedded Rachel A. Huff, by whom he had one child—Ruth M. The mother died October 28, 1886, and was also interred at Fostoria.

In 1863, Mr. Padgham was elected captain of the Home Militia, and on May 2, 1864, enlisted in Company E, 144th O. V. I., doing guard duty at Wilmington, Del., until mustered out in the following August at the close of his term. He supported the Republican party until 1884, since which time he has been an ardent Prohibitionist, and has served as trustee of Perry township. For twenty-six years he has been a sincere and earnest Christian, a member of the Methodist Church, and to all worthy objects contributes liberally of his means.

D. E. COE, one of the pioneer citizens of Perry township, was born in Frederick county, Md., June 24, 1818, and is the son of Thomas and Ann (Souder) Coe.

Mrs. Coe died in Frederick county, Md., leaving one child, our subject. Mr. Coe married a second time in Maryland, and this wife died in that State, September 12, 1833, leaving four children. Mr. Coe married again, and left Maryland for Seneca county, Ohio, over the National pike, in a large wagon drawn by four horses (Pennsylvania style). He arrived, October 2, 1833, one mile east of Tiffin, Ohio, where he had previously bought 240 acres of land, and on which was a log cabin. There Mr. Coe died at the age of seventy-one. He was the father of nine children, of whom but two survive, D. E. and Caroline, now the widow of Thomas Shaw, of Seneca county.

Our subject attended the subscription schools of Maryland, and did not have as good an opportunity for getting an education as did his brothers or half-brothers. He was reared to the duties of a farmer boy, and worked on the home farm until his marriage, which took place in Seneca county, March 24, 1842, his bride being Miss Margaret Hyter, who was born, March 25, 1824, in Frederick county, Md., and who is a daughter of Jacob and Margaret (Koons) Hyter. Mr. D. E. Coe rented land in Scipio township, Seneca county, for two years, when, in the spring of 1844, he bought 140 acres in Section 13, Perry township. The land was wet and full of stumps, and contained a log house 18 x 24 feet. The forests were in their primitive state, and there were no roads in the vicinity. This portion of nature's wilderness Mr. Coe has transformed into a most desirable farm, and to-day has 240 acres of fine land, on which he has built a comfortable home, with the accompanying barns, bins, etc. Mr. and Mrs. Coe's children are: Clarinda, who married George P. Feebles, of Noble county, Ind.; Emma, now the widow of John Guier, of Perry township; Mary is the wife of S. S. Dicken, who lives near Kendallville, Ind.; Laura married V. D. Newcomb, and died in Seneca county; Alice is now Mrs. Luther Stewart, of Marion county, Ohio; Walter died at the age of thirty-four years; H. L. is a farmer of Perry township; Belle is the wife of Charles Cochard, of Sandusky, Ohio; Charles is farming in Perry township. Mr. Coe is a Republican in politics, and has served as township trustee, and has been school director for twelve years. He and his wife are members of the Methodist Church, of which he is also trustee. He has been a successful farmer, and is spending his later years in peace and quiet.

BENJAMIN P. SEARS, a well-known fruit grower of Bowling Green, was born in Tompkins county, N. Y., November 7, 1819.

His grandfather, Eli Sears, was an agriculturist in Delaware county, N. Y., and had two sons, David F., our subject's father, and Thomas B. The former was born in 1791, and married at an early age to Miss Sallie Pine, a native of the same county. He was drafted during the war of 1812, but his brother, who was not then married, took his place. He returned home at the close of the war, and settled in Tompkins county, where he married and reared a family of twelve children. Our subject's parents moved to Tompkins county, after their marriage, traveling in a primitive vehicle drawn by a pair of steers. They cleared a farm in the woods, where they spent the rest of their lives, and died. Mr. Sears died in 1872, aged eighty-one years, two months and twelve days. They had ten children: Almarin, and George W., who died in Tompkins county; B. P., our subject; Adaline E., who married, first, John Woodworth, and then Cyrus Barber; Franklin, who died in New York State; Caroline, the wife of Terry Smith, of Seneca county, N. Y.; Jane, who married A. V. McKeel, of Tompkins county, N. Y.; and DeWitt C., a resident of Grand Detour, Ill. Two other children died in infancy.

Our subject grew to manhood upon his father's farm, obtaining his education in a subscription school held in a log house. May 15, 1848, he married Miss Elvira Shannon, a native of Seneca county, born January 15, 1827. Previous to his marriage he had clerked in a store for a year, but the young couple settled at once upon a farm near the old home, where they remained a number of years. Mr. Sears then sold his land and engaged in the grocery business, but lost everything by fire in 1876. In the following year he came to Bowling Green, hoping to make good his losses, and in 1879 he purchased his present property, containing three and a half acres, then in the outskirts of the city, but now surrounded by residences. Here Mr. Sears and his wife devoted themselves to the raising of berries and other fruits, with the success due to industry and good judgment. No serious cares or troubles marred the serenity of their well-spent days. Their only child, W. S., is now a law student in Bowling Green. He married Hester Brewer, and has one child, Elvira.

Our subject's wife was a woman of exceptional intellect and culture. She was educated in a seminary in New York State, and was a teacher before her marriage. Early in life she developed a taste for literary work, and her poems found ready acceptance in the periodicals of the day, the discouraging reply, "declined with thanks," so familiar to most writers, having never been received by her. At her death, which occurred March 12, 1895, she left some of her best and longest poems still in manuscript, and an effort is now being made to publish them in book form. A natural leader, she always took a prominent part in philanthropical and religious work, and in literary circles, wherever she might be. When she came to Bowling Green the local W. C. T. U., was in a disorganized condition, and she gave her energies freely to revive it. Her success was so marked that she was chosen local president, and later county organizer. She lectured throughout the county, establishing unions, and afterward, as county president, continued the work. She was a delegate to the State convention at Cincinnati, and the National meeting at Cleveland. Her death was regarded as a severe loss to the W. C. T. U., and memorial services were held in her honor throughout the county.

JOHN CURRENT, a progressive and successful general merchant of Dunbridge, was born near Fremont, Sandusky Co., Ohio, January 16, 1845. His father, Thomas Current, was a native of Wheeling, Va., where he was reared on a farm. When a young man he removed with his parents to Sandusky county, and there carried on agricultural pursuits. He married Catherine Washburn, who was born in that county in 1838, and they became the parents of five children: Elizabeth; wife of William Parker; James, a member of Company A, 111th O. V. I., who died in the army; John, subject of this sketch; Maria, wife of William Pero, of Toledo; and Thomas, who died in infancy. The mother of this family died in 1853, and the father afterward wedded Mary Scranton, of Sandusky county. They had two children, Thomas and Mary, both of whom are deceased. The father died in October, 1871.

John Current attended the district schools, and worked upon his father's farm until 1861, when, though only a boy of sixteen, he joined Company I, 57th O. V. I., under Capt. A. S. Skelton, and Col. William Mungen. From Findlay the regiment went to Camp Vance, and thence proceeded to the front. On January 1, 1864, he re-enlisted at Larkinsville, Ala., and was shortly afterward made a corporal. He acted as orderly for Gen. A. V. Rice, and when the latter was wounded at Vicksburg, Corporal Current carried him off the field. Our subject was never absent from his regiment during his long service, except when wounded in the wrist at Dallas, Ga., which necessitated his being sent to the hospital at Nashville, Tenn. He participated in the battles of Shiloh, Yazoo River, and many other engagements, and received an honorable discharge in August, 1865, and returned home.

Mr. Current continued his residence in Sandusky county until 1868, when he came to Wood county, and for twelve months worked by the month. He then rented a farm for a year, afterward working a sawmill for a year, and subsequently renting the Ewing farm for two years. In 1874 he purchased forty acres of land near what is called Devil's Hole, Middleton township, which he cleared and operated for fifteen years, when he abandoned agricultural pursuits and came to Dunbridge, where he has since carried on general merchandising, meeting with excellent success. He is a wide-awake, progressive business man, strictly honorable in all his dealings, and these qualities, combined with a genial manner, have enabled him to secure an extensive trade. He still retains the ownership of his farm, and operates it in connection with his mercantile interests.

Mr. Current was married at Bowling Green, in 1871, to Caroline Williams, who was born near Fremont, October 3, 1850, a daughter of Daniel and Sarah (Parker) Williams. Four children grace this union: Charles E., a dealer in stock; Maude D., who is engaged in school teaching; Grace, wife of George De Verna, a farmer of Perrysburg township; and Claude A., attending school. For five years Mr. Current has served as township trustee; was constable of Middleton township three years; school director a number of years; and a member of the township board of education, which indicates the confidence and trust reposed in him by his fellow townsmen. In politics he is a Democrat; socially he is connected with the Masonic Lodge at Bowling Green; Dunbridge Lodge, No. 786, I. O. O. F.; and Robert Stewart Post, G. A. R., of Dunbridge. He is also a member of the Grange, in which he has filled all the offices, and is justly numbered among the prominent and highly esteemed citizens of his locality.

JOSEPH HOLLINGTON. The subject of this sketch has lived upon the site of the present city of Bowling Green longer than any other resident. Born in England May 21, 1824, he came to Plain township with his parents, in 1833, and has seen this spot redeemed from a trackless waste of forest and swamp, and made the home of a progressive civilization. And in this change he has had his share of helpful work. He was one of the building committee of the old court house, and collected $12,000.00 for the enterprise. In the struggle for the county seat he took an active part, and, indeed, in every event of note in the history of the county, his name is enrolled among the participants.

His father, Joseph Hollington, was born in 1792 at Redditch, Worcestershire, England, then the leading manufacturing center for needles. He was a candle-molder by trade, and retained the ownership of his shop after he came to America. He married Mary Perry, by whom he had five children: Richard (born March, 1822, died 1893), a well-known resident of West Unity, Ohio; Joseph, our subject; Ambrose, a minister of the M. E. Church at Delaware, Ohio; Mary Ann, the widow of the late Octavius Walters, of Delta, Ohio, formerly member of the Legislature, and William, a prominent real-estate dealer in San Diego, Cal. Our subject's father took an active interest in the politics of his adopted country, and was an ardent Whig. He and his wife were members of the Church of England previous to their removal to America. He died in 1847, his wife in 1854, at the age of sixty.

Joseph Hollington was nearly ten years old when his parents came to Wood county. He was married at twenty-four to Miss Elizabeth L. Lamb, who was born in New York State in 1829. They had three children: Mary E., who died when six years of age; Mary Ann, who died aged twenty-nine, and Maria, born January 29, 1852, who married W. H. Frederick, a native of Seneca county, Ohio, born May 3, 1845. Mr. Frederick was educated in the public schools of his birthplace, learned the trade of mason in early life, and in 1874 came to Bowling Green to engage in that business. He was a soldier during the Civil war, enlisting August 30, 1862, in Company D, 49th O. V. I., which was attached to the army of the Cumberland. His chief battles were at Stone River, Liberty Gap and Chickamauga. In the last-mentioned engagement, September 19, 1863, he was severely wounded, and shortly afterward received an honorable discharge. He is a Republican in politics, and a member of Wiley Post No. 46, G. A. R. Mr. Hollington is also a Republican, and before the war he was a Whig, and took an influential part in the local political movements of that time.

JOHN KNAUSS is a native of Germany, his birth having occurred in Bluenburg, February 21, 1840. He is a son of George and Barbara E. Knauss, and a brother of George Knauss who resides in Plain township. He came to this country with his parents, the family locating in Ohio, and in the public schools of Medina county he acquired his education. He afterward worked as a farm hand in that county for five years. In 1854 he accompanied his parents to Center township, this county, and to his father gave the benefit of his services until twenty-four years of age, when he was married and removed to Middleton township. Here he purchased forty acres of land, and at once began its development. He placed many rods of tiling upon the farm, erected a good house and barn, and afterward extended the boundaries of his farm by the additional purchase of forty acres. He now has a richly cultivated farm, the well tilled fields yielding to him a good return for his care and labor.

On the 31st of March, 1863, in Perrysburg, Ohio, Mr. Knauss was united in marriage with Catherine Bostdorf, daughter of Henry Bostdorf, and a native of Ohio. Fourteen children have been born of this union—Andrew J., a farmer; Emma E., wife of Fred Neeglie; Daniel; John; Edwin; Charles H.; Orange A.; Maggie B.; Martha G.; Cyrus R.; Rutha R.; Herald V., and two who died in infancy.

In his political views Mr. Knauss is a Democrat, but has no aspirations for office. He is a member of the United Brethren Church, in which he is now serving as steward, and is an upright, honorable man who ranks among the best farmers of Wood county, and has the esteem and good will of all with whom he has been brought in contact.

JOHN H. COCHREL, who is now serving as postmaster of Haney, and carrying on a general merchandise store, is one of the prominent business men of Jackson township. He was born in Hancock county, Ohio, July 31, 1858, and is a son of John Cochrel, who was born in Muskingum county; when a young man he entered a veterinary college, where he was graduated. He afterward became one of the most proficient veterinary surgeons in this part of the country. He was married in Coshocton county, Ohio, to Mary Buckler, and immediately afterward removed to Hancock county, locating in McComb, where he successfully practiced his profession. He also purchased a farm of 120 acres, which was operated by our subject and his brother. The mother died in Hancock county, December 10, 1881. The members of the family are Nathan, a farmer of Jackson township, Wood county; Sarah E., wife of George Fout, of Hancock county; Susan, wife of John Edgington, of Hancock county; Finney, a farmer of the same county; and John H.

The last named is indebted to the district schools of Portage and Pleasant townships, Hancock county, for his education, which was completed at the age of twenty years. He then became clerk in the post office and grocery store at McComb, Hancock county, for Mr. Barney, where he remained for three years, receiving a good business training. He afterward purchased a farm in Blanchard township, Hancock county, of one hundred acres, which he cultivated for a year, and then sold. Removing to McComb, he purchased a saloon, which he carried on for three years, and later was proprietor of a meat market for a year. Disposing of his business interests in the town, he then returned to his farm, and not long after established a grocery store on his farm, running three huckster wagons in connection with the store. In October, 1894, he disposed of his property in Hancock county, and came to Wood county, erecting a store in Haney, which he supplied with a large stock of groceries. He also runs three huckster wagons, buying up all kinds of fruit, which he sells at retail through the county. In the winter he also deals quite extensively in poultry.

Mr. Cochrel was married in Henry township, Wood county, March 4, 1878, to Miss Minerva Fellers, who was born in Hancock county, Ohio, where she lived until seventeen years of age, when she came to Wood county with her parents, Noah and Almeda (Evans) Fellers, now residents of Rawson, Ohio. Mr. and Mrs. Cochrel have two children—Harley J. and Flora May. In politics our subject is a Democrat, and has held some local offices, being now postmaster of Haney.

EMERSON WEBSTER FISHER, M. D., a young man of progressive spirit and enterprise, is successfully engaged in the practice of medicine in Portage. He was born in Snyder county, Penn., at the town of Selin's Grove, November 14, 1876, and is a son of Ben and Lydia (Snyder) Fisher, also natives of the Keystone State. The family is of German origin, and the grandfather, Christian Fisher, who was born in Germany, was the first of the name to seek a home in America. He located in Pennsylvania, and traded a rifle to some Indians for a large tract of land along the Susquehanna river, there following farming until his death. The father of our subject was born on the old homestead, and was reared in the usual manner of farmer lads. After his marriage he located on the Isle of Que, and, by his well directed business efforts, accumulated considerable property. His death occurred in 1875, and several years later his widow married Solomon Miller, and is now living in Wymore, Neb. Her children are as follows: Mattie A., who became the wife of Rev. W. C. McCool, and died in Ponca, Neb.; Ben F., a merchant of De Witt, Neb.; William I., cashier in the bank at Wymore, Neb.; Peter A., a resident of Lincoln, Neb.; Charles M., a farmer of Logan, Neb.; John W., a machinist of North Platte, Neb.; George C., an agriculturist of Logan, Neb., Emerson W., of this sketch; and Della May, who is clerking in a store in Ponca, Nebraska.

Dr. Fisher, of this sketch, attended the common schools of his native town until ten years of age, when he went with the family to Nebraska, where his elder brother Ben had previously moved and taken up a homestead for the family. The Doctor attended school in the West until seventeen years of age, then continued his studies in the Homer Academy of Homer, Neb., and also spent one term in college in the same State. During the winter of 1888-89, he was a student in the Midland College of Atchison, Kans., after which he pursued a three-years' course in the Rush Medical College of Chicago, from which he was graduated March 29, 1892. He immediately began practice at Ponca, Neb., but four months later came to Wood county, and for a short time was in the office of Dr. Snyder, of Bowling Green. On December 24, 1892, he located at Portage, where he has since built up a good business.

Dr. Fisher was married in Portage, August 16, 1894, to Miss Henrietta L. Teller, who was born in Portage township, September 29, 1870. In his political views, he is a Democrat, and his religious belief connects him with the Evangelical Lutheran Church. His ability, laudable ambition and well-directed efforts have already secured him a good business.

J. W. PENNELL. The paternal great-grandfather of Mr. Pennell emigrated from Wales to America, and settled in Pennsylvania, where he died. His son, the grandfather of our subject, carried on farming in that State during his life, and in Beaver county, Penn., William Pennell, the father of J. W., was born in 1816. He was a merchant and hotel-keeper by occupation, and died in Meadville, Penn., in 1865.

The mother of our subject was, before her marriage, Miss Cynthia Thatcher, her ancestors being residents of New Jersey, and of old New England stock. She was born in Beaver county, Penn., in 1821, and died in 1882. By marriage with Mr. Pennell she became the mother of seven children: Elizabeth died when eighteen years old; Madison lives in Trumbull county, Ohio; John died in infancy; J. W.; Ellen is the wife of W. Beadman; George, residing at Zanesville, Ohio; Anna, the wife of Washington Harris, of Beaver county, Pennsylvania.

J. W. Pennell was born in Mercer county, Penn., July 13, 1845, and came with his parents to Ohio when a lad. When seventeen years old he returned to his native State, and began work in the oil fields of Butler county. From there he went to West Virginia, and subsequently came to Wood county. During all this time he has been engaged in the oil-producing business, and has held various responsible positions with leading oil companies. In the year 1895 he struck one of the best wells found in Wood county during the year, and has been very successful in all his ventures in that line.

Mr. Pennell was married in Marietta, Ohio, April 19, 1869, to Miss Eugene Douglass, who was born in the Shenandoah Valley, Virginia, December 1, 1850. Of this union seven children have been born: William, who is foreman of the Palmer Oil Company, at Bairdstown, Ohio, married Miss Mattie Baird, and they have one child, Merle; the others are Frank, who is also with the Palmer Oil Company; Clyde, Lamott, Nellie, Cleveland and Burt.

Mr. Pennell is a leading Democrat, and was treasurer of the Democratic County Central Committee for three years. He belongs to the Knights of Pythias and Knights of the Maccabees, and is very popular in the community as a thorough gentleman, and a man of high principles. At the present writing he is carrying on a restaurant, in connection with his oil business, which is largely patronized and well managed.

HENRY F. BOWLUS, partner of the well-known firm Hobart, Bowlus Co., of Pemberville, was born September 18, 1855, near Fremont, Ohio.

Henry Bowlus, the great ancestor from whom are descended the Bowlus families, was a native of Germany, who came to America in the Colonial period, about 1735, and settled in the Middletown Valley, Frederick county, Md. He had four sons—Jacob, George, Valentine and Nicholas—the youngest being then but five years of age. Nicholas Bowlus was reared on a farm in Frederick county, Md., where he became the head of a family of eight children—Jacob, John, Henry, Nicholas, Jr., Mrs. Beckaback, Mrs. Floyd, Mrs. Haller, and Mrs. Christ. Of these, Jacob, a distinguished pioneer minister of the United Brethren Church, and Henry a farmer, came to Ohio, about the year 1828, and settled in Sandusky Tp., Sandusky Co. The children of Rev. Jacob Bowlus were: Jacob, David, Mary, Elizabeth, Margaret, and Susannah, all of whom became heads of families in Sandusky county. In 1828 Henry Bowlus located on a farm of 320 acres, which was then an unbroken forest, and helped clear up the famous "Black Swamp." He had a family of six children, namely: (1) Magdalene, wife of Daniel Young, who lived and died in Maryland. (2) Adam, who married Elizabeth Krohn, and remained in Maryland. (3) Sophia, wife of Jacob Thomas; she died in 1895, at the age of eighty-eight years. They had nine children—John H., Richard, Joseph, Lizzie, Maggie, Amanda, Charles, Alice, Anna; of these, the eldest, John H. Thomas, a millionaire, was the competitor of Calvin S. Brice, for U. S. Senator, in 1893. (4) Henry Bowlus, father of our subject, comes next. (5) Nicholas, who married Mary Donnell, and lived in Madison township, where he died in 1893. (6) Mahala, wife of Jesse Dorcas, living at Lisbon, Iowa. The father of this family was killed in 1832, by a kick from a horse.

Henry Bowlus, our subject's father, one of the early pioneers of Sandusky county, was born in Maryland, September 27, 1810. On November 20, 1833, he married Miss Catherine Keller, of Tiffin, Ohio, who was born February 14, 1811, and died October 20, 1846; their children were—Hanson R., Mahala, Martha, Catherine, Elizabeth and Caroline. The first four of these became heads of families in Sandusky county. On September 27, 1849, he married for his second wife Mrs. Rebecca C. Bowlus (née Williamson), of Maryland, born July 4, 1824, and died January 28, 1891; their children were—Warren A., who lives on the old homestead near Fremont; Anna C., wife of Cyrus Smith, of Gibsonburg; Henry F., our subject; and Robert, a farmer in Sandusky county.

Our subject's father has lived to see a great change in the Valley of the Sandusky. When he first came, there were more Indians than white people. The Wyandottes, Senecas and Tawas lived here, and used to assemble in great numbers every year when they went to Malden to draw their annuity from the government of Great Britain. There, seemingly, was no end of squirrels and other wild game. Mr. Bowlus followed farming and stock raising. About the year 1868, in company with his son, Hanson R., he operated a sawmill, furniture shop and planing-mill, about sixteen years, at Fremont. In politics he was first a Whig, then an Abolitionist, a Whig, and later a Republican; strange to say, his father was a pro-slavery man. Before the Civil war he kept a station of the "Underground railroad," and assisted runaway slaves from the Southern States to escape, making their hearts glad, and sending them on their way to Canada. He has for many years been a member of the M. P. Church, near Fremont. Though now (1896) past eighty-six years of age, he enjoys life among his children and grandchildren, with a mind still active, and a memory undimmed.

Henry F. Bowlus, our subject, passed his early years at the old farm, and was educated in Adrian College, at Adrian, Mich.; but before he was twenty-one he came to Pemberville and became a partner with his brother-in-law, M. Hobart, in the hardware business. As the years have passed, and their trade increased, they have enlarged the scope of their business, until now they own one of the most extensive general stores in Wood county, their stock of various kinds, occupying three rooms 22 x 20, 22 x 85, and 50 x 50. They are owners also of the grain elevator, where they deal in all kinds of grain.

On June 18, 1879, Mr. Bowlus was married at Pemberville to Miss Mary Balmer, a native of Cumberland county, Penn., born March 20, 1853. They have three children: Harry M., Edith, and Romaine. While Mr. Bowlus holds a high rank in business circles, he is also prominent in all local movements of importance, and was one of the first to open up the oil field near Pemberville. His fine personal qualities give him marked influence in the community. In politics he is a Republican, and he and his wife are leading members of the Presbyterian Church. He was mayor of Pemberville for two years, and a member of the council for a number of years; has been superintendent of the Sunday-school, and is now an elder in the Church. He and Mr. Hobart are the oldest firm in Pemberville, and among the oldest in the county.

CHARLES R. ROSENDALE, M. D. Among the highly successful men in Wood county, it would be difficult to find one who has surpassed our subject in accumulation of property, as well as in services rendered to suffering humanity.

In early times in this county, when the swampy condition of the country made it a congenial abode for fevers, ague, malaria, etc., the physician was often called upon to attend those who fell victims to these dire diseases, where a ride of many miles was necessary through the forests. These journeys were frequently necessary at all hours of the night, and it can easily be imagined that the lot of a pioneer doctor, such as was our subject, was no sinecure.

C. R. Rosendale M. A.

Charles R. Rosendale was born August 1, 1831, in Swanland, seven miles from Hull, in Yorkshire, England, the son of William and Jane (Brown) Rosendale, who had a family of seven children. When he was about nine years of age they decided to come to the United States, where they would find better opportunities for making a living. After a tedious voyage of many weeks they landed at Quebec, thence coming to Lorain county, Ohio, partly via Erie canal and lake to Cleveland, and from there by team to their destination. Forty acres of land in a primitive state, on which were some log buildings, were taken up, on which the first payment was made with money given Mrs. Rosendale by her father. The land was situated near the center of Grafton township, and here the family began their struggle for existence in the new country. The farm being small, and the family large, it became necessary for our subject, who was among the older children, to start out for himself, and when only twelve years of age he went to work for some of the neighboring farmers. For some years he lived in the vicinity of Wellington, Ohio, where he was engaged in farm work during the summers, in the winters attending the district schools. Industrious and ambitious, he learned rapidly, and was asked to teach, but declined. He attended the Elyria High School in addition to the district schools, and in this way laid the foundation for the scientific course to be his later in life.

While thus employed he was seized with typhoid fever, and after a long illness, through which he was cared for by kindly hands, he recovered, but found that his money, ten dollars in all, would prove sadly deficient in paying the expenses of his long illness. Dr. Smith, of Wellington, Ohio, who was his physician, had become much attached to the young man, and on his recovery urged him to take up the study of medicine. This he decided to do, and at the age of twenty began his reading with Drs. Smith and Johns, and subsequently with Dr. McKenzie, of Litchfield, Medina county, spending in all four years under their tutorship. He completed his medical studies at the Cincinnati Eclectic Institute, from which he was graduated in the spring of 1856. This schooling required money, which was supplied by friends, none of whom were relatives, whose only security was the honesty of our subject.

In the meantime Dr. Rosendale's parents had removed to Wood county and located near Eagle-ville, in Bloom township, where in May, 1856, our subject came to recuperate after his exhaustive years of study. He had made up his mind to go west after he had fully recovered his health; but an incident occurring at this time served to change his plans. Just then a serious malady, known as dysentery or "bloody flux," was prevalent in Wood county, which had baffled many of the resident physicians. It being noised about that young Rosendale was a doctor, he was called upon to treat a man by the name of George Bronson, who was suffering from the disease. He had no intention at that time of practicing, but consented to take the case, and the rapid recovery of the patient from an ailment that often lasted for many weeks, frequently proving fatal, was so surprising as to stamp this young physician as a man of ability. He was soon after called into consultation by Dr. McLaughlin, of West Millgrove, and the impression made by him upon the patients was such as to secure requests for individual calls, which he answered, and which were followed by numerous entreaties for him to locate in West Millgrove. This Dr. Rosendale decided to do, and thus began one of the most successful careers ever experienced by any physician in Wood, or surrounding counties. From that time, and for thirty-five years following, he never knew any such thing as lack of business, being sent for from far and near, his success being in keeping with his extensive clientage.

In the early part of his career, before he became well known, he experienced, as many other professional men have, the inconvenience of lack of capital. Desiring at this time to purchase another horse, as excessive riding was telling on the one he owned, he was offered a fine four-year-old animal, owned by Jackson Lee, for $100. The Doctor wanted it badly, but did not have the money, and his note with security was suggested. He could not find any man to go on this note, so wrote to friends in Lorain county, who promptly forwarded the money. To-day he could without any trouble get security for a thousand times that amount.

In October, 1857, our subject was married in Tiffin, Ohio, to Miss Rebecca Wade, who was born in Seneca county, a daughter of Abner Wade, a farmer of that county. Nine children were born of this union, namely: Charles E., November 27, 1858, died when four years old; Harry B., October 17, 1860, died when eighteen months old; Wilbur W., June 28, 1863, lives in Perry township; Watson S., September 10, 1865, died in infancy; Fred C., born May 6, 1867; Tunison T., born May 12, 1871, is a physician in Fostoria, Ohio; Clara M., born January 16, 1874, is now Mrs. L. Marsh, of Prairie Depot, Ohio; a son, who died in infancy, unnamed; and Chester A., born October 27, 1882, is at home with his father. Mrs. Rosendale for five years before her death, which took place in 1885, was a sufferer from paralysis, having had three strokes. She was a consistent member of the Congregational Church, a Christian woman and a kind mother. For his second wife Dr. Rosendale married Miss Charity Arthur, of Bowling Green, Ohio, who bore him one child, Earl A., born April 7, 1889. She died July 2, 1890, and was buried in Bowling Green cemetery. Her death was greatly mourned, as she had proved a most devoted and loving mother to her step-children, with whom she was a great favorite, and who found her a faithful friend. The Doctor is robust and exceptionally well preserved, and he still continues to practice for those who refuse to surrender his services as their family physician. No physician in Wood county has been more successful as a practitioner, and none has a larger circle of warm friends.

Our subject has for a number of years been interested in the real-estate business, during this time buying and selling hundreds of acres of land. He has given each of his sons a large farm, retaining for himself about 825 acres of land, and owning some of the most valuable business and resident properties in Fostoria, which latter are estimated to be worth over $100,000. There are few men whose business interests are as extensive, and yet kept in as good shape as those of Dr. Rosendale. He is a shrewd financier, and personally looks after his affairs, so that in case of his sudden demise no danger of complications will arise.

In politics Dr. Rosendale is a staunch Democrat, and takes an active interest in the success of his party, although he is not what would be called a politician. He has served several terms as treasurer of Perry township. Several years ago he became a member of the Masonic order at Fostoria, and is a Master Mason. The Doctor has traveled very extensively over the world; but unlike many another tourist he did not visit Europe until he had seen the interesting and wonderful in America, and he was thus prepared, when abroad, to interest those whom he met with stories of the scenery of this country. In June, 1889, he spent some three months in England and France, visiting the Exposition at Paris, and the scenes of his early youth in England. He went to the same Sunday-school in which he was taught as a boy, and saw the same pond of clear water which he once fell into from his horse while watching the reflections of tree tops. This trip was greatly enjoyed, and brought back many pleasant memories.

LEWIS WILBER, deceased, who during life was one of the best known and most highly esteemed residents of Center township, was a native of Ohio, born in Huron county, March 17, 1836, a son of Stephen Wilber, a farmer of that county, who died when our subject was quite young. After attending school for a short period, Lewis began work on a farm for his uncle, Mr. Meede, where he remained for several years. Then, for four years, he worked for wages as a farm hand in Huron county. There he later rented forty acres of land from a Mr. William, which tract he operated for three years. The year 1860 witnessed his arrival in Wood county, where he purchased forty acres of land in Plain township, to the cultivation and improvement of which he devoted his time, until his enlistment for service in the Union army during the Civil war.

In 1862, at Tontogany, Mr. Wilber became one of the "boys in blue," joining Company D, 111th O. V. I., and remained with that company until the close of the struggle, after which he returned to Huron county, where he made his home for two years, as his father-in-law had sold his farm in Wood county. He suffered much from sickness contracted during his service in the army. In 1867 he returned to Wood county, and this time bought eighty acres of land in Center township, of which a part had been cleared. He made many improvements upon his place, which to-day stand as monuments to his thrift and industry.

On March 11, 1852, in Huron county, Ohio, Mr. Wilber was married to Miss Catherine Knapp. The bride was a native of that county, born December 11, 1833, and to them were born six children, all of whom are still living—Emerson, born December 23, 1857; George E., born August 23, 1861; Rosie A., born September 26, 1864; Bird and Birth (twins), born November 30, 1866; and Clara, born May 15, 1870. Emerson and George now operate the home farm, and Bird was married August 1, 1894, to Miss Augusta Reniger.

Mr. Wilber was a refined and intellectual gentleman, who occupied a remarkably high position in the estimation of the people of the community, and was known far and wide as one of the leading representative men of Center township. He was greatly interested in educational work, and served for many years as school director, while he also held the office of supervisor of his township for several years. His political support was unswervingly given the Republican party. The family adheres to the faith of the United Brethren Church. His death was caused by consumption, contracted during the army service, and he passed away on January 15, 1884, leaving a large number of friends, as well as his immediate family, to mourn his death. Mrs. Wilber, a most estimable lady, still resides upon the farm left her by her husband, and has the love and respect of all who know her.

M. A. IRELAND, the genial and popular proprietor of the "Crystal City Restaurant" at Bowling Green, was born in Maumee City, Ohio, October 7, 1849.

His grandfather, John Ireland, came to Ohio, early in the present century from the Shenandoah Valley, Virginia, where his son Michael, our subject's father, was born September 20, 1801. The family first located at Salt Lick, on the Ohio river, and later at Bellefontaine. At the age of twenty Mr. Michael Ireland started in business for himself, and went to Detroit, Mich., with a drove of stock, traveling along the old "Hull's Trail." Returning to Ohio, he settled at Maumee City, where for some years he worked in a hotel. He subsequently became a contractor in lime, stone and timber, and later engaged in the grocery business. He farmed the island in the river, near Maumee City, and shortly afterward removed to Topeka, Kans., purchasing a large tract of land near that city. He married Miss Mary Elinshousen, who was born in Germany in 1816, and reared a family of six children, of which our subject is the eldest. The others were Madison, now residing in Idaho Springs, Colo.; Edwin, living in Kansas City, Mo.; William A., killed by an explosion in one of his own mines in Colorado, at the age of thirty-two; Capitola, the wife of W. L. Townsend, of Idaho Springs, and Charles, also a resident of that town.

Our subject spent his youth in Maumee City, working with his father and attending school. He finished his education at the Central Ohio College, located there, and then learned the trade of shaping scythes, which he followed for about a year. The family removed to Kansas at this time, and he was engaged for the next six years in traveling with a government surveying expedition. He has often seen ten thousand head of buffalo at one time, and the party would shoot them down simply to see how many they could slaughter. Returning to Maumee City, he worked for a time in a wagon shop, and then took a load of horses and mules to Buffalo, Troy, and other places in New York. After this trip he bought a half interest in the wagon shop, which he held for ten years.

In the meantime he was married to Miss Adelia Yonker, who was born in Bowling Green, January 6, 1856. Five children were born to this union: Munson C., June 16, 1875; May L., Ethel, William, and Donald D. On August 12, 1885, Mr. Ireland removed with his family to Idaho Springs, Colo., where for two years he was engaged in contracting and building, erecting some of the finest structures there. The oil fields of northwestern Ohio, suggested another form of business enterprise, in which he engaged for some time, but in 1892 he opened the "Crystal City Restaurant" at Bowling Green, which he has conducted ever since with constantly increasing patronage. His mother died in Kansas in 1873, and his father has of late years made his home with him.

In spite of his ninety-four years, Mr. Michael Ireland is mentally and physically active, walking with a light, brisk step which many younger men might envy. His memory is remarkable. He recalls the murder of the last white man killed by the Indians on the Maumee river, and many other events of note in the history of the State. In his early days he was an Old-line Whig, and attended the famous mass meeting at Fort Meigs in 1840, where Gen. Harrison spoke. Our subject is a Republican in politics, and a member of the K. of P., the P. O. S. of A., the American Mechanics, and the Woodmen of the World.

MINER WADSWORTH, M. D., who is successfully engaged in the practice of medicine at Hoytville, is a native of the Buckeye State, born April 14, 1854, at Wood Grove, Manchester township, Morgan county.

His father, Daniel S. Wadsworth, was a native of Maryland, and when eighteen years of age moved to Morgan county. Having attained his majority, he was married in Noble (then a part of Guernsey) county, Ohio, to Elizabeth Dye, a native of Guernsey county, and they located on the old homestead in Morgan county. There he resided until 1887, when, with his family, he moved to Smith county, Kans. He became extensively and successfully engaged in stock raising, and was a prominent citizen of the locality, until his death, which occurred January 21, 1896, when he was aged seventy-four. He was buried near Portis, Kans. Mr. and Mrs. Wadsworth were the parents of the following named children: Miner and Vincent, who died in childhood; Mary Ann, who died in Morgan county, Ohio, at the age of forty; Wyley W., a school teacher in Oregon; Malinda, wife of Pearley P. Paxton, of Portis, Osborne Co., Kans.; Miner, subject of this sketch; and Dye, at home.

The Doctor began his education in the district schools, and on the old home farm spent his childhood days. At the age of eighteen he entered the public schools of Scio, Harrison county, where he pursued his studies one year, then followed school-teaching in both Morgan and Wood counties, following that pursuit two years. In 1876 he arrived in Wood county, and, after teaching two terms in Jackson township, took up the study of medicine, and carried on a small drug store at Hoytville. He studied medicine for a time, after which he attended medical lectures as a student in the College of Physicians and Surgeons, at Keokuk, Iowa, from which he was graduated February 28, 1882. He is now established in a good practice at Hoytville, where they have a comfortable home.

The Doctor was married at Hoytville, January 14, 1888, to Miss Katie Hager, who was born in Seneca county, Ohio.

WESLEY MCINTIRE. The citizens of this section of the country combine in their lives the enterprising, progressive characteristics of the West, and the stability and thoroughness of the people of the East, owing perhaps to their nearness to both sections. Our subject is a worthy type of Ohio's representative citizens. He was born near Tiffin, Seneca county, July 24, 1857, and is a son of Hiram and Lucetta (Zimmerman) McIntire, the former born in Wayne county, Ohio, April 10, 1832, the latter in Seneca county, March 10, 1837. The grandfather, John McIntire, emigrated from Scotland to America, and in Wayne county married a lady of Irish birth. One of their sons, prominent in Abolition work, used his home as a station on the "Underground railroad."

When a young man, Hiram McIntire learned the trade of a millwright. He was left an orphan at the age of thirteen, and for one year lived with an older brother; but not liking the treatment he there received, he tied his little wardrobe in his handkerchief, and with sixty-five cents in his pocket, ran away. He went to Green Springs, Sandusky county, and there learned his trade, which he followed for some years. While at that place he was married October 2, 1856, and immediately after went with his bride to Fort Seneca, where he worked in a sawmill. He afterward purchased a mill, which he operated for a year, when he removed to Winter Station, and carried on a mill there until April 1, 1861, when with his family he came to Liberty township, Wood county. Here he purchased five acres of land on which stood a frame residence, and after selling that property he bought eighty acres of wild land, clearing the tract and erecting thereon a log cabin, into which his family moved before there were either doors or windows. In 1882 this was replaced by a more modern structure that is now occupied by a brother of our subject. The father died there February 19, 1893; the mother passed away eight months previous. Their children were Wesley; Francis Marion, born November 2, 1858; Arthur, who was born December 22, 1860, and was drowned at the age of two years; and Anna, who was born May 3, 1869, and died at the age of eight years.

Mr. McIntire, the subject of this sketch, was reared in Liberty township, received a common-school education, and worked on the home farm until his marriage. On May 14, 1882, he wedded Miss Ida Carnacom, who was born in Liberty township, July 13, 1861. They began their domestic life on a forty-acre farm given him by his father, and in 1892 he erected his present commodious home which is brightened by the presence of three children: Valeria Odessa, Francis Elmer and Lloyd. In politics, Mr. McIntire is a Republican, and is now serving as town constable. His time, however, is largely given to his business interests. He owns the farm on which he lives, has a half interest in eighty acres of land left by his father, and a half interest in the royalty received from thirteen oil wells. In connection with his brother, he is at this present writing also engaged in the breeding of blooded horses, and they have a fine five-eighths of a mile track on which they train and break colts. Socially, Mr. McIntire is connected with Whitney Lodge No. 589, I. O. O. F., of Portage, and is a charter member of the Forrester's Lodge at Rudolph. In religious connection he holds membership with the Disciples Church of Rudolph.

FRANCIS M. MCINTIRE, a prominent farmer and stock dealer of Wood county, was born in Sandusky county, Ohio, November 2, 1858, and is a son of Hiram and Lucetta (Zimmerman) McIntire. He was a child of two and a half years when his parents came to Wood county, and his childhood days were passed on his father's farm, while his education was obtained in the district schools. He secured a teacher's certificate, but ill health prevented him from entering the profession. At the age of sixteen he left school, and worked on the home farm until his marriage. When in his twenty-first year he engaged in farming for himself, as well as in assisting in the cultivation of the old homestead.

HIRAM McINTIRE.

MRS. LUCETTA McINTIRE.

On August 7, 1881, Mr. McIntire was united in marriage with Miss Isadore Mercer, a daughter of Abraham and Harriet (Rice) Mercer. He erected a residence on his father-in-law's farm, and afterward moved this dwelling to a tract of thirty acres owned by his wife. In the spring of 1883 he began the breeding of blooded horses, and has continued this business with excellent success. In August, 1893, he admitted his brother Wesley to a partnership in the business, and he built a five-eighths mile track for training purposes. On April 1, 1896, he purchased his brother's interest in the horses, leased his one-half interest in the farm for five years, and is now owner of the stock farm. In 1892 he sold the land belonging to his wife, and removed to the old McIntire homestead, which had been inherited by himself and brother on his father's death. On February 16, 1893, he purchased 120 acres of improved land in Eaton county, Mich., and in the following February added forty acres. He has taken many premiums at the county fairs with his fine horses, and has one of the finest stock farms in the county.

To Mr. and Mrs. McIntire have been born five children, their names and dates of birth being as follows: H. Leroy, August 30, 1882; Harley, February 7, 1887; Algernon, November 8, 1890; Leo, July 16, 1893, and Mabel, November 15, 1895. Mr. McIntire takes quite an active interest in politics, has served as supervisor for two years, and in 1895 was elected justice of the peace. Socially he is a member of Whitney Lodge No. 589, I. O. O. F., of Portage, and a charter member of Lodge No. 57, Court Sheridan, Ancient Order of Forresters, in which he is one of the trustees. He is a popular young man, of genial disposition, and in the community where he has so long resided has many friends.

GEORGE W. BORTLE, deceased. The subject of this sketch, formerly a prominent agriculturist of Grand Rapids township, was born January 4, 1851, in Weston (now Grand Rapids) township, where his parents, John and Louisa Bortle, were among the early settlers. The father was born August 8, 1816, and died December 13, 1856. The mother, Louisa (Arnold) Bortle, was born November 12, 1827, and now resides with her daughter, Mrs. Addie Hodge, at Kenton, Ohio.

George W. Bortle was educated in the district schools in the neighborhood, and assisted his father on the farm during boyhood. His first independent work was done on the Wabash and Erie canal, on which he was employed for several years. Later he engaged in farming, and in 1876 he moved upon the farm of eighty-eight acres which belonged to his widowed mother, one-half of which his mother gave to him, and the other half she gave to her daughter, Addie. On this our subject planted a good orchard, erected a fine barn and made many other improvements. On December 31, 1874, Mr. Bortle was married to Miss Annie E. Gillmore, who was born November 25, 1848, a daughter of George and Mary A. Gillmore, who were well-known pioneer residents of Weston township. One child, John H., born April 16, 1876, blessed this happy union, and who is now the manager of the homestead, and his widowed mother's pride and solace. He attended the district schools of Grand Rapids township in youth, and although only eight years old at the time of his father's death, he early learned to lighten his mother's cares and responsibilities, and was a great comfort to her the few years she remained with him.

George W. Bortle was a man who held the respect and esteem of all who knew him; honest, industrious and progressive, his death, which occurred December 29, 1885, cut short a life of quiet usefulness, which could be illy spared. Mrs. Bortle, a lady of rare executive ability and business judgment, continued the work of the estate left to her, and through her good management she purchased the half of the former eighty-eight acres from her sister-in-law, Mrs. Addie Hodge, and on which she built a comfortable residence and added many other improvements. Having poor health for the past two years, Mrs. Bortle died February 19, 1896, leaving John H. Bortle, the only heir, in full possession of the beautiful home. On October 1, 1896, John H. Bortle was married to Maude McClure, whose birth occurred August 17, 1879.

DAVID W. KEYS, one of the progressive young agriculturists of Grand Rapids township, is a native of Wood county, born January 19, 1858.

His father, the late George Keys, a highly respected citizen of the same township, was born in the State of Delaware, February 27, 1812. He came from that State to Fairfield county, Ohio, where, in 1850, he was married to Miss Sarah Deal, who was born in Rockingham county, Va., August 24, 1817. They were engaged in farming while they remained in Fairfield, and in 1853, they moved to Wood county, where they bought seventy-four acres of wild land, which they cleared and improved, spending many days at the hard toil which prepared his fertile lands for production. To this union were born five children, three of whom died in infancy. Mary J., our subject's surviving sister, was born September 11, 1856; she married John Phillips February 25, 1877, who is a well-known farmer of Grand Rapids township.

David W. Keys attended the district schools during boyhood, and assisted his father upon the farm for a number of years. After the death of the latter, which occurred July 12, 1879, he took charge of the homestead for his widowed mother, for whom he cared tenderly until she, too, passed away on August 26, 1894. Since that time Mr. Keys has operated his half of the farm, and on it made many improvements of a substantial nature. On February 23, 1889, he was married to Miss Catherine Courtney, of Grand Rapids, who was born October 8, 1861. They have no children living. Both are greatly esteemed by their neighbors and acquaintances for their sterling qualities of character. Mr. Keys takes no part in politics. He attends strictly to his own business affairs, and his high reputation for good common sense gives proof of his wisdom in so doing.

HOWARD CORY is one of Perry township's most prominent farmers and citizens, as well as a descendant of one of its earliest pioneer families. In Section 22, that township, his birth occurred April 18, 1859, and he is a son of Ambrose and Amanda (Kelley) Cory. In the spring of 1832, the paternal grandfather, Samuel P. Cory, removed with his family to Melmore, Seneca Co., Ohio, by the way of the Erie canal to Buffalo, N. Y., by the lake to Sandusky, Ohio, and thence by team. The father started on foot to look up a location, and in Perry township, Wood county, entered eighty acres of land, which was still in its natural state. He erected a cabin, and in the fall of 1832 the family located here. He was born in 1793, and at the time of his death, June 26, 1846, he was comfortably situated. He took considerable interest in politics, voting with the Democratic party, and among other offices, served as the first justice of the peace of Perry township. By his marriage with Surviah Foster, he became the father of the following children—Louisa C., who became the wife of Dr. M. Dana, and died in Fostoria, Ohio; George D., who died on the home farm in Perry township; Ambrose, the father of our subject; Orrin J., who was both a farmer and a painter, and departed this life in Fostoria; Mary E., who was the wife of A. J. Morgan, and died in Freeport, Ohio. The mother of this family lived to the ripe old age of eighty-one, and was buried by the side of her husband in Fostoria.

Ambrose Cory was born in Susquehanna county, Penn., May 29, 1825, and was only seven years old when he arrived in Wood county, where he attended the district schools near his home. He completed his education by two terms' attendance at the Norwalk Academy. At the age of twenty he began teaching in Hancock county at fifty cents per day, and taught in all six terms of school. His father died a few weeks before he reached his majority, and he then started out in life for himself, renting a farm near Melmore, Seneca county, for two years.

In Hancock county, on February 14, 1854, was celebrated the marriage of Ambrose Cory and Miss Amanda Kelley, who was born in Wayne county, Ohio, September 22, 1829, and is a daughter of Thomas and Catherine (Lorah) Kelley, who located in Washington township, Hancock county, in the fall of 1831. In the spring of 1854, Mr. Cory purchased 200 acres of land in Perry township, of Abraham Weaver, for which he went in debt, and on which he lived for seven years, but in 1871 he removed to Section 31, Jackson township, Seneca Co., Ohio, buying twenty acres, which is now within the corporation limits of Fostoria. The following year he there built his substantial brick residence, where he still lives, though he later bought 160 acres of land in Perry township, this county, which he improved, but still made his home in Fostoria. He now has eighteen acres in that city, while five acres are just outside the corporation. He held many offices of honor and trust in Perry township, is a highly respected citizen of Fostoria, and takes quite an interest in the success of the Democratic party, for which he casts his ballot. In the family of three children our subject is the eldest, and is followed by Kate S., who was the wife of Charles Schaufelberger, and died in Hastings, Neb., October 24, 1893; and T. Harry, a painter and paper-hanger of Fostoria.

When only three years old, Howard Cory was taken by his parents to Fostoria, in the public schools of which city he acquired his literary education, while on his father's farm in Perry township he received his instruction in agricultural pursuits. Two years previous to his marriage he built a house upon his present farm of eighty acres in Section 26, Perry township. Only twenty acres at that time had been cleared, but now seventy acres have been placed under the plow, and yield to him golden harvests for the labor expended upon them. The place is well drained and supplied with an excellent set of farming buildings, all of which he has erected. The summer of 1883 he spent in Sully county, S. D., where he took up 160 acres of land, which he yet owns.

In Jackson township, Seneca county, Mr. Cory was joined in wedlock on March 6, 1884, with Miss Sylvia Cox, a native of that county, and a daughter of Aaron Cox, a farmer. They have one child, Fred, born October 15, 1888. Until 1891, Mr. Cory was a Democrat, but since that time he has been an enthusiastic supporter of the doctrines of the People's party. Religiously, he and his wife are connected with the Methodist Church of Fostoria.

W. O. JOHNSTON, a representative and leading farmer of Perry township, is a fair specimen of the sturdy agriculturists, who have so largely assisted in the development of Wood county, and who are drawing from the soil the important elements of their future fortune. His homestead, which embraces eighty-eight acres of rich and fertile land, lies in Section 27, where he first saw the light of day January 18, 1849, and is a son of Thomas and Mary (Cove) Johnston.

The father, who was of Irish parentage, was born in Fairfield county, Ohio, in 1810, and was a member of the large family of John Johnston. When twenty-two years of age he went to Fostoria, Ohio, and entered land in Hancock county, having at that time $300 which had been given him by his father. About 1833, he bought eighty acres of land in Section 27, Perry township, all in its primitive condition. He was a very rugged man and a hard worker, and during pioneer days owned several tracts of land in Hancock county, which he would clear and then sell. At the time of his first marriage he was employed on the farm owned by Charles W. Foster, for whom he worked four years, and later came to Perry township. He lived to be nearly seventy-three years of age, dying at Fostoria, in July, 1883. For many years he was a member of the I. O. O. F., in politics was a Republican, and served as a trustee of Perry township. He was a man of sound judgment and good common sense, and by his well-directed labors secured a comfortable competence.

At Fostoria, Thomas Johnston was united in marriage with Mary Myers, by whom he had seven children, but five died before reaching adult age. Elizabeth is the wife of Peter Faylor, of Montcalm county, Mich. John, who was a member of Company H, 49th O. V. I., was shot in the left temple, and carried the ball for two years, when it dropped through into his throat. His death, in October, 1880, was occasioned by his wound. For his second wife Mr. Johnston wedded Miss Mary Cove, a native of Stark county, Ohio, and a daughter of Benjamin and Elizabeth Cove. After her father's death in Stark county, her mother came to western Ohio, and departed this life at Fostoria. Our subject is the eldest of seven children born of the second marriage, the others being Aiden L., who died in 1860; Charles E., of Toledo, Ohio; Hetty A., now Mrs. Frank Culbertson, of Fostoria; Mary E., who is engaged in the insurance business in that city; Thomas L., a glass worker of Fostoria; and George E., a telegraph operator of that place, who died March 4, 1893. The mother of this family is still living, and makes her home in Fostoria.

In the usual manner of farmer boys, our subject was reared to manhood, remaining at home until his marriage, with the exception of a few months in 1872, spent at Denver, Col., where he witnessed many thrilling scenes. On January 10, 1875, in Perry township, J. R. Phillips performed a wedding ceremony that united the destinies of Mr. Johnston and Miss Emily Brandeberry, who was there born July 29, 1855, and is a daughter of James and Jane (Bates) Brandeberry. To them have been born two children—Blanche, now Mrs. A. J. Baird, of Perry township; and Blake, at home.

Mr. Johnston began his domestic life upon a rented farm in Section 23, Perry township, and then for nine years rented another place in the same township. About 1883 he purchased forty acres of land, which form a part of his present valuable farm of eighty-eight acres. He uses his right of franchise in support of the Republican party, has been trustee of his township, and has held several school offices. As a friend, Mr. Johnston is an ardent and consistent one, and, as a neighbor, does all in his power for those around him.

TIMOTHY HAYES, "The Wizard of Fort Meigs," was born in County Tipperary, Ireland, July 16, 1822. The historic ground named above has been in the Hayes family as lessees, or owners, since 1841. It was here that Harrison and his patriotic pioneer followers hurled back the British and Indians, and gave the death blow to tyranny and barbarity in the United States. It was here, too, that in 1840, during the campaign of "Tippecanoe and Tyler, too," was gathered the mightiest host of people ever assembled at any political mass meeting held in this, or any other country, to do honor to their chief, the hero of Fort Meigs—Gen. William Henry Harrison, the Whig Presidential candidate of that year.

This historic spot, famed in the annals of history, would long since have been wrecked had it not been for the gentleman whose name opens this sketch, and his brothers, whose names appear hereafter. But under their careful watching, not a plowshare has disturbed a grave of the sacred dead whose dust sanctifies this hallowed spot, and makes it dear to every American heart; not a spade has desecrated the embankment that protected the patriots from the English shells. Mr. Hayes takes just pride in the ground he has helped to preserve. As the tourists and travelers, who seek to view the historic spot, find an Irishman—a bachelor—the proprietor and owner, and encounter his tall, angular figure walking over the fields, but see no public monument, they realize that this is indeed the "Wizard of Fort Meigs," whose word has stayed the vandalism of agriculture and the ravages of time, and preserved intact one of the Nation's most noted battle fields.

Timothy Hayes is the son of James and Margaret (Fitz Gerold) Hayes, both of whom were born in Tipperary. The father died in November at about seventy years of age. The mother departed this life at Fort Meigs in 1848, when about sixty years old. Their children were: Michael, who was born in 1814, came to America in 1837, and first went to Illinois, and then to Perrysburg. He was a contractor by occupation, doing considerable work on canals, and assisted in building the Maumee and Western Reserve Pike. In 1841 he settled on a farm at Fort Meigs, where he lived until his death, January 1, 1894; Johanna, the second child, died in Ireland; Bridget is the wife of James Carey, Turner Junction, Ills.; Timothy is our subject; Anastasia died in this country; Thomas, who was born in 1827, came to America in 1848 (he spent four years, from 1859 to 1863, in California and then returned to Wood county. He married Miss Mary Ann Daily, who was born in Wood county, and died after bearing one child, James C., who is agent for the Ohio Central railroad, at Dowling). The second wife of Thomas was Miss Ellen Riley, a native of Long Island, N. Y., and they have seven children: Thomas, Timothy, Michael, John, Margaret, Ellen, and Mary; the seventh child of our subject's parents was Ellen, now the wife of Matthew Riley, of Chicago; Margaret is the wife of Felix Conley; the ninth child died in Ireland.

Timothy and his brother, Thomas, with the latter's family, all live in the same house on Fort Meigs. They are both Democrats and members of the Roman Catholic Church. The brothers bought Fort Meigs on July 5, 1864, since which time they have been its owners.

WILLIAM S. RICHARD, editor and proprietor of the Bloomdale Derrick, of Bloomdale, is one of the most thoroughly representative and best known citizens of Wood county, where probably no other has a wider acquaintance.

Mr. Richard is a native of Ohio, born December 16, 1835, in Ashland (then Richland) county, a son of Jacob and Rebecca Richard, and there received his education up to the age of fourteen years. He and his brothers were all hardy, industrious and intelligent lads, well adapted to the arduous task of clearing up the new Richard home in the woods, and assisting the neighbors in similar work. In addition to this, our subject, who was a keen sportsman, earned not a little money (a scarce commodity in those days) by the sale of pelts taken from wild animals, some of which he would trap, bringing others to the ground with his unerring rifle. Even now, though past the sixtieth milestone on the highway of life, he follows his sport with all the enthusiasm of his younger days—but it is simply sport now, without any thought of revenue, that leads him "into the haunts of Diana." Since 1876, with but few exceptions, Mr. Richard has been one of some hunting party or another, starting from Bloomdale for the game haunts of northern Michigan or Colorado, where several enjoyable weeks are spent. But this is a digression.

To return to his boyhood, we have said that our subject was fourteen years old when he first set foot in Bloom township, and, after working about the new home a year or two, and attending school, he commenced teaching at Eagleville, Ohio, a profession he followed for several years, earning the well-merited reputation of being a highly successful instructor. Of a naturally studious nature, possessed of brilliant intellect, and somewhat in advance of other boys of his age, he was ambitious enough to increase his store of learning by a course of study at the academy then being conducted at Republic, Ohio, under the scholastic management of Prof. Schuyler. His attendance here, however, was brought to a somewhat sudden termination owing to his eyesight becoming impaired, which necessitated a long rest from study. After the winter of 1866—

W. J. Richard

67 he abandoned school teaching, and confined himself exclusively to the occupation of farmer and auctioneer, which latter business he carried on some thirty years with the same degree of success he met with in other undertakings. In 1889 he became editor and proprietor of the Derrick, a lively newsy paper published weekly at Bloomdale. He is also manager of and a large stockholder in the Gas Center Milling Co., of Bloomdale, and is identified with many other enterprises of the village, at the same time carrying on his farm with characteristic energy. During the war of the Rebellion he served his country three months in Company E, 144th O. V. I., during which time the regiment was stationed at Wilmington, Del., doing guard duty. He enlisted May 2, 1864, and was honorably discharged in the following August.

On October 11, 1860, Mr. Richard was married, at Perrysburg, Ohio, by 'Squire Ross, to Miss Delilah Bailey, who was born in November, 1841, in Mahoning county, Ohio, daughter of Jacob and Elizabeth (Simon) Bailey, who moved to Bloom township when Mrs. Richard was a girl. She, too, was a school teacher in her youth, having taught two terms, her salary ranging from $8.00 to $13.00 per month, which in those days was considered very fair emolument. After marriage the young couple commenced housekeeping in Eagleville, where Mr. Richard owned a small home, and there resided until July 29, 1866, when, Mr. Richard's father's health failing, they removed to the old homestead in Section 25, Bloom township, at that time comprising eighty acres of land, the residence thereon being a log house that years before had been built by Joseph Urie. On the death of his father, in 1871, our subject contemplated trying his fortune in the West, probably in Iowa; but, rather than leave his aged mother, and the old homestead to be sold, one brother having already sold his share, he concluded to remain at home. He bought in the farm, and with true filial affection cared for his widowed mother the rest of her days, in which he was no less dutifully assisted by his amiable wife, a task that demanded much patience, consideration and care, as the invalid for several years was very infirm. She passed from earth May 6, 1881. In 1880 Mr. Richard built an elegant residence on the farm, which by that time had been increased to 110 acres, and is now one of the best improved properties in Bloom township. In October, 1891, he removed with his family into the village of Bloomdale, and they have since made their home there. In February, 1895, he completed his present elegant brick residence on Vine street, where, metaphorically speaking, he reclines at ease "under his own fig tree," having succeeded, with the assistance of his life partner, and by assiduous perseverance, industry and economy, in accumulating a comfortable competence.

Children, four in number, have been born to this honored couple, a brief record of them being as follows: (1) Carrie E., born November 1, 1863, in Eagleville, was married September 17, 1884, to Dr. R. B. Hubbard, and they live in Sandusky, Ohio; they have one child, Vira D., born December 21, 1888. (2) Harry E., born November 1, 1865, in Eagleville, was married October 25, 1885, to Carrie E. Rosendale; he died September 8, 1890, and was buried in the cemetery at Bloom Chapel; he left one son, Stanley, born April 5, 1889. (3) Hollis W., born July 31, 1872, died October 5, 1890, and is buried in the cemetery at Bloom Chapel; he was a promising boy, exceedingly bright, and was beloved by every one. (4) Cora, born October 1, 1881, is an accomplished young lady, still at home. Mrs. Richard is proverbial for her hospitality and philanthropy, a typical Christian woman, tender-hearted and sympathetic, a devoted wife and loving mother. She is a member of the Church of Christ, as is also her husband.

A staunch Republican, Mr. Richard manifests a keen interest in the success of his party, in which he is an oft-consulted advisor and counselor in his part of the county. He has filled with zeal and ability various offices of honor and trust, and for many years served as justice of the peace. "Squire Richard," as he is familiarly known, has done a considerable amount of legal business, and many hundreds of couples has he joined in the bands of matrimony, "for better, for worse; for richer, for poorer." Socially, he is a member of Urie Post, G. A. R., at Bloomdale. He is a well-read man, an omnivorous student in political economy, physics, metaphysics, etc., all receiving deep research and thought, and, withal, he is possessed of shrewd, sound common sense and excellent judgment. A well-spent, abstemious life makes him bear his three-score years with all the cheerfulness and elasticity of a man half his age. May his shadow never grow less!

HENRY LAMBRIGHT, one of the substantial farmers of Perry township, was born in Richland county, Ohio, February 11, 1832, son of John and Elizabeth (Good) Lambright.

The father of our subject was born near New Lancaster, Md., March 24, 1805. His father, whose name was also John, came to Richland county before the war of 1812, in which he served as a soldier. During his absence in the army, the Indians made a raid through the county, destroying lives and property, and his family, with others, took refuge in a blockhouse on the present site of Mansfield. The family of this ancestor comprised ten children, of whom John, Jr., was the first to die. He was reared in Richland county, and when twenty-four years of age married Miss Elizabeth Good, who was born in Perry county, Ohio, February 5, 1808, daughter of John Good, a farmer. Her parents removed from Perry to Richland county, and later to Seneca county, where they spent the remainder of their lives.

In the fall of 1835 our subject's parents moved to Jackson township, Seneca county, where the father entered 120 acres of land, all of it in a primitive state, covered with timber through which wild animals roamed in great numbers. In this pioneer home they reared their family of four children, who were as follows: Mary A., married Jacob Rinebolt, and died in Seneca county; Henry, our subject; Susan married George Sours, and died in Seneca county; John was a private in Company B, 57th Regiment, O. V. I., and was drowned at Paducah, Ky., in 1862. He had been confined for some time in a hospital, and was en route to join his regiment, but being still very weak fell overboard from the steamboat and was drowned. The father and mother made this farm their home until their deaths, which took place when the former was eighty-one years and six months, and the latter sixty-five years old. Both were members of the Lutheran Church, and were very faithful in their attendance on its services. The father was a Democrat originally, but later became a supporter of the Republican party. He was a large, powerful man, an excellent manager, and became quite well-to-do, although his wife was sickly for more than twenty-five years, and he had many obstacles to contend with.

Our subject had no opportunity to attend school until he was fourteen years old, and then his advantages were very limited. The school was such as was maintained at that early day by subscription, the school-room a very poor building, and the course of study was of no higher order than the surroundings. As he was the eldest son, his help was greatly needed by his father in a new country, and work was too plentiful to allow him much time for either recreation or study. Game was plentiful, but he was an industrious boy, and spent but little time in hunting or trapping, as many of his fellows did.

Mr. Lambright lived with his parents until his marriage, February 17, 1856, with Miss Margaret Johnson, which event took place in Seneca county, the ceremony being performed by Henry Stahl, a justice of the peace. Mrs. Lambright's parents, Henry F. and Margaret (Sprout) Johnson, came from Guernsey county, Ohio, to Seneca county, where Mrs. Lambright was born September 14, 1836. Her father was a mechanic, and worked at various trades, among other things making shoes for his family. He was a great hunter of all kinds of game, and kept his table well supplied with the results of his rifle. He was in limited circumstances, and had a large family of fourteen children in all, of whom ten grew to maturity. Margaret was obliged to assist in the support of the others, and earned considerable money by weaving and spinning for the neighbors.

After his marriage Mr. Lambright located on a farm of eighty acres belonging to his father, which he rented for two years, then purchasing it for $1,200, for which he gave his notes. Here he resided until he came to Perry township in 1865, when he bought 120 acres in Sections 27 and 34 for $5,500, going in debt over $2,000. The only building on this land was a small frame house, but since that time many improvements have been made, and it is now a valuable piece of property. In 1880 Mr. Lambright erected a large and handsome brick house and here he and his estimable wife dispense the most generous hospitality to their large circle of friends and acquaintances. He now owns 154 acres in Perry township, and eighty acres in Jackson township, this county, and is one of the wealthy and substantial farmers of this section, an honest, upright man, very industrious and in all respects a most worthy citizen. The family is held in high esteem throughout the community.

The children of Mr. and Mrs. Lambright are four in number: Samuel F., born October 16, 1857, married and has two children; John W., born May 12, 1859, is a farmer in Montgomery township, married Hattie Raney, and they have three children; Daniel H., born September 3, 1864, died June 25, 1879, and was buried at Fostoria; E. G., born November 4, 1870, is a farmer in Jackson township, this county, married Miss Ella Keefer, and they have one child. Mr. Lambright has always been a staunch Republican, and has served as township trustee for several years. He has served also as school director, and takes an active interest in the cause of education. Both he and his wife are members of the Union Methodist Episcopal Church, in which he has held office ever since his first connection with that body. He is one of the most liberal contributors to the Church, and is always ready to assist in any benevolent or other worthy enterprise.

Mr. Lambright was in his younger days a member of Company I, of the 49th Regiment Home Guards. During the Civil war they were called to Johnson's Island, where they did guard duty for a time, thence went to Washington, D. C. Here Mr. Lambright hired a substitute for 140 days, and returned home.

HENRY CLAGUE, a prominent agriculturist of Webster township, was born near Cleveland, Ohio, June 17, 1836. His parents, James and Mary (Collister) Clague, were natives of the Isle of Man, and, in 1826, settled in Cuyahoga county, Ohio, where they reared a large family.

Our subject received a good education in his youth, supplementing the instruction of the district school by a little over three years at Baldwin University. He assisted his father upon the farm until 1861, when he enlisted in Battery G, 1st Light Artillery, O. V. He took part in all of the battles fought by the army of the Cumberland, including those of Shiloh, and Stone River (where he was wounded), and the siege of Atlanta. He received an honorable discharge in December, 1864, at Chattanooga, Tenn., whence he returned to Cleveland and remained until 1866, when he returned to Wood county and engaged in the lumber business with his brother Thomas. On his arrival here he bought 140 acres of choice land near Fenton, which he has improved, and made one of the finest farms of its size in that vicinity.

In May, 1883, he was married, in Cleveland, to Miss Georgiana Harrison, who was born in Buffalo, N. Y., March 29, 1848. She is a daughter of Thomas Harrison, a well-known foundryman of Cleveland. Two children were born of this marriage: Arthur, August 13, 1886, and Howard, August 16, 1888. In politics, Mr. Clague is a Republican, and he is a member of the G. A. R.—Benedict Post, of Pemberville—and while in Cleveland was a member of the I. O. O. F. His wife is a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church at Luckey, and she and Mr. Clague take a generous interest in every movement for the public welfare.

ADELBERT L. PETTEYS belongs to one of the families that have long been connected with Ohio. He was born in Huron county, February 18, 1850, and is a son of Eli W. Petteys, who was born in New York, in 1824, and was brought to Ohio by his parents during his boyhood. The grandfather, John Y. Petteys, purchased a farm in Huron county, and there carried on agricultural pursuits for many years. In the Empire State he had married Miss Allen, and had five children—Hannah, widow of M. D. Tyler, of Tontogany, Ohio; Harriet, who became the wife of George Spicer, and at an early day removed to Wisconsin; her death occurred near Red Wing a few years later; Daniel H., who died in Gage county, Neb.; David, who died in Tontogany, Wood Co., Ohio, and Eli W.

The father of our subject was married in Norwich township, Huron county, Ohio, to Caroline A. Barber, a native of New York, and located on a farm where he lived until removing to Lucas county, Ohio, in the "fifties." He afterward came with his family to Wood county, but in a short time went to Erie county, locating near Bellevue. He afterward moved to Huron, Erie county, and subsequently to Milan township, Erie county, and in the spring of 1864 came to Wood county, Mr. Petteys purchasing 120 acres of land in Washington township. After two years, he removed to Tontogany, where he continued three years, then traded his property there for a farm in Washington township—a farm which had previously been owned by Gen. Custer's father. The father of our subject lived on this place for a few years, and then conducted the "Ackerman House," of Tontogany, for a year, when he removed with his family to Toledo. About four years later he took up his abode upon a 160-acre farm in Jackson township, which he had previously purchased, and at once began to clear the land and place it under cultivation. In 1889 he removed with his wife to Weston, where they spent their remaining days. The father died while visiting at the home of Mrs. Ada Maybee, of Toledo, January 19, 1893, and the mother survived him only ten days. They now sleep side by side in Lawnwood cemetery, Toledo.

The children of the family are Adelbert L.; David, who died in infancy; one, who died unnamed; Ada F., wife of Frank Maybee, of Toledo; Hattie D., wife of George Ackerman, of Toledo; and Clara, wife of Dr. I. S. Townsend, of Toledo, Ohio.

Mr. Petteys, of this sketch, attended school in Huron and Wood counties, completing his education in Tontogany, Ohio. He remained at home until twenty-two years of age, and then served a one-year's apprenticeship to the tin-smith's trade in Clyde, Ohio. Returning to Tontogany, he took charge of the hardware store of S. W. Whitmore, which he conducted two years, when he began to work at his trade in Waterville, Ohio. While there he was taken ill, and returned home. On his recovery he opened a tin shop in Tontogany, which, however, he sold after a few months, and went on a trip for his health through Wisconsin, Iowa, and parts of Kansas and Missouri, finally reaching De Witt, Neb. Liking that place he worked at his trade there through one season. The following winter he spent at home, but in the spring again went to De Witt, where he worked for a few months. Again he returned to Ohio, and after four years spent in farming once more concluded to remove with his family to Nebraska, where they remained two years, our subject working in a hardware store.

On the expiration of that period, Mr. Petteys returned to his native State, and lived on one farm for three years. In 1888 he located on forty acres of land which he had purchased of his father, and which he cultivated until 1892, when he sold out and purchased sixty acres a half-mile west of his present home. After his father's retirement to private life, he removed to the old homestead, where he yet resides.

Mr. Petteys was married in Tontogany, Ohio, November 22, 1874, to Miss Sarah C. Tuller, who was born August 12, 1850, and is a daughter of Edwin and Catherine (Kuder) Tuller. Her father died August 29, 1896, at the age of seventy-five years. He was formerly a lawyer with an extensive practice. He had been a second time married, his last wife who survives him, having borne the maiden name of Nellie Paul. Mrs. Petteys is the second in order of birth in a family of six children, and was reared in Washington township, Wood county. She has one child, Charles Claude, who was born in Washington township, October 30, 1880, and is now a student in the Custar High School.

Our subject is a stalwart Republican in politics; his wife belongs to the Disciples Church, while, socially, he is connected with the Knights of Pythias lodge, of Custar. He is now numbered among the substantial citizens of the community, and has been the architect of his own fortunes. His perseverance and capable management have brought to him financial success, while his upright life has gained him the confidence and good will of many friends.

EDGAR L. KINGSBURY, a grocer of Perrysburg, was born in Hartford, Conn., February 28, 1845.

The Kingsbury family has long held an honored place in the history of New England, where the first of the line in America settled at an early period. John Kingsbury, the grandfather of our subject, was a lifelong resident of Connecticut, and was engaged in agriculture and at the cooper's trade. His son, Lyman Kingsbury, our subject's father, was born in Hartford, Conn., April 14, 1800, and was married to Miss Almira Brown, a native of the same place, born June 12, 1806. Her grandfather Brown (given name forgotten) was a Scotchman by birth, and at the time of the Revolutionary war was the owner of a craft in which he gave what aid he could to the Colonial government. His ship was seized and confiscated by the British; but nothing daunted, the lover of freedom joined the land forces, and fought until independence was secured. For many years after his marriage our subject's father remained in his native place, following farming as an occupation, and in 1854 he moved with his family to the "Western Reserve," settling in Lorain county, near Elyria. He was a Democrat in politics, and he and his wife were members of the Episcopal Church. She passed away April 18, 1867, and he died October 23, 1873. They had four children: Horace, born January 21, 1836, died May 18, 1873; Edgar L. (1), born January 17, 1838, died January 4, 1844; Willard, born March 30, 1842, died September 16, 1852, in Connecticut; and Edgar L. (2), the subject of this sketch.

Mr. Kingsbury was only nine years old when his parents came to Lorain county, and his education was secured principally in the district schools there. At the age of twenty-two he came to the Maumee Valley, and cleared a farm in Defiance county, where for some years he followed agricultural pursuits. Becoming interested in the lumber business, he went to Bridgeport, Mich., remaining there four years, afterward returning to Defiance county. In 1877 he disposed of the farm, and came to Perrysburg, where he opened the grocery which he has since conducted with well-merited success. In politics he is a Republican. At the breaking out of the Civil war he first enlisted, as a recruit, in Company I, 9th O. V. I.; but owing to his youth he was not mustered into the service, although taken to Virginia, remaining there from November, 1861, to May, 1862. He then returned to Ohio, and re-enlisted, this time in Company I, 84th O. V. I., Capt. J. H. Winder's company, and Col. W. Lawrence, which regiment was for ninety-days' service, but served for about four months in Maryland and Virginia. While with his regiment Mr. Kingsbury was taken ill with typhoid fever, and was sent to hospital at Cumberland, Md., and left for sometime after the regiment was mustered out. There, his mother, who had traveled to Cumberland, came in order to care for him in his sickness. For a year and over, after his arrival home, he was unable to perform any kind of labor, and by the time he recovered, the war was ended.

E. L. Hingebury

On September 15, 1869, Mr. Kingsbury was married in Toledo, Ohio, to Miss Maria L. Hilton, who was born November 30, 1846, in Defiance county, Ohio. They have no children of their own, but adopted a little six-year-old girl, Mabel Vance Hilton, daughter of Eber E. Hilton, a brother of Mrs. Kingsbury. Mabel was reared to womanhood as the own child of our subject and his wife, was educated and became a graduate of the Perrysburg school. On September 26, 1894, she was married to Charles L. Maddy, and one child, Edgar Hilton, was born to them; they make their home in Perrysburg, where Mr. Maddy is a dealer in grain, and has an elevator.

Mrs. Kingsbury was the daughter of Eber and Elizabeth R. (McMaken) Hilton, the former of whom, a farmer by occupation, was a native of Defiance county, Ohio, born about the year 1815, and died in 1848. He was a son of Joshua Hilton (also a farmer), a native of Maine, and a very early settler of Defiance county—the only “highway” at the time of his coming being the Maumee river, all merchandise, etc., being brought up that stream in small boats. Eber Hilton and Elizabeth McMaken were married in July, 1843, at Fort Wayne, Ind., and they had three children: Joseph J., who was a soldier in the Civil war, and died, in 1863, in Johnson's Island; Maria L. (Mrs. Kingsbury); and Eber E., a civil engineer in Plattsmouth, Neb. Some time after the death of the father of this family, the widowed mother married William D. Haymaker, and by him she had three children: Kidder V., Carrie (deceased), and Mary. Mr. Haymaker died, and his widow is now living in Defiance, Ohio. She was born in Butler county, Ohio, in 1821; her mother was a native of Maine, and her father was a soldier in the war of 1812.

TAYLOR HALE, one of the prosperous farmers and esteemed citizens of Perry township, was born in Washington township, Hancock Co., Ohio, July 9, 1841, to Robert and Ruth (McRill) Hale, the former of whom was a native of Jefferson county, and latter of Ashland county, Ohio.

The paternal grandfather of our subject, Randall Hale, was an early settler of Hancock county, where he carried on farming for many years, and reared a family of five sons and three daughters, of whom Robert was next to the youngest son. Robert became the father of three children, namely: Mary A., who married John Baker, and died in Montgomery township; Taylor, our subject; and Elisha, who was a soldier in Company H, 49th O. V. I., and was wounded at the battle of Stone River, dying nine days later; his remains were brought home and interred in Olive Branch cemetery. The father of our subject died when the latter was only two years old, leaving his widow with three children, of whom the eldest was but four years of age, and with no property except a small farm of twenty acres. The heroic mother struggled along, keeping her little family together by hard work, weaving and doing other work as it came in her way, and succeeded in rearing them carefully to manhood and womanhood. She was one of those brave souls of whom the pioneer days saw not a few, and the story of whose lives of hardship and privation, and courageous sacrifices, account for the manly and successful men of whom Ohio can boast such a large proportion. This excellent woman lived to the good old age of seventy-eight years, and now sleeps in Olive Branch cemetery, in Washington township, Hancock county.

Taylor Hale obtained the best education afforded in the district schools of his day, and devoted his time after leaving school to the cultivation of the farm for his mother, until the Civil war was well under way, when he felt it his duty to respond to his country's call for more men to aid in putting down the Rebellion. On February 9, 1865, he enlisted at Perry Center in Company G, 189th O. V. I., under Capt. Dennis. This regiment was sent at once to Huntsville, Ala., where they remained on guard duty until the close of the war. During this time Mr. Hale was never absent from his post. On September 28, 1865, he, with his comrades, was mustered out at Nashville, Tenn., and discharged at Columbus, Ohio, when he returned home.

The marriage of our subject with Miss Zeruah, daughter of Jonathan and Margaret Leonard, took place in Hancock county, October 15, 1868, and of this union two children were born: William, a farmer in Perry township, and Emma, now Mrs. Charles Kelley, of Hancock county. At the time of his marriage, Mr. Hale owned eighty acres of land in Section 32, Perry township, which he had bought out of his own earnings, and on which the family had been living for some time. He went to housekeeping on this place in a round-log cabin which his mother had built there, and which stood in a dense forest. From this wild land he has succeeded in making a fine farm, and has added to it from time to time until he now owns 166 acres, and is classed among the best and most successful agriculturists of the township. He is one of the oldest residents, also, having lived upon this farm for forty-eight years.

Mr. Hale's first wife died October 2, 1873, and was buried at Fostoria. On March 15, 1877, he was united in marriage with Miss Rachel Beightle, who was born in Jackson township, Seneca county, August 21, 1848. Her parents, Martin and Maria (Weightman) Beightle, were natives of Pennsylvania, where her father carried on farming. She was one of ten children. Two children have been born to Mr. and Mrs. Hale: Bertha, January 19, 1879, and Elva, February 11, 1883.

In politics Mr. Hale belongs to the Republican party, but he is strongly in sympathy with the Prohibitionists, as he is an earnest advocate of temperance, and uses his best endeavors to root out the evils of the liquor traffic. He has been a trustee of Perry township two terms, and has frequently been elected supervisor. He has been a school director of District No. 6. He is a trustee and class-leader in the Olive Branch Methodist Church, of which he has been a member since twelve years of age, and to which his wife also belongs. Mr. Hale is highly respected and esteemed as an upright Christian man and an excellent citizen.

AARON PHILLIPS. The Phillips family is of German origin. The great-grandfather of our subject, Valentine Phillips, was born in the Highlands of Germany, in 1720. His wife was Mary Phillips. He came to America, and settled near where Phillipsburg, N. J., now stands. He was a soldier in the Revolutionary war, as was also his son Jacob, who was born in New Jersey in 1758, and who married a Miss Sarah Louk, of Philadelphia.

Adam Phillips, the father of our subject, was born in Pennsylvania in 1794, and died March 20, 1857. He was a soldier in the war of 1812, and was under General Harrison at Fort Meigs. In 1818 he was married to Catherine Huff, who was born in Pennsylvania in 1797, and died October 6, 1871. They were married in Tuscarawas county, Ohio, where they lived seven years, then moved to Pike township, Stark county, and in April, 1833, came to Wood county, arriving on the 11th, and entered 420 acres of land in Center township, part of which is now occupied by the county infirmary. When the township was formed from Portage, the first meeting after organization was held in the cabin of Adam Phillips, who gave the name to the township. There his children grew up, and each child received a piece of land. He was a Whig in politics, and religiously was an exhorter in the Lutheran Church. To him and his wife were born thirteen children. They were: Daniel, who died in Wood county; William, born October 31, 1821, lives in Wood county; Eliza, the widow of Stewart Anderson; Moses, who went to California, and is probably dead; Mary, who died unmarried; Susan, who married John Shiner, and died in 1862; Aaron, our subject; David, who resides in Toledo, was in Company F, 25th O. V. I., for one year; Noah, who was a member of Company H, 67th O. V. I., entered the army in 1861, was taken ill and died. Four of the children died in infancy.

Our subject was reared on his father's farm, where he remained until twenty-two years old, attending school in a log school-house for two terms. He was married December 11, 1856, to Miss Anna Crom, whose birth occurred in Center township, Wood county, January 7, 1838. He is a fruit grower, and was born in Pike township, Stark Co., Ohio, March 2, 1832. Six children were born to Mr. and Mrs. Phillips, as follows: Levi C., born December 22, 1857 (he married Emma Duley, and they have five children, Frank, Alma, Earl, Herbert and Adel. Levi is an engineer on the M., K. & T. railroad, in Texas); Mary B., born March 8, 1859, died September 1, 1859; Daniel L., born July 24, 1860, married Ella B. Gray, and they have one child, Harvey A.; Daniel lives in Texas; Martha J., born October 3, 1863, died August 15, 1865; Elsie E., born June 24, 1870, died September 1, 1872; George W., born January 30, 1874, died June 30, 1887. Our subject, after his marriage, settled on a tract of wild land which he improved, and where he lived until 1865, when he sold it. When the Civil war broke out, Mr. Phillips enlisted, August 17, 1861, and served until honorably discharged September 12, 1864. He was in the army of the Cumberland, and took part in the battles of Shiloh and Mill Springs. He was taken ill, sent to the hospital, and discharged for disability, when he went home, remained there a while, then re-enlisted and participated in the battles of Buzzard's Roost, Jonesboro, and the siege of Atlanta. His company led the charge at Jonesboro. He fought close to the works, and was knocked down by the concussion of a shell.

After selling his farm, at the close of the war, he went to Michigan, where he bought a farm in Lenawee county, and lived there until 1870, when he moved to Carroll county, Mo. He located in various places at different times, among them being: Fulton county, Ohio; Tuscumbia, Ala.; Nebraska; Colbert county, Ala.; Portage, Wood Co., Ohio; and finally settled in Bowling Green. He is a member of the G. A. R., and is a Republican in politics. He is a member of the Baptist Church.

Our subject's wife grew up and was educated in Wood county, and, like her husband, belongs to the pioneer stock of Wood county. Mr. and Mrs. Phillips live in a beautiful home in Bowling Green, where they cultivate fruit, making a specialty of berries. They are hospitable, and are greatly esteemed by their many friends throughout the county.

John Crom, the grandfather of Mrs. Aaron Phillips, was a pioneer from Pennsylvania and Ohio, finally locating near Beaver Creek, in Wood county. Her father, Daniel Crom, was born May 10, 1805, and died May 10, 1864. Her mother, who was a Miss Barbara Oberdorf, was born in 1809, and died February 9, 1892. They were married in 1828, and of the thirteen children born to them the following are mentioned: Elizabeth, Margaret, John, Anna, Joseph, Aaron, Simeon, and Martha.

Mr. Phillips states that on the formation of Plain and Liberty townships Dr. Manville gave the name to Plain, and that John Groves, who is yet living, aged ninety-six years, named Liberty township.

DICKERSON BOWLES, a farmer of Milton township, was born, November 12, 1836, in Cambridgeshire, England, a son of John Bowles, whose birth occurred in the same country, February 21, 1809. The father was a farm laborer by occupation, and was married, in Cambridge, England, to Jane Dickerson, who was born February 14, 1809. They came to America in 1852, sailing from Liverpool, and took up their abode in Monroeville, Huron Co., Ohio. Four years later they came to Wood county, and the father purchased a farm in Milton township, which he improved, and on which he lived until his death, which occurred in December, 1876. His wife survived him, dying in February, 1892. They had a family of ten children, namely: Anna and William, deceased; John, a farmer of Milton township; Dickerson; Sarah, who died in England; Susan, wife of John W. Chappel; Elizabeth; James; and Charles and Arthur, both deceased.

Our subject attended school in England, and came with the family to America, continuing his labors on his father's farm until 1856, when he went to Iowa, and for a short time engaged in the cultivation of rented land. At the expiration of that period he returned home, and continued under the parental roof until 1866. During the war, however, he enlisted, at Napoleon, Ohio, in Company I, 68th Regiment, O. V. I., under Capt. Poe, and participated in the battles of Fort Donelson, Metamora, Raymond and Champion Hills, and was with Sherman through the Atlanta campaign. He was wounded at the battle of Champion Hills, and again, August 10, 1864, before Atlanta, and after his recovery marched with Sherman to Savannah. He was honorably discharged December 19, 1864. He then returned home, and purchased a farm in Milton township.

On February 14, 1866, Mr. Bowles was united in marriage with Miss Jane Anness, who was born in Cambridgeshire, England, January 12, 1846. Four children graced this union: Daniel, a farmer of Grand Rapids; Arthur, who aids in the operation of the home farm; Walter, and Albert. In politics, Mr. Bowles is a stalwart Republican. He is a member of the Evangelical Church. Industrious and energetic, his business interests are well conducted, and his duties of citizenship are discharged with the same fidelity which marked his army service.

THOMAS ORDWAY, the well-known contractor and builder, of Bowling Green, has identified his name in a lasting way with the growth and prosperity of that town, and many of its finest residences and business blocks stand as evidences of his skill and workmanship.

His father, Amherst Ordway, was born October 15, 1815, in Vermont, and came to Ohio in early manhood, locating first at Milan, Erie county, where he was engaged in contracting and building until 1854, when he removed to Householder's Corners, Wood county, and remained about five years. He then came to Bowling Green, purchasing a large tract of land, which since his death, October 29, 1880, has been known as Ordway's Addition. He built the first sawmill and gristmill at Bowling Green, and was a leading promoter of many public improvements. He was a Republican in politics, and an active worker in the temperance cause. He married Miss Roxanna Goodell, who was a native of Huron county, being the first white child born in Townsend township. Her birth occurred January 24, 1817, and she died May 6, 1876. Of their seven sons, four served in the army during the Civil war, two losing their lives in the defense of the Union, namely: Andrew, who died at Athens, Ala., and Hiram, who was killed at Jonesboro, Ga. James returned to Bowling Green after three years of service, and is now a contractor and builder there. Nehemiah spent six months at the front, and then returned home, where he now resides. Of the five younger children, Emma, the widow of W. A. Whitaker, Thomas, our subject, and Sylvester, live at Bowling Green. Frederick resides at Akron, Ohio, and Alice, the youngest, is the wife of Wesley Fox, of Chicago Junction, Huron county.

Our subject was born February 5, 1849, near Milan. He received his early education in the district schools near his father's farm in Wood county, and in the high school at Bowling Green. He worked on the farm until the age of twenty-seven, after which he followed the carpenter's trade as a workman until about ten years ago, when he began to take contracts for buildings, and also to construct residences for sale. Among the contracts undertaken are those for constructing the Central school, the East school, and the finishing of the South school building. He has constructed about two-thirds of all the business blocks in the city, some of which are the Royce bank building, Chris. Lehmann's building, the Cuning and Whitehead building, the Lincoln block, the Mowrey block, and the First National Bank building. Although Mr. Ordway is very quiet and unassuming in manner, he has a reputation for great firmness and persistence in any enterprise once resolved upon, and this, with his well-trying ability and integrity, has won for him the entire confidence of the community. He was married in 1880 to Miss Eloria Mounts, who was born in Sycamore, Ohio, in 1859. They have three children, Amherst, Katie and Donald. Politically, Mr. Ordway is a Republican, and he is a member of the I. O. O. F.

T. S. BRANDEBERRY, who is successfully engaged as a butcher and in the meat market business in Jerry City, was born in Bloom township, on April 15, 1846, and is a son of William and Anna (Clark) Brandeberry. On the home farm he was reared to manhood, during which time he received a fair English education in the common schools of the neighborhood.

On February 21, 1864, although not quite eighteen years of age, he manifested his loyalty to his native land by enlisting in the Union army at Fostoria, Ohio, becoming a member of Company H, 49th O. V. I., with which he served until December 28, 1865. After the surrender of General Lee, the regiment was sent to Texas, and there remained until mustered out at Victoria, that State. Our subject received his discharge at Columbus, Ohio. He was never wounded, but on account of illness was confined for three months in hospitals at Chattanooga and Nashville.

On his return home, Mr. Brandeberry worked for his father for a time, and was also employed by his uncle, Isaac Brandeberry, of Perry township, Wood county. In Bloom township, on May 21, 1868, he led to the marriage altar Miss Lucinda E. Fry, a native of Westmoreland county, Penn., and a daughter of Jonas Fry, a farmer. To them have been born four children, one of whom died in infancy; the others are: Carrie E., wife of Reuben Echleberger, of Bloom township; Alwilma, wife of Wallace Simon, of the same township; and Milton O., at home.

After remaining upon his uncle's place for several months, Mr. Brandeberry returned to Bloom township, purchasing thirty-eight and a quarter acres in Section 35, and on the place erected good buildings and made other necessary improvements. There he resided until April 4, 1883, when he bought fifty acres in Section 22, which he still owns. He immediately commenced the improvement of his land, which is now in an admirable state of culture, and has become a valuable piece of property, owing to his careful tillage and the neat buildings upon the place. In January, 1895, however, he removed to Jerry City, where he has since conducted a butchering business.

Mr. Brandeberry does not care to take an active part in politics, but always stands by the principles for which he fought, and casts his vote with the Republicans every time. He is a leading member of Bronson Post No. 85, G. A. R., of Jerry City, and attended the Encampment at Louisville, Ky., in 1895, and also the dedication services at Chickamauga, Ga., in September of that year.

ORRIN STEARNS (deceased). The subject of this sketch, a veteran of the Civil war, was born in Montgomery township, May 9, 1841, and was the fourth son and fifth child of Justus and Sarah A. (Davis) Stearns, mention of whom is made in another part of this volume.

Mr. Stearns received a common-school education, and was reared as a farmer's boy. On September 23, 1861, he enlisted in Company B, 55th Regiment, O. V. I.; on June 1, 1864, was promoted to corporal, and on July 8, 1865, was further promoted to the rank of first sergeant. He was mustered out July 11, 1865, at Louisville, Ky. While home on a veteran's furlough in 1864, he was married, on February 4, in the "Hays House," Fostoria, to Miss Sarah A. Brandeberry, the ceremony being performed by J. V. Jones, a justice of the peace. Mrs. Stearns was born in Perry township, April 25, 1846, and is a daughter of Isaac and Nancy (Fish) Brandeberry, the former of whom was born in Richland county, and the latter in Columbiana county, Ohio.

Orrin Stearns

In the spring of 1866 our subject came to his farm, which he had bought in the fall of 1865, and where his widow now lives. It then consisted of 120 acres, on which stood an old frame house and another frame building. Mr. Stearns had saved $1,500 from his army pay, and his wife was given $2,000, so they started in life in comfortable circumstances. In 1876 he built one of the best brick residences in Perry township. Mr. Stearns died, October 23, 1888, from a lingering illness contracted while in the army, and he was buried in the Fostoria cemetery. While not physically strong, he was able to attend to his work, was an excellent business man, dealing extensively in stock, and retired from active life fourteen years previous to his demise. He was a representative citizen and a staunch Republican, and served as director of the Infirmary and as trustee of Perry township. Kind-hearted, he was always ready to assist the needy and deserving, and his death was a great blow to the community. He was a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church, in which he held various offices, and to which he was a most liberal contributor. Socially, he belonged to the I. O. O. F., and G. A. R., at Fostoria, and was buried by the latter organization with all its rites and ceremonies.

Since her husband's death Mrs. Stearns has taken charge of the farm, which now consists of 230 acres, and is one of the best in the county. She is a woman of considerable business ability, and has improved the place in many ways. She is a devout Christian, and a liberal contributor to the Methodist Episcopal Church, of which she has been a member since fourteen years of age. While Mr. and Mrs. Stearns had no children of their own, many others have been given a home with this admirable couple, who took great pleasure in such philanthropic work.

ANDREW JOSEPH, the popular manager of one of the departments in the mercantile firm of A. Froney & Co., at Bowling Green, was born September 17, 1866, in Troy township, this county.

George Joseph, his father, was born in Baden,

Bavaria, January 10, 1812, and came to America in early manhood, locating in Wood county, where he met his future wife, Miss Sophia Hettinger, a native of Sencefeldt, Baden, born December 26, 1823, who came to this county with her parents when she was a child. After their marriage, September 12, 1841, they settled upon a farm in Troy township, three miles northeast of Pemberville, where they lived fifty years, but they have now retired to Pemberville to pass the evening of their lives. They are prominent members of the German Lutheran Church. Their golden wedding in 1891 was a notable occasion, their ten children, all living, making an interesting group. Of those living, May, the eldest, is the widow of M. Hauber, of Freeburg, Ill.; Julia is the wife of David Bingle, of Scotch Ridge; Henry resides in Freeburg, Ill.; George Jr., at Wahoo, Nebr.; John lives at Wahoo, Nebr.; Louie resides in Center township; Frank is a resident of Luckey; and Emma is at home with her parents.

Andrew Joseph, the youngest of this family, was reared upon the farm, and acquired his early education in the district schools near by. In 1891 he came to Bowling Green, and now has charge of the upper floor of the store of A. Froney & Co., managing the cloak, drapery and carpet departments. In this capacity he has shown unusual ability, and proved himself entirely worthy of the trust reposed in him. He is also the fortunate owner of a tract of oil land now being developed by him, in company with others, under the partnership name of Bankey, Joseph & Moore.

In politics Mr. Joseph is a Democrat, sharing in this the conviction of his father, who has been for many years a firm supporter of the principles of that party. The subject of our sketch is prominent in the social circles of Bowling Green.

J. D. STEARNES, a worthy representative of the old and prosperous family of that name which is well-known throughout Wood county, is a successful farmer of Perry township, where he stands high in the regard not only of his immediate community but also of all citizens in the county who have had business or social relations with him.

Mr. Stearnes is the third child of Justus and Mary (Hall) Stearnes, and was born September 1, 1854. His first schooling was obtained at Sugar Grove, in Perry township, and was the best that could be afforded by the district schools in those days. He has seen many changes since then in the methods of education, and has used his influence in the betterment of the schools of his locality. No one in the county is a warmer friend of education, or has done more in its interests, than Mr. Stearnes, and the advantages now enjoyed by the children of Perry township are in a great measure due to his untiring efforts in their behalf.

Mr. Stearnes was reared upon a farm, and early in life showed such business ability that he was intrusted with matters of great magnitude for one of his youth, and he managed them with discretion and excellent judgment. He remained upon his father's farm until one year after his marriage, and in 1876, removed to the farm on which the "Old Stone House" stands and which is still his home. This old mansion, his first residence, is one of the land marks of Perry township, and was built in 1840 by a Mr. Brown. Mr. Stearnes purchased 117 acres here of his father, and at once moved onto it, his entire possessions being conveyed to the place in three loads, such as a one-horse sled could carry. The land was wet, and but little draining had been done, and, with his poor team and still poorer equipment, our subject found an up-hill task before him. His energy and industry were, however, equal to the emergency, and by constant labor and untiring perseverance, as well as good management, he succeeded in bringing it under a fine state of cultivation. He has at present 160 acres of excellent land, and in 1892 built one of the finest pressed brick residences in Wood county. His barns and outbuildings are also of the best, and the entire place bears evidence of careful thrift and labor. Mr. Stearnes has done considerable ditching by contract throughout the county, and, since the discovery of oil and gas in this section, has done a large amount of work in teaming, etc., for the oil producers.

Our subject was married September 2, 1875, to Miss Sarah Kyes, who was born August 21, 1855, in Freedom township, this county. Her father, Samuel Kyes, was a native of Lorain county, Ohio, and was a farmer by occupation. He served as a one-hundred-days' man in the war of the Rebellion. His wife, mother of Mrs. Stearnes, was Mary, daughter of John Fish, who died in 1864. Their children were as follows: Sarah, wife of our subject; Caroline, wife of Everett E. Householder, living near Hoytville, Ohio; and Mary A., wife of Albert Addelsperger, of Seneca county, Ohio. On the death of his first wife Mr. Kyes was again married, his choice being Mrs. Mary A. Silverwood, who bore him two sons. Of these, William lives in Bowling Green, Ohio, and Samuel was killed by a falling tree when a lad of seventeen. The father died in Center township, Wood county, when nearly sixty years of age. Mrs. Stearnes was only nine years of age when her mother died, and the children were scattered among different families, she working for her living until her marriage. She is a most estimable woman, and is a good wife and mother. The following children have come to bless the union of our subject and his wife: Nellie, born June 27, 1876; Alice, who died when three years old; Samuel, born May 11, 1880; Albert B., born December 17, 1882; Sarah A., born April 9, 1885; and Pearl, born June 17, 1888.

Mr. Stearnes has always been an ardent Republican, and is a leading member of his party in Perry township. He has served three years as township trustee, and has been a director of School District No. 5 for some nine years. In both these offices he has done much for the growth and welfare of his township, and is looked upon as one of its most valued citizens. By the will of his father, Mr. Stearnes was made one of the administrators of his estate, consisting of over 300 acres of land and $10,000 of personal property. He is a member of No. 445 Lodge, K. of P., at West Millgrove, and both he and his wife belong to the Rathbone Sisters, of Bloomdale.

J. M. BAUM, one of the prominent and representative men of Ross township, is engaged in general farming and gardening in Section 33, where he located in 1872, at that time purchasing a partially improved farm of forty acres. He also devotes some attention to fruit-raising, in which he has been quite successful. He is a native of Ohio, born in Northfield township, Summit county, on Christmas Day, 1833, and is a son of Thomas and Mary (Purkey) Baum, the former of whom was born in Pennsylvania. As early as 1801, however, he accompanied his father, George Baum, to Columbiana county, Ohio, where the latter, at that time, purchased 160 acres of land of the government at $1.25 per acre. The city of Salem is now built on the same. George Baum was a native of Germany, and was born November 17, 1754. At the age of seventeen he sailed for America, but, on account of bad weather, he was six months on the voyage. He landed at Philadelphia, and was "sold" to a man for three years, to pay his passage, the sum being twelve dollars. In 1783 he was married to Mary Higgin, a native of Pennsylvania.

Thomas Baum was married in Columbiana county. In 1821 he became a resident of Northfield township, Summit county, where he purchased a farm eighteen miles from Cleveland, paying three dollars per acre for same, and there his death occurred December 24, 1862. His wife departed this world on her birthday, June 28, 1855, at the age of fifty-eight. They reared a family of six children: John enlisted in the 111th Regiment, O. V. I., in Williams county, Ohio, and served nearly three years; he died in that county, November 16, 1865. Mrs. Sarah Powell makes her home in Northfield township, Summit county. Mrs. Mary White resides in Jennings county, Ind. Mrs. Martha Horner lives at Akron, Ohio. Mrs. Elizabeth Silver also makes her home in Jennings county, Ind. A. M. Baum completes the family list.

During his boyhood and youth our subject attended the district schools of his native county, and assisted his father in clearing up and developing his land. In 1853 he married Maria L. Wetherill, who was born in Vermilion, Erie Co., Ohio, and is a daughter of William and Sarah (Boughey) Wetherill, the former a native of England, the latter of Erie county. The father was one of the first settlers of Plymouth, Huron Co., Ohio, where he opened up a farm; but his death occurred in Ross township, this county. The mother has also departed this life. To our subject and wife two children have been born: William T., who is married, and resides in Ross township, and Rosetta A., wife of Horace Rideout, of the same township.

In politics Mr. Baum is a Democrat, and takes considerable interest in all the campaigns of that party. He served as the first justice of the peace of Ross township, and acceptably filled that office for six years. Being very fond of hunting, he used to come to Wood county as early as 1855, when game here was quite plentiful, and engage in that sport. He has always taken a deep interest in everything for the good of the county, and was one of the promoters of the Woodville stone road.

JOHN SCHON, a native of Germany, was born in the village of Hontheim, Kreis Wittlich, Beyerck Trier, on the Rhine, April 26, 1836. His father, Casper Schon, who was a farmer of that locality, married Anna Simmons. They spent their entire lives in that village, and to them were born the following named children: Hobartus and Barbara, both now deceased; Margaret, Christina, Mathias, Annie, Mary and Peter, all six deceased; Casper, a farmer of Milton township; and John.

The last named was reared as a farmer boy, and acquired his education through attendance at the common schools between the ages of six and thirteen years. At the age of twenty-three he entered the German army, and served for three years. At the place of his nativity, in the year 1862, Mr. Schon was united in marriage with Barbara Steffens, who was also born in that village, and in 1866 they came to America, sailing from Rotterdam to Liverpool, where they spent sixteen days. They were then obliged to return to Rotterdam, on account of the illness of their eldest child; but after two days they took passage on the sailing vessel "Disburk," which reached New York four weeks later. From there they at once came to Wood county, and Mr. Schon purchased twenty acres of wild land in Milton township, on which he built a plank house; then turned his attention to the development of a farm. In 1882 he sold that property, and purchased eighty acres of land on Jackson Prairie; but subsequently he bought his present farm, comprising seventy-eight acres. For this land he gave $5,000, and has since made many excellent improvements upon it, so that he now has one of the most highly developed and desirable country homes in Wood county.

The children born to John and Barbara Schon were: Casper, who died at the age of three years; John, a wagon maker, of Michigan; Annie, wife of John Pouff, of Ohio; Frank, a blacksmith, of Milton, Ohio; Mary, wife of Charles Koch, of Milton township; and Clement, of Illinois. The mother of these died in 1873, and was laid to rest in the Catholic cemetery at Custar. In 1875 Mr. Schon was again married, his second union being with Margaret Schmitz, a native of Germany, born February 2, 1841, and who came to this country in 1873. By this marriage there were six children: Joseph, now of Lorain county, Ohio; Margaret and Nicholas, both at home; Peter, who died in infancy; Peter, the second of the name; and Lena, who died in infancy. Mr. and Mrs. Schon are members of St. Louis Catholic Church, of Custar, toward the building of which he was a liberal contributor.

ANTON SCHUSTER, a well-known saloon-keeper of Grand Rapids, was born March 4, 1849, in Wirfus, Rhine Province, the only child of Frank and Sophia (Wolf) Schuster. The father was a native of the same place, born September 8, 1810, and came to America in 1863, locating on a farm in Cuyahoga county, Ohio, where he died April 18, 1864. The mother died when our subject was but a child. For his second wife Frank Schuster married Anna M. Wolf, by whom he had five children: Nicholas, now a resident of Custar; Jacob, a farmer in Milton township; William, who died in childhood; one daughter, who died in childhood; and Peter, now living in Milton township with Anna M. Schuster, his mother.

Anton Schuster came to America with his father, and remained in Cuyahoga county until 1870, when he went to Keokuk county, Iowa, and there remained for two years. On his return to Ohio he settled in Custar, where he followed the trade of carpenter eight years; then moved to Weston, and engaged in the saloon business. After two years there he transferred his business to Grand Rapids, where he has since resided. He has prospered, and has built a fine brick business block there. In 1883, Anton Schuster married Miss Mary B. Shamberger, a native of Lucas county, born October 2, 1864, and died July 27, 1884. On November 17, 1885, Mr. Schuster for his second wife married Elizabeth F. Long, who was born December 25, 1858, in Lucas county, and four children have blessed this union: Clare Cecelia, deceased; George C.; Omer F., and Zgro Ross. In politics Mr. Schuster is a Democrat, and he is a leading member of the Roman Catholic Church, of which his parents were also adherents.

RUBELLUS J. SIMON, M. D., the leading and scholarly physician of Pemberville, was born on a farm in Bloom township, Wood Co., Ohio, August 9, 1846, being the next to the eldest son of Levi Simon, whose biography appears elsewhere in this volume.

Our subject is one of ten children, whose names with dates of birth are as follows: Myconius N., March 3, 1845; Rubellus J. (the subject of this sketch); Damiette, December 18, 1847 (she married Frank Ledyard, of Bloom township, and died August 23, 1884); Jerusha, October 10, 1850 (she died November 10, 1872); Belenia, August 6, 1852 (she married D. A. Deal, and died November 11, 1884); Poliander, July 22, 1856 (a remarkable child, and at the time of his death August 30, 1863, was intellectually equal to many of double his years); Montibello and Mettilene (twins) March 28, 1859 (the former now a farmer and dairyman of Bloom township; the latter died September 4, 1863); Phœbe E., June 11, 1861 (an unusually gifted child, possessing mental development far beyond her age at her death, December 30, 1877); and Elma O., February 19, 1863 (now Mrs. Jacob Fischer, of Helena, Montana).

The boyhood years of our subject were spent at his father's farm. His early education was obtained under the direction of his parents, both of whom had been teachers, and were well fitted to train him for a life of usefulness and honor.

At sixteen he entered the Poland Union Seminary, becoming a student in that institution the same year that Gov. McKinley completed his studies there. After nine months in the seminary, he received a teacher's certificate, and entered that profession, teaching the Mackey school, in Bloom township. For several terms he taught there and in other districts, then entered the Findlay High School, where he continued his studies for eight months. Later he taught in the grammar school in the same institution for three terms, after which he entered Oberlin College, expecting to fit himself more thoroughly for the profession of a teacher.

Two years were spent in study at Oberlin College, but meantime his ambition changed. Noticing that most of those who devoted their lives to teaching remained poor, and having a desire to gain possession of some of this world's goods by honest exertion, he determined to abandon the profession upon which he had entered. However, he taught a few terms afterward, and in that way gained the means with which to prosecute his medical studies. Under Dr. S. B. Emerson, of Eagleville, he began to read medicine, then took a course of lectures at the Eclectic Medical College, of Cincinnati, after which he continued to study and practice with Dr. Emerson for a year and a half. Later he took another course of lectures at the same college, graduating May 13, 1873. In August of the same year he opened an office at Pemberville, and commenced the practice of his chosen profession.

On March 4, 1874, Dr. Simon was married to Mary A., daughter of Henry Mohr, of Eagleville. At that time he was in debt $600.00, but success came to him quickly, and at the end of a year he was out of debt and owned a house and lot. From that time to this he has had a large practice, and has acquired a splendid competence. In addition to professional duties, he has done an extensive business in fire insurance, and is medical examiner for two of the leading life-insurance companies of the United States—the New York Life and the Mutual Life of New York. He is the owner of 180 acres of fine land in the oil regions, which alone represent a small fortune. His home is a beautiful one, and he also owns other property.

Formerly Dr. Simon was identified with the M. E. Church, but there being no Church of that denomination in Pemberville at the time he settled there, he became interested in the Presbyterian faith, assisted in the organization of the Church here, and was for eight years its only elder. He has served in that office up to the present time, and has always been one of the most active workers, not only in the Church, but also in the Sunday-school, of which he was formerly superintendent. For six years he has been a member of the board of education, during which time the new school building was erected. During his service of four years as a member of the city council, the new city hall was built. In fact, he has been one of the most influential residents of the place, and has been prominent in social, professional and business circles. He is a great lover of fine horses, and is proud of having a team that will not "take dust" from any other team in Wood county.

Mary W. Simon

R. J. Simon M. D.

Dr. and Mrs. Simon have had four children, two of whom died in infancy, and one, Ina, when three months old. The only one living is Nina O., a bright and attractive child, now, fall of 1896, about four years old. In politics, the Doctor is a strong Republican, which is also the political faith of ninety-five per cent. of the entire Simon family, now numbering seven or eight hundred members.

CHARLES MERCER, a wealthy retired agriculturist of Bowling Green, was born in Columbiana county, Ohio, April 22, 1826, but has been for over sixty years a resident of Wood county, where his parents were among the pioneers.

His father, William Mercer, was born in Lancaster county, Penn., May 13, 1775. On the 8th of November, 1798, he married Miss Charity Pettit, a native of Lancaster county, born June 17, 1781. Her parents, Daniel and Martha Pettit, both lived to a good old age, the former dying in 1831 at the age of eighty-seven, the latter in 1827, aged seventy-six. For many years after their marriage they lived on a farm in Columbiana county, Ohio, but September 20, 1834, they settled in Wood county upon a tract of wild land purchased from the government, which has since been developed into a fine farm. They were prominent members of the Christian Church, to which all their descendants adhere. The father died March 2, 1839, the mother February 2, 1855.

Our subject was the youngest of thirteen children, of whom three are still living. The names with dates of birth and death are as follows: Martha, September 20, 1799, 1830 (married Andrew Pettit); Mary Ann, May 4, 1801, 1875 (married Enos Monehan); George, April 27, 1803, September 1, 1890; William, August 13, 1805, 1849; John, September 9, 1807, March 4, 1890; Daniel, October 10, 1809, August, 1885; Beulah, November 27, 1811, April, 1887 (married William Pike); Caleb, born March 24, 1814, lives in Bowling Green; Charity, April 3, 1816, 1875 (married Samuel Taylor); Lucretia, May 12, 1818, December 17, 1847 (married Henry Groves); Abraham, July 8, 1820, lives at Rudolph, Ohio; Ellis Ann, born April 24, 1822, died at the age of two years; Charles, the youngest, is our subject. Beulah left a great many descendants in the vicinity of Des Moines, Iowa, and Charity left a large family in Lawrence county, Penn., and to the north of Enon Valley.

Our subject was but eight years old when he came to this county, and his education was obtained in the public school at Portage. He remained at the old homestead until 1888, when he retired from active work and came to Bowling Green to live. He was married in 1855 to Miss Jane Mominee, who was born in Lucas county, February 28, 1840, the daughter of Anthony and Angeline (De Mars) Mominee. Of the six children of Charles Mercer and wife, three are living. (1) Lenora, born August 3, 1856, died January 6, 1865. (2) Hiram, born December 31, 1857, died January 23, 1867. (3) Abram F., born August 1, 1855, lives at the old homestead. He was married February 26, 1879, to Miss Frances C. Frisbie, who was born in Wood county, November 10, 1859. They have had four children—Clayton, Elmer, Blanche and Leonard; of whom, the eldest died aged ten years. (4) Hamilton, born October 22, 1860, died January 7, 1861. (5) J. D., born March 27, 1863, lives upon a part of the old farm. He votes the Prohibition ticket, while his father and brother are ardent Republicans. He was married April 6, 1884, to Miss Rebecca Aller, a native of Geauga county, born May 5, 1863, and has three children—Lorenzo, Ina, and Hazel. (6) Alnetta, born May 6, 1870, was married January 2, 1891, to H. J. Rudolph, and lives in Rudolph, Ohio.

Mr. Mercer united with the Christian Church at the age of eighteen, and has been an active worker in its interests throughout his manhood.

Mrs. Mercer's grandfather, Louis Mominee, was born in 1740, in Quebec, Canada. In 1859, immediately after Montcalm's defeat, he came thence to what was at that time the Territory of Michigan, settling in Monroe county, near Monroe. In 1761 he married Leahr Preedom, and twenty-two children were born to them, of whom Anthony Mominee, Mrs. Mercer's father, was the twentieth. He was born January 15, 1785, in Monroe county, Mich., and died July 5, 1854. He served throughout the war of 1812, and during that struggle was taken prisoner by the Indians.

On February 17, 1817, he married Margaret Duso, and by her had two children. On June 4, 1821, he wedded Angeline De Mars, who was born October 11, 1800, and ten children blessed their union, seven of whom are yet living. The only son, Peter, enlisted in 1864, in Company A, 130th O. V. I., and served sixty days in the summer of that year. He is now a resident of East Toledo, Ohio. Of the six daughters, Angeline Ducat, Margaret and Matilda McCulloch, reside in East Toledo; Mary Edom, in Barry, Ill.; Elizabeth Ducat, and Jane, the wife of our subject, live in Bowling Green.

ANDREW J. RICKARD (deceased) was one of the most prominent and influential business men of Milton, and at the time of his decease was serving his second term as mayor of that city. Through his various commercial interests he proved an important factor in the upbuilding of the town, and no one is more missed in the community. He was born in Chautauqua county, N. Y., March 20, 1844. His father, Andrew Jackson Rickard, when a young man learned the carpenter's trade, which he followed in connection with farming during the greater part of his life. He married Hannah Rockwell, of Chautauqua county, where they resided until 1852, then they removed to Erie county, Ohio, the father renting a farm in Milan township. In 1862 he came by wagon with his family to Wood county, and settled on a farm near Bowling Green. In 1864, in connection with our subject, he purchased fifty acres of land in Plain township, on which stood an old log cabin which he made his home for a number of years. In 1880 he lost his wife by death, after which event he married Maria Porter, widow of Rance Porter. He is now living in a home in Milton, built for him by our subject.

Andrew J. Rickard, whose name introduces this sketch, was one of a large family, the others being Ellen, deceased wife of Henry Gross; Zinie, of Erie county, Ohio; George W., of Sandusky county, who was a member of Company D, 34th O. V. I., during the Civil war, and was captured at Harper's Ferry; Orange J., now of Henry county, Ohio; Elizabeth, wife of William Sheets, of Milton, who was a soldier of the 72nd O. V. I.; Isaac, who is living near Leipsic, Ohio; Philip, of Milton; John, of Weston; Liddy, who died at the age of seven years; and Nathan, who died in Milton Center at the age of thirty. Our subject attended school in his native county; but had to pay a tuition fee, and the teachers boarded round among the scholars. He was a lad of eight when the family went to Erie county, Ohio, where he continued his education and was making preparations to pursue a college course when the Civil war broke out. In July, 1861, at the age of seventeen, he became a private, in Erie county, of Company D, 34th Ohio Regiment of Zouaves, under Capt. Furney. At Cincinnati the troops embarked on a vessel for West Virginia. At the battle of Princeton, under Gen. Cox, our subject was severely wounded in the leg by a revolver shot. He fell into the enemy's hands, and was sent to a Rebel hospital, where he lay for ten months, when he was paroled and joined his regiment as soon as able. His next battle was at Fayetteville, wherein he received a severe gunshot wound. He was taken prisoner at Rocky Gap, and sent to Andersonville, where he remained until September, when he was transferred to Savannah, Ga., and on the 12th of October sent to the stockades at Milan, Ga. There he was exchanged, and November 19, 1864, boarded a boat on the Savannah river. At Charleston, in the fall of 1863, he had re-enlisted as a veteran, and was finally mustered out at Wheeling Island, July 29, 1865.

Mr. Rickard then returned to Weston, and began work in a sawmill for Clark, McDonald, Richardson & Stone. In that place he purchased a home, for he had been married in the meantime. While home on a parole, after his release from Andersonville, he was wedded in Monroeville, Huron Co., January 17, 1864, to Emma Cole, who was born in Huron county, Ohio, August 31, 1843, and on the 9th of August, 1866, Alice, their only child, was born. She is now the wife of David Willier, a resident of Milton township, and has two children. Mr. Rickard traded his property in Weston for a sawmill in Milton, and began business in this place. His new property was afterward destroyed by fire; but with characteristic energy he rebuilt, and later bought out his partner, Mr. Whitaker, continuing alone for a number of years. For a time he conducted two sawmills, and was also the owner of a farm of 120 acres, but this he sold at the time the mill burned in order to acquire the capital with which to rebuild, after a second fire, in which he lost between $6,000 and $7,000 worth of property. In May, 1885, he purchased a drug store, and up to his death conducted a large and profitable business in that line. In addition he operated a planing-mill and sawmill, and was recognized as one of the most progressive and enterprising business men of Wood county, his success being all due to his own efforts. He died at his home in Milton Center, January 16, 1896, of blood poisoning, and the funeral was largely attended by members of the several societies to which he belonged. He was affiliated with Neibling Post, G. A. R., of Weston, also the I. O. O. F. and Encampment, in both of which he filled all the offices, and for nine years was a faithful member of the Presbyterian Church of Milton Center. In political affairs he took an active interest as a stalwart advocate of Republican principles, and for a number of years served as township trustee, while, as already related, he was serving his second term as mayor of this city at the time of his decease. Fidelity to duty was one of the predominating traits of his character, and in all the relations of life he was found true and faithful to the trusts reposed in him, thereby winning the confidence and high regard of all. Generous and kind-hearted, he was ever ready to lend a listening ear, and stretch out a helping hand, to the unfortunate and the needy.

N. ALLEN ZIMMERMAN is a native of Pennsylvania, having been born in West Penn township, Schuylkill county, January 13, 1857, a son of Randolph and Hannah (Dunart) Zimmerman, also natives of that county, where they were married in February, 1856. In April, 1857, they removed to Medina county, Ohio, and the father purchased a farm in Homer township, but he afterward left that property and bought ninety-six acres, on which he lived until coming to Wood county nine years later. He here purchased 160 acres of wild land, but afterward sold eighty acres. His first home, a log cabin, was destroyed by fire September 9, 1872, and they lost all their household effects save one bed and a sewing machine. The father died on the old homestead, August 13, 1878, and the mother is now living in Michigan with her son, Gideon P., a farmer. Two children of the family are deceased: Lambert Alfred, who died at the age of two years; and Leanna Elnora, deceased, at the age of twenty-six years. The Zimmerman family is of German origin, and the grandfather of our subject, Samuel Zimmerman, was the first of them to cross the Atlantic to the United States. His parents died when he was very young, and when twelve years of age he came with the family by whom he was reared.

Our subject was three months old when his parents removed to Medina county, and he there began his education, afterward continuing his studies in Wood county, acquiring good school privileges. During the summer months he aided his father in the labors of the home farm, and continued under the parental roof until his marriage, which occurred in Milton township, January 1, 1884, the lady of his choice being Miss Elizabeth J. Revenaugh, who was born in Vinton county, Ohio, November 29, 1861, a daughter of John and Catherine Revenaugh. They first located on the old homestead, but in October, 1884, removed to their present home, he trading his interest in the family farm for this property. The greater part of his eighty acres was wild and unimproved; but with characteristic energy he began its development, and soon placed it under the plow. Now well-tilled fields surround a comfortable residence and substantial barn, and the neat and thrifty appearance of the place indicates the careful supervision of the owner. To Mr. and Mrs. Zimmerman were born three children, one son and two daughters, the son being the eldest; he was born July 16, 1891, and died on the 20th of the same month. The elder daughter, born August 26, 1893, died on the 29th of that month. The younger daughter, Ruth Ethel, born February 26, 1896, yet survives. They also have a child known as R. O. Zimmerman, born October 31, 1886, whom they have raised from infancy. In his political views Mr. Zimmerman is a Democrat. His wife belongs to the Presbyterian Church, and both are highly esteemed people who have the warm regard of a large circle of friends and acquaintances.

JOHN KIMBERLIN, a well-known pioneer of Grand Rapids township, was born February 16, 1820, in Huntingdon county, Pennsylvania.

His immediate ancestors have been distinguished for their valor and patriotism. His grandfather, George Kimberlin, was a soldier in the Revolutionary war under Gen. Washington; his father, Henry Kimberlin, served in the war of 1812 under Harrison, making a fine record as a soldier. Henry Kimberlin was a native of Pennsylvania, born December 23, 1789, and was married there to Miss Sarah Brewau, who was born August 20, 1795, and by whom he had ten children, all of whom lived to adult age, viz.: Mary A., born October 2, 1816, married George Gilmore, May 6, 1841, and died July 13, 1875; Delilah, born April 21, 1818, married John Dull, December 7, 1843, and died May 4, 1888; John, our subject; Frances, born January 8, 1822, married George Older, August 25, 1860; George, born January 11, 1824, married Adaliza Olney, June 3, 1856, now a prominent citizen of Bowling Green; Jacob, born February 27, 1826, married Sobinah Guyer, November 10, 1853, and is a leading farmer of Grand Rapids township;

Amelia, born August 8, 1828; Eliza, born September 25, 1830; Catherine, born November 22, 1833, married John W. Brown, March 19, 1862, and they reside in Grand Rapids township; and Martha J., born January 2, 1836, and died October 2, 1846.

The family moved to Wayne county, Ohio, and four years later came to Wood county. Here the father bought a tract of wild land at the mouth of Beaver creek, which he cleared and cultivated with the help of his children. He died October 25, 1867, the mother June 20, 1878.

John Kimberlin obtained his early education in an old log school house in the vicinity, and assisted in farm labor until he attained his majority. After leaving the homestead he worked three years upon a neighboring farm, and then began business as a contractor and builder, in which he was engaged thirty years, building school houses, churches, sawmills, and many private dwellings, including some of the finest in the township. In May, 1864, he enlisted in the one-hundred-days' service in Company I, 144th O. V. I., Col. Hunt and Capt. McKee commanding, and took part in several of the engagements which make that year notable, among them the battle at Monocacy. His regiment formed part of the force which frustrated Early's designs upon Washington. On receiving his discharge, in the fall of 1864, he returned home and continued to follow his trade until 1878, when he and his two sisters bought the old homestead, consisting of 210 acres of land near Grand Rapids, and began to develop it into one of the finest farms in the township. He has built a handsome brick dwelling house with fine barns and sheds, and planted an extensive orchard. His attention is chiefly given to stock-raising, and he has one of the finest herds of Jersey cattle in the county, some of the animals being registered. His present success is the result of industry and frugality, and furnishes an encouraging lesson.

Mr. Kimberlin has never married, but lives happily with his two sisters, each of whom owns a third of the farm. He is a Republican in politics, and has always taken an interest in local affairs, serving at one time as township supervisor.

ANDREW J. MUNN, president of the Exchange Banking Company of Weston, and a leading oil producer of this region, was born in Center township, Wood county, Ohio, January 4, 1842.

William Munn, father of our subject, was a native of County Down, Ireland, born in 1800, and when a young man came to Wood county, where with the exception of a few years passed in Macoupin county, Ill., he passed the remainder of his life. He had two brothers, who also came to this country, and one of whom went west, the other settling in New York and acquiring a fortune. William Munn kept an inn on the old Munn farm in Center township until his death in 1852, and his house was a favorite resort for the pioneers, who revelled in old songs and stories, and for the local politicians among whom he was a leader. He married Miss Nancy Boosinger, a native of Portage county, Ohio, and had two daughters, who died early in youth, and seven sons, as follows: Robert, deceased; George F., living in Portage; David, murdered in Texas on a sheep ranch; James, who died in Bowling Green; Andrew Jackson, our subject; Matthew, who lives at the old homestead, and William a resident of Bowling Green.

A. J. Munn received his early education in the public schools of this county. On June 20, 1862, he entered the 100th O. V. I. for three years or during the war, and was assigned to the 23rd Army Corps, Central Division. Immediately after the battle at Knoxville he was taken prisoner and sent to Lynchburg, Va., being retained there for a few days, then in Libby prison for three weeks, and in Belle Isle for six months. He and his companions escaped through a tunnel, but was captured while cutting loose a canoe. Mr. Munn was beaten over the head with a revolver, all were compelled to crawl back through the tunnel, and as each man's head emerged it was struck with a spade. While suffering and death reigned supreme in the prison, the captives were aggravated by a gang of thieves among their own numbers, who stole all articles of value which they could secure, and traded them to the Rebels. This gang Mr. Munn assisted in breaking up. Shortly after this was done, he and others were removed to the Pemberton Building, and later to Andersonville, where they arrived March 15, 1864, an attempt to escape from a box car while en route failing, partly because of the breaking of a saw. Mr. Munn and John Cain of the Pennsylvania Cavalry, Kilpatrick's Division, escaped soon afterward and traveled all night, but at daybreak, while passing a gristmill, they were seen and pursued by the entire neighborhood assisted by bloodhounds. Fortunately the latter followed the winding trail, and did not come up to them until they were in custody of men who fed them and sent them back to the prison in a buggy. The next escape was accomplished while assigned to carrying out the dead bodies from the prison. Twenty-four who made the attempt were re-captured, and, after a night around a camp-fire, were taken before the notorious Capt. Wirtz. He ordered all valuables to be taken from them; but as luck would have it the man who did the searching had an honest and sympathetic heart, and in Mr. Munn's case he reported that he found only two dollars, and, retaining the rest, he afterward expended it for food and other supplies for him. The prisoners were then formed in line and questioned as to their mode of escape, which they refused to reveal. They were threatened with 150 lashes each if they did not reconsider this decision, but while they were debating the matter a dispatch arrived telling how they had escaped. They were then ordered to march to a pile of thirty-two-pound iron balls, each man picking up one and carrying it to the blacksmith's shop, where it was attached to his ankle by a chain. This done, they were started on a run for the prison, the chains cutting deeper into their flesh at every step; but after they were out of Capt. Wirtz's sight they were permitted to take sticks, and, by tying strings to end of stick and in link next ball, carried the balls before them as they walked. They were compelled to hobble up to quarters every morning for inspection, but in a few days Mr. Munn managed to make an open link and detached his weight, replacing it when called to quarters. He finally managed to file the band off, and was ready for another escape. Ten dollars secured him a place on the detail which brought in wood, and, while out, his plan was favored by a terrific rain storm which made the guards return in haste to shelter.

Andrew J. Mucci

Our subject had kept well in the rear, and giving his wood to his companions he ran to an outside building where a friend, Turner Winn, was detailed as cook. On his advice Mr. Munn secreted himself in a marsh near by to wait for a supply of food, but, although he remained immersed in the water for several hours, he missed his friend and was obliged to start hungry on his journey through the inky darkness and pouring rain. He walked all that night, only to find himself at dawn close to the prison walls, having traveled in a circle. His dismay can hardly be imagined, but he had no time to brood over his mistake, and starting south he met, four miles out, a negro who secreted him and brought him food. That evening our hero started across the fields in a northwesterly direction in a cold, drizzling rain, which chilled him to the heart. Almost despairing, he made several attempts to find shelter and rest in lonely houses, but found each one occupied by sleepers whom he feared to arouse. Just as he was about to throw himself upon the ground and abandon all hope, he heard hogs squealing, and finding their pen he kicked them out of their warm nest and dropped down into it himself, losing consciousness the moment he fell. On awakening, he found the sunshine beaming upon him, and a white-haired negro calling the hogs to feed. When Mr. Munn rose up poor old "Father Buckhorn" stood speechless with astonishment until he learned that the stranger was a "Yankee soldier." "Lord bress you," he said, "I thought it was a new Christ come to earth." He was the overseer of the plantation, and taking Mr. Munn out into an oat field he made him a bed of straw, and soon the colored women supplied him with an abundance of food. The news that "Father Buckhorn" had found a "Yankee" in the hog bed spread far and wide among the negroes, and made that poor old slave the hero of the hour. From all directions the darkies crowded in to look upon the visitor, and they alternately laughed and cried as they made him repeat again and again the story of his adventures and the progress of the war. Their joy at seeing one of their long-hoped-for deliverers was pathetic, and such expressions as "God bress de Yankee generation; deys done come at last," were frequent. A Confederate uniform was found for him, and at night a haversack full of food was provided; but he was too weak to carry it, and a darkey offered to carry it, as he was going twenty miles north to see his wife. Hope and strength returning, Mr. Munn walked on through several nights without special incident, resting during the day, but when his food was gone he was again in perplexity. Shouts from a darkey meeting led him safely to a place where a friendly colored man cared for him, hiding him in a barn and giving him a new supply of food. Warned against going north, where the Rebel forces were concentrated, he took a new direction, and met varying fortunes, swimming rivers, walking miles in the bed of a small stream in order to leave no trace for the hounds to follow, and at times subsisting on huckleberries when no colored ally could be found. At one point the negroes warned him against following the road farther, as two neighbors kept bloodhounds who would know that he was a Yankee in spite of all precautions. He tried it, however, on a dark night, mounted on a mule, but the hounds at the first house made such an outcry that he dared not go on. He had many other narrow escapes, his gray suit serving him well on several occasions. Once, when desperate for food, he entered a house and told the lady who met him that he was a Confederate soldier; but after some conversation learned that she was a Unionist, and then confessed his own identity. Her husband had gone away rather than fight against the North, and, as both were suspected, she was afraid to do much to help him. In a few hours a Rebel neighbor came in, but so good account did Mr. Munn give of himself that he departed satisfied, and the lady expressed amazement that even a Yankee should be able to invent such a story while he was telling it. When night came she sent him to a Union man near by, who was at first chary of his confidence; but he and his son finally accepted him as "genuine," and kept him up until a late hour telling them the news of the war, accurate intelligence seldom reaching the rural communities. He slept that night in a corn crib, as they were in fear of the Rebels, and the next morning while eating his "corn pone" he was told that the Unionists had taken Rome, Ga., sixty miles away, and had a post at Cross Plains, only fifteen miles from his stopping place. On reaching Cross Plains he found this incorrect. He was well treated there, however, by the negroes, dined in the yard of a stanch Rebel, and passed the pickets safely. He tried to keep to the mountains in order to avoid the relays and stations on the road to Rome; but having been told by a negro how to pass them safely, he tried to follow the road, but was pursued by a detachment from the next post. After swimming a creek and running a long distance, he fell down exhausted in an oat field, where he lay all night, listening to sounds of battle, by which he decided that the Rebels were retreating. The next morning, Monday, July 4, 1864, he made his way to the Union outposts. But his troubles were not yet over. The most vexatious incident of all his tedious wanderings came through his very accurate "make up" as a Confederate. He was arrested and placed in the guard house with other prisoners, and with difficulty obtained an interview with the colonel in command, who finally became convinced of his loyalty, and offered him a position on his staff. This was declined as Mr. Munn wished to rejoin his company, which he succeeded in doing a few weeks later, at Atlanta. With the regiment he remained until mustered out in September, 1865.

On returning home he engaged in the grocery business at Ottawa, later moving to a farm near Portage and establishing a grocery in that village, where he also served four years as postmaster. In June, 1883, he went to Cleveland and entered the commission business; but in 1884 came to Weston and opened a store for general merchandise, which he conducted eight years, and of which he made a success. Following the arts of peace as energetically as he did those of war, he has been a leading factor in many enterprises. He was the chief organizer of the Exchange Banking Company of Weston, and has been its president from the start. With others, he engaged in oil producing, and now has an interest in twenty productive wells, and others in process of development, and holds a number of promising leases besides. When Mr. Munn was seventeen years old he received $500 from his mother as his share of the paternal estate, and on this capital founded the prosperity he now enjoys. He bought eighty acres of wild land in Portage township, and has ever since dealt largely in real estate in Wood and Henry counties.

In 1866 Mr. Munn married Miss Louise J. Turner, of Portage, who was born in 1844. They have three children: Arthur, assistant cashier of the Exchange Banking Co.; Maude L., who married J. V. Baldwin, of Weston, and has one son, Andrew Edward; and Jessie M., the wife of Ambrose C. Vedder, of St. Augustine, Fla. (they have one son, Munn C. A. Vedder). Mr. Munn erected his pleasant home in 1892, one of the finest in the county. He is quite a traveler, and recently spent six months at St. Augustine, Fla., where he has a cottage. Socially he is a member of the F. & A. M. and the G. A. R. He was brought up a Democrat, but during the Civil war changed his political opinions, and is now a member of the Republican party.

MARION V. COX, a farmer of Milton township, was born in Crawford county, Ohio, near Bucyrus, April 2, 1847. His parents, George and Nancy J. (Young) Cox, were also natives of the Buckeye State, the former born in Harrison county, in 1816, the latter in Guernsey county, in 1826. They were married in Richland county, later removed to Crawford county, and about 1856 became residents of Morrow county. In April, 1861, the father enlisted in Company I, 65th O. V. I., and served until the close of the war. He afterward removed to Hancock county, and in 1871 came to Wood county, where he is now living a retired life in Weston; his wife died there in May, 1893. Their children were Marion V.; Martha, wife of Samuel Wikel, of Wingston; George, a teamster of North Baltimore; Ellen, wife of Jack Wall, of Wingston; Charles, a farmer of Oklahoma; Viona, wife of Albert Hessong, of Milton township, and Virginia, who died at the age of two years.

Our subject acquired a district-school education, and was reared as a farmer boy. In 1862, when only fifteen years of age, he joined the Union army in Morrow county, and became a member of Company I, 85th O. V. I. At the end of six weeks he was transferred to the 87th Ohio Regiment, and was taken prisoner at Harper's Ferry, but not long after was paroled. Being now a paroled prisoner, he enlisted in Company C, 54th Battalion, Ohio State Guards, for service in the State. In 1863, although he was fully aware of the great risk he ran, as a paroled prisoner, to re-enlist for active service, yet he joined Company E, 21st O. V. V. I., in which regiment he participated in the battle of Tunnel Hill, and, on July 9, 1864, was wounded by a minie ball in the right arm, which kept him from duty for two months. He then joined his regiment in front of Atlanta, went with Sherman on the celebrated march to the sea, and was in the Carolina campaign. While at Columbus, Ohio, July 21, 1865, he was honorably discharged. Mr. Cox says he could relate many a heart-rending scene he was an eyewitness to during his war experiences. For a man of his age during the war, he saw a great deal of hard service.

Soon after his return home, Mr. Cox went to the lumber woods of northern Michigan, where he was engaged in making shingles for three years. He then returned to Findlay, Ohio, in 1869, and was there married to Miss Almira Feller, who was born near Findlay, May 26, 1850. They rented the old Foulk farm, in Hancock county, but after a year rented a farm in Wood county. On the latter place they lived for a year, and Mr. Cox then purchased his present place of eighty acres. This, however, he sold after a year, and for six years rented and operated the Samuel Case farm, in Liberty township. He then again purchased the farm in Milton township, and has made excellent improvements upon it, including the erection of an elegant and spacious dwelling. Industry and enterprise are numbered among his chief characteristics, and have been important factors in his success. Mr. and Mrs. Cox have a family of seven children: Rosie, wife of Ira Lance; Ina; Eldon; Clay and Clyde, twins; Blaine and Olive; they also lost one child that died in infancy. The parents occupy an enviable position in social circles, and have many warm friends. Politically, Mr. Cox affiliates with the Republican party; in religious faith he is an adherent of the United Brethren Church, and, socially, he is a member of the Grand Army of the Republic. His duties of citizenship are discharged with the same loyalty as when a soldier boy he followed the stars and stripes on Southern battle fields.

WILLIAM FURRY. Among the old pioneers and representative agriculturists of Lake township, there is probably no more prominent figure than Mr. Furry, who makes his home in Section 27. He is a native of Stark county, born in 1833, and is a son of Jacob Henry and Fannie (Butler) Furry, the latter of whom died August 20, 1885. The father's birth occurred in Pennsylvania, where he was reared and married, and in 1833 he took his family to Stark county, Ohio, but the same year came to Wood county, locating at Stony Ridge. He was employed for a time on the Maumee pike, and later entered land in Lake township, which he made his home until his death in 1866. He was one of the first members of the Methodist Episcopal Church of Stony Ridge, and helped to build the first church erected at that place. He and his wife were faithful members of that Church until God called them to a better land.

Our subject is the third in order of birth in a family of nine children—five sons and four daughters—the others being as follows: Jacob enlisted in October, 1861, at Stony Ridge, in the 72nd O. V. I., and was discharged at Columbus, Ohio, August 21, 1862; he died at Pemberville, Wood county, in August, 1895. George resides at Stony Ridge. Mrs. James Whitmore lives at Haskins, this county. Mrs. Margaret Jennison died at East Toledo in 1890. Mrs. Catherine McCutcheon makes her home at Stony Ridge. John enlisted at Stony Ridge October 19, 1861, in Company E, 72nd O. V. I., for three years, and was mustered in at Columbus, Ohio; he served in the quartermaster's department until honorably discharged at Louisville, Ky., in 1865; his death occurred at Woodville, Ohio, in 1887. Mary is the wife of Martin Shook, of Stony Ridge. Charles makes his home at Gibsonburg, Sandusky Co., Ohio.

The childhood and youth of our subject were passed at Stony Ridge and in Lake township, where he was educated, and he remained under the parental roof until the outbreak of the Civil war, when, in 1861, he enlisted at Stony Ridge, in Company E, 72nd O. V. I., for three years. He was mustered into the United States service at Columbus, and was assigned to the Western army. He participated in the battle of Shiloh and the siege of Vicksburg, where he received a gunshot wound, and at the battle near Ripley, Miss., he was taken prisoner. After three months and a half confinement in Andersonville prison, he was sent to Florence, and later to Lawton, thus experiencing nine months of Rebel prison life. At Salisbury, N. C., he was honorably discharged in 1865, and returned to his home in Lake township, Wood county, where it took him some months to recuperate. He has since made his home upon his present farm.

In 1865, in that township, he wedded Miss Hannah Akersberger, a native of Wood county, and a daughter of George Akersberger, an early pioneer of the township, who died in 1895, but upon the old home farm his widow still resides. Mrs. Furry died in 1868, leaving one child—Edgar George. For his second wife our subject wedded, in 1869, Miss Hattie Wicks, a native of Sandusky county. Her parents, John and Sarah (Hartzel) Wicks, were born in Union county, Penn., thence removed to Wayne county, Ohio, and later to Sandusky county, where they were numbered among the earliest pioneers, and in 1868 became residents of Lake township, Wood county, locating upon a farm. In that township the father died in 1887, and the mother in 1891. Mr. and Mrs. Furry have had eight children: Jonas William, who is married and lives in Lake township; John James; Henry B.; Floyd A.; Palmer E.; Irvin E.; Ray R.; and Harry, who died in 1883, at the age of eighteen months.

For sixty-three years Mr. Furry has been a resident of Wood county, during which time he has witnessed its wonderful development, and has been of material assistance in its advancement. On his fine farm of sixty-five acres he is now engaged in general farming, and the place well indicates his careful supervision, enterprise and industry. He takes considerable interest in political affairs, always supporting the Republican party. He and his wife are members of the Methodist Episcopal Church, of Stony Ridge, and are faithful workers in same.

JOHN HARTMAN, who is one of the substantial agriculturists and prosperous men of Wood county, was born in Perrysburg, that county, December 18, 1834, the eldest of the eight children of Jacob and Margaret (Lichtenberger) Hartman.

The parents of our subject were both natives of Germany, the father born May 24, 1808, in Wurtemberg, and the mother on March 12, 1812, near Strasburg. In 1834 they were married in Stark county, Ohio, and came to Wood county the same year, first locating in Perrysburg, afterward, in 1836, removing to Bowling Green, in which vicinity he carried on farming. The father died April 8, 1890; the mother is still living. Their children are as follows: John; Frederick, a farmer in Plain township; Josephine, wife of F. Nobles, a farmer in Center township; David, a farmer in Plain township; George, also a farmer in Plain township; Elizabeth, who resides with her mother in Bowling Green; Electa, also living at home; and Leonard, living on the old homestead in Center township, Wood county. All of the sons are wealthy farmers, and have spent their lives in the vicinity of Bowling Green.

John Hartman was reared to manhood in Center township, and obtained the principle part of his education in the district schools, also attending two years at the Perrysburg High School. When sixteen years old he entered the employ of Lock & Peck, of Bowling Green, as clerk. In the fall of 1854, he studied one term in the college at Berea, and he taught school successfully for six terms. After his marriage, he settled on a farm in Plain township, where he has lived some thirty-eight years. He first bought eighty acres of wild land, and now owns 150 acres, all of which he has brought to a high state of cultivation, and by assiduous labor and careful attention to the details of his work he has become a wealthy man. His example is one that ought to encourage any young man to go and do likewise. When only eighteen years old he was thrown upon his own resources, and he has been the architect of his own fortune. Many of the settlers at that early day depended upon hunting, trapping and fishing for their livelihood, and as the advance of civilization gradually destroyed these means of subsistence, they eventually drifted out to the frontiers, or took up some other desultory method of making a living. Our subject, on the contrary, turned his attention to tilling the soil, and, as the country grew up around him, found a reward for his labors in the products of his fields, and the enjoyments of social life. To-day he ranks among the wealthy and honored citizens of the county who have aided in her growth and progress, and who take pride in the great development of her wonderful resources. He has kept a diary for twenty-three years, on one page recording the weather and directions of the wind, and on the other his business transactions and events of the day.

Mr. Hartman was married December 23, 1858, to Miss Estella Sholes, who was born in Huron county, Ohio, January 28, 1841. Her father, Alva Sholes, was of English descent, born December 11, 1815, in Genesee county, N. Y., son of John and Phœbe (Pond) Sholes, who were natives of eastern New York. In 1841 they migrated westward to Illinois, settling in Kane county, where they passed the remainder of their lives, engaged in farming. They had seven children: Solomon, Steven, Roxanna, Alva, Sylvia, David and Hiram. Alva Sholes came to Huron county, Ohio, where he was married, December 6, 1839, to Eliza Jane Moore. They became the parents of five children, viz.: Estella (Mrs. Hartman); Leuthera (Mrs. James Mann), of Plain township; Dalinda (Mrs. Frederick Hartman), who died in 1873; Alice J. (Mrs. Dr. Manville), of Bowling Green; and Frank, on the old homestead. Alva Sholes came to Wood county in 1848, settling on a farm in Plain township, where he died in January, 1892. Politically he was a Republican. Mrs. Hartman's great-grandfather, John Moore, came from Germany to the United States with Lafayette, under whom he served as a soldier in the Revolutionary war.

Estella Hartman

John Hartman

Four children have blessed the union of Mr. and Mrs. Hartman, namely: (1) Josephine is the wife of J. W. Underwood, assistant cashier of the First National Bank of Bowling Green; they have two children—Estella and Esther. (2) Ernest is a graduate of the Cincinnati College of Pharmacy, and is a druggist at Weston, Ohio. (3) Eugene, born April 17, 1869, was educated at Fayette and Wauseon Normal Schools, and was a teacher in the public schools one term; he is now farming at home. (4) Winifred, born March 14, 1877, lives at home with her parents. Mr. Hartman is a Republican in political belief; has served as township trustee and as school director of his district, but he is no office seeker, preferring to devote his attention to his private interests.

JOHN LAYMAN, a pioneer agriculturist and lumberman of Webster township, was born November 1, 1839, in Berne, Switzerland. His parents, John and Martha (Jacobs) Layman, were both natives of that place, and were married there. In 1849 they came to Wood county, and purchased eighty acres of unimproved land in Webster township. Our subject's father was a man of great energy and practical ability, a Democrat in politics, and a consistent member of the Lutheran Church. He died in August, 1872, and his wife survived him until August 13, 1893. Their children were as follows: Barbara; Peter, a farmer in Webster township; Chris; William; John, our subject; and Anne.

Mr. Layman was ten years old when he came to America, and he remembers well the scenes and experiences of pioneer times, when Indians, wolves and mosquitoes kept the settlers in constant dread and discomfort. The first home of the family was a little log cabin, and they nearly starved at times. Their wheat had to be carried thirty miles to mill. When he reached the age of twenty-two, Mr. Layman enlisted in Company I, 111th O. V. I. (Capts. Yeager and Norris commanding). He took part in thirty-two hard-fought engagements, the principal ones being Stone River, Allatoona, Resaca, Lost Mountain, siege of Knoxville, Chattanooga, Cedar Rapids, Utoy Creek, Fort Anderson, Raleigh, and Atlanta. He was discharged at Salisbury, N. C., June 27, 1865. Returning home, he bought eighty acres of forest land near Luckey, and erected a sawmill, which he operated for twenty years. In 1873, he was married to Miss Mary Smith, also a native of Berne, Switzerland. They have four children: Frank, Fred, Mary and Edward. In politics, Mr. Layman is a Republican, and he belongs to Benedict Post, G. A. R., of Pemberville. He and his wife are prominent members of the Evangelical Church at Luckey.

JAMES S. SALSBERY, who is numbered among "the boys in blue" of the Civil war, and now follows farming in Milton township, was born in Liberty township, Wood county, November 28, 1838. Jonathan Salsberry, his father, a miller by trade, was born in Coshocton county, Ohio, in May, 1786. He learned his trade in Pennsylvania, and was there married to Catherine Plott, a native of the Keystone State. They afterward removed to Ohio, locating on a tract of wild land in Liberty township, Wood county, where they lived until 1864, when the father purchased eighty acres of land in Milton township, and continued its cultivation until his death in 1883. His wife passed away several years previous. Their children were: Sibylina, wife of W. H. Cotton, of Milton; Salinda Ann, wife of Jonathan L. Wheaton, of Nebraska; Salathiel Edwin, of San Antonio, Texas; Cinderella Phoebe, deceased wife of Langdon C. Hubbard; Stanilaus Rudolph, late farmer of Milton township (now deceased); James S., our subject; Sabina I., deceased wife of Edward Remington; Samaria, wife of Thomas Hill, of Milton township; Samaritan Mortimer, of Norwalk, Huron Co., Ohio; and Salva, who died in infancy.

On the old family homestead our subject was reared. While in Liberty township he acquired his education in the old-fashioned log school house, with its fireplace and other primitive furnishings. In July, 1862, he enlisted in the Union army, becoming a member of Company B, 111th O. V. I. Going to the front soon after, his command was engaged in chasing Buell in Kentucky, and on November 16, 1863, he was taken prisoner and sent to Atlanta, afterward to Savannah, and thence to Richmond, where he remained until released, January 1, 1864. He then joined his regiment at Big Shanty, Ga. He took part in the battle of Kenesaw Mountain, the Atlanta campaign, also the siege of the city, and was once wounded by a minie ball in the right knee. He was discharged at Salisbury, N. C., and while at Cleveland, Ohio, June 27, 1865, he was mustered out. At once returning home, he resumed farming.

On November 11, 1866, in Milton township, Mr. Salsberry was married to Susan D. Castle, who was born near Sandusky, Erie Co., Ohio, August 31, 1847, and is a daughter of Thomas Castle, a farmer, who was born in Greene county, N. Y., in 1818. When a young man Mr. Castle went to Wyoming county, Penn., where he wedded Elizabeth Philo, who was born in that county, March 26, 1821. A year later they came to Ohio, locating on a farm near Sandusky, and in 1855 they arrived in Wood county, making their home in Milton township, where Mr. Castle died July 26, 1892. His widow is still living in Custar. Their children were: Anna, deceased wife of Stanley O. Shaw; Malbon W., who entered the army, and died at Graysville, Ga.; Mrs. Salsberry; Isaac, deceased; Sarah J., deceased wife of Barnett Older; David H., who was drowned at the age of seventeen months; Caroline, deceased wife of David Bredbiner; John F., a farmer of Jackson township; Alice C., wife of James Russell, of Isabel county, Mich.; and Henrietta, who died in infancy.

Upon their marriage, Mr. Salsberry and his wife located in Milton township. A year later they removed to Ironton, Mo., but after six months went to St. Francis county, Mo., where Mr. Salsberry purchased 100 acres of land, on which he lived for a year and a half. He then returned to Wood county, and after a short time took up his residence in Custar, where he engaged in clerking for two years. He next rented land for a few years, after which, in 1883, he purchased fifty acres, twelve of which were cleared. In 1892 he erected his present commodious and comfortable home, and in 1891 he built a large and substantial barn, which was destroyed by fire, August 26, 1895. To him and his wife have been born three children: (1) Elmo Earle, born April 27, 1868, in Missouri; he was married, October 19, 1891, to Fannie E., daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Fellers, farming people of Henry township, and to them was born, October 18, 1892, a daughter, named Pearl; Elmo E. Salsberry is now teaching school in North Baltimore. (2) Elda B. (also a school teacher), born November 5, 1871, in Milton township; he was married, September 11, 1890, to Nora B., daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Winfield

Barber, farming people of Milton township, and to them have been born three children, their names and dates of birth being as follows: James W., February 25, 1892; Opal M., April 12, 1893; Malbon E., February 5, 1894. (3) Roland was born November 26, 1880, and is attending school in Custar. The parents are active members of the Disciples Church, and in politics Mr. Salsberry was a Democrat until the breaking out of the Civil war, when he became a staunch Republican.

A. J. HARMAN, a straightforward and industrious farmer, is a descendant of one of the old and respected families of Montgomery township, where he was born in Section 30, September 7, 1868, and is the youngest child of William and Mary (Kyser) Harman. He acquired his education in the district schools of the neighborhood—his first teacher being Erasmus Musser—and received a careful home training, remaining a member of the parental household until he had attained the age of eighteen years, when he entered the stave mill at Prairie Depot belonging to Smith, Hathaway & Co., where he was employed as fireman and at running the engine.

In that village, April 21, 1888, Mr. Harman married Miss Amanda Amos, the ceremony being performed by Steve Angus. The lady is also descended from a respected pioneer family of Wood county, who were early settlers of Portage township, where she was born October 18, 1868. However, she accompanied her parents, George and Sarah A. (Jackson) Amos, to Montgomery township when a small child, and was there reared. Three children grace the union of our subject and his wife: Mabel M., born October 31, 1889; Hazel L., born February 27, 1891; and Pearly J., born February 3, 1895, and these compose an interesting little group.

After his marriage, Mr. Harman rented four lots of his father in Prairie Depot, where he resided until the fall of 1889, when he located upon the home farm in Montgomery township, and there continued until his present comfortable home was erected in 1893, where they removed on October 5. He has twenty acres of rich and productive land, upon which he has placed many substantial improvements, and no happier or pleasanter home can be found anywhere. For nearly two years he was a pumper for the Hazelwood Oil Company, in which position he remained until January 31, 1896, when he took charge of the oil property for the Stitts, Pool & Harris Oil Co. He is a steady-going young man, destined to become a substantial farmer, and bears an excellent reputation throughout the community, where he has always made his home. In political sentiment he is a stalwart Democrat, ever casting his vote in support of the principles of that party.

A. B. MILLER. The subject of this sketch stands second to none among the prominent citizens of Jerry City. The place of his nativity is Upper Paxton township, Dauphin Co., Penn., where he was born March 30, 1816; he was christened Amos, but later for convenience took the initial B, and is now known as A. B. Miller.

His parents, Daniel and Magdalene (Kanaga) Miller, were of Swiss extraction, their ancestors having come from Switzerland many generations ago, locating in Lancaster county, Penn., during its pioneer days. Our subject was nineteen years of age when the family left the Keystone State, making the long journey, by way of Pittsburgh, to Scipio township, Seneca county, where the father had previously purchased 182 acres of land and erected a cabin. He and his wife came in a carriage, while our subject drove a one-horse wagon containing bedding and provisions, and his brother Simon drove a four-horse team hitched to a covered wagon. It was two years after the parents left their home in Pennsylvania before they located in Seneca county, as they had stopped at Mrs. Miller's father's farm in Stark county, Ohio, there making a temporary home while the father looked up a suitable location. His death occurred in Seneca county at the age of sixty-eight years and nine months, while his wife had reached the very advanced age of ninety-three years and three months, at the time of her death. She was a woman of the greatest vitality, always active up to the time of her death. In the family were five children, namely: Simon, who died in Seneca county when nearly eighty years of age; Elizabeth, who became the wife of George Shaffner, and died when past the age of sixty years; A. B., of this sketch; Fannie, who died in Pennsylvania at the age of thirteen; and John K., of Seneca county.

The early education of our subject was such as the subscription schools of Pennsylvania afforded at that early day, when manual labor was considered of more importance than literary studies. His boyhood and youth were passed on his father's farm, and one of the first important steps toward the establishment of a home of his own, was his marriage which took place in Bucyrus, Ohio, February 23, 1841, his bride being Miss Nancy Shaffner, who was born in Dauphin county, Penn., September 21, 1822. She was the next to the youngest in the family of nine children, three sons and six daughters, born to Martin and Sarah (Flischer) Shaffner. While a resident of Pennsylvania, her father followed tanning; but on locating in Crawford county, Ohio, in 1828, he took up farming, which he followed until his death at the age of eighty-four. The mother of Mrs. Miller died in 1824, after which Mr. Shaffner was three times married, and became the father of twenty-one children, one of whom died in infancy, but the others all lived to adult age, the youngest dying at the age of nineteen.

The union of our subject and his wife has been blessed by the advent of twelve children, namely: William H., who served for three years during the Civil war as a member of Company H, 101st O. V. I., and is now living in Portage township, Wood county; Isaiah S., a resident of the same township; John W., a merchant of West Millgrove, Ohio; Mary M., wife of John Johnston, Jr., of Portage township; Sarah E., wife of John Reese, of Bloom township; Martha J., now Mrs. Levi Buttrif, of Crawford county, Ohio; Amanda, who died at the age of six years; Annie M., who became the wife of John Todd, and died in Portage township; Amos A., who died in infancy; Nannie, who died at the age of eighteen years, was the wife of Cyrus Johnston; Ida A., widow of Henry Brown, of Jerry City, Ohio; and a son who died in infancy. The family is one of prominence, and its members have become useful and respected citizens.

Mr. and Mrs. Miller began housekeeping on an eighty-acre farm in Seneca county, partially cleared, where they made their home until February, 1864, when they came to Section 10, Portage township, Wood county, buying 160 acres of land. There they continued to reside until March 4, 1880, since which time they have found a pleasant home in Jerry City, though they still own fifty-eight acres in Section 32, Portage township. For over fifty-five years they have traveled life's journey together, strengthening each other during the trials and vicissitudes of life, but are now resting after their labors, surrounded by a loving family and many warm friends. Both are earnest Christians, being members of the Radical United Brethren Church. For many years Mr. Miller was a Republican, but now supports the Prohibition party.

JAMES SMITH, deceased. The subject of this sketch, formerly a well-known citizen of Bowling Green, was born in the North of Ireland in the year 1815. He came to America when twenty years of age, and for two years lived in New York City, but finally located at Little Falls, Herkimer Co., N. Y., where he remained thirty years engaged in merchant tailoring. He married a native of Little Falls, Miss Phally Dennis, who was born August 15, 1824, the eldest daughter of Cornelius and Betsy (Simmons) Dennis. They were natives of Connecticut, but came to New York in early youth, where they met and married. Mr. Dennis was a prominent resident of Little Falls, a millwright by trade. He lived to the age of eighty, but Mrs. Dennis died at the age of forty years. Of their four children, Mrs. Smith is now the only survivor. The others were Thomas, a resident of New York State; Mary, who died in childhood, and Eleanor. After their marriage Mr. and Mrs. Smith continued to reside at Little Falls, where children were born to them as follows: Edmund, born June 30, 1847, died in childhood; Clarissa, born July 20, 1849, who married George West, and died June 19, 1872, leaving one daughter, Mabel, now Mrs. Strouse, of Fostoria, Ohio; George, born June 5, 1853, who married Miss Maggie Tisseur, and died August 11, 1892, leaving three children—Floyd, Laminne, and Marie; Julia A., born March 29, 1858, who married Frank H. Boughton, of Bowling Green, and has three boys, Walter, Solon and LeRoy. Two great-grandchildren of Mr. and Mrs. Smith—Phally and Clara Strouse—live with their parents at Fostoria.

After thirty years of active business life at Little Falls, Mr. Smith moved with his family to Bowling Green, where he had made some profitable investments, and spent the remainder of his days there in retirement. Politically he was a Democrat, and although he was never a politician, he took an intelligent interest in all public movements. His death occurred in 1883, and since that time Mrs. Smith has lived in her own home, only two blocks from her daughter, Mrs. Boughton. Her few remaining relatives take delight in her occasional visits. She has been a member of the Presbyterian Church for twenty years; but her age prevents her from taking an active part in Church work.

MRS. MARY CRANKER WILLIAMS, of Perrysburg, the widow of Alfred Gillette Williams, who was for many years a leading business man of Wood county, is a member of one of the oldest families of her vicinity.

Her parents, Peter and Margaret (Meagley) Cranker, were honored pioneers of Perrysburg, where our subject was born November 13, 1840, and grew to useful womanhood, receiving an excellent education, and early taking a prominent part in social, religious and philanthropical circles. On December 30, 1866, she was united in marriage with Mr. Williams, a man in whom all the sterling uprightness and courage of his Welsh ancestry was revealed in daily life. He was born in Steuben, N. Y., November 21, 1832, but his parents moved to Adrian, Mich., in the following year, and there he remained up to the age of seventeen. Having decided upon a mercantile calling, he served an apprenticeship, by clerking some years, in Fayette, Ohio, and Grand Rapids, Mich., and afterward traveled as a salesman for a firm in Maumee City, gaining valuable experience of which he made good use in later years. In 1860 he came to Perrysburg, and, in partnership with his brother, engaged in the dry-goods business, in which they built a substantial and profitable trade. After some years he withdrew from this firm and devoted his time to other enterprises, notably the oil industry. He was also extensively engaged in the manufacture of wooden-ware, and in the interest of his business he traveled extensively. His efforts in every line were rewarded with success, but his generous nature made him a liberal dispenser of the wealth which flowed in his busy hands.

A devout and consistent member of the M. E. Church, to which he gave faithful service as steward, trustee, class-reader and Sunday-school teacher, he was also a ready financial supporter in every emergency. Religion was not with him a form; it was an essential part of his life. In early manhood, while at Maumee City, he had experienced a deep spiritual awakening which left no doubt within him as to the transcendent value of the higher life. It was his delight to serve the cause of the Church in any capacity, and when elected in 1891 as lay delegate from the Central Ohio Conference to the General Conference, he regarded it as the greatest honor of his life. In politics he was a Republican, though his father was a Democrat, and for several years he served on the school board, but was no office seeker. Socially he was a Master Mason. He passed away October 17, 1892, after a short illness, in full assurance of the faith of Christ. Only the day before his death he exclaimed, his face radiant with happiness, "Oh, I have received such a blessing this week." He left three sons, Alfred R., born September 5, 1868, who married Clara Chappuies, and has two children—Alfred Russell, Jr., and Elbert J.; Ernest Roy, born June 11, 1879, and Arthur G., born October 8, 1882, both of whom live with their mother at the family residence on Second street, a home where

Yours Sincerely
A. G. Williams

all that could minister to culture and refinement is gathered. Mrs. Williams, always a ready helpmeet to her husband in his philanthropies, still continues the work in which he delighted, and gives freely of her means and sympathies to every worthy movement.

MRS. JANE DAVIS conducts a general mercantile establishment in Dunbridge, and well deserves mention in the history of the county. She was born in Webster township, March 6, 1848, and is a daughter of Hugh and Jennie (Davidson) Stewart, both of whom were natives of Scotland. She attended school in Webster township, and remained at home until 1872, when she became the wife of William Davis. Of their marriage were born six children—Anna M., who was born July 11, 1874, was educated in Dunbridge and in Ada, Ohio, and was for two terms a school teacher, but now occupies the position of stenographer with the firm of Royce & Coon, of Bowling Green; Margaret J., born August 16, 1876, is at home; Frederick W., born August 19, 1878, and Maurice, born October 19, 1880, operate the home farm; Mary E., born October 13, 1882, and Daisy V., born December 9, 1884, complete the family.

Mrs. Davis remained on the farm until 1884, when she removed to Dunbridge and established the store which she still conducts, being one of the first citizens of the place. In addition to the care of the store she manages a farm of ninety-six acres in Webster township, which she owns, and which she has placed under a high state of cultivation. She possesses excellent business and executive ability, is enterprising and progressive in her business methods, and by her true womanliness and helpful spirit has won the respect of all with whom she has been brought in contact. She is certainly a most estimable lady, and is now a valued member of the Woman's Relief Corps and the Daughters of Rebekah.

ERASTUS MUSSER, one of the successful educators of Wood county, was born in Section 25, Portage township, April 28, 1849, and is a son of Samuel Musser, a native of Columbiana county, Ohio. His paternal grandfather, Michael Musser, became one of the prominent pioneers of Portage township, where he died in 1852, and his remains were interred at Millgrove.

Samuel Musser, the father of our subject was reared and educated in the manner of most farmer lads, and, after his marriage, located on the farm where he still resides. In the spring of 1836 he came to Portage township, and here married Miss Hulda Tefft, a daughter of Ezekiel Tefft, a native of Rhode Island, and they became the parents of five children: Erastus, subject of this sketch; William, of Portage township; Mercy, now Mrs. James Waugh, of Webster township, Wood county; Ezekiel, a mason and farmer of southwestern Kansas; and Albert, who died while young. In 1856 Mrs. Musser passed away and was buried in Millgrove cemetery. For his second wife, Mr. Musser wedded Abbie Mader, who was born in Richland county, Ohio, May 27, 1836, and to them were born five children, namely: Rosetta, who died in childhood; David W., of Portage township; Hulda J., wife of William Dicken, of Montgomery township, Wood county; Charley, at home; and one daughter who died in infancy. The father died January 6, 1896, at the age of eighty-four years, and is interred in the cemetery at Millgrove. He thoroughly represented the pioneers of the community, as he aided in its development and contributed generously to promote its prosperity. By the aid of his sons he transformed his wild uncultivated land into a highly improved farm. In him the Democratic party had one of its most earnest supporters.

The school days of Erastus Musser were mostly passed in District No. 7, Portage township, his first teacher being Marilla Lamson, and there he acquired a good education. Being reared on a frontier farm, he soon became familiar with the arduous tasks incident to such a life, and received a thorough training as an agriculturist. Since the age of twenty-three, however, he has engaged in teaching, being employed in Portage, Bloom and Montgomery townships, Wood county, and has proved himself a capable and reliable instructor. He has taught every winter, and missed but few summer terms. A man of genuine worth, and more than ordinary intellectual attainments, he enjoys the respect and confidence of all with whom he comes in contact. He is identified with the Democratic party, and on that ticket was elected assessor of Portage township for two years.

GEORGE KIMBERLIN. Few men, indeed, are there who live out the period of man's allotted years here on earth, practically with one people, who can look back over an official life of nearly a third of a century, and say that, without an exception, the offices sought him, and not he them. Such is the record of the gentleman whose name introduces this sketch, and who is now passing the evening of a well-spent and useful life in a comfortable home, as a retired farmer and citizen of Bowling Green. Born January 11, 1824, in Huntingdon county, Penn., of parents Henry and Sarah (Brewau) Kimberlin. Our subject on his father's side descended from German ancestors.

George Kimberlin, the paternal grandfather, was a member of Washington's bodyguard during the Revolutionary war, after which he settled in what is now Bedford county, Penn., and died in Huntingdon county, same State. He was an orphan, and, with the exception of his nationality and the few facts above mentioned, nothing is known of his family or of his early life. The paternal grandmother was a Miss Wagner, who also died in Huntingdon county. They left a large family, of whom the following are mentioned: John, who became a Methodist minister and removed to New York State; George, who died young; Henry; Michael (deceased), who was a resident of Wayne county, Ohio; and David, whose death occurred in Wood county.

Henry Kimberlin, father of our subject, was reared in Huntingdon county, Penn., and took part in the war of 1812, entering from Pennsylvania, and being located at Fort Meigs. Just before the battle by Tecumseh he was taken ill with chills, having been subject to the ague, and was left in the rear, but insisted on going into battle. After the close of the war he went back to Pennsylvania, but in the spring of 1827 removed to Wayne county, Ohio, and in 1831 he came to Wood county, locating on the river just below Grand Rapids, where he died about 1867, at the age of seventy-eight years. He was an Old-line Whig, later a Republican. He was a member of the United Brethren Church, in which he was a local preacher, and was noted among the pioneers as the one who preached the greatest number of funeral sermons. While a man of only a meager education, he was a deep thinker, possessed good hard sense which made him practical in business affairs, and a most useful citizen among the pioneers. His name frequently occurs on the records of the early history of the county. He was one of the justices of the peace who served in Weston township during the period between 1831 and 1841. Sarah, his wife, died in 1878 at the advanced age of eighty-three years. To their marriage had been born ten children, named: Mary Ann (deceased), who was the wife of George Gilmore, of this county; Delilah, who was married to John Dull, and who also died in Wood county; John, now living near Grand Rapids, at the age of seventy-five years; Francis, the wife of George Older, a resident of Michigan; Amelia and Eliza, unmarried; Catherine, the wife of John W. Brown, of Grand Rapids; Martha Jane, whose death occurred at the age of eleven years; Jacob, now of Grand Rapids; and George.

George Kimberlin, the subject of this sketch, coming to a new country when a lad, had but meager educational advantages, receiving only such instruction as was usual to the pioneer children of that day. At the age of twenty-five years he received one year's training in the schools of Perrysburg, which, followed by subsequent reading and self application, made him a well-informed and practical business man. His early life was passed on the farm of his father, whom he assisted in the general work incident to pioneers of Wood county. In 1856 he was married to Miss Adaliza Olney, a native of Saratoga county, N. Y., born March 25, 1829, and daughter of Benjamin and Lucy (Emerson) Olney who were one of the pioneer families of Wood county, and whose history appears in the sketch of Samuel R. Junkins, of Bowling Green. Mrs. Kimberlin, who was a woman of many Christian virtues, was identified with the Baptist Church. Her death occurred at Bowling Green, January 15, 1892. There were no children born to the marriage.

After his marriage Mr. Kimberlin settled on a farm near Grand Rapids, this county, where he continued in agricultural pursuits until the fall of 1871, when he entered upon the duties of treasurer of Wood county, to which office he had been previously elected. His election was for a period of four years, which term he served out, and a vacancy occurring in 1881 he served another year by appointment. While a resident of Weston township he had for fourteen years been the township clerk; was real-estate assessor of the township in 1870; and in 1890 served similarly in Plain township. So well, and with such care did Mr. Kimberlin serve the people of the township and county in transacting the business intrusted to his care, that, when his term of office had expired, they were loath to give him up, and his successors to the office of treasurer made him their deputy for ten years. Even this did not suffice, for he has been called to assist in the several county offices at periods from that time to the present. He brought to these various branches of county's business, intelligence, fitness, and a popularity that rendered him a most useful and safe official, and a satisfactory one. Possessed of a patriotism inherited from an ancestor of the war of the Revolution, and from his father, a soldier of the war of 1812, Mr. Kimberlin in the dark days of 1864 left the plough in the furrow, shouldered his musket, and went to the front to bear an honorable part in the campaign of the command. He enlisted in May, 1864, in Company I, 144th O. V. I. He became second lieutenant of that company, and took part in the bayonet charge at Monocacy, Md. He was discharged in September of that year (1864).

Mr. Kimberlin is one of the most widely known and highly respected citizens of Wood county, and a thoroughly representative business man of the community, in which he has mingled so many years. He is identified with the Baptist Church, and in politics is a Republican. He possesses a fine, well-improved farm of nearly 150 acres in Grand Rapids township.

A. R. MATHEWS, who has served as agent at Webb for the Pennsylvania railroad since his appointment, on January 5, 1876, is probably the oldest employe on the division, and his long-continued service certainly indicates his faithful discharge of duty. He is a native of Ohio, born in Ashland county in 1836, and when five years of age was taken to what is now Bryan, Williams Co., Ohio, by his parents, George and Margaret (Hamilton) Mathews. The father was born in Pennsylvania, and was married in Ashland county, this State, where he followed his trade of blacksmithing until his removal to Bryan, in 1841. There he began the cultivation and improvement of a farm, but was not long permitted to enjoy his new home, as he died in the year 1844, leaving two children—our subject, and his brother George, who enlisted in Williams county in 1862, in Company D, 38th O. V. I., and veteranizing served until the close of the war, during which he was twice wounded. He still makes his home in Williams county. In 1847 the mother became the wife of Henry Caszett, who by his first union had four sons—Adam, who was in the three-months' service during the Civil war, and now makes his home in Michigan; Franklin and Kerry, also residents of the same State; and John, who died in Williams county, Ohio. By her second union the mother of our subject had two children—Andrew P. and Deborah, both of Isabella county, Mich. Her death occurred on the old home in Williams county, in 1860.

In that county our subject was reared to manhood, and the first school he attended was taught in the old log court house of Bryan. On leaving home, in 1854, he went to Boscobel, Wis., where he was employed at rafting lumber down the Wisconsin and Mississippi rivers, and during his stay of seven years also went south. He returned to Williams county in 1860, and the following year at Stryker, Ohio, enlisted in the three-months' call, serving with Company E, 14th O. V. I. He later re-enlisted for three-years' service, this time becoming a member of Company E, 38th O. V. I., and was mustered in at Camp Dennison. He participated in the battles of Phillips, Laurel Hill, Cary's Ford, Wild Cat, Ky., Lyons Cross Roads, Nashville, Pittsburg Landing, Corinth, Iuka, Tuscumbia, and then went on the march to Louisville. Later he was in the engagements at Milledgeville, Stone River, Chickamauga, Chancellorsville, Missionary Ridge, Lookout Mountain, and at Chattanooga became a veteran of the same company and regiment. He went with Sherman on the celebrated march to the sea, was in the Carolina campaigns, and took part in the grand review at Washington, D. C., after which he received an honorable discharge at Cleveland, Ohio, in June, 1865, and returned to his home in Williams county. For four years he had faithfully followed the old flag on Southern battle fields, enduring all the hardships and privations of army life, but was ever found at his post of duty.

In 1865, in Defiance, Ohio, Mr. A. R. Mathews led to the marriage altar Miss Mary Hanna, who is a native of that county, and four children have come to bless their union—J. W., who is married, and is a telegraph operator of Toledo, Ohio; Orlando R., who is also married and is telegraph operator for the Nickel Plate railroad at Bellevue, Ohio; Mrs. Fannie M. Hathaway, of Pemberville, Ohio; and Mamie C., wife of Frank Berndt, of Troy township, Wood county.

After his marriage, Mr. Mathews engaged in farming in Williams county until 1871, at which time he removed to Genoa, Ottawa Co., Ohio, where he was in the employ of the firm of Webb and Brown, in their washboard manufactory. He was then sent by that firm to Webb Station, Wood county, where he helped to construct two mills, and, in connection with railroad-ing, also kept boarders for some three years, having as many as forty-four mill hands as well as transient boarders. In 1873 he came to Troy township, where he built a house on railroad land, it being the first dwelling erected at Webb. His present fine residence was erected in 1882. Besides his duties as station agent he is also engaged in the cultivation and improvement of his farm. He bought eighty acres of heavily timbered land in Lake township, Wood county, which he at once began to clear and develop, making it one of the best places in the locality. In politics, Mr. Mathews is an ardent Republican, and for seventeen years served as postmaster at Webb, when he resigned, and in 1895 the office was discontinued. He has taken an active part in promoting the welfare of the community, and always lends his aid to every worthy enterprise.

THOMAS JUNKINS. The subject of this sketch, who is known and revered throughout Wood county as the oldest living pioneer of Weston township, where he has resided for sixty-two years, was born in Fayette county, Penn., April 27, 1822.

Samuel Junkins, the father of our subject, was born in Maine, of Scotch and Irish parentage, and when a young man went to Pennsylvania, where he engaged in the manufacture of brick. He was there married to Nancy Smith, and four children were born to them, as follows: Clarissa, the widow of John Pugh, of Weston; Thomas; Julia Ann, the wife of Henry Bernthistle, deceased, and Samuel, deceased. The family afterward removed to Guernsey county, Ohio, where the father died in 1829, when our subject was but seven years old. The mother, with her children, returned to Pennsylvania, and in Washington county was married to John Rice. They then came back to Ohio, in 1833, in company with John McKee and a man by the name of Storts—there being three families in all. They settled in Weston (now Grand Rapids) township, Wood Co., Ohio, where the father of Mr. Rice had taken up land. Here Mr. Rice died in the fall of 1833. His widow subsequently removed to the farm owned by John McKee, where she remained until 1838, in which year she moved on the Carson farm, where she died in 1851.

Thomas Junkins had only a limited education, and after the death of his step-father, although a mere lad, he had to go to work in order to help support his widowed mother. His boyhood was spent in clearing up a portion of the McKee farm, and a greater part of the Carson farm. Here he spent seventeen years of hard work, and he recalls with gratitude the kind and encouraging words given him by Alexander Brown, who in those days of toil and hardships acted as a father, and cheered the boy in his daily toil. In 1843 Thomas Junkins bought 160 acres of land, being the S. E.  $\frac{1}{4}$  of Section 29, Weston township, where he still resides. On this he placed many improvements, and in 1877 built his present fine residence, most of the lumber used in its construction being obtained from his own timber. For forty years the subject of our sketch resided on this farm, during which long period of time, and even longer, not a single death in the household, or family occurred (although they reared a family of six children), Mrs. Junkins being the first to pass away, her death occurring in 1895, forty-two years from the time of her marriage. This is a remarkable record, for which Mr. Junkins expresses his sincere gratitude.

About the year 1847 our subject bought 160 acres of land on Hull's Prairie, at seventy-five cents per acre, which comprised the ground on which the railway station now stands. This he sold for $2,000, and then bought 320 acres from Mr. Bucklin, in Milton township, for which he paid $2,080. Eighty acres of this he sold, and eighty acres of this farm he exchanged for a part of the Ward farm, and the remaining 160 acres he gave to his two sons, Eber W. and Charles L. (eighty acres each), while to Raymond S. he gave a part of the Ward farm. Mr. Junkins has always been a great lover of fine stock, having in his younger days been an extensive breeder of fine Shorthorn cattle, and to him much credit is due, for, through his enterprise, his neighbors and the citizens of Wood county, generally, have reaped rich returns from the improved stock they were enabled to secure, and did secure, from him. Owing to advanced age, and the depreciation of the cattle industry, Mr. Junkins has abandoned the business.

When the Civil war broke out, no citizen was more ready to assist the government in its efforts to sustain the Union than the subject of this sketch, and in 1863 he enlisted and was mustered in at Cleveland as a member of Company F, 86th O. V. I., under Col. Charles Lennert and Capt. Squires. He was present at the capture of Morgan, and at the battle of Cumberland Gap; served for eight months, and was mustered out at Cleveland in 1864. As a result of his soldiering he has ever since been afflicted with deafness.

Mr. Junkins was married October 7, 1853, at Weston, to Elizabeth, daughter of Jacob Long, who was born October 15, 1827, and who died February 5, 1895. Six children blessed this union, namely: (1) Alzina Adelaide, born July 24, 1854, married April 7, 1874, to James Blackburn; (2) Charlotte Alma, born July 3, 1856, married to William Walters; (3) Eber W., born August 10, 1858, is a farmer in Milton township; (4) Raymond S., born July 28, 1861, is a farmer of Weston; (5) Charles L., born September 25, 1863, is a farmer in Milton township, and (6) Perry C., born August 31, 1866, has the management of the homestead of 218 acres. Among the reminiscences of early days, Mr. Junkins relates that, in 1850, he in company with Aaron P. Treadwell, who was known as "Live Yankey," and "Jim" Crago, drove 150 head of cattle from Weston township, Wood Co., Ohio, to Bridgeport, Conn., the trip occupying several months' time.

THOMAS JUNKINS.

MRS. ELIZABETH JUNKINS.

The death of his beloved wife, which was the first one to occur in the family, as above related, was a severe blow to Mr. Junkins. They had been companions for nearly half a century, and she had been to him a faithful helpmeet, sharing his burdens, and by her loving care making his home a blessed retreat from the cares and trials of life. She was a devoted mother, counting no sacrifice too great, if by it she could secure the welfare and happiness of her family. Thoughtful of their comfort, and anxious for their future, she trained her children to become useful citizens and an honor to the parents who did so much for them; and now that she has gone to her reward they "rise up and call her blessed." In his political preferences, Mr. Junkins is a Republican, and for three terms he held the office of supervisor. In religious faith, he attends the Universalist Church, and is a consistent Christian. Socially, he belongs to the G. A. R. Post at Weston, and April 28, 1870, was made a Master Mason in Grand Rapids Lodge No. 289, F. & A. M., Grand Rapids, Ohio, of which lodge he is still a member. He has resided on his present farm since 1855, though he bought it in 1843, and is known and beloved throughout the community, of which he may be called "one of the old land marks." His life has been one of useful endeavor, marked by integrity of purpose, upright dealing and a belief in the Fatherhood of God, and the brotherhood of humanity; and, now that for him the shadows are lengthening, he can look back over the eventful years with the consciousness of work well-done, and a trust that the future will bring him the reward promised to those who are faithful to the end.

RICHARD PRIEST. Among the leading farmers of Troy township is the subject of this sketch, whose name stands high on the military records of the Civil war, as well as in the annals of Wood county. By perseverance and industry in this locality he has gained a foothold in the world. He is a self-made man, having reached his present prosperous condition by his continual struggles from youth. He is pleasantly located on a tract of five acres in Section 28, Troy township, adjoining the village of Luckey. On his arrival in Wood county, in 1854, he located in Webster township, where he owns sixty-four acres of fertile and highly cultivated land.

Mr. Priest was born in Little Milton, Oxfordshire, England, in 1842, and is a son of James and Harriet (Wyatt) Priest, both natives of the same shire, and on coming to the New World located in Webster township, Wood county, in 1854, but later removed to Perrysburg township. In the former township, however, the father died in 1881, and his wife passed away in February, 1893. In their family were seven children—John, a resident of Webster township, who was in the one-hundred-day service during the Rebellion; Richard, of this review; Charley, of Webster township; William, who was born in this county, and also makes his home in Webster township; Mary, who died in Wood county; Mrs. Ann Walker, of Michigan; and Mrs. Rachel Flowers, of New Zealand.

Our subject was about twelve years of age when he left his native land and came to Wood county, and being reared upon a farm has always followed that vocation. While quietly assisting his father, the Civil war broke out, and, filled with patriotic ardor for his adopted country, he enlisted at Perrysburg in August, 1862, becoming a member of Company D, 111th Regiment O. V. I., for three years or until the close of the struggle. He was assigned to the army of the Tennessee, and participated in the following battles—Stone River, Huff's Ferry, Lenoir, Campbell's Station, siege of Knoxville, Ft. Saunders, Dandridge, Strawberry Plains, Blain's Cross Roads, Rocky Face, Resaca, Pumpkinvine Creek, Burnt Hickory, Lost Mountain, Kenesaw Mountain, Nickajack Creek, Chattahoochee River, Decatur, Peach Tree Creek, Atlanta, Utoy Creek, Jonesboro, Stone Mountain, Allatoona, Duck River, Franklin, Nashville, Ft. Anderson, Town Creek, and Raleigh. He was twice slightly wounded, and received an honorable discharge at Salisbury, N. C., and was paid off at Cleveland, Ohio, in July, 1865.

In Perrysburg township, Wood county, Mr. Priest was married, in 1867, to Miss Mary Fletcher, a native of Medina county, Ohio, and a daughter of John and Mary Fletcher, both born in England. On coming to this country they first located in Medina county, but their last days were spent in Webster township, this county. Seven children grace the union of our subject and his wife—Mrs. Celina M. Myers, of Fostoria, Ohio; Mrs. Emma Limbach, who makes her home with our subject; Robert H., of Dunbridge; Ada, now Mrs. Noss, of Luckey; Ella J.; Clara G.; and Ruth R.

Mr. Priest is a strong adherent of the principles of the Republican party, and in Webster township served as a member of the school board.

Both he and his wife are genial, hospitable people, whose pleasant ways have greatly endeared them to the entire neighborhood, and are faithful members of the Methodist Episcopal Church. He takes quite a prominent part in Grand Army circles, belonging to Pemberville Post No. 26, G. A. R., and has attended the National Encampments at Columbus, Milwaukee, Detroit, Boston, Washington, Indianapolis and Louisville.

CALEB ROOT. This gentleman is accredited with the ownership of one of the best farms in Troy township, in Section 13, where he located in 1857. It comprises 130 acres, and was then partially improved. It is now well supplied with good and substantial farm buildings, and the machinery is fully in keeping with the enterprise of the proprietor, who also owns another excellent tract of 112 acres on the north side of the ridge, in Section 1, Troy township; also eighty acres in Section 12, and seventy-five on the south side of the pike, making in all nearly 400 acres of rich and fertile land. Besides general farming he also engages in stock-raising, having some fine animals on his place, and this branch of industry proves a profitable source of income. Upon his land are seven good oil wells, which have an abundant flow.

Mr. Root came to this county from Milan township, Erie Co., Ohio, the place of his nativity, having there first seen the light on October 27, 1831. In 1821, soon after reaching his majority, his father, Hiram Root, who was a native of Connecticut, located in Erie county, where he married Parthena Tillotson, who was born in the Empire State. In Milan township, that county, his father opened up a farm, which he operated until his death in 1868, and there his wife also died at the ripe old age of eighty-two years. In their family were five children who grew to maturity—Orrin, who died in Erie county in 1882; Eunice, wife of Elias Hughes, of Huron county, Ohio; Eliza, wife of Elisha Hughes, of Erie county; Caleb, of this sketch; and Mrs. Mary Huyck, who makes her home in the West.

The subject of this review was brought up a farmer, receiving his education in the schools of Erie county, where he remained until twenty-five years of age, when he came to Wood county, and located upon his present farm. In his native township he was married in 1857, to Miss Martha Jane Nichols, who was born in Oxford township, Erie county, and was a daughter of Enoch and Catherine (Horton) Nichols, both natives of New York. At an early day they had made a settlement in Erie county, where they departed this life. Mrs. Root was called to her final rest in 1888, leaving four children, namely: Mrs. Etta Hanson, of Woodville, Ohio; Arthur, of the same place; and Horton and Erma, twins, who are both at home. In 1889, in Troy township, Mr. Root was again married, the lady of his choice being Miss Anna Marsh, who was born in Lake township, Wood county, where at an early day had located her parents, Luke and Sarah Marsh. Her father is now deceased, and her mother makes her home upon the farm in Lake township. Two children bless this union, Edward and Grace.

Mr. Root uses his right of franchise in support of the men and measures of the Republican party, and by his fellow citizens has been called upon to fill the offices of town clerk and justice of the peace of Troy township, where he has made his home for almost forty years, during which time he has taken an active interest in the advancement of the locality. His pleasant, courteous manners have attracted to him many warm friends, and he has the respect of all with whom he comes in contact.

C. D. STEARNES, a son of Justus and Mary (Hall) Stearnes, and who resides in Perry township, is in no whit behind his brothers in "push," energy or capacity, for any amount of labor necessary to accomplish the desired result. He perpetuates the characteristics of the family for thrift and prosperity, and is a wide-awake, up-to-date man, public-spirited, and a citizen of whom any community might be justly proud. His integrity has never been questioned, and his good management has brought him merited success.

Mr. Stearnes was born June 14, 1856, in the "old stone house," which stands in Section 14, and was his father's residence for many years. It now belongs to J. D. Stearnes, one of the sons. During his youth our subject attended the district schools of his locality, and then learned the rudiments of agriculture under his father, whose excellent ideas on the subject he has since practiced with beneficial results. At various times he assisted his father in carrying out contracts for ditching, but most of his time until his marriage was spent on the farm.

On February 7, 1878, Mr. Stearnes was united in marriage with Miss Elizabeth (daughter of William and Anna (Van Nemon) Courtney), who was born in Hancock county, Ohio, April 13, 1858. This union has been blessed with the following children: Sylva, born January 22, 1879; Jay J., born October 5, 1880; William A., born February 9, 1882; Orrin C., born November 23, 1883; and Joseph H., born September 10, 1886. After his marriage Mr. Stearnes bought from his father 107 acres of land in Section 14, Perry township, and moved a former school house onto it, as there were no buildings of any kind thereon, and there made his home until December 1, 1884, at which time he returned to the old homestead, working a portion of his father's farm for the succeeding five years. He then went back to his first farm, where he resided until August, 1891, at that time taking up his residence on the old Thomas Beach place, which he purchased in 1891, and where he now lives. He has remodeled the house, built a good barn, and otherwise improved the place. He has recently bought the E. O. Meaks place of forty acres in Perry township, and now has 224 acres of land, and is considered one of the best and most progressive farmers in the township. In politics Mr. Stearnes is a stanch Republican, and he is ever ready to work for the interests of his party and for the good of the community. He served one year as assessor, and was a constable for two or three years, filling these offices with much ability and to the satisfaction of the public.

S. E. WAGONER, a progressive and enterprising farmer, and assistant postmaster at Stony Ridge, was born on October 17, 1856, on the farm where he still resides in Lake township. His parents, Joseph and Eliza (Conrad) Wagoner, are both natives of Pennsylvania, and the father is a son of Samuel and Catherine (Shook) Wagoner, who were also born in Pennsylvania, and about 1849 came to Lake township, Wood county, where they passed their remaining days.

The subject of this biographical notice received his education in the schools of Perrysburg township, Wood county, and was reared upon the home farm. In early manhood he commenced agricultural pursuits for himself, but has also been connected with other lines of business, being interested in the manufacture of tile at Stony Ridge. His fine farm of fifty acres in Lake township is one of the best in the locality, the fields are well tilled and the whole appearance of the place indicates the thrift and energy of the owner.

On March 31, 1896, Mr. Wagoner was united in marriage with Miss Carrie E., only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Metzger, of Troy township, the ceremony having been performed by the Rev. John Born, of St. John's Lutheran Church, at Stony Ridge, the marriage taking place at the residence of the bride's parents.

Mr. Wagoner takes quite an interest in political affairs, voting with the Republican party, and at present is serving as assistant postmaster of Stony Ridge. The cause of education finds in him a warm friend, and as a member of the board of education he does much for its advancement. He has also acted as supervisor of Lake township, and been a member of the board of election. Religiously he is connected with the Methodist Episcopal Church, and socially belongs to Fort Meigs Lodge No. 774, I. O. O. F.

J. C. WITMORE, a successful farmer and a self-made man of Perry township, was born September 1, 1839, in Franklin county, Penn., son of Jonathan and Catharine (Cover) Witmore.

When a boy Jonathan Witmore was bound out to a Mr. Cridler, and learned the shoemaker's trade. After serving his apprenticeship he followed his trade, and often worked nearly all night, sleeping but an hour or two. He received two shillings a day at day labor. In the fall of 1850 he and his family of six children came to Wood county in a large covered wagon, "Pennsylvania style," spending seventeen days en route. They located in Perry township, on eighty acres of land in Section 1, for which the father paid $1,025. He had nearly $1,000, but as utensils were needed he spent part of the money for them, and went into debt for his farm, which was then in its primitive state.

Mr. Witmore was married twice in Pennsylvania, his first wife bearing him two children, one of whom died in infancy; the other, Malinda, married John Myers, and died in Wood county, Ohio. For his second wife he wedded Catherine Cover, by whom he had seven children, viz.: One died in childhood; A. B. is a farmer of Perry township; J. C. is our subject; Henry E. is a resident of Hancock county; Jacob is a German Baptist Brethren minister in McPherson, Kans.; David is a farmer in Webster township; Martha married Jackson Seaman, of Toledo, and died in Fostoria in 1891. For his third wife Mr. Witmore took Miss Susan Smith, who was born in Carroll county, Md., November 29, 1823, daughter of Solomon and Elizabeth (Friese) Smith; the former of whom died when Susan was five years old. In the fall of 1833 the widow came to Seneca county with six children, all girls. They drove all the way from Maryland, locating near Melmore, Seneca county, where Susan was reared and attended the public schools. Mr. Witmore had four children by this wife, namely: Elizabeth A., now Mrs. Jacob Smith, of Cleveland, Tenn.; Mary A., who married John Castret, of Tennessee; John P., living in the West, and Hattie O., wife of John England, of Perry township.

Jonathan Witmore died July 1, 1886, and is buried in Center, Perry township; since his death his widow has been living on the farm of eighty acres left by him. She is a member of the German Baptist Brethren Church, and is one of the highly respected ladies of Perry township. Mr. Witmore was never certain of his age, as his parents died when he was quite young, and he lived with strangers until he became a young man. He had a cruel master to work for, and was often obliged to get out of bed at night and go to work, his employer taking great delight in thus abusing him. His opportunities for education were few; he attended school but little, and secured what knowledge he possessed by reading and studying at home. In political sentiment he was a Democrat, but he seldom voted. He was a minister in the German Baptist Church, and just before his death was ordained an elder in that denomination. He was a self-made man, active and industrious, and through his own efforts he became comfortably situated in life.

Our subject was a boy when he came to Wood county, and he received a rather limited schooling. Work was plentiful, and he was kept busy tramping out grain and separating it by hand. At the age of fifteen he had a desire for more schooling, and prepared himself by studying at night, later attending a select school at West Millgrove taught by Alfred Kelley. When nineteen years old he began teaching on his own account, continuing in that occupation for five terms in Wood and Seneca counties. He was united in marriage, November 29, 1862, in Seneca county, to Miss Mary A. Krabill, who was born in that county, February 10, 1843, daughter of John and Hannah (Bear) Krabill, the former of whom was a native of Stark county, Ohio, and was a preacher and elder in the German Baptist Church; the mother was born in Pennsylvania. They had nine children—four sons and five daughters—of whom two sons died when young; the other two are also ministers in the German Baptist Church, and the eldest is an elder. Mr. Witmore settled on his father's old farm in Perry township, which he rented for two years and then purchased. For a while he and his brother A. B. worked it in partnership, but he finally bought his brother out, and has carried it on alone ever since. He has 140 acres of excellent farm land, on which he is successfully and profitably engaged in general farming, and there are two oil wells on the place. In July, 1862,

Mr. Witmore joined the German Baptist Church, and is at present an elder and licensed minister, being ordained elder in 1880, and receiving his license to preach about 1865.

Mr. Witmore is a well-informed man, obtaining his education by constant study and application. He is a valuable citizen, and a kind-hearted, hospitable man, always ready to help the needy, in which work he is cheerfully seconded by his excellent wife. Four children have been born to Mr. and Mrs. Witmore, as follows: John H., a farmer of Perry township, who lost his left arm in a corn husker, November 25, 1894; Samantha M., now Mrs. William Caskey, of Perry; Jonathan A., a farmer of Hancock county; and Hattie B., who died when eight months old.

EDWIN FARMER, the able and efficient superintendent of the Wood County Infirmary, was born December 16, 1838, at Wantage, Berkshire, England, where his ancestors had lived for more than two hundred years, engaged in the business of cattle dealing and butchering.

His grandfather, John Farmer, married a Miss Stagg, and reared a family of four children: Charlotte, who never married, and was a nurse in one family for four generations; John (2), our subject's father; Richard, a butcher at Newbury, Berkshire, England, now deceased; and Mary Ann, who never married, and was in service all her life.

John Farmer, the father of our subject, was born in 1804. He married Esther Grimshaw, a native of West Hanney, born in 1805. Both were members of the Church of England. They had six children, a brief record of whom is as follows: (1) Esther married Benjamin Manns, and died in England. (2) Alfred came to America in 1852, was an overseer in Mississippi for three years, and then returned to England; in 1858 he came again, this time accompanied by our subject, with whom he engaged in business in Wood county; he died at Millbury in 1888 at the age of sixty years. (3) Joseph followed the ancestral occupation; he died in England in 1855 aged twenty-six years. (4) Mary Ann married Thomas Marsh, a retired soldier of the British army, and one of the gatekeepers at Regents Park, London. (5) Elizabeth died in infancy. (6) Edwin, our subject, is the youngest. The mother died in 1854. She weighed over five hundred pounds at the time of her death, and her daughter Mary Ann, weighed over three hundred pounds.

Edwin Farmer received a good education in the schools of his native village during his boyhood. In 1858 he came to America with his brother, intending to go to the valley of the Red river, in Louisiana, but they decided to locate at Millbury. Here they engaged in the lumber business, making a specialty of railroad ties, for which they filled large orders for the Lake Shore & Michigan Southern railroad. They also furnished the heavy timbers for the first wagon-bridge ever built in Toledo. Mr. Farmer had never been outside of a town until he left home to come to America, and life in the woods was not congenial; but he continued it for ten years, when he returned to his native country on a visit. He was married there, in 1869, to Miss Charlotte Tyrrell, and started with his bride on the way back to America; but after reaching London his aged father, who had long been in ill health, sent him an urgent request to return to him, which he did, remaining until after his father's death, in 1871. In May, 1872, he returned with his wife to Wood county, Ohio, settling at Millbury, and joining his brother on the farm leased by them, in 1859, of A. D. Wait, of Toledo. It may be here mentioned that he and his brother were in partnership from 1855 until 1881, some twenty-six years, with never a written agreement of any kind between them, and always on the best of terms. In 1878 our subject was appointed superintendent of the County Infirmary, and he has now served longer in that capacity than any other man in the State, with one exception.

Edwin Garner

Mrs. Lohie Garner

Mr. and Mrs. Farmer have had six children, as follows: A. B., the well-known deputy sheriff of Wood county; Warren Tyrrell, born December 26, 1872; Joseph, born March 19, 1875, who died at the age of fifteen months; Lottie, born in May, 1877; Annie Lottie, born April 15, 1878, and Rosa E., born June 27, 1880. In politics, Mr. Farmer is a Republican; in religious faith he is a member of the Evangelical Church.

Mrs. Farmer's parents, John and Anna (Andrews) Tyrrell, were both natives of England, and belonged to an old family in their locality. He was a butcher, a farmer, and a hotel-keeper, was parish clerk of the village of Steventon, Berks, for forty years, and is yet living, at the advanced age of ninety-three. The mother died in 1893. They had ten children—five sons and five daughters: two of the sons, Joseph, of Sterling, Kans., and George, of Bowling Green, Ohio, are the only ones who came to America. One sister, Mrs. Meats, is living at Cape Town, South Africa. Two, John and Elizabeth Day, are deceased. Those still living in Old England are:

Mrs. Gerring, at Steventon; Mrs. Butcher, at Wallingford; James, at Leamington, and Henry, in London.

ROBERT L. KEEL, one of the younger representatives of the agricultural interests of Wood county, was born in Seneca county, Ohio, December 13, 1870, and is a son of Henry and Delilah Jane (Keel) Keel, also natives of the Buckeye State. Upon their marriage they located on a farm in Seneca county, and about 1872 came to Wood county, taking up their residence on a forty-acre farm, for which the father had traded a tract of land in Michigan. He died of smallpox in Jackson township about 1875. In the family were two children, the daughter being Mary, now the wife of Bryan Sweet, of Bloomdale, Ohio. Robert L. Keel was only two years of age when he came with his parents to Wood county. He attended the common schools of Hoytville until sixteen years of age, and then gave his attention to farm work. During his childhood he made his home with his mother, who had married, for her second husband, W. M. Clark. In March, 1892, they removed to Arkansas, where they are now living on a farm. Six children were born of that union, namely: Emma, Della, John, Horace, Hattie and Blanche.

By the terms of his father's will our subject inherited the farm, and assumed entire management of the same on attaining his majority. He was also left a house and lot in Hoytville, where he now makes his home. The lady who shares his name and fortunes bore the maiden name of Nettie Looman. She is a native of Wood county, and their marriage, which was celebrated in Liberty township in 1891, has been blessed with one daughter, Lena. In politics, Mr. Keel gives an unfaltering support to the Republican party at State and National elections, but votes regardless of party affiliations at local elections. He is a young man of sterling worth and strict integrity, well known in the community.

HIRAM CUNNING, deceased. Among the men who have been instrumental in the development of the rich resources of Wood county, the subject of this sketch held no unimportant position. He operated one of the model farms of Washington township, and was numbered among the popular citizens of that section. Born in Ridgefield township, Huron Co., Ohio, May 7, 1842, he was a son of Hiram and Keziah (Raymond) Cunning, with whom, at the age of twelve years, he came to Wood county. The schools of Washington township afforded him his educational privileges, and he remained on the home farm until twenty years of age.

After the breaking out of the Civil war, Mr. Cuning enlisted, August 9, 1862, at Tontogany, in the 111th, O. V. I., under Col. Bond and Capt. McGowen, of Perrysburg, and was mustered in at Toledo. He was placed on provost-guard duty, and after participating in a number of skirmishes was discharged at Columbus, Ohio, April 8, 1863. On returning to Wood county, he lived on his father's homestead until 1865, when he purchased his late farm of eighty acres, which had been partly cleared, but which he greatly improved, setting out an orchard, and small fruit trees and shrubs; besides general farming, he also raised stock for his own use. In politics he voted the straight Republican ticket; served as school director two terms, and for a number of years was cemetery trustee. He affiliated with Walter A. Wood Post, No. 48, G. A. R., of Tontogany, of which he was senior vice-commander; and also held membership with the K. O. T. M., Tent No. 147, of Tontogany. On August 23, 1896, Mr. Cuning died suddenly.

Mr. Cuning was married February 22, 1872, to Ella Tefft, a daughter of L. P. and Phœbe Ann (Adams) Tefft, and to them have come four children: Oreanna, born February 8, 1874, became the wife of S. I. Landers, an agriculturist of Plain township, Wood county, and died of consumption September 28, 1893; Hiram T. was born December 5, 1875; Flavilla was born March 13, 1879; and Irene Myrtle was born July 30, 1883. The three youngest children are still at home. On both the paternal and maternal sides Mrs. Cuning is descended from Gen. Greene, of Revolutionary fame. Her mother's maiden name was Sprague, but as her father died when she was quite young, she took the name of Adams, that of her step-father, who was a descendant of President John Quincy Adams. She belonged to the Sprague family of New York. Mr. and Mrs. Tefft were married in May, 1851, and four children blessed their union—one who died in infancy; Florence G., who died while young; Lorin P., also deceased; and Mrs. Cuning, who was born in Perrysburg, Ohio, January 20, 1854. Her father was a member of the "Squirrel Hunters," and during the Civil war manifested his patriotism by enlisting in the Union army as a member of the "hundred-day men."

JOHN BAKER, a contractor and farmer of Wood county, was born in Center township, Carroll Co., Ohio, June 11, 1829. His parents were John and Clarissa (Hill) Baker, the former of whom was a native of Maryland, and the latter from Vermont. They were married in what is now West Virginia, and, in 1818, came to Carroll county when it was a portion of three other counties.

The father lived in Carroll county until 1836, and then moved to Big Spring township, to which place he went by wagon, the journey of one hundred and fifty miles consuming a week. Mr. Baker owned 160 acres of land in Carroll county which he sold for $1,800, and bought a section of land in Seneca county, which was then in a primitive state. Their first home was in an old school house, where they lived for a while, and then Mr. Baker built a log house at the west end of his farm, and the following children were born: William, who died in Gratiot county, Mich. He was a farmer, and when a boy killed 111 deer the first winter the family was in Seneca county; Mary married George Bottomfield and lives in California; Levi was a farmer, and died in Hardin county, Ohio, in 1861; Charlotte died young; Lizzie married William Harman, and died in Indiana; James was a miller and a merchant at Lincoln, and died in Indiana; John is our subject; Delilah is now Mrs. Daniel Ragen, of Risingsun. Mr. Baker was a soldier in the war of 1812, and fought at the battle of Fort Meigs. He was a Democrat, and held several minor township offices. He died on his farm in Seneca county, at the age of fifty-three years, and was buried at Big Springs. The widow lived on the farm with her children until 1854, and died in Prophetstown, on Rock river, Ill., aged seventy-three years.

Our subject was a boy when his parents went to Seneca county, and he attended school in a log school house built by the neighbors. The teacher was paid by the parents according to the number of children in each family. Mr. Baker remained at home until after his father's death, when he started out for himself, and wandered around working at various kinds of employment. He began railroading—laying tracks and getting out timbers on the Mad River road, the first one in Ohio. He was for eight years a brakeman, running between Sandusky and Dayton, on the Mad River line. When a boy he worked on the suspension bridge at Wheeling, which was 960 feet long, and for years the largest bridge in the world.

Mr. Baker was married in Big Spring township in 1850, to Miss Louisa Straus, who was born in Sandusky, in 1833, and was a daughter of David Straus, a farmer. The following children were born: Emily, who was married to David Kelly, and after his death wedded James Gangway, of Fort Wayne, Ind., now also deceased. She has three children: Almon, of whom see sketch elsewhere; George H., of Risingsun, who has four children; Jane is now Mrs. Samuel Sheller, of Muncie, Ind., and they have two children. Mrs. Baker died in 1863, while our subject was in the army, and is buried in Prairie Depot. Mr. Baker was again married, his second wife being Miss Mary M. Hale, who died in 1869, and was buried in Hancock county. Our subject's present wife was a Miss Catherine Wonders.

On March 22, 1861, Mr. Baker came to Montgomery township from Patterson, Hardin county, where he lived on a farm for three years. He bought 160 acres of land in Section 23, Montgomery township, and went in debt to the extent of $1,500. In August, 1861, he enlisted in Co. B, 57th O. V. I., as a wagoner, was taken prisoner at Shiloh in April, 1862, but escaped and returned to his regiment, with which he remained until he was again captured at Wolf River, with seventeen other teamsters, after being pursued for forty miles. While in the enemy's camp news came in December, 1862, of the burning, by Federals, of the little town of Rowley, Tenn., near which they were encamped. The Confederate officer in charge of our subject and his fellow prisoners, swore that if the report was true he would hang six of his prisoners, and for a day each one expected to be one of the doomed six. They were paroled after two days, and our subject still has the Rebel parole that is given him. He joined his regiment at once, regardless of the parole in his inside pocket, which meant death if again captured by the Confederates. This was unfortunately his fate a short time later at Milligan's Bend, Miss. He was taken to Pine Bluff, Ark., and placed in jail, where he remained for eight days. He was tried as a spy, but was liberated and compelled to travel 600 miles through Arkansas. After much suffering from fatigue and hunger, having nothing to eat but corn, he finally struck the Mississippi river, 100 miles north of Cairo, Ill., came on to Ohio, and paid a visit home. He reported in parole camp at Cole, Ohio, and watched his chance to leave. He went out with men going to join Rosecrans at Nashville, but at Louisville he was returned to Cole, then exchanged and joined his regiment in Alabama, where he again took a team and followed with Sherman all through the war, and was present at the grand review in Washington. He was not discharged until August, 1865, at Little Rock, Ark., when he came home, and has since been engaged in building bridges throughout Wood county, and in farming. For over two years he was at Risingsun, where he built a hotel, and was in that business during his stay there. He was a Democrat, but of late has not been a partisan. He and his wife are members of the Disciples Church.

Mr. Baker comes of a good family, and is a self-made man, and although well along in years he is in excellent condition, both mentally and physically. He is a respected citizen, and is in comfortable circumstances.

WILLIAM L. BROWNELLER, a highly-respected and public-spirited citizen of Wood county, is a native of Pennsylvania, his birth having occurred in Fayette county, September 28, 1860. His father was also born there, and was a son of Samuel Browneller. The father, Frederick Browneller, was a farmer by occupation, and in Fayette county married Margaret Springer, whose birth also occurred there. They were residents of their native locality until 1870, when they removed to Hancock county, Ohio, where the father purchased 120 acres of land in Liberty township, and afterward added to it an additional tract of forty acres. In 1887 the parents removed to Findlay, Ohio, and their son David is now carrying on the old homestead. They were parents of the following named children: Mary, wife of Ellis Foltz, who is living near Findlay; William L.; James, a farmer of Hancock county; David, on the old homestead; Sarah, wife of Jacob Rada-baugh, of Hancock county; Elizabeth, wife of Charles Conaway, of Hancock county; Joseph, Callie and Flora, at home.

Our subject was only nine years of age when his parents removed to Hancock county. He began his education in his native county, and afterward attended the district schools of Ohio. He completed his education by attendance one term in the Fostoria Academy, attendance two terms at the Findlay High School, and also two terms at the Ada Normal School, at Ada, Ohio. He then returned home and began farming.

In Findlay, on the 7th of February, 1882, Mr. Browneller was joined in wedlock with Miss Elizabeth Bolton, who was born in Hancock county, August 8, 1861, a daughter of Michael Bolton, deceased. Mr. Browneller brought his bride to Wood county, and settled on a farm of 153 acres belonging to his father, whereon he resided for seven years. He then purchased his present farm, comprising seventy-nine acres in Jackson township, and since taking up his residence here has erected a fine home, built good barns, and made other excellent improvements which add to the value and attractive appearance of the place. He is widely recognized as one of the leading and substantial agriculturists of Wood county. The home has been blessed with five children, but Clyde and Mabel are now deceased. The others are Gracie, Earl and Flossie, all under the parental roof.

In his political affiliations, Mr. Browneller is a stalwart Republican; but has neither time nor inclination for public office. He is an active member of the Church of God, of which he is now serving as elder, and has been superintendent of the Sunday-school.

J. H. RHEINFRANK, M. D., a leading physician and surgeon of Perrysburg, was born September 28, 1840, in Bridgewater, Michigan.

His grandparents, Zachariah and Margaret Rheinfrank, were natives of Bavaria, where John Rheinfrank, father of our subject, was born. The family came to the United States about the year 1830, and located at Detroit. John Rheinfrank was for several years engaged there in mercantile pursuits, but later retired to a farm near Bridgewater, where he spent his remaining days. He was twice married, first to Miss Elizabeth Lindenschmidt, from which marriage resulted four children, of whom the subject of this sketch is the eldest. The brother, George A., lives at the old homestead; one sister, Martha, has her home near Bridgewater; the other sister, Amelia, died in early youth. After the death of his first wife, the father married Christina Gruber, and to this union three children were born, all of whom are now living in Michigan.

Our subject attended the graded schools of Ypsilanti in his boyhood, and there early evinced a proficiency in the different lines of study which he pursued. In 1861, he graduated from the classical course of the Ypsilanti schools, and entered the literary department of the University of Michigan. At the outbreak of the war of the Rebellion, he made full preparations to go to the front; but on account of ill health was prevented from enlisting. In 1862, he was enrolled in the Medical Department at Ann Arbor, and two years later, 1864, took his degree of M. D., from that institution. Soon afterward, the Doctor came to Perrysburg, with the intention of making that place his future home, and the scene of his professional career. He endured the usual discouragements of a young practitioner in a strange city, but his high character and mental abilities soon won him a fine standing, as a citizen, while his thorough training secured him a practice which grew with the passing years.

Dr. Rheinfrank had not long been launched upon the high road of life when he married Miss Sophia W. Bruckner, a native of Monroe, Mich., and a lady of fine mental gifts and culture. The education of their four children has been the leading object of their lives, and they may well be proud of their efforts. Eva, who was very recently married to C. G. Lampman, of Buffalo, supplemented her fine literary education by a course in music at the Oberlin Conservatory; W. H. graduated from the Medical Department of the University of Michigan, and is now practicing with his father; George B. has studied two years at the same University, and is at present pursuing a course in architecture, to be completed at Philadelphia; and Frederick Eugene has embarked upon a six-years' schooling in the Law and Literary Departments at Ann Arbor.

Dr. Rheinfrank is a man of broad and generous views, interested in all the questions of the day, and thoroughly alive to every progressive movement in his profession. He is fond of literature, and speaks German and English with equal fluency. In politics, he is a Democrat, having always upheld the principles of true Democracy. He belongs to the fraternal orders of the F. & A. M. and the K. of P., and is a member of the Wood county, Northwestern Ohio, Ohio State, and American and International Medical Societies.

GEORGE W. SNYDER, a thrifty and successful farmer residing in Section 32, Lake township, was born in Liverpool, Medina Co., Ohio, January 14, 1846, and is a son of Adam and Margaret (Snyder) Snyder, both natives of Bavaria, Germany, the former born in November, 1800, and the latter in 1809. After their marriage in their native land, they came to America in 1832, locating first at Liverpool, Medina Co., Ohio, in the midst of a forest, and on that farm continued to live until coming to Troy township, Wood county, in 1855. They made a settlement on the Maumee & Western Reserve Pike, where their remaining years were passed, the father dying in 1879, and the mother in June, 1891, in her eighty-second year. In early life they were members of the Reformed Church, but later became connected with the Lutheran denomination, while in politics, Mr. Snyder was a Democrat. To them were born the following children: Mary, deceased wife of William Zacharias; Adam and Daniel, who are both married, and reside on the Maumee & Western Reserve Pike; Frederick,

John H. Rheinfrank
M.D.

of Michigan; Jacob, of Woodville, Ohio; Catherine; Caroline, wife of William Gartman, of South Cleveland, Ohio; George W.; Lucien, of Troy township; David, of Paulding county, Ohio; and Henry, who is still living on the old homestead in Troy township.

Educated in a primitive school house, reared on a farm, with its usual hardships and privations, were the marked features of the early life of our subject. At the age of ten years he had accompanied his parents to Wood county, where he continued his studies, which had been begun in Medina county. He also learned the trade of a carpenter, at which he worked in Perrysburg for a number of years, and was also employed at the same occupation throughout the county until his marriage.

On September 9, 1871, Mr. Snyder was married to Miss Lucy Goss. She was born in April, 1845, on the farm now owned and occupied by our subject, and is a daughter of John and Hannah (Lewis) Goss, both natives of England, who were among the pioneers of Lake township, where the father died in 1871, at the age of sixty-six years, and the mother in 1882, at the age of eighty-two years. They were faithful members of the Methodist Episcopal Church, and in their family were four children: William, of Troy township; Louis, who resides in Lucas county, near Toledo, Ohio; Mary E., wife of Frederick Snyder; and Lucy, wife our subject. Mr. and Mrs. Snyder have one child, Elsie E., who is attending school. They also reared his nephew, A. G. Snyder, who now practices medicine in Toledo, Ohio. He was educated by our subject, who also sent him to medical college, and gave him a lot in Toledo which he owned.

Mr. Snyder devotes his attention to general farming, and having a large amount of industry, perseverance and energy, has made a noble record as an agriculturist, and stands to-day one of the substantial and reliable citizens of the county. Besides his valuable farm, he also owns city property in Toledo. In his political faith he is a staunch and unswerving Democrat; socially is connected with the Masonic fraternity; and religiously is a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church at Stony Ridge, this county.

FREDERICK HERRINGSHAW has been a resident of Wood county since the age of four years, and that his life is a well-spent one is indicated by the fact that those who have known him from boyhood are numbered among his staunchest friends. He was born in Huron county, Ohio, May 19, 1856, and is a son of John and Mary A.

(Lyon) Herringshaw. He is indebted to the district schools of Liberty township for his educational privileges, and his first teacher was a Mr. Woodbury, an excellent instructor, and a strict disciplinarian. He left school at the age of eighteen, and afterward devoted his entire attention to the work of the home farm until his marriage.

In Findlay, Ohio, September 13, 1883, Mr. Herringshaw was joined in wedlock with Nora B. Needham a native of Ohio, born September 29, 1863, and a daughter of Amos and Jennie (Edgar) Needham. Her mother died when Mrs. Herringshaw was a small child, and she was reared by strangers, being an inmate of the home of Mr. Dirk, of North Baltimore, at the time of her marriage. Four children have been born to our subject and his wife, namely: John, who was born July 21, 1884; William Frederick, born May 17, 1887; Lula Viola, born June 9, 1892, and Frederick Merl, born August 8, 1896.

Prior to his marriage, Mr. Herringshaw had purchased ninety-seven acres of land upon which he has since resided, forty acres lying in Liberty township, the remaining fifty-seven acres in Henry township. He has made all the improvements upon the place, has cleared his farm of indebtedness, and is to-day numbered among the substantial citizens of the community. His political support is given the Republican party, but he has never sought office. His wife is a member of the United Brethren Church, of Wingston. The cause of education finds in Mr. Herringshaw a warm friend, and he is a thorough gentleman, possessed of many excellent qualities.

JAMES STRATSBERY, a prominent agriculturist and fruit-grower of Weston township, was born in Guernsey county, Ohio, March 15, 1830, and is the son of Napoleon B. and Mary (Lowe) Stratsbery.

The father of our subject was born in Virginia, of English parentage, and when a young man took up his residence in Guernsey county, Ohio, where he followed farming, and where he was married. Fifteen children were born to him, of whom James is the eldest; the others in the order of their births are as follows: Robert resides in Indiana; Rosanna, wife of Thomas Westbrook, resides in Brown county, Ind.; Ebenezer is a farmer in Wisconsin; Margaret is the wife of Joseph Shipman, of Weston; William is a farmer in Weston township; Mahlon is a resident of Brown county, Ind.; Elizabeth is the wife of David Kesster, and lives in Michigan; Finlay is a resident of Brown county, Ind.; Joshua is residing in Brown county, Ind.; Sarah Ann (Mrs. John Palmer) lives in Noble county, Ohio; Wesley is deceased; the other three died in infancy. The father of this large family died in Mercer county, Ohio, in 1867, the mother surviving him until 1895.

The subject of this sketch obtained his education in the schools of Noble county, Ohio, and was there employed at the breaking out of the Civil war. In the fall of 1861 he enlisted in Company K, 40th O. V. I., under Col. Cramer and Capt. Knapp. The family of Napoleon Stratsbery was well represented in the Union ranks—the father and four sons (James, Robert, Ebenezer and Finlay) all becoming soldiers, and serving throughout the war. Among the battles in which our subject participated were those of Middle Creek and Sand River, at the latter of which he was wounded in both legs, and was sent to the hospital, from which he was discharged in 1863. After recovering from his severe injuries Mr. Stratsbery went to Cambridge, Ohio, and engaged in the manufacture of corn-shellers, in which he met with good success. Later he went into the manufacture of brooms and lath, subsequently taking up contracting on railroad work, building ditches, etc. Among the contracts he carried out were the Jackson cut-off, the construction of six miles of the Nickel Plate, six miles of grading on the Coldwater railway, and six miles on the P. F. & W. railway. In 1879 he purchased twenty-five acres of land in Weston township, to which he has added by degrees until he now owns 115 acres, and has become one of the largest fruit and berry growers in the county. His place is finely improved, having on it a handsome residence, as well as capacious barns and outbuildings, and in the summer season, when luscious berries tempt the palate, and, later, the autumn fruits hang heavy on the boughs, it is a delightful spot to visit. The well-known hospitality of the owner and his interesting family draws to his pleasant home a large circle of friends and acquaintances, and many pleasant reunions take place there.

Mr. Stratsbery has been twice married, first time in Guernsey county, Ohio, April 16, 1851, to Miss Mary A. Stoner, and they had four children, only one of whom is now living. A brief record of them is as follows: Flora died when seventeen years old; Ernest E., who was a farmer and speculator in land bonds, and loaned money, died in Wyandot county, Ohio, in 1892; Joseph was a professor of elocution in Valparaiso, Ind., and died in 1888; Foster is a baggage-master on the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy railroad, at Burlington, Iowa. The mother of these children passed away in 1865, and July 1, 1866, Mr. Stratsbery was married, in Weston, to Miss Anna Lingo, who was born January 7, 1842, and six children have blessed their union: James, a farmer in Weston township; John W., assisting his father in the management of his property, and is an energetic and enterprising young man who has a bright future before him; Fred; Gertrude; and Mary Grace, who died when nine years of age.

Mr. Stratsbery is a Republican in politics, and is a loyal citizen. He is a prominent member of the G. A. R., belonging to Neibling Post, No. 20, at Weston. He is affiliated with the Masonic Lodge at Weston, and has taken the third degree; belongs, also, to the I. O. O. F. and Encampment, and to the K. of P., and he and his wife are members of the Order of Rebekah. Mrs. Stratsbery is also a member of the Woman's Relief Corps, and of the Aid Society, in all these organizations taking a prominent part, and being well known for her efficiency and executive ability.

Mr. and Mrs. Stratsbery have witnessed many changes in their lives, and have taken no small part in the progress and growth of the community in which they have so long resided. They are now seeing the results of their labors, and, in the midst of their family and large number of friends, are enjoying a quiet and comfortable life, conscious that their best efforts have been given to their country and their fellowmen.

PETER NYSWANDER, a pioneer farmer of Weston township, was born in Fairfield county, Ohio, September 6, 1834. The father of our subject, Christian Nyswander, was born in Berne, Switzerland, and came to this country with his parents when he was twelve years of age, they settling in Fairfield county. He married Elizabeth Deering, and six children were born to them as follows: Peter; Mary, who is the wife of Levi Simons, of Bloom township; John E., who died in Bloom township; Sarah, who married Adam Rettick, and lives in Florida, Henry Co., Ohio; Reuben, a resident of Napoleon, Ohio; and Jennie, who married John Long, a merchant of Paulding county. The father of our subject removed to Milton township, Wood county, buying and afterward selling 160 acres of land, thence going to Missouri, where he remained six years, at the end of which time he returned to Bloom township. His death occurred December 31, 1893, at Florida, Henry Co., Ohio. The mother died in Bloom township in 1881.

Peter Nyswander went to school in Milton township in the old log school house, which was the temple of learning in those early days, and was instructed in the branches then taught, which, it is safe to say, did not extend far beyond the "three R's." He worked for his father until he was nineteen years old, and then started in life for himself. For the next six or seven years he was employed in clearing up land for other people, at the close of that period buying sixty acres of unimproved land on which was built a log cabin, and devoted himself to its improvement. In the course of time he added some thirty-two and a half acres to it, and as the result of hard and patient labor he has to-day a valuable property under a good state of cultivation. The log house is supplanted by a handsome residence, and the rude outbuildings by fine barns, while modern machinery lessens the work of the farmer. In this pleasant home Mr. Nyswander is reaping the reward of his early years of hardship and toil, and, with his interesting family about him, is taking life easily and comfortably.

Our subject was married at Napoleon, Ohio, 1871, to Susan Beverson, who was born February 6, 1853. Her father, Samuel Beverson, was a shoemaker by trade, and also followed farming. He married Maria Weaver, and twelve children were born to them. He and his wife, both of whom have reached a good old age, are now living in Fulton county, Ohio.

To Mr. and Mrs. Nyswander six children have been born as follows: Jennie May, April 22, 1872; Sarah E., September 26, 1873; Edward, March 31, 1876; Reuben, January 9, 1878; Ella M., January 18, 1886; and Jacob, April 17, 1889. In politics our subject is a Populist. He has been a school director for a number of terms, and is a man highly regarded by his fellow citizens for his integrity, good common sense and liberal-minded views.

DAVID GIRTON (deceased) was a native of the Keystone State, born in Columbia county, on July 19, 1813, and, as his mother died when he was quite small, he was reared by a maternal aunt. When a young man he removed with relatives to Ashland county, Ohio, where he met the lady who now bears his name. In Orange township, that county, on May 21, 1844, he was united in marriage with Miss Rebecca Fast, who was there born May 7, 1825, and is a daughter of Jacob and Catherine (Rex) Fast. Her paternal grandfather, Christian Fast, was one of the well-known pioneers of Ashland county, in whose life many interesting incidents occurred, which have appeared in print many times. At one time he was taken by the Indians, and held in captivity for eighteen months.

For seventeen years, Mr. Girton resided in Orange township, Ashland county, and on coming to Wood county, in 1861, was still in debt for his farm of eighty acres there. He was a hard-working, energetic man, and all that he had was secured through his own labors. He drove through to Wood county, bringing his family, which then comprised nine children, and in Perry township purchased eighty acres of land in Section 10, and twenty acres in Section 11. Eight acres of the amount only had been cleared, and the improvements consisted only of a log cabin and pig pen. A heavy growth of timber covered the place, and the land was mostly under water, especially in the spring, the only means of going to the neighbors being to walk on the logs in order to keep from getting wet. Mr. Girton continued to improve and cultivate his land until his death, which occurred April 3, 1869, and his remains were interred at Perry Center. In height he was five feet eight inches, weighed only 135 pounds, was never very strong, and his health was quite poor the last two years of his life. In politics he was a Democrat, and as a citizen had the respect and confidence of all who knew him.

At his death he left the widow with a family of ten children, and a debt of $600 upon his place. With the help of her sons, Mrs. Girton was able to keep her home, and to-day has 120 acres of as good land as can be found anywhere in the township. The place is neat and thrifty in appearance, the buildings are of substantial character, and all the improvements found thereon have been made by members of the family.

The education of Mrs. Girton was such as the subscription schools of her neighborhood afforded; but at that time it was considered unnecessary for girls to have much of an education. She has reared a family, of which she may justly be proud; her sons have become prominent and enterprising citizens of the various communities in which they reside, while her daughters have become good housekeepers and faithful wives, and they always acted under her instruction, seeking her advice until they started out in life for themselves. Religiously she is connected with the Evangelical Church, and she is one of the most highly respected ladies of Perry township.

Her children are as follows: Perry Girton, born March 14, 1845, lives in Gratiot county, Mich.; Sarah J., born November 12, 1846, is now Mrs. Jonathan Snyder, of Gratiot county, Mich.; John G., born July 19, 1848, is a farmer of Perry township; Mary M., born January 18, 1850, is the wife of George Castrit, of West Millgrove, Ohio; David K., born May 13, 1852, resides in Scott township, Sandusky Co., Ohio; Jacob I., born April 28, 1854, died in Perry township January 23, 1869; Hudson P., born April 1, 1856, lives in Johnson county, Mo.; Wilson W., born February 27, 1858, died March 23, 1883, in Perry township; Martin G., born June 27, 1860, is a farmer of Perry township; and Flora E., born March 16, 1866, is now Mrs. Amos Bowers, of Montgomery township, Wood county.

EDWARD W. DE VERNA, one of the honored pioneer settlers of Wood county, was born on Westminster, in London, England, December 14, 1829. Edward De Verna, his father, also born in England, was of French descent. By profession he was a surgeon, and for a number of years governor of a penitentiary. He married Cecelia Sarvis, a native of England, and they became the parents of two sons: Edward W., and Henry A., a farmer of Ottawa county, Ohio. Crossing the Atlantic, the family located in Chatham, county of Kent, Ontario, Canada, where the father was given one thousand acres of land in recognition of services rendered his country. He died there in 1859, surviving his wife six years. George De Verna, grandfather of our subject, was a captain in the British army the greater part of his life; while an uncle, Major Crane, was in the same service, losing a limb at some engagement—in fact many of Mr. De Verna's relatives were military men, and he has inherited not a little of their martial air, being still quite erect, though sixty-seven years old, taking also much delight in drilling a company of cadets at Dunbridge.

Our subject was baptized in the grand and historic structure which has played an important part in England's history—Westminster Abbey. He is entirely self-educated, but is to-day a very well-read man. At the age of twelve he came with his parents to Canada, where he was employed on a farm until 1857, after which he worked his uncle's farm three years on Hull Prairie, in Wood county; he then purchased eighty acres of timber land, and built a log cabin. During those early days the hardships and trials of pioneer life were many and arduous; so much so that he saw his children crying for bread, his wife crying to see them cry, and he himself had nothing; but as time passed he has added to his possessions, and now owns 340 acres of valuable land, much of which lies in Perrysburg township, and is operated by his sons. He erected a fine residence at a cost of $3,500, which was destroyed by fire. In 1888 he purchased twenty acres of land in Dunbridge, erected thereon a comfortable dwelling, and now has one of the best improved farms in the locality, in addition to general agriculture, operating a threshing machine, feed-mill, corn-sheller and clover-huller.

In October, 1852, at Chatham, Canada, Mr. De Verna married Eliza Barfoot, who was born in London, England, June 20, 1827. The following is the record of their family: Emma, born September 1, 1854, is the wife of Henry Shubb, of Perrysburg; Frank was born in May, 1856, and Edward in June, 1858; Mary A., born in November, 1860, is the wife of George Chamberlain; Eliza, born in 1863, is the wife of William Cload, an engineer in Michigan; Abraham, born in 1864, is a farmer of Perrysburg township; Florence, born in 1868, is at home; and George B., born in 1871, is an agriculturist of Perrysburg township.

During the war of the Rebellion, Mr. De Verna enlisted in Perrysburg township, September 24, 1862, in Company L, 3rd O. V. V. C., which was attached to the 2nd Brigade, 14th Army Corps. For two years and ten months he faithfully defended the old flag and the cause it represented, being honorably discharged August 4, 1865, at Edgefield, Tenn., having served two years and eleven months. He never lost a day from his regiment owing to sickness, was never wounded or taken prisoner, and, though a private during his entire service, he was often detailed to take charge of small expeditions, thereby seeing much active service. On one of his expeditions he captured two beautiful blooded horses from bushwhackers; on another, he had the pleasure of knocking, with his saber, a horn out of the mouth of a Rebel, who was going to call for help, while Mr. De Verna's comrades were helping themselves in the smoke house. At the battle of Atlanta, he partially lost his hearing. He is a loyal, devoted citizen, a member of the American Protective Association, of Toledo, Ohio, and of the Loyal Orange Association, of Canada; he is also connected with Phoenix Lodge, No. 123, F. & A. M., of Perrysburg. For five years he served on the board of education, and he is a liberal member of the Presbyterian Church of Dunbridge. The day he was married Mr. De Verna commenced to keep a diary of the daily events of his life, which is still unbroken save some leaves he sent home while he was in the army, and which were lost, and a portion destroyed by fire when his home was burned. In his own language we will here add what Mr. De Verna says concerning his daily habits, etc.: "When a boy I was selected for a Sabbath-school teacher, and have been superintendent of Sabbath-school nearly forty years, besides being class leader and an elder of the Church during same years. This I had to resign on account of my hearing becoming effected, and am now first Bible class teacher. I have never been intoxicated in my life, nor have I ever been guilty of using or tolerating bad language, or ever swore an oath. I have never smoked a pipe of tobacco, or a cigar, nor have I ever taken a chew of tobacco. I am a lover of home and am beloved by my family, whom I encourage in all that is good, especially music. In my house I have at the present time, and have had for years, music, piano, organ, harp, flute, cornet, solo alto horn, and a violin, on which latter I am accompanied by my daughter on the piano or organ. At one time I was a member of three different bands, but, that life not suiting me, I gave it up. Of my four sons not one drinks, smokes or chews tobacco—God bless them! My youngest daughter has been organist in the Church some two or three years, and is now president of the Christian Endeavor. So much for teaching, and the example set. Their mother is equally good, but more strict. God has blessed and prospered me all through life, and I will close my days with a light and happy heart. These few lines I desire to have perpetuated in print for the benefit of the generations that will follow me."

Edw. W. Deberna

PERRY C. CHILCOTE, proprietor of the "Chilcote House" at West Millgrove, is one of the best known landlords in Wood county, and his hotel stands in the front rank of the hostleries in the county. "Perry," as he is familiarly called, is one of the most accommodating hosts to be found anywhere, and seems to consider it a pleasure to do a service for a guest. His establishment is complete in every respect, and his good wife, in her turn, leaves nothing undone to make it a pleasant, comfortable home for the weary traveler.

Mr. Chilcote was born February 18, 1841, in Perry township, Wood county, son of Joseph and Elizabeth (Jones) Chilcote. When he was five years old his father was permanently injured. A horse ran away with him, dragging him around a twenty-acre field largely covered with logs and stumps, and fracturing his skull in such a manner that the bone rested upon the brain. He never recovered from the effect of the accident, and his restoration to life was due to the prompt action of his son, James, who, as soon as the horse was caught, removed the dirt quickly from his father's mouth and nostrils, and breathed into his lungs the breath of life! The accident so completely exhausted Mr. Chilcote that he was unconscious for several days. He was ever afterward tenderly cared for by his wife, to whom this was no small burden, as she had at that time six children needing her constant attention. Soon after this event the family moved to Seneca county, Ohio, where Perry, when eight years old, went to work for his uncle, Gideon Jones, for one shilling per day. When eleven years old he began work on a farm belonging to Israel Nestlerode, here receiving four dollars per month, and he lived with various other farmers, being at home only a small portion of his time, but giving most of his earnings to his parents. He was a strong, robust boy, and physically much superior to the average man. When the Civil war broke out he was working for R. W. Kelly, who made him a most liberal offer: he would give him the use of his best team and all the land that he could farm bear all the expenses, and allow Mr. Chilcote one-third of all the crops he could raise, telling him he would "see him through." But this was no inducement to Perry. He dropped the plow and seized his gun, and on August 15, 1861, was enrolled in Company H, 49th Regiment, O. V. I., and marched away to defend the stars and stripes. He took part in some of the most famous battles of the war, among them those of Stone River, Corinth, Shiloh and Chickamauga. At the latter place he was taken prisoner, and was held as such just fourteen months, during that time seeing terrible hardships in the Rebel prisons of Belle Isle, Richmond, Danville and Andersonville. On November 20, 1864, he was exchanged, and was taken by a vessel from Savannah, Ga., to the parole camp at Annapolis, where he was paroled, after which he returned to Ohio, here receiving his final discharge at Columbus, on January 21, 1865.

The marriage of Mr. Chilcote and Miss Martha J. Harts took place in Montgomery township, January 5, 1867. Mrs. Chilcote was born in Cumberland county, Penn., April 17, 1851, and is the daughter of Conrad and Eliza (McMillen) Harts, who came to Wood county when their daughter was two years old. No children have ever been born to this union. For a short time after his marriage Mr. Chilcote rented a small farm in Montgomery township, and later removed to West Millgrove, where he acted as fireman and engineer in the gristmill of Col. Miles, having learned this business with his brother James. From West Millgrove he went onto the home farm in Section 26, Perry township, remaining there a year, when he returned to his former home and worked at teaming and farming. He also for several years carried on a shingle factory in company with his brother Marcus D.

On April 21, 1877, Mr. Chilcote assumed the management of the hotel known as the "Millgrove House," which had been conducted by William McCormick. For this property he traded his house and lot in Millgrove, and a balance, which left him over a thousand dollars in debt. The name of the hotel was afterward changed to that of the "Chilcote House," which is now one of the most widely known and popular public houses in northern Ohio. Besides this property Mr. Chilcote owns a house and lot in West Millgrove, and is comfortably fixed financially. He is one of the staunchest Republicans in the county, and an active worker in the interests of his party. He has served as constable of the township. For over twenty-five years he has been a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church, and has been a class-leader and superintendent of the Sunday-school. At present he is acting as steward. His wife, who is a most kind-hearted and excellent woman, is also a consistent Methodist. Mr. Chilcote is a member of Conley Post, G. A. R., at West Millgrove.

JOHN MCHENRY was born in the county of Lennox, Canada, in 1846, and is of Irish descent, his father, Daniel McHenry, being a native of County Antrim, Ireland. The name was originally spelled McKendry, and is well-known in the North of Ireland, from which locality the grandfather of our subject, also named John, came at an early day, settling in Canada, and dying at Quebec. Three of his brothers located in Philadelphia, Penn. Daniel McHenry came to America with his father, and made his home in the county of Lennox, Canada, where he purchased a large tract of land and carried on farming the remainder of his life. His wife was Margaret Sixmith, of Queen's County, Ireland. Twelve children were born of this union, of whom the following grew to maturity: Rachel married Patrick McKeller, and lives in Bradford, Penn.; Eliza P. lives on a farm in Canada; John comes next; Charles is engaged in mining in Colorado; James is a farmer in Canada; Mary lives in Chicago, Ill.; and Thomas is a millwright, living in Canada.

The subject of this sketch remained upon his father's farm in Canada until reaching his majority, when he came to the United States and located in the oil fields of Pennsylvania. There he found employment as a tool dresser and driller, which occupation he followed for a time, and then came to Ohio and to Wood county, where he has since been employed in tracing and drilling wells, for producers. Since locating in this county, Mr. McHenry's fortune has been varied. At this writing he has a half-interest in a favorable lease in the Portage field, on which are located nine good producing wells. Mr. McHenry is a man of great industry and persistence, and deserves success in life. He is a Populist in politics, and believes in the doctrines of the Free-Soil party. In religious faith he is a Catholic; socially he belongs to the Masonic order. He is popular with all classes, a man of the highest integrity, and possesses the best traits of the warm-hearted, impulsive race from which he sprung. He was married in Canada, November 28, 1871, to Miss Agnes Frizzell, and they have two children: Maggie and Charles.

P. F. CLINE, a prominent farmer and valued citizen of Perry township, was born near Utica, Licking Co., Ohio, November 24, 1832. His parents were John and Phoebe (Fahs) Cline, the former of whom was born in Pennsylvania, and the latter in Hampshire county, W. Va., in which latter State they were married.

Some seven or eight years after his marriage, John Cline removed to Licking county, Ohio, in company with two other families, and each man took up a quarter section of land. A little later Mr. Cline and his two friends went bail for a local merchant, who afterward fled the country and left them in the lurch. Mr. Cline's land was seized, and he was left with but one cow and a poor team of horses. The object of these men in taking up land in this section was to improve the country and provide a market which would attract other settlers, the merchant, who treated them so shamefully, having agreed to buy all their products. The advent of the canal, which was soon to be put through, was expected to prove a great feature in the development of the country, and these prosperous settlers, who were all public-spirited men, had thought by their efforts to greatly benefit the community. Frustrated in his efforts, and greatly reduced financially, Mr. Cline removed to Fairfield county, and settled near Lancaster, where he undertook to repair his lost fortune, but only partially succeeded, as the troubles he had seen preyed upon his health, and his death occurred when he was comparatively a young man.

The parental family consisted of twelve children, eight boys and four girls, most of whom were old enough to work for themselves, and in this way the family remained together and prospered. They lived in Fairfield county until about 1846, at which time the National pike was being improved through Licking county, and this affording an opportunity for employment for the boys, the family moved to Licking county, settling sixteen miles east of Columbus, where the boys went to work on the great thoroughfare. It was from here that the family scattered and several members passed away, including the mother, three brothers and two sisters. One brother who went to California, in 1849, died there; one sister died in Chicago, and one, at the age of twenty, in Fairfield county, while another brother died in northwestern Illinois. The three children now living are as follows: Our subject; Mollie, now Mrs. John Pevers, of Hardin county, Ohio; Isaac, who lives near Columbus Grove, in Hancock county, Ohio. The father of this family was six feet tall, and a strongly built man. He had poor advantages for book learning in early life, but had a wonderful memory and a good practical education.

When a boy our subject worked on the farm of his father, turning his hand to whatever he could find to do. At one time he hauled stone chips, which were made in dressing stone while the State house in Columbus was being built, which chips were used in making repairs on the National pike. Later he attended school at Ætna, Licking county, where he had excellent opportunities for learning, which he improved to good advantage. When seventeen years old he began to learn the carpenter's trade under Jacob Schaff, of Ætna, with whom he worked for over two years. After working for several years at his trade in different counties in Ohio, Mr. Cline left the State, going, in about 1854, to Chicago. He had been there but a short time when the cholera broke out, the deaths averaging some four hundred a day. The principal remedy at this time for this dread disease was the essence of peppermint and brandy, which was found to be very efficacious. Owing to this epidemic Mr. Cline did not remain in Chicago, but returned to Ohio, making his home for a time in Adrian, Seneca county, where he remained until 1856. He then went to Kansas, and was there during the stirring times caused by the Abolition troubles. He took an active part himself in some of the events, and once rode ninety miles without a dismount, being closely pursued by a number of outlaws.

Subsequently Mr. Cline went to St. Louis, where he worked at his trade, afterward going to Kansas City, where he did considerable work on the first bridge which was built across the Kansas river from that city to Wyandotte city. Kansas City was then a small place, having but one hotel. The following winter he spent in the South, going as far as New Orleans, where he worked at his trade. He also traveled over the State of Missouri, and on his return worked throughout the State of Ohio. He made good wages by this roving way of living, and spent his money as easily as it was earned. The winter of 1858-59 he also spent in the South, and near Vicksburg built a house for a wealthy Southern planter. He spent his time in this way, working in the South during the winters and during the summers in the northern States, until the spring of 1861, when the Civil war broke out. At that time Mr. Cline came up the Mississippi on one of the last of the boats to make the journey, which was not fired upon by the Southerners. This vessel contained many refugees who were fleeing to the North to escape being forced into the Rebel army. Mr. Cline went at once to Tiffin, Ohio, where he worked at his trade, and on March 22, 1862, he was married to Miss Anna Steward, a daughter of Archie Steward, who was of Scotch extraction. Mrs. Cline was born September 25, 1835, near Republic, Seneca Co., Ohio.

The young couple went to housekeeping in Adrian, Ohio, and on August 1 of the same year Mr. Cline enlisted in Company K, 101st O. V. I., under Capt. Noble. He was made second lieutenant, as he had recruited the greater part of the company. The regiment was mustered in at Monroeville, Ohio, and two days later left for Covington, Ky., where it had a lively skirmish, and a few of them had an exciting race for their lives, as Lieut. Cline, with twenty men, was reconnoitering five miles out from the city, when they were surprised by a large force of Rebels. They, however, escaped without injury. He participated in all the skirmishes and battles in which his regiment took part until December 1, 1863, when, being disabled by illness, he was honorably discharged, and returned to Republic, Ohio, where his wife was then living.

In the fall of 1864, Mr. Cline located in Montgomery township, Wood county, where he bought eighty acres of partially improved land. For this he paid one-half down, the remainder to be paid in two installments; but, before the second payment became due, he sold that property and bought his present farm of 160 acres in Section 9, Perry township, for which he went heavily in debt. He at once went to work to improve this land, which has been his home ever since, and which is now one of the finest farms in the township. He has disposed of a part of it, and now has 159 $\frac{3}{4}$  acres under fine cultivation. When he took possession of it only forty acres were cleared, and every building on it has been erected by himself. In 1878 he built a beautiful residence, where he is spending his days in peace and happiness.

On April 2, 1865, Mrs. Cline died in Montgomery township, and was buried near Republic. She left one child, Anna, now the widow of Walter Coe, who lives with her two children, Lena and Lester, at the home of her father. In the spring of 1866, Mr. Cline was married to Mrs. Laura Simons, whose husband, Lieut. Silas Simons, of Company E, 49th Regiment, O. V. I., was killed at Pickett's Mills, Ga. Mrs. Cline was born in Fostoria, Ohio, September 19, 1840, and is the daughter of Osman Divers, who in his time was one of the largest land-owners in Wood county. Two children have been born to Mr. and Mrs. Cline, namely: Vic. I., now Mrs. Scott Emerson, of Bloom; and Charles W., residing with his parents. Mrs. Cline is a member of the Disciples Church.

Mr. Cline has carried on farming for a number of years, at one time also being engaged in stock raising. He was born and reared a Democrat; but in the fall of 1860 cast his vote for Abraham Lincoln, and has been a staunch Republican ever since. He has never been an office-seeker, but an active worker for the success of his party, and through his efforts some of the best officials in the county have been elected. He is a politician from principle, and instead of using his influence in his own behalf he has never asked for office, but has endeavored to find out and secure the election of men the best qualified to fill responsible positions. He is an enterprising and progressive man, and a loyal citizen.

SAMUEL MCKEE, a well-to-do farmer of Liberty township, is the owner of a good farm of sixty acres, on which he erected, in 1892, a beautiful residence. This stands in the midst of well-tilled fields, while good barns and outbuildings provide ample shelter for grain and stock. All the equipments and accessories of a model farm are here found, and the owner is regarded as one of the leading agriculturists of the community.

Mr. McKee was born in Washington county, Penn., April 16, 1827, and is a son of Thomas and Nancy (Shellar) McKee. The father was born in Ireland in 1793, and when about nine years of age was brought to America by his parents, John and Mary (Gartley) McKee. The family landed at New York, and went direct to Pennsylvania, the grandfather entering a part of the land on which Philadelphia now stands. He afterward sold that tract and removed to Northumberland county, Penn., where he remained for several years. His next home was in Washington county, Penn., and later he went to Guernsey county, Ohio, where both the grandfather and the grandmother died at the home of their son John, in 1837. Their children were William, Thomas, Robert, Catherine, Nancy, and Ellen and Elizabeth (twins).

Thomas McKee, father of our subject, served for about nine months in the war of 1812, enlisting at the age of nineteen. In Pennsylvania he learned the trade of shoemaking, which he followed in connection with farming. For nineteen years he lived in Guernsey county, Ohio, and then removed with his family to Seneca county, where he purchased eighty acres of land, which he operated some four years. On selling that property he removed to Fostoria, Ohio, where he then lived retired until his death, in 1861. His wife died on the farm in Seneca county, in August, 1849. Their children were Mary, who became the wife of William Hutton, and died in North Baltimore, Ohio; Elizabeth, who married Levi Adams, and died in Liberty township; Matilda, who died in Guernsey county at the age of fourteen; Rebecca, wife of Samuel Hytar, of Bloomdale, Wood county; Samuel; Robert, who was killed by a falling tree in Henry county, at the age of twenty-one; Nancy, widow of William Ramsbottom, of Fostoria, who served five years at the time of the Civil war, and died from his wounds; Jane, wife of L. H. Laney, of Liberty township; Harriet, wife of James Hunt, of Fostoria; and Dorcas, who died at the age of fifteen.

Our subject was a child of two years when his parents came to Ohio. He obtained his education in the schools of Guernsey county, and at the age of twenty-four learned the carpenter's trade, which he followed for many years. On April 22, 1858, he was married in Fostoria, Ohio, to Mary Stevens, who was born in Seneca county April 26, 1836, and is descended on the paternal side from Scotch ancestry, and on the maternal side from German. Her parents were natives of Ohio, but were married in Washington county, Penn., and afterward removed to Seneca county, Ohio, where the father died May 24, 1849, while the mother passed away September 28, 1868. They had six children: Sarah, who first married Jacob Frinth, and after his decease became the wife of John Wininger (she died in Fostoria, Ohio); Bayard E., an army surgeon, who was never heard from after the battle of Shiloh; Mrs. McKee; Priscilla, wife of Mathew Keo, of Liberty township; Allen, of Fostoria, Ohio; and Thomas, who died at Nashville while serving in the Union army.

Samuel McKee

Mary McKee

The family of Mr. and Mrs. McKee number three children: Armeda C., born October 21, 1866; Elden, born August 31, 1872, and Loy, born September 6, 1876.

On August 29, 1863, our subject enlisted in the Ohio National Guard, 49th Regiment, to serve for five years. He was mustered into the United States service in May, 1864, in the call for "one-hundred-day" men, and was honorably discharged May 1, 1866. In 1871 Mr. McKee came with his family to Wood county, and since 1877 he has resided upon his present farm. His political support is given to the Republican party, but he has never been an office seeker, preferring to devote his time and energies to his business interests, in which he is meeting with good success.

C. S. ST. JOHN, M. D., a well-known physician of Bowling Green, was born in Plain township, Wood county, November 13, 1854, and is the son of S. W. and Harriet Jane (Husted) St. John. The family is of French descent, the ancestors of our subject coming to this country in an early day, and representatives are found in many States of the Union.

The father of our subject was a native of New York, born June 30, 1817. He moved thence to Milan, Erie Co., Ohio, and in September, 1843, removed to Bowling Green, where he was married and spent the remainder of his life, dying December 7, 1893. He was originally a Whig, later becoming a Republican, and held the office of commissioner of Wood county for seven years. He belonged to a large family, of whom the following grew to maturity: Mrs. Nicholas Kline, formerly of Milan, Ohio, now deceased; Henry, living in Portland, Ore.; Mrs. Nathan Moore, residing in Toledo; and Ezra, also living in Portland, Ore. The mother of Dr. St. John, who is still living, was born June 5, 1833, in Tioga county, Penn., and was one of six children, namely: Mrs. Leverton (now deceased), who lived in Wood county; Joel, residing in Toledo; Clarinda, widow of Judge Ewing, residing at Piqua, Ohio (Judge Ewing was a pioneer of Wood county, and died August 20, 1890; he was president of the Wood County Pioneer Society); Harriet Jane; Philander, a resident of Wood county; and Findlay. The Husted family is of Pennsylvania-Dutch stock. To our subject's father and mother were born seven children, viz.: Mary Ann, deceased wife of G. W. Callin; Clement W., who died when twenty-two years old; C. S.; Julia M., who died when sixteen years of age; Ezra H., residing in Bowling Green; Elden, deceased when six years old; and Everett E., who died at the age of seventeen years.

The subject of this sketch was educated in the schools of Fostoria, Ohio, and Valparaiso, Ind., and being dependent upon his own exertions he early showed of what stuff he was made, and his determination to make a name in the world by his persistent efforts to acquire knowledge. During these years he taught school at intervals, being employed both in country districts and in the city public schools, in the latter teaching five years. In this way he earned money enough to pursue his own studies. After completing his literary course, during which he had studied medicine to some extent, he entered the Columbus Medical College, subsequently, in 1883, graduating from the Medical Department of Wooster University. He practiced in Bowling Green one year with Dr. Fuller, and then went to McComb, where he remained two and a half years, at the end of that time returning to Bowling Green, where he has since made his home. Dr. St. John is extensively read, well posted in his profession, and has a large practice in the city and vicinity. He is a member of both the medical societies of the county, also of the board of health, and was at one time a trustee of the Cemetery Association; also served as coroner of Wood county two terms. In politics he is a Republican. Socially, he is a member of the K. of P. and National Union, at Bowling Green. On June 30, 1880, the Doctor was married to Miss Ella Ralston, who was born February 22, 1857, in Wood county, and they have two children, Edith L. and C. Harold.

E. A. Post, like many of the prominent and representative citizens of Wood county, our subject is a native of the Empire State, born in Otsego county, May 10, 1838, and is a son of William P. and Rhoda (Osborne) Post, who removed to Medina, Ohio, when their son was but a child. There the father followed his trade of carpentering until his death at the ripe old age of eighty-five years, while his wife was eighty-one when she passed away.

Mr. Post, of this review, was the only son in the family of eight children, and in the schools Medina secured his education. When a boy he learned the machinist's trade at Bradway's machine shop, and also took up carpentering, at which he worked for some time. In April, 1862, spurred on by a spirit of patriotism that reigned in so many of the bosoms of the young men of our land, our subject enlisted at Medina, in Company G, 84th O. V. I., under Capt. J. C. Powell. From Columbus, Ohio, where the regiment was formed, they were sent to Grafton, W. Va., where they took part in their first engagement. They were assigned to the army of the Potomac, and were in the battles of New Creek and Romney, W. Va., Harper's Ferry and Painted Rocks, after which Mr. Post returned to Cumberland, Md., and was sent home as his term had expired. In September, 1863, he re-enlisted, this time becoming a member of the First Ohio Battery, and saw hard service in Tennessee, being at Chattanooga, Missionary Ridge, Lookout Mountain, the siege of Knoxville and Strawberry Plains. While on a raid he was taken ill and after his recovery was in the engagements at King's Salt Works, Bull's Gap, Greenville, Tenn., Stony River, Leadville, Tenn., Danbridge, Jonesboro and Ashville, N. C. At the latter place they released 5,000 prisoners. After the war was ended they were sent to Knoxville to guard stores and equipments received from Johnston and there were discharged in September, 1865, while at Camp Dennison they were mustered out.

On returning to his home in Medina, Ohio, Mr. Post worked at his trade for some time, but the winter of 1867-68 he passed in Wood county in the employ of John Norris, of Perry township, after which he went again to Medina. There on August 27, 1873, was celebrated the marriage of Mr. Post and Miss Mary A. Fay, who was born at Medina Center, May 20, 1852, and is a daughter of Michael and Margaret (Conway) Fay, who were both natives of County Clare, Ireland, where they were married, and later came to the United States. Mrs. Post is the second in order of birth in their family of nine children, and after receiving a good education taught school in Medina county. By her marriage she has become the mother of three children—William M., born October 30, 1874; Zelotes G., born June 21, 1878; and Ella M., born January 12, 1884.

In the spring of 1875 Mr. Post brought his family to Wood county, locating on an eighty-acre farm in Section 16, Perry township, which he had purchased some years previous. Only four acres had been cleared, and a log house was the only improvement; but since that time a great transformation has taken place. Sixty acres have been placed under the plow, a comfortable dwelling has been erected, and also good barns and other outbuildings, some of the carpenter work being done by his own hands.

Mr. Post's tastes are domestic in character, he taking great delight in his home and family, and is eminently worthy of the trust and high regard which in he is held by his fellow citizens. He takes an intelligent and earnest interest in public affairs, is a stanch Republican, and has served as delegate to the county conventions. He is a charter member of Yates Post, G. A. R., of West Millgrove, Ohio. Mrs. Post takes an active part in religious and temperance work, belonging to the Union Methodist Church, and is secretary of the Home Missionary Society and the local Woman's Christian Temperance Union.

H. A. ELLSWORTH, deceased. Prominent among those who were successful farmers of Wood county may be named the subject of this historical notice, whose homestead was in Section 5, Portage township, and who, by enterprise and energy in the direction of his chosen industry, had given to his work a significance and beauty of which few deemed it capable. He was brought into the world July 23, 1830, in Wyoming county, Penn., and is the son of Leonard and Maria (Dimon) Ellsworth, farming people of but moderate means, who lived and died in the Keystone State. In their family of eleven children, six sons and five daughters, our subject was the fifth in order of birth. He was reared upon a farm, and received his education in the district schools. At the age of twenty-two he commenced his struggle upon the stage of life on his own account, being able at that time to do a good day's work.

In Wyoming county, January 11, 1856, Mr. Ellsworth wedded Miss Betsy A. Waring, a native of New York, who bore him the following children: Lydia J., who died in childhood; Fannie, now Mrs. Owen Borger, of Bowling Green, Ohio; Ella, wife of Lewis Abbott, of Milton Center, Ohio; Albert, of Henry county, Ohio; Andrew, who died in infancy; George, a farmer of Portage township; Charles, who died while young; Emma, now Mrs. Charles Sayer, of Portage village; and Cora, Jessie and Nellia, all at home. Mr. Ellsworth rented land in Pennsylvania until the spring of 1857, when he removed to Liverpool, Medina Co., Ohio, where for six years he kept a hotel, and on selling out came to Wood county, locating on forty acres of timber land in Montgomery township. This was the first tract he had ever owned, and after improving it for some time, sold and purchased fifty acres elsewhere, to which he later added a tract of forty-eight acres. That farm he traded for the home property, consisting of ninety-five acres in Section 5, Portage township, which is highly cultivated and well improved with good buildings.

On December 1, 1890, his first wife passed away, and her remains were interred in Oak Grove cemetery, Bowling Green, Ohio. In Luzerne county, Penn., August 12, 1892, he was again married, his second union being with Mrs. Mary Turcan, widow of William Turcan. Her birth occurred in Kingston, Luzerne county, February 6, 1838, and she is a daughter of Henry and Catherine (Myers) Frace. She acquired her education in the district schools of her native county, and endeavors by a blameless life to set a good example to the rising generation, being a member of the Free Methodist Church.

On coming to Wood county, Mr. Ellsworth suffered considerably from malaria and ague, often having to work whole days when he could hardly stand, but he had invested his entire capital in his land, and his family had to be supported. Many men of less courage would have given up, but love of his family inspired him, and he kept steadily on until he had secured a comfortable competence. Politically he had always been a Democrat until 1892, since which time, until his death, he was a Populist, and a staunch supporter of that party. He passed away May 9, 1896.

GEORGE SIMPKIN was born in Cambridgeshire, England, August 6, 1849. His father, John Simpkin, was a butcher by trade. He married Anne Barley, and they became parents of eight children, namely: Robert, Mary Anne, George, Sarah (wife of Thomas Senate, of England), Lida, Ezekiah, Eliza, and Ellen.

Our subject acquired his education in his native land, and when twenty-five years of age crossed the Atlantic, locating in Toronto, Canada, where for five years he followed the butcher's trade. In 1879 he came to Wood county, Ohio, locating at Scotch Ridge. He purchased eighty acres of land in Center township, erected a dwelling at a cost of $1,000, and has here made a good home, reclaiming the land from its original condition, and transforming it into fertile fields.

Before leaving his native land Mr. Simpkin was married in Cambridgeshire, in 1867, to Eliza Houghton, who was born in that place, in 1850, a daughter of Benjamin and Anna (Day) Houghton. They have three children—John, born in 1868; Alice, born in 1870, now the wife of Isaac Lambright, of Fostoria; and Arthur George, who was born in 1872, and operates the old homestead. When Mr. and Mrs. Simpkin arrived in Canada they had only $20, but their united efforts have brought to them a comfortable competence and a pleasant home, which they richly merit.

W. B. BRYANT, M. D. This well known and popular citizen of Bowling Green, who for two consecutive terms held the responsible office of sheriff of Wood county, was born at Prairie Depot, Wood county, July 1, 1852.

The father of our subject, W. R. Bryant, was born in New York State, coming to Ohio and settling in Wood county at Freeport, about fifteen years ago. He was a lawyer by profession, and practiced in the courts of this and adjoining counties. He married Melissa A. Sherman, who was also a native of New York, and both are now deceased. Their children were eight in number, as follows: Charles enlisted during the Civil war in the 144th O. V. I., was captured by Moseby, and died in the Confederate prison at Salisbury; the second child died in early infancy; Diana is the wife of M. Hall, and lives at Hastings, Mich.; Adolphus died in infancy; George is a planter at South Riverside, Cal.; William B. is our subject; O. N. is postmaster at Freeport, Wood county; Flora A. (deceased) was the wife of S. J. Dunn, of Prairie Depot.

Our subject obtained his literary education in his native place, and in 1872 began the study of medicine. For two years he was in the offices of Dr. Nelson Goodrick, at Freeport, and Dr. Rosendale, of West Millgrove. He was graduated from the Cincinnati Eclectic Medical Institute in 1875, and began the practice of his profession at Freeport, where he remained for two years, then removing to Jerry City, where he had a large general practice. In the fall of 1890 he was elected sheriff of Wood county, and the following year took up his residence in Bowling Green. Wood county is largely Republican, and Dr. Bryant had a majority of only five votes at this election; but so well did he fulfill the duties of that office, that when he ran the second time he received a majority of 323 votes in spite of the fact that the county went over a thousand Republican. He is a man of sterling character, popular with all classes, and possesses good executive ability. He has large oil and real-estate interests in Wood county, and also owns a fine drug store in Toledo, at the corner of Summit and Lagrange streets, which he opened in April, 1896. However, it does not interfere with his practice. Socially he is a member of the I. O. O. F., and K. of P.

Dr. Bryant was married November 25, 1881, to Zidama V. Dunlap, who was born in Ashland county, Ohio, July 16, 1853. Her parents were David and Mary (Gribben) Dunlap, the former of whom was born in Portage county, Ohio, and the latter in Pennsylvania; the mother is now deceased; the father, who is still living, is now seventy-nine years of age. Mrs. Bryant is a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church, and a most estimable woman.

A. EDDMON, M. D., a well-known physician and druggist of Tontogany, was born October 13, 1848, near Philadelphia, a son of Gottlieb Eddmon and wife, who were both natives of Germany. They spent the first years of their married life in America, returning to their old home on account of the ill health of the father, who was a druggist by occupation. The mother died shortly after their return to Germany (the father not long surviving her), leaving four children, of whom our subject, then about five years old, was the youngest, and he was then taken to live with relatives. The others—Frank, Amelia (now deceased), and Anna (the wife of F. Nagle)—all remained in Germany.

Our subject received a liberal education, graduating from Halle University, Germany, in the departments of Literature and Medicine, having studied medicine there from May, 1865, to September, 1868—three years and four months. He then accepted the position of assistant-surgeon on the steamer "Limenia," and visited Chili, as well as other countries of South America, the Society Islands, Tahiti (a French port), and then, leaving the vessel, secured passage on a French Government vessel bound for San Francisco, where he engaged in the drug business. An attack of smallpox having interfered with his plans, he, in the following year, went to Chicago, and there remained until after the great fire, which occurred one week after his arrival. He then made a short visit to his native place, and in December, 1871, revisited Germany, where he again became interested in a drug store, and was also assistant to an old surgeon. In 1876 he returned to America, and after a trip through the Southern States, he attended a course of lectures in Cincinnati. He graduated March 5, 1877, from the Physio-Eclectic Medical College in that city, after which, in the same year, he located at Custar, Wood county, and in December, following, settled in Tontogany, where he has since remained, and where his professional skill and wide range of knowledge have received due recognition. After a few years practice in Tontogany, he opened a drug store there, which he still owns.

In 1879, Dr. Eddmon was married to Miss Catherine Black, a sister to Capt. L. Black, of Tontogany. In politics he is an Independent, and served as township clerk one term; was mayor of Tontogany six years; and has been a notary public since 1879. He is assistant-surgeon for the Cincinnati, Hamilton & Dayton Railroad Co.; socially he is a charter member of the I. O. O. F., Tontogany Lodge No. 755, and has filled all the chairs; is also a member of the K. of P., Perrysburg Lodge No. 524, and has attained the Oriental Degree in the same. In connection with his profession he is affiliated with the American Medical Society, of Ohio, and the American Association of Physicians and Surgeons. In 1882 the Ætna Insurance Co., of Hartford, Conn., appointed him recording agent for Tontogany, and in 1887 the passenger department of the C. H. & D. R. R. appointed him as special agent for Tontogany, and all through traffic is referred to him. Both positions he still occupies, and he stands in high repute with his employers. For the past ten years he has been the recognized authority for the leading Mercantile Agencies at Tontogany.

J. R. JUDSON, who is now living in Bowling Green retired from active business, was born in Medina county, Ohio, April 18, 1837. The Judson family in this country is descended from two brothers, who came from England at an early day and settled in Pennsylvania. One of these subsequently went south, and all trace of him has been lost. The other was the progenitor of that branch of the family to which our subject belongs. Beyond this, the first of whom any definite history has been preserved, is Ithimar Judson, who was born in Pennsylvania, and was the grandfather of the subject of this sketch. He had four brothers, viz.: Isaac, John, William and Egbert, all of whom grew to maturity. He died near Meadville, Penn., leaving two children: Benjamin, father of our subject, and Silva. The latter married Moses H. Herrick, and removed to Clinton county, Iowa. They had four daughters, all of whom married physicians, one of them being the wife of Dr. Very, a druggist in Chicago.

Benjamin Speas Judson was born January 13, 1812, and married Catharine Osgood, born near

A. Edmondson

Elmira, Penn., October 1, 1811. They resided for a time in Bedford county, Penn., and in 1835 removed to Ohio, settling near Waterville, Lucas county, on the Maumee river. There they lived for three years, when they decided to return to Pennsylvania, and started in wagons to make the long journey. On reaching Medina county, Ohio, however, the father was taken ill and they were forced to stop, and as they were pleased with the appearance of the country, they concluded to stay awhile. After living in that county for six years, they abandoned the idea of going to Pennsylvania, and finally decided to locate in Wood county. They reached Plain township in March, 1843, and there made a home for themselves, in which they spent the remainder of their lives, and where the father died in 1864, the mother surviving him until 1887. They were consistent and faithful members of the Methodist Episcopal Church. In politics Mr. Judson was originally an Old-line Whig, uniting with the Republican party after its organization. To this worthy couple six children were born, namely: Ithimar, who died when two years old; Sarah M., who married Ernest Mische, and died in 1864; Ithimar (2), who is a farmer in Perrysburg, Wood county; J. R., subject of this sketch; Miles, born June 18, 1844, is a mechanic and lives in Lucas county, Ohio; Lucie died when about eight years old. The parents of our subject's mother were Thomas and Abigail (Ingalls) Osgood. The former was of Irish descent, and came to Wood county in 1835, taking up his residence in Plain township, where he died.

J. R. Judson came to Wood county, when a lad of some six years, with his parents, and was reared to manhood in Plain township, attending the primitive schools of those days, and gaining as good an education as was possible with such limited advantages. When civil war threatened to dismember the Union, his patriotic impulses led him to enlist in defense of the stars and stripes, and he was one of the first to offer his services. April 18, 1861, he entered his name as a soldier, and the following month was mustered in at Camp Dennison. The State quota was full, however, and his company was not accepted, and he re-enlisted in Company C, 13th O. V. I., for three years, and in June, 1861, was transferred to Company D, 11th O. V. I., but was again doomed to disappointment, as in the following July he was attacked with measles, and was discharged for disability. His anxiety to serve his country did not cease, however, and although chagrined at the fact that his health did not allow him to actively participate in the conflict, he became captain of the home militia company, and assisted in recruiting men for the Union army. He was also an active member of the "Wide Awakes," which organization took such an active part in the political campaign of 1860, when Abraham Lincoln was first elected President.

Mr. Judson was married February 28, 1865, to Miss Elizabeth Mitchell, who was born in Plain township, August 13, 1841, and of this union six children have been born: Florence, born May 20, 1866, was married July 3, 1888, to William Mintel, and has one child, Beatrice; Charles H., born February 9, 1868, married Mertie Abbott, and lives on the old homestead (he is employed in the oil field); Frederick S., born February 2, 1870, died a few days later; William C., born September 26, 1874, is at home, and is employed in the oil field; Albert O., born October 24, 1876, is employed in the Toledo Bicycle Works; his twin brother died in infancy.

After his marriage Mr. Judson settled in Plain township, but a year later removed to Liberty township, where he worked at his trade as a carpenter for some time; but his health failing, he decided to take up farming as a more healthful occupation. He now owns a good farm of fifty-five acres in Liberty township, on which are five productive oil wells. Since 1894 he has resided in Bowling Green. In politics Mr. Judson is a Republican, and his advice is often asked in public matters. He is recognized as a man of broad and liberal views, and of extensive reading and general information. He is highly esteemed as a loyal citizen and a good neighbor.

OTIS BEVERSTOCK, one of the enterprising and rising young men of Wood county, is a native of the same, having been born in 1860 at Tontogany, in Washington township. He is a son of Edward Beverstock, one of the most prominent pioneers of Wood county.

Our subject was reared in his native village, attending the common and business schools there, also taking one term at a business college in Toledo, Ohio. Until he was twenty-two years old he worked on a farm, and then accepted a position with the firm of Royce & Coon, grain merchants, Bowling Green, in whose employ he still remains, in the capacity of general manager.

In 1881, at the age of twenty-one, Mr. Beverstock was united in marriage with Miss Jennie S. Fuller, who was born at Grand Rapids, Mich., and six children have been born to them, named respectively: Bertha, Beryl, Howard, Burt, Ruth, and Donald. Politically our subject is a stanc Republican; socially he is affiliated with the F. & A. M., a member of the Blue Lodge and of the Chapter.

FREDERIC VON KANEL, who for some sixteen years previous to his death, was a resident of Bowling Green, and one of its leading business men, was born in Asche, Canton Berne, Switzerland, September 3, 1848. His parents, David and Susanna (Buhler) Von Kanel, were natives of that country and both died there, the former passing away at Asche, Canton Berne, in 1859, the latter at Chaux-de-Fonds, Canton Neuchatel, in 1873.

The parental family consisted of six children, of whom mention is made as follows: David lives in Massillon, Ohio; Susanna died in the city of Berne, Switzerland; John lives in Akron, Ohio; Christian died in March, 1896, at Chaux-de-Fonds, Canton Neuchatel, Switzerland; Elizabeth married Jacob Russer, and died in Chaux-de-Fonds, in 1874; Frederic was the youngest child.

Our subject attended the schools of Asche, Canton Berne, Switzerland, until after his father's death, when his mother and her children moved to Chaux-de-Fonds, Canton Neuchatel, where Mr. Von Kanel finished his education, and learned the trade of a watchmaker and jeweler, a business which is very general in Switzerland, and in which that people excel. He worked at his trade for five years, in the meantime spending a short period in the military school, and on November 24, 1871, he was married at Chaux-de-Fonds to Miss Elise Marie Maurer. After their marriage the young couple resided for a time in that town, and in 1873 came to America, landing on its shores the 28th of March. They first located at Wooster, Ohio, where they remained for three and a half years, Mr. Von Kanel during that time being watch repairer in the jewelry store of E. Chatlaine. They removed to Tiffin, where he was in business some five months, and in 1877 they took up their residence in Bowling Green.

Mr. Von Kanel began his operations in the latter city in a small way, but his thorough knowledge of his business, combined with his straightforward dealing and pleasant manners, soon brought him a large trade, and he gradually increased his stock and equipments until he became the leading jeweler and silversmith in the county, dealing in all kinds of wares in that line. He was a public-spirited citizen, and gave liberally to any enterprise calculated to forward the growth and prosperity of his community, and was always ready to uphold the institutions of his adopted country. He was a member of the Presbyterian Church, F. & A. M., I. O. O. F., K. of P. and Royal Arcanum.

Mr. Von Kanel was not a man of robust physique, although he was not in poor health all the time; yet he was a very active man, and his death, which took place June 5, 1893, found his family totally unprepared for the sad event. The loss fell heavily on them, and also on the large circle of friends and acquaintances who fully appreciated his sterling worth. By that time his business had assumed large proportions, and was in a flourishing condition, and, although having no experience in such matters, his wife and daughter, Elise Marianne, bravely determined to undertake the management of affairs themselves. Their success has been almost phenomenal. They have carried on the store in an admirable manner, have largely increased the stock, keeping up with the latest styles and fancies of the day, and have not only extended their trade in every direction, but have won the admiration and commendation of the business men throughout the county. They also stand high in social circles, and are a living illustration of what women with brains, force of character, and a determined purpose can accomplish in any line to which they devote their energies.

The family circle consisted of six children, the eldest, Ulysses F., having died when nine months old. Elise Marianne, mentioned above, is a young lady of superior attainments, unusual business ability, and, while she is the main factor in the management of the large jewelry store left by her father, she is at the same time one of the most popular and admired of the society girls in Bowling Green. Adele Anna is a graduate of Bowling Green High School, and is at home. Carrie Mary is also a graduate of the Bowling Green High School. The remaining children are Bertha Susanna and Estelle Florence.

Mrs. Von Kanel, who proved herself a worthy helpmate to her husband, and is a woman of much ability, was born December 3, 1848, at Chaux-de-Fonds, Switzerland, where she was reared and educated. Her parents were Jacob (a farmer) and Marianne (Stauffer) Maurer, the former of whom was born in the town of Renan in 1821, and died in his native country, October 19, 1876. His wife was also born in Renan, the date of her birth being January 11, 1827, and after the death of her husband she came to America in 1878, taking up her residence in Bowling Green where she died September 26, 1888. This worthy couple were the parents of twelve children, namely: Elise M., widow of Frederic Von-Kanel, the subject of this sketch; August, living in Bowling Green; Louis F., living in Minneapolis, Minn.; Ulysses, who died in Switzerland; Marie, who also died in Switzerland; Adolph, residing in Bowling Green; Alfred, a farmer in Wood county; Anna, the wife of W. Parker, of Toledo; Rose, wife of Alexander Klever, of Bowling Green; Melani, who married W. Schafer, of Bowling Green; and Leon and Charlotte, who both died in Switzerland.

ALEXANDER R. BRUCE, an honored veteran of the Civil war, and one of the progressive farmers of Middleton township, is numbered among the pioneer settlers of the county, his birth having occurred in Perrysburg, on the 29th of January, 1836. His father, Seth Bruce, was a native of Massachusetts, and, leaving the Bay State, emigrated to Ohio when a young man. This was in 1834. He settled in Wood county, where he followed the carpenter's trade, and also engaged in farming in Perrysburg township, becoming the owner of eighty acres which he transformed into a rich tract. He was married in the State of his nativity to Mary Tower, and six children were born to them, namely: Deborah, Jessie S., Anna E., Roman M., Alexander and Joseph.

Our subject attended school in a house built of logs at Perrysburg, and in this primitive manner acquired his early education, but experience and observation have made him a well-informed man. In his younger years he followed the carpenter's trade, and also engaged in fishing on the lakes for five years. When the existence of the Union was threatened by the attempted secession on the part of the South, he enlisted in the three-months' service in 1861, as a member of Company C, 21st O. V. I., under Capt. Cook, of Perrysburg, and Col. Norton. When his first term had expired he joined Company C, 128th O. V. I., for three years, under command of Capt. Norris and Col. Hoffman. He participated in all the engagements with his company, and a third time enlisted, joining Company F, of the 144th O. V. I., under Capt. Cook. After that he served on guard duty. His army record was an honorable one, and throughout the war he remained at the front, faithfully defending the Union cause. His health, which then became impaired, he has never regained, and he still suffers quite severely from the effects of his army service.

Mr. Bruce, on returning to Perrysburg township, rented a farm which he operated until 1880, when he came to Middleton township and purchased forty acres of land on Hull Prairie. On account of his ill health his son operates the place. He was married in 1865 in Perrysburg township to Harriet Carter, daughter of Edward Carter, of that township, and to them have been born five children—Emily S., wife of Alva Hum, of Perrysburg township; Marshall, who operates the farm; Esther, at home; and two who died in infancy.

In his political views, Mr. Bruce is a stalwart Republican. He adheres to the faith of the Universalist Church, and has lived an upright, honorable life, characterized by the same fidelity to duty that marked his course on Southern battle fields.

B. W. PURDY, a stock dealer and farmer of Wood county, was born in Springfield, Richland Co., Ohio, March 13, 1833. He is the son of Archibald and Margaret Purdy, the former of whom was born in York county, Penn., and from there moved to Ontario county, N. Y., and there engaged in the milling business for several years, at the time Buffalo was burned, during the war of 1812. Two of his brothers were soldiers in that war. They moved to Mansfield, Richland Co., Ohio, in 1823. They raised a family of ten children: Charles, James, John, Cunningham H., Boyd W., Sarah J., Mary C., Almira, Andrew and William. Three of them died in boyhood; James and Cunningham raised families. James died at the age of fifty-two, and Cunningham at the age of fifty-five. Their father died October 7, 1875, at the age of eighty-two, and their mother five years later, at the age of seventy-nine.

Mr. Purdy received a common-school education in Richland county, and attended Oberlin College in 1856. When the news was received that Salmon P. Chase was elected governor of Ohio, he joined with the students in a bonfire jollification. Prof. Peck made a speech to the boys. The following Sunday Prof. Finney reprimanded them, and the students were defended by Prof. Peck. In 1857 Mr. Purdy went to Minnesota, and pre-empted 160 acres of land on the Upper Mississippi; returned to Richland county, and engaged in farming for two years; sold the farm and went into the stock trade, buying and shipping to Buffalo, Albany and New York, making Buffalo his headquarters for ten years. He bought stock in Ohio, Indiana and Illinois, shipping east, and selling on the markets of Buffalo, Albany and New York. He came to Wood county in the spring of 1870, and located in Center township. He leased one thousand acres of land which he operated for four years, feeding stock and shipping East. He afterward purchased twenty-four acres of land where he now lives.

Our subject was married in Lockport, January 7, 1869, to Catharine Mason, a daughter of Charles Mason, of Lockport, N. Y. They have eight children, three of whom died in infancy; those living are Andrew W., Chas. H. and Frank A., all graduates of the High School of Bowling Green, Ohio, and B. William and Cora A., now attending school. In politics Mr. Purdy is Republican. He is an excellent citizen, genial and affable by nature, and his name is a household word throughout the county.

MATTHIAS SCHONDELMYER is one of the well known and prominent citizens of Wood county. He has taken quite an active part in public affairs, and in all the relations of life has discharged his duties with a promptness and fidelity that have won him high regard. He was born in Cologne, Prussia, December 30, 1839, and is a son of John and Barbara (Yakley) Schondelmyer, the former born in Baden, Germany, in 1809, the latter in 1803. The father followed clock repairing in early life, and afterward carried on farming. In the summer of 1840 he crossed the Atlantic to America, landing at New York, and at once went to Lake county, Ohio, where he operated a small farm for six years. He then located on a farm near Findlay, Ohio, where his death occurred in 1889. His first wife died in 1863, and he afterward married Margaret Sice, who is still living. The family of John and Barbara Schondelmyer numbered the following named: Fred, Matthias, and four daughters who died in infancy. The children of the second marriage are Paulina, wife of Ernest Irwin, of Hancock county; Margaret, wife of Frank Miller, of Findlay, Ohio; Annie, Mrs. Christina Peiffer, of Hancock county; Mary, wife of George Nelson, of Findlay; Nancy; John, of Findlay; Thomas, who died at the age of three years; and Louis, of Hancock county.

Our subject was only six months old when brought by his parents to this country. He was reared and educated near Findlay, and worked as a farm hand in that neighborhood until twenty-three years of age, when he went to the West, and for nine years was engaged in the lumber business near Helena, Mont. He then returned home, and March 19, 1874, was married in Findlay, to Miss Salina Scott, who was born in Stark county, Ohio, December 22, 1842, a daughter of Thomas B. and Eliza (Moorhead) Scott. Her father was born in Mercer county, Penn., March 7, 1814. His parents came to this country from Scotland after their marriage. When a young man he learned the cabinet maker's trade, and later became a veterinary surgeon. He was married in Stark county, Ohio, to Miss Moorhead, who, when five years of age, went with her parents to Findlay, Ohio. Mr. Scott died there in 1893, and his wife in 1889. John M., their eldest child, married Rachel Davis in 1861, three days later went to the front as one of Mitchell's raiders, was made a prisoner by the Rebels at Atlanta, Ga., and executed by them June 18, 1862. His remains were interred in the National Cemetery at Chattanooga, and a handsome monument has been erected to the memory of the seven heroes who at that time gave their lives for their country. The other members of the family are Margaret J., wife of Jacob Powell, of Findlay; James, who married Annie Pierce, and is living in Findlay; Mrs. Schondelmyer; Robert, who married Ella Kissel, and lives in Terre Haute, Ind.; Mary, wife of George Arnold, of Findlay; Martha, wife of John Exline; Albert, who married Jennie Hill, and lives in Findlay; and Amanda, wife of Charles Ebling, of Findlay.

Mr. and Mrs. Schondelmyer began their domestic life on a 100-acre farm five miles east of Findlay, but in 1884 he sold that property, and now owns 154 acres of valuable land in Liberty township, on which he erected a fine residence in 1891. His farm is one of the best in the neighborhood, and its neat and thrifty appearance indicates his careful supervision, while its buildings stand as monuments to his thrift and enterprise. To Mr. and Mrs. Schondelmyer have been born six children—Mary Isabella, born April 24, 1875, died August 19, 1875; Amanda Barbara, born August 26, 1876; Margaret Emeline, born February 18, 1878; George Albert, born September 22, 1879; Fred Scott, born February 6, 1881; and Fannie May, born March 14, 1884. Amanda and Margaret have both had educational training at Findlay (Ohio) College. In April, 1891, our subject was elected treasurer of Liberty township, in which capacity he has since served continuously. He is a Democrat in political faith; but, though the township is strongly Republican, he was elected by a flattering majority, and in 1895 without opposition. Mr. Schondelmyer and children are all members of the Disciples Church at Rudolph, while Mrs. Schondelmyer holds membership with the Second Presbyterian Church, of Findlay, Ohio. The daughters are members of the Christian Endeavor Society of Bethel Church, Rudolph, of which organization

GEORGE MOTHER MARGARET FANNIE FRED FATHER AMANDA

FAMILY OF M. SCHONDELMYER.

Miss Amanda is president, and her younger sister, Margaret, is organist.

On March 29, 1890, oil was discovered on Mr. Schondelmyer's farm, and eleven wells have been drilled, from which he receives an income of about $1,000 per annum. Much of the farm is not yet utilized, twelve or fourteen locations being still undeveloped. The farm comprises 154 acres, fertile throughout.

JOHN MERVIN, one of the early settlers at the site of the present town of Risingsun, is a highly respected resident of that place. Like many of the prosperous and influential men of the day, he has made his way to success through adverse circumstances, and his well-won competence reflects credit upon him.

He is of English birth, having entered upon his mortal career in Leicestershire, January 11, 1824. His father, Thomas Mervin, was a butcher by trade. Our subject was reared upon a farm, near a small village, enjoying only the limited advantages of the common schools. He showed ability in the management and care of horses, and at an early age found employment in that work; but the opportunities for advancement seemed to him very discouraging, and he determined to come to America. Leaving his young wife, formerly Miss Elizabeth Riley, he sailed from Liverpool, in April, 1849, in the ship "Joseph Badger," and after a voyage of four weeks landed in New York. The trip to Albany was made by river, from Albany to Buffalo by rail, and from Buffalo he came by lake to Sandusky, where he took the Mad River railroad, then the only one in this region. His destination was Avon township, Lorain county, but by mistake he went to New Haven, Huron county. On learning his error he started on foot for Lorain county, but while en route he was taken very ill in Greenfield township, Huron county, and was cared for by some friendly English people. On his recovery he had but fifty cents left of the sum which he had saved from his earnings for his journey, and a new start in life. This money was spent for wine to stimulate his impaired energies, and, instead of going on, he decided to remain there and rent a farm.

In the spring of 1850 his wife rejoined him. She had a difficult voyage, spending four months on the way, and being shipwrecked three times. They lived there for several years, renting different farms in the locality, but in the fall of 1863 they came to Wood county, driving through in a wagon. Mr. Mervin purchased sixty acres of land in Section 36, Montgomery township, where the village of Risingsun now stands. At that time the land was partially improved in the dry portion, and a plank house stood near his present home. The swampy part of the farm had to be cleared, however, and there was no small amount of hard work to be done in the first years of his stay; but the rapid development of the locality brought prosperity. He still owns seventy acres of land in the vicinity, and also has ten acres in Jackson township, Seneca county. In 1877 he built a fine residence in Risingsun, which he has since occupied. Mrs. Mervin's death, December 9, 1888, brought deep sorrow to this pleasant home. Her remains are interred in Trinity cemetery, Scott township, Sandusky county. They had nine children, all of whom are living: Sarah, Mrs. George Young, of Seneca county; Mary, Mrs. Adam Graber, of Risingsun; George, a farmer in Perry township; Elizabeth, Mrs. Frank Blonde, of Perry township; Eliza and Lucy, who are at home; Frances, Mrs. Benjamin Bates, of Risingsun; Anna, Mrs. Courtland Essex, of the same town, and Hattie, Mrs. Russell Hoover, of Montgomery township.

Mr. Mervin's parents came to the United States in 1855 or '56, and located in Greenwich township, Huron county, where his father died at the age of seventy-three years. His mother afterward made her home in Wood county with her children, but died in Richland county at ninety years of age. Mr. Mervin is the eldest of six children, all living, Thomas resides in Risingsun; George, in Longley; Elizabeth is the widow of James Brinson, of Huron county; Hannah married John Thompson, of Richland county, and Emma married first the late John Jenney, and second John Winder, of New Orleans, Louisiana.

Mr. Mervin possessed in youth a powerful physique, and is still well-preserved, his strictly temperate habits being in his favor. Fond of reading, he has intelligent views on the questions of the time, and his interest in the education of the rising generation has led to several years of able service as school director. In principle he is a Democrat, but is not bound by partisan ties in the choice of suitable men for local offices. He is a leading member of the M. E. Church.

JOHN MARRON receives that respect which fidelity to duty and an industrious life always commands. He is now serving as postmaster of Hull Prairie, and is successfully engaged in blacksmithing. A native of the Emerald Isle, he was born in County Monaghan, June 29, 1835, and is a son of Patrick and Julia (Bird) Marron. The father died in 1849, the mother in 1880. He was a farmer by occupation, and after his death the mother brought her little family to America in 1850, and spent her last days in Toledo. Her children were Mary, deceased wife of William Davis, of Iowa; John, of this sketch; Michael, a shipbuilder of Toledo, and Annie who died in childhood.

Mr. Marron, of this review, attended school in his native land, and at the age of fifteen came to the United States, locating first in Sandusky, Erie Co., Ohio. For four years he was employed as a farm hand in that county, after which he learned the blacksmithing trade, which he has since followed. He pursued that business for a time in Lorain county, also in Toledo, and in 1868, came to Wood county, locating on Hull Prairie, where he has since remained, building up a very successful business. He is an excellent workman in his line, and his well-directed efforts and honorable dealings have secured him a liberal patronage. He also owns a farm of sixty acres near by, on which his son-in-law lives. In 1886 he was appointed postmaster by President Cleveland, but would not accept the office. In 1893 he was again tendered the position, which he is now filling to the general satisfaction of the public.

Mr. Marron was married in Erie county, Ohio, in 1864, to Miss Horan, a native of Ireland, and to them have been born six children—George; John; Carrie, wife of E. B. Twining; Julia, and Sophia, at home; and Mary, who died in childhood.

Mr. Marron was school director for two terms, and has been a member of the township board of trustees. His political support is given the Democratic party, and in religious faith he is a Catholic. His industry and enterprise, and the resolute purpose that has enabled him to work his way steadily upward, well entitle him to the honorable distinction of being known as a self-made man.

GEORGE GREEN, deceased. As a representative of the intelligent and hardy pioneers who opened up Plain township for settlement, and have since taken a conspicuous part in developing it, we are pleased to place in this volume a brief sketch of the life of the gentleman whose name introduces this review.

Mr. Green was born at Wigan, near London, England, March 28, 1846, and when quite young came to America with his parents, William and Sarah (Brown) Green, both natives of the same isle. On emigrating to this country in 1846, the father came direct to Ohio, locating in Cleveland, where he remained four months working at his trade of a butcher, after which he came to Wood county, and bought eighty acres of unimproved land in Plain township. Indians still lived in the neighborhood, wolves and deer were to be seen, and wild game of all kinds furnished many a meal for the family. They were among the first settlers of Plain township, and their first home was a rude log hut. The father continued to work at his trade, and as his sons grew up they helped him in the management and care of the farm. He and our subject also constructed some of the roads and ditches of the township. There were seven children in the family, all of whom grew to years of maturity, namely: Mary, deceased wife of John Moore; Ellen, a resident of Weston; Richard, deceased; Sarah, wife of Amos Dewese; Isaac, deceased; Jane, wife of Thomas Woodesly, of Canada; and George. The parents have both departed this life, the father dying in 1851, and the mother in 1846.

As our subject was reared in a pioneer settlement, he received his education in the primitive school house, characteristic of the times and place. As soon as he was old enough, he was obliged to share in the labors of developing the farm from the wilderness. This early training in agricultural labors doubtless made the young lad sturdy, self-reliant, and capable beyond his years, and prepared him for a life of independence. By dint of hard labor, perseverance and wise management, he had at the time of his death a farm which, in its neat appearance, with its ample farm buildings, unsurpassed productiveness, and all the other essentials of a good farm, compares favorably with others in the neighborhood. Thus his thrift, frugality and industry was rewarded by a substantial home, and an assured income which gave him the means of procuring all the comforts of life for himself and family. His wife, who was to him an excellent counselor and helpmeet, shared with him the respect and esteem of the entire community.

On April 10, 1872, Mr. Green had married Miss Harriet Challen, who was born November 19, 1849, and is a daughter of William Challen. They had seven children, whose names and dates of birth are as follows: William W., January 9, 1873; Jessie, July 29, 1875; Alva, June 29, 1877; Maude, May 2, 1879; Stanley, February 9, 1881; Herman, December 23, 1883; and Floyd, March 19, 1887. The oldest daughter, Jessie, is now the wife of Horton Conklin, and the oldest sons are now looking after the cultivation of the old homestead. The father passed away on the 26th of July, 1894, beloved by all who knew him.

C. W. LENHART, one of the prominent citizens of Bowling Green, was born in Mahoning county, Ohio, September 6, 1846. He is the only child of his parents, George S. and Elizabeth (Legron) Lenhart. His boyhood was spent in attendance at the public schools, and in the graded schools at Fostoria and Findlay. After one year in the service of his country, and several years spent in teaching in the country schools, he entered into the mercantile business at West Millgrove, Wood county, in 1867, which he carried on until 1880, when he sold out and took charge of a flour-mill which he had assisted in building. He operated the mill until 1886, when he removed to Bowling Green and was appointed deputy sheriff of the county, which office he held for four years. In 1891 our subject entered into the abstract and loan business, in which he is still engaged; he now takes the general management of the Wood County Abstract and Loan Co., his wide acquaintance throughout the county making him peculiarly fitted for this work. He is a Republican in politics, and active in all enterprises having for their object the welfare of his community. He is an enterprising, energetic man, of excellent judgment and good business ability, and has been successful financially.

Mr. Lenhart was united in marriage May 6, 1869, with Miss Harriet N. Diver, who was born in Montgomery township, February 10, 1851. Mrs. Lenhart was educated in the public schools of the county, and is a woman of much culture and refinement. She is a member of the Disciples Church, takes an active interest in all Church work, and is also a prominent worker in the W. R. C., of Bowling Green. They have but one child living, Edna M., an intelligent young lady, the wife of William H. Caverly, who, together with her husband, is at home with her parents. The eldest daughter, Bertha A., died when seventeen years old.

The father of our subject was born in Lancaster county, Penn., where he was married. He removed with his family to Ohio in 1845, settling in Mahoning county, soon removing to Hancock county; where he lived until 1854, then coming to Wood county and purchasing a farm in Montgomery township. In the early part of his life he was a contractor and builder, but followed farming during his later years. He was born in 1820 and died in 1879. His wife was born in 1823, and is still living in the enjoyment of good health as Longley, this county.

Jacob Lenhart, the paternal grandfather of our subject, came to Ohio from Pennsylvania some time in the '40s and settled on a farm west of Findlay, in Hancock county, afterward removing to a place near Pendleton, Putnam county, where he died, in 1864, when about seventy-five years of age. Mr. Lenhart's maternal grandfather, John Legron, also removed from Pennsylvania about the same time as the other branch of the family, settling west of Findlay, from there removing about 1856 to Montgomery township, where he died at the age of seventy-five years. Both sides of the family are of Pennsylvania-Dutch descent.

E. PRICE CLOUGH, who is now living retired, has by well-directed efforts in his business career won a competence that enables him to lay aside business cares. Fair dealing was as conspicuous in his commercial life, as his honor in all the other walks of life. He was born in the town of Pike, Allegany Co., N. Y., October 19, 1824, and is a son of Bailey and Asenath (Price) Clough. In early life the father was an operator in a woolen-mill, but after his marriage, which was celebrated in Allegany county, he worked at the trade of a millwright. In February, 1833, he removed with his family to Huron county, Ohio, and after nine years took up his residence in Portage township, Wood county, where for several years he worked at carpentering. For some years previous to his death in 1850, he conducted a general store in Portage. He was prominent in town affairs, and served as justice of the peace, township clerk and postmaster. He had been previously married before he wedded Asenath Price, his first union having been with Sarah Smith. Mrs. Clough was the widow of Daniel Seiley at the time of her marriage. Two children were born to the parents of our subject, of whom Samuel died in infancy.

E. Price Clough received a common-school education in his native county, and when eight-year-old came with his parents to Wood county. He learned the trade of carpentering and wagon-making, the former with his father, but laid aside all business cares on August 21, 1861, when, at Findlay, Ohio, he enlisted as a musician in Company C, 21st O. V. I. He was first in battle at Ivy Mountain, and afterward participated in the engagements at Bridgeport, Ala.; Laverne, Tenn.; Nashville, and Stone River. At the last named he was captured by the enemy, and conveyed to Libby prison, where he remained for twenty-two days when he was paroled and sent to Annapolis, Md., remaining at the latter place for seven weeks. In July, 1863, he rejoined his regiment, and participated in the Tullahoma campaign, Dug Gap, Chickamauga, Mission Ridge, Buzzards Roost, Resaca, New Hope Church, Kenesaw Mountain, Chattahoochee River, Peach Tree Creek, Atlanta, Jonesboro, Savannah, Averbsboro and Bentonville. He was mustered out at Columbus, July 25, 1865. He had reenlisted as a veteran at Chattanooga, and was appointed corporal April 1, 1865. He followed the old flag on many a Southern battle field, ever true to the Union, and his war record is one of which he may be justly proud.

Mr. Clough was married May 16, 1844, in Portage, Ohio, to Amelia Crego, who was born in Madison county, Ohio, May 4, 1824. They had two children—Flora, wife of Dr. William T. Thomas, of North Baltimore, Ohio; and George P., who died at the age of thirteen. After the war, Mr. Clough worked alternately at carpentering and wagon-making until 1876, then through the succeeding twelve years followed carpentering exclusively, while since 1888 he has lived retired. In politics he is a Republican, and for six years served as clerk of Portage corporation. In 1891 he was elected mayor, which position he filled for two years.

DR. T. S. CARMAN. "Peace hath her victories no less than war," and the men who braved privation, malaria, and countless other trials and dangers in the early days, in order to subdue the wilderness of forest and swamp which covered this section, are rightly held in honor for their achievements. Among the surviving pioneers of Wood county, Dr. Carman, of Bradner, stands foremost, and his versatile talents, sound judgment, determined will, and seemingly inexhaustible physical vigor are the wonder of all.

Dr. Carman was born in Queen Anne county, Md., April 10, 1808, a son of Salisbury and Anna (Critchett) Carman, and in early boyhood was taken to Baltimore by his parents. His father owned a large hat factory on Main street, Baltimore, and was a prosperous man until the breaking out of the war of 1812, when the fluctuation in prices of materials caused his failure. He served in that war as a member of the "Baltimore Blues," and his son distinctly remembers his coming home to get his sword when the regiment was called out to oppose the landing of the British forces under Gen. Ross. After his financial reverses he moved to Philadelphia, where he died in 1819 at the age of twenty-nine years, leaving a widow and four children, of whom our subject was the eldest and is now the only survivor. Mary died in childhood; Lewis died in Texas, in 1866; and James, who was a noted auctioneer at New Orleans, La., died in that city. The mother of these was united in marriage in 1851 with James Chiviril, but to their union no children were born. She died at Baltimore, in 1866, at the age of seventy-five years.

Dr. Carman was only eleven years old when his father died, and, as there was no property left, the little family was scattered. He had been attending the common schools in Philadelphia, but this sad event put an abrupt end to his schooling, and he was placed with a farmer, an Englishman, who abused him so that he soon went back to Philadelphia. A drove of Western horses came to the city about that time, and one which was supposed to have glanders was given to him to take out to "Horse Heaven," on the Schuylkill river, to die. The diagnosis was not correct, and under the boy's kindly care the horse recovered, and its sale later brought him $80.00, which formed the foundation of his future fortune. The fondness for horses, which this incident shows, has always been a characteristic trait, and to this day it is his delight to drive a spirited team. His unusual business ability was shown at an early age in various "dickers," and he made his way better than many so circumstanced would have done.

Returning to Baltimore, he learned dentistry, and for a while practiced there, then in Richmond, Va., and Augusta, Ga., and also traveled through the rural districts of the South and East in a sulky. He was an expert in his business, and as prices were good he prospered. In 1834 he moved to Cleveland, Ohio, and followed his profession, traveling through the South in the winter season, and in 1836 he went to Fort Seneca, Ohio, where he learned of the lands of Wood county. Being desirous of investing in real estate, he soon made a purchase of eighty acres in Section 8, Montgomery township, from Harlow Hill. This was in its primitive condition; but he made his home there in a log cabin in pioneer style, and as time passed he increased his holdings until he owned 440 acres, later entering 1,000 acres. He became a successful worker in different lines, practiced medicine, conducted a mercantile business, and carried on farming on an extensive scale, his shrewd financiering enabling him to accumulate money rapidly. Later he removed to Prairie Depot, where he carried on a store, practiced medicine, and for some time was in a similar business in Perrysburg, but in August, 1889, he moved to Bradner, where he has since resided. He owns seven houses in that town, also two in Prairie Depot, and about 500 acres of land, besides; he has done much toward the improvement of Bradner, having built many houses and platted an addition to the town. In the early days he was criticised for his extensive purchases of land, by many who have lived to see the wisdom of his dealings.

DR. T. S. CARMAN.

In 1828 he was married, in Baltimore, to Miss Ellen Young, a native of the "Blue Hills," ten miles from the city. She died in Baltimore in 1834, not long after their marriage, leaving no children, and he subsequently married, in Baltimore, in 1835, Miss Elizabeth Howard, a native of Maryland, by whom he had four children: Two died in childhood; the others—Howard and Anna (now Mrs. Wesley Graham)—reside at Prairie Depot. This wife died at Prairie Depot in 1843, and the Doctor afterward married Miss Nancy A. Myers, a native of Wayne county, Ohio, and daughter of Michael Myers. One child was born of this union, Mary (now Mrs. Jefferson Adams), of North Baltimore. In 1853 death took from him this partner in life, who requested that he should marry her sister, Emily A. Myers, who was born in New Rochester, Wood county, in 1838. Twelve children were born of this fourth marriage, viz.: Patience died in childhood; Thomas, Jr., lives in Bradner; Ida married Harry Wright, of Sterling, Ill.; Kitty M. married Volney Jones, of Jerry City, Ohio; James and William H. reside in Bradner; Julia married Edward Keil, of Pemberville; Belle is the wife of G. F. Coyle, of Bradner; Daisy married W. H. Stow, of Bradner; Edna died at the age of eleven; Ross died in infancy, and June at the age of seven years. The Doctor is a Mason, and he and his wife are leading members of the Disciples Church. Their home has always been noted for its hospitality and good cheer.

Dr. Carman is remarkably well preserved, having never used liquor or tobacco in any form, and at his advanced age, now (fall of 1896) over eighty-eight years, he is active in mind and body, giving his personal attention to his numerous properties and business interests. The only marked sign of his years is his weakened eyesight; but so alert is he mentally, and so in sympathy with the world's progress, that he reads the newspapers daily, although it requires quite an effort to do so. At fifty years of age he measured forty-four inches around the chest on the bare flesh, and was unusually powerful. His will is unbending, a desire to do or have anything nearly always meaning that that desire will be fulfilled, no matter what the cost. His wonderful memory enables him to recall the events of his early life as a boy in Philadelphia and Baltimore, with great distinctness. He remembers the rejoicing over Jackson's victory in 1814 (January 8), and in 1824 he witnessed the reception of Lafayette at Baltimore, and saw Charles Carroll, of Carrollton, and Andrew Jackson, at this demonstration. He made trips on the second and third steamboats built in the United States, the "Pennsylvania" and "Ætna;" was present at the laying of the first stone of the B. & O. R. R. by Andrew Jackson, at Baltimore, each State being represented by a delegation, and among the other distinguished visitors present on that occasion were James Carroll (one of the signers of the Declaration of Independence), and Lafayette and his son. His native abilities seem to have been equal to any task. Left to make his way from early boyhood practically without any instruction, he has made a notable success in one of the most exacting of the learned professions, his career as a physician covering more than a quarter of a century. A born leader, his force of character and intellect are recognized by all with whom he comes in contact, and when he has served on juries he has invariably been chosen as foreman. In his financial affairs his ability has been well displayed. He was never given but one dollar in his life, and that was a Spanish dollar, bearing the date 1808, a gift from his stepfather, who was a pilot on an American vessel that raised a sunken Spanish ship containing that dollar among its store of treasures. It is still a cherished possession. He has lost as well as made money during his business life; but any mistake of that sort has been more than made good. In whatever business he has undertaken, he has grasped the principles of success intuitively, and whether as a merchant or a pioneer farmer his lack of previous training seems to have been no real obstacle in his way. Amos Spafford, on account of his being the first white settler in Wood county, was made a gift of 160 acres of land, April 26, 1816. Later in the same year this land fell into Mr. Carman's possession by the purchase of E. D. Peck's land, adjoining old Fort Meigs, the sum paid being fifteen thousand dollars.

Politically he has always been a Democrat, and his first vote was cast in Baltimore for Andrew Jackson. His ambition does not run in the direction of politics, and he has declined numerous candidacies, although, with the favorable acquaintance throughout the county which his business life has brought him, he would have received hearty support from both parties. He is not indifferent to local politics, however, and few men in this section have wielded the influence which he can exert in his quiet way, in opposing an enemy or forwarding the interest of a friend. He was a member of the board of equalization in the early days, and suggested the classification of lands. At one time he was nominated for treasurer; but owing to his many private responsibilities, he declined the honor, giving, however, his influence to Edward Graham, who was elected. Dr. Carman and Gov. Foster are close friends, and the Governor's father and he were associates and intimate friends. In his younger years our subject was a great hunter, and many a deer, wild turkey and other game fell to his unerring rifle.

A remarkable man, truly, and a remarkable life! It is a marvel that with his ceaseless activity Nature's machinery has not been worn out long ago, but happily he has renewed his strength as the years have passed over his head.

JOHN W. ANDERSON is numbered among the native sons of the Keystone State, his birth having occurred in Shippensburg, Cumberland county, December 10, 1844. His father, William Anderson, was born in 1828. When a young man he sought the hand of Elizabeth Bell in marriage; her father, Isaac Bell, who was a large slave-owner, strongly objected to the marriage, but when the young couple had run away from home, and had the ceremony performed, he finally forgave them. The father of our subject was a splendid specimen of physical manhood. More than six feet tall, he was excellently well proportioned, and had a handsome countenance. In his youth, he learned the shoemaker's trade, but afterward became a traveling salesman, and was part owner of a new invention for distilling whiskey. Subsequently he returned to Shippensburg, Penn., where he carried on shoemaking, but his last days were spent in St. Thomas, Franklin Co., Penn., where his death occurred, from cholera, at the age of thirty-three. In the family were three children, John W. being the eldest. William is living in Findlay, Ohio, with his mother, who was married a second time, becoming the wife of John Burkens; Elizabeth was the deceased wife of William Carlin.

Mr. Anderson, of this review, spent his school days in Pikesville, Md., where the mother had removed after the father's death. At the age of sixteen he laid aside his books to make his own way in the world, and his industry and capable management have been the leading factors in his success. His first independent effort was at farm work, near his home. After two years he began learning the blacksmith's trade, serving a three-years' apprenticeship. At the end of a year his employer was drafted into the service, and Mr. Anderson started for his mother's home, she having in the meantime removed to Hancock county, Ohio. He procured work at the blacksmith's trade at McComb, and, at the end of six months, went to Findlay, where he was employed in the same way. Subsequently he returned to Eli Beach, his first employer, with whom he continued until the Rebels made their raid into that locality, when he again went to Findlay. His next place of abode was Portage, Wood county, where he followed blacksmithing in the employ of A. C. Caswell.

During his residence in Portage, Mr. Anderson was married, on March 11, 1866, to Miss Josephine Sargent, who was born January 1, 1848, and is a daughter of S. L. Sargent. The young couple removed to Bowling Green; but after a short time came to Liberty township, and Mr. Anderson bought an acre of ground at Roney Corners. He there erected a log cabin and blacksmith's shop, and has since continued business at that place. The home of Mr. and Mrs. Anderson has been blessed with twelve children, namely: Arthur William, born April 19, 1869; Elizabeth, born January 1, 1871, now the wife of Elmer Fellers; Agnes D., born September 1, 1872, wife of William Smith, of Portage; Mary Willimeta, born May 20, 1874, wife of Louis Allen; Vennie J., born December 27, 1877; Maggie May, born July 14, 1880; Dollie Blanche, born May 20, 1882; Ethel Grace, born March 23, 1884; John Wesley, born December 13, 1887; Ollie Washington, born February 22, 1891; and two who are deceased.

Mr. Anderson is a Republican in politics; socially, is a member of the Odd Fellows Society, and, religiously, of the United Brethren Church. His genuine worth and thorough reliability have made him many friends.

HENRY DAVID, deceased, was a native of Hanover, Germany, and, when a young man of about twenty years, decided to try his fortune in the New World, where better opportunities are afforded for securing a home and competence. After landing on the shores of this continent, he came to northern Ohio, and for a time worked in Sandusky and Wood counties. Later he went to Toledo, Ohio, where he was engaged in teaming, and there was united in marriage with Miss Mary Fark, a native of Sandusky county, and a daughter of Fred and Charlotty Fark, who came to this country from the Fatherland.

Later, Mr. David sent the money to pay the passage of his parents and sister to America. For three years after his marriage he continued to reside in Toledo, and then rented land in Freedom township and elsewhere in Wood county until 1884, when he purchased eighty acres of land in Section 12, Portage township, where his family still make their home. His death occurred suddenly on May 21, 1886, he leaving a widow with the support of six children, the oldest only thirteen years, and the youngest seven months old. They are all with their mother, and are named as follows: Henry, John, William, Charles, Fred and George. The farm had not all been cultivated, and a debt still rested upon it; but Mrs. David was brave and energetic, and went earnestly to work. Her family of small children had to be looked after and provided for, but she struggled along, often performing a man's work on the farm, besides her household tasks. She has displayed business ability of a high order, while her other duties are performed with equal proficiency. She is a devout member of the Lutheran Church, and her sons through her teachings have become steady-going, industrious young men.

WILLIAM MANTEL. From Michigan there have come to Wood county a number of its worthy citizens, including this gentleman who was born in Monroe county, that State, April 23, 1862. His parents were John and Elizabeth (Denoyer) Mantel. His father was a native of England, his mother of France. When a young man the former learned the trade of shoemaking, beginning that work at the early age of eight years. When a youth of sixteen he crossed the Atlantic to New York, and went at once to Monroe, Mich., where he secured work at his trade. He was there married and made his home for about thirty-three years, when in 1884 he came to Liberty township, Wood county, and is now living with our subject. His family numbered the following—George, who died at the age of eleven months; Josephine; Mrs. Peter Ducat, of Henry township; Thomas, who died at the age of seventeen; Edward, a farmer of Wayne county, Mich.; Peter, a barber of Michigan; James, who is engaged in the same business in Trenton, Mich.; Arthur, a farmer of Plain township, Wood county; William; Eliza, Mrs. Alferd Robinson, of Liberty township; Horace, an oil man of Henry township; and Mary, Mrs. Theodore Smith, of Liberty township.

William Mantel received but limited school privileges, but his training at farm labor was not so meager. On starting out in life for himself he rented a farm in his native county, which he operated until his removal to Wood county with his parents. He was at that time twenty-two years of age. He began work in the oil fields, and on the 11th of September, 1893, purchased fifty-three acres of land in Section 3, Liberty township, where he is now living. The lady who shares Mr. Mantel's name and fortune was in her maidenhood Florence Matilda Judson. The marriage occurred July 3, 1889. She was born May 20, 1866, and is a daughter of James and Elizabeth (Mitchell) Judson, who had four children: Mrs. Mantel, Charles, William and Bert. Our subject and his wife are most estimable people, and have many warm friends throughout the community. In politics Mr. Mantel is a "Sound-money" Republican.

CALEB ROE is a worthy representative of the agricultural interests of Wood county, and through his enterprising efforts has won a success that is well merited. He was born in Liberty township, August 26, 1861, and comes of a family that has been connected with this locality since early pioneer days. His grandfather, Dominick Roe, came from Michigan to Wood county, and from the government entered eighty acres of land in Liberty township, for which he paid $1.25 per acre. There he spent his remaining days. His family numbered the following members—Dominick, Jr., deceased; Stephen, of Lucas county; Victoria, who is married and resides in Michigan; Lucy, wife of Pedro Maloush, of Lucas county; Mrs. Margaret Garno, of Weston, Ohio; Mrs. Mary Deshetler, of Liberty township, Wood county; Eliza, wife of Frank Ducat, of Liberty township; and Edward, father of our subject.

The last named was born and reared in Michigan, and accompanied his parents on their removal here. In Liberty township he married Miss Margaret Ducat, and secured a tract of land by giving in exchange two young calves. He farmed various tracts of land in Liberty township, and in his undertakings was successful. In 1864 he entered the Union army, and served until the close of the war. His family numbered the following members—Caleb, a farmer of Jackson township; Robert, a farmer of Milton township; Sherman, a farmer of Portage township; Matilda, who died in childhood; Hiram, who is engaged in the oil business in Ohio; Lewis, of Bowling Green, Ohio; Lucetta, at home; Albert and Alfred, twins, who died in childhood; and Guy, who completes the family. The father died August 22, 1896, at the age of fifty-four years, and was buried in Rudolph cemetery.

Mr. Roe, of this review, is indebted to the public-school system for his education. He was reared under the parental roof, and aided in the operation of the home farm until twenty-one years of age, when he began working in the tile yard owned by George Bradshaw, for $25 per month. After eight months he entered a thirty-acre tract of land in Liberty township, and in 1886 he purchased a tract of similar size. This was the first property he ever owned. After clearing two acres he found that there was oil upon the place, leased it and secured therefrom a handsome income which enabled him to get a good start in life. In the fall of 1888, he purchased his present farm, then comprising eighty acres of land, all cleared, but otherwise unimproved. He has since erected a fine residence, good barns and outbuildings, has the latest improved machinery, high grades of stock and everything found on a first class farm of the nineteenth century.

On January 1, 1890, was celebrated the marriage of Mr. Roe and Myrtie Gaghan, who was born in Milton township, May 31, 1869, and is a daughter of George and Mary (Finney) Gaghan, natives of Ireland, whence they emigrated to America, locating in Wood county. Here the father died August 28, 1890. Mrs. Roe was educated in the district schools of Milton township, and pursued her studies for one year in McComb, and two years in Weston, Ohio. When a maiden of only fifteen summers she began teaching school in Jackson township, and for six years successfully followed that profession. By her marriage she has one daughter, Bernice, born July 5, 1895. In politics Mr. Roe is a stalwart Republican, unswerving in his support of the principles of the party. He has, however, never sought office, but served as school director.

REASON WHITACRE is the oldest resident pioneer of Bloom township, and he and his brother Isaac are the only ones of the "'34 settlers" now living. He was born in Columbiana county, Ohio, October 20, 1814, and is now one of the successful agriculturists of Wood county. He has been a hard worker in his time, and is still active and energetic for a man of his years.

The Whitacre family came originally from Virginia. The grandfather, Edward Whitacre, married Martha Brown, and their son Mahlon, our subject's father, was born in the Old Dominion. When a boy of ten he was brought by his parents to Harrison county, W. Va., where he was married to Miss Phoebe Beck, also a native of Virginia, and a daughter of Preston Beck. Soon after marriage they moved to Columbiana county, which was then on the frontier line, and subject to Indian attacks and rumors of attacks, the family being so alarmed on one occasion as to seek refuge in the nearest settlement. In the spring of 1833 he came to Wood county on foot, and entered 160 acres in Section 6, eighty in Section 6, eighty in Sections 31 and 32, in Portage township; 160 acres in Section 5, forty in Sections 7 and 8, and eighty in Section 22, in Bloom township. He selected a spot for his future home in Section 6, near the present site of Cygnet, and returned to bring his family, which included seven children. They left Columbiana county April 18, 1834, and traveled in a wagon drawn by oxen via Minerva, Canton, Massillon, Wooster, Mansfield, Galion, Bucyrus and Upper Sandusky. They brought one cow with them, the younger members of the party walking by turns to drive her. Whenever they could, they stopped at hotel for the night, but often camped out, and after leaving Upper Sandusky they lived in that primitive fashion until their log house was built from trees felled after their arrival on May 4, 1834. The roads were so bad for the latter part of the trip that seven miles made a good day's travel. Their nearest neighbor lived two miles away, and their milling was done on the Maumee river, the trip taking five days, coming and going. Their first crop was corn, planted in small holes made in the solid ground, the stumps and roots making plowing impossible, and much of the grinding was done by hand-mills, made from stones found on the farm. The yield was abundant and wild game plentiful, so they fared well. They secured considerable ready money by selling coon skins at one dollar apiece. Our subject's father was a large man, weighing ordinarily 225 pounds. He possessed fine abilities, and great force of character, and when there were but few to give was a liberal supporter of the Disciples Church, of which he and his family were members. His large tracts of land were divided among his children, with the exception of forty acres, which he gave to a preacher. In politics he was first a Whig, later a Republican, and he took great interest in public questions. He died in 1847, at the age of sixty-three, and his wife in 1849, aged sixty-two, both being interred in the family lot in Sugar Grove cemetery. Of their children only two are now living. Preston was married in Columbiana county to Martha Lucy, and died two years after coming to Wood county; Gula E. was married at the old home to Abiah Stackhouse, and died in Wood county in 1838; Edward was married, before coming West, to Hannah McNeely, and died in this county in 1846; the fourth child is the subject of this sketch; Isaac was married in Wood county to Elizabeth McCrory, later to Eliza Wolfe, and now lives in Bloom township; Lydia A. married John McCrory, and died in Plain township; Sarah J. died of consumption three years after coming to this county.

Mary M Whitcomb

Reason Whitacre

Reason Whitacre in his childhood attended first a subscription school, and later, when public schools came into vogue, he availed himself of them. He was trained to farm work, and when a young man worked out for three shillings a day; for one year before coming to Wood county he had worked in a gristmill at Minerva. In all the work and hardships and pleasures of the pioneer days in this county he took his full share, and his reminiscences are most interesting. On March 22, 1837, he was married to Miss Mary McCrory, a native of Pennsylvania, born in 1820, daughter of Samuel McCrory, a prominent citizen of Henry township. They commenced housekeeping on seventy-two acres of land in Section 6, Bloom township, a gift from his parents. It was in its primitive state, and his little log cabin was the first house upon it. He cleared eighteen acres, and after his father's death traded the tract for his sister Lydia's interest in the homestead, where he has ever since resided.

By his first marriage Mr. Whitacre had eight children: Mahlon was a farmer in Liberty township; he died leaving two children—Conrad and Elmer. Hannah R. married Mandeville Milbourn, of Bloom township, and died leaving five children—Edward R., Lydia, Horace, Mary and Arthur. Phoebe married Horace C. Mercer, of Liberty township, and their children are Milton, Albutus, Mary, Delorma, Clarence, Rosa, Jefferson, Frank and George. James, deceased, was a farmer in Liberty township; he left one child—Frederick. Samuel was a farmer in Liberty township, and died leaving two children—Elletha and Olerious. Daniel is a farmer in Liberty township; he married Amanda Loe, and they have nine children—Mahlon, Hayes, Rhoda, Ardie, Wildie, Naomi, Carrie, Howard and Karl. Lewis S. is a resident of Cygnet, and has one child—Frank. Thomas lives in Liberty township; he has two children—Charles and Floyd. Mrs. Whitacre died in 1861, and was buried in Sugar Grove cemetery. On March 22, 1866, our subject was married to Miss Mary M. Bullis, a native of Durham, N. Y., born December 24, 1835, daughter of Isaac and Amanda (Hervey) Bullis, who came to Wood county in 1845, and located in Plain township. Four children were born of this union: Herman W. is a farmer in Liberty township; Arthur I. is a farmer in Bloom township (he has one son—Reason); Warren R. is at home, and Marian died in infancy.

Mr. Whitacre still operates his farm of 200 acres, and also 100 acres in Liberty and Plain townships belonging to his wife. In 1886 he leased his land to a Mr. Scott, who did not operate, but sold to Barnum & Boden, and they began operations in March, 1890, drilling two wells. Then Mr. Barnum bought out his partner, and sold a one-third interest to a Mr. Hughes, and this firm now control the territory. At this writing they are operating eight wells, and will probably drill two more. The whole production amounts to about $4,000 per month, our subject securing one-seventh. On Mrs. Whitacre's property in Plain township there are three wells, one in operation. Politically our subject is a Republican, he has been a favorite candidate of his party for various offices, and has served thirteen years as trustee, one term as justice of the peace, and has also been supervisor and school director. He is an elder in the Disciples Church, of which the family have so long been leading members, and has always been among the most generous helpers of any worthy movement.

WILLIAM HEYMAN, a well-known saloon keeper of Tontogany, this county, was born in the village Kaltenholzhausen, Kreis Diez, Nassau, Germany, February 19, 1840. At the age of fifteen years he started for this country, and the voyage across the Atlantic occupied sixty-three days, the ship being an old sailing vessel; and two weeks more were passed in coming from New York to Monroeville, Ohio, the point of destination. Young Heyman first went to work on a farm in Erie county, for which he was paid fifty cents a day. He then hired out by the month, first at eight dollars, and afterward at ten dollars. Later he became employed by the year, receiving, for his services the first year, $140, and, for the second, $150. He remained and worked for this same man—John Wright—for six years, his wages being increased until they reached $200 per year. During this period Mr. Heyman saved about $600, and then began farming for himself in Erie county; and in 1865 he was married to Miss Elizabeth Nickel, a native of Germany, whose parents had been farmers in Erie county for some years. Two children were born of this union, namely: Louise, who married Gustave Thorn, and they have three children—Gustave, Ella and Goldie; and William F., who is in the saloon and restaurant business at Ogden, Utah. Mrs. Heyman died in 1869, and in 1871 Mr.

Heyman married Miss Margretta Erbe, who was born in Erie county, near Castalia, in 1850. Shortly after the latter marriage he moved to Bellevue, in Huron county, where he clerked in a store, and two years later came to Tontogany, where he opened a sample room. To the second marriage were born eight children, and all at Tontogany: Albert, John, Frank, George, Charles, Cora, Avery and Eddie. Through the energy, industry and good management of our subject his business has proved a profitable one. He is one of the progressive citizens of this locality. In politics he is a Democrat, and is a prominent member of the Lutheran Church.

EZRA J. MOE was born in Lorain county, Ohio, February 4, 1840, and is a son of Isaac and Angeline (Moon) Moe. The father, a native of Genesee county, N. Y., was a child of six years when he went with his parents to Lorain county, the family locating on a 160-acre tract of wild land which the grandfather, Isaac Moe, purchased in 1802. He had journeyed to this State on foot, pre-empted his land, and planted a few acres of corn, and in the fall returned for his family. He served as a soldier in the war of 1812, and died in Ridgeville township, about 1850. The members of his family were Edwin, who died in Wisconsin; Charles, who died in Lorain county; Betsy, deceased wife of Gersham Gillett, of Lorain county; Polly, deceased wife of Abraham Moon, of Lorain county; Jane, wife of Leander Wilcox; Philand, wife of Otis Gilmore, and Hannah, wife of Husted Moe.

Isaac Moe was married in Lorain county to Miss Moon, who was there born in 1804. She became the mother of seven children, namely: Edwin, who died in infancy; Ann, deceased wife of George Hinger, of Sandusky, Ohio; Rosanna, Isaac and Wellington, who died in infancy; Ezra J.; and Rosanna, deceased wife of George Gill. After the death of his first wife, the father was married in Clyde, Sandusky county, to Mrs. Polly Heydon, and they had three children—Isaac, Mary and Emeline, all deceased. Mrs. Moe died in Clyde, Ohio, and the father afterward removed to Michigan. In 1873 he came to Wood county to live with our subject, and died in 1881.

When a child of eight years, Ezra Moe accompanied his parents to Clyde, where he acquired his education. When only ten years of age he began earning his own living, and for seven years rode race horses for Tuttle Brothers, of Clyde. He then worked as a farm hand until October 23, 1861, when, having obtained permission from his father to go to the train to witness the departure of Company A, 72nd O. V. I., he, instead, joined the troops and went to the front, where he participated in the battles of Shiloh and Corinth, and aided in building a fort at Memphis, Tenn. With Grant's command he then went to Holly Springs, and after their supplies were cut off returned to Memphis, proceeding down the river to Milliken's Bend. After making the canal at Vicksburg, his command marched to Grand Gulf, and later participated in seven battles which drove the Rebels into their works at Vicksburg, where they then entered upon the famous siege, which ended with the surrender of the city July 4, 1863. Before sundown that night they were fighting Joe Johnston sixteen miles away, and engaged with that general in three battles. The troops afterward returned to Memphis, subsequently going to Little Rock, Ark., and following Price, who threatened the destruction of that city. They afterward marched to Cape Girardeau, were loaded into transports, and subsequently proceeded to Sedalia and Lexington, Mo. They then marched to Kansas City, and captured Price on the Big Blue river. Returning to St. Louis, they were at once ordered to Nashville, but Mr. Moe remained in St. Louis for about twelve hours. He rejoined his regiment in Cairo, and took part in the battle of Nashville. Later the troops marched to New Orleans, and were engaged in service in the gulf district for some time. This included the capture of Spanish Fort, after which they started for Montgomery, where the news was received of Lee's surrender, and the restoration of peace. They then proceeded to Vicksburg, and Mr. Moe, who had veteranized in 1864, was honorably mustered out September 11, 1865, after almost four years of military service, in which he made for himself an honorable record.

It was just four years later—September 11, 1869—that he was married in Perrysburg to Ellen Spoons. They removed to Garden Grove, Decatur Co., Iowa, but after a year removed to Wood county, and for three years operated the Hendricks farm near, Bowling Green. Mr. Moe later rented the Starr farm for nine years, the Lathrop farm for four years, and the Todd farm for four years. In the spring of 1892 he purchased twenty acres of land, erected a good residence thereon, and has since made it his home. His wife died in May, 1882, leaving five children: Charles, of Milton township; William Allen, of Liberty township; John, Maud and Fred, at home. One son, Frank, was accidentally shot at the age of thirteen years, and death resulted. Mr. Moe is a Democrat, and a member of the United Brethren Church. He discharges his duties of citizenship with the same loyalty and fidelity that marked his honorable soldier record.

E. F. METZGER, the efficient town clerk of Troy township, and postmaster of Stony Ridge, is a native of Wood county, born in Troy township, January 15, 1867, and is a son of Lewis and Mary (Reninger) Metzger, both born in the German Empire, emigrating to America in 1835. In Medina county, Ohio, they were reared and married, but, as early as 1856, became residents of Wood county; in 1850, the father purchased his present farm in Troy township. They reared a family of seven children, namely: John, who died in Perrysburg township, November 7, 1894; Charles, who died in Troy township, November 3, 1888; George, a resident of Paulding county, Ohio; Henry, who died in Troy township, in 1883; E. F., of this sketch; and Carrie and Allen, both at home.

Our subject was reared to rural life, receiving his primary education in the district schools, after which he pursued his studies for two seasons in the Fostoria Normal School. On leaving school he began teaching, which profession he followed for eight years in Wood county, meeting with excellent success as an instructor. In his political affiliations, Mr. Metzger is a Democrat, and for the past six years has taken an active part in local public affairs, being one of the leaders of his party in the township. In 1892 he was appointed town clerk, and afterward elected for three consecutive terms; in December, 1893, he was appointed postmaster of Stony Ridge, to succeed J. E. Stewart. He has proved a capable official, discharging the duties of the offices to the satisfaction of all concerned. He holds membership with the Lutheran Church of Stony Ridge, and Fort Meigs Lodge No. 774, I. O. O. F., of Perrysburg, and is universally respected as an honorable, upright young man.

ABRAHAM HUFF (deceased) was one of the straightforward and honorable citizens of Wood county. He was a native of the Buckeye State, born on January 20, 1825, in Sandusky county, near the city of that name, and was the fourth of six children, the others being Nancy, Mary, Snowden, George and Benjamin. He received his early education in Missouri, and followed farming as a means of livelihood.

Mr. Huff was married February 11, 1847, in Washington township, the lady of his choice being Lucy Ward, daughter of J. M. and Maria (Cowen) Ward, prominent farming people of that township. In religious belief her father was a Dunkard, while her mother held membership with the Lutheran Church. They are both now deceased, the latter passing away March 21, 1884. They had four children: (1) Elizabeth, born June 4, 1825, has departed this life. (2) Mrs. Huff is the second in the order of birth. (3) Ira, born August 16, 1831, became a member of Company H, 21st O. V. I., during the Civil war, and died in Rebel prison at Andersonville, Ga. He had married Charlotte Jeffers, by whom he had two children—Elizabeth Maria, wife of Charlie Thompkins, a resident of Missouri; and Alice Ann, wife of James Madison, also of Missouri. (4) Eliza died at the age of fifteen years.

Three children came to bless the union of Mr. and Mrs. Huff, namely: (1) Sarah Maria, born July 27, 1850, is the wife of David McCombs, a contractor of Toledo, Ohio, by whom she had five children—Clinton, who died in infancy; Vernie Minnie, born August 20, 1871; Effie Myrtle, born September 20, 1873; Orlando Lester, born March 20, 1876; and Lucy Pearl, born December 15, 1879. (2) Ann Eliza, born December 15, 1851, died at the age of three years. (3) Eugene B., born in Weston township, January 16, 1854, married Della Clark, and resides on his own farm.

Mr. Huff, for the last twenty-five years of his life, traveled the greater part of the time. His death occurred in California, September 7, 1876. In politics, he was a Republican, and by his fellow citizens was chosen to fill several offices of honor and trust, including that of supervisor, which he held for two terms, while for several terms he was constable, and his duties were always faithfully discharged. He and his estimable wife were ever faithful and devoted members of the United Brethren Church, and the family is one of prominence in the community.

G. W. SMITH, a well-known farmer of Plain township, Wood county, comes of good old Revolutionary stock, his great-grandfathers on both sides of the family having fought and died in the struggle of the colonies for liberty, the one being killed at the battle of Brandywine, and the other at the battle of Trenton.

The parents of our subject were George and Mary (Wirts) Smith, the former being born in Pennsylvania in 1791, and dying in Summit county, Ohio, in 1854. The mother was a native of New Jersey, born in 1795, and died in Summit county in 1874. They were members of the Methodist Episcopal Church, and the father followed farming as an occupation. He was a Democrat, and a loyal citizen. The parental family comprised seven children, namely: Malinda, who married Joseph Hall, and died in Kansas; J. J., a physician, who resided at Akron, Ohio, and practiced there many years, but died December 7, 1884; J. B., who was assistant surgeon in the 14th O. V. I., and died at Nashville, Tenn.; Hannah, who married W. C. Smith and died at Rock Island, Ill.; Thomas, who was killed accidentally in Missouri; G. W., the subject of this sketch; and Margaret, the wife of L. M. Newton, residing in Kansas.

G. W. Smith was born in Summit county, Ohio, September 26, 1826, was educated in Akron, Ohio, under the superintendence of Gen. Leggett, and lived at home until twenty-one years old, when he went to California. There he was taken ill with typhoid fever, and, after thirty-days unconsciousness, had but partly recovered from that terrible disease, when dread cholera broke out, and he was seized with that. He fortunately escaped with his life, and, strange to say, for twenty-eight years afterward did not have a day's illness. In the spring of 1853 Mr. Smith took passage for Australia, reaching there in July, and for three years was engaged in mining in that country. He then decided to return home, and came by way of England, landing at Bristol, and stopping at London and many of the principal cities in Europe, and, being, in all, two hundred and eleven days, and traveling about 25,000 miles on the water before he reached the United States. He says, these were the happiest days of his life.

Mr. Smith finally settled in Wood county, Ohio, and in 1857 was married to Miss Matilda Eaton, who was born in Ashland county, Ohio, August 10, 1829. Of this union three children have been born: Era G., born June 24, 1866, is the wife of J. W. Le Galley, and has two children, Harry and Marguerite; Carl L., born March 11, 1868, was married February 6, 1895, to Miss Gertrude Hopkins, of Brownhelm township, Lorain Co., Ohio, who was born January 20, 1871 (he was educated at the High School in Bowling Green, and at Ada Normal School, and at present is assessor of Plain township); Lulu E., born March 3, 1874, is at home with her parents.

Mr. Smith is engaged in general farming and stock raising, and is a man of good business ability and of progressive ideas. He is a Democrat in politics, and is highly esteemed as a loyal citizen and good neighbor, who wants justice to all and special privileges to none.

BENJAMIN F. PRATT. This pioneer farmer of Perrysburg township was born March 9, 1824, on the place where he still resides. He assisted in wresting the now fertile acres from the primeval forests, and the wonderful growth and development of the surrounding country have all taken place before his eyes. He can relate many most interesting reminiscences of those early days, and of the people whose struggles and privations sound like a fairy tale to the youth of to-day.

Gen. William and Bathia (Brown) Pratt, the parents of our subject, were natives of Massachusetts, where they were married, and whence, in 1814, they came to Ohio, settling in Orleans, Wood county, on the Maumee river, near Fort Meigs. They had previously lived in Canada, where the father owned a store and a farm; but when the war of 1812 broke out he came with his family to the United States, leaving behind him all his property, and cast his lot with the young republic. They crossed the lake in an open boat to Orleans, and there entered land. In later years a part of the property in Canada was reclaimed by one of the children. The father served during the war of 1812, and rose to the rank of general.

When the family took possession of the land now owned by our subject, which was in the year 1818, it consisted of eighty acres of dense forest. They made the first clearing, back from the river front, which was made in that locality, and which became known as the "hole in the woods." William Pratt ran the first schooner on the Maumee river, and followed boating for many years. He died February 3, 1824, and was buried on the farm; his wife died at Grand Rapids in July, 1858, and was buried in the cemetery at Perrysburg, where her husband's remains had been removed. Seven children were born to this estimable couple, namely: Jonas, who was a farmer, and died in Henry county, Ohio, in 1854; William served with his father in the war of 1812, and died in Grand Rapids in 1869; Hiram died in Wood county, in January, 1854, his wife surviving him until January, 1894; Amos was a steamboat captain on the lakes, and resided a part of his life in Maumee, near Fort Miami, Lucas county, and died in Buffalo, some time in the "fifties;" Sarah became the wife of Judge Jerome, and died in Lucas county; Jane married Francis Hinsdall, and lives in Toledo; James makes his home in Illinois, and Benjamin F. is our subject.

Benjamin F. Pratt was reared in Perrysburg

B. J. Pratt

Lusa J. Pratt

township, and assisted his father in clearing and improving the home farm which he now owns, and to which he has added until his property comprises 192 acres, all well-improved and valuable land. He has built a comfortable residence, and is engaged in general farming. He was married in Perrysburg township, March 20, 1850, to Miss S. J. Perrin, who was born in Nova Scotia, and is a daughter of James and Nellie (Byers) Perrin, the father a native of France, the mother of Scotland. In 1838 her parents went to Indiana, where they both died in less than one week. After their deaths the children all returned to Wood county. Of these, Charles is deceased; Jane is now Mrs. Young, and lives at Albion, Mich.; Mary married Benjamin Langel, and is deceased; John resides in Roachton; William lives in Perrysburg township; Catherine married Stephen Langel, and is deceased.

Seven children have been born to Mr. and Mrs. Pratt, as follows: Fred is living in New Mexico; Ella (now Mrs. Kerr) lives in Grand Rapids; Arthur is in New Mexico; and May, Guy, Clifton and Benjamin F., are at home. Mr. Pratt is a Republican, and a member of the M. E. Church. He is a man of fine character, devoted to his home and family, and has never cared to hold public office. As a representative of one of the old families in the county, and for his many sterling qualities, he is held in the highest estimation by all who know him.

WILLIAM LE GALLEY, SR., one of the oldest of the honored pioneers of Plain township, was born December 20, 1812, in Colerain, Mass. He was the son of John and Margaret (Wilson) Le Galley, both of whom were natives of Massachusetts.

When he was seven years old his parents moved to Ohio, and located in Lower Sandusky, where both died a few years later, and our subject was left to make his own way in the world. He went to Seneca county, where he lived with an uncle for nine years, attending school for a short period, afterward working upon the farm. At the age of sixteen he began to learn the tanner's trade, which he followed for twenty-eight years in Seneca and Huron counties, where he also engaged to some extent in farming. He was married in Huron county, in 1836, to Miss Terry, who was born there in August, 1819. They had six children: Myron, John H., William T., Silia and Charles, all living; and Fannie, who died when six years old. In 1856 he moved to Wood county, and purchased 200 acres of land in Plain township, which was but little improved.

With the help of his sons, he succeeded in changing this wilderness into a cultivated farm, ditching, tiling, planting fruit trees, and building a good dwelling house, and commodious barns. He has divided seventy-five acres of his land between two of his sons, and still retains 125 acres, which is under the management of his son, Charles, who resides at the homestead. There are four oil wells in operation upon the property, developed by the Ohio Oil Company.

Although Mr. and Mrs. Le Galley have passed the allotted three score and ten years, both are hale and hearty, and happy in the enjoyment of the fruits of their past labors. Their children occupy useful and honorable positions in life, and their declining years are without a cloud. They have been for many years leading members of the Baptist Church in Bowling Green. Mr. Le Galley votes the Prohibition ticket, and he has always taken an influential part in local affairs. In 1860 he was elected justice of the peace, serving for one term, and he was school director for a number of years.

TITUS BECK was born in New Rumley, Harrison Co., Ohio, March 9, 1845. His early life was spent in Ashland county, Ohio, where he studied the elementary branches of an English education in the district schools. He enlisted in the Union army at Ashland during the Civil war, joining, on February 28, 1864, the Western army, with which he stayed for twenty-two months, being most of that time connected with the artillery corps at Fort Steel, Ark. In 1865 he returned to Ashland county, and on March 5, 1868, was married to Miss Laura E. Campbell, a daughter of James and Isabell (Robertson) Campbell. They moved to Wood county, where he at once settled on eighty acres of land he now owns, adjoining the corporation of Bowling Green. The property contains three oil wells, which he has leased, and he is occupied in general farming. Mrs. Laura E. (Campbell) Beck was born in Ashland county, Ohio, July 8, 1847. They became the parents of thirteen children, namely: Allen Sanford, born January 30, 1869; Myrtle E., born October 13, 1871; Alice G., born June 27, 1872, was accidentally burned to death November 19, 1876; George Campbell, born March 18, 1874, married to Miss Maud Case, of Toledo, June 15, 1896, a niece of President Garfield; Mattie May, born December 13, 1875, wife of Gilbert Harriss; Ida L., born February 19, 1878; John L., born November 17, 1879; Earl J. born November 23, 1881; Walter B., born May 19, 1884; Verah E., born June 20, 1886; Benson Foraker, born December 19, 1887; Orlie

C., born August 6, 1892; Hazel Bell, born January 27, 1894.

George Beck, father of our subject, was born in New Brunswick, on the St. Johns river, February 23, 1815. He came to the eastern part of Ohio when sixteen years old, and settled in Harrison county with his mother and family, where he lived until 1848, when he went to the northern part of Ashland county, and there died March 20, 1890. He was a farmer by occupation, and was a member of the United Brethren Church. In politics he was a Democrat until the beginning of the slave agitation, when he became an anti-slave agitator. His wife was a Miss Delila Miller, who was born and reared in Harrison county, Ohio, and died at Troy, Ashland Co., Ohio, at the age of seventy years. To this couple were born the following children: Martha, born October 2, 1840, is now the wife of John Porter, of Lorain county, Ohio; William, born June 20, 1842, died in 1864, at Tullahoma, Tenn. (he was a member of Company K, 102nd O. V. I.); Titus is our subject; Mary, who married William Latham, died at Sullivan, Ashland county; David and George died in infancy; Eliza, the wife of George Pixley, resides in Troy, Ashland county; Ollie is the wife of John Criss, of Lincoln county, Kans.; Enoch Goliah lives in Ashland county.

Our subject's grandfather died in New Brunswick, and his great-grandfather Beck was a soldier in the German army. Although a small man, he was very powerful and was able to put five barrels of flour on top of one another, being the only man in the army who could accomplish this feat of strength. His wife was a Miss Sherman, of Yankee descent. Mr. Beck's father was one of seven children, the others being: Titus, Martha, Margaret, Mary, Austin and Elizabeth. All of them are deceased except the two latter, who live in Ashland county.

James Campbell, the father of Mrs. Beck, was born May 20, 1820, in Ashland county, and the mother was born in Steubenville, Ohio, December 22, 1828. They were married June 10, 1846, and settled in Wood county, April 4, 1868, where he died in 1876. He was a Democrat before the war, and afterward became a Republican. During the war he enlisted in Company K, 82nd O. V. I., for the first three-years' volunteer service. He served until February 24, 1863, when he was discharged on surgeon's certificate of disability. He participated in the battles of Bull Run, Shiloh, and others. He lost his health while in the army, and died after returning home; he received a pension, which his widow, who still survives, now draws. Two of their five children grew to maturity—Laura and Almer; George E., John W., and Nettie E., all died while young.

Grandfather Campbell came from Pennsylvania and died in Ashland county. He married a Miss McKinsie, who was of Scotch-Irish descent. The maternal great-grandmother's name was Elliot, and she and her husband were Scotch-Irish, and lived and died in Steubenville. The Robertsons were from Jefferson county, Ohio, and were of Scotch-English descent. The paternal grandmother's name was Paterson.

WILLIAM B. KERR, who has been a trustee of Grand Rapids township since its organization, was born in Point Creek township, Holmes Co., Ohio, July 9, 1835. His grandfather, William Kerr, a blacksmith by trade, married Margaret Miller, and lived for some years after his marriage, in Pennsylvania, where his son Jesse, our subject's father, was born in 1810. Three years later the family moved to Holmes county, Ohio, and there Jesse Kerr grew to manhood, and followed the occupation of farming. He was there married to Miss Jane H. Barton, who was born in Jefferson county, Ohio, November 12, 1812, the daughter of one of the earliest settlers of that county. Our subject was the eldest of their family of eight children; Eliza, the second child, married Isaac Van Horn, a prominent resident of Wood county, Ohio; Nancy died in 1846; James E. is an ordained minister of the U. P. Church, at Coulterville, Ill.; Mary married Perry Heeter, a well-known agriculturist of Grand Rapids township; Joseph W. is a minister of the United Presbyterian Church in Piqua, Ohio; Villa married John Caton, of Grand Rapids township; the youngest child died in infancy. From 1850 to 1886 the family lived upon a farm in Wood county, where our subject's mother died in 1886, and his father seven years later, at the age of eighty-three.

William B. Kerr was started on the road to knowledge in his native county, and afterward attended the schools of Wood county. He worked upon his father's farm until he attained his majority, when he bought thirty acres of land, which he improved. In 1861 he enlisted at Napoleon, Ohio, in Company H, 68th O. V. I. (Col. H. Steedman and Capt. J. J. Vorhees, commanding), which was assigned to the 17th Army Corps, with Gen. McPherson as Dept. Commander, and Gen. Logan as Commander of the Division. On the expiration of his term of service, Mr. Kerr re-enlisted at Vicksburg, and served throughout the war. He was in a number of hard-fought battles, among them the engagements at Fort Donelson, Fort Henry and Vicksburg, and he took part in the Atlanta campaign, and "marched down to the sea" with Sherman. On receiving his final discharge at Cleveland, he went to Henry county and bought ninety acres of land which he cultivated for eight years, when he returned to Wood county, and purchased eighty acres near Grand Rapids, upon which he has made many improvements, and provided a comfortable home for his family.

On October 10, 1865, he was married to his first wife, Miss Jennie Culbertson, a daughter of J. G. Culbertson, a well-known citizen of Henry county. They have had three children: James H., born December 23, 1868, resides in Henry county; John W., born December 4, 1872, is now attending the Western Reserve Medical College at Cleveland; the youngest child died in infancy. Mrs. Kerr died in 1875, and our subject married again, choosing for a second wife Miss Mary J. Mitchell, of Knox county, Ohio, who was born August 18, 1840.

Mr. Kerr and his family attend the United Presbyterian Church, and are among the leaders in its various lines of work. In politics Mr. Kerr is a Republican, and his influence in the local organization is widely recognized. He is noted for his sound judgment and upright character, and has been intrusted with many public duties, which have been discharged with energy and discretion. Throughout his eight years residence in Henry county, he was justice of the peace in Damascus township, and since coming to this county he has been assessor of Grand Rapids and Weston townships for four terms, and has held the office of trustee in the former since 1891. He is a member of the G. A. R., Bond Post No. 24.

HON. J. E. STEVENS, the able and popular mayor of Grand Rapids, was born May 29, 1851, in Huron county, Ohio. He is a son of John A. and Linda (Heath) Stevens, prominent residents of Grand Rapids township, and has lived in this county since he was three years old, receiving his education mainly in the schools of Weston. He learned the blacksmith's trade with S. Sterling, of Weston, and remained with him for sixteen years, when he moved to Grand Rapids and worked for eight years with T. J. Sterling in the same trade. In 1892 he bought out his employer, and has since conducted the business for himself, enjoying the patronage of the entire community.

In 1873, he was married to Miss Mary Bee-man, who died some years later, leaving two children: Sylvester, who has already made a start in life as a blacksmith, and Louisa, who lives at Muncie, Ind. In 1882, Mr. Stevens married his second wife, Miss Emma Carson, daughter of the late John Carson, of Grand Rapids. Five children were born of this union: Alma, Ruth and Harry, who are now attending school, and Guy and Ruby, both of whom died in infancy. Mrs. Stevens is one of the most active workers in the Relief and Aid Society of the Presbyterian Church, of which her husband is a prominent member, and she is a ready supporter of any philanthropic movement.

Mr. Stevens holds in an unusual degree the confidence and respect of his fellow citizens, and is a leading member of the Republican party. He has twice been elected councilman of Grand Rapids, and in 1895 was chosen mayor by a large majority, fully justifying the faith of his friends by a wise, honest, and business-like administration.

FRED HEETER, the able young postmaster of Grand Rapids, who is one of the most enterprising and prosperous business men of that locality, is one of the "Wood county boys" who are doing credit to the place of their birth. Born in Grand Rapids, September 2, 1865, he attended the excellent public schools there during boyhood, and later took a course in a business college. After graduating, he returned to his native town, and engaged in mercantile business, dealing in groceries, glassware and crockery, and has achieved a success which speaks well for his ability, judgment and fair dealing. His reputation in financial circles is of the best, and in local politics he is also among the foremost, being an influential worker in the Democratic party in his vicinity.

Mr. Heeter was married June 12, 1895, to Miss Etta Thomas, born June 8, 1876, one of the most attractive young ladies of Grand Rapids, and a member of one of the leading families in the Methodist Church there. He is a member of the fraternal order of the K. of P. and of the I. O. O. F. With hosts of friends and so firm a vantage ground gained for success in business and political life, Mr. Heeter's future is confidently expected to bring to him still greater opportunities to give proof of his ability.

JUDGE GEORGE C. PHELPS, one of the oldest and most prominent citizens of Bowling Green, has been identified with the leading interests of this county ever since 1853, when he came to Webster township with his bride of a year, and established a home in the clearing. He is descended from an old New England family. His grandfather, Abel Phelps, lived in Tolland county, Conn., and reared a large family, among whom were: Sallie, born February 28, 1792, who married Mr. Manley, and died in Pennsylvania; Abby, born June 1, 1794; Harriet, born January 7, 1797; Patty, March 21, 1799—all of whom died in Connecticut; George A., born October 10, 1804, who died in Medina county, Ohio; and Abel, our subject's father, who was born October 10, 1804. He was married in Hebron, Conn., to Miss Sallie Barber, born April, 1807. In 1834 they moved to Brunswick, Medina county, Ohio, where they spent the rest of their lives, honored and influential citizens, and leading members of the Congregational Church. Mr. Phelps was a Democrat before the war, but in later life was a Republican. He died September 13, 1887, and his wife February 8, 1891. They reared a family of four children, of whom our subject is the eldest now living. Of the others, Elizabeth is the wife of George Hamilton, of DeKalb county, Ind.; Ralph lives in Medina county, Ohio, and Mary Jane is the wife of Hiram Davis, of Cuyahoga county, Ohio.

The subject of this sketch was born at the old home in Connecticut, October 25, 1827, and at the age of seven came to Ohio with his parents. He grew to manhood upon the farm in Medina county, and July 7, 1852, married Miss Emily A. Park, who was born in New York State March 1, 1827. Her father, William Park, was a native of Canandaigua, N. Y., and was descended from some of the early settlers of East Bloomfield, N. Y. Her mother was Miss Axa Reed, a native of Massachusetts, whose father, Uriah Reed, was a soldier in the Revolutionary war, and a life-long resident of Taunton, Mass. They settled in Medina county, Ohio, in 1837, and there their five children grew to maturity; Phœbe, Mrs. Joseph Simmons, of Cuyahoga county, Ohio; Emily A., Mrs. Phelps; Albina, deceased; Evaline, Mrs. Isaac Dake, of Medina county, and William, deceased. After their marriage Judge Phelps and his wife remained in Medina county, for a year, and then moved to Wood county, settling upon a farm where they lived for twenty years.

Our subject's rare fitness for public life was speedily recognized, and he was not permitted to remain in obscurity; for many years he held various township and county offices, school director, justice of the peace, township clerk and probate judge. To the last position he was elected three times, and held it, in all, over nine years. During this time the contest over the removal of the court house to Bowling Green took place, and he was one of the leaders. He has been engaged in various business enterprises also. He helped to build the old Tontogany railroad, and of later years he has been interested in the gas business, as his farm in Webster township lies within the "oil belt."

In September, 1876, he moved to Bowling Green, where he and his wife spend their declining years in well-earned repose, surrounded by their family of five children, three of whom are married and settled near by: (1) Albina A., born September 15, 1854, married William Muir, and has two children—Emily and Darwin. (2) George A., born November 16, 1857, married Margaret Wiley; they have four children—Clara, Bessie (deceased), Wiley and Helen. (3) Effie M., born May 9, 1862, is the wife of Charles Southwell; they have one son—George C. (4) Mary A., born September 17, 1865, and (5) William A., born July 11, 1869, are still at home.

SAMUEL R. JUNKINS belonged to one of the pioneer families of the Maumee Valley, and was numbered among those to whom the present generation is indebted for the high position Wood county has attained among the sisterhood of counties of Ohio.

His father, Samuel Junkins, was a native of Maine, descended from Scotch and Irish parents, and when a young man removed to the State of Pennsylvania where he engaged in the manufacture of brick. Here he was married to Nancy Smith, and to them were born children as follows: Clarissa, Thomas, Julia Ann, and Samuel R. Later the family removed to Guernsey county, Ohio, where at Fairview, March 30, 1829, was born the subject of this sketch. The father dying here in 1829, the family returned to Pennsylvania, and in Washington county, of that State, the widow was subsequently married to John Rice. In April, 1833, the latter with family removed to what was then Weston township (now Grand Rapids), this county, and settled in Section 18, where they resided some six months when Mr. Rice died, and the family removed to Section 21, and occupied a small house built by John Ginery, which was owned by a relative, John McKee. Mr. Rice had entered land from the government, but his affairs were in such a shape that it was lost to the widow, and so she with her children had to work out the problem of life alone; but well they accomplished it, for all have so lived as to become useful members of society and highly respected citizens of the communities in which they resided, and all have been possessed of a full share of this world's goods. The mother died in 1851. Samuel R., when old enough, assisted his older brother in the support of his widowed mother, and grew up to habits of industry and economy. He assisted in clearing up considerable land, and in every sense was not only the son of a pioneer, but a pioneer himself, for in his boyhood the primeval forest was here in all its density and wildness, and in growing up he played a conspicuous part in converting it into the fertile and beautiful fields of to-day. His educational privileges were, of course, limited, and as a boy he had only such advantages as fell to the lot of country boys of that period and surroundings. Later he attended for a time the common or high schools of Perrysburg, and with such a foundation, by frequent reading and study, he became a well-informed man, and practical in business affairs. He ever took a deep interest in the educational affairs of the county, and served as school director in his township.

S. R. Justice

On May 2, 1864, Mr. Junkins enlisted in Company I, 144th Regiment, O. N. G., and served as a corporal under Capt. John McKee until mustered out with company, August 31, of the same year. While the period of the regiment's service was short, yet it was an honorable one, and bore well its part in the Shenandoah Valley, on the Peninsula in the operations about the James river, and about Petersburg, the trials of all of which our subject participated in.

Mr. Junkins was in every sense a self-made man; beginning with nothing save a determination to make for himself a home and a name, he by strict attention to business, and by industry and economy, became a man of means and influence. He had so successfully managed his own affairs that the people of the county selected him as a good man to care for the interests of Wood county, and, in 1882, he was elected a county commissioner. For more than a year he was actively engaged in attending to the duties of this office. Ill health, however, stepped in and prevented him from serving out his term, and in the fall of 1885, after being confined to his bed for several months, he resigned. In politics he was a Republican, though when chosen to the office of commissioner it was by means of the People's party. He was a Granger in the days of the Grange movement, and a member of Milton Center Lodge of Odd Fellows. While during life Mr. Junkins had not identified himself with any Church, he was a moral man and ever prided himself upon an upright life; he was consistent in all things, and was one of the most highly respected citizens of the county in which he had passed upward of half a century. He died February 27, 1887, fully reconciled to the change of Worlds, and with perfect confidence in the Lord. His death was caused by stomach and kidney complaints after a sickness of nearly three years, during the last two of which he was confined to his room. His widow, who in her maidenhood was Miss Mary Olney, is a daughter of Benjamin and Lucy (Emerson) Olney, and to her he was married March 12, 1857. She now makes her home with her brother-in-law, George Kimberlin, Esq., of Bowling Green. There were no children born to the marriage. Mrs. Junkins is identified with the Baptist Church.

The Olney family was one of the early and conspicuous families of Colonial days. Thomas Olney, the ancestor of the Olneys in America, was born in the city of Hertford, Hertfordshire, England, which city formed a part of the Parish of St. Albans, the seat of one of the most ancient monasteries, and long celebrated in English history as the center of spiritual influence. He received a "permit to emigrate to New England," April 2, 1635, and came to Salem, Mass., by the ship "Planter." He was appointed a surveyor in January, 1636, and granted forty acres of land at Jeffrey Creek, now known as Manchester, near Salem. He was made a freeman the same year, and early associated with those who accepted the peculiar views of Roger Williams. With a number of others he was excluded from the colony March 12, 1638. Previous to this, however, in company with Roger Williams, he visited Narraganset Bay while seeking some place where they might live outside the jurisdiction of the Massachusetts Colony, and had decided upon the west side of the Seekonk river. Accordingly, with eleven others, they formed a new settlement at the head of the bay, which they named "Providence," in grateful remembrance of their deliverance from their enemies. They thus became the original thirteen proprietors of Providence.

The father of Benjamin Olney, Stephen Olney, was a native of Rhode Island, but removed to the State of New York and there made his permanent home. Benjamin Olney, the son of Stephen, and father of widow Junkins, was born in Saratoga county, N. Y., May 23, 1797. He was twice married, first to a Miss Elizabeth C. Berry, whose birth occurred in 1797, and to the marriage were born: Mary M., July 14, 1819, died October 10, 1820; and Stephen, born October 13, 1821, died in 1888. The mother of these passed from earth in 1824, and Benjamin Olney subsequently married Lucy Emerson, who was born in Saratoga, N. Y., March 16, 1800, a daughter of Broadstreet and Lois (Phelps) Emerson. To the second marriage of Mr. Olney were born the following sons and daughters who lived to be men and women: Mary, widow of Samuel R. Junkins; Prof. Edward Olney, a native of Saratoga county, N. Y., born July 24, 1827; Adeliza, who became the wife of George Kimberlin; George E., born October 24, 1832, and who died in the army July 24, 1863, a member of the 111th Regiment, O. V. I.; Harriet, born October 27, 1835, died November 12, 1839; and Estella, born February 28, 1845, died February 4, 1873.

Benjamin Olney and family became pioneers of Wood county, settling near Grand Rapids in 1833. He was a useful citizen, and his name frequently appears on the early records of that part of the county. He served the citizens of that township as trustee, justice of the peace, and in other official relations, and was associate judge in Wood county for a number of years. His death occurred near Grand Rapids, April 1, 1854.

Prof. Edward Olney was a natural-born student, and was especially gifted in mathematics. He was self-made, fitting himself for a teacher in Wood county by private study, and here taught his first term in the district school when nineteen years of age. At the time the schools of Perrysburg were graded he took charge of the grammar department, and subsequently was appointed to the chair of mathematics in the college at Kalamazoo, Mich., and there remained until 1863, when he was elected to fill the chair of mathematics in the University of Michigan, which he occupied until his death, January 16, 1887. He published several works, among which were the Olney series of school books on mathematics.

DAVID K. McQUINN is well known throughout Montgomery township as one of its most thorough going farmers and prominent citizens. He is a native of Wood county, born in 1860, and is the son of James and Nancy (Ritchy) McQuinn, who came to this county from Wyandot county, and made their first location in Freedom township. The father was born under the shadow of the mountains of Scotland, and came to this country when a young man, poor in this world's goods, but possessed of a pair of willing hands and a determination to succeed in life. Though small, he was robust, and became one of the leading agriculturists of Wood county, owning, at the time of his death, ninety acres of valuable land in Montgomery township, where he had made his home for fifteen years, and placed many good improvements upon his farm.

The father was married after coming to the New World, and the family circle included six children, namely: James, who died while young; Alvira, who became the wife of Dolene Turner, and died at Fostoria, Ohio; Mary, now Mrs. Martin Lein, of Portage township, Wood county; William, a farmer in Montgomery township; Cinderella, wife of James Lindley, of Fostoria; and David K., of this review. The father departed this life in Montgomery township, in 1876, at the age of sixty-eight years, and his wife, who survived him until 1878, died at about the same age. He was a staunch Republican in politics, regularly casting his ballot in support of that party, and, religiously, both he and his wife were consistent members of the United Brethren Church, with which he was officially connected.

Since the death of the parents, our subject and his brother, William, have purchased the interests of the other heirs, with one exception, and now operate the farm with good success. Their educations were such as the district schools of the neighborhood afforded, but their training at farm labor was not as meager as their educational advantages, and they grew up to be useful and respected members of society. In manner, our subject is quiet and conservative, is energetic and industrious, and wins the respect and confidence of all with whom he comes in contact. He has never taken an active part in politics, but performs the duties of an American citizen, and, at the polls, votes the straight Republican ticket, which his brother also supports.

PAUL GREULICH, an agriculturist of energy and ability, who resides in Section 7, Troy township, is a native of Medina county, Ohio, born in Liverpool township, in 1858, and is a son of John and Catherine (Weigle) Greulich. The birth of the father occurred at Frankfort, Germany, and at the age of eight years accompanied his father, John Greulich, Sr., to Medina county, locating in Liverpool township. At the age of nineteen he went to Cleveland, Ohio, but at the end of six years returned to the farm. In 1868 he removed to Toledo, where he was engaged in the dry-goods business on Cherry street for three years, and then again located on his farm in Liverpool township, where he passed his remaining days. His wife had died in Toledo. A brief record of their children is as follows: Christ died on the home farm; Joe, John and Louise, all died in Toledo; George is a resident of Lorain county, Ohio; Paul, of this review; Albert is engaged in the clothing business at Lorain, Ohio; and Mrs. Minnie Moley is of the same city.

The early life of our subject was spent in his native township, and at Toledo, where he acquired a common-school education, and, on starting out in life for himself, he engaged in the dry-goods business with his father. In 1879 he came to Troy township, and in 1890 purchased his present farm, selling at that time fifteen acres of the farm now owned by William Armbruster. When he located upon his land only twenty of the sixty acres had been cleared, but now forty-five acres have been placed under the plow. In 1892 he built a barn, 40 x 60 feet, and in 1895 erected his comfortable two-story dwelling, 18 x 26 feet, with an L, 16 x 20 feet.

Mr. Greulich was united in marriage with Miss Katie Sattler, a native of Rockport, Cuyahoga Co., Ohio, and a daughter of John Sattler, who now resides upon a farm in Perrysburg township, Wood county. By this union one child has been born—J. Don.

The political support of Mr. Greulich is given to the Democratic party. In 1888 he was elected a trustee of his township, which office he held for six years, and has also been a member of the school board. He served as adjuster and appraiser for The Lime City Insurance Company. Socially, Mr. Greulich holds membership with Perrysburg Lodge No. 774, I. O. O. F. He is pursuing the even tenor of his way as an honest man and good citizen, and to general farming devotes most of his time and attention.

JOHN SHERMAN holds a good position among the agriculturists of Troy township, where he is engaged in general farming in Section 12, and from which he derives a comfortable income. He was born upon his present farm in 1851, and is a son of Carl Henry and Mary (Myrose) Sherman. The father's birth occurred in 1826, in Hanover, Germany, and when about thirteen years of age he accompanied his stepfather, John Hartman, to America. The latter opened up a farm in Troy township, on which his death occurred.

For about seven years after locating in Wood county, the father sailed on the lakes between Buffalo and Toledo. In 1849, in Troy township, he wedded Miss Mary Myrose, who was also a native of Hanover, Germany, and a daughter of Frederick Myrose, one of the pioneers of that township. Both of her parents are now deceased. After his marriage Mr. Sherman bought eighty-seven acres of wooded land, of which about six acres had been cleared, and thereon erected a log house, in which the family lived until 1861, when the present residence of our subject was built. Politically the father was a Democrat, and served as a trustee of Troy township. Upon the home farm his death occurred in 1871, and there his wife died in 1886. In religious belief they were Lutherans, belonging to Salem Church, in Troy township. Seven children were born to them, all still living, and in order of their birth they are as follows: John, of this sketch; Mrs. Louisa Hoodlebrink, of Woodville township, Sandusky Co., Ohio; Mrs. Julia Niebhausmyer, of the same township; Mrs. Carrie Link, of Toledo, Ohio; Mrs. Sophia Akenberger, of Lake township; Louis, who is married and resides in the same township; and Henry, who is married and lives in Perrysburg township, Wood county.

Mr. Sherman, of this review, grew to manhood upon the home farm, receiving his education in the district schools of the neighborhood, and becoming familiar with agricultural pursuits. He aided in clearing the land, has tilled the entire place, and to its cultivation and improvement still devotes his time and attention.

In 1880, in Harris township, Ottawa Co., Ohio, Mr. Sherman was united in marriage with Miss Nina Gilson, who was born there, and is a daughter of Richard and Eliza (Putnam) Gilson, both natives of New York, whence they removed to Ottawa county in 1851, locating upon an undeveloped farm in the midst of the wilderness, where both parents are still living. In connection with farming the father also worked at his trade of a millwright. They reared a family of five children—George, who is married and resides in Ottawa county; Mrs. Mary Gilson, of the same county; Nina, the wife of our subject; Mrs. Ella Waldock, of Erie county, Ohio; and Ebon, of Ottawa county. To Mr. and Mrs. Sherman has been born a daughter—Grace.

Our subject's farm comprises 122 acres of rich and arable land, and besides general farming he is also engaged in stock raising. Like his father before him, he is a Democrat in politics, and is a member of the Lutheran Church. He is a worthy representative of one of the pioneer families of Troy township, and has seen the full and complete development of the locality.

JOHN C. F. WANSITLER. In this State, midway between the east and the west, are found the best representatives of that class of men known as self-made. They partake of the spirit of dauntless enterprise characteristic of the latter section, and this is tempered and guided by the more conservative methods of the East. Our subject is one whose success may be attributed to his own efforts, and his career is worthy of perpetuation in this volume. He was born on a farm in Columbiana county, Ohio, August 13, 1858, and is a son of Samuel Wansitler, also a native of Ohio, where for forty years he followed the carpenter's trade. He was married, in Columbiana county, to Mary Esther Carr, who was born in Scotland, and during her girlhood was brought by her parents to America. Some years after their marriage Mr. and Mrs. Wansitler removed to Ross county, Ohio, where the mother died in June, 1862. Several years passed, and the father then wedded Mary E. Frantz. The children of the first union are Elizabeth, wife of John Nittrouer, of Columbiana county, Ohio; John C. F.; Charlotte, wife of Albert Scheltz, of Fostoria, Ohio; and Charles, a railroad employe, of Allegheny City. After residing at several different places, the father took up his residence in Fostoria, Ohio, where he is now living retired. In politics he is a Republican.

At the age of ten years our subject first attended school, and his privileges in this direction were somewhat limited. After the death of his mother, he became an inmate of the family of Mr. Boice, where he remained for about seven years. At the age of eleven he began working for Jesse Dicken, of Portage township, Wood county, and while with him he attended school through the winter season. At the age of fifteen he continued his studies in Jerry City, Ohio, and for three years was a student in the school conducted by Prof. Edwin Hubbard. At the age of eighteen he secured a teacher's certificate, and began teaching in a district school in Jackson township, following that profession until 1891.

Mr. Wansitler was married in Jackson township, in August, 1881, to Martha M. Mellott, who was born August 31, 1862. They have four children—Bertha E., Wellington George, Sarah E., and Elias McKinley. They began their domestic life on their present farm, a portion of which Mr. Wansitler had purchased previous to his marriage. He now owns 160 acres, of which ninety acres are cleared and under a high state of cultivation, while upon the farm are three dwellings. He also owns a very nice residence in Bowling Green. He has taken quite an active part in public affairs, and is an influential citizen of the county, whom all esteem. Our subject figures quite prominently in politics as a supporter of the Republican party, and has served as a member of the county executive committee. He was census enumerator in 1890, and was deputy postmaster under Harrison. In the spring of 1890 he was elected constable, but resigned the following spring, and since that time has been township trustee. He has also been chairman of the school board for six years, and is now serving his third term as notary public. Socially, he is a charter member of the Knights of Pythias Lodge, of Custar, also the Odd Fellows society of Jerry City, and the Encampment Lodge of Milton Center. He is a man of scholarly attainments, broad-minded and progressive in his views, and an intelligent, esteemed gentleman, whose affable, courteous manner has won him hosts of warm friends among his wide circle of acquaintances.

LEVI SIMON, one of the leading pioneers of Bloom township, is the oldest living member of a family which has given to that township more good, substantial citizens than any other, barring none. They have been farmers, officials and supporters of Churches from its early history, and the very name is synonymous with good citizenship.

The first American ancestor of this family was Johann Adam Simon, our subject's great-grandfather, who left Switzerland in 1735, when a young man, and after a stormy voyage of three months set foot upon American soil. He located first in the eastern part of the colony of Maryland, but his last years were spent in Washington county, Penn., where he died when nearly one hundred years of age. His love of civil liberty, and his invincible integrity during the Colonial period, and the Revolutionary war, subjected him to heavy losses and privations, but his undaunted spirit sustained him through all, and in the end triumphed. He was the father of ten children: Michael, Nicholas, Andrew, Adam, Jacob, Mrs. Stahl, Mrs. Belz, Mrs. Deutzer, Mrs. Right and Mrs. Stark, all of whom reared large families. The first eighteen years of his married life were prosperous; but on the breaking out of the Narragansett war the Indians burned his house and its contents, the occupants having barely time to escape with what clothing they wore at the time. Michael, the eldest, escaped, though he was shot at several times. Andrew, then a lad of seven years, was working in a sugar camp some distance from the house with said Michael, and was captured. He suffered many cruelties, even being scalped; but after seven months he was exchanged and returned to his father, and our subject remembers seeing his denuded head.

Michael Simon, our subject's grandfather, was born February 2, 1741. In 1800 he came to Trumbull county, Ohio, and bought nearly 1,200 acres of wild land of Henry Boardman, who at that time owned the entire township. In 1802 he moved to his new property, his son Adam having settled upon it previously, and made some improvements. Michael Simon was married three times, and by his first marriage had twelve children: Michael, Jr., Peter, Andrew, Adam, George, Jacob, Barbara, Elizabeth, Margaret, Ann Mary, Esther and Mary C. His second wife, a Miss Althans, died within a year, her child dying also. By his third marriage, to Mrs. Dice, he had two sons, Abram and Henry. At his death, which occurred in 1839, his descendants numbered 485, sixteen of whom were in the fourth generation.

Mrs. Levi Simon Levi Simon

Jacob Simon, our subject's father, was born in January, 1783, the youngest child of his father's first marriage. His education was self-acquired, without teachers or even books, except the Bible; but he became a man of notable intelligence, and he taught school successfully for many years. At first a Whig, he later became a Republican. He married Elizabeth Stemple, a native of Preston county, Va., born in 1788, the eldest daughter of David Stemple, whose wife was a Miss Rinehart. Nine children were born of this union: David, who married Miss Gamber, and died in Mahoning county, at the age of fifty-nine; Lydia, the wife of Eli Ruppert, who died in Allen county, Ind.; Delilah, Mrs. George Wormley, who died in Mahoning county at the age of sixty; Levi, our subject; Stilling, who first married Miss Fox, and for his second wife wedded Miss Gentholtz, who survives him, residing at their former home in Bloom township; Gideon, who married Leah D. Pfister, and died in Bloom township when seventy-five years old; Salome, the widow of Moses Webber, of Mahoning county; Selinde (Mrs. John Shaffer), of Allen county, Ind.; and Jesse, a farmer of Mahoning county, who married Elizabeth Williamson. The father of this family died in Mahoning county, in 1858, aged seventy-four years, the mother in 1875 aged eighty-seven.

Levi Simon, the subject of this sketch, was born January 21, 1817. He was remarkably precocious, but the schools of his day and locality were poor, and, except for forty-three days of better instruction at Ellsworth, he is practically self-taught. It is to be regretted that his richly endowed mind did not receive the highest possible development, as he has accomplished such unusual mental feats with so little help. The rapid and seemingly easy manner in which he solved the most difficult mathematical problems was widely noted at an early age, and he has never yet found one which he could not solve. His contributions in prose and poetry to various newspapers have been read with interest, and display ability equal to that of many professional writers. Although he has been an industrious and painstaking farmer throughout his mature years, he could always find time to read the Bible, and his equal as a student of that book of books can seldom be found. He can quote any passage at will; in the expounding of abstruse texts, many preachers have found him a valuable aid to their own studies, and he has himself delivered many sermons. He was reared a Lutheran, but on moving to Wood county, where no Church of that denomination existed, he joined the Methodists. As he was not encouraged to express his honest convictions when called upon to speak, he, therefore, severed his relations with them and attended the Disciples Church, in which he was a preacher for four years. His start in life was obtained by teaching school at $13 per month, and clearing land at meager wages.

On April 18, 1844, Mr. Simon was married in Trumbull (now Mahoning) county, to Miss Mary A. Pfister, a lady of German descent, and a native of Youngstown, born October 29, 1822, daughter of Jacob and Margaret (Hewitt) Pfister. They had ten children whose names with dates of birth are as follows: Myconius N., March 3, 1845; Rubellus J., August 9, 1846, (a leading physician and surgeon at Pemberville); Damiette, December 18, 1847 (she married Frank Ledyard, of Bloom township, and died August 23, 1884); Jerusha, October 10, 1850 (she died November 10, 1872); Belenia, August 6, 1852 (she married D. A. Deal, and died November 11, 1884); Poliander, July 22, 1856 (a remarkable child, and at the time of his death, August 30, 1863, was intellectually equal to many of double his years); Montibello and Mettilene (twins), March 28, 1859 (the former now a farmer and dairyman of Bloom township; the latter died September 4, 1863); Phœbe E., June 11, 1861 (an unusually gifted child, possessing mental development far beyond her age at her death, December 30, 1877); and Elma O., February 19, 1863 (now Mrs. Jacob Fischer, of Helena, Montana).

For a short time after his marriage Mr. Simon followed farming in Mahoning county, but in April, 1846, he came to Wood county with his wife and one son, traveling by wagon and spending seven days en route. In 1839 he had bought forty acres of timberland in Bloom township, and here he built a log cabin and lived in primitive style. He taught school for one term in the neighborhood. He has made a success in life, owning now ninety acres of excellent land, and has been a generous supporter of all philanthropic and religious enterprises. Although he is not a member of any sect, he has contributed toward the building of every church in Bloomdale and vicinity. Despite his advanced age he is as active as most persons twenty years younger, and his mental faculties show no sign of impairment. He sympathized in early years with the Whig party, and since has been a Republican, but he is not slavishly bound by party ties. At different times he has taken an active share in local affairs, and he served as township clerk at a time when the records of that office had become very much complicated, requiring great skill and labor to adjust them. His wife died February 15, 1889, after nearly a half century of happy wedded life, and her mortal remains rest in the family burial lot in Bloom Chapel cemetery.

MYCONIUS N. SIMON, the eldest son of Levi Simon, now one of Bloomdale's most progressive and public-spirited citizens, received good educational advantages in his youth, making steady progress from his first day in the old log schoolhouse with Miss Clarissa Russell as his teacher. After finishing the course afforded in the district schools he attended more advanced classes, and in 1872 and '73 was a successful teacher in Bloom and Perry townships. Later he was employed in the office of the recorder of Mahoning county, and he was the first station agent at Bloomdale of the Baltimore & Ohio railroad, for which he afterward served as clerk, baggage master and night ticket agent at Fostoria. He was accountant of the N. Y. P. & O. railroad at Youngstown in connection with the P. & L. E. railroad. In religious connection he belongs to the Wesleyan Methodist Church. In politics he is a Republican with Prohibition tendencies, and he is an ardent lover of the American flag and all it represents. Fond of reading, he is a great student of the Bible, in which he is well informed. "Mac," as he is familiarly called, surely has not one enemy from just cause.

EBER WILSON JUNKINS is numbered among the early settlers of Wood county, dating his residence from 1858, for it was on August 10, of that year, that he was born in Weston township. He is one of the six children of Thomas and Elizabeth Nancy (Long) Junkins, highly esteemed people of this locality. He attended the district schools, and during the summer months aided his father in the cultivation and development of the home farm—much of the work devolving upon him as he was the eldest son. He remained at home until twenty-three years of age, and then began working for his uncle, Samuel Robert Junkins, of Weston township, with whom he remained for two years, receiving $220 for the second year's service.

On January 1, 1885, in Washington township, was consummated the marriage of Mr. Junkins and Miss Annie Eliza Bachmann, a native of Erie county, Ohio, born November 24, 1859, and a daughter of Charles and Annie (Kistner) Bachmann, natives of Germany. The father came to America when a young man, and soon after the mother crossed the Atlantic. Their marriage was celebrated in Cleveland, Ohio, but later they became residents of Wood county. Our subject and his wife began their domestic life on his uncle's farm, renting that farm for a year, then purchased eighty acres of land of his father, for which he paid $1,000. Of this tract twenty acres were cleared, but Mr. Junkins has made all of the improvements upon the property, has cleared off an indebtedness of $1,700, has erected a good residence, barns and other buildings, and now has one of the model farms of Wood county. The home has been blessed with four children, namely: Goldie Mabel, Ila Fern, Zardie and Ernest.

Mr. Junkins votes with the Democracy, but has never been an office seeker, preferring to devote his entire time and attention to his business interests, in which he has met with excellent success. He has always been an advocate of progress and improvement, and whatever tends to benefit the community receives his support. Socially he is connected with the Odd Fellows Society, the Knights of Pythias, the Knights of the Maccabees, the Temple of Honor, the Patrons of Industry, and the Grange.

MALON GAULT, who occupies a fine and well-improved farm in Perry township, is numbered among its leading farmers, who from a small beginning has built up one of the best homesteads within its borders. The residence and its surroundings are highly creditable to the proprietor, and indicate him to be a man of industry and energy, who has kept his eyes open on what is going on in the world around him, and availed himself of the most favored method of carrying on agriculture.

Like many of the men who have contributed to the development of the resources of Wood county, Mr. Gault is a native of the Keystone State, having been born in Salisbury township, Lancaster county, November 10, 1831, and is a son of William and Margaret (Goodman) Gault, who were the parents of thirteen children, seven sons and six daughters. Our subject was next to the youngest, and was only four years old when his mother died, while at sixteen he was left an orphan. His education was very limited, and he was early employed as a farm hand, receiving $2.50 per month when fourteen years old. In 1850 he left his native State, going by way of Pittsburg, Beaver, Canton and Massillon, Ohio, to Perry township, Ashland county, where for two years he was employed by Jacob Gardner.

In that township, in April, 1852, Mr. Gault was united in marriage with Miss Elizabeth Morr, who was there born June 30, 1829, and is a daughter of John and Hannah (Sonda) Morr, German farming people who came from Center county, Penn. Seven children were born of this union: Oliver P., who died at the age of twenty-two years; Hannah S., who died at the age of seventeen; Francis M., a farmer of Jackson township, Wood county; John M., who died at the age of twenty-five; William E., a farmer of Hancock county; and Ezra L. and Howard W., at home.

For a time Mr. Gault rented land in Montgomery township, Ashland county, their little home being meagerly furnished as most of his earnings went to buy tools and equipments to carry on the cultivation of the land. After renting for several years, he became owner of twenty-nine acres, which he sold, and in 1864 removed to Bloom township, Seneca Co., Ohio, where he leased farms most of the time. April, 1871, witnessed his arrival in Perry township, Wood county, where he purchased forty acres of land in Section 30, which is still his home, though he has added to the amount, and now has fifty-five acres. His wife has ever been a faithful helpmeet, and is a member of the United Brethren Church. He was first an Old-line Whig, but now casts his ballot regularly with the Republican party. For almost three months this worthy couple visited in the West, going to Denver, Cheyenne, Salt Lake City and the leading places of interest in California, which made an enjoyable trip.

SAMUEL E. BRANDEBERRY is the owner of a fine farm in Perry township, the operations of which he carefully superintends, and which is largely devoted to general farming. A native of Wood county, he was born in Bloom township, on March 13, 1847. The birth of his father, Philip Brandeberry, occurred in Westmoreland county, Penn., January 10, 1812, and he was a son of Philip Brandeberry, Sr., an honored pioneer of this locality. In Wood county the father was married, October 17, 1844, the lady of his choice being Miss Mary Burns, who was born in Ashland county, Ohio, February 2, 1820, and was a daughter of Samuel E. and Nancy Burns. Her paternal grandfather, John P. Burns, was a schoolmate of George Washington, and could relate many interesting incidents of their boyhood days. After their marriage this worthy couple began their domestic life upon a farm of eighty acres in Bloom township, which the father had purchased, and eight children came to gladden that pioneer home, namely: Samuel E., of this review; Catherine, who was born September 18, 1848, and is now the wife of Henry Minks, of Center township, Wood county; Albert and Allen, twins, born May 2, 1850, the former of whom died August 9 following, and the latter a farmer of Perry township; John B., of Trumbull county, Ohio, born June 17, 1852; Nancy J., who was born April 14, 1854, and died July 16, 1872; George W., a farmer of Hancock county, Ohio, born December 17, 1857; and David E., who was born September 19, 1862, and was killed by a falling tree, August 28, 1873. The last named was one of the greatest choppers for his age in the township, and when only nine years of age could cut down a tree. Although a small man, the father was strong and energetic, and was a great hunter, killing many deer and turkeys. In politics he was first a Whig and afterward a Republican. He died in Bloom township, September 24, 1876, his wife on the 27th of May previous, and they now sleep side by side in the cemetery of Perry Center. They were faithful members of the Methodist Church, and in her younger days the mother had been a school teacher, her wages being as low as seventy-five cents per week.

At the Hopewell school our subject received his literary training, and during the Civil war became a member of Company E, 144th O. V. I. Although they attended the drills regularly at Eagleville and Tontogany, Wood county, his company was held in reserve, and never saw any active service. Being the eldest son, he was of great assistance to his parents, and never left home until his marriage.

In Perry township, on June 12, 1877, Mr. Brandeberry led to the marriage altar Miss Sarah A. Tyson, who was born in Portage township, April 18, 1853, and is the eldest of the five children of George and Frances (Snyder) Tyson, who came to this county from Columbiana county, Ohio. Three children have been born of this union: Arcena, born April 22, 1878; Aldia, who was born November 14, 1880, and died February 9, 1883; and Rosa, born September 30, 1889.

After his marriage, Mr. Brandeberry located upon a part of his present farm, having purchased forty acres in 1857, but now owns 180 acres of valuable land. On October 3, 1887, he lost his barn by fire, but it has been replaced by a more commodious building, while all of the improvements upon the place are of a substantial character. He is a natural mechanic, having worked at the painter's, carpenter's and mason's trades. A good manager, he seems to get the best results from everything he undertakes, and has been very prosperous in his business affairs. He is a straightforward, honorable citizen, and a supporter of the Republican party.

CHARLES OSTERHOUT, one of the enterprising and progressive farmers living in Hull Prairie, and a gentleman whose genuine worth commends him to the confidence and respect of all, was born in Montgomery county, N. Y., December 6, 1827, and is a son of George and Catherine (Nellis) Osterhout. When quite young, our subject accompanied his parents on their removal to Ohio, and was reared and educated in Huron county. He worked on his father's farm until after he had attained his majority, and at the age of twenty-five, with the hope of bettering his financial condition, he crossed the plains to California.

The long and arduous journey across mountains and prairie was at length completed, and he remained for a year on the Pacific slope. He then returned home, spending two years in Ohio, but in 1855 again went to California, where he remained four years. He reached this State in 1859, and in 1860 came to Wood county, locating in Middleton township, purchasing 160 acres of land on Hull Prairie. Upon this he made a number of excellent improvements. He afterward sold eighty acres, but has since purchased sixty acres, and now has a fine farm under a high state of cultivation and well improved.

In 1861, in Erie county, Mr. Osterhout married Phœbe A. Montross, a native of Pennsylvania. They have four children—George, an oil operator, who married Anna Whickem; Hattie, wife of George Powell, of Toledo; Mae, wife of William Powell, of Toledo; and Charles, who farms the homestead. The mother of this family died in 1882, and in 1884 our subject married Carrie M. Goss, who was born in Vermont in 1856. They have two children, Ross and Helen, attending school.

For five years, Mr. Osterhout has served as school director, for five years has been a member of the township board, was road supervisor two years, treasurer of the township five years, and in all these offices has discharged his duties with scrupulous fidelity. The five oil wells upon his farm add not a little to his income, and he is meeting with success in his business dealings, while among his fellow townsmen he is popular and well liked.

WILLIAM HAMMAN, who was born in Pennsylvania, December 9, 1825, died in Hammansburg, April 24, 1893, respected by all who knew him, for he was an important factor in the work of public progress, and his life was an honorable one. When a young man he learned the trade of coverlet weaving. With his parents, Jacob and Elizabeth (Koch) Hamman, he removed to Mahoning county, Ohio, and was there united in marriage with Miss Rose Dustman. They located in that county, but subsequently removed to Bloom township, Wood county, and afterward to Fremont, Ohio. Their next home was in Sandusky, Ohio, and from there they came to Henry township, Wood county. While on a visit in Mahoning county, Mrs. Hamman was taken ill and died. Of that marriage were born six children: Jacob, who died at the age of twenty years; Mrs. Henrietta Leathers, of Henry township; Frank, of Michigan; John, of Kansas; and Lewis and Alice, who died in childhood.

Mr. Hamman was again married, in 1852, in Henry township, on this occasion to Miss Mary Henning, who was born in that township, September 12, 1840, a daughter of John F. and Elizabeth Henning. She spent her girlhood days on her father's farm, and acquired her education in a log school house near by. Our subject and his wife began their domestic life in a log cabin which stood on the farm, and his energies were devoted to the development of his land, comprising 160 acres. He continued the cultivation of that property for a number of years, and in 1856 he erected a sawmill in what is now Hammansburg, named in his honor, that he operated for twenty years. Selling that property, he then established a grocery store in Hammansburg, and later was appointed postmaster of the town. In December, 1890, he removed with his wife and family to Cherokee county, Kans., where he purchased 160 acres of land; but after two years and three months he returned to the old home in Hammansburg, there residing until his death. In politics he was a Democrat. He was a faithful member of the Methodist Episcopal Church, and belonged to that class of representative citizens who manifest a deep interest in the welfare of the community. All who knew him had for him the highest regard.

William Hamman Mary Hamman

To Mr. and Mrs. Hamman were born eight children, namely: (1) Lizzie married George Sterling, of Henry township, and died at the age of twenty-three; she was the mother of two children—Arvilla, who died before Mrs. Sterling, and Willie, born September 15, 1885, who has lived with his grandmother, Mrs. Hamman. (2) Josie is the wife of William Peters, of Henry township; they have had four children—Arthur, Earl, Shirley (deceased) and Lola. (3) George B. married Laura Latham, and has two children—Lillie and LeRoy; they reside in Henry township. (4) Laura died at the age of two years and nine months. (5) Louisa died at the age of nineteen years. (6) Maud is the wife of Jesse Gillespie, and has one child—Lee, born March 18, 1896. (7) Blanche and (8) Grace are living at home. Since her husband's death Mrs. Hamman has disposed of much of the property, including the Kansas farm; but she still owns two houses and lots in the town, and also has a house and lot in Bowling Green. She is a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church, and is a most estimable lady.

HENRY HOELTER. Among the prominent and enterprising farmers of Troy township, who are of alien birth, is the gentleman whose name introduces this sketch. Like others of his countrymen, he brought to the New World those habits of economy and frugality which are an inherent characteristic of his native land, and the exercise of which, accompanied by industry and good management, have secured him a comfortable competence. His residence is located in Section 27, where he carries on agricultural pursuits. A native of Hanover, Germany, he was born in 1846, at the home of his parents, Joe and Elnora (Boehna) Hoelter, also natives of the same province. By trade his father was a carpenter, and he died in Hanover in 1849, while the mother survived him until 1882. In their family were seven children who grew to maturity, namely: Henry, who was drowned in Hanover; Mrs. Elizabeth Furmeyer, of Cleveland, Ohio; Mrs. Eleanor Walker, who passed away in Germany; Mrs. Regina Braucksick, of Hanover; Frederick, who still makes his home in that country; and Mrs. Nora Huffman, who for some years has been a resident of Ross township, Wood county.

Mr. Hoelter was reared to manhood in his native land, but at the age of twenty-four years decided to try his fortune on this side of the Atlantic, where, he understood, better opportunities were afforded young men. Therefore, he set sail at Bremen, and after a voyage of seven weeks, landed at New York, whence he came direct to Cleveland, Ohio. In that city, in 1870, he was married, the lady of his choice being Miss Anna Marie Braucksick, who was also born in Germany, and is the daughter of John Henry and Elizabeth Braucksick, both natives of the Fatherland. They came to this county with our subject, but are now deceased. In the family of Mr. and Mrs. Hoelter are nine children: William, who is married, and engaged in business as a member of the firm of Samson & Hoelter, of Luckey, Ohio; Lizzie, Anna, Carrie, Gus, Henry, Fred, John, and Dora.

From the time of his arrival in Cleveland, in 1869, until coming to Troy township, in 1875, Mr. Hoelter worked at the trade of a cooper in that city. Here he first rented land in the eastern part of the township, but in 1879 located upon his present farm of eighty acres, then partially improved. No buildings stood upon the place with the exception of a log house which was destroyed by fire in July, 1884, and the same year he erected his present comfortable frame residence. The land is now under a high state of cultivation, and all of the improvements found thereon are of a substantial character, indicating the owner to be a man of thrift and enterprise.

Mr. Hoelter uses his elective franchise in support of the measures and men put forward by the Democratic party, has been trustee of his township for some years, and also a member of the school board of District No. 5. Both he and his excellent wife are members of the Lutheran Church, and they enjoy the esteem and respect of the neighborhood.

ELISHA B. TURNER, one of the honored and highly esteemed citizens of Wood county, was born in Fort Ann, Washington Co., N. Y., in the earliest days of the history of that State, his birth occurring March 23, 1813. His parents were Leonard and Dianthy (Blakeman) Turner. Their marriage was celebrated in Washington county, and subsequently they removed to Westfield, Delaware county, the father following farming. He died at the home of his son Charles, in Eaton county, Mich., at the age of eighty-four, and his wife survived him four years. They had seven sons and five daughters: Leonard, a farmer, of Delaware county, Ohio; Elisha; Mrs. Mary Green, who died in Illinois; Laura, wife of Morgan Lewis, of Cardington, Morrow county, Ohio;

Joseph A., a farmer, who died in Eaton county, Mich.; Charles A., a farmer, of Bellevue, Eaton county; John, a farmer, of Keokuk county, Iowa; Annis, now Mrs. Bean, of Delaware county, Ohio; Marcella Jane, who died in childhood; Louisa, wife of Samuel Sanders, of Kansas; Joel, a farmer, who died in Delaware county; and George, who died in Huron county, Ohio.

Our subject attended school through the winter months until fourteen years of age, and then left home to make his own way in the world, being employed in a dairy most of the time until he had attained his majority. He next engaged in clerking two years, and then removed to Westfield, Delaware Co., Ohio, where he soon engaged in the work of the ministry. His first charge was at Sunbury, where he remained until 1838, being ordained at that place. After a three-years' pastorate there, and two years spent at Mill Creek, he was sent as a missionary by the Mad River Baptist Association to labor in Union, Logan, Champaign and Delaware counties, over which he traveled on horseback. On his long, lonely rides he made a close study of the Bible. His next permanent charge was at New London, Huron county, and after four years he went to Monroeville, where he spent three years.

Mr. Turner was married in Mill Creek township, Delaware county, December 8, 1840, to Eliza Ann Said, who died near Marysville, Ohio, in 1845. They had two children—Delia P., who was born May 3, 1842, and died in September, 1847; and Louisa Jane, wife of A. J. Munn, of Weston, Ohio. In Clarksfield, Huron county, in 1850, Mr. Turner married Mrs. Catherine (Bross) Shaw, widow of Isaac Shaw. They also had two children, but one died in infancy, and Mary D., who was born April 22, 1856, is the wife of J. H. Sands, of Bowling Green, Ohio. The mother was born in Stamford, Conn., September 14, 1822, and is a daughter of Adam and Eliza (Briggs) Bross, the former a native of New York and the latter of Connecticut.

In 1855, Mr. Turner came to Wood county, and purchased eighty acres of land in Liberty township. After farming for a year, he removed to Clyde, Sandusky Co., Ohio, where he had charge of a Church for a short time; then spent eighteen months in Johnstown, Licking Co., Ohio. He afterward returned to Liberty township, and, after selling his farm, opened a general store in Portage about 1861, following merchandising for four years. Again he removed to a farm, but after a year returned to Portage, where he has since resided. He, however, owns thirty-five acres of land on which are four oil wells.

For years Mr. Turner was a stalwart Republican, but since 1890 has affiliated with the Prohibition party. For eleven years he served as justice of the peace. The snows of many winters have fallen upon him, but his kindly bearing and genial disposition make him still young in feeling and interests, and he is revered and honored by all.

JOHN J. DEUBLE. The subject of this history, a man of more than ordinary intelligence and business capacity, owns eighty acres of good land in Section 22, Troy township, and is prominent among the agricultural interests of Wood county, contributing largely to its reputation by building up one of the most desirable homesteads within its borders. He is in the prime of life, and the midst of his usefulness—admired and esteemed by his friends and neighbors, and enjoying, as he deserves, a generous portion of this world's goods.

Like a large proportion of the go-ahead men of the county, Mr. Deuble is a native of the Buckeye State, his birth having taken place in Liverpool township, Medina county, January 28, 1840. His parents, C. F. and Christina (Kushman) Deuble, were natives of Germany; but were married in Medina county. In Liverpool township the father opened up a farm, where he made his home until his death in 1872. He was also a tanner by trade. The mother of our subject had died in Medina county, in 1849, leaving seven children: Frederick, of Iowa; Mrs. Mary Henschen, of Cleveland, Ohio; Mrs. Christina Hanmon, of Litchfield, Medina county; Henry, of Cleveland; Mrs. Sarah Renick, of Havana, Ohio; Charles, of Cleveland; and John J., of this sketch, who was fourth in order of birth. After the death of his first wife, the father was again married, and by the second union had eight children, who are still living.

The childhood and youth of our subject were passed in Medina county until he reached the age of sixteen, when he started out in life for himself, going first to Indiana, where he was employed. He later worked both in Iowa and Colorado, and in 1863 located at Virginia City, Mont., the county seat of Madison county, where he entered land and became one of its first settlers. He remained there until coming to Wood county in 1890, carrying on both stock raising and mining, and still owns a stock ranch of 160 acres in that State. He became quite familiar with Western life in all its phases. In 1884 he purchased his present farm, where he located in 1890, and two years later built his good barn, 40 x 70 feet. while his comfortable two-story frame residence was erected in 1893.

On the 12th of October, 1879, in Troy township, Wood county, was celebrated the marriage of Mr. Deuble and Miss Sarah Kurfess, who was born in Cleveland, Ohio, October 30, 1849. She was educated in Wood county, and is the daughter of Jacob and Frederica (Metzger) Kurfess, both natives of Germany. Her parents were married near Cleveland, but removed to Troy township at an early day, where the mother died in 1884, and the father now finds a pleasant home with our subject. To Mr. and Mrs. Deuble have been born two children: John A., born October 25, 1880, and Paul Frederick, born March 17, 1883.

In politics our subject is an ardent Democrat, and religiously he and his amiable wife are esteemed members of the Lutheran Church at Stony Ridge, of which he has served as elder. They are frank, open-hearted, hospitable people, and have made many warm friends since taking up their residence in the community.

MATTHEW PARK is the proprietor of a general mercantile establishment in Dunbridge, and is a prominent factor in commercial circles. A native of the Keystone State, he was born in Lawrence county, February 6, 1844. His father, William Park, was also born in Pennsylvania, and was a son of James Park, who served as a soldier in the war of 1812. The former followed farming throughout his life, and in his native State married Delila Underwood, by whom he had eight children—Sarah, widow of Eli Reed; Caroline, widow of A. Steven, and a resident of Pennsylvania; Matthew; John, who died in Andersonville prison during the Civil war, while defending the Union cause; Edwin, a soldier of the 2d Ohio Cavalry, and died at Ft. Scott, Kans.; Elizabeth and Henry, who died in childhood; and one who died in infancy. The father passed away in Pennsylvania, in 1869, and the mother afterward came to Wood county, her death occurring in Plain township in 1882.

Mr. Park acquired his education in Pennsylvania, and worked on the home farm from early boyhood until the Civil war was inaugurated. Loyal to the Union, and anxious to aid in its preservation, he enlisted in 1861, in an Ohio Cavalry company at Lowell, Mahoning county. He served for four years, participating in some seventy battles and skirmishes, among them Cold Harbor, Five Forks, the Wilson raid in 1864, Sheridan's raid in 1865, Knoxville, Strawberry Plains, Cumberland Gap, and battles of the Wilderness. He was at the surrender of Lee at Appomattox. At St. Louis, Mo., September 11, 1865, he received an honorable discharge, and returned home with a war record of which he may well be proud.

Mr. Park located in Mahoning county, where he remained for twenty-two years. During the war, in 1864, he had married Miss Mary A. Kramer, a native of Pennsylvania, and to them were born the following named children: Edmund, a farmer of Michigan; Armand, a farmer of Wood county; Alma, wife of G. English; Leroy, Jessie, Elsie, Orlie, and Laverna. In 1892, Mr. Park was again married, his second union being with Marie J. Boyer, a native of Fremont, Ohio. Their only child died in infancy.

Our subject came to Wood county in 1879, locating in Plain township, where for two years he operated a farm. In 1881 he came to Middleton township, and purchased forty acres of land which he operated until 1893, when he sold out and opened his present store in Dunbridge. By close application to business, and honorable dealing, he has built up a fine trade, and thereby secured a comfortable competence. He belongs to Robert Stewart Post No. 690, G. A. R., and the Patriotic Order of Sons of America. He has served as school director for three years, is a Republican in politics, and is regular in attendance at the Presbyterian Church.

ANTON ASMUS. The fertile lands of Ohio offer excellent inducements to those who wish to engage in agricultural pursuits, and a prominent representative of the farming interests of Wood county is the gentleman whose name begins this sketch. A native of Germany, he was born in Nassau, April 3, 1836, and is a son of Henry and Catherine (Hush) Asmus, also natives of that country. He received a good education in the public schools, and his time between the ages of fourteen and eighteen was spent as a clerk in a hotel. He then determined to seek a home in America, and bidding adieu to friends and native land, in 1854, he embarked in a westward-bound sailing vessel, which after forty-three days dropped anchor in the harbor of New York. He at once made his way to Sandusky City, Erie Co., Ohio, and in that county worked as a farm laborer for seven years, after which he operated a rented farm for five years.

During that time Mr. Asmus chose as a companion and helpmeet on life's journey Miss Catherine Shively, daughter of Henry Shively, a farmer of Seneca county, and a native of Pennsylvania. The lady was born in 1838, in Seneca county, and the marriage was there celebrated in 1861. Six children graced their union—Sarah, wife of Henry Philips, of Washington township; Henry, a farmer of Middleton township, who married Catherine Hoffman; Mary; John, deceased; George, and Ora.

In 1866 Mr. Asmus brought his family to Wood county, locating in Middleton township, where he purchased a tract of raw land, which he cleared and improved. To this he has added from time to time until he to-day owns a fine farm of 110 acres. It has been drained, plowed and planted, and now waving fields of grain indicate good harvests, and tell of the thrift and enterprise of the owner. The home of the family is a beautiful brick residence, which was erected at a cost of $2,000. A substantial barn, costing $1,000, affords ample shelter for grain and stock, of which he raises considerable.

Mr. Asmus has served as school director for a number of years, and for four years was road supervisor. His political support is given the Democracy. He belongs to the Lutheran Church of Haskins, of which he has been trustee for ten years, and also Sunday-school teacher for a similar period. His life is an upright one, over which there falls no shadow of wrong, and he has prospered in his undertakings by use of the advantages which have surrounded him, and by industry, good management and sound judgment.

SAMUEL MILLIGAN. Among the honored settlers who gave their energies to the task of making habitable the waste places of Wood county, the subject of this sketch, now a wealthy retired citizen of Risingsun, holds a worthy rank. Although not so early in this field as some who have happily been spared to enjoy the fruits of their labors, he settled in an undeveloped spot where he contended with primitive conditions with true pioneer spirit. He entered upon life's pilgrimage June 19, 1819, in Walnut township, Fairfield Co., Ohio.

William Milligan, his father was a native of Maryland, born August 8, 1772. He was married there in early manhood, and soon after came to this State, locating near the Ohio river, where his first wife died. He was married there for the second time, and later removed to Fairfield county, where death again left his home bereft. He then wedded Miss Ann Crawford, of Fairfield county (our subject's mother), who survived him, living to the age of sixty-eight years, he having died at the age of sixty-three years, after an active life as a pioneer farmer. He was a large, robust man, with curly dark hair. There were eleven children by his three marriages (and five children—two sons and three daughters by the last), and of this large family our subject and his brother David are now the only survivors.

Samuel Milligan was the youngest son and third child of his mother, and was reared as a farmer's boy, gaining a much more intimate acquaintance with farm work than with books, although he attended the schools of the time and locality. He remained at home until he was about twenty years old, when his father died and he became, in a sense, the head of the family, being appointed guardian of his two younger sisters. He was married November 21, 1843, to Miss Mariah Palmer, a native of Fairfield county, and settled upon a part of the homestead, where he made a home for his mother and younger sisters.

He made several prospecting trips through this portion of the State, and in 1854 he rented a farm in Perry township, Wood county, to which he removed, driving through from his old home with a wagon. His work there was successful, and in 1856 he purchased eighty acres of new land in Section 35, Montgomery township. It was heavily timbered, and the greater portion of it was under water. Wild game was plentiful, and he has shot ducks many times upon his swamp, and would then get his horse and wade into the expanse of water to get them. On that same spot he has raised as fine a crop of grain as ever ripened in Wood county. He was a hard worker, and his robust health enabled him to accomplish much. As he redeemed one piece of land from the wild state he added another, until he now owns 160 acres, and his handsome competence has been acquired through his own efforts, as he started with but little from his father's estate.

Mr. Milligan's first wife died October 18, 1844, in Fairfield county, leaving one daughter, Mariah (now Mrs. Henry Bennett, of Mercer county, Ohio). Subsequently he married, for his second wife, Miss Louisa Tabler, who died in Fairfield county, on April 29, 1849, leaving a son—William (now a farmer of Trego county, Kans., of which State he was a member of the Legislature, serving one term as a Democrat, and he passed seven bills within the space of three months). Mr. Milligan was again married May 29, 1851, to Miss Rebecca Gessell, his present wife, who was born in Fairfield county, May 3, 1830, a daughter of John and Margaret Gessell, both of whom were natives of Pennsylvania. Eleven children were born of this union: John, who died at six months of age; Margaret A., now the widow of Joseph Furster, of Fostoria; Emma, who married Isaac Dicken, and died in Fostoria; James and Joseph B., farmers in Montgomery township; Mary J., now the wife of Fred Whitman, of Oro Grande, Cal.; Louisa, married to George Arnold, of Montgomery township; Jesse, who wedded Alta Byers, of Risingsun, and lives in Perry township; Orvilla, married to Ovid Byers, of Risingsun; and Arminta and Ira J., both at home. Increasing prosperity has enabled Mr. Milligan to assist his children substantially, and they are well-fitted for useful places in life.

Samuel Milligan

Rebecca Milligan

In September, 1892, Mr. Milligan bought a home in Risingsun, and has since resided there, enjoying a well-earned leisure. Both he and his estimable wife have greatly impaired health by reason of their years of hard work, and it is fortunate indeed that their later days can see the reward of their labors. In spite of all the exposures and hardships our subject has experienced, he has never yet, with the exception of one occasion, required medical attention. They have been members of the Old-school Baptist Church for thirty-six years, and are devout and consistent in their faith, their high character, no less their past labors, gaining for them the esteem of all who know them. Although Mr. Milligan is a Democrat on State and National issues, he uses his judgment as to the relative fitness of the individual candidates in local politics. He has served two terms as township trustee, and for a number of years he was school director in District No. 7, where he did much to advance the cause of education, his own lack of opportunities in youth making him desire that the children of this and future days should be within the reach of thorough and practical instruction.

JOHN DAVIS. The essential qualities of success are not fortunate circumstances and influential friends, but indefatigable energy, industry that stops not at difficulties, a resolute purpose and perseverance. These qualities Mr. Davis possesses, and he is known as one of the leading farmers of Middleton township. He was born in Monroe county, Ohio, January 20, 1842. His father, Michael Davis, was born in Pennsylvania, where he followed the occupation of farming, and married Catherine Basinger, a native of Germany. Of their union the following children were born: John, Christian, Fannie and Rebecca. The father died in Monroe county, Ohio, and the mother afterward married Jacob Hiphire.

43

Mr. Davis, of this review, spent his boyhood in the usual manner of farmer lads, attending school in the winter and working on the farm during the summer months, in Putnam county, Ohio. When only eight years of age, he was thrown upon his own resources, and worked on a farm for his board until fourteen years of age, when he began receiving wages. He was employed at farm work and on the canals until thirty-three years of age, when he came to Wood county, locating in Middleton township, where he purchased seventy acres of unimproved land. This he cleared and transformed into finely cultivated fields, and to-day he owns and operates a valuable farm of ninety acres, improved with good buildings.

In 1875, in Putnam county, was celebrated the marriage of Mr. Davis and Magdalena Mosier, a native of Allen township, and a daughter of John Mosier. One child graces their marriage—Edward, who was born August 10, 1878, was educated in the common schools, and now aids in the work of the farm. For six years our subject has served as school director, and is a warm friend of the cause of education. In politics he is a Democrat, and with his family attends the Lutheran Church in Waterville. Dependent on his own resources from the early age of eight years, he certainly deserves great credit for himself, and to-day he has the consciousness of knowing that he has not a dollar that he has not himself honestly earned. He is a popular citizen, well liked, and is deserving of honorable mention in the history of his adopted county.

J. L. KRAMER, a progressive and intelligent agriculturist residing near Bowling Green, was born in Hancock county, Ohio, February 3, 1855. Levi Kramer, his father, was a native of Fairfield county, born in 1825. For many years he was a contractor and builder near Columbus, Ohio, but in his later years he engaged in agricultural pursuits, first in Hancock county, and then in Wood county, where he died in 1888. He was married, in 1850, to Miss Margaret Beatty, who was born in Franklin county in 1828. She survives him and resides at the homestead, near Bowling Green. Six children were born of this union, our subject being the eldest.

Mr. Kramer's youth was spent chiefly in Hancock county, and after acquiring an elementary education in the schools near his home, he entered the academy at Fostoria, from which he was graduated February 3, 1881. He was married October 28, 1887, to Miss Christiana Ries, who was born in Huron county, April 8, 1867; she is a very clever woman intellectually, and had taught school up to the time of her marriage. In this union intellect as well as heart are mated, and Mr. and Mrs. Kramer are students together on all the questions of the day, and the best books and periodicals are to be found in their happy home. Both are prominent workers in the Wood County Farmers Institute, of which Mrs. Kramer, a lady of considerable business tact, is now secretary. She has been highly complimented by the press upon her able and scholarly addresses and papers on various occasions,

Mr. Kramer held the office of secretary for six years previous to 1889, when his wife succeeded him. He is an energetic and enterprising business man, owning and operating a farm where he puts scientific theories to the test of practice. He and his wife are active members of the U. B. Church at Portage, taking especial interest in the Sunday-school, of which Mr. Kramer has been superintendent for six years, and Mrs. Kramer, a good musician, is the organist.

JOHN MERCER, whose well-cultivated farm indicates his industrious and energetic nature, was born April 4, 1831, in Columbiana county, Ohio, and is a son of George Mercer, a native of Pennsylvania, who came to Wood county, in 1833, locating in Liberty township, where his remaining days were passed.

Our subject was therefore only two years of age when he became a resident of this county. Upon his father's farm he spent the days of his boyhood and youth, early becoming familiar with the labors of the fields. He remained under the parental roof until he had attained his majority, when he began learning the carpenter's trade, which he followed for three years. With the capital he acquired through his own efforts, he then purchased 100 acres of land in Liberty township, and with characteristic energy began its development and improvement. This work he continued until 1885, when he removed to his present farm in Middleton township. He here owns sixty acres of rich and valuable land, and a fine residence and good barns add to its attractive appearance, and make it a very desirable property. All this he has acquired through his own efforts, and he may well be proud of his well-merited success.

On April 13, 1858, Mr. Mercer was united in marriage, in Middleton township, with Amanda Creps, a native of Perrysburg, Ohio, born November 26, 1833, and a daughter of David and Rosanna (All) Creps. They became the parents of nine children, namely: Emma A., born February 15, 1859, wife of Henry E. Morris; Shebner A., born May 19, 1862, a farmer of Liberty township; Owen, born June 3, 1865, a farmer of Jackson township; Leonard S., born August 21, 1871, operating the old homestead; Milla, born November 6, 1875; Walter, who was born September 20, 1860, and died February 28, 1864; Clara A., who was born May 29, 1867, and died in January, 1873; and two who died in infancy.

Mr. Mercer has several times been called to public office by his fellow townsmen, who recognize his worth and ability. He has served as trustee for six years, was school director for ten years, and a member of the township board of education for eight years. He belongs to the Disciples Church, and gives his political support to the Republican party. In all the relations of life he has been found true and faithful to the trust reposed in him, and his friends throughout the community are many.

J. H. WESTERFIELD, a leading farmer of Montgomery township, was born in Scipio township, Seneca Co., Ohio, November 27, 1853, son of J. William and Catherine (Overholt) Westerfield, both of whom were natives of Hanover, Germany, the former born in February, 1811, and the latter in November, 1816. In that country the name is spelled Westerfeldt. Being the son of poor parents, the father received no aid in starting out in life for himself, and in the fall of 1853, with his little family, he started for the New World in hope of improving his financial condition. After a voyage of seven weeks they landed in this country, and made their first home in Seneca county, Ohio. From there they came, in 1868, to Wood county, locating upon a thirty-five-acre tract of land in Section 2, Montgomery township, in the midst of the wilderness, where a modest log cabin served as their home.

In the family were five children, namely: Mary E., who became the wife of Reuben Kiser, and died in Sandusky county, Ohio, March 24, 1869; Engle, who died at sea, October 28, 1853, while the family were coming to America; J. H., the subject of this sketch; William, a farmer of Montgomery township; and Amanda, now Mrs. Frank E. Wirebaugh, of Montgomery township. The parents are both now deceased, the father dying October 29, 1889, and the mother January 6, 1888, and rest in the Bradner cemetery. Religiously they were Lutherans. The mother, who was strong and robust, was a good weaver, and was of great assistance to her husband in early days. At the time of his death he was the owner of a good farm of seventy-five acres, and possessed all the thrifty habits characteristic of the German race. His ballot was cast in support of the Democratic party.

The common schools afforded our subject his educational privileges, and his labors were devoted to the improvement and cultivation of the home farm until he attained his majority, when he began working at the carpenter's trade, which he followed for three years. In the spring of 1879 he purchased forty acres in Section 1, Montgomery township, from George Bierly, for $2,000, for which he was compelled to go in debt over $1,500. On laying aside his trade, he began working as a farm hand for that gentleman, and on January 5, 1882, married his daughter, Miss Malinda E. Bierly, who was born February 3, 1860, and they now have four children—Bertie R., Addie, Helena and Milo. Mr. Westerfield began his domestic life upon his forty-acre farm, where he has since resided. In 1885 was erected his comfortable dwelling, and six years later his barn was built. He is numbered among the self-made men of Montgomery township, his accumulations being the result of his own industry, obtained by self-denial and economy, and the exercise of a naturally good judgment, both in regard to agricultural pursuits and business matters. Though not strictly partisan, he usually supports the Democratic party, and for nine consecutive years served as a member of the Bradner school board, filling that position when the new building at that place was completed; for two years he was president of the board. An active member of the Lutheran Church, he is at present superintendent of the Sunday-school at Bradner; his excellent wife belongs to the Protestant Methodist Church.

George Bierly, the father of Mrs. Westerfield, was born in Miles township, Center Co., Penn., July 17, 1819, and as there were no free schools his education was limited to four weeks' attendance at English schools, but he received considerable instruction at Sunday-school. At the age of eighteen years he learned the wheelwright and wagon-maker's trades. On April 25, 1844, in Center county, Penn., was celebrated the marriage of Mr. Bierly and Miss Sarah Magee, who was born in Union county, that State, and is the daughter of James and Elizabeth (Buchner) Magee, in whose family were seven children, three sons and four daughters. Her father came from Londonderry, Ireland, to the United States at the age of fifteen years, being eleven weeks upon the ocean, and was married in Union county, Penn. By trade he was a weaver, making carpets, table cloths, etc. Both himself and wife died in Center county, Penn., he at the age of sixth-three years, and she at the age of eighty-eight.

With his wife Mr. Bierly came to Wood county, April 2, 1857, locating on a partially improved tract of eighty acres in Section 1, Montgomery township, for which he paid $2,700 cash, and they still live upon that place. They have now traveled life's journey together for over fifty-two years, sharing its joys and sorrows, its adversity and prosperity, and are still well-preserved old people, highly respected by all who know them. In early life Mr. Bierly was a Democrat, but since Lincoln ran for the Presidency has been a stalwart Republican. His wife holds membership with the Methodist Protestant Church. The following children graced the union of Mr. and Mrs. Bierly—Alfred and Edward, who died in infancy; Cyrus, at home; Nancy, wife of Peter Plants, of Bradner, Ohio; Lorenzo D., who died at the age of twenty-one years; Thomas N., of Wood county; Emma E., now the widow of F. S. Furbrush, of Bradner; and Malinda E., who is the only member of the family born in Ohio, and is now the wife of J. H. Westerfield, whose name introduces this sketch.

F. E. WIREBAUGH, an agriculturist of energy and ability, who is residing in Montgomery township, Wood county, was born near Bucyrus, Ohio, May 6, 1863, and when but a boy was brought to this county by his parents, N. P. and Elizabeth (Anderson) Wirebaugh, who located first in Freedom township, thence removing to Section 30, Montgomery township. Later they took up their residence upon a farm in Section 17, of the same township, and on selling out there located in Section 1, Montgomery township, where the father made his home until his removal to Risingsun, Ohio, his present place of abode. The mother died while living near Bradner, this State. In their family were four children—F. E., of this sketch; Charles E., who died at the age of twenty-two years; Laura, now Mrs. Charles Aldrich, of Toledo; and Bert E., of Risingsun. Since the death of his first wife the father has been again married.

The education of our subject was such as the district schools near his home afforded, and during the days of his youth he assisted in the labors of the farm, thus becoming familiar with his chosen calling. On leaving home, at the age of twenty-one years, he started out in life for himself as a farm hand. In April, 1888, in Freeport township, Mr. Wirebaugh was united in marriage with Miss Amanda Westerfield, who was born

June 13, 1861, in Scipio township, Seneca Co., Ohio, and is the youngest child of J. William and Catherine (Overholt) Westerfield. One child now graces their union—Walter R., whose birth occurred December 15, 1894. Mr. Wirebaugh began his domestic life upon a rented farm in Freedom township, and later one year was passed upon a rented farm in Section 1, Montgomery township. In the spring of 1891 he removed to his present place, then comprising fifteen acres, but now has a fine tract of thirty-five acres, under a high state of cultivation. In 1893 he remodeled the house, which was the old homestead of his wife's people, and now has a very comfortable and attractive dwelling. Besides his agricultural pursuits he also has charge of two oil leases, having a general supervision of affairs and looking after the oil pumping. Mr. Wirebaugh is a decided Democrat, but is no politician in the sense of office seeking, preferring to devote his entire time to his business interests. An industrious and enterprising man who has already won success, we feel assured that he is destined to become one of the substantial citizens of Wood county. His estimable wife is a member of the Lutheran Church.

ABRAHAM KEEFER, one of the oldest pioneers of Perry township, and a most estimable citizen, was born July 23, 1822, in Orange township, Richland Co., Ohio, son of William and Barbara (Kreps) Keefer.

Our subject, who is the eldest son, when old enough assisted in supporting his parents. He went to school in Orange township until seventeen years of age, at which time he came to Wood county, which was then, for the most part, a dense forest. On December 22, 1844, he was united in marriage with Miss Christina Bare, a daughter of Nicholas Bare, and a native of Pennsylvania. At that time he was $25 in debt, and owned an axe, a wedge and a wife. He was to have, for the clearing, forty acres of land to use for ten years. Commencing work in Section 28, he secured from the profits of this hard bargain a beginning in life, and upon the expiration of the time he left the land and moved to forty acres in Section 21, which he had bought two years before at a cost of $450. Ten acres of this were cleared and had on it a log house, the first home he ever had that he could call his own. From this time he worked and prospered, and later on added, at different times, forty and eighty acres more. In July, 1858, before the last purchase of eighty acres, he moved to his present place, which then contained a log hut, and in July of the following year he moved into the house he now occupies.

To Mr. and Mrs. Keefer were born the following children: Eliza J., who died in infancy; M. D., who died in Perry township at the age of thirty-eight, leaving five children; Catherine, married to I. C. Conley, of Perry township; William, who died at the age of ten years; Nancy, who died when seven years old. The mother of these died April 29, 1889, and was buried at Center. On May 10, 1891, Mr. Keefer married Mrs. Eliza (Wiseman) Frink, a native of Washington township, Hancock Co., Ohio, who was a daughter of James and Elizabeth (Sommers) Wiseman. This wife died May 19, 1896, at 2.30 A. M. The previous day she had prepared supper for herself and her husband, conducted the family worship that evening, and retired feeling as well as usual. She is buried in the cemetery at Fostoria.

Mr. Keefer first voted the Democratic ticket; but on the formation of the Republican party he joined it, and in 1892 again changed his political views, and voted in the ranks of the Prohibitionists. He has served as treasurer and trustee of Perry township, as the choice of the Republican party. He is a member and one of the pillars of the Union Methodist Church, to which he has belonged since 1858, and has been a class-leader for thirty-two consecutive years. At present he is one of the trustees, and is a most liberal contributor to the Church work. On May 2, 1864, he enlisted in Company E, 144th Regiment, of which he was first lieutenant, doing guard duty at Wilmington, Del., and serving until August 24, 1864. He is a quiet gentleman, well-preserved, and an earnest worker in the cause of Prohibition. He enjoys the best of health, and, at the age of seventy-three years, "Does not know of an ache or pain." He is the owner of 160 acres of excellent land, which he has drained with 3,300 rods of tile, and all but thirty acres of which he has cultivated from its primitive condition.

William Keefer, father of our subject, was born in October, 1801, in Mahoning county. His parents moved from Pennsylvania to Richland county at an early day, and settled in Orange township (now Ashland county). Mr. Keefer left there for Perry township, where he bought eighty acres in Section 28. He and his wife moved into a small cabin of round logs, with clapboard roof, no doors nor floors, the hearth made of mortar, under which a groundhog had burrowed and made his home. The only clearing on the place was the spot occupied by the cabin. There was wild game in abundance, bears, turkeys, etc. The children of Mr. and Mrs. Keefer were: Abraham, our subject; Mary, now the widow of Peter Bare, of Eaton county, Mich.; Barbara, who married Eli Culbertson, and died in Eaton county; Margaret, who married Andrew Burns, of Eaton county, and is deceased; Catherine, who became the wife of John Hays, and died in Henry county, Ohio; John, who enlisted July 30, 1862, in Company B, 111th Regiment, O. V. I., and was taken prisoner in action at Lenoir, Tenn., November 16, 1863, and died in a Rebel prison at Richmond, March 20, 1864; and Christopher, a farmer, in Perry township. Mrs. Keefer died October, in 1837, and was buried in Richland county. Mr. Keefer, for his second wife, wedded Miss Barbara Bare, by whom he had four children: Christina, who died young; Susan, who became the wife of Frank McConnell, and died in Toledo, Ohio; Sarah (now Mrs. William Fox), of Defiance county, Ohio; and Eliza (Mrs. Albert Becker), who died in Toledo. Mr. Keefer departed this life in Perry township, at the age of sixty-four years; Mrs. Keefer died about 1849, and both are buried at Center, Perry township. Mr. Keefer was at one time a Democrat, and later became a Republican, belonging to that party at the time of his death. He was a member of the Lutheran Church when in Pennsylvania, but as there was no Church of that denomination convenient in Perry he joined the Methodist one. He was a man of few words, a hard worker, and possessed of a peaceable disposition.

A. Keeper

ALLEN S. FERGUSON comes of a family whose loyalty and devotion to the country was well manifested during the Civil war, and in all the relations of life our subject has been found true and faithful to the trusts reposed in him. This Ferguson family is of Irish origin, and was founded in America by Samuel Ferguson, the grandfather of our subject, who was born on the Emerald Isle and crossed the Atlantic when a young man. In Pennsylvania, he wedded Mary Miller, a lady of German extraction. He was a weaver by trade, and followed that business during the greater part of his life. His death occurred in Belmont county, Ohio, at a ripe old age.

The father of our subject, James Ferguson, was born in Pennsylvania, and was a millwright by trade. At the age of eighteen he accompanied his parents to Belmont county, where he wedded Mary Scroggs, a lady of Scotch descent. For two years they lived in Shepherdstown, Ohio, and then removed to Tuscarawas county, Ohio, locating near Cumberland, on Conotton creek. In 1853 they came to Wood county, making the journey by team, and the father entered forty acres of land in Section 33, Jackson township, from the government, and erected thereon a log cabin. He afterward worked at his trade in different parts of the State, but died in Jackson township, October 28, 1878. His wife passed away some years previous. They had seven children, namely: John, a farmer in Jackson township; Allen S.; Eliza Jane, deceased wife of Demos Leatherman, of Jackson township; James M., a farmer of Jackson township; Sarah Ann, deceased wife of Jesse Ruff, of Jackson township; Samuel M., of Jackson township; and Mrs. Cynthia Wright, deceased. The father and all of his sons were soldiers in the Civil war. John was a member of Company G, 21st O. V. I., and later of Company K, 111th O. V. I. James M. belonged to Company L, 1st O. H. A.; and Samuel M. to Company K, 29th O. V. I.

Our subject was a child of two years when the parents went to Tuscarawas county, where he acquired his education in the district schools, and learned the trade of a carpenter and millwright with his father. At the age of nineteen he came to Jackson township with his brother-in-law, Mr. Leatherman, for whom he worked during the summer. In the winter he engaged in hunting coons, deer and turkeys, and the game brought good prices in the city markets, he realizing more from this source of income than from any other work in those days.

In Pleasant township, Hancock Co., Ohio, January 28, 1858, Mr. Ferguson married Alice Mitchell, who was born in Lancaster county, Penn., June 18, 1836, a daughter of Robert and Miriam (Butler) Mitchell. The family removed from Pennsylvania to Fairfield county, Ohio, thence to Hancock county, and subsequently to Jackson township, Wood county, where the parents passed away. Our subject and his wife began their domestic life on a farm in Jackson township. Mr. Ferguson purchased forty acres of land, erected a log cabin, and began to improve his property; but when the war broke out, he felt that his country needed his services, and he enlisted in Company G, 21st O. V. I., at McComb, for the three-months' service. When his term had expired he returned home and engaged in the erection of a school house.

In June, 1863, Mr. Ferguson sold his first farm and purchased forty acres in Hancock county, to which he removed his family. He then re-enlisted in Company L, 1st O. H. A., and going again to the front, served until the close of the war as a valiant defender of the Union cause. When he again came home he sold his Hancock county farm, and purchased eighty acres in Jackson township, Wood county, on which he erected two dwellings. He afterward traded ten acres of this property for forty acres of his father's land, and subsequently sold an additional ten acres. In connection with his brother, J. M., he also bought a forty-acre tract in Jackson township, and then traded the land which he received from his father for his brother's forty acres, so that he there had eighty acres. This he later sold, and bought forty acres of the farm which he now owns, and which he has since doubled in extent. In addition he owns several town lots, and a third interest in the opera house in Hoytville, also eight shares in the creamery there. He is a man of excellent business ability, of sound judgment and sagacity.

To Mr. and Mrs. Ferguson have been born five children—Eliza Jane, wife of John L. Tyner, of Jackson township; Aaron B., of Hoytville; Myrtie M., wife of Milton J. Hoot, of Hoytville; and Maud M., at home. Mr. Ferguson is a stalwart Republican and an active worker in his party. He was first called to public office as assessor, afterward served for three years as supervisor, for four years was trustee, two years township clerk, six years justice of the peace, census enumerator in 1880, and for six years as county infirmary director. He was also mayor of Hoytville for one term, and school director for a number of years. In these various positions he has discharged his duties with a promptness and fidelity that has won him high commendation. He belongs to the Masonic fraternity of Deshler, Ohio, and to the Grand Army of the Republic at Hoytville, and holds membership with the Christian Church. He is now living practically a retired life, enjoying a well-earned rest and the fruits of his former toil.

WILLIAM WESTERFIELD. Among the influential and progressive farmers of Montgomery township the subject of this sketch occupies an honorable position. He was born in Scipio township, Seneca Co., Ohio, on February 25, 1856, and is the son of John William and Catherine (Overholt) Westerfield, who brought him to Wood county during boyhood. His education was acquired in the district schools, which at that date were not as far advanced as at the present time. Early becoming familiar with farm work upon his father's place, he decided to follow that vocation throughout life, and assisted in the operation of the home farm until after the death of his parents. For a time he then worked for others, but in 1894 purchased twenty acres in Section 2, Montgomery township, adjoining another twenty-acre tract, which was a part of the old homestead belonging to him. In 1891 he erected a very pleasant house upon his farm, where he now makes his home, and devotes his entire time and attention to the cultivation of his land.

Although Mr. Westerfield regularly votes the Democratic ticket, and is a staunch supporter of his party, he cares nothing for political preferment. He is a steady-going, honest, industrious man, quiet and unassuming in manner, and has the confidence and regard of all who know him. By his earnest, persistent efforts he has now secured a good home and farm, and well deserves the success which has come to him. Besides his farming operations he has also worked at the carpenter's trade, being employed at tank building in Bradner.

ELIJAH H. HOPPER, a well-known agriculturist of Webster township, was born in Lucas county, Ohio, June 1, 1841. His family is of English origin, and his grandparents, William and Mary Hopper, were lifelong residents of the county of Kent, England. George Hopper, our subject's father, was born there in 1808, and in early manhood came to the United States, locating first in New York State, where he was married, in 1830, to Miss Annie Robbins, who was born in New York, June 12, 1808. Nine children were born to them: Rufus, deceased; William, deceased; Mary, the wife of Samuel Lyman, of Leesburg, Ind.; Priscilla; James J.; Elijah H.; Luella, the wife of Fred Leathers, of Michigan; Augustus H., a resident of New York; and Benjamin, who lives in Toledo. In 1840 our subject's father came to Wood county, and bought 160 acres of land in Troy township, which he improved. He was a man of excellent qualities, much esteemed by those who knew him, a Republican in politics, and a member of the M. E. Church. He died in 1878, followed two years later by his wife.

Mr. Hopper attended the district schools of Troy township during his boyhood, and in 1863 went to Webster township and bought ninety-six acres of fine land near Fenton, which he has since cultivated. His industry and frugality have met their due reward, and he now has a handsome residence and a barn of the latest model. He is chiefly engaged in general farming and stock raising. He was married in 1863 to Miss Catherine S. Allen, who was born in Sandusky county, in 1842. They have had four children, two of whom died in infancy. The others are Mary, who married Adrian Hiser, and Ada, the wife of Eugene Morris, of Stony Ridge.

In the year 1895, Mr. Hopper lost his barn and all of his out-buildings by fire, occasioned by combustion. He afterward sold his farm and purchased a vegetable and fruit farm in Findlay, Hancock Co., Ohio, upon which he and his wife moved, and where they still reside.

Mr. Hopper holds a high place in the community, and has held positions of trust in the township most of the time for twenty years. He is a leading member of the M. E. Church, and has been influential in the Sunday school for thirty-eight years.

WILLIAM HEUER. In political office, in his business career, and in his private life this gentleman has ever displayed a fidelity to duty and high moral principle, that has justly gained him a place among the prominent and respected citizens of his adopted county, and it is with pleasure that we present to our readers the record of his life. He was born in Prussia, Germany, May 25, 1848, and is a son of Frederick and Mina (Voga) Heuer, also natives of Prussia. When a young man the father served as a soldier in the German army, being first called out in 1848, and after that, on two different occasions. In the spring of 1857, with his wife and family, he sailed from the Fatherland on the vessel "Marcus," which after nine weeks and three days dropped anchor in the harbor of New York. The voyage was a very stormy one, and the vessel was driven far from its course.

Mr. Heuer took his family at once to Lorain county, Ohio, and purchased twenty-five acres in Sheffield township. This he afterward sold, and bought fifty-eight acres where he was living at the time of his death, in 1865, at the age of forty-nine years. His widow still lives in the old homestead, and has a life interest in the estate, which was sold by the heirs to the Johnson Steel Company, and a large plant has since been erected thereon. The children of the family were: William; Julius, of Lorain county; Harvey, who was drowned in 1885, at the age of twenty-five years; Charles, of Lorain county; Elizabeth, wife Andrew Robinson, of Lorain county; Mary, wife of J. L. Hohn, of Milton township; and John, of Lorain county.

Our subject began his education in his native land, and completed it in the district schools near his early Ohio home. At the age of sixteen he left the parental roof, and engaged in service on freight boats which plied between the islands and Cleveland. He was afterward mate on a schooner for five months, and made a trip by way of the lakes to Quebec, Canada, with the intention of going to Prussia, but instead re-shipped on the old schooner, "Van Volkenberg," which sailed for San Francisco, Cal., stopping at different points on the way. The ship was laden with sugar and coffee, and at San Francisco took on a cargo of merchandise. His parents hearing no news of him supposed he had been lost at sea, but after the two-years' voyage of this schooner was over, he returned to his home, and engaged in the manufacture of cheese in Lorain county.

Mr. Heuer was married in Elyria, Ohio, June 26, 1867, to Anna Maria Brown, who was born in Germany. They then removed to Berrien county, Mich., where Mr. Heuer purchased thirty-five acres of land which he operated until 1871, when his buildings and improvements were all destroyed by fire. He then sold his land and returned to Lorain county, where he operated the family homestead for two years. He next began work on the dock at Lorain, as foreman of the C. L. & W. Railroad Co., and continued in the employ of that company for fifteen years. In October, 1887, he traded his property there for his present farm of 100 acres in Milton township, and has since resided in Wood county. Only eight acres of this was then under cultivation, but he has made excellent improvements upon it, erected a fine residence and good barns, and the well-tilled fields yield to him a golden tribute in return for his care and labor.

To Mr. and Mrs. Heuer have been born three children—Lorenzo, an oil man of Bays, Ohio; William, who is working in the oil fields at Gibsonburg, Ohio; and Minnie, at home. The family attend the Disciples Church, of which our subject is a member. In politics he was formerly a supporter of the Republican party, but is now a staunch Prohibitionist. He has served his school district as director for some years, and the cause of education finds in him a warm friend, while to all interests calculated to benefit the community he gives a liberal support. He is himself a well-read man, and is ever found on the side of progress and advancement.

SAMUEL B. CESSNA, an enterprising young business man and agriculturist of Montgomery township, residing near Risingsun, has already won a reputation for his industry, shrewdness, and able management of affairs. He was born in Bedford township, Bedford Co., Penn., September 13, 1862, the son of James B. and Margaret (Elliott) Cessna, and grandson of James Cessna (deceased), who was sheriff of that county four years, and held the office of justice of the peace some forty years. The family has had a high standing in that locality for several generations, and the members for the most part have been long lived, the grandparents of our subject on both the paternal and maternal sides having attained the advanced ages of over eighty years.

James B. Cessna, father of our subject, was born in Bedford, Bedford Co., Penn., September 28, 1838. In his younger days he taught school, and then took up farming pursuits, in which he still continues, being owner of 360 acres of fine land in Bedford county, Penn., improved and equipped with substantial buildings. He married Miss Margaret Elliott, by whom he had four children, three sons and one daughter, viz.: Sylvester T., Samuel B., Pendleton A., and Alida Blanche, who died in her tenth month. The mother of these passed from earth at Centerville, Bedford county, June 6, 1896, in the sixty-second year of her age, and was buried in Bethel M. E. cemetery, in the Cumberland Valley. She was a strict member of the Methodist Episcopal Church up to the time of her decease. Mr. Cessna is now living in Centerville, Penn., his business and public cares having been laid aside some years ago. In his active days he held various township offices, and was an influential worker in the ranks of the Democratic party.

Samuel B. Cessna, our subject, was reared as a farmer's boy, with the usual district-school advantages, and plenty of work at home. On attaining his majority he came to Fostoria, Ohio, where some relatives were living, and for two years rented a farm near Longley, Ohio. Although his father offered him 120 acres of land at his early home in the Cumberland Valley, he chose to remain in this region, and in the spring of 1888 he purchased his present farm of eighty acres in Section 26, Montgomery township, where in 1893 he built an elegant residence, supplied with water and other conveniences seldom found outside of cities. Soon after coming to this county he engaged in various lines of work in the oil fields, such as rig-building and dressing tools, and at times as field-boss, pumper, and operator, and as he prefers this to the actual labor of the farm he employs others to attend to the latter, under his general supervision. Steady-going, honest, industrious and progressive, his success has been marked, and he is regarded as certain to become one of the substantial men of his locality.

In the fall of 1883, Mr. Cessna was married in Bedford, Penn., to Miss Emma Wertz, daughter of John Wertz, one of the most prominent agriculturists in the Cumberland Valley. Mrs. Cessna is a leading member of the Church of God, and with her husband takes an interest in every worthy movement. Socially he belongs to Risingsun Lodge, K. of P., and politically he is a Democrat on the State and National issues, but in local elections votes for the "best man."

ELIAS SIMON (deceased), who in his lifetime was one of the most highly respected citizens within the limits of Bloom township, is a fit representative of the honored family of that name. He was a son of Henry and Catherine (Stemple) Simon, the former of whom was born June 7, 1796, the latter on July 10, 1798; they were married October 5, 1822, and died May 15, 1872, and April 2, 1836, respectively.

Mr. Simon was born August 12, 1827, in Mahoning county, Ohio, where he attended an excellent German school. When he was but a few months over seventeen years old his parents moved to Wood county, accompanied by five of their children—Jonas, Carolus, Elias, Abigail and Joshua. They drove through the woods with three wagons, bringing their household goods. Our subject's father had met with financial reverses in Mahoning county, and he made a new start in life upon a tract of eighty acres of timber land on what is now known as the North Ridge road. A rude log house, which he had built previously, furnished a shelter for the newcomers; and their first meal was cooked by the side of a brush heap. Our subject did many a hard day's work in clearing and breaking the soil of this farm, but he also found some time to attend an English school on the old Leathers farm, where Cornelius Simon, a cousin, was the first teacher. At the age of twenty-one he began to work on his own account, chopping and clearing for one year, and then working in a sawmill as a laborer. His savings were invested in 120 acres of land, his brother's estate, near Bairdstown, bought from the heirs, and its purchase left him nearly $1,000 in debt.

On August 2, 1855, Mr. Simon was married to Miss Margaret Frankforder, a native of Springfield, Mahoning Co., Ohio, born March 15, 1837, daughter of Andrew and Elizabeth (Kugler) Frankforder, who came to Wood county in 1852, and located on a farm in Weston township. They were both natives of Ohio, the father born May 11, 1805, in Springfield township, Mahoning county, the mother born August 11, 1804. They were married August 27, 1826; the former died August 19, 1891, at Roca, Neb., the latter having passed away January 2, 1857, in Weston township, Wood Co., Ohio. The young couple began housekeeping upon the farm which became their permanent home. Mr. Simon continued to work in the sawmill and carried on his farm, at the same time hiring some of the work done. In 1864 he enlisted in Company E, 144th O. V. I., and was sent to Wilmington, Del., where he was on guard duty until August 22, 1864, when he was discharged at Columbus.

Elias Linva

In 1868 he built a sawmill upon his farm, and, notwithstanding many predictions of failure, his energy and thorough knowledge of the business enabled him to make a success of it, and in three years he had paid off every obligation. He has been noted for his knowledge of milling machinery, often repairing for others. In 1889 he gave up his mill to his sons, Jackson and Delton, who conducted it for some time. There are two oil wells upon the place, producing about fifteen barrels per day, and on this farm was drilled the second gas well in the township. Mr. Simon's right wrist had been strained by overwork in lifting, and he afterward lived a semi-retired life, finding much pleasure in reading. He possessed strong intellectual powers, which should have been developed in youth. In 1878 he built one of the most substantial brick houses in the township, and his old home gives evidence not only of his worldly prosperity, but of his intellectual aspirations and artistic tastes. His wife had but limited educational facilities in her youth, but with ready adaptation she has availed herself of later opportunities at home, as her duties would permit. They have had five children: Mary E., born December 11, 1856, died February 6, 1857; Jackson, born March 16, 1858, now resides in Hancock county; Delton, born October 7, 1860, is farming the homestead and conducting the mill; Maud, born November 3, 1865, married Frank Elston, of Garrett, Ind., a Baltimore & Ohio railroad engineer, Chicago division; and Tressie, born August 9, 1875, now a successful music teacher, is at home.

Elias Simon, the subject of this sketch, died at ten minutes past eleven in the forenoon of September 21, 1896, of apoplexy, and was laid to rest September 24, in Bloom Chapel cemetery, Bloom township. He, as is also his widow, was a leading member of the Liberal U. B. Church of Bairdstown, in which he held every office, and was the principal financial supporter. When the new church was being erected he loaned a large sum of money, and afterward cancelled the debt.

Mr. Simon was no office-seeker, but took a keen interest in public affairs, and was in early years a Republican, but in later years voted with the Prohibition party.

JOHN LOUY is a strictly self-made man, who owes his success in life to his individual efforts, to enterprise, undaunted perseverance, and unfaltering industry. His career has also made him a man of broad sympathies, and he is ever ready to extend a helping hand to those less fortunate than himself. Mr. Louy was born September 11, 1831, in Marzlich, near Trier, Prussia, and is the eldest of nine children born to Henry and Margaret (Kirche) Louy. The other members of the family are: Magdalena Clapper, of East Toledo, Ohio; Regina, widow of George Frische, of Toledo; Antony, a farmer of Milton township; Peter, deceased; Elizabeth, wife of Jacob Diemer, of Toledo; Henry (1), who died in childhood; Henry (2), also deceased; and Mary, who passed away. The father was a farmer in Prussia, and in 1862 came with his wife to America, landing at New York, whence they came direct to Milton township, Wood county, where they resided some years. They then removed to Toledo, Ohio, where his death occurred in October, 1867; his wife died in 1871.

John Louy, the subject of this sketch, received a good education in the common schools of his native land, and at the age of fourteen began work as a farm hand at a shilling per day. He was thus employed until coming to America. On April 12, 1855, he left home, sailing from Havre, France, on the 16th, on the vessel, "Connecticut," which after thirty-three days reached New York. One day, while crossing the deck, he fell down an open hatchway, and was picked up in an unconscious condition, with his shoulder broken. His clothing being removed in order to get at the hurt, someone managed to confiscate some gold coins he had sewed inside the lining of his vest—his only capital. Just before landing he sold his trunk and bedding for eighteen cents, and this was all the money he had with which to begin life in the New World, and this small sum was expended for bread. He then started for Tiffin, Ohio. At Dunkirk, N. Y., he was obliged to wait for some time, and while gazing longingly at the tempting display in a restaurant window, the proprietor came out and asked him what he wanted. He was unable to speak a word of English, but the owner took him to a house some distance away where a German girl was working, who acted as interpreter between the two. On learning that he was hungry, the man took him back to the restaurant and gave him a good meal. After many hardships he reached his destination, but had to walk all the way from Sandusky to Tiffin, Ohio. He there made his home with his uncle, Nicholas Kirche, and after three weeks secured work in a brick yard. Later he was employed as a farm hand, and in grading the railroad near Lima, Ohio. He was afterward made section hand on the railroad, and subsequently served as brakeman. He was next engaged in laying track from Toledo to Lima, and then became section foreman from Toledo to Perrysburg. To Custar he was sent as section boss, and in a short time he became express and station agent at that place. On abandoning that position he embarked in merchandising, and later erected a large store into which he put an extensive stock of general merchandise, which he sold out. He became interested in the lumber business, and at one time owned two sawmills and a stave factory. He also bought and sold 800 acres of land, and has thus been connected with various business enterprises.

Mr. Louy was married in Maumee, Ohio, September 16, 1860, to Miss Julia Ann Ganshirt, who was born in Kappal-am-Rhine, Baden, Germany. Their children are: John Henry, who was born September 15, 1861, and is chief train dispatcher at Lima, Ohio; Ellen, born August 4, 1863, now the wife of Henry Rechener, of Lima, Ohio; Josephine, born March 31, 1865, widow of Frank Drummer, of Lima, Ohio; Mary Ann, who was born December 23, 1867, and is living at Lima; Charles, born June 26, 1869, also a resident of Lima; Andrew William, born March 26, 1871, now a medical student at Toledo, Ohio; George Albert, born April 20, 1873, yard clerk for the Dayton & Michigan railroad, at Toledo, Ohio; Joseph H., born April 7, 1875, fireman on the Dayton & Michigan railroad, with residence at Lima, Ohio; Fred Edwas, born February 21, 1877, at present engaged in teaching; Frank Albert, born February 17, 1879, clerking for the Standard Oil Co., at Lima, Ohio; and Genevieve Wilhelmina, born March 15, 1881, now in a convent at Lima, Ohio. When our subject landed at Custar in 1859, there was but one Catholic family in the vicinity, that of Edward Byrnes, and the first mass was performed on the present site of that now thriving town, Father Bauer, D. D., of Fremont, Ohio, officiating, later in an old log cabin. Now there are seventy-two families who worship in the Catholic church at Custar.

Mr. Louy is now living retired, enjoying the fruits of his former toil. He owns a valuable farm of eighty acres in Milton township, a large store building with hall, rented, and a spacious and beautiful residence in Custar, which was erected in 1872, at a cost of $5,340.00. In politics he is a staunch Democrat, has been treasurer of Custar for two years, and councilman for two years. In religious belief he is a devout Catholic, and has been trustee of the Church.

JAMES KELLEY, deceased, was one of the leading and influential citizens of Middleton township, and his death was felt by the entire community. A native of the Keystone State, he was born in Northumberland county, September 5, 1826, and was a son of Joseph and Mary (Reed) Kelley, also natives of Pennsylvania, where they spent their entire lives. In his boyhood days their son James attended the district schools of the neighborhood, and aided in the labors of the home farm.

In March, 1852, in Pennsylvania, Mr. Kelley was united in marriage with Miss Annie Palmer, who was born in that State June 14, 1825, a daughter of Daniel Palmer. Three children were born of this union. Daniel, born June 9, 1853, was educated in Middleton township, and at Toledo, Ohio, and in August, 1879, he married Ettie Chapman, who was born April 25, 1856, a daughter of Sylvester Chapman, of Sandusky county, Ohio. For nine years he has been an employe at the Toledo State Hospital. William, born April 16, 1857, now operates the old homestead. He was married in 1888, to Flora Camm, who was born in Huron county, April 8, 1860, and they have one daughter, Alta. Elwood, born in Plain township, this county, July 31, 1862, married Nellie Miller, and has two children. He has been employed at the Toledo State Hospital for seven years.

The subject of this review removed from Pennsylvania to Wood county in 1862, and located in Plain township, where he remained one year, then moved to Hancock county, where he carried on farming for six years. In 1869 he came to Middleton township and purchased seventy-two acres of land, which, with the aid of his sons, he cleared and improved, continuing its cultivation up to the time of his death. He was a man of sterling worth, honorable and upright in all things, was a loyal citizen, a faithful friend and a loving and devoted husband and father. He served as school director of his township, gave his political support to the Democratic party, and was a consistent and earnest member of the Baptist Church. He passed away January 5, 1891, and one more name was added to the list of honored dead, but his memory will be kept green in the hearts of his friends for many years. Mrs. Kelley, a most estimable lady, has since conducted the home farm, and displays excellent business ability, while her many womanly graces of character have won her high regard.

HENRY SARVIS. The life of this gentleman has been prominently connected with the history of Wood county since early pioneer days, and many interesting incidents can be relate of the time when this region was but sparsely settled, and gave little indication of its present highly cultivated and properous condition. He was born in England, and was the fifth in a family of nine children—four sons and five daughters. His father was a man in comfortable circumstances until, through the failure of a bank, he lost much of his property. As his children grew up he would say to them: "All I can do for you now is to give you a good common-school education, and teach you a trade; the rest you must do for yourself. Industry, perseverance, a wise economy, and honorable dealing will bring you success in life. Let your reading be historical and practical, and take the Bible for your guide through life." A favorite volume of the father's was a history of the United States.

When Henry Sarvis was a lad of twelve years he was sent to a boarding school in a farming country, where he first became acquainted with agricultural life, and this and his United States history exerted a great influence on his after career. After leaving school he was engaged in making piano keys in the piano factory, of Broadwood & Co., London, until nineteen years of age, his father holding a responsible position in that establishment. When Henry was nineteen, his brother-in-law had to go to Canada to look after some property, and our subject sailed with him. After a short time spent in Canada, he went to New York, where he accidentally met his brother-in-law, and together they returned to England; but Mr. Sarvis had resolved to save money enough to establish a home in America. He resumed work at his trade, and soon afterward married a farmer's daughter, who proved to him an efficient and capable helpmeet on life's journey. An old-time friend, John Wright, proposed to him that they come to America, and after consulting with his wife, Mr. Sarvis determined to try his fortune in the New World. They were also joined by a boy of fifteen, and the four started for New York in the spring of 1844.

On reaching that city Mr. Sarvis and his wife went up the Hudson river, then by canal to Buffalo, and parted with their friend, Mr. Wright, in Cleveland. Leaving their luggage in Detroit, they made their way to the home of Mr. Sarvis' brother-in-law, about ten miles from Chatham, Canada, but he could not secure the land he had hoped to in that locality, and so returned to Chatham. While sitting outside the "Exchange Hotel," thinking what to do next, he became engaged in conversation with a gentleman there who said he lived in Perrysburg, Ohio, and the result was that Mr. Sarvis and his wife accompanied this gentleman to Wood county. They had a letter of introduction to a Mr. Isaac, living on Hull Prairie. Their newly-found friend, Mr. Spafford, told them of the excellent advantages afforded by this country; but the sight which greeted them soon after their arrival seemed anything but hopeful. For two days they remained in the hotel at Perrysburg, and the next morning started for the Prairie, about eight miles distant. Every few rods, so deep was the mud, they had to stop and clear the wheels before they could proceed. It may well be imagined that the progress was slow, and when they reached the Prairie its appearance was much more that of a lake, for it was covered with water, sometimes several feet deep. They found the driving through the water, however, better than driving through the mud, and finally reached a substantial log house, all surrounded by water. On presenting their letter of introduction—for this was the home of Mr. Isaac—they were cordially welcomed in the true spirit of pioneer days. The prospect for comfortable homes in this locality, however, seemed to be very poor, but they were assured by their newly-found friends that the inundation was an unusual one, and that they looked for a bright future.

The next morning the host drove Mr. Sarvis to the different farmers on the Prairie, who all seemed hopeful, and believed they would soon have good farms. Mr. Sarvis purchased eighty acres of land at $2.50 per acre, on which stood a log cabin, and forty acres at $1.25 per acre. He also bought two yoke of oxen and two cows, and began breaking the land. He planted a crop, but again all that region was flooded, and in the autumn it was parched by the hot August sun. For several years this was the condition of things, and the families were forced to endure many hardships and trials, such as are entirely unknown to the settlers of to-day. At length a meeting was called, and the settlers on Hull Prairie discussed the advisability of draining the land. Mr. Sarvis was asked for his opinion, and said that he would like two weeks' time in which to study the question. During that time he wrote a letter to the editor of the Journal, in connection with Mr. Isaac, and the editor requested that they write a communication of this sort every other week. It was done, and as a result the "ditch law" was passed, the Prairie was drained, and was transformed into a most valuable and productive tract of land, its farms being now unrivaled in excellence and richness. It was also through the instrumentality of the settlers on Hull Prairie that the county fair was first instituted, and the work of progress and improvement has been carried steadily forward by them, until they may well be proud of their improved homes, and what they have accomplished.

Mr. Sarvis' first wife died February 25, 1880, and was buried at Perrysburg, Ohio. Mr. Sarvis married Miss Alice Terry, who was born in England in 1858. They have no children. Mrs. Sarvis has two brothers—Thomas, formerly a surgeon in the British army, and now living in England; William, a business man in England. There is also a sister living there—Mrs. Harcourt. Mr. and Mrs. Sarvis are members of the Presbyterian Church, and in politics he is a Republican. His well-spent life, and honorable, upright career have gained for him the warm friendship of the neighbors, and the high regard of all with whom he has come in contact.

JOHN PERRIN, the earlier part of whose life was a most checkered one, is now a most extensive land owner in Middleton township, having to-day a valuable farm of 500 acres, highly cultivated and improved with all the accessories and conveniences of a model farm of the Nineteenth century. He belongs to that class of honored men known as "self-made," who, dependent upon their own resources, have worked their way upward from humble surroundings to positions of affluence.

Mr. Perrin was born in Nova Scotia, near Pictou, March 19, 1828. His father, James Perrin, was also a native of Nova Scotia, born of French parentage, and followed the occupation of farming in that province. There he married Helen Byers, a native of Scotland, born November 17, 1795, and they became parents of nine children as follows: Jane, wife of James Young; Mary, deceased; John; Josephine, wife of Foster B. Pratt; Catherine, deceased wife of Stephen Langell; William, postmaster at Roachton, Wood county; and three who died in childhood. From his native province the father of this family came to Ohio, afterward removing to Indiana, where he and his wife both died in 1838, the latter on September 27, of that year.

As will be seen, our subject was ten years old when death deprived him of both his parents, at which time the children took up their residence in Perrysburg, Wood county, where they remained until the spring of the following year, the family circle being then broken up, John making his home with William Russell. With him he worked for his living some eighteen months, at the end of which period he went to Seneca county, Ohio, there working for Isaac Ingraham, also eighteen months, but from him he "ran away," returning to Perrysburg. Here for about a year and a half he worked for Charles Shepard, his remuneration being three dollars per month, he part of the time attending school, and then returned to Seneca county, where he was employed on the farm of a Mr. Ingraham, who, later, removed to Henry county, our subject accompanying him, and remaining with him till he was eighteen years old. All he claims he got from Mr. Ingraham was his board and inferior quality, and a sparse quantity of clothes, his wardrobe at the time of leaving Ingraham's employ consisting of but one suit of clothes. Nothing daunted, young Perrin hired out at $12.00 per month, saved his earnings and in course of time, in 1848, bought 120 acres of wild land in Henry county, near Liberty Center, about the same time taking up the pursuit of fishing, which he followed in connection with farming up to 1853. In that year he set out for the then "New Eldorado"—California—to try his luck in the gold diggings. He set out from St. Louis by boat to Council Bluffs; but, the steamer becoming disabled, he, with some 500 others, had to be landed in the woods where they remained four days suffering greatly from hunger. A steamboat, however, arrived opportunely, and took the temporarily marooned adventurers to Independence, Mo., where Mr. Perrin joined a company of 101 other travelers who formed themselves into an "outfit," the entire company setting out for the gold fields in April. The journey occupied six months, our subject walking most of the way, and doing the hunting for the party, his previous experience in that line, in Ohio, and general knowledge of woodcraft, proving of much value to the party.

Arriving at the gold fields, Mr. Perrin immediately commenced mining, which he followed five years, not with much success, he says, after the first year, at the end of that time taking a prospective trip up the Frazer river, in British Columbia, where he mined for gold three years, in this venture meeting with good success, and a proportionate degree of adventure. He there, however, experienced the greatest hardships. There were some 30,000 people on the Frazer river, no law had been established, and the Indians killed many whites, while the whites killed many Indians in return, so that each man had to protect himself. Mr. Perrin relates many an exciting tale of his experiences, the Frazer river itself, a large stream of water, in the springtime a perfect torrent, being in itself a source of considerable danger, as it had to be navigated with small boats, and many people lost their lives by drowning. Provisions most of the time were scarce, and death from starvation was not infrequent during the winter of 1858-59. Robbers were also a source of great anxiety to the gold-diggers, who had to hide their treasure as fast as they found it. In 1861 Mr. Perrin ascended the Frazer river as far as Cariboo, where a new gold field had been opened out, and he there purchased a rich claim, but in the month of October, that year, the snow was so deep he could not work his claim, and as a consequence had to remain idle there and all alone, monarch of all he surveyed for the time, with nothing to read save the labels on the cans of provisions he had with him; and this highly interesting literature he says he committed to perpetual memory, "canned salmon," "pickled beets," etc., being a sort of mental pabulum, the contents of the cans serving for the inner man. Here he remained some six years, made money, and became the owner of many rich claims, paying for some as much as $20,000. From Cariboo Mr. Perrin went to Oregon and Washington Territory, intending to revisit the Frazer river, but while in Portland, Ore., he made up his mind to return to his old Ohio home, which he did, and has remained there ever since.

John Perme

Much has been written about travel and adventure, and did Mr. Perrin's innate modesty permit him to give his personal mining experiences to the world, he could fill a good sized volume with exciting scenes and hair-breadth escapes rarely met with in a single lifetime.

On his return home in 1868 after an absence of fifteen years, Mr. Perrin found his land in Henry county sold, his relatives, with whom he had never communicated, having given him up for dead. He now, however, purchased 300 acres of land in Middleton township, Wood county, covered with timber and water. Tiling and draining was necessary to make this cultivable, while the trees had to be cleared away ere crops could be planted. Ultimately the boundaries of the farm were extended until it now comprises 500 acres of very valuable land, covered in summer time with waving fields of grain, and where the surrounding good buildings and modern improvements tell the passer-by of the thrift and enterprise of the owner.

On December 16, 1891, Mr. Perrin married May Halbert, a most estimable lady. Her father, Henry Halbert, was born in New York, April 6, 1838, and throughout life has followed farming. In 1865 he came to Middleton township, Wood county, and purchased a farm which he yet operates. He was married in New York, to Maria L. Hogan, who was born at Rome, that State, September 15, 1842. They have five children: Harriet, born December 27, 1860, deceased wife of Dr. H. W. Legalley; Henrietta, born June 17, 1863, wife of Oliver Mears; May F., born August 3, 1869, now Mrs. Perrin; Edward, born September 23, 1879; and Miles, born December 5, 1882. Mr. and Mrs. Halbert now reside in Haskins. Mrs. Perrin is a graduate of the Haskins High School, taught school some six years, and is an accomplished lady.

To the Republican party Mr. Perrin gives his support. Aside from his farming interests, he is a stockholder in the Bank of Perrysburg, and he is in all respects one of the best known men in the county. His experiences have been varied; but he has steadily worked his way upward, and today ranks among the substantial citizens of the community, owing his success to persistent labor, thorough application and honorable dealing. Pleasant and genial in manner, he is very popular with all classes, and together with his amiable life partner commands the respect of all.

JOHN RUDOLPH was born in Germany, September 5, 1848, and is a son of Frederick and Mary (Kroeger) Rudolph, who were natives of the same locality. The father was born January 4, 1815, and the mother on January 18, of the same year. In the fall of 1868 they sailed from Hamburg for New York, but after being on the water for twenty-six days the vessel, having been damaged by storms, was forced to put into port at Halifax, where it remained for repairs five days. After reaching New York, Mr. Rudolph and his family came directly to Cleveland, Ohio, and a year later to Wood county. They located on forty acres of wild land which was unimproved save with a log cabin. There the father still carried on agricultural pursuits; his wife died April 28, 1895. In the family were only two children—John and Sophia, the latter now the wife of Joseph Rossow, of Milton township.

Our subject attended school between the ages of six and fifteen years, and afterward worked at various employments until twenty-one years of age, when he came with his parents to America. As he could not secure work in Cleveland, he went to Iowa, where he secured employment as a farm hand at $14 per month, and board. After some time he returned to the Buckeye State, and has since been a resident of Wood county. He aided in clearing his father's farm, selling the timber to the railroad company.

Mr. Rudolph was married in Custar, May 14, 1879, to Miss Christina Wismer, who was born in Prussia, Germany, August 25, 1855, and is a daughter of John and Caroline (Henning) Wismer. They now have six children: Frank, a freight agent in Toledo, Ohio; and Fred, Daniel, Mary, Annie and George, all at home. Mr. and Mrs. Rudolph began their domestic life on a forty-acre farm which our subject purchased of his father. He has made excellent improvements upon this place, and his commodious and pleasant residence is one of the best in the township. He has served on the school board for a number of years, and is deeply interested in all that pertains to the welfare of the community. His political support is given the Republican party. He is a prominent member of the Lutheran Church, and is serving as trustee and Sunday-school teacher.

A. GEORGE GALLIER. The splendid farm owned by this gentleman, in Center township, is a standing monument to his industry, perseverance and good management. He comes under the category of self-made men, having been thrown upon his own resources early in life, and has succeeded only by the exercise of his steady, earnest application to his duties. Just at this time he is one of the prominent representatives of the agricultural interests of Wood county.

Mr. Gallier was born in Herefordshire, England, February 24, 1848, and is a son of Samuel and Annie (Amond) Gallier, who were the parents of the following children: Millie F., wife of John Jinkson, of Salt Lake City; Jane, widow of John Dryer; William, a landscape gardener, of Toledo, Ohio; Annie, wife of Robert Barnes, of Wood county; Mary, who makes her home in Salt Lake City, Utah; A. George, of this sketch; Esther, still a resident of England; and two who died in infancy. The father followed the occupation of a common laborer, and died in his native land in 1866, but the mother still makes her home in that country.

Our subject received a very limited education in the schools of Herefordshire, and when a small boy entered a store where he was employed for three years, receiving one pound for the first year and two for the second, together with his board. He then obtained a position as page in the home of a wealthy gentleman, where he remained for five years, receiving only his board and clothing and five pounds per year. On the expiration of that time he became a hotel clerk, being thus employed until reaching the age of twenty-one, when he started in business for himself on a small scale. After a year, however, at the solicitation of a brother who had previously located here, he resolved to come to America. He landed on the shores of the New World in 1871, and in Toledo, Ohio, found employment as a gardener, which occupation he followed there for nine years, when he came to Wood county, locating in Center township on forty acres of unimproved land, which he had purchased. This wild tract he cleared, ditched and tiled, erecting thereon a good house, barns and other outbuildings, besides planting an orchard. To this later he added another tract of forty acres, and now has eighty-two acres of arable, to the development of which he gives his entire attention.

Before leaving his native land Mr. Gallier was married in Herefordshire, July 1, 1869, to Sarah Jones, and they have become the parents of the following children: William, born July 8, 1872; H. A., September 11, 1874; John, June 28, 1876; Monroe, January 27, 1878; James, January 2, 1880; George, November 5, 1883; Millie, April 27, 1886; Walter, October 9, 1888; Mabel, September 22, 1891; and Myrtle, May 9, 1894. Mr. Gallier is quite prominent in local affairs, and politically is a staunch Republican. For several years he has served as school director and president of the board of education, and is at present supervisor of his township, which position his son William filled last year, having run on the ticket with his father, and receiving more votes than he. Our subject is a genial, pleasant gentleman, widely and favorably known, and he and his family attend the United Brethren Church.

JOHN R. MARWICK, a retired farmer, living at Bowling Green, was born in Cambridgeshire, England, August 13, 1835. His parents were William and Ann (Amos) Marwick, the former of whom, born in England in 1796, died there in November, 1859. The mother was born in 1792, and died in 1853. Religiously she was a Baptist, and her husband was an Episcopalian. They had twelve children, of whom four grew to maturity: Mary Ann married James Earl, and is living in Australia; she came from England to Wood county, and then removed to her present home. Sarah is the wife of William Walker, who lives in England. William went to Australia in 1853, and is in the gold fields there. John R. is our subject.

Mr. Marwick grew up in England, coming to America in 1855. His means were limited, and he walked from Toledo, Ohio, to Bowling Green, and went to work by the month on a farm in the vicinity. He had been reared as a drover in "Merrie England," and found life here in the wilderness hard and uncongenial. In 1856 he was married to Miss Susanna Wakefield, who was born in Cambridgeshire, England, July 28, 1832. She is the daughter of John and Mary (Barley) Wakefield, who came to America in 1851, and located at Monroeville, Huron Co., Ohio, moving from there in 1857 to Wood county, where they lived in Plain township. Mr. Wakefield built a house in Bowling Green, where he spent the latter part of his life. He was born in 1795 and died in 1869; his wife was born in 1798 and departed this life in 1885. Six of their children grew to maturity, namely: John, who died in Plain township; Mary, who died soon after her marriage; Sarah, married to John Wills, and now residing in Chillicothe, Mo.; Susanna, wife of our subject; William, living in Bowling Green; and Lizzie Jane, wife of James Wright, living in Weston, Ohio.

Mr. and Mr. Marwick first settled in Erie county, Ohio, then coming to Bowling Green located in Plain township, and finally in Washington township, where they now own eighty acres of land. They have one child, William R., born May 29, 1857, who married Miss Ella Crum and resides in Bureau, Ohio; they have four children—Earnest, Nellie May, Arthur and Marie.

Mr. Marwick is a Republican, and he and his wife are members of the Methodist Church. He also belongs to the I. O. O. F., and his wife is a member of the Daughters of Rebekah. They are model citizens of Bowling Green, where they are well-known for their hospitality and philanthropic works.

JACOB SOMMERS. Among the worthy citizens who claim Ohio as the State of their nativity, none are more deserving of a conspicuous place in the history of Wood county than this gentleman, whose honorable and well-spent life has gained him the high regard of all with whom he has been brought in contact. He was born in Medina county, Ohio, June 2, 1858, and is a son of Frederick and Rosana (Groah) Sommers, who came with their family to Wood county in 1860. Our subject attended the district school at Flint Hill, in Portage township, and also the common schools of Liberty township. His vacation periods were spent at work upon the home farm, and at the age of eighteen he began running an engine in a sawmill, where he was employed for two seasons. He afterward worked as a farm hand in Seneca county for one year, but, returning to Wood county, secured a situation as a farm hand with John Metzger, of Liberty township. Later he operated the old homestead.

On March 8, 1885, in Portage township, Mr. Sommers married Ellen Knight, who was born in Ottawa county, Ohio, December 27, 1864, and is a daughter of Thomas W. and Elizabeth (Warren) Knight. The young couple began their domestic life on the Bradshaw farm in Liberty township, which Mr. Sommers rented for a year, and then returned to the old family homestead, where he resided until removing to his present place in November, 1893. In connection with his brother Fred, he purchased 120 acres of land. His home is a comfortable dwelling, and he has made many excellent improvements upon the farm.

To Mr. and Mrs. Sommers have been born a daughter, Mabel Matilda, born December 4, 1885. The parents are active and leading members in the Disciples Church, and Mr. Sommers belongs to the Odd Fellows Society of Portage. He has served as school director for some time, and gives a hearty and willing support to all measures calculated to advance the general welfare, educational or otherwise.

JACOB BALEY. There is probably no man in Bloom township wider or more favorably known than this gentleman, who came to that section of the county in the pioneer days, and is recognized as one of the important factors in its progress and development. He is a native of Ohio, born in Canfield township, Mahoning county, April 19, 1820. His father was a Pennsylvanian by birth, and married Miss Catherine Sanon, by whom he had nine children, namely: Lavina, Elizabeth, Jacob, Eliza, Catherine, Peter, Jeremiah, Amanda and John. The parents departed this life in Canfield township, Mahoning county.

Until reaching the age of seventeen or eighteen years, Jacob Baley assisted in the work on the home farm, and at intervals attended the schools of his day. He was then bound out to William Lyman to remain until twenty-one years old, but left him and for three months worked for William Giger; then he worked for Christian Dustman for seven months, receiving ten dollars per month for his services, and during that time lost only two days. The following winter he lived with Jacob Hammon, and went to school, helping with the work and doing chores. The next spring he worked several months for Mr. Hammon, and at odd times or on wet days young Baley worked in the blacksmith shop for a Mr. Wonsetler, and later on he arranged with him to learn the trade, and remained with him one and a half years, then worked for him on the shares for about a year. Later he went to Poland, Ohio, and worked in the same manner for Jacob Lee. In this way he earned money enough to buy a partial outfit for himself (making the rest), and began business at the four corners of the roads leading to Youngstown, Boardman, Canfield and Austintown, Ohio.

On November 10, 1840, our subject was married, in Mahoning county, to Miss Elizabeth, daughter of Abraham and Catharine (Crous) Simon, born May 6, 1822, in Mahoning county, Ohio. In the spring of 1847, Mr. Baley sold out and with a small one-horse wagon brought his wife and three children to Bloom township, locating in Section 21, where he had bought land the year previous. On his eighty-acre farm he built a log shop, and his father-in-law brought his tools here sometime later. He had only received $14 from his father's estate, and by his trade earned the money with which he paid for his land. The settlers in this section were widely scattered, so that at first work at his trade was not rushing, even though his patrons came for miles around, and much of his blacksmithing was paid for by his customers in clearing his land for him. For six weeks the family lived at Bloom Center, while a log house, 16 x 20 feet, was made ready for occupancy. He continued to work at his trade, in addition to his agricultural pursuits, and as his income increased secured more land until he was the owner of 260 acres, but has now given 160 acres to his sons, still retaining the remainder.

For over fifty-five years, Mr. and Mrs. Baley have now traveled life's journey together, sharing with each other its joys and sorrows, its adversity and prosperity, and they have reared a family of which they may justly be proud. They are as follows: Delilah, born November 23, 1841, is the wife of W. S. Richard, of Bloomdale, Ohio; Harriet, born May 6, 1844, is now Mrs. Alfred Simon; Mary, born September 13, 1846, is the wife of Thomas Loman, a grain merchant of Newmarket, Iowa; John is a prominent resident of Wood county; Martha A., born August 28, 1851, is the widow of Alfred Stephens, of Knobnoster, Mo.; Amanda, born November 5, 1853, is the wife of Byron Frederick, of Bloom township; Simon C. is a leading citizen of Wood county; Lucy A., born June 11, 1858, married D. L. Kunkler, and died October 26, 1894 (the first death in the family); and Olive E., born August 1, 1860, is now Mrs. Morrison Brunstetter, of Butler, Indiana.

Mr. Baley is a fine specimen of physical manhood, being six feet and one inch in height, and weighing 185 pounds, and though he is still quite active, in his younger days he was very strong, being able to perform a big day's work very easily. He still engages in blacksmithing to a limited extent. He has always voted the Democratic ticket, and has been called upon to serve as school director of District No. 5, supervisor and treasurer for three years. He is truly a self-made man, and there are no more highly respected citizens in Wood county than Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Baley.

W. T. THOMAS, M. D. This prominent physician and surgeon, who, at this writing (1896), is filling the responsible office of mayor of North Baltimore, is one of the best-known citizens of Wood county, where for many years he has taken an active part in political matters. A politician, like a poet, seems to be "born, not made," and the peculiar qualifications which fit a man to fill the many arduous and trying positions belonging to an active public life must be inherent in his nature to make him successful in such a career.

Dr. Thomas was born in Wayne county, Ohio, November 28, 1851. His father, Levi Thomas, was a native of the North of Ireland, and was obliged to leave his native land on account of his religious faith, being a Roman Catholic. He came to America in 1846, finally settling in Ohio. He married Susan Lawrence, who was born at Lancaster, Penn., and, in 1853, the family came to Wood county, where they located in Henry township. The father died December 21, 1850, the mother in 1895. The paternal grandmother of our subject is still living near Wauseon, Ohio, at the remarkable age of 105 years.

Our subject did not learn to speak the English language until he was ten years old. He then entered a select school at Weston, also attending one at South Toledo, and learned so rapidly that when seventeen years old he began teaching. This occupation he followed some eleven years, in the meantime studying medicine. He was graduated from Starling Medical College, Columbus, Ohio, in May, 1881, after a three-years' course, and soon after located in North Baltimore, where he built up a successful practice. Under the term of President Harrison, Dr. Thomas was appointed postmaster of the city, serving as such four years, until the opposing political party came into power.

Mr J Thomas M D

Dr. Thomas has always had a penchant for politics, and is by nature intended for a leader among men. He served as clerk of Henry township for eight years, and resigned the office of mayor to accept the Federal appointment as postmaster. He had been chairman of the Republican Executive Committee of Wood county for three terms, and a member of the County Central Committee a number of times. He has repeatedly been a delegate to Congressional and Gubernatorial Conventions, and in other ways has for years been prominently identified with the politics of the city, county and State. He is a man of ability, keen foresight and shrewd judgment, and has the confidence of the people to a large degree. After resigning his position as postmaster, in 1893, he attended the Chicago Polyclinic, in which he took a post-graduate course. He is very popular in the community, and has an extensive practice. The Doctor is a contributor to the St. Louis Medical Brief.

By his first marriage, to Miss Nancy De Rode, Dr. Thomas had two children: Jessie and Susan. His present wife, to whom he was married July 2, 1888, was Miss Flora Clough, who was born in Perrysburg, Ohio, March 12, 1859. They have one child, Bertha, born July 29, 1891. Dr. Thomas is an active member of the I. O. F., the K. of P. and the Woodmen of the World.

JAMES JOHNSTON is one of the honored pioneers of Portage township who, by developing a good farm from the forest, has materially aided in its growth. He has met with a well-deserved success in his calling, and his fine, well-ordered farm (pleasantly situated in Section 9), with its carefully cultured fields, its neat buildings, and all their surroundings, denote the skillful management, industry and well-directed labors of the owner.

The birth of Mr. Johnston, our subject, occurred Richland county, Ohio, March 1, 1819, and he is a son of John and Elizabeth (Humphrey) Johnston, the former a native of the North of Ireland, and the latter of Irish descent, but born in Pennsylvania three weeks after the landing of her parents in this country. When a young man the father came to the United States and was married in Pennsylvania. Before the war of 1812 he came to Ohio, and participated in that struggle under Gen. Harrison. By occupation he was a farmer, and about 1816 removed to Richland county, becoming one of its earliest settlers. His family consisted of the following children: Thomas died in Fostoria, Ohio; Jennie, who was never married, died at the age of sixty years; Fannie married William Underwood, and died in Portage township; Cynthia first wedded James Scott, and later married Edward Coyne, who died in Libby prison; James comes next; William died in Portage township, in September, 1895; John lives in Toledo, Ohio; Robert died in Portage township; and Cyrus resides in Illinois.

In the district schools of his native county James Johnston began his education, and in April, 1837, came with his parents to Wood county, locating in Section 10, Portage township, where his father had entered 480 acres of land some years before. They made the trip by wagon, driving the stock, and their first home here was made of round logs. Here the father died at the age of sixty-six, and the mother at the age of sixty-seven years. Their remains were interred in Sargent cemetery. In politics he was a Whig, and always attended religious services, his sympathies being with the Presbyterian Church, where he was baptized when a child, though he never joined any denomination.

James continued his studies in the village of Portage after coming to this county, and at the age of twenty years left home, beginning work as a farm hand. He also drove stock east of the mountains in Pennsylvania. On March 16, 1843, in Portage township, he was united in marriage with Miss Susanna Durler, who was born in Canton Berne, Switzerland, April 29, 1824, and when five years old was brought to America by her parents, John and Mary (Unkey) Durler. They embarked on a sailing vessel at Havre, France, which, after a voyage of seventy-five days, dropped anchor in the harbor of New York. Their first location was in Starke county, Ohio; later they removed to Tuscarawas county, and in 1837 settled in Portage township, Wood county, in Section 2. The parents both died in Fulton county, Ohio. Mrs. Johnston was one of their family of six children, two sons and four daughters, and is entirely self-educated, having never attended a school a day, but taught herself to read.

On the farm which his father had entered in Section 9, Portage township, Mr. Johnston began his domestic life, and there has continuously resided, with the exception of two years spent in the village of Portage. The home was brightened by the presence of seven children: John, born January 12, 1844, is a farmer of Portage township; James, born June 1, 1846, was killed by a falling tree in June, 1867, in a storm, while on his way home from Indiana; Lewis, born December 11, 1849, died at the age of five years; Cyrus, born July 28, 1853, is an agriculturist of Portage township; Parsida, born March 4, 1856, is now Mrs. Aaron Crom, of Portage township; William, born November 16, 1858, carries on farming in Center township, Wood county; and Mary E., born September 29, 1862, is the wife of George Sterling, of Henry township, this county.

The parents are faithful members of the United Brethren Church, in which he has served for over forty years as steward. They have traveled life's journey together for more than half a century, sharing its joys and sorrows, successes and reverses, and throughout the county they are widely known and highly respected. As a representative man of the community, and an old pioneer, Mr. Johnston stands pre-eminent, and his public-spiritedness and charity are proverbial. His first Presidential vote was cast for William Henry Harrison, the Whig candidate, and on the formation of the Republican party he joined its ranks. He has served as supervisor and school director in District No. 2.

CHARLES BATEMAN SAXBY, editor of the Wood County Herald, of Weston, is conducting the paper with signal ability and success, and holds a prominent position among the young journalists of Ohio, none of whom have better prospects for a brilliant future in their chosen career. He is a native of Wood county, born at West Millgrove February 8, 1865, the fourth in the family of five children born to Bateman H. and Martha H. (Musser) Saxby.

His father was born at Normanton, on the river Trent, England, Thursday, July 6, 1826. He left his native place on Sunday, May 13, 1855, at 10 A. M., and on the 22nd of the same month boarded the sailing vessel "Calhoun," bound for America. He arrived at Austinburg, Ohio, Wednesday, July 18, and the following fall removed to Fostoria, where he worked at the tailor's trade until October, 1864, at which time he went to West Millgrove. While living in Fostoria he was made a Mason, becoming a charter member of Fostoria Lodge. In 1857 he started on a tour through the Western States, and after his return he was united in marriage, on Wednesday, October 13, 1858, with Miss Martha Henrietta Musser. He conducted a tailor shop and grocery at West Millgrove, but in 1885 gave up the former. During the Civil war he enlisted in the Union army, but was not permitted to serve on account of disability, though he drilled with the home guards. He made the old silk battle flag of the noted 49th Regiment. His death occurred at West Millgrove, Monday, September 12, 1892. His wife, who was born at Deerfield, Portage Co., Ohio, Sunday, December 16, 1838, removed with her parents to West Millgrove in 1853, and still makes her home there. Before her marriage she taught school in this county. She became the mother of five children, three sons and two daughters, but only two survive: Charles B., the subject proper of this review, and Edgar Allen Saxby, a druggist of Pemberville, Ohio, who was born at Fostoria Wednesday, July 8, 1863, and is a registered pharmacist; he is now serving his second term as grand trustee of the Grand Lodge of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows of Ohio.

Jacob Musser, the maternal grandfather of our subject, was born at Petersburg, Ohio, in 1803, and in 1824 was married to Miss Sydonia Garrison, whose birth occurred in Pennsylvania in 1808. They became the parents of eight children, of whom Mrs. Saxby is the fifth in order of birth. Mr. Musser located in the wilderness of Portage county, Ohio, at Deerfield, when the wolves were so numerous that they would howl about the cabin, and even look in at the windows. In 1845 he removed to Ravenna, Ohio, and eight years later became a resident of West Millgrove, this county. By trade he was a blacksmith, and he followed that occupation all through life. In 1827 he was elected first lieutenant of the Second Rifle Company of the First Regiment, Second Brigade, Fourth Division in the Ohio Militia, and was afterward made captain, being sworn into service Monday, August 30, 1830, by Samuel D. Harris, brigadier-general of that brigade. All his old military papers are now in the possession of the brother of our subject. He died at West Millgrove, Friday, February 11, 1870, and his wife departed this life Thursday, March 10, 1884, at the age of seventy-six years.

The early life of Charles B. Saxby was spent at West Millgrove, where he attended the public schools, and during vacations worked in his father's store or upon farms, very seldom being found out of employment. During the summer months of 1882 and 1883 he served an apprenticeship with a house painter. On Tuesday, September 30, 1884, he went to Weston, where he secured a position on the paper which he now edits, and commenced to learn the printer's trade, working four months for nothing, and paying his own personal expenses with the exception of his board. S. E. Burson was at that time proprietor of the paper. When Mr. Saxby arrived in Weston he was possessed of $1.05, having refused to accept financial assistance from his father, as he desired to make his own way in the world as his father had done before him. After serving four months he received a salary of $3 per week for two years, and industriously stuck to his position until his apprenticeship expired. On Saturday, January 1, 1887, Mr. Saxby, through the assistance of Judge Frank M. Young, secured a position on the Wood County Gazette, published then at Bowling Green, Ohio, and on that paper remained until Saturday, March 2, 1889, working for A. W. Rudolph, its able editor and manager. He held every position from "cub," to solicitor, reporter and collector.

On Wednesday, March 6, 1889, Mr. Saxby was united in marriage with Miss Nettie L. Dull, only daughter of John L. Dull, then a prominent dry-goods merchant of Weston, who is now engaged in selling agricultural implements. Our subject secured a position in his father-in-law's store, and there remained until Wednesday, May 1, 1889, when he again resumed newspaper work as collector and solicitor on the Sentinel, which had just been consolidated with the Gazette. He remained five months, settling up the large subscription accounts of both papers, and after its completion collected delinquent tax in Perry, Montgomery and Bloom townships, for the county treasurer, which was a very responsible position for a young man to hold. He commenced work in his father-in-law's store again on Monday, December 2, 1889, and remained in his employ until the twenty-sixth anniversary of his birth, February 8, 1891, but during the previous summer he had driven a huckster wagon "for his health" as well as for the revenue connected with it. However, the newspaper desire could not be overcome, and he returned to Bowling Green, where he took his old position on the Sentinel-Gazette, as reporter and general utility man. On Friday, July 31, 1891, in connection with J. D. Conklin, then postmaster of Weston, he purchased the Wood County Herald, the paper on which he had set his first type, and has held the position of editor and manager up to the present time. On December 4, 1891, Mr. Conklin sold his interest to A. S. Coward, and the firm is now Saxby & Coward. It is a bright spicy paper, and, the editor being a versatile writer, it is eagerly sought by the intelligent reading public.

Politically, Mr. Saxby is a Republican, having cast his first Presidential vote at Bowling Green, for Harrison and Morton. He was elected clerk of Weston township, Monday, April 7, 1890, was re-elected Monday, April 4, 1892, serving two full terms, and was nominated for the office of mayor of Weston at the spring caucus of 1895, but failed of election by a small vote. On Monday, April 6, 1896, he was elected cemetery trustee for a term of two years. He was elected a member of the central committee in 1891 and '96, and a member of the county executive committee in 1895. During the year 1892 he was Wood county's representative of the Ohio Republican League on the executive committee, and at the State Convention held at Columbus, in 1893, he was chairman of the Wood county delegation. He was a delegate to the State Republican Conventions in 1892-3-4-6. Mr. Saxby has been a member of the township election board, either as clerk or presiding judge of every election held since the fall of 1891, and has received the appointment as presiding judge for the spring of 1897.

Mr. Saxby takes considerable interest in civic societies. On Tuesday, January 31, 1893, he joined Anthony Wayne Tent No. 140, K. O. T. M., as a charter member, and was elected past commander. He was also elected a representative to the Great Camp, and during its session at Piqua, Ohio, August 15 and 16, 1893, was elected great sentinel of that body, and re-elected at Toledo, Wednesday, August 15, 1894. At Cleveland, Ohio, Wednesday, August 14, 1895, he was elected great second master of the guard for a term of two years, and is now serving as record-keeper of the lodge at Weston. He joined Weston Lodge No. 681, I. O. O. F., Friday, February 2, 1894, and in July was appointed warden, installed vice-grand in January, 1895, and noble grand, Friday, July 19, 1895. On Tuesday, May 19, 1896, he took the Grand Lodge degree at Lima, Ohio. On Friday, May 29, 1896, he was elected recording secretary. In the month of September, 1894, both he and his wife joined Kokosing Lodge No. 303, D. of R., and on Wednesday, May 6, 1896, he joined Kenilworth Lodge No. 340, K. of P., and was elected K. of R. & S., August 26, 1896. Mr. Saxby holds membership with the Buckeye Press Association, and is a member of its executive committee, and also belongs to the Wood County Country Press Association, in which he is serving as treasurer. He is a popular and influential man, possessing an energetic spirit, good executive ability and an excellent judgment, which will not fail to bring him success.

Mrs. Saxby was born in Weston township,

Wood county, Tuesday, January 12, 1869, and is the daughter of John Lewis Dull, who served in the Union army during the Civil war as a member of Company I, 144th O. V. I. She is a member of the Presbyterian Church, Neibling Woman's Relief Corps, Emerald Hive No. 42, L. O. T. M., and Kokosing Lodge No. 303, D. of R. She takes a very active part in all Church work, and is a most estimable lady. At the marriage of our subject and his wife, Rev. James Long, her grandfather, officiated. They have three children—Helen Kathryn, born Monday, November 17, 1890; John Bateman, born Friday, January 26, 1894, who died Sunday, May 27, following, and Mildred Nettie, born Sunday, July 5, 1896. They have a very pleasant home of their own at the corner of Locust and Clark streets, where their many friends always find a hearty welcome.—[October 20, 1896.]

JOHN SATTLER, a prominent agriculturist of Perrysburg township, and one of the oldest residents of that locality, was born in Hesse-Darmstadt, Germany, in 1830. His parents, Philip and Christina (Rau) Sattler, were natives of the same province, and came to America in 1851, passing thirty-one days on the voyage between London and New York. After their arrival they spent three months in New York City, and then went to Hamburg, N. Y., a year later coming to Ohio, and locating first in Cuyahoga county, and then in Mercer county, where they remained three years. In 1863 they came to Wood county, and bought 100 acres of land, still in its primitive condition, near Stony Ridge. Here the father died in 1875 at the age of seventy, his wife surviving him until 1894, when she departed this life, aged ninety-one years. They had four children, of whom our subject was the eldest; Philip died in Perrysburg township in 1879; Joseph resides in the same township; Catherine married Joseph Armbruster, and died in 1876.

Mr. Sattler received a good education in the schools of the Fatherland, but he learned to read and write the English language by private study, after he came to this country. He was married, in 1857, in Rockport township, Cuyahoga county, to Miss Magdalena Haller, a native of Baden, Germany, and of this union seven children were born: Catherine married Paul Greulich, of Troy township; George died February 20, 1879; Helen married Barny Grabenstetter, and died March 4, 1888, leaving two children, Matilda and Marie; John B. married Louisa Beaurigard, and resides in Virginia; Joseph A. also lives in Virginia, and Philip and Josephine are at home.

In politics, Mr. Sattler is a Democrat, and he takes an influential part in local affairs, having been township supervisor for two years, and a member of the board of education of his township for sixteen years. Since 1882 he has been a director and agent of the Lime City Farmers Mutual Fire Association.

FRANK ROGERS, a highly-esteemed citizen of Middleton township, is a native of Ohio, having been born in Seneca county, February 8, 1845.

Amos Rogers, his father, was a native of New York, and by occupation a cooper and farmer. From the Empire State he removed to Fulton county, Ohio, where he carried on agricultural pursuits until 1851, when he came to Freedom township, Wood county, and there operated a farm for a time. Subsequently he engaged in the hotel business in Genoa, Ottawa county, where his remaining days were passed. In Seneca county he was married to Effie Booram, a native of New York, and they became the parents of nine children: Amanda, wife of John Russell, of Bowling Green; Harriet, wife of Joseph Long, of Genoa, Ohio; Frank; Alanson, of Center township; Edward, a cooper of Findlay, Ohio; Martha, wife of Thomas Waugh; Emery, an operator at Toledo; Francis, deceased; and James, who is justice of the peace at Scotch Ridge. The father is deceased; the mother is now living at Scotch Ridge.

The subject of this review acquired his education in the public schools of Wood county, and gave his father the benefit of his services until after the breaking out of the Civil war. Prompted by a spirit of patriotism, he enlisted, January 1, 1864, in Company K, 21st O. V. I., under Capt. Canfield and Col. Neibling. He participated in the battle of Buzzard's Roost and in the Atlanta campaign. After the fall of that city he was on detached duty during winter, participating in the battle of Nashville. Rejoining his regiment at Goldsboro, N. C., he was in the battle of Jonesboro, with Sherman in his march to the sea, and was in the grand review at Washington, in 1865. On July 11, 1865, he was discharged, having made for himself an honorable war record. He was with his regiment all the time, attached to the 14th Army Corps, 1st Division, 3rd Brigade. Returning to his home in Freedom township, he there attended school for six terms, afterward removing with his father to Genoa. He then located in Clay township, where he purchased forty acres of land that he operated and improved, in connection with work at the cooper's trade, which he followed some six years. He then purchased a bowl factory, carried the same on for a year, and in 1882 he removed to Dunbridge, where for four years he was engaged in the manufacture of bowls, also of hoops and lumber. He then purchased eighty acres of land in Middleton township, upon which he erected a residence at a cost of $3,000; also built a substantial barn and added other improvements, thereby making his farm one of the best in the county. In connection with agricultural pursuits he is secretary of the Dunbridge Oil Company, and a stockholder in the Elevator Company.

Frank Rogers

On February 24, 1870, Mr. Rogers married Melvina Wentworth, daughter of James Wentworth, of Erie county, Ohio, and they have one child, Nettie, born in 1872, now the wife of Dr. J. Pope, of Dunbridge. The family are identified with the Presbyterian Church, of which Mr. Rogers is an elder. In politics he is a Republican, and has served as justice of the peace and notary public of Wood county. Socially he is a member of Wood County Lodge, F. & A. M., and of Crystal Chapter, Bowling Green, Ohio; also a member of Robert Stewart Post No. 690, G. A. R., of Dunbridge. His integrity is above question, his life has been an honorable and upright one, and he has the confidence and good will of all with whom business or social relations have brought him in contact.

GEORGE W. URIE, who has spent his entire life in Wood county, was born in Bloom township, October 4, 1847. The paternal grandfather, Solomon Urie, was a native of Pennsylvania, whence he came to Ohio at an early day, first locating in Richland county, and later became one of the pioneers of Ashland county. His next removal made him a resident of Cass township, Hancock county, but his last days were spent in Eaton county, Mich. When he came to Ohio there were few settlements in the western part of the State, and in his efforts to secure a home for his family, he endured all the hardships of a true pioneer.

Joseph Urie, the father of our subject, was born in Richland county, Ohio, June 5, 1825, and was reared on the frontier, his education being such as the district schools of those early days afforded. He removed to Hancock county when that portion of the State was almost entirely in its primitive condition. On November 19, 1846, he was married to Miss Elinda Robbins, who was born in Columbia county, Penn., July 9, 1824, and was a daughter of Daniel and Rhoda (McCarty) Robbins, early settlers of Bloom township. The wedding ceremony was performed by Squire Chilcote, of Perry township, Wood county. They located upon a farm in Bloom township, and, as Mr. Urie was in limited circumstances, his start in life was slow. For a time he followed threshing, working for Ora Baird, and later removed to Ashland county, where the only brother of our subject, Milton T., was born February 17, 1850. While there the family resided upon the land which now comprises the County Poor Farm of Ashland county. From there the father removed to Eaton county, Mich., renting a farm of John McConnell, a great hunter, though he owned at that time land in Montcalm county, Mich., and, after a residence in Eaton county, he returned to Bloom township, Wood county, buying a farm in Section 35.

At West Millgrove, Joseph Urie enlisted in the Union army August 6, 1862, becoming a member of Company B, 111th O. V. I., which was later made a part of the Second Brigade, Second Division, Twenty-third Army Corps. At the battle of Lenoir Station, Tenn., he was taken prisoner, and was confined in Libby prison and at Andersonville, Ga., where, after nine months he starved to death, dying August 10, 1864. His sufferings were terrible, and his body was never recovered by his family. Like so many brave and loyal men during that struggle he laid down his life for his country. Urie Post, G. A. R., of Bloomdale, is named in his honor. This left the widow with her two sons, who carried on the farm, where she lived for many years. She died at the home of our subject in Bloomdale, July 9, 1891, a most highly respected lady, and an earnest and devout member of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

The primary education of George W. Urie was obtained in the district schools, and he completed his studies by one term's attendance at the schools of Findlay, Ohio. In 1871 he was united in marriage with Mrs. Sarah Rosendale, née Noecker, widow of Thomas Rosendale, Sr., and to them was born a daughter, Lorena, who died in infancy. The wife died in 1874, and was interred in Shenandoah, Richland county. Up to the spring of 1872 farming had been the chief occupation of our subject, but at that time he joined the surveying party, then locating the B. & O. railroad through Bloomdale, being thus employed for about two years. After the death of his first wife he began the erection of a house for the accommodation of travelers in Bloomdale, which he conducted for some time in connection with the operation of his farm near that place. This property he later sold, and devoted his entire time to agricultural pursuits, but now makes his home in Bloomdale, where he has a pleasant and commodious residence.

In Cass township, Hancock county, in September, 1893, Mr. Urie was again married, his second union being with Miss Lizzie Overholt, a native of that township, and a daughter of Christian Overholt, one of its representative farmers and citizens. This worthy couple hold membership with the Methodist Episcopal Church, to which they contribute liberally, and he has served as steward and secretary of the board of trustees. Politically he is a stalwart Republican, and is at present serving as constable of the township. Though a quiet, unassuming man, he wins many friends, and his integrity, manliness and true Christian character have won the respect of the entire community.

CLARENCE W. THOMAS, who carries on agricultural pursuits in Plain township, is a native of the same, having first seen the light in that township, June 26, 1859, and is a worthy representative of a pioneer family of Wood county. He is a son of Silas and Eliza (Beach) Thomas, and a brother of L. P. Thomas, of Middleton township. In Plain township he attended school, and from an early age has been familiar with farm work in its various departments, for as soon as old enough to handle a plow, he began work in the fields on the old homestead. To his father he gave the benefit of his services until 1879, when he started out in life for himself, and in partnership with his brother, J. G. Thomas, purchased thirty acres of land which they cleared and improved. As success attended their efforts, they added to this property until they had more than one hundred acres at the time our subject sold out. The latter then purchased the old homestead of one hundred acres which he now operates, being successfully engaged in general farming and stock raising. He has made excellent improvements on his land, and is a progressive, energetic and capable farmer.

On February 1, 1880, Clarence W. Thomas was united in marriage with Miss Maggie A. Jewell, daughter of Aaron Jewell, and their union has been blessed with two sons and one daughter — Albert, Orin and Mabel, all of whom are now attending school. Mr. Thomas is a warm friend of the cause of education, believing it to be the best preparation for life work, and for three years he served as school director. In religious faith he belongs to the United Brethren Church, holding membership with the Union Hill Church, of which he is trustee and assistant class-leader, also superintendent of the Sunday-school. He does all in his power to promote the cause of religion, and has been an important factor in educational and social interests.

MANDEVILLE MILBOURN, a leading agriculturist of Bloom township, is a member of one of the most prominent pioneer families of that locality, and has himself passed through experiences, the like of which can never occur again in this now civilized region.

The Milbourn family is of old Virginia stock, their home being in Campbell county. His grandfather, Andrew Milbourn, reared a family of six children, among whom was Lot T., our subject's father, who came to Ohio when a young man and located for a time in Columbiana county. Here he met and married his first wife, Miss Abigail Reed, and in the summer of 1835 came to Bloom township and bought a tract of 160 acres of timber land, upon which he built a small log house for his family, who joined him in the fall. At that time there were no roads there except the irregular wagon track cut by the settlers from one house to another, and our pioneers were obliged to clear their way from Eagleville to their new home, following what is known as Bull creek most of the distance. Lot T. Milbourn was a leader in the community, active in politics, in early days as a Whig and later as a Republican, and he was for years a justice of the peace, and the clerk and a trustee of Bloom township. He was a great hunter, and the woods afforded him every chance to gratify his taste. In addition to farming he carried on the blacksmith trade, and made hoes and other implements of unusual strength for the rough work of that day. Notwithstanding his early disadvantages, he acquired a fair competence, and his later years were spent in quiet comfort.

Our subject, who was born December 18, 1841, was the youngest of eight children: Harvey, now a farmer of Bloom township; Julia A., Josiah, and Lycurgus, all three of whom have passed away; Leander, now a resident of Kansas; Lot R., who lives in Columbiana county; Thomas E., a resident of Iowa, and Mandeville. The mother of our subject died in 1848, and the father subsequently married Mrs. Hannah McNeely Whitacre.

Mandeville Milbourn attended the schools of District No. 3, his first teacher being Richard Martin. He assisted on the farm until the death of his father, which occurred in 1874, relieving him of care in his old age. He shared his father's love of hunting, and his single-barrel rifle, which weighs twelve pounds and carries a ball that weighs forty-five to the pound, has brought down all sorts of game excepting bear. On one occasion he went out to hunt rabbits with his dogs, and startled a wild cat, which took refuge on the roof of the old log barn, where he crouched pending a renewal of hostilities. Fortunately the father returned from a hunting trip just then, and shot at the wildcat, wounding him so that he jumped down and was killed by the three dogs after a desperate fight, our subject carrying the carcass home with much pride. At another time he and his brother Lycurgus were hunting deer in Henry township, and, seeing a drove of six or more, they shot a large buck, who left the main herd and was pursued by the boys. Another shot rendered him desperate, and when the boys neared him he charged at Lycurgus, who bravely stood his ground, and by a well-directed blow with a hatchet laid the monarch of the woods low.

On January 1, 1864, Mr. Milbourn married Miss Rebecca Whitacre, daughter of Reason Whitacre, a well-known pioneer of Bloom township. They began housekeeping on a part of the old homestead, which he inherited from his father. Here he has made many improvements, including a handsome residence built in 1889. Five children were born of this union: Reason E., a dentist of North Baltimore; Lydia C., who married George Zody, of Sugar Ridge; Mary L., married to C. H. Sanderson, of Perry township; Horace M. and James A., at home, the latter attending school at Jerry City. The mother died November 14, 1895, aged fifty-two years, nine months, fourteen days, and was interred at Jerry City.

Mr. Milbourn's father helped to organize a company to take part in the war of 1812, but news came of the close of the struggle, and they stayed at home. The patriotic devotion of our subject was also thwarted, as, after enlisting in Company D, 111th O. V. I., and staying at Camp Toledo for three weeks, he was rejected on account of an accidental injury to his knee received some time before. He returned home and resumed his place in local affairs, befriending every progressive movement, and serving for three years as constable, and five years as township trustee; of late years, however, he has declined to be a candidate. His able discharge of his duties has given him an extensive influence among the Republicans of this county, and has won for him the esteem of all classes, regardless of party. He is a leading member of the Christian Church at Jerry City, in which he was deacon for many years and is now elder; his wife was also a member of this Church.

GEORGE FURRY, a worthy representative of one of the honored pioneer families of this county, is a native of Ohio, born in Stark county, in 1831, and is a son of Jacob and Fanny (Butler) Furry, both natives of Franklin county, Penn., the former born in 1797, and the latter in 1804. In their native State they passed their childhood days, were married, and in 1829 removed to Stark county, Ohio, where the father followed his trade of shoemaking until coming to Wood county in 1833. In Troy township he entered a tract of land in Section 5, which he began to clear and improve, but later sold that property and purchased a farm in what is now Lake township, but was then a part of Troy township. He was the first settler on the Ridge, and was the second to make a purchase there. He died in Lake township, June 21, 1866, and his wife, who survived him many years, died on the old homestead on August 21, 1887.

Their family consisted of nine children. (1) Jacob H., who died at Pemberville, in July, 1895, had enlisted in the Union army in 1861, as a member of Company E, 72nd O. V. I., was wounded at the battle of Shiloh, after which he was honorably discharged and returned home, but in 1864 he re-enlisted in the same company and regiment, and was sent to the hospital. He was discharged in 1865. (2) George, of this sketch, is the next in order of birth. (3) William, who became a member of the same company as his brother Jacob, was taken prisoner at the battle of Guntown, and confined in Andersonville and Florence, being incarcerated for over nine months. He now resides on the old home farm in Lake township. (4) Mrs. Jane Whitmore makes her home in Haskins, Wood county. (5) Margaret died at East Toledo, Ohio, in July, 1890. (6) John, who also enlisted in 1861, in Company E, 72nd O. V. I., died at Woodville, Sandusky Co., Ohio, May 3, 1887. He gallantly served for three years in the Union army. (7) Catherine is the wife of J. B. McCutchen, of Troy township. (8) Mary wedded Martin Shook, of the same township. (9) Charles resides at Gibsonburg, Sandusky county.

Our subject was but two years of age on coming to Wood county with his parents, the trip being made with an ox-team and cart. He was educated in the district schools of Troy and Lake townships, and remained a member of his father's household until seventeen years of age, when he began learning the carpenter's trade, which he would follow during the summer season. At the age of twenty-four he again took up his books and continued his studies for four years, at the end of which time he commenced teaching. That profession he has since followed during the winter months with the exception of two terms. In 1865, at Toledo, Ohio, he enlisted in Company G, 189th O. V. I., and was mustered into the United States service at Columbus, Ohio. He was appointed first sergeant, was stationed near Huntsville, Ala., and was mustered out as sergeant-major, being honorably discharged at Nashville, Tenn., September 28, 1865, after which he returned to his home in Wood county.

In Sandusky county, Ohio, in 1862, Mr. Furry was united in marriage with Miss Sarah Jane Manchester, a native of Fremont, Ohio, who died in Lake township, Wood county, in 1867, leaving two daughters, namely: Adda Luella, who died in September, 1892; and Sarah Jane, wife of Dr. A. G. Snyder, of East Toledo, Ohio. In Lake township, in 1870, Mr. Furry was again married, his second union being with Miss Elizabeth Wicks, whose birth occurred in Sandusky county. Her parents, John and Sarah (Hartsell) Wicks, were natives of Pennsylvania, whence they moved to Wayne county, Ohio, later to Sandusky, and finally located in Lake township, Wood county, where they both passed away, the mother in June, 1891. Mr. and Mrs. Furry have seven children: Frank, who is married and resides at Stony Ridge, Wood county; Lottie Alinda, Mabel May, Hattie, Stella, Roy and Zoa.

In his political views, Mr. Furry is a Republican, and he and his wife are faithful members of the Methodist Episcopal Church. For sixty-three years he has now made his home in Wood county, has witnessed almost its entire growth and development, and has been instrumental in helping to bring about the wonderful changes that have taken place. He has many warm friends throughout the county, and by all who know him is held in the highest regard.

J. Q. ADAMS, a representative agriculturist of Washington township, was born in Orleans county, N. Y., October 8, 1824, and is a son of Elijah and Phoebe (Crosby) Adams, the former a native of Vermont, the latter of New York State. Elijah's parents were both drowned while crossing Lake Champlain on the ice, with a team, leaving to the care of others their only child, Elijah, who was adopted and reared by Jesse Hard, of near Manchester, Vt. But little is known of our subject's ancestry, not even the names of his grandparents. To Elijah and Phoebe Adams were born seven children: Marietta, deceased wife of David Kempton; Sallie, who was the wife of William Turner, and died in Indiana; Lydia, who was the wife of Ransom Hollis, but both are now deceased; William, who was a cooper by trade, and has also passed away; J. Q., the subject of this sketch; Lyman, who resides in Monroeville, Huron Co., Ohio; and Guilford, who died in Huron county, in which county the father also departed this life, September 30, 1839, where he had resided since 1833. The mother then made her home with our subject, her death occurring December 26, 1877.

The district schools of Ridgefield township, Huron Co., Ohio, afforded J. Q. Adams his educational privileges; but at an early age he was compelled to lay aside his studies, and take up the sterner duties of life. From the age of fifteen he supported his mother, engaging in farming on shares. In March, 1857, he came to Wood county with his family, having the previous year purchased eighty acres of land in Washington township, which he at once began to improve, erecting thereon a good house, also barns, and planting an excellent orchard. To his original purchase he afterward added forty acres, but has now deeded that part of his property to his son.

Mr. Adams was married in Huron county, October 14, 1847, to Miss Jane J. Cadwell, of Lorain county, Ohio, and to them were born four children, of whom Garry and Harrison both died in 1863, and the youngest in infancy. Frank, the third son, was born August 11, 1857, on the old homestead, where he grew to manhood, receiving his education in the district schools of the neighborhood, and he has always aided in the operation of the home farm. For the past three years he has served as trustee of Washington township. In 1880 he wedded Mary Killyen, and they have four children: Floyd, born October 19, 1882; Ray, born July 8, 1884; Paul F., born October 1, 1885; and May, born May 21, 1887. The wife of our subject, who was a most estimable lady, died June 6, 1886, leaving many friends as well as her immediate family to mourn her loss. She was a daughter of Daniel D. and Laura (Williams) Cadwell, who were married in Pittsfield, Ohio, September 26, 1816, and had two children both born in Troy, Ohio: Mary Ann, born January 11, 1818, and Jane J. (Mrs. J. Q. Adams), born April 9, 1820. The mother of these died June 23, 1831, and the father subsequently remarried; the date of his death is not known.

In his political views, Mr. Adams is a stalwart

J. Q. ADAMS.

MRS. JANE J. ADAMS.

Republican, unwavering in his allegiance to his party, whose principles he believes are calculated to promote the country's best interests. While in no sense a politician, he has always taken an interest in his party, and several times has been delegate to conventions—both Congressional and county. For a number of years he served as trustee and supervisor, was also a member of the school board, and from April, 1886, to April, 1892, was a justice of the peace, during which time he solemnized several marriages. No case has ever been appealed from his court, showing that he held the hands of justice with a balance that was beyond the interference of any court, and to the satisfaction of all. In religious belief he is a Universalist, although his family attend the Presbyterian Church. For a time he was a member of the National Guards, and in the Masonic order he has attained the seventh degree in the Royal Arch Chapter, belonging to Lodge No. 451, of Tontogany, and the Chapter of Bowling Green.

J. WININGER, who for many years has been the postmaster at Hatton, and is also a prosperous merchant of that village, was born in Seneca county, Ohio, December 2, 1839, the son of Adam and Mary (Sheller) Wininger.

The father of our subject was a Pennsylvanian by birth, but was a pioneer settler of Seneca county, and, at the time of our subject's birth, was living one mile from what is now Fostoria, on land which is now included in the limits of that city. When he was a child his parents removed to near Berwick, Ohio, where they owned eighty acres of unimproved land. He attended the district schools in the intervals of hard work, and was often prevented from even this scanty amount of schooling on account of high water, which covered the wet, swampy land in this section, near Fostoria. The young people of to-day have but little idea of the trials and privations the youth of those pioneer times had to undergo in order to procure even the limited schooling which they received, and it is to their credit that they grew up to be, in most cases, intelligent, well-informed men who laid the foundations for one of the most prosperous commonwealths among the States.

Mr. Wininger remained on his father's farm until reaching his majority, when he learned the carpenter's trade, at which he worked at intervals for a number of years. On October 6, 1856, he was married, in Fostoria, to Miss Sarah Stevens, who was born in Pennsylvania, daughter of Benjamin and Catherine Stevens. Two children were born of this union: Laura E., who resides with her father, and Adelia, now Mrs. Earl Dillon, of Seneca county, Ohio.

Mr. Wininger began his active life without any assistance, at first renting land near Fostoria, which he farmed until his removal, in the spring of 1873, to a tract of eighty acres of wild land in Section 3, Perry township, for which he paid $1,000, a legacy which was left to his wife, about this time aiding him materially in its purchase. No improvements whatever were on this place; but the young man was a worker, and the effects of many days of hard labor were soon noticeable. Each year saw the land increasing in value, but by the time it had reached a high state of cultivation, the incessant work had begun to tell on its owner, and he was compelled to seek some less laborious employment. He concluded to start in the grocery business at Hatton, but so cautious was he about investing in an enterprise entirely unfamiliar, that he bought at first only about $75 worth of goods, and not until 1885 did he remove his family to Hatton. It was soon necessary, however, to seek other quarters for the transaction of his rapidly-growing business, which has proved successful beyond his highest expectations. He now owns his store, the greater part of which he has built, and carries a stock of general merchandise, his trade being an extensive one, both in the immediate vicinity and throughout the township. He also owns and resides in the finest house in Hatton, and in addition to his farm of eighty acres, which he still carries on, is the owner of other valuable property.

On October 1, 1861, Mr. Wininger enlisted in Company D, 72nd Regiment, O. V. I., under Capt. Neuffer, and participated in all the battles in which his company took part until the latter part of June, 1863, when he was taken seriously ill at Vicksburg, Miss., and was sent to the hospital at Memphis. Later he was transferred to the Invalid Corps at St. Louis, where he remained two months; then was sent to Rock Island, Ill., and from there to Washington, D. C.; where he was discharged in November, 1864. During the administration of President Arthur, Mr. Wininger was appointed postmaster at Hatton, and has retained that office ever since in spite of the changes in political leaders. He is a popular man, and has been successful in pleasing all classes by his excellent management of the duties of this responsible position. He is a staunch Republican, and has held a number of minor offices, though in no sense an office-seeker. He is deserving of much credit for the active share he has had in the growth and development of his section.

and it is to such men as he that Wood county owes her position as one of the foremost among the best counties of Ohio. His worth is appreciated by his fellow citizens, who hold him in high esteem. Mr. Winger has had the sorrow of losing his estimable wife, who departed this life August 4, 1892, at Hatton, and was laid to rest in the cemetery at Fostoria.

PETER S. PAINTER, one of the most progressive and enterprising agriculturists of Bloom township, is a member of an old and highly respected pioneer family of that vicinity.

His ancestors were among the early settlers of Pennsylvania, and his grandfather, Adam Painter, came from that State to Columbiana county, Ohio, in the latter part of the eighteenth century, where he bought and improved a large tract of land. His son, Peter S., our subject's father, was born there August 21, 1798, and was reared as a farmer boy and given a good start in life, financially. He was a mechanical genius, and learned various trades without any instruction, being an expert carpenter and shoemaker. He was married August 29, 1822, to Miss Elizabeth Musser, a lady of English descent, who was a native of Maryland, born October 10, 1805, the daughter of Michael Musser. Although he owned an excellent farm in his native county, our subject's father decided to seek "fresh fields and pastures new" on the then frontier line of western Ohio, and disposing of his property he bought 600 acres of land in Bloom township, to which he brought his family in the spring of 1839. They traveled in an old-fashioned scoop-shaped wagon drawn by horses and oxen, and slept many nights in their rude vehicle or camped out near the road. A hewed log house was their first home, with wolves, deer, wild turkeys, and bears for neighbors, the latter making free with their stock unless guarded against constantly.

Of the twelve children of this pioneer couple, eight were born in Columbiana county: James died in infancy; J. Adam, born February 9, 1824, was a member of Company D, 99th O. V. I., and died at Nashville, Tenn., where he was buried; Margaret A. (deceased), born July 11, 1829, married Dr. D. K. Pratt, of California; Michael M., September 11, 1828, died at McComb, Ohio; Henry, November 11, 1830, lives in Nebraska; Samuel, December 8, 1832, lives in Oskaloosa, Ill.; Catherine A., December 15, 1834, married J. M. Sweeney, a native of Scotland, now deceased, and she resides in Hartford, Conn.; John, January 28, 1837, died in Wood county. Four other children were born in this county: Sarah E., September 10, 1839, married William Russell, and died in Bloom township; Peter S., Jr., August 7, 1841; Nancy, November 11, 1843, married Abraham Hampshire, of Ottumwa, Iowa; and Hiram Z., born July 15, 1846, died in Bloom township. Our subject's father was a powerful man, six feet two inches in height, and weighing over 200 pounds. After a few years of toil at the new home, he died—December 7, 1845—and was buried at West Millgrove, his wife surviving him nearly fifty years, bringing up their large family of children to take useful and honorable places in life. She was known for miles around as the "Doctor," and was called for wherever there was any serious illness to nurse, and often to prescribe for the sufferer. She made many long trips through the woods on these errands, protected from the wild animals by a large, brown dog, "Beldy," who had more than one desperate and bloody encounter with wolves after which his wounds would be dressed as if he were a human being. The devoted labors of this noble woman were but poorly paid, and sometimes not paid at all, so far as outward return went. She possessed marvelous vitality, and lived until June 6, 1895, the last twenty years being spent in the home of our subject. During her first years in Wood county, she had a remarkable escape from death. Her husband was chopping a tree, and she came near without attracting his attention, and the tree fell toward her; but a large fork in it separated the branches, which struck the ground on each side of her, so that she was not injured. Her remains were interred in Bloom Chapel cemetery.

Peter S. Painter, our subject, went to live with an uncle, John Snyder, when he was seven years old, and at twelve began to work for neighboring farmers, doing any work suitable for his strength, which was unusual for a boy of his age. He was "at home wherever he took his hat off," and he did a great deal of work at cutting wheat by cradle in this and adjoining counties. He attended the district schools of his time, and the realization of their deficiencies makes him anxious that the rising generation should have the best advantages that can be given them. On August 15, 1861, he enlisted, in Bloom township, in Company H, 49th O. V. I. under Capt. O. B. Hays, and Col. W. H. Gibson. After training at Tiffin and Camp Dennison, they went to the front, taking stock cars from Cincinnati to their first engagement at Green River, Ky. His regiment was the celebrated "Black Swamp Jayhawkers," and during their entire service they were at the front, never being assigned to guard or picket duty. Mr. Painter took no furlough, but remained on duty throughout the war, and participated in every battle of his regiment, except for a term of four weeks, in hospital, from a wound received at Missionary Ridge, November 25, 1863. He was transferred to the Veteran Reserve Corps, April 10, 1864.

After his return home he began farming "on his own hook," renting a place in Bloom township. On May 25, 1865, he married Miss Mary J. Swinehart, who was born March 31, 1841, in Perry township, where her parents, John and Elizabeth (Hale) Swinehart, were pioneer farmers, having come from Jefferson county, at an early day. Four children were born to this union: Clyde R., a lawyer of Bowling Green; Eva, a teacher in Bloom township; Malissa, a teacher; and Mollie, a teacher in Milton township, all three living at home.

Soon after his marriage, Mr. Painter bought forty acres of land in Perry township, making his first payment with $250, saved from his $13 per month as a soldier. Two years later he sold it, and bought the homestead in Bloom township, containing forty acres. In April, 1871, he moved to Clay county, Ill., buying a farm there, but in November, 1874 he returned to Ohio, having lost in the meantime about $2,500. He rented land in Bloom township, and afterward bought eighty acres of it, which he improved, setting out fruit and ornamental trees, and erecting buildings. In 1894 he built a new barn, 45 x 75, which is one of the best of the fine modern barns of the township. His success is well deserved, as it is based upon hard work and wise management, and his fair dealing and upright principles have won for him the high esteem of his neighbors. He is a great reader, and keeps himself well informed upon the topics of the time. Politically, he is a Republican; but although he takes keen interest in the success of his party, he has declined all tenders of official positions, either in the township or county. He is a member of Urie Post No. 110, G. A. R., of Bloomdale.

REV. DAVID BRANDEBERRY, one of the most highly-respected citizens of this section of the country, is engaged in the work of the Methodist Episcopal ministry, serving the people of Bettsville Circuit, Seneca county. He was born in Bloom township, Wood county, December 6, 1854, and is the second son and fourth child of Thomas C. and Catherine (Miller) Brandeberry. He obtained his early education at District School No. 8, his first teacher being W. S. Richard, and, as he learned easily and rapidly, he soon mastered the common English branches taught there. The greater part of his knowledge, however, has been acquired since leaving the school room, mostly by reading and observation. From the time he was old enough he assisted in the work of the home farm until his marriage, which important event in his life occurred on November 21, 1878, when Miss Lydia Bowers became his wife. She is a native of Ohio, born in Licking county, October 9, 1858, and is a daughter of Lewis and Rebecca (Bailey) Bowers. Her education was also secured in the common schools, and by her marriage she became the mother of a son—Edward D., who died at the age of seven months.

In June, 1890, Mr. Brandeberry was licensed as a local preacher of the Methodist Episcopal Church. He then pursued a four-years' course of study arranged by the bishops of the Church, and was graduated in 1894, receiving the highest grade in a class of nine. In 1895 he entered the Conference in a traveling relation, and is now pursuing another four-years' course of study in connection with his work. In 1894 he was appointed to serve Hammansburg and South Liberty. The following year he was on Hoytville Circuit, and in 1896 received his present appointment at Bettsville. Though only in the work a few years, Mr. Brandeberry has developed those qualities that have advanced him from one of the minor places to one of the best circuits in the Central Ohio Conference. He is an earnest Christian worker, and gains the love and confidence of all with whom he comes in contact. From the time he cast his first vote up to 1893, he always supported the Republican party, but is now a strong Prohibitionist. By his friends he has been offered political positions; but his aspirations are not in that line, though he takes quite an interest in public matters, desiring to see the most competent men placed in office. He possesses a farm of forty-one acres in Section 35, Bloom township.

JOHN W. FARK is an enterprising farmer of Troy township, pleasantly located in Section 11, and although his residence in this county is of comparatively short duration, he has already identified himself with the representative and progressive citizens. In April, 1883, he located upon his fine farm of 116 acres, then only partially improved, which he had purchased the previous year, coming here from Toledo, Ohio, and has since devoted his time and attention to general farming and stock raising.

Mr. Fark was born in Woodville township,

Sandusky Co., Ohio, in 1854, and is a son of Ernst Henry and Louisa (Miller) Fark. The father, who was a native of Hanover, Germany, was unmarried on locating in Sandusky county, and at an early day he also worked in Perrysburg, Wood county. For his first wife he wedded Mary Borchesding, who died in Woodville township, leaving two daughters—Caroline, wife of Henry Ernsthansen, of Freedom township, Wood county; and Mrs. Eliza Hartman, of Lucas county, Ohio. In 1853, in Woodville township, Sandusky county, was celebrated the marriage of Ernst Henry Fark and Miss Louisa Miller, who was born in Germany, and is a daughter of Diedrich Miller, one of the early pioneers of Woodville township, where he helped to build the pike, and there spent his remaining days. Mr. and Mrs. Fark still make their home in Woodville township, where he developed a farm from the forest, and reared a family of seven children, who are still living, namely: John W., of this sketch; Henry, who resides upon the home farm; William, who is foreman of a telegraph line of Toledo; Mrs. Kate Aufderhide, of the same city; August, who is married, and is engaged in bookkeeping in Toledo; Mrs. Emma Hoodlebrink, of Woodville; and Fred, at home.

Like most farmer boys, John W. Fark was reared, and in the schools of Woodville township obtained his education. At the age of twenty-two he left the parental roof, being for two years employed as a farm hand, and then went to Toledo, where he worked at car repairing for two months during the day time, and then was made night inspector, which position he held for one year. His next employment was in a foundry, but after a short time he entered a sash factory, and on leaving that place secured work on a telegraph line. He next came to Troy township, Wood county, where he has since resided.

At Toledo, in 1881, Mr. Fark was joined in wedlock with Miss Louisa Havekost, whose birth occurred in Monroe, Mich. Her parents, John and Anna (Behrens) Havekost, were both natives of Germany. The father, who was an ocean sailor, went in 1849 to California, where he worked in the mines for a time, after which he returned to the Fatherland, and on again coming to the United States located near Monroe, Mich., where he and his wife still live. Seven children have been born to our subject and his wife—Ernest John, Charley H., Lewis, Annie, Lorena, Gertrude and Mabel, the latter of whom died September 7, 1896, aged eleven months. The parents are members of the Lutheran Church at Woodville, and in politics he is a Democrat, by which party he was elected in 1890 as trustee, and still continues to fill that office. For six years he efficiently served as a member of the school board, and for two terms was supervisor.

GEORGE HAMPSHIRE, for many years one of the leading well-to-do farmers and extensive landowners of Portage township, Wood county, is now living retired from active work, enjoying the prosperity which he acquired by hard work during his early years. He is a native of Ohio, born February 1, 1831, in Morgan county, near Eagleport, son of Jonas and Mary (Swope) Hampshire.

Jonas Hampshire was born October 16, 1808, in Baltimore county, Md., son of Barney Hampshire, who in 1811 removed with his family to Ohio, locating first in Muskingum county, where they lived seven years, and thence removing to Morgan county. Barney Hampshire was drowned in the Muskingum river. He was the father of eleven children—four sons and seven daughters. Jonas Hampshire was married in 1830, in Morgan county, to Mary Swope, daughter of Jacob Swope, and two children were born to them there—George and Henry. In the fall of 1832 the family removed to Seneca county, locating in Jackson township, where Mr. Hampshire had entered 160 acres of land, and they were pioneers in that region, the country being very sparsely settled at the time of their arrival. They continued to reside there for over twenty years, in 1858 removing to Wood county and settling on a farm in Section 34, Portage township. Here Mr. Hampshire had invested in 200 acres of farm land, on which the timber was still standing, no trees having been chopped except by coon hunters. He cleared the land, however, and continued to improve it during his lifetime, converting it into a valuable property. A hard-working man, he met with well-merited success, at the time of his death being the owner of 316 acres of land east of Jerry City, and thirty-three acres south, residing on the latter place for some years previous to his decease. He gave each of his children a farm. He became quite prominent in Jackson township, Seneca county, where he served as township trustee and assessor, and he was an ardent believer in the principles of the Democratic party. Having a natural aptitude for military tactics, he took great interest in such affairs, and was captain of a company of home militia in Jackson township, Seneca Co., Ohio.

Of the children born to Jonas and Mary Hampshire the following named lived to maturity: George; Henry, who lives in Garden City, Kans.;

GEORGE HAMPSHIRE.

MRS. NANCY HAMPSHIRE.

Emanuel, of Garnet, Kans.; Abraham, now living in Ottumwa, Iowa; Rachel, who married Solomon S. Frederick, and died in Henry township; and Catharine (Mrs. John Cupp), of Hammansburg. The mother of these died in 1866, in Portage township, and for his second wife Mr. Hampshire wedded, on December 11, 1866, Mrs. Hannah (Clinger) Sanderlin. To this union were born three children—Jonas W., of Portage township; Aminda, who died in young womanhood; and John, who is a farmer of Bloom township. Mr. Hampshire passed from earth July 29, 1892, in Bloom township, and was laid to rest in Jerry City cemetery. He was a member of the Lutheran Church. Mr. Hampshire possessed a strong will, and force of character, traits which marked the whole course of his life, and which were no small factors in his success and popularity.

George Hampshire passed all his early life in a pioneer region, and he was initiated into the mysteries of agriculture in a new country at a tender age. They lived two miles from a school, and, work at home being plenty, he as the eldest son could not be spared from the farm, so that the greater part of his education has been acquired by his own efforts. On December 4, 1851, he was married, in Jackson township, Seneca county, to Miss Nancy Foster, who was born in that township February 8, 1833, daughter of Christian Foster, who came to Seneca county from Perry county, this State, in an early day. After his marriage our subject farmed on his father's land, in Seneca county, until January 31, 1865, when he removed to Wood county, taking up his home on an eighty-acre tract in Section 33, Portage township, of which at that time but two acres were cleared, and seven acres chopped, and the dwelling and farm buildings were but rude structures. Mr. Hampshire was obliged to go in debt $500 for this tract, and he at once set to work to make it productive, succeeding so well that he was later enabled to buy eighty acres adjoining his original purchase. He also has 110 acres in Bloom township, being the owner, altogether, of 270 acres of excellent farm land. Mr. Hampshire does not now engage in active farm work, having acquired a snug competence for his declining years. He is, indeed, a self-made man, and throughout his business career he has retained his honorable standing among his fellowmen, who esteem him for his many sterling qualities. He has been trustee in his township two terms, and has also served as school director, but he is no politician, and, though he is a Democrat in sentiment, he supports the best man, regardless of party ties.

Mr. and Mrs. Hampshire have had children as follows: Amanda (now Mrs. Daniel Smith), of Liberty township; Mary E. (Mrs. A. W. Lefler), of Toledo; Jonas H., who was deputy sheriff of Wood county and a registered pharmacist, and now living on a farm of ninety acres of his own, one and one-half miles from Bowling Green; Magdalena R. (Mrs. J. D. Simons), of Findlay, Ohio; Lucinda, living at home; Alice M. (Mrs. Charles Harnard), of Jerry City; Amelia (Mrs. John Harrison), of Portage township; Christ C., a farmer of Bloom township; Charles W., at home; and Cora E., who died when four years old. In religious connection Mr. and Mrs. Hampshire are active members of the Radical United Brethren Church, and he is at present serving as trustee.

GEORGE M. PALMER, a leading citizen and representative farmer of Montgomery township, residing in Section 28, was born in Penfield township, Lorain Co., Ohio, January 17, 1857, and is a son of Randolph P. and Esther C. Palmer. His father, whose birth occurred in Camden, N. Y., in the year 1820, migrated to Penfield township, Lorain county, in 1835, with his parents, Edward and Lucretia (Babcock) Palmer, where the former died, but the death of the latter occurred in Wood county. Both, however, were interred in Lorain county.

Randolph P. Palmer had good educational advantages for his day, and for six years was a successful teacher in the schools of Lexington, Ky. On November 16, 1847, in Grafton township, Lorain county, he wedded Mrs. Esther C. Pearmain, who was born at Mayfield, N. Y., April 29, 1820, and was the widow of Edward Pearmain. Her father, William McConnell, was the son of George McConnell, a native of Scotland, and a graduate of the University of Edinburgh, who at one time was the tutor of a son of the Duke of Hamilton, and later of Noah Webster. Her father, who was a cripple for many years, was a man of much more than ordinary intellect, and for thirty-five years served as justice of the peace in New York, in which State he lived before coming to Ohio. His wife, who bore the maiden name of Jerusha Hale, was born in Pittsfield, Conn., a daughter of Joseph Hale, and a relative of the celebrated John P. Hale. Mr. McConnell died at Lagrange, Ohio, December 30, 1863, where he located on coming from New York, and his wife passed away at Grafton, Ohio, August 9, 1856. They were devout Methodists. They reared a family of ten children—three sons and seven daughters. Although he owned a farm, he never actively engaged in its operation, as his crippled condition would not permit it. Being a good scholar, he was also an able writer.

It was in 1860 that the father of our subject came to Wood county, locating first in Montgomery township, but after a short time removing to Freeport (now Prairie Depot), where he conducted a hotel in an old log building. Later he replaced this by a frame structure, where he continued to carry on the hotel business in connection with work at the carpenter's trade, and also owned a farm adjoining the village on the north. On May 2, 1864, he joined Company K, 144th O. V. I., and died July 14, 1864, of typhoid fever in the hospital at Fort Dix, Md. His remains were interred at that place. He was considerably above the average man, intellectually, and being a great reader was well-informed on topics of general interest. In politics he was first a Whig, and later a Republican. After the death of her husband Mrs. Palmer sold the hotel property, and removed to the farm, where she remained until her children were grown. Her death occurred at the home of a daughter in Oneida, Kans., January 26, 1891. In the family were four children: Wilton, born December 24, 1849, who is a physician of Los Angeles, Cal.; Cleantha E., born September 19, 1852, Mrs. George Dale, of Los Angeles; George M. and Laura I., born September 25, 1858, now Mrs. David Gilmore, of Oneida, Kansas.

George M. Palmer was only a child when brought to Wood county by his parents, who first located in Section 13, Montgomery township, near the county line, after a short residence there removing to Prairie Depot, where our subject attended the common schools. Being a warm friend of the cause of education, the improvements made in the schools are in accordance with his ideas. During his youth he assisted in the work of the home farm, but at the age of twenty-one he entered the general store of S. E. Tilton as a clerk, and there remained for seven years. On February 1, 1883, in Montgomery township, Mr. Palmer was united in marriage with Miss Agnes W. Telfer, who was born in Pennsylvania, January 7, 1859, daughter of John and Martha (Craig) Telfer, the former of Scotch and the latter of Irish extraction. They came from Deerfield, Ohio, to Montgomery township, Wood county, and here the father died. In their family were seven children—three sons and four daughters. Seven children graced the union of our subject and his wife: John R., born May 5, 1884; Kenneth W., born March 5, 1886;

Esther M., born May 25, 1888; Roland C., born July 22, 1890, died August 21, 1892; Thomas T., born July 15, 1892; Margaret E., born July 3, 1894; and George McKinley, born September 16, 1896.

Palmer's addition to Prairie Depot was so named because it was taken from a part of Randolph P. Palmer's farm, and our subject purchased the remaining thirteen acres, which adjoined the village. After residing there for some time, he traded it for a tract of land in Section 13, Montgomery township; but on March 20, 1892, he removed to his present farm in Section 28, comprising sixty acres of excellent land. He also owns 120 acres in Marseilles township, Wyandot Co., Ohio. Upon his present farm he has five producing oil wells, and upon the old farm adjoining Prairie Depot, was found the most fertile field in the township. He is one of the most progressive and prosperous farmers of the locality, and is well-informed on the leading topics of the day. A stanch Republican, he has much more than a voting interest in the success of his party; for three terms was clerk of his township, and since 1894 has been trustee. Socially he is identified with the I. O. O. F., the Sons of Veterans and the Patrons of Industry, and he merits and receives in the highest degree the respect and confidence of the community in which he lives.

E. M. FRIES, an able young attorney of Bowling Green, junior member of the firm of Parker & Fries, was born in Bloom township, September 29, 1866, the fifth in a family of seven children born to his parents, who were natives of Lehigh county, Penn., where the ancestors of both had settled at an early period. His father's people were of Scotch and English blood, but had lived so long among the Pennsylvania-Dutch that they spoke their language.

Solomon Fries, our subject's father, was born November 24, 1824, and his mother, Louisa Charlotte Steckel, a lady of Dutch descent, was born in 1835. They were married in Tiffin, Ohio, where for several years Mr. Fries followed the bricklayer's trade, and in 1862 they removed to their present home in Bloom township.

After some years of attendance at the district school, our subject spent two years in the academy at Fostoria, and the same length of time in the Ohio Normal University, at Ada, taking the course in civil engineering in addition to his work in the literary department. After leaving school he taught one year, and then entered the employ of the L. E. & W. R. R. as civil engineer. A year later he went to Seattle, Wash., where he remained eighteen months, working for the city engineer and for a land company. Returning to Ohio, he took a course in the Cincinnati Law School, graduating in 1893 with the degree of LL.B. He then came to Bowling Green, and after a year of preliminary work in an office he became a partner of Robert S. Parker. His fine native talents and thorough training give warrant to his large circle of friends in their expectations of a successful career. In politics he is a Republican.

GEORGE W. HEDGE, an extensive lumber dealer residing at Prairie Depot, is one of the best-known and most popular citizens of Montgomery township, and was born in the town of Abbeyville, Medina Co., Ohio, February 22, 1848. He is the eldest child of his parents, George B. and Catherine M. (Crawford) Hedge.

When our subject was seven years old the family moved to Wood county, and he entered District School No. 3, in Montgomery township, which was taught by Mrs. S. C. Guernsey. He had already attended school in Medina county, entering at the early age of four years. He was very apt at learning, and after spending some time in the district school was sent to a private institution at Prairie Depot, taught by a Mr. McPeck. His father was at this time in the saw-mill business, and the lad early acquired a knowledge of its details, so that when seventeen years of age he took entire charge of the mill, early displaying the ability which has manifested itself in the more extensive operations of his later days.

Mr. Hedge remained at home until his marriage, December 28, 1873, in Prairie Depot, to Miss Melita Graham, daughter of John and Melita (Anderson) Graham. She was born January 8, 1852, in Montgomery township, and was educated in the district schools of that locality. The young couple located on twenty acres in Section 20, Montgomery township, which, with the exception of a clearing of three acres, was in its primitive condition, covered with trees and brush, which had to be cleared away before a house could be erected. On this place Mr. Hedge lived, cultivating his land, and at the same time working in the mill with his father, who had made him a partner in the business when he was only twenty-two years old. They had in operation at this time a self-acting shingle machine, which was the first one of the kind in this part of Wood county. This partnership continued until February, 1888, when it was dissolved, and in June, 1889, our subject started the mill which he is now operating. On January 5, 1874, Mr. Hedge was the victim of a terrible accident, from the effects of which he will never recover. He was caught in a belt, and dragged under the shaft and thrown some distance, his right arm being torn into pieces, the hand being thrown in one direction, and other portions in different places, while the bone at the shoulder was entirely stripped of flesh for some nine inches. It was a horrible sight, but Mr. Hedge walked unassisted to his house, a distance of thirty rods. Many a man would have succumbed to such a shock, but his great vitality aided his rapid recovery, and in four weeks he was again ready to attend to business. Although the loss of his arm has been a great hardship, he has mastered every detail of his business, and has been remarkably successful in all his undertakings. His saw, planing and feed mill is an extensive plant, built in modern style, equipped with the latest machinery, and from ten to twelve men are employed the year round. In connection with this he has a large lumber business, and handles all kinds of woods, both native and foreign. He has erected the dwelling in which the family lives, his home place has been transformed into fertile fields and fruitful orchards, and comfortable buildings, with all modern conveniences, have taken the place of the primitive structure in which he at first made his home. Mr. Hedge now owns 284 acres of land in Montgomery township. He is a stockholder in the Wood County Fair Association, and is one of Montgomery township's leading men and representative citizens. His grand success in a business, wherein a majority fail, can be attributed to his thorough knowledge of its requirements, and to his fair and honest methods of dealing. There is no detail in his establishment, no matter how intricate, that he is not perfectly familiar with. While suffering under the disadvantage of having but one arm, he can skillfully operate machinery that many men with both arms would not be able to manipulate. While he had no capital in the way of money with which to start in life, his association with his father, as a member of the firm of George B. Hedge & Son, gave him great prestige and credit, which in later years he has never abused, and as an individual he stands as high as that firm ever did. Mr. Hedge has a delightful home, in which he takes great pleasure, and there are few men in Wood county in private life who have so extensive and so valuable a circle of acquaintances. One child, only, has blessed the union of our subject and his wife, a daughter, named Carrie. For many years she was a great sufferer from inflammatory rheumatism, but through the best medical skill that money could procure, and the tender nursing of her devoted parents, she has finally recovered. In his political views Mr. Hedge is in sympathy with the Democratic party, but supports good men for office, even if they happen to be of some other political faith. He belongs to the I. O. O. F. at Prairie Depot, and both he and his wife are members of the Rebekah Lodge.

JOHN W. KNIGHT, one of the worthy citizens that England has furnished to Ohio, was born September 1, 1852, in Taunton, England, and is a son of Thomas and Eliza (Warren) Knight, also natives of the same country. He was about four years of age when his parents removed to the Isle of Guernsey, one of the Channel Islands. There he attended French schools and became thoroughly conversant with the French language; he also had an English governess at home. When a youth of nine summers he was brought by his parents to America on a German vessel, which landed at New York, October 10, 1861, and the family took up their residence in Sandusky, Erie Co., Ohio.

Our subject attended the public schools of that place, and completed his education in a business college in that town. Subsequently he was for five years employed in the printing office of the Sandusky Journal, but was obliged to abandon that vocation on account of ill health. He then came with his parents to Wood county, and here followed farming continuously until 1891, when he turned his attention to the development of oil wells, and now owns and controls fifteen wells, from which he derives a good income. He also served as postmaster at Trombley, to which position he was appointed during President Cleveland's first administration, being the first incumbent in the office.

Mr. Knight was married in Liberty township, October 30, 1878, to Mrs. Apalinda (Mercer) Whitacre, widow of Samuel Whitacre. She had two children by her first marriage: Olearius T. and Eletha O., both students in Bethany College, West Virginia. The children of the second marriage were Lloyd, who died at the age of sixteen months; and Deyo R., at home. Our subject has prospered in his business undertakings, owing to his well-directed efforts. He is now the owner of 490 acres of land, lying in Liberty, Henry, Jackson and Weston townships, 120 acres of which came by inheritance to Mrs. Knight, from her father, Daniel Mercer, late of Bowling Green (familarly known as "Uncle Dan"), and from the Whitacre estate. Mr. Knight has erected a handsome barn, as good a one as the county affords, also a poultry house and yards, which are worthy the notice of many poultry owners. He also owns on his premises an electric-light plant, lighting his residence and barn, all the building and fixing being done during the year 1896. In politics our subject was formerly a Democrat, but is now a stalwart Prohibitionist. For many years he has served as school director, and the cause of education finds in him a warm friend, while in Church work he takes an active part, and is now elder in the Disciples Church.

JOSEPH BENDER is one of the industrious and skillful farmers, fruit growers and gardeners of Center township, and one of the representative men of that portion of Wood county. He is the owner of a splendid farm, all of which is highly cultivated; his residence, which is a very handsome and commodious one, his fine barns and outbuildings, add materially to the appearance of the place, and to its value from a financial point of view. He is a native of Crawford county, Ohio, born June 8, 1830.

His father, George Bender, was born in Cumberland county, Penn., where he learned the trade of a carpenter and joiner, which he followed there, but when still a young man removed to Crawford county, Ohio, and there engaged in farming. He wedded Mary Failor, and they became the parents of seven children: Elizabeth, wife of Nelson Close, of Crawford county; Andrew F., a retired farmer of Michigan; Mary, wife of John Ealy, an agriculturist of Crawford county; Susan, wife of John Kyser, a very systematic and industrious farmer, a prominent Grange lecturer, and a representative of his county in the State legislature; George, a time-honored minister of the Church of the United Brethren in Christ; Samuel, deceased; and Joseph, of this sketch. The father died in Crawford county, and the mother, who preceded him to the world beyond, passed away in 1832.

Joseph Bender continued on the home farm until reaching his majority, receiving as good an education as could be obtained in the common schools of that period, which education he supplemented by two years attendance at Otterbein University, and then spent three years teaching school. He then went to Wyandot county, Ohio, which was mostly inhabited by Indians, and remained there several years, devoting his time and attention to the cultivation of a farm of seventy acres, which he converted into a valuable tract. On selling out, he came to Wood county, buying forty-six acres of land in Center township. There he built a fine residence at a cost of $2,000, put up good barns and out-buildings, and, besides general farming, gives a great deal of attention to fruit growing—having an excellent orchard, and other land planted in berries. He finds a ready sale for his products in the markets of Bowling Green, and on his place has some very fine Jersey cows—the best in the county—in which he takes an especial pride, and he is fast becoming an extensive breeder and shipper of A. J. C. C. stock.

Mrs. Apalinda Knight.

John H. Knight

In Wyandot county, in 1854, Mr. Bender was married to Miss T. M. Wilcox, and to them were born two children: Wilder Pease, born August 14, 1855, received his primary education in the district schools, and was graduated with high honors from Otterbein University in the classical course in the class of 1880, of which class he was elected orator; he then took a course in theology, and was ordained a minister of the Church of the United Brethren in Christ, in 1883; he is now a prominent minister of the Methodist Episcopal Church of the Central Ohio Conference, and is at present stationed at Port Jefferson, Ohio. His wife was Miss Kate Kershner, of Bowling Green. Sherman Larkum, the younger son, was born July 5, 1857, received his primary education in the district schools, and was a student in Otterbein University until his junior year, when he was obliged to give up his literary pursuits and cherished desire of the profession of law, on account of failing eyes; he is now in the employ of the United States Express Company at Toledo, Ohio. He married Miss Jessie Stackhouse, of Fremont, Ohio.

Mr. Bender is classed by his fellow citizens as one of the public-spirited and representative men of the township, and merits and receives the warmest confidence and esteem of the entire community. He is a worthy and sincere Christian gentleman, holding membership with the Church of the United Brethren in Christ, of which he has been trustee, besides holding other offices, and his family also hold the same faith. He and his two sons take an active interest in everything for the welfare of their township and county, and use their right of franchise in support of the Republican party.

JOHN H. MONASMITH. Among the young and energetic farmers of the county is this gentleman, who is successfully operating a fine farm in Bloom township. He is a representative of one of the honored pioneer families, his parents being Elias H. and Elizabeth (Flaughter) Monasmith, and was born October 14, 1865, in Section 28, Bloom township.

The father's birth occurred in Mahoning county, Ohio, March 10, 1831, and he was one of the eleven children of George and Esther Monasmith, the others being John P., Susan, Elizabeth, Samuel, Henry, Mary A., Lydia E., Martin, Levi and Martha C. Five of the number served in the Union army during the Civil war—Samuel, Henry, Martin, John P. and Elias H., the latter belonging to Company E, 144th O. V. I., serving until honorably discharged at the close of his term of enlistment. He was first married in Mahoning county to Elizabeth Musser, who there died, leaving one child—W. E., now a resident of Bloom township. It was in 1859 that the father arrived in Wood county, entirely without means, owning only a horse and buggy. He had recently passed through a siege of typhoid fever, which, together with the expenses of his wife's sickness and death, exhausted his resources, and he was $100 in debt. Rinehart Simon kindly offered him a home until he could obtain work. For his second wife he wedded Elizabeth Flaughter, one of the fifteen children—seven sons and eight daughters—of Jacob and Elizabeth Flaughter, and they became the parents of three children—Flora, now Mrs. Adam Exline, of North Baltimore, Ohio; John H., subject of this review; and Frank W., a farmer of Bloom township. The mother, who was a Methodist in religious belief, died in September, 1890, and was laid to rest in Bloom Chapel cemetery. Later the father married Elizabeth Kistler, of Newton Falls, Ohio. At the time of his first purchase of forty acres of land in Bloom township he had $80 to pay on the same, and he took up his abode in the house once occupied by Smith, the noted horse-thief, who had fled from the community at the time his thefts were discovered. Besides his farming operations, Mr. Monasmith also engaged in ditching to a considerable extent, and continued to make his home in Bloom township, engaged in improving the farm to its present fine condition, until April 1, 1895, when he removed to Newton Falls, Ohio, where he is now living retired, though he still owns ninety acres of valuable land in Bloom township. He became one of the well-to-do farmers and highly respected citizens of the community, honored alike by young and old, rich and poor. His political support is given to the Republican party.

John H. Monasmith acquired a practical education in District School No. 8, and, in addition to his farm duties, at the age of fifteen years he began ditching for his father, which business he followed until after reaching his majority. On April 13, 1891, in Bloom township, he was united in marriage with Miss Ella Ridgely, a daughter of William H. Ridgely, and their union has been blessed by the birth of three children—Emma C., born March 22, 1892; Pearl M., born September 7, 1893; and Ervy C., born August 27, 1895.

Mr. Monasmith is a straightforward agriculturist and business man, honorable in all his dealings, and is destined to win success in his chosen calling. He has done much in the work of placing the old homestead under a high state of cultivation, so that it yields him bountiful returns. He is identified with the Republican party, and is a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church, while his wife belongs to the Disciples Church. They are earnest Christian people, and are the center of a large circle of warm friends.

JOHN H. COX, who carries on farming operations in Plain township, is a native of the county, having been born June 2, 1853, in Center township, and is a son of Joseph and Jane (Underwood) Cox.

Joseph Cox was born September 30, 1802, in Virginia, whence, in 1816, he moved with his parents to Findlay, Ohio, which at that time was but an Indian village, known as Fort Findlay. On September 2, 1838, he married Jane R. Underwood, and to them were born twelve children—eight sons and four daughters—of whom seven sons survive. Five of the eight sons served in the war of the Rebellion, fighting for their country, and one of them, Joseph U., never reached home again, dying from wounds received at the battle of Murfreesboro. Of the four daughters, two died in infancy, the other two growing to womanhood, and dying within about one year of each other. The father was a pioneer of Wood county, and his life was one of hardships; but he was always upright and honest in all his dealings; was equally patriotic, and ever zealous for the right. He died December 7, 1878, aged 76 years, 2 months and 7 days.

Our subject was educated at the district school of Perrysburg township, and worked on his father's farm until 1889, when he bought eighty acres of land in Plain township, known as the "Chapman Farm." On this he has placed many improvements, and converted it into a valuable property. In 1879 he married Miss Naomi De Selms, who was born in Ottawa county, in 1855, a daughter of Jason De Selms. Of this union have been born eight children, namely: Ethel G.; Jessie M. (deceased); Lucretia L.; John W.; Ralph E.; Clyde H.; Jason D., and Dwight L. (deceased). Mr. Cox has served as school director in both Perrysburg and Plain townships, and is a member of the United Brethren Church, at Bowling Green.

JAMES MILLER, a retired agriculturist, residing in Bowling Green, was born in Cambridgeshire, England, July 12, 1838. When he was about four years old, his father came to America with his family, and after a voyage of six weeks landed at New York, from there going to Cleveland, subsequently to Medina, Ohio, and finally settled in Wood county, April 15, 1854.

The father of our subject, William Miller, was born in Soham, Cambridgeshire, England, September 13, 1801, and was married in 1828 to Elizabeth Turner, whose birth took place December 11, 1802, in Reading, Berkshire, England. William Miller was a tailor by occupation, and after coming to this country worked at his trade in the various places in which he lived, owning a shop in Medina. After coming to Wood county he purchased a farm in Liberty township, on which his family resided while he carried on his occupation, working for some years for Austin VanBlarcum, of Portage. He afterward went to Kansas with one of his sons, and died at Clifton, that State, June 28, 1877, his wife having passed away many years previous, her death taking place March 28, 1848.

Mr. Miller, Sr. was a man of fine proportions and weighed 180 pounds. He was an intelligent, active man, a great reader and well-informed. He and his wife were devoted members of the Episcopal Church, and were consistent Christian people. In politics he was a Republican, and was a loyal citizen of his adopted country. To him and his estimable wife the following children were born: Sarah married Charles Waters, now deceased, and lives in Medina, Ohio; Henry, died when fourteen years old; Ann married Isaac Waters, and they now reside in Kansas; Robert is a banker in Tiffin, Ohio; William died February 16, 1887, in his fifty-third year; James is our subject; Thomas is a farmer in Clifton, Washington Co., Kans; Eliza is the wife of Arbor Tebbit, of Medina, Ohio; the ninth child died in infancy.

James Miller grew up on his father's farm in Liberty township, and obtained a good education in the district school of Liberty township. He was first married August 14, 1861, to Miss Mary Parmenter, who was born at Portage, Ohio, Deember 7, 1841, and died March 23, 1876, leaving three children: Henry, born April 14, 1864, died October 26, of the following year; John Sherman, born September 3, 1865, married Mrs. Johnson, and lives in Bowling Green; Clara E., born October 21, 1872, died April 1, 1892. Mr. Miller was again married April 15, 1877, his bride being Miss Zerelza C. Aller, who was born June 20, 1854, in Geauga county, Ohio. Of this union four children have been born, namely: Ernest Wm., born March 28, 1878, is attending school in Bowling Green; Grace E., born October 22, 1879, and Royal J., born June 20, 1885, also in school; and True E., born January 30, 1888.

Mr. Miller owns a good farm of eighty acres which is in the oil belt, and has some wells upon it; he is now living retired from active business, but takes an interest in the growth and welfare of his town and county, and is always ready to do his share to assist in public enterprises. With his estimable wife he is a member of the Disciples Church, to which Mrs. Miller has belonged since thirteen years of age. He was at one time a Republican, but of late years has affiliated with the Prohibition party, and uses his influence in the promotion of temperance principles. He has many warm friends in Bowling Green and vicinity. Mrs. Miller is a daughter of Zacheus and Lucy Ann (Martin) Aller, both of whom were born near Syracuse, N. Y., of which place their parents were early settlers, and where they were married. In 1861 they removed to Wood county, settling in Liberty township, where the father died in 1863, when fifty-one years of age. The mother subsequently married Daniel Mercer (whose sketch will be found on another page of this work), and is residing in Bowling Green; Daniel Mercer died September 23, 1896, leaving a widow and seventeen children.

JOHN McLAIN, a prominent citizen of Grand Rapids township, the owner of a fine farm, and a leader in local affairs, was born in Holmes county, Ohio, March 30, 1833. He is of Scotch descent, his grandparents, Sarah and John McLain, having emigrated to America about the end of the last century, and located upon a farm in Mifflin county, Penn., where their son Robert, our subject's father, was born October 12, 1802. During the boyhood of Robert McLain, the family moved to Jefferson county, Ohio, where his father engaged in salt manufacturing and the distilling of spirits.

Robert M. McLain was married, in Jefferson county, to Miss Rachel B. Barton, a lady of German and Irish parentage, and a native of Mifflin county, Penn. After their marriage they moved to Holmes county, and lived there about thirty years; then, in 1852, they moved to Wood county, and bought, first, 160 acres of land in what is now Grand Rapids township, where they spent the remainder of their lives, the father dying in 1880, the mother preceding him to the grave by two years. They held a prominent place among the early settlers of their vicinity, their sterling qualities of mind and heart winning the regard for them of all who knew them. Twelve children were born of their union, of whom the last two died in infancy. The others were: Elizabeth, now the widow of David Hannah, of Henry county, Ohio; Sarah, who married James Vorhes, both now deceased; Samuel, who was a soldier in the Civil war, and died while in prison at Salisbury; John, our subject; William, a member of the police force at Toledo; Nancy, who died in girlhood; Martha, wife of Emanuel Guyer, a farmer of Weston township; Thomas, deceased at the age of four years; Nancy Jane, the wife of S. Burwell; and Mary J., who died at the age of four years.

John McLain, whose name opens this sketch, received his early education at his native place, the school house of his district being a log cabin, with greased paper in the windows as a substitute for glass. He worked upon his father's farm until he was twenty-five years old, when he bought sixty acres of land near Grand Rapids, which he cleared and improved, and to which he has since added until he now owns 125 acres, all under cultivation, and some valuable town property. He no longer shares in the active work, delegating that to other hands; but he still superintends the estate, residing, however, in the town of Grand Rapids. He is a veteran of the Civil war, having enlisted at Perrysburg, August 8, 1862, in Company D, 111th O. V. I., under Col. Bond and Capt. J. E. McGowan, and served throughout the struggle. His regiment was assigned to the 23d Corps, army of the Ohio, and participated in over thirty important engagements, including those of Knoxville, Atlanta (entire campaign), Nashville and Franklin. Mr. McLain was fortunate in escaping the bullets of the enemy, but received a serious injury from falling into a washout. He was discharged at Cleveland, June 29, 1865, and soon afterward engaged in the hardware business in Toledo, which he carried on for five years, when he returned to his Wood county farm. He was married October 1, 1858, to Miss Eliza J. Brown, a daughter of Alexander Brown, a leading citizen of Weston township. Two children came of this marriage: Lillie A., born August 14, 1859, died September 21, 1875; and Edward, born August 25, 1868, now a promising young agriculturist of Henry county, Ohio. The mother of these died of heart disease, January 25, 1884, and our subject afterward wedded Miss Angeline Hiner, daughter of Henry Hiner, a prominent farmer of Wayne county, Ohio. They have no children.

Mrs. McLain is an able and generous worker in various lines of philanthropic effort, and a leading member of the Home Missionary Society and the Aid Society of the M. E. Church, in which denomination our subject is also an active worker, having been a trustee for fifteen years, also holding the offices of steward, class leader and Sunday-school superintendent. His good judgment, enterprising spirit and fine executive ability have often been turned to the service of the community at large, and he is a favorite candidate of the Republican party in his locality, having served as supervisor fifteen years, school director fifteen years, and assessor two years; in 1890 he was census enumerator, and he is now serving his second term as township trustee. During the winter of 1875-76 he was in the United States mail service between Sandusky and Chicago. Socially, he is a member of the G. A. R., Post No. 24, at Grand Rapids, Ohio, which he organized, and he has been commander (with the exception of a few years) since its organization, active and earnest in the work of caring for and assisting his needy soldier comrades.

HENRY A. ROBERTSON is a representative of one of the honored pioneer families of Wood county. His father, Amelius Robertson, was born in Edinburgh, Scotland, in 1822, and with his parents came to this country during his childhood. The family was one of the first to settle on Hull Prairie, and there the father of our subject secured eighty acres of land, which he transformed into a highly cultivated farm. He soon became recognized as one of the leading and influential citizens of the community, and for sixteen years served as a justice of the peace. He was united in marriage with Margaret W. Frazer, who was born in Glasgow, Scotland, in 1827. Their union was blessed with eight children: Henry A.; Dr. James F., who was born May 22, 1855, and is a practicing physician in Kansas; John A., who was born November 27, 1858, is operating the old homestead; George, born August 23, 1861; Mary A., born September 2, 1863, wife of O. M. Ulrich, of Dayton, Ohio;

Fray A. D., born September 21, 1865; Margaret E. R., who was born April 3, 1869, and died April 24, 1870; Marjory F., born September 16, 1872, now keeping house for her brother. The father of this family died July 7, 1888, and the mother passed away September 24, 1894.

Our subject began his education in the log school house near his home, and there became familiar with the rudiments of knowledge; but subsequently he pursued a course of study in the State University at Columbus, Ohio, becoming a civil engineer. Since that time he has followed his chosen profession to a greater or less extent. He is now residing on the old homestead, and is extensively engaged in the raising of fine poultry.

Mr. Robertson gives his political support to the Republican party, but has never been an office seeker. He has, however, served for one term as road supervisor. In manner he is quiet and unassuming, and his genuine worth, his genial and affable manner and his sterling qualities have won him the friendship and regard of many.

ALBERT G. HENRY, M. D., a prominent and enterprising physician of North Baltimore, is a native of Hancock county, Ohio, born November 5, 1849. His paternal grandfather, John Henry, was a native of Pennsylvania, and died in Hancock county. The grandmother died in Findlay at the advanced age of ninety-three years.

James L. Henry, father of our subject, was born June 9, 1821, in Perry county, Penn. Coming to Hancock county, Ohio, he bought a farm there, and later served as superintendent of the Hancock County Infirmary; was also elected sheriff of the county. He married Miss Frances Dodge, who died in Hancock county, in 1861; her husband followed her to the home beyond April 1, 1884. Their children were as follows: Albert G., subject of this sketch; Edward; J. C.; Araminta, who married G. Chase, of Findlay; Sophrona, the wife of Alonzo Baker; Lizzie D., who married Charles Pendleton, of Findlay. Mr. Henry married a second time, and by that union had one son, Claude.

Dr. Henry was reared in Hancock county, and was graduated from the Ada Normal School in 1870. He began teaching when only sixteen years old, going to school in his leisure moments, and reading medicine. His preceptors were F. J. Baldwin and S. S. Yoder, M. D., the latter of whom was also a member of Congress. Dr. Henry was graduated from the Medical Department of the University of Michigan in 1873, and commenced to practice medicine in North Baltimore on June 23, of the same year. In 1861 he completed a post-graduate course in Columbus Medical College, Columbus, Ohio. When the town began to develop Dr. Henry became known as one of its leading spirits and active and enterprising citizens, and gave almost every enterprise the benefit of his assistance, among which were the glass companies, town water works, electric light plants, etc. He built the first drug store, and built and owns the Henry Opera House Block, one of the finest structures in the county. He also instituted and backed a steam laundry company. In 1894 his opera house was destroyed by fire, causing a loss of $25,000; however, he promptly rebuilt it. It is 45 by 153 feet, with a seating capacity of 1,000. Dr. Henry is also owner and manager of the North Baltimore Electric Light & Power Company, which is valued at $50,000. He is the owner of eighty acres of land near North Baltimore, on which are ten oil wells, and thus it will be seen that Dr. Henry is a large property owner. He is a prominent member of society, has a large practice, and his genial nature has won for him many friends. He is surgeon for the C. H. & D. R. R., and the B. & O. R. R.; is a member of the Baltimore & Ohio Railway Surgeons Association, of the Northwestern Ohio Medical Society, of the State Medical Society, and also of the American Medical Association. Politically he supports the Democratic party.

A. J. Henry M.D.

In 1874 our subject was married to Miss Emma F. Eaton, who was born in Hancock county, October 31, 1851. They have had two children, Carl and Cleah, the latter of whom was taken away March 7, 1896, at the early age of eighteen years; she was an accomplished musician, a devoted daughter and a lover of home, and the void in the family circle can only be realized and understood by those who have passed through similar trials.

JOHN RUSSELL, a wealthy, retired agriculturist residing in Bowling Green, is a native of this county, born in Center township, March 19, 1838.

His father, Joseph Russell, was born in Mahoning county, Ohio, where his parents, who came from Pennsylvania, were among the earliest settlers. He married Miss Eliza Dupes, and afterward moved to Wood county, and took up 600 acres of land, a part of which is now in the possession of our subject, by purchase. He returned with the family to his old home several times, and engaged in farming there, but finally settled down in Wood county to stay, and died there in 1865, at the age of seventy-two. His wife departed this life January 9, 1889, aged seventy-seven years. They were true pioneers, patriotic, energetic and courageous. Three daughters and five sons were born to them, and of the latter, five did gallant service in the Union army during the Civil war, and passed through many engagements without receiving any serious wounds. Our subject was the fourth child in this family. The others are: Jane, who married W. Underwood; James; Sarah (deceased), who married Joseph Anderson; Joseph; Susan, the widow of George Garner; Britton, and Charles, all residents of the county.

Mr. Russell made the most of the educational opportunities afforded by the district schools near the old homestead when he was a boy, and later engaged in farming as an occupation. In 1862 he volunteered in Company K, 21st O. V. I., and served under Sherman, taking part in all the principal battles of the army of the West. He was married, February 16, 1864, while at home on a furlough, to Miss Amanda Rogers, who was born in Seneca county, Ohio, August 11, 1839. After being mustered out, July 30, 1865, he returned to the old farm in Center township, where he lived twenty-seven years. He still owns 100 acres there, and holds the original papers which passed the title from the government to his father. A few years ago he bought a fine property at the county-seat, where he and his wife now reside. He has one daughter, Clara E., born June 16, 1867, who was married September 13, 1887, to E. L. Crum, of Wood county; they have two children, Ruth and John. Mr. Russell is a Republican in politics, and a charter member of Wiley Post, G. A. R. He and his wife are among the leading members of the M. E. Church, and active helpers in every worthy cause.

JAMES M. BROWN, one of the most prominent citizens of Perrysburg township, residing near Dowling, was born in Bellefontaine, Logan Co., Ohio, April 27, 1830. His parents, Harlin S. and Mary A. (Colvin) Brown, were natives of Kentucky, but were married in Logan county, in October, 1829, and lived there for some years, the father following the trade of shoemaker. Eleven children were born to them: Elizabeth, deceased; John C., now a resident of Monticello, Ind.; Joseph H., deceased; Rosana and Mahlon S., deceased; Annie E., now the wife of James H. Linton, of Botkins, Ohio; James M., our subject; Thomas A. and Margaret J., deceased; Wilson W., of Dowling, Ohio; and Charles L., residing in Roscommon, Michigan.

Squire Brown, as his friends call him (and his friends are found wherever he is known), received his early education in the schools of Newtown, Ind., where his parents moved when he was but four years old. He was bound out to work for his board and clothes when a boy, and at nineteen found employment on the Erie canal. He continued in this occupation until he was married to Miss Euritta J. Egbert, who was born in Findlay, Ohio, October 20, 1834. He then sought a better means of making a livelihood, and in 1870 moved to this county and bought forty acres of land in Perrysburg township, which he has since carefully improved. He is now one of the opulent farmers of the vicinity, and holds an important place in the community, his natural ability and integrity of character having gained him the entire confidence of all who know him. He was first elected justice of the peace in 1877, and has now held the office for more than eighteen consecutive years. He has been a member of the school board for the same length of time, and for six years has been a notary public. Where he is well known he receives votes irrespective of party lines, but, being a Democrat, the large Republican plurality in this county has prevented him from entering county office, although the members of his party have often prevailed upon him to lead the "forlorn hope" for the sake of their cause. He has displayed the spirit of the true soldier on many occasions, and in 1861 was among the first to respond to the call of his country, enlisting in Company H, 57th O. V. I., and serving until December, 1863. There were six of the Brown boys, who enlisted in the war of the Rebellion in 1861, thus furnishing Uncle Sam with at least eighteen years of service. He is a member of the I. O. O. F., Fort Meigs Lodge No. 774, of the F. & A. M., Phoenix Lodge No. 123, and of Robert Stewart Post No. 690, G. A. R. He is the present postmaster at Dowling.

JOSEPH REDFEARN. Like a giant oak in a forest of weather-beaten comrades, the subject of this sketch stands prominent among those noble pioneers whose best energies have been spent in bringing Wood county forward to her present high position in the magnificent galaxy of Ohio's counties.

He was born February 14, 1812, in Muker, Yorkshire, England. His father, Francis Redfearn, a farmer and miner there, married Ruth Milner, and reared a family of six children. In 1830 they came to the United States on the "Caledonia," landing at Philadelphia after a voyage of seven weeks and four days. He first located at Pottsville, Penn., where he mined coal for some time, and on coming to Ohio spent two years in Wayne county, and then settled in Washington township, Hancock county, in the woods. To reach their new home they had to cut a road for their wagon for most of the way from Fostoria (then Rome and Risdon), and they crossed the Sandusky river by floating their wagon and making their cattle swim the stream. In later years our subject's father bought a large tract of land in Jo Davies county, Ill., near Apple River, where he died January 13, 1858, his wife having passed to her final rest November 9 of the previous year. Of their children the eldest, Peter, died at Apple River at the age of fifty years from injuries received in a runaway. Francis died at Warren, Ill., at seventy-eight years of age. Joseph is our subject. Ruth was married in the fall of 1830 to Charles Gouldborough, of Minneapolis, Minn., with whom she has now passed over sixty-five years of married life. Elizabeth is the widow of Robert Levitt, of Arlington, S. D. Margaret married John Eaton, and died at Apple River at the age of sixty.

Joseph Redfearn had little opportunity for education, but he was ambitious, and, while working on the farm during the day, he attended night school in England—paying two cents a night. He was eighteen years old when the family came to America, and he quickly found employment as a farm hand, being unusually strong and active. He could mow two acres of grass in a day with a scythe, and has done many a large day's work at threshing with a flail, being paid fifty cents per day, and even that was not always in cash. He was married January 8, 1835, to Miss Ann Phillips, a native of Pennsylvania, born July 19, 1816, the daughter of Benjamin Phillips, an early settler of Washington township, Hancock county. He and his wife began housekeeping on fifty acres of land, a gift from his father, and he entered forty acres more, all "in the woods." He traded this soon after to his brother, Francis, for a tract of eighty acres in Bloom township, Wood county, to which he removed December 7, 1837, their first home being a comfortable log house. Tiffin was the nearest point where a good gristmill could be found, though there were several horse mills in the neighborhood.

Twelve children were born to our subject and his wife, all of whom lived to mature age: Henry and Francis are farmers in Nemaha county, Neb.; Peter died at McComb in 1892; Harrison, a farmer of Perry township, died in 1872; Matilda A. married Dr. E. J. Reed, of Leipsic; Joseph

P. is a farmer in Cass township, Hancock county; James R. is a prominent merchant of Bloomdale; John O. is a prosperous farmer in Nemaha county, Neb., and a leading citizen of his neighborhood; Rhoda S. married Jerry Loman, and died December 1, 1894; Margaret R. is the wife of R. B. Drake, an insurance agent of Tiffin; Charles is a farmer in Perry township, and Edward T. is a farmer in Bloom township. On February 19, 1864, Mr. Redfearn's wife died, and she was buried in Fostoria cemetery. She was a woman of rare qualities of mind and heart, a devout Christian and a member of the M. E. Church, and was deeply and sincerely mourned. Mr. Redfearn never married again. Their children have taken honorable positions in life, and the family hold a prominent place in the history of this county. All are abstainers from liquors and tobacco, and their upright lives reflect honor upon the father who, by precept and example, has trained them for useful citizenship. Four sons served in the Civil war, a remarkable record. Henry was a member of a Nebraska cavalry regiment; Peter enlisted in Wood county in the one-hundred-days' service; William H. served in the famous 49th O. V. I., the "Black Swamp Jayhawkers," and Joseph P. was a member of the 111th O. V. I.

Mr. Redfearn has owned large tracts of land at different times, and had held the title to all the land on the west side of Main street in Bloomdale, but has sold it for building purposes. He has given his children a good start in life, and still owns 325 acres of land in Bloom and Cass townships. Despite his advanced age he is in good health, aside from being a sufferer from rheumatism, and his mental faculties are clear, his native shrewdness and caution being in no way lessened. In politics he has been identified with the Republican party from its beginning, but previously he was a Whig. He served as constable in his younger days, but has never joined in the struggle for political honors. He has, however, been a leading promoter of different measures for the public welfare, and gave liberally toward the building of the first court house at Bowling Green, Ohio. For over fifty years he has been a member of the M. E. Church, in which he has held every office except that of preacher, and he was a teacher and superintendent of the Sunday-school for many years.

JOHN W. MILLER. In the latter part of the eighteenth century Christopher Miller, a native of Germany, sailed with his wife and two children for America. After a long and tedious voyage of nine months they arrived at New York. Delay after delay had occurred, and crew and passengers were on the verge of starvation. At length the vessel reached New York harbor, and Mr. Miller, with his family, proceeded to Allegany county, Md., where he spent his remaining days. Two of his sons were soldiers of the war of 1812. The father of our subject, Andrew Miller, was born in Allegany county, on December 1, 1805. He was a man of limited education, and was reared on a farm, while throughout his business career he carried on agricultural pursuits. He married Miss Charlotte Duckworth, also a native of Allegany county, born April 8, 1812. In 1865 the father removed with his family to Delaware county, Ohio, locating on a farm of 105 acres in Trenton township, where he spent his remaining days. His death occurred April 30, 1894, and his wife passed away, May 1, 1887.

Mr. and Mrs. Miller were the parents of twelve children, namely: Louise, who became the wife of Joseph Deremer, and after his death married Monroe Cockrell, her death occurring in Delaware county; Uriah, who died in Delaware county, at the age of forty-five; Harriet Ann, wife of Henry Dash, of Maryland; Almira, wife of James Loor, of Delaware county; Henry H., who is carrying on agricultural pursuits in Delaware county; Lloyd W., a farmer of Union county, Ohio; Sarah, who became the wife of Emery Leak, and died in Delaware county; Altha, wife of Jefferson Miles, of Delaware county; Mary, who is living in the same county; John W., of this review; Zeltha wife of Franklin DeWolf, of Delaware county; and Rebecca, who died at the age of three years.

Our subject was a child of twelve years when he accompanied his parents to Delaware county. He began his education in an old log school house in his native county, and completed it in the district schools of this State. During vacations and after school hours he aided in the cultivation and improvement of the farm, and continued to give his father the benefit of his services until his marriage.

On February 16, 1881, Mr. Miller was joined in wedlock with Miss Tina Tripier, the wedding ceremony being performed in Trenton township, Delaware county. The lady was born in Licking county, Ohio, October 13, 1857, and is a daughter of Joseph and Sarah (Payne) Tripier. Mr. and Mrs. Miller came to Wood county, and the former purchased forty acres of land in Section 25, Jackson township, continuing its cultivation and improvement for five years, when he sold and purchased his present farm comprising eighty acres. He has made this one of the valuable and desirable properties in Wood county, has erected a pleasant and substantial residence, built barns and outbuildings, and fenced, tiled and ditched the entire place. The neat and thrifty appearance of the farm indicates his careful supervision, and the place is a monument to his thrift and enterprise. Mr. and Mrs. Miller have had two children: Sperna, born July 12, 1883; and Blynn T., born May 15, 1895, died August 30, 1895.

In his political views Mr. Miller is a stalwart Democrat, unswerving in his support of the principles of the party. He has been honored with several local offices, having served as school director, road supervisor and is now trustee. His life has been an honorable and upright one, and he has the high regard of all who know him. As a citizen he is true to every duty, and gives a hearty support to all interests which he believes will benefit the community. In personal appearance he is tall and finely proportioned, and he is one of the most popular citizens of Wood county.

FLOYD W. HEALD, a prominent resident of Bowling Green, and the deputy collector of the 10th District, was born in Crawford county, Penn., December 3, 1861. Genial, popular, possessed of fine mental gifts, a sound practical education, a character which inspires confidence, a magnificent physique, he is well fitted to fill any office of public trust to which he may aspire.

Until the age of fifteen, his life was spent upon a farm, assisting his father in the work, and attending the district school. In 1876 his father bought a sawmill, where Mr. Heald was employed for some time. He then worked a while in the oil fields; but at eighteen, entered the State Normal school at Edinboro, Penn., and studied for two terms. For two years following, he was baggage master at Chautauqua, N. Y., during the summer season, and in 1882, he came to Jerry City, and entered the employ of J. D. Wilsey & Sons, as boat-oar finisher in their extensive factory. He remained with them six years, finding—or making—time, in the intervals of labor, to continue his studies in the Normal school at Fostoria, and he now holds a diploma from the business course of that institution, having passed the examination with a grade of 99 per cent.

In 1884, he was elected mayor of Jerry City, by a large majority, on the Democratic ticket, and proved an efficient and popular officer. On leaving the firm of Wilsey & Sons, Mr. Heald formed a partnership with Henry Meyers in the lumber business, buying for Eastern markets; but this soon ceased to be profitable, and he went to work for the Ohio Oil Co., first as pumper and then as tool dresser, and while thus engaged he was appointed deputy sheriff of Wood county by William B. Bryant. The duties of this office were performed with his accustomed ability and energy, and brought him into favorable notice throughout the county, and in 1895 he was appointed to his present position. He is a member of the F. & A. M., the I. O. O. F., and the K. of P.

GEORGE BRIM. Ohio, as well as her sister States, has her quota of citizens of foreign birth, who, coming to this favored land in pursuit of fortune, in addition to the advantages derived from its free institutions, have not only reaped the reward of their labors in the shape of material prosperity, but have added to the resources of their communities, and to the progress and betterment of their people. Among those who claim "Merrie Old England" as the land of their nativity may be found the subject of this sketch, and the story of his life, briefly given here, may form an incentive to some other young man whose start in life may be made under no more favorable auspices than was his.

George Brim was born April 25, 1834, in beautiful Devonshire, England, the son of W. W. and Harriet (Ellis) Brim. His parents were natives of the same locality, the father born August 19, 1809, and the mother October 2, 1810. They came of poor people, and when quite young were both bound out to the same man. They grew up together, shared each other's joys and sorrows, worked together and played together, and their love for each other deepened as the boy and girl developed into youth and maiden, finally culminating in their marriage, which took place January 10, 1834. For some time after this event Mr. Brim worked on a farm at $2.20 a week, and when they finally decided to come to America, in 1855, the only capital they possessed on reaching Wood county, Ohio, was one sovereign. They had, however, no end of courage and hopefulness, and with their only child, George, began their life in the new country with brave hearts and a determination to succeed.

From the outset the son cast in his lot with his father, and together the two worked and managed their affairs, the younger man contributing in no small degree, by his business ability and industry, to their success in the New World. They first bought eighty acres of land in Plain township, Wood county, and added to it as their means increased until at one time they owned 360 acres; all of this was prairie land, which they converted into farms, and cultivated. They were prosperous from the beginning, and at his death, which took place April 5, 1885, the father was a wealthy man. The mother is now making her home with her son George.

Amelia Brinn

Geo Brinn

The subject of this sketch was married July 4, 1865, to Miss Amelia Austin, who was born in Somersetshire, England, February 10, 1848. Her parents were James and Mary (Keats) Austin, the former of whom, born in England in 1823, died in Wood county in 1865; the latter also died in Wood county. Mr. and Mrs. Brim have had a family of four children: (1) James E., born April 16, 1866, married Lena Knauss, and lives in Bowling Green; they have three children—Walter, Ethel and Mabel. (2) Walter, born October 16, 1867, was educated at the Ada Normal School, and resides at home; he was married, in December, 1895, to Cora Goldsmith. (3) Samuel, born March 25, 1870, died January 3, 1871. (4) George, born November 12, 1876, is at home.

Mr. Brim is recognized as a leading man, and one of the best citizens of Wood county. He is unassuming in his manners, attends strictly to his business and has accumulated a fine property. In politics he is a Republican; socially he belongs to Centennial Lodge No 626, I. O. O. F., of Bowling Green.

MICHAEL AMOS, JR. This prosperous and intelligent farmer living in Section 3, Portage township, has spent most of his life in Wood county. His father, who also bears the name of Michael, is one of the oldest living pioneers. His birth occurred in Bavaria, Germany, November 28, 1818, and in October, 1837, he was brought to the United States by his parents, Michael and Caroline (Sondheimer) Amos. They took passage on the "Wild Lion" at Havre, France, and after a long and tedious voyage of thirty-six days landed safely at New York. At New Lisbon, Ohio, they remained until January, 1838, when the grandfather hired a team and brought his family to Section 1, Portage township, Wood county, where he had purchased eighty acres of partially improved land. There his death occurred September 29, 1838, from typhoid fever and nostalgia, and he was laid to rest on the farm, but his body was afterward interred in Portage cemetery.

The father of our subject being the eldest son, the care of the family fell upon him, and, in order to better perform this duty, he worked for others as a farm hand. His widowed mother lived with him a great portion of the time, but died at the home of her son Frederick, in Portage township. In 1844, Mr. Amos married Theresa Brackley, a native of Lancaster, Ohio, and a daughter of Michael Brackley, a carpenter by trade. Eight children came to bless their union: Michael, of this review; Philip, a farmer of Portage township; Catherine, who became the wife of Ezra Heminger, and died in Center township; John, who died in the same township, and left a family; Anthony, a farmer of Center township; William, a butcher of the village of Portage; Charles, a farmer of Portage township; and Mary, deceased wife of Monroe Helm, of Portage. The father bought the interests of the other heirs in the old homestead, and now has a good farm of 132 acres, while he has given each of his children forty acres or its equivalent. He and his estimable wife are two of the few old pioneers left in Portage township, are highly respected people, and members of the Lutheran Church. Although they have now reached a ripe old age, and are bent by years of toil, they are yet comparatively active. The entire life of Mr. Amos has been passed in usefulness and hard labor. He never cared for political preferment, but has served as school director and supervisor, and is a supporter of the Democratic party.

On Section 1, Portage township, October 4, 1848, Michael Amos, Jr., first opened his eyes to the light of day. He attended school a few months each winter in District No. 1, thus acquiring a fair education, and at the age of twenty left home, going to Nebraska, where he remained a month. For a short time he was then employed on a farm in Jefferson county, Iowa, after which he went to Pike county, Ill., and later to southeastern Missouri, where he engaged in hunting and trapping. With the money thus earned he returned to Pike county, Ill., where he was employed by James Wallace to take rafts down the river to St. Louis, Mo., which proved quite profitable, our subject receiving $2 per day and board. He worked in Illinois for some time and helped to cut 135 acres of wheat, which was bound by hand, after which he came back to Wood county. In the fall, however, he went to Missouri, where he again engaged in hunting and trapping, spent the following summer in a fishery in Illinois, and the next winter was also passed in Missouri. On returning to Wood county, he engaged in ditching and threshing for several years.

On December 21, 1876, in Portage township, this county, Mr. Amos was united in marriage with Miss Emma Wilcox, a native of Sandusky county, Ohio, and a daughter of Sterling Wilcox. Three children have been born to them: Edward B., who is attending school in Bowling Green, Ohio; and Curtis and "Cap", at home. Soon after his marriage our subject rented a farm of forty acres in Center township, and his first purchase was ninety-three acres in Section 3, Portage township, mostly unimproved, with a log house standing upon it. For three years he made that place his home, and on selling out removed to his present farm of eighty acres in Section 2, in April, 1881. He is a wide-awake, progressive citizen, and has made his place one of the best farms in Portage township. Besides general farming, he has also dealt in stock for several years, making many friends and acquaintances while engaged in this business. He is one of the leading workers in the Republican party in the community, and in 1886 was elected infirmary director, taking the office January 1, 1887, in which he served very acceptably for six years. Both himself and wife are esteemed members of the United Brethren Church.

ISAAC G. RIDEOUT, a reliable and progressive agriculturist of Ross township, was born near Massillon, Stark Co., Ohio, May 1, 1839, and is a son of Isaac and Hannah (Galpin) Rideout, both natives of Dorsetshire, England, the former born December 24, 1793, and the latter December 3, 1798. On emigrating to the New World, in 1830, they located at Massillon, Ohio, where the father worked in the Moore & Hart foundry for a few years, but, in 1844, became a resident of Wood county, purchasing forty-five acres of the farm on which our subject now lives. Five of their ten children were born in England, and in order of birth they are as follows: James, deceased; Elizabeth, widow of T. Whitson, and a resident of Iowa; Thomas, of Lucas county, Ohio; Jane, wife of John Kinney, of Lime City, Ohio; and William, deceased. The births of the others occurred in Stark county, Ohio—Anna, deceased; Mary Ann, wife of James Craine, of Lucas county; Margaret, the deceased wife of a Mr. Vickers; Isaac G., and Mrs. Lavina McDougall.

Our subject obtained his education in the first log school house erected in Ross township, but his advantages along that line were limited. He remained at home until twenty-two years of age, when, October 22, 1861, at Toledo, Ohio, he enlisted in the Union army, as a member of Company B, 67th O. V. I., under Capt. Ford, and Col. A. C. Voris, of Akron, Ohio, and after serving his entire term, at Hilton Head, S. C., he veteranized. He had been discharged, January 31, 1864, and after a thirty-days' furlough rejoined his regiment, and was finally discharged at Richmond, Va., September 1, 1865, after almost four years of faithful and arduous service on Southern battle fields. Returning home, Mr. Rideout has since devoted his attention to general farming, but expects soon to go into fruit raising. He has tiled and drained his land and placed it under a high state of cultivation, and has erected three good dwellings, besides barns and other outbuildings, which stand as monuments to his thrift and industry.

On Christmas Day, of 1867, was celebrated the marriage of Mr. Rideout and Miss Louisa T. Coy, and to them nine children were born—Darwin, born August 28, 1868, married Carrie Smith, daughter of W. J. Smith, and they have two children, Frank and Ervin; William, born April 6, 1870, married Alberta Royce, daughter of Edward Royce, by whom he has one child, Addie Elizabeth; Ervin, was born October 9, 1872; Margaret, born December 31, 1873, is the wife of Charles Crane, and they have twin sons, Isaac R. and Thomas C.; Charles, born December 17, 1875; Olive, born June 15, 1879; Anna, born March 2, 1882; Isaac, born July 4, 1890, died on August 4, following; and Richard, born March 24, 1894.

Mr. Rideout affiliates with Ford Post, No. 14, G. A. R., of East Toledo, and with John W. Fuller Command, No. 49, U. V. U. He served as sergeant in his company, and now has a medal presented to him by Major-Gen. Q. A. Gilmore, commanding the Department of the South, for gallant and meritorious conduct on the field of battle. Since casting his first vote he has been an ardent Republican in politics, as was also his father, and has served acceptably as township treasurer for two terms, and was school director for a number of years. In all the relations of life he is honorable and upright, and as faithful to his country in days of peace, as when following the old flag in defense of the Union.

J. W. LONG, an ex-soldier and highly-respected citizen of Bloom township, is descended from that race known as Scotch-Irish, which has given to America many of her best citizens. His ancestors were natives of the North of Ireland, whence his grandfather, George Long, emigrated to the United States in 1817, locating in Carroll county, Ohio, where he was married, and became the father of seven children: George, William, John, Catherine, Ellen, Susan and Alexander.

The second in order of birth in that family,

William Long, was the father of our subject. In 1841 he was united in marriage with Sarah Metsker, a native of Westmoreland county, Penn., and to them were born six children: Mary Jane, who died in infancy; Eliza E., who became the wife of James Byall, and died in September, 1868; J. W., subject of this review; Catherine and William H., both living in Missouri; and Violet A., who died in that State in 1871. The father was a natural mechanical genius, and worked at various trades, principally carpentering and wagon making. For seven years after his marriage he continued to reside in Carroll county, and then removed to Hancock county, Ohio, near the present city of North Baltimore, where he followed his chosen occupation for the remainder of his life. His tragic death, which occurred in 1861, has few parallels in western Ohio. While engaged in remodeling the largest gristmill in Hancock county, at Gilboa, he became entangled in a belt connected with a rapidly revolving shaft, making 105 revolutions a minute, and was instantly conveyed to the shaft and horribly mangled, almost every bone in his body being broken. His untimely death left his widow and family in straitened circumstances, and our subject, then a boy of but fourteen years, being the eldest son, suddenly had to assume the responsibilities of father and provider.

Mr. Long was born in Carroll county, in 1846, and was but a child of three years when his parents removed to Hancock county. As the portion of the county in which they located was quite backward, he was reared midst the trials and vicissitudes of pioneer life, and, being the eldest son of parents whose means were limited, his opportunities in many ways, including those for an education, were very meager. He first attended the Thicket school, near Van Buren, Hancock county, his teacher being Miss Angeline Warner. The numerous removals of his parents served to further handicap him in his efforts to secure his education, which was concluded at Findlay, Ohio, at the early age of fifteen years. He has seen the vast improvement in the schools of the present over those of his youth, which he heartily favors and fully endorses. While the opportunities were not his, the great school of experience has impressed him with the necessity of education.

As previously stated, Mr. Long was at a youthful age compelled to perform the duties that his father's death thrust upon him, and he remained at home, administering to the wants and cares of the fatherless family, until his enlistment, on August 15, 1862, in the 111th O. V. I.

It was necessary at this time for him to represent himself as being eighteen years of age, so eager was he to defend the flag which had been fired upon at Fort Sumter. His career as a soldier was interrupted by sickness, as soon after his enlistment he was seized with the measles and typhoid fever. He suffered the complete temporary loss of his eyesight, and was discharged in March, 1863, on a surgeon's certificate of disability. Our subject returned home, leaving the scenes of carnage for those of a quiet rural life, in Hancock county, a complete physical wreck. Much time and money were spent in his efforts to secure good eyesight, which came to him after a great deal of suffering; but his shattered physical condition could not be restored to its youthful vigor and vitality. He worked at whatever employment he could secure, his every spare penny going toward the support of his mother and younger brothers and sisters.

On August 16, 1868, was celebrated the marriage of Mr. Long and Miss Susanna Wineland, a native of Westmoreland county, Penn., and six children came to bless their union: B. F., proprietor of a bicycle livery at North Baltimore, Ohio; William H., general agent for the Porter's cure of pain remedies; Martha F., now Mrs. Charles Brandeberry, of Bloom township; James E., of the same township; and D. W. and Lemuel L., both at home. After his marriage Mr. Long located near Portage, Wood county, where he resided only a short time, and in 1869 returned to Hancock county, buying a small farm, on which he resided until 1885, when he came to Bloom township, this county. He has forty acres of rich and fertile land in Section 33, and in 1895 completed his present commodious and substantial home. He now takes life easy, having all but retired from active farm work. Politically he is a silver Democrat, and while not an office-seeker, manifests keen interest in the success of his party. For many years he belonged to the Independent Order of Good Templars, and is now a prominent member of the Grand Army of the Republic. He and his wife are consistent and active members of the Methodist Episcopal Church at Bairdstown, Ohio, and are held in the highest esteem by all who know them.

H. L. HINKLEY, of Bowling Green, the able and popular young recorder of Wood county, was born in Milton Center, February 5, 1867.

His grandparents, Luther G. and Sally M. Hinkley, came from New York State and settled in Erie county, Ohio, where their son, D. S. Hinkley, our subject's father, was born August 27, 1838. He learned the wagon maker's trade in early life, and came to Milton Center, where he married Miss Mary J. Hill, a native of that place, born October 28, 1846. Of late years he and his wife have made their home in Prairie Depot, where he follows the carpenter's trade. They have seven children, of whom our subject is the eldest: Lottie is the wife of W. J. Graham, of Portage township; Joseph J. and Charles are in business at Prairie Depot; and D. S., William and Jessie are three at home.

Mr. Hinkley spent the first eight years of his life at his birthplace, and has since lived at Sandusky on the Bay Shore, for five years, and later at Prairie Depot. He supplemented his common-school education by a course in the business department of the Fostoria Normal School, from which he graduated in October, 1891. For ten years he was a successful teacher in this county, the last three being spent at Prairie Depot, where he was principal of the high school. He resigned in June, 1895, having been elected the previous November to the position which he now holds. He was installed in office September 2, 1895. Although he is one of the youngest workers in the Republican party in this locality, he has already given evidence of marked ability in public affairs, and his friends predict a bright future for him. He is a member of the I. O. O. F., and of the Good Templars Lodge. He was married June 15, 1893, to Miss Effie Mercer, who was born in Liberty township, December 25, 1871, and has one child, Harold Cecil.

CHESTER L. POWELL (deceased) was born in Fairfield county, Ohio, November 10, 1857, a son of George and Sarah Powell, and was reared near Bowling Green. He taught school for several years, and, later, for two years, kept a hardware store at Portage. This he sold, and then went to Fostoria, where for a time he and his brother, A. V. Powell, conducted a similar business. Afterward he went on the road for a hardware firm, but resigned and came to Weston, where, together with a Mr. Baldwin, he opened a clothing and furnishing-goods store, under the firm name of Baldwin & Powell. Soon afterward he bought Mr. Baldwin's interest, also the stock of shoes and the shoe-shop belonging to Mr. Ames, and he operated the store with marked success up to his death, which occurred July 6, 1893. He was admired for his business ability, and his good qualities as a citizen. In demeanor he was quiet, but firm in purpose, and seldom failed in anything he undertook. His death was greatly mourned by the community in which he resided. He was a prominent member of the I. O. O. F., having joined the order at Fostoria, whence he "took his card" to Weston; in religious faith he was a member of the United Brethren Church.

On October 7, 1886, Mr. Powell married Miss Elfa Pugh, who was born in Henry county, Ohio, November 15, 1859. John Pugh, her father, was born in the parish of Kerry, County of Montgomery, North Wales, on the 11th day of February, 1810, of English parents, and when twenty-one years old married and came to the United States, first locating in New York State, then in Perrysburg, Ohio, afterward in Henry county, finally, in 1877, settling in Weston, Wood county, where he died January 9, 1892. He followed the occupation of a farmer; was of the Episcopal faith; was a Whig before the war and a Republican afterward, and he voted for both the Harrisons (his first and last votes respectively). His home was the meeting place of many of the most prominent of the early pioneers of this section, and he was a great friend of the Indians. The adventures that have been rehearsed, and the stories that have been told by himself and others when gathered around the fire-side, if preserved, would have been worthy of being immortalized in romance and song; but unfortunately only a faint glimpse of the conditions of life, and the character of those sturdy pioneers, have been handed down to us. Although miles of swamp and woods separated neighbor from neighbor, a common cause and, we might say, a common misfortune united them in bonds of sympathy almost as strong as family ties.

John Pugh, for his second wife, married, in 1845, Clarissa B. Junkins, who was born January 3, 1820, in Preston county, Va. (now W. Va.). Her father having died in Fairview, Ohio, when she was two years old, her mother subsequently married John Rice, and in 1833 they came to Wood county; but during their first year's residence in the county, Mr. Rice died, leaving a widow with five children, viz.: Samuel, who died when about fifty-seven years old; Thomas, a farmer of Weston township; Julia Ann; Annabella; and Clarissa B., who now resides with her daughter, Mrs. Powell; she is the mother of five children: Ann M. (now Mrs. L. McKee), of Fostoria, Ohio; Luther S., of Weston; Mrs. William Martin, also of Weston; John A., who died at the age of twenty-five; and Mrs. Elfa Powell. Mrs. Pugh was among the earliest pioneers of Wood county, coming here when but thirteen years old, with the rest of the family. When they reached Beaver creek, their destination in Wood county, they stopped at the home of uncle McKee (who had preceded them), until they could build themselves a log house, after the fashion of the country in those early days (they were not so long in building a house as they are now-a-days). Mrs. Pugh's stepfather, John Rice, having died in the first year of their coming here, as related above, there was much responsibility left on the widowed mother with her five children; but being a woman of tact and foresight, she always provided years ahead for the family. So they suffered but little from the privations of early pioneer life among the Indians, who were numerous on Beaver creek at that time, and all became the owners of good homes in Wood county, except Annabella, who had died at the age of nineteen years. Grandmother Junkins-Rice's home was called "the poor house," because if there was an orphan child in the country she would bring it to her home and care for it until another home could be found for it. At one time she had no less than five infants on her hands to be cared for, and some remained with her until her death. Mrs. James Raymer, of Toledo, was one of grandmother Junkins-Rice's loves. After being left a widow with five children to raise in a new country, God gave her health and strength to help the helpless. Such was the kindheartedness and unselfishness of that noble pioneer grandmother and mother.

ELFA.

Mrs. L. Elfa (Pugh) Powell      C. L. Powell

Mrs. Chester L. Powell was educated in part at the schools of Weston, and in part at those of Fostoria. After her marriage she resided almost constantly with her parents, and cared for them with a tender hand, her aged mother, now living with her, being an object of deep solicitude. Her one great comfort is her flowers, of which she is a great lover, and which she gathers around her and enjoys. From earliest childhood Mrs. Powell has been the companion of her parents, and through them and their acquaintances learned of the habits of many of the pioneers, and has always felt a deep interest in them, although at a time when life was sweetest and separation hardest to bear, she has borne the death of her husband with a philosophic and Christian-like spirit. She has continued her husband's store, showing excellent capability, and, through the service of efficient employes under her personal supervision, it continues to be one of the flourishing business houses of Weston.

Prior to his death Mr. Powell had established a fruit farm within the corporation of Weston, and his widow also conducts this with marked success. It comprises some twenty-five acres, given to Mrs. Powell by her mother, Mrs. John Pugh, whereon are abundantly grown plums, peaches, strawberries, grapes, and all other small fruits. There are also a house and lot in Weston, and two other farms—one in Wood county, and one in Hancock county—which Mrs. Powell rents. She also owns the store building, 35 x 50 feet in dimensions, and which is recognized as the pioneer building of Weston. Notwithstanding her many business engagements, and the care of a home, Mrs. Powell yet finds time for the study of literature, and for years past she been one of the teachers in the Presbyterian Church Sabbath-school, having an interesting class of girls of which she is justly proud.

MALON K. MANLEY, a veteran of the Mexican war, and a retired merchant of Haskins, is a native of the Keystone State. He was born in Columbia county, Penn., March 28, 1825, a son of John Manley, who was born in 1799. The grandfather, John Manley, Sr., was a native of Switzerland, and took part in the revolution of 1776 to 1780. The father was educated in Pennsylvania, and followed the carpenter's and builder's trade. He married Sybilla Case, and their children were: Eli R., a carpenter, who resided in David City, Neb., and died November 30, 1896; Malon K.; William W., a merchant of Pennsylvania; Anna, deceased wife of Joseph Buck; Mary J., deceased wife of Samuel Culp. The father of this family died in New York, by drowning, and the mother afterward married Francis Burdanier, by whom she had seven children, the only survivor being George, of Pennsylvania. Her death occurred in the Keystone State, January 27, 1888, when she was aged eighty-eight years, and six months.

Our subject acquired his education in the common schools near his home, but his privileges in that direction were limited, for at an early age he was thrown upon his own resources. He learned the shoemaker's trade, which he followed for forty years. During the Mexican war, in 1846, he enlisted at Danville, Penn., in Company C, 2d Penn. V. I., and proceeded to Vera Cruz. He participated in the capture of that city, and in other service in that locality, and in July, 1848, returned to his home. He suffered intensely from the oppressive heat in the South. Again, during the Civil war, he manifested his loyalty to the government, enlisting on May 14, 1861. He formed a company at Danville, Penn., which was attached to the Sixth Regiment of Pennsylvania Reserves, and went to Camp Curtin, thence to Richmond, and participated in the battles of Bull Run, the Wilderness, Fredericksburg and others, serving in all for two years.

In 1868, Mr. Manley came to Wood county, and purchased a farm of seventy acres near Haskins, which he operated for five years, when he removed to the town and established a grocery and shoe store, which he conducted for eleven years. He was afterward engaged in business in Toledo for a time as a dealer in shoes, but is now living retired in Haskins, enjoying a rest which he has truly earned and richly deserves. He has aided greatly in the upbuilding of this community, and has been an important factor in its progress and development.

On October 12, 1848, Mr. Manley wedded Mary A. Mellon, who was born in Danville, Penn., June 21, 1828, a daughter of Gideon and Sarah Mellon, the father a boot and shoe dealer, of Danville. Five children were born to them—John, born July 29, 1849; Sarah M., September 26, 1853, now the wife of Philmore Gustin, a blacksmith; Clarence, born April 23, 1865, died April 20, 1889; Mary B., who died at the age of five years; and Anna B., who became the wife of A. L. Herritt, an oil operator, and died July 22, 1895. Mary B. and Anna B. were twins, born July 23, 1869.

Mr. Manley and wife have been faithful members of the Baptist Church for fifty-three years, and he has served as trustee, deacon, treasurer and secretary of the Church. In politics he is a Democrat, and for one term was school director, while in 1880 he acted as census enumerator, being appointed by the general government, has served as assessor and tax-collector several years. Socially, he is connected with the Odd Fellows society, the Masonic fraternity, and Encampment of Patriarchs. His honorable, upright life, his kindly manner, and his affable and social disposition have won him a host of warm friends.

J. F. LONG, a leading merchant and citizen of Bowling Green, and senior partner in the dry-goods firm of Long & Rutherford, was born in Seneca county, Ohio, February 8, 1837, and is a son of the Rev. John and Lydia (Fry) Long.

Daniel Long, the paternal grandfather of our subject, was born in Pennsylvania, in 1779, of Dutch descent. He was there married to Margaret Brill, who was born in the same State in 1783, and in 1834 removed with his family to Seneca county, Ohio, where, on May 22, of that year, he entered the northwest quarter of Section 1, in Jackson township. For forty years he worked at his trade as a blacksmith, and he was a soldier in the war of 1812. His death took place in 1871 at the good old age of ninety-two, his wife having passed away in 1853. This estimable couple were the parents of twelve children, as follows: Daniel is living in Stark county, and is now nearly one hundred years of age; Samuel, who was a minister in the United Brethren Church for many years, died in Seneca county, Ohio; Charles migrated to California during the gold excitement, and died in Seneca county; John was the father of our subject; Peggy married Jacob Sprout, of Seneca county, and is still living; Nancy became the wife of Samuel Sprout, of the same county, and died there; Michael became a minister in the United Brethren Church at Upper Sandusky, in 1835, and died recently at Fremont, Ohio (he was born May 3, 1814, was almost a giant in stature, with a voice which could be heard a mile away, and was a famous camp-meeting preacher); George died in Seneca county; David spent a part of his life in California, and died in Seneca county; Benjamin, who was born September 12, 1823, spent his life on the old homestead in Seneca county, and died there June 14, 1890; Wesley, who went west after serving in the army, was never heard from again; and Henry, who died when quite small.

John Long, the father of our subject, was born in 1808. When a young man he entered the ministry of the United Brethren Church, and about the year 1847 removed to Gibsonburg, Sandusky Co., Ohio, where he made his home for many years, traveling and preaching constantly throughout a large circuit in northern Ohio. About eighteen years ago he came to Wood county, where he continued his life work until broken down by years of toil and the feebleness of old age. For some years preceding his death he made his home in Bowling Green. He passed peacefully to his well-earned rest February 9, 1895, at the home of his daughter, in Gibsonburg; his wife died at her home, in Center township, Wood county, April 19, 1878, aged sixty-three years, eleven months, eleven days, a faithful member of the U. B. Church. After many years of faithful duty to her family, her Church and her God, she passed away in the triumph of her faith, thus leaving to her family the best gift a mother could leave. To this honored couple were born ten children, as follows: Louisa, wife of Jacob Sampsel, of Gibsonburg; Samuel, a farmer at St. Louis, Mich.; J. F., our subject; Daniel S., residing in Bowling Green; Rebecca, married to A. B. Garn, of Gibsonburg; William, a farmer of Wood county, Ohio; Wesley, a farmer of Center township, Wood county; Arcanus C. and Michael, residing near Gibson-burg; and Samantha, the wife of Charles Pike, of Bowling Green. The parents of this interesting family became the grandparents of fifty grandchildren, and the great-grandparents of thirty-one great-grandchildren.

On the maternal side, our subject's grandparents were Jacob and Elizabeth Fry, who had ten children, namely: Jacob, Lydia (the mother of our subject), Moses, Mary, Anna, Adam, Josia, Elizabeth, Solomon, and Samuel. All these are living in the West, except Jacob and Samuel, who died in Ohio.

J. F. Long, the subject proper of this sketch, spent his boyhood days in Gibsonburg, where he attended the common schools and secured his education. He was a natural mathematician, and became especially interested in the study of mechanics; in 1865 he removed to Wood county, where he bought a tract of land and put up a saw-mill. For several years he carried on the manufacture of lumber, making a handsome fortune, and later, in 1871, removed to Bowling Green, where for some time he was not engaged in any active business except contracting and building. In November, 1892, he opened up his present store, in which he is carrying on an extensive business. It is the largest establishment of its kind in Bowling Green, the firm carrying from $20,000 to $30,000 worth of stock, and employing ten clerks. Mr. Long also owns 180 acres of land and town property, and is recognized as one of the substantial and representative citizens of the county. He was formerly a Republican, but of later years has identified himself with the Prohibitionists, in the ranks of which party he is an earnest worker. In religious faith he is a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

Mr. Long was married December 31, 1861, to Mary Klotz, a native of Pennsylvania, born February 9, 1845, and three children have blessed their union, namely: (1) Frank M., who learned the business of a dry-goods merchant in Toledo, and is now chief buyer for his father's firm; he married Bertha LITTLE, of Toledo, and they have one child, May. (2) Elsie D. is the wife of S. E. Vail, editor of the Sentinel, and they have one child, Merl DeWitt; and (3) Netta is the wife of R. P. Hankey, a son of Senator J. K. Hankey. The mother of this highly respected family died February 28, 1893, a faithful and consistent member of the Methodist Episcopal Church. From the year 1872 until her death, a period of over twenty years, she was known as an active worker in the Sabbath-school, much of her time in the capacity of assistant superintendent thereof, having charge of a class of young men, many of whom can give evidence of her faithful work. She spent many hours in looking after the poor and needy of the town, and searching out the lonely homes of strangers, and of the desolate and disconsolate. She was also an active worker in the cause of home missions. Any one visiting the Elizabeth Gamble Deaconess Home and Christ's Hospital will find therein a beautiful room, "No. 57," fitted and furnished in memory of her good life, and for the good of that noble work.

GIDEON UNDERWOOD, deceased. The pioneers of a country, the founders of a business, the originators of any undertaking that will promote the material welfare, or advance the educational and moral influence of a community, deserve the gratitude of humanity. Our subject was for many years an honored citizen of Wood county, and one of the prominent pioneers of Center township. Mr. Underwood was born in Lawrence county, Penn., August 22, 1820, and was a son of William and Mary (Wright) Underwood, both natives of the Buckeye State. He attended the common school in his native county, and besides assisting in the labors of the home farm while young, he also worked on the canals. He then went West to California, remaining in the Golden State for three years, and later came to Wood county, Ohio, and purchased eighty acres of land in Center township, turning his attention to agricultural pursuits, which occupation he continued to follow up to the time of his death. He cleared and improved his land, building thereon a substantial dwelling, barns and other outbuildings, set out a fine orchard, and supplied the place with all the conveniences found upon a model farm of the nineteenth century. To his original purchase he later added 100 acres, and the entire tract comprised one of the best farms of the county.

In Lowell, Penn., on December 29, 1852, was celebrated the marriage of Mr. Underwood and Margaret (McMahan), who was born in Mahoning county, Ohio, January 21, 1821, and was then the widow of Henry Humston. Two children graced this union—John W., and Laura C., who was born November 22, 1860, and is now the wife of John Walker, a farmer of Center township, by whom she has three children. By her first marriage Mrs. Underwood had one daughter, Amerilas, who married Simon Crum, a farmer of Center township.

Mr. Underwood always bore the reputation of an honest, upright man, affable and genial in disposition, and no man took a deeper interest in the prosperity of his adopted county, while it is safe to say that few contributed in a larger degree to bring about this result. His death, which occurred April 7, 1895, was deeply regretted by his loving wife and children, and also a large number of friends who loved and respected him in life and mourned for him in death. He was a Republican in politics, and was school director many terms. For many years he was an elder in the Presbyterian Church, but later he joined the M. E. Church. Mrs. Underwood still resides upon the old homestead where so many happy years of her life were passed.

During the Civil war Mr. Underwood served as a soldier in the one-hundred-day service, being a member of Company C, 144th O. V. I.

SILAS H. POWELL. In manner hospitable and kind, disposition genial and social, this gentleman is one of the most highly esteemed residents of Liberty township. He was born March 10, 1852, in Green Castle, Ohio, a son of George and Sarah (Beatty) Powell. In 1872 the father removed with his family to Wood county, locating on a farm of 460 acres in Liberty township, where he made his home until his death, January 26, 1893. The mother died April 27, 1892. Their children were Wesley; Martha, wife of Louis Smaltz; Silas H.; Alonzo V.; Chester L. (deceased); and Laura, wife of James Stafford, of Liberty.

Our subject acquired his education in Green Castle, was reared on a farm, and at the age of twenty years came with his parents to Wood county. In 1873, however, he returned to Fairfield county, and was married in Winchester to Miss Margaret Elizabeth Fellers, who was born November 27, 1853, in that county. Her parents, Joshua and Barbara (Runkle) Fellers, were born February 14, 1821, and June 8, 1822, respectively; they are still living in Fairfield county. In the family were the following children: Eliza, wife of David Smith, of Pickaway county, Ohio; Minerva, wife of Thomas Courtwright, of Green Castle, Ohio; Martha, wife of Joseph Green, of Fairfield county; Clara, wife of George Courtwright, of Fairfield county; Mrs. Powell; Eleanor, wife of Samuel Brown, of Warren county, Ohio; Florence, wife of Henry Hempleman; John, a farmer of Fairfield county; Alice, wife of James Cheney; and Docia, wife of Edward Hickle, of Wood county.

Upon their marriage Mr. Powell and his wife took up their residence on the family homestead which he now owns, his farm comprising 191 acres. He is progressive in his methods, and his close attention to business has secured him a comfortable property. In politics he is a Republican, and a strong advocate of temperance. In the family is one son, Chauncey, born April 4, 1874. Mr. and Mrs. Powell are members of the United Brethren Church, the one known as the "Powell Church."

OSMAN A. DIVER, a prominent oil operator of this section of the State, and one of the most extensive land owners in Montgomery township, is perhaps more widely known as an able and popular worker in the political field. A Democrat in a Republican stronghold—he has heavy odds against him, yet he has been called upon to fill nearly every office on the township ticket, sometimes carrying the day by 160 plurality against a Republican plurality of 140, and throughout the county he has hosts of friends who would gladly see him serving the public in a wider sphere. At times when the prospect of certain defeat has made it almost impossible to fill the county ticket, he has allowed his name to be used, and this has always meant a hard fight for his opponent, the large vote given him being a high testimonial from the independent voters of the county, to his ability and worth.

He is a native of Montgomery township, born March 16, 1845, in Section 30, a son of the late Osman Diver, a pioneer farmer of that locality, and his wife, Esther F. Robinson, a woman of rare mental ability and noble character, who was a teacher in this county in the early "forties." As the only son of this worthy couple, our subject was given better advantages in his youth than fell to the lot of some of the boys of that time—his district school course being followed by an attendance at more advanced schools in Fostoria and Osceola, with one year at Oberlin College. He was an active boy, and his energies were given full scope in farm work on the large tracts of land owned by his father.

On February 20, 1869, he was married, in Amherst township, Lorain Co., Ohio, to Miss Sarah Curtis, daughter of Zebulum and Lucy (Belden) Curtis, well-known citizens of that locality. After his marriage Mr. Diver began farming on his own account, in his native township, giving considerable attention to raising and dealing in stock. In 1885 he removed to Prairie Depot, and engaged in mercantile business with A. Fike. Later he became sole proprietor, continuing until 1894, when, after a successful career, he sold his store. He has large individual oil holdings, and owns 450 acres of land in his township.

Sitar H. Powell

Margret-E Powell

His home at Prairie Depot is an elegant one, and Mrs. Diver's fine intellectual gifts and literary tastes give it an additional charm and influence as a social center. She is a member of the Disciples Church, active in various lines of local and foreign missionary work, and is also prominent in the Daughters of Rebekah order, also the Good Templars, at the present time being State deputy and district superintendent in the latter society. She has held different elective offices in the State work in that order, being State superintendent of the Juvenile Department, and organized in Ohio sixty-six Juvenile temples, re-organized many, also several subordinate lodges, and held meetings in the interest of the order and cause. Mr. and Mrs. Diver have had three children: Flora L., who was fatally burned at the age of four years, her clothing catching fire from a stove, and death resulting from her injuries forty-eight hours later; Frank E., a law student at Toledo; and Curtis B., a young man of more than ordinary talent, and an accomplished musician.

Mr. Diver is a skilled reinsman, and has always been an admirer of good horses; his stables contain some of the best specimens to be found in the county. Public spirited and progressive, he is active in the cause of better education, and has served it ably as a member of the school board. He belongs to the I. O. O. F., and was a charter member of Petroleum Lodge No. 499, K. of P., at Prairie Depot, and its first chancellor commander. For two years he represented his lodge at the State meeting.

Osman Diver, our subject's father, was born in Deerfield, Portage (then Trumbull) Co., Ohio, August 23, 1807. He was the oldest son of John Diver, a native of Massachusetts, who came to Deerfield in October, 1803, and of Laura Ely Diver, a descendant of the Elys, of England. When twelve years of age he went with a party to Cleveland for supplies, when that city was but a hamlet of log houses, he driving one of the teams there and back. On November 13, 1832, he married Margaret Kinnaman, and settled in his native town, where two years later a son was born, who lived but a few hours. On March 29, 1836, a second son, Franklin, was born, and in the fall of that same year he, with his wife and child, moved to Montgomery township, Wood county, and settled on a farm in Section 30. The country was then a wilderness, the roads being little more than Indian trails along the banks of streams. In the course of a few months he bought property in Fostoria (then Rome and Risdon), and engaged in hotel business in that city. There a daughter, Laura H. (now Mrs. Cline), was born, September 19, 1838. The following year he sold his town property, and returned to his farm, taking up the arduous task of converting it into fertile fields. On January 18, 1841, his home was made desolate by the death of his wife. Placing his two little children in the care of their grandparents, he lived on alone, toiling unremittingly to leave to his loved ones a home. On February 24, 1842, he married Esther F. Robinson, and to them three children were born: Margaret E. (Mrs. Miles), Osman A. (our subject), and Harriet N. (Mrs. C. W. Lenhart). By this time he had made quite an opening in the dense forest, and in addition to the house of unhewed logs that had served him for a dwelling, he built a hewed log front, one and one-half stories high, with a good cellar—quite a pretentious mansion for those days. He usually went to Fremont (twenty-two miles distant) for flour and groceries, always taking an axe along to chop the fallen trees and remove them from the road. On one trip he stayed two nights at the same place; leaving his wagon in the mire, he proceeded with his team the first night, and returning the second night for shelter.

The constant toil and good management of Mr. Diver and his wife were rewarded; in the course of a few years, they found themselves in possession of 1,700 acres of good farming land. In 1848 he built a sawmill on the east branch of the Portage river, and manufactured the lumber with which he built a new house, one mile east of his first home, on the Perrysburg and McCutchenville pike. This was the second frame house built in this section of the country. In June, 1849, he moved his family into this house, and occupied it until his death, September 30, 1888, when he was aged eighty-one years, one month and seven days: In politics he was a Democrat, but believed it right to support the most worthy candidate, especially in municipal affairs. In religion, he was a faithful member of the Church of Christ, and was a liberal supporter of every good cause within his reach. In disposition he was quiet and unassuming, a lover of books and his own fireside, and was the friend of the poor and oppressed. Only the pioneers who toiled with him know how much this generation owes to those who changed the despised Black Swamp into the garden of Ohio.

Esther F. (Robinson), our subject's mother, was born April 2, 1818, near New Portage, Portage (now Summit) Co., Ohio. At nine years of age, death deprived her of her father, and at eleven years of age she began teaching, a vocation she followed until the time of her marriage. Her labors were confined principally to the Western Reserve, with the exception of two years which were spent largely in Wood county, at West Millgrove, and four miles north of that village, at what was known as the Morgan school house. Her mother having moved to a farm near Latimerville, Crawford Co., Ohio, she made the journey from these points to her mother's home and return, several times on horseback, during her stay in Wood county. On February 24, 1842, she was married to Osman Diver at her mother's home, in Crawford county, returning with him on horseback. At the age of fifteen she espoused the cause of Christ, and has been throughout her life a faithful, consistent Christian. To her husband she was a helpmeet and counsellor, and to the five children entrusted to her care, she was a most lovable mother, a competent teacher and guide. She still survives her husband, living at the home her hand so industriously helped to carve out of the wilderness.

WILSON W. BROWN, one of the heroes of the Civil war, the engineer of the train captured from the Confederacy by the famous Mitchell raiders, is now living quietly on his farm near Dowling, wearing his well-earned honors with the modesty which becomes so brave and distinguished a soldier. He was born in Fountain county, Ind., December 25, 1839, the son of Harlan S. Brown.

Possessing rare mechanical genius, our subject early acquired a thorough knowledge of machinery, and before the war served some years as engineer on the Mobile & Ohio railroad. Just before hostilities began he returned home, and in September, 1861, he enlisted in Company F, 21st O. V. I., which was assigned to the army of the Cumberland. He took part in the battles of Ivy Mountain, Shelbyville, Ky., and many other engagements that occurred in the early part of the war. When the 21st was encamped at Shelbyville, Ky., he was detailed by Gen. O. M. Mitchell to go as engineer on the famous Mitchell raid—the story of whose gallant exploits forms one of the most thrilling chapters in the history of that time. He was more fortunate than many of his companions, eight of whom were hanged at Atlanta, Ga., while Mr. Brown, with fourteen of his comrades, escaped to the North, but not until they had endured three months of suffering and hardship, did they reach the Union lines. Our subject reported to his regiment, and went into active service again, was appointed corporal by the colonel of the regiment, and soon after was made sergeant of Company F, 21st O. V. I., for gallant and distinguished service. He participated in the battle of Stone River, and, for his bravery here, was granted a thirty-days' furlough and went home. While at home he received orders to report at Washington to depose in regard to the execution of his comrades, and while there had personal interviews with President Lincoln, Judge Holt, Gen. Hitchcock, and Secretary Stanton, and, before leaving, was presented with a gold medal from the hand of Mr. Stanton. By a special act of Congress he was promoted to 2nd lieutenant. After leaving Washington, he returned to Ohio, and was ordered to report to Gov. Tod, at Columbus, who presented him with his commission. He then returned to his regiment and reported for duty as acting lieutenant until a vacancy occurred, after engaging in many battles, skirmishes and forced marches. He was twice wounded at the battle of Chickamauga, having two fingers shot from the left hand, and a severe wound in the knee joint, for which wounds and his gallant service on the Mitchell raid, he was given a pension of twenty-four dollars per month by a special act of Congress. He was mustered out May 15, 1864.

In 1863 Mr. Brown was married to Miss Clarissa Loman, who was born in Fostoria, Ohio, March 1, 1845. Ten children were born of this union: Emma H., married Samuel G. Cordery, and died at the age of twenty-four, leaving one son—George W.; Alice M. died in childhood; Ada Lodisca married Charles E. Ward, of Toledo, and has two children—Rayman Oliver, and Ruby Marie; Harlan S. is a carpenter in Webster township, and married Miss Anna Beard, by whom he has one daughter—Gladys; James W. lives in Toledo (he married Cora Glenn and has one child, Ethel G.); Mary M. resides in Toledo; Mahlon T. is at home; Marquis A. lives in Toledo; and Edith G. and Cecil Ulena are at home.

After the close of the war, Mr. Brown engaged in agricultural pursuits, and spent some years in Logan and Hancock counties. In 1870 he established the home in Perrysburg township, where he now resides. He is a member of the G. A. R., and in politics is a Republican.

ISAAC VAN HORN, a well-known agriculturist of Grand Rapids township, was born in Harrison county, Ohio, December 7, 1830. He is a son of one of the earliest settlers of his locality, the late Samuel Van Horn, a native of Jefferson county, Ohio, born July 4, 1801, which honored pioneer was married in October, 1824, to Miss Sophia Miner, a native of Pennsylvania, born December 15, 1804. They were the parents of twelve children, seven of whom are still living.

In 1831 they came to Wood county, traveling in a wagon, which contained all their household goods. They settled upon a tract of eighty acres of wild land, building a house, 16 x 18 feet, immediately upon their arrival, and went through all the experiences incident to frontier life. They lived upon potatoes, corn, turkey, squirrel and deer, game being so plentiful that the family have known their dog to chase a deer out of the woods and up the lane leading to the house, where the boys would knock the animal down with clubs. Turkeys they would shoot enough of in the morning for that day's supply; and as for squirrels, they were so numerous that Mr. Van Horn says he has gone out in the wheat field by the woods, and shot from ten to twenty of them before picking any up. In spite of the far advanced spring, Mr. Van Horn succeeded in clearing more than an acre of ground in time to raise a crop of potatoes that year, and the second year he raised an excellent crop of wheat without plowing the soil, his pair of oxen having been sacrificed to secure ready money. Mr. Van Horn and his wife had united with the M. E. Church before coming to Wood county, and were among the members of the first M. E. class, which was organized, in 1833, in Weston township, Rev. Elim Day being the leader. Samuel Van Horn died on the morning of February 4, 1886, aged eighty-four years and seven months to the day. The funeral services were held at home the next day, the Rev. George Matthews officiating, and his remains were then laid to rest in Beaver Creek cemetery. His wife, Sophia Van Horn, died June 4, 1890, and the funeral was held at Beaver Creek church, Rev. James Long officiating.

Isaac Van Horn, our subject, worked upon his father's farm until he was twenty-five years old, when he bought twenty acres of land, and began farming on his own account. In the spring of 1864, he enlisted in Company I, 144th O. V. I., under Col. Lew Wallace, and Capt. J. McKee. He participated in several engagements, and was taken prisoner at Perryville, Va., August 31, 1864. He was taken to Lynchburg, and from there to Libby prison, thence to Belle Isle, and then to Salisbury, from there back to Libby again, serving about eight months of prison life. He was the only one of seven, taken from his county, to survive prison life. From Libby he was sent to Annapolis, Md., and from there was sent home to Columbus, Ohio, where he received his discharge, March 23, 1865. He then returned to his little farm, which he sold a few years later to buy fifty-five acres near Grand Rapids, upon which he has since resided. The improvements he has made thereon are of a high class, and he conducts the property in a model manner, having constructed ditches, planted orchards, and built substantial structures as needed.

On November 22, 1855, Mr. Van Horn was married to Miss Eliza J. Kerr, a sister of William B. Kerr, a prominent citizen of Grand Rapids township, and they had four children: Ella J., born June 11, 1858, married George Wolcott, of Deshler, Ohio; Etta May, born May 30, 1864, died in girlhood; Frank W., born August 26, 1866, now conducting the homestead; and one other died in infancy. The mother of this family died May 19, 1884, and September 11, 1889, Mr. Van Horn, for his second wife, married Miss Lizzie Dean, of Weston, who was born April 7, 1843. Mr. Van Horn cast his first vote for the Whig party. The issues of the war made him a "Black Republican," and he has adhered to that party since. He takes no active part in political work, and has never held an office, or been a juror, or been engaged in any legal controversy. By his friends and neighbors he is held in high esteem, and he is a leading member of the United Presbyterian Church.

B. B. BUCK, the cashier of the Exchange Banking Company, of Weston, and one of the leaders among the younger business men of the county, was born in Milton Center, December 13, 1862. William Buck, his father, was born July 31, 1832, in Stark county, Ohio. He married Miss Ann Hartz, and a few years later moved to Wood county, locating at Milton Center, where they still reside.

Mr. Buck (our subject) attended the district schools near his home during his earlier years, and then entered the Normal School at Valparaiso, Ind., and was graduated from the commercial department in 1887. On his return home he was made bookkeeper of the Exchange Banking Company, in which he is a stockholder, and later he became its cashier. In the discharge of the duties of his responsible position he has shown himself fully worthy of the trust confided to him. He was married October 17, 1889, to an adopted daughter of Dr. Schooley, of Weston—Miss Jessie Robinson—who was born November 9, 1867. They have one daughter, Agnes.

In politics Mr. Buck is a Republican, and he takes an influential part in all progressive movements in his locality. He is a member of the I. O. O. F., No. 59, Milton Center, the F. &

A. M., 530, Weston, and of the order of Mac-cabees.

HON. JOHN J. GEGHAN. No man is more widely or favorably known in North Baltimore and vicinity than the one whose name introduces this sketch, and it is to him more than to any other single individual that the city owes its manufactories, railroads, and other improvements which have developed its resources, and brought wealth and prosperity to its inhabitants. The career of Mr. Geghan has been a rather remarkable one. In his years of restless activity he has seen the ups and downs of life in no small degree, yet his persistence, and unbounded faith in his ability to overcome all obstacles, have always brought him out of his difficulties with flying colors, and with a determination to accomplish still greater results.

Mr. Geghan is a native of the "Emerald Isle," where he was born May 9, 1845, in County Meath, son of James and Elizabeth (McSweeney) Geghan. His father was a farmer, and spent his entire life in Ireland. After the death of her husband, the mother, in 1854, came with her little family to New Orleans, from there moving to Cincinnati, Ohio, where our subject attended the public schools, and afterward took a course in Nelson's Commercial College. After leaving school Mr. Geghan was employed in the tobacco business, and organized the Tobacconists Association, of Cincinnati, of which he was made president. In 1865 the tobacco manufacturing company of Geghan, Porter & McHugh was established, and in the latter part of the year Mr. Geghan bought out the interests of his partners and formed the firm of Geghan & Brashears. He disposed of his share in this connection in 1866, and his next step was to organize a company which took part in the Fenian raids in Canada, being engaged in the fights at Ridgeway and Fort Erie. Having sunk all his means in this venture, Mr. Geghan returned to Cincinnati, and became foreman in a leading tobacco house, which position he filled until 1870, when, in company with James W. Murphy, he established the Red Cloud Tobacco Works, at No. 18 Hammond street, in that city, which he conducted until 1876.

During this time and for a number of years previous Mr. Geghan took an active part in politics, his first affiliation being with the Republican party. During the campaign of 1868 he, in connection with Hon. J. W. Fitzgerald, organized the Irish "Grant & Colfax" Club of Cincinnati. He was also at the head of the liberal movement in that city which helped to carry Hamilton county against Grant at a later date, and was president of the Greeley & Brown Club. Mr. Geghan has always been an intense Irish Nationalist, firmly believing that Ireland should be an independent nation, and, like the majority of Irish Nationalists, believing in the policy of the Republican party. He took an active part in the Presidential campaign of 1884, and at a meeting of Irish-American Republicans held at Long Branch, N. Y., immediately after the nomination of James G. Blaine, he was unanimously chosen secretary of the Irish National Republican League, which accomplished such effective work in that memorable campaign. In 1873 Mr. Geghan was nominated by the Democratic party for member of the State Legislature from Hamilton county, and was elected, serving two years. He took a prominent share in legislative matters, and was instrumental in passing several important measures. Among the bills introduced by him were the amendment to the Adair Liquor Law, compelling parties wishing to bring suit or otherwise, to serve notice on the saloon-keeper to desist from selling liquor, or file the same with the county clerk; the Padrone bill, the Militia law, and the celebrated Religious Liberty bill, known as the Geghan bill. After his term in the legislature had expired, Mr. Geghan went to Washington, D. C., where he engaged as traveling salesman until he secured a position in the Adjutant-General's department. This he held for a few months, and then resigned to accept the office of first assistant to the Dairy and Food Commissioner of the State of Ohio, which occupied his attention from 1886 to 1890. While in the commissioner's service he visited, among other places in his district, the thriving city of North Baltimore, and, at once perceiving its advantages as a manufacturing point, he concluded to locate there. Accordingly, in June, 1887, he took an option on 156 acres of land belonging to Joseph Dirk, at $150 per acre, and associating with himself A. L. Pfau and Col. I. Richardson, incorporated the North Baltimore Glass Co., of which he was made vice-president and director—the factory buildings being erected in the fall of the same year. In 1892, Mr. Geghan sold out his interest in these works, and engaged in general contracting, forming a company which built the North Baltimore water works, and in which he held the offices of secretary, treasurer and general manager. A year later he disposed of his stock in this company, and paved Broadway street, and also macadamized Water street, two substantial and much needed improvements. He also bought eighty acres of ground, and deeded six acres of the same to the Zihlman Glass Company, on which to erect their plant. He assisted in organizing a company known as the Missouri Railway & Navigation Company, and spent some time in southeast Missouri looking after its interests and a tract of land he still owns there.

John J. J. J. J.

In 1891 Mr. Geghan, in company with G. G. Grimes, began the publication of the North Baltimore Times, which he later disposed of. He has now settled in North Baltimore as a contractor and oil producer, being interested in seven oil wells in the vicinity, and expects hereafter to devote his entire time and attention to these pursuits. He also put on foot the building of a railroad between Welker and North Baltimore, which will add another to the many enterprises he has conducted for the benefit of this section of Wood county. He is a man of irrepressible energy, always busy, a genial companion, and popular with all classes of society.

In 1888, Mr. Geghan married Miss Sadie Tarr, daughter of the late Levi A. Tarr, one of the first settlers of Henry township. They have one child, Nellie. Mr. Geghan is a prominent Mason, belonging to Blue Lodge, Royal Arch Masons and Royal — Council. He is also a Knight of the Red Cross and a Knight Templar.

PETER P. SWINEHART, an industrious and thorough farmer of Bloom township, in connection with his agricultural pursuits, is also engaged in operating a feedmill, near Bloom Center. He is a native of the Buckeye State, born in Hopewell township, Perry county, July 23, 1848, and there his father, Andrew Swinehart, was also born, October 29, 1824. The paternal grandfather, John Swinehart, was a native of Northumberland county, Penn., in which State his father, Andrew Swinehart, lived and died. John learned the carpenter's and cabinet maker's trades, which he followed in the Keystone State, and there married Christina Cruber, a native of the same township, a mountain separating their homes. On locating in Perry county, Ohio, in 1802, they had one daughter—Sarah—who became the wife of George Onsbough, and there died. Their family later numbered fourteen children, those living to adult age being as follows: Peter, who died in Perry county; Jacob, who died in Wyandot county, Ohio; Elizabeth, who married Jacob Cooperiole, and died in Perry county; Catherine, who wedded Jerome Stalter, and died in Wyandot county; Jonathan, who died in Portage township, Wood county; Samuel, who died in Perry county; Daniel, who died in Fulton county, Ind.; Juda, now Mrs. Jacob Lawrence, of Wyandot county; George, a farmer of Sandusky county; and Andrew, the father of our subject. When the last named was only fourteen years old his father died; his mother survived her husband many years, and they were both buried in St. Paul's church cemetery, in Hopewell township, Perry county.

Andrew Swinehart, the father of our subject, was able to attend school only a short time, as the family was large and the parents poor, and while young he learned the trade of a plasterer. He was married in Hopewell township, Perry county, September 30, 1847, to Miss Lydia A. Stimmel, who was born there July 13, 1824, and is the daughter of Peter and Margaret (Lutz) Stimmel, who were married in Maryland, and Mrs. Swinehart was the oldest in their family of twelve children, six sons and six daughters. Mr. Stimmel, who was a farmer by occupation, died in 1864, while his wife was burned to death when past the age of ninety years, and they were both buried in Thorn township, Perry county. For ten years Mr. Swinehart made his home on his father-in-law's farm, during which time he worked at his trade, or at day's labor, and for the following six years rented a house and garden of James Parks, in Hopewell township, much of the time being employed by that gentleman. On coming to Bloom township, Wood county, in December, 1864, the family located on a farm belonging to the father's brother, though he had previously purchased land in Section 35, that township, where he built a log house into which the family moved March 28, 1865, it being the first home they ever owned. The farm then comprised forty acres of swamp land, the water being so deep in some places that a horse would be compelled to swim across, but the land has been transformed into fertile fields. In politics the father is a Democrat, but voted for Abraham Lincoln and supports the man whom he thinks best qualified for office, regardless of party affiliations. He and his wife are members of the Evangelical Lutheran Church.

Peter P. Swinehart is the oldest in the family and he was followed by nine others born in Perry county, namely: Margaret A., born January 10, 1850, died on the 1st of March following; Christina E., born January 16, 1851, first wedded William Slater, and is now Mrs. Patrick Campbell, of Gloucester City, N. J.; Lydia A., born January 22, 1853, died on the 18th of April following; Catherine E., born May 29, 1854, is now the wife of David Wiker, of Bloom township; Andrew J., born May 30, 1856, died September 15, of the same year; John A., born October 25, 1857, died April 17, 1859; Susanna H., born September 4, 1859, is now Mrs. Nathan Denhoff, of Bloom township; Sarah Jane, born September 17, 1861, is the wife of George Parson, of North Baltimore; and Jacob H., born September 12, 1863, is also a resident of North Baltimore. Two sons were added to the family after coming to Wood county—George F., born October 19, 1865, lives in North Baltimore; and Noah A., born March 4, 1869, is at home.

In the primitive schools of his native county, Peter P. Swinehart obtained most of his education, which was completed in Wood county by attending a school taught by W. S. Richard, but failing health compelled him to lay aside his studies. He remained at home until the age of twenty-seven years as his help was needed in the development of the farm. At Findlay, Ohio, in December, 1875, was celebrated the marriage of our subject and Mrs. Staley, widow of John Staley. She is of German parentage, and bore the maiden name of Eva Helfrish. They have become the parents of three children—Oliver A., Charles H., and Matthias B. At the time of his marriage, Mr. Swinehart owned eighty acres of land in Section 23, Bloom township, two head of horses, a mule, a plow and a drag. He had agreed to pay $2,000 for his land, and on that amount had to pay fifteen per cent. interest, but he went resolutely to work and soon had the indebtedness removed. On locating there only ten acres had been cleared, but now sixty acres have been placed under the plow, and a comfortable dwelling has replaced the log house which was then standing, while everything about the place denotes the thrift and enterprise of the owner. He had previously owned a sawmill in Henry township, and in the spring of 1894 established a feedmill near Bloom Center, which he is now successfully conducting. He was reared a Democrat, but voted with either of the larger parties until becoming disgusted with their practices, when he joined the Greenback party, but is not strictly partisan, voting as his judgment dictates. Mrs. Swinehart is a member of the Lutheran Church.

WILLIAM H. LEVERS was born December 17, 1825, in Franklin county, Penn., and is a son of William S. and Elizabeth (Light) Levers. The father was born on the ocean, while his parents were crossing the Atlantic, from Switzerland to America, on May 8, 1772. The grandfather, Abraham Levers, was a banker in Switzerland in comfortable circumstances. He with his wife and daughter came to the New World, and made Philadelphia the place of their residence. William S. Levers, when a child of nine years, was bound out to a man in Lancaster, Penn., where he remained until twenty-two years of age. In early life he learned the weaver's trade, and afterward became a successful veterinary surgeon. He married Elizabeth Light, who was born in Dauphin county, Penn., and in 1845 brought his family to Ohio, his death occurring in Seneca county, May 27, 1851. His wife died near Brookfield, Stark Co., Ohio. Their children were David, who died in Brookfield, Ohio; Isaac, who died near Upper Sandusky, Ohio; Sarah, who was married and died in Illinois, leaving ten children; Solomon, who died in Wooster, Wayne Co., Ohio; Elizabeth, who became the wife of John McDowel, and died in Wooster; Joel, of Chippewa township, Wayne county; Daniel, who is living near Fulton, Ohio; Susan, wife of Ephraim Baker, of Michigan; Mrs. Liddy Hirschy; and William H., our subject.

Mr. Levers, of this sketch, was educated in the public schools of Franklin county, Penn. When a young man he learned the trade of a stone mason and plasterer, which pursuit he has followed more or less since that time. He was married May 9, 1850, in Fulton, Ohio, by Rev. Hartley, to Miss Liddy Vernon, who was born February 20, 1826, in Philadelphia, and is a daughter of Thomas H. and Mary (Ekoff) Vernon, also natives of Philadelphia. The parents both died on a farm near Bowling Green.

Mr. and Mrs. Levers took up their residence in Brookfield, Ohio, but a year later removed to a farm in that locality, on which they lived for two years. They afterward spent two years on a farm in Wayne county, and subsequently lived for one year on a farm near Tiffin, Ohio, and afterward near Hedgetown, Ohio. Going to Sandusky county, Mr. Levers there worked at his trade for two years, and in 1860 he came to Wood county, settling at Bowling Green. During the years passed there he made the first improvements upon a twenty-acre tract of land, which he had purchased. He cleared and drained this, built thereon a rude log cabin, and continued the work of improvement and cultivation until he now owns a valuable farm.

To Mr. and Mrs. Levers have been born the following children—William T., born February 20, 1851; Isaac Newton, born October 28, 1852, now an oil man of Liberty township; Mary Matilda, who was born June 17, 1855, and is the deceased wife of Joel Reeves; Emily Anna, born May 11, 1857; Liddy Ann, born October 10, 1858, now the wife of Richard Ducat, of Wood county; Daniel Webster, born May 11, 1861, a farmer of Liberty township; Viola Belle, born August 30, 1863, now the wife of William Errett; Izora, born May 10, 1865, now the wife of Wilbur Hansen; and Precida Louisa, born February 17, 1869, now the wife of George Hansen.

Our subject has always been a staunch Republican in politics, and served for four years as trustee, while for many years he was township clerk of the school board. He belongs to the Methodist Church, and is a charitable and benevolent man, who is ever ready to extend a helping hand to the poor and needy, and to aid others less fortunate than himself. He owes his own success entirely to his energy and good management, and may truly be called a self-made man.

EDWARD S. BRYANT, of Bloomdale, the well-known lieutenant-colonel of the 2d Regiment, O. N. G., of which one company is the famous Bloomdale Rifles, and a prominent business man of this county, was born July 12, 1853, in Pittsfield, Lorain Co., Ohio.

His father, John W. Bryant, was a student at Oberlin College, where he met Miss Elvira Harmon, a descendant of one of the pioneer families of Lorain county, to whom he was married about 1847. Three children were born of this union: Warren C., Edward S., and Charles H., all of whom reside in Bloomdale. Our subject's father was a man of great natural ability and wide culture. He practiced law successfully for some years, and then having purchased the Banner, of Albion, Ind., he assumed editorial charge and soon made it a power in political circles. He died at Albion in 1857, and was buried there amid the sincere mourning of a wide circle of friends. Mrs. Bryant was married again, this time to Mr. Barnes, of Wellington, Ohio, but after his death she moved to Bloomdale, where she died in 1888, her remains resting in VanBuren cemetery.

Left fatherless at the age of four years, the subject of this sketch found a home with a man named Chet Smith, of LaGrange Center, Lorain county, and later with Bishop Bradley, of Pittsfield, doing such work at each place as his years permitted, and attending the district schools. At twelve he became an errand boy in the confectionery establishment of Henry Weisgerber, at Cleveland, and was soon advanced to a more responsible position. After three years he returned to Pittsfield, where his mother then lived, and began to study telegraphy at Oberlin, walking three and a half miles to and fro each morning and evening. Four months later he entered the office of the L. S. & M. S. R. R., at Oberlin, as an apprentice, and not long after was made night operator there. Later he held the position of operator at Wauseon, Ohio, and Ligonier, Elkhart, Goshen and Kendallville, Ind., and then resigned from the service of the L. S. & M. S., receiving a letter of recommendation which made it easy for him to secure similar work elsewhere. For some years he was in the employ of the Pennsylvania R. R. Co., first at Crestline, Ohio, and then in Columbia City, Ind., and South Chicago, Ill., and when the B. & O. R. R. was completed to Chicago, he became their first operator there, remaining nine months. By this time he had become weary of the routine of office work, and prepared himself to add the duties of station agent, his first assignment to the double duty being at Cromwell, Ind. On December 13, 1875, he opened the first telegraph office at Bloomdale, holding also the position of agent in the newly established depot.

November 25, 1877, he was married to Miss Effie Wineland, a native of Hancock county, and a daughter of Daniel Wineland, a prominent business man of Bloomdale, and the senior member of the firm of Wineland Bros., operators of a sawmill there. Col. Bryant took an interest in this business, and, by the introduction of improved machinery, gave it new life, the trade increasing until he found it necessary to give up his position with the railroad. For some time he carried on the sawmill alone, until Joseph Linhart, and later S. A. Linhart, joined him, the firm name from 1881 to 1883 being Bryant & Linhart Bros. Since the retirement of Joseph Linhart the firm has been Bryant & Linhart, a name distinguished throughout trade circles for enterprise, progressive methods, and fair dealing. Col. Bryant is interested in many lines of business, and is a charter member of the Bloomdale Building and Loan Association, and an incorporator of the Diamond Oil Co., chartered in July, 1895, the first to be organized in Bloomdale. Col. and Mrs. Bryant have always taken a prominent place in the social life of Bloomdale. They have had three children: Detie, born September 23, 1879; Alma, born March 28, 1881, died at the age of two; and Clyde, born May 7, 1885.

Politically Mr. Bryant is a Republican, and has served as chairman of the Wood county central committee. He is one of the chief counselors of his party in this vicinity, and, although he seeks no favors for himself, the success of more than one candidate has been due to his efforts. Col. Bryant's connection with the renowned Bloomdale Rifles of the O. N. G., which he was active in organizing, has given him a wide acquaintance in military circles. He served five years as captain, and had been re-elected for another term, but in April, 1893, he was elected to his present rank. He belongs to the F. & A. M., Fostoria Lodge, to the I. O. O. F., and is a charter member of the K. of P., 278, Bloomdale Lodge, where he has served in all the chairs; is colonel of the U. R. K. of P., 6th Regiment, headquarters Bowling Green, and is U. S. Deputy Marshal, Toledo District.

W. H. BENN, deceased, was one of the honored pioneers of Washington township, where he was widely and favorably known. He was a native of New York, born on January 12, 1832, and was one of the seven children of John and Elizabeth (Moore) Benn, the others being George, a veterinary surgeon, of Toledo, Ohio; Elizabeth, widow of James Bogers, of Toledo; Hannah, wife of S. Sharpot, of Toledo; John, deceased; Elias; Emily, wife of Allen Drues. The parents removed with their family from the Empire State to Huron county, Ohio, but afterward came to Wood county, where they located on a farm of eighty acres in Plain township. There they spent the remainder of their lives.

In the schools of Huron county, Ohio, W. H. Benn pursued his literary studies, and remained under the parental roof until he had attained his majority, assisting his father in the operation of the farm. When old enough he also worked as a farm hand for others. In 1845 he left Huron county, coming with his father to Plain township, Wood county, where he worked in a sawmill. In 1865 he bought a farm of forty acres in Washington township, which he improved and operated, and as his financial resources increased, added to it thirty acres more, all of which he placed under a high state of cultivation, making it one of the best farms in the locality. Neat and substantial buildings were erected thereon, and the whole place indicated the progressive spirit of the owner. Feeling that his country needed his services, he enlisted in 1861 in Company A, 144th O. V. I., under Capt. Black, and participated in all the engagements in which his regiment took part, being always found at his post of duty.

In Plain township, in July, 1856, was celebrated the marriage of W. H. Benn and Rhodie Hogue. To them were born two sons, James and John, who now make their homes in Cleveland. The mother died of consumption on August 18, 1863, after which Mr. Benn was again married in 1865 at Tontogany, his second union being with Martha Brown, a daughter of J. B.

Brown, a cooper, of Sugar Ridge. They became the parents of seven children, but two died in infancy. They are as follows: Charles W.; Jennie, wife of William Lennard, of Washington township; Addie, wife of Thomas Custer, an oil operator; Cora; William H., who resides on the homestead farm; and Emma and May, twins, who have passed away.

Mr. Benn took an active interest in school matters, serving four years as school director, and also held other offices in the township, including that of supervisor. A Democrat in politics, he gave his earnest support to the principles of the party, and his religious connections were with the Presbyterian Church. An honest, industrious man and highly respected citizen, his death was deeply regretted by all who knew him. He passed away in Washington township.

THOMAS GOODENOUGH, a wealthy farmer of Weston township, was born in Wiltshire, England, December 10, 1845, his parents coming to this country, in 1849, when he was four years old. They settled at Greenfield, Huron Co., and there he received his education in the common schools.

When old enough our subject learned the trade of a blacksmith, which he followed for three years, and then learned the boiler maker's trade at Brownell's boiler works, in Dayton, Ohio. He was employed there until 1873, when he came to Plain township, this county, and bought ninety acres of land. This he improved, but subsequently sold, and removed to Weston township, purchasing the Ward farm of 100 acres. This property Mr. Goodenough has placed under a high state of cultivation, draining, tiling it, and otherwise making it a model farm. He has erected a comfortable residence, and has one of the best barns in the county, which cost $1,500, also a grain barn which was built at a cost of $500, and a fine windmill. He has a small orchard of choice assorted fruit trees set out, and, taking all in all, the place is one of the best arranged and most complete in the township.

Mr. Goodenough was the first boiler maker in Wood county, and followed his trade, at the same time managing his farm, for seventeen years, being known, also, as the most extensive hog raiser in the county. He experienced many of the hardships of pioneer life in his early days, and, among other experiences, tells of the time when, for a year, he was a sailor on the great lakes, sailing most of the time between Grand Haven and Manistee, Mich. He is a man who has worked hard, has been energetic and saving, and well deserves the prosperity which has crowned his efforts, and enabled him to spend the remainder of his life in ease and comfort.

Thomas Goodenough Mary E. Goodenough

Mr. Goodenough was married, April 14, 1877, to Miss Mary E. Dotts, of Bowling Green, Ohio, and three children have blessed their union: Hattie, born August 14, 1878, wife of George Gloor, a farmer in Milton township; Robert, born March 3, 1881; and Thomas S., born March 24, 1889. Mrs. Goodenough's parents were Jacob and Ann (Battin) Dotts, the former born about 1816, in Pennsylvania, the latter in 1817, in Columbiana county, Ohio. They were married in Ohio, and had seven children: John Y., a farmer; Eli B., who enlisted in the Civil war, in Company K, 111th O. V. I., and died in hospital; Osborn S., a farmer in Defiance county, Ohio (he was also a soldier in the Civil war, serving with the 130th O. V. I.); Jefferson S., who is a farmer in Weston township; Sarah P., deceased; Mary E., born November 29, 1855, at Bowling Green, wife of our subject; and Cynthia M., wife of S. Johnson, a farmer near Weston.

In politics our subject is a Republican, and was for five years supervisor of Plain township. He served as clerk of the school board for nine years, and was also a member of the township school board in Sub-District No. 9. He is a Master Mason, belonging to Lodge No. 560, F. & A. M., at Weston. The family are all respectable citizens. Mr. Goodenough is a self-made man, and he is highly respected and esteemed in the community, where he is regarded as a most worthy citizen.

WILL S. BAIRD. The subject of this personal sketch is one of the successful and progressive farmers within the borders of Bloom township, and one of the representative men of this section. He has made his special field of industry a success, and highly esteemed and respected by those who know him best. He is the second child in the family of Shelman and Keziah (Locy) Baird, and was born in Perry township, Wood county, December 17, 1852.

Mr. Baird was educated in District No. 4, of his native township, and remained under the parental roof until eighteen years of age, when he hired out as a farm hand; previous to this time, however, he had begun to learn the carpenter's trade, but not liking the business he gave it up. Later he resumed carpentering, working one season for C. J. Updegraff. On April 18, 1878, he wedded Miss Addie Pelton, who was born in La Grange, Lorain Co., Ohio, August 14, 1861, and is a daughter of James and Lydia (Beaumont) Pelton. On coming to Wood county, her parents first located in Bloom township, later moved to Perry township, and died at North Baltimore, Ohio.

On Section 18, Perry township, Mr. Baird began housekeeping, having scarcely any furniture or cooking utensils, and those he had, being second-handed. He later purchased a cow, span of horses, and a buggy. At the end of a year he removed to his father's farm, which he cultivated on the shares for nearly two years, when he went to Bloomdale, there being employed as a laborer by Bryant & Linhart for the same length of time. During that time he was able to save enough money to purchase two lots, and he built a house in Bloomdale, which he sold in 1883, removing to Section 16, Perry township, where he rented a house and a small piece of ground, while he worked in the sawmill of his father-in-law. In the spring of 1884, Mr. Baird purchased eighty acres of land in Section 13, Bloom township, from Andrew Emerine, for which he went in debt $1,800, and the first season, which was very wet, his crops failed; but he did not allow himself to become discouraged, hoping for better days. Fortunately he had purchased his place of a gentleman who was very lenient with him, and instead of forcing the payment of $200 annually, he allowed the debt to go for three years without any payments. Our subject secured outside work which enabled him to earn considerable, and as his land was further developed it became more productive. It is now entirely free from debt, and in 1895 a substantial home was erected thereon. With the exception of twenty acres, the land has all been cleared, thoroughly tiled and drained, and now bountiful harvests yield a ready return for the care and labor expended upon the place.

Mr. Baird and wife may be properly classed among the self-made citizens of Wood county, who, by the exercise of their own industry and perseverance, have not only gained for themselves a home, but have materially assisted in the progress and development of the country around them. They have always enjoyed life, taking many pleasures that others in their circumstances would have probably denied themselves. His first vote was cast with the Democratic party, later he became a Prohibitionist, and is now a Republican, though not bound by party ties, voting for the best man regardless of politics. He is a charter member of West Millgrove K. of P. Lodge, No. 445, while himself and wife are active members of the Disciples Church.

F. E. WHITKER, a well-known grocery merchant of Bowling Green, a member of the firm of Bankey & Whitker, is a strictly first-class business man, reliable and energetic. He was born at Weston, Wood county, November 2, 1867, and is the offspring of excellent stock of staunch German ancestry, his paternal grandfather having come from the Fatherland. He located near Pemberville, Wood county, where John Whitker, the father of our subject, was reared. At Toledo, Ohio, was celebrated the marriage of the latter and Miss Elizabeth Matzinger, a native of Switzerland, who had come with her people to the New World and located in that city. After their marriage the parents made their home at Weston, where the father engaged in the lumber business for ten years, and then removed to his present farm, two and a half miles northwest of that village. Our subject is the oldest child, the others being Lillie, John, Maggie, Abbie, Alice, May and Mertie.

In the place of his nativity, Mr. F. E. Whitker grew to manhood, and attended the public schools there until January 1, 1884. On laying aside his text books he became a clerk in the store of H. C. Uhlman. In 1893 he came to Bowling Green, where he entered business as a co-partner in the firm of Bankey & Whitker, and they have become the leading dealers in groceries, crockery and queensware in the place.

On June 15, 1892, Mr. Whitker was married to Miss Maude Royce, who was born November 29, 1871. Socially, he holds membership with the Independent Order of Odd Fellows and the Royal Arcanum. In business, he is energetic and trustworthy, and has gained the confidence of the people by his honesty and integrity.

ABRAHAM COEN, a well-known retired agriculturist of Bowling Green, was born in Knox county, Ohio, July 27, 1817.

His father, William Coen, was a native of Pennsylvania, but came early in life to Knox county, where he was engaged in farming many years. He was married near Wheeling, W. Va., to Miss Sarah Brokaw, who was born in New York State, in 1800. In religious belief, they were Presbyterians, and they exemplified their faith in faithful, practical, right-doing. Their later years were spent in Hancock county, where our subject's mother died in 1840. His father died in 1853, at the age of sixty-six. They had nine children, five of whom are yet living: (1) Cecelia, deceased, formerly Mrs. Robert Black, of Tontogany; (2) Ann, Mrs. I. S. Wilson, of Coles county, Ill.; (3) Abraham, our subject; (4)

John, a prominent resident of Bowling Green; (5) Margaret, deceased, formerly the wife of John Gray, of Cloud county, Kans.; (6) James, deceased, a resident of Indiana; (7) William, a well-known citizen of Bowling Green; (8) Ebenezer, of Wood county, Ohio, fell in the battle of Monocacy, in the Union army; (9) George Coen, of Indiana.

Mr. Coen lived with his parents in Knox county until the age of fourteen, when they moved to Hancock county. His early education was obtained in a log school house near his home, and his time was mainly devoted to farm work and getting out logs for the market. On August 28, 1838, he married Miss Sarah Hall, who was born December 30, 1818, in Harrison county, Ohio. The first years of their married life were passed in Hancock county, but in 1849, they came to Plain township, Wood county, and bought a farm, which they cultivated until the development of the oil industry in that locality resulted in the opening of four wells upon their estate. A few years ago they moved to Bowling Green to enjoy the fruits of their labor, and here Mrs. Coen sank into the unbroken repose of death, December 20, 1894, after over fifty-six years of married life. Eleven children were born to them, six of whom grew to adult age: (1) Harriet married Andrew Rush, of Bowling Green, and both died, leaving a family of five children—Flora, Erva, Benham, Boyd and Newell. (2) Mary married Henry Goodenough, a leading citizen of Plain township, whose biography appears elsewhere in this volume; five children were born to them—May, Ruth, Sarah, Harry A., and Walter. (3) Aaron died as the result of exposure and hardship in the army. He was a member of Company C, 21st O. V. I., and had re-enlisted at the end of his first term, when his health gave way and he was sent home. (4) Nancy married Thomas E. Adams, of Findlay, Ohio. (5) Delilah is the wife of A. Chapman, of Bowling Green. They have four children—Fred, Anna, Arthur and Ralph. (6) Rachel married William Hopper, of Plain township, and has three children—George, Perry and Virnil.

Mr. Coen is a prominent member of the Presbyterian Church, and politically is a Republican. His first vote was cast for William H. Harrison. He is a man of remarkably fine physique, and has usually weighed 220 pounds, his "working weight." His declining years are free from care, but the passing away of early associates brings of necessity the chill of loneliness, and a longing for reunion. Notwithstanding the esteem of later friends, and the affection of his children he "is like a giant oak, which, having outlived the storms which laid his companions low, now stands alone."

PETER KRAMP, a retired agriculturist, now residing at Bowling Green, was born in Nassau, Prussia, January 17, 1835. His parents both died when he was quite young, and no record of them has been kept. He was one of six children, the others being Adam, a miner, who died in Germany, at an advanced age; David, who also lived to an old age, and died in Germany; Elizabeth married Philip Schid, and died in Germany; Jennie married Henry Menor, and died in the old country; Catherine is the twin sister of our subject, married Ernest Gross, and lives in Germany.

When Mr. Kramp first came to America, in 1854, he took passage in a sailing vessel, and was thirty-two days in making the voyage. In 1894, when he visited his sister in Germany, he made the trip in eleven days, and the return trip in ten days.

After the death of his parents, our subject and his sister were reared by their eldest brother. Mr. Kramp attended the public schools, and at an early age worked at and learned the tailor's trade. When he came to America, he landed in New York, and thence went direct to Sandusky City, Ohio. At the end of the journey he was indebted four dollars to a friend who had assisted him to reach his destination. He worked on a farm at first, for six dollars per month, and afterwards for $160 per year, until he got married. After his marriage he rented a small farm in Erie county, Ohio, the owner of the farm furnishing a team to do the plowing and heavy work, Mr. Kramp being able only to furnish a horse to do the light work. His wife was a great help to him, and through her assistance and economy, at the end of a year they were able to buy a team, and then rented a larger farm, upon which they lived until they came to Wood county, in 1869. At this time they had saved $1,000, which they paid on an eighty-acre tract in Plain township, which they had purchased for $4,000. After living on this land for eight years, Mr. Kramp exchanged it for 160 acres in the same township, which he yet owns. There are about fifteen producing oil wells on this farm, which yield a comfortable income to the owner. He removed from his farm to Bowling Green about three years since, and has built a comfortable residence in the west part of the village, where he now lives in contentment and quiet enjoyment.

He was married, February 22, 1861, to Miss

Christiana Seel, who was born in Germany, November 13, 1840. Twelve children were born to them, as follows: (1) Henry, now living on his father's farm, born November 13, 1861, married Miss Ida Plowright, and has six children, viz.: Ralph, Mabel, Lena, Clarence, Wallace and Esther. (2) William, born May 18, 1864, married Miss Lydia Wright, and has three children, viz.: Floyd, Leah and Lucy. (3) Philip Peter, born June 7, 1866, married Miss Ada Hartman, and has two children, Edna and Merle. (4) Frederick, born May 22, 1868, died December 9, 1891. (5) Peter, born July 17, 1870, married Miss Vallie Pulse, and has one child, May. (6) George, born August 13, 1872, married Miss Ettie Wright, a sister of his brother William's wife, and has one child, Burl. (7) Louise, born December 9, 1874, died February 9, 1875. (8) Charley, born January 15, 1876, was married in 1895 to Miss Mattie Borland, who died in 1896; one child was born to them, but is now dead. (9) Christiana, born April 11, 1878, lives with her parents. (10) Edward, born April 10, 1880, and (11) John A., born May 28, 1882, reside with their parents. (12) Reuben, the youngest, was born September 2, 1885.

Mr. Kramp belongs to the Evangelical Association, and in politics is a Prohibitionist. He is one of the representative citizens of Wood county, and is enjoying the reward of a well-spent, industrious life.

WILLIAM NELSON is a representative farmer of Center township, where he owns a fine farm of 250 acres. His operations have been marked with uniform success, and in addition to being a thorough and skillful agriculturist, he is a business man of more than ordinary capacity, wise and judicious in his investments, and taking advantage of the facilities afforded at this day and age by improved machinery, and all the other appliances, required by the modern tiller of the soil. Mahoning county, Ohio, was the earliest home of our subject, where he was born June 30, 1820. His parents, James and Sarah (Evenings) Nelson, were natives of Buffalo Valley, Union Co., Penn., where the father engaged in farming until coming to Wood county to make his home with his son. Here his death occurred in 1873, and his wife, who had preceded him to the world beyond, died in 1865. In their family were ten children, named as follows: Jane, Liddie, Jonathan, Katherine, William, James, Mary, John D., Sarah and Jesta.

William Nelson received his education in the district schools, while his farm training was received on the old homestead. At the age of fourteen years he began selling goods on the road, which occupation he continued to follow for sixteen years, during which time he managed by strict economy to save enough money to purchase 160 acres of land in Hancock county, Ohio. A portion of the farm had been placed under cultivation, and to its improvement he devoted his time and attention until 1865, when he disposed of that property and removed to Missouri, remaining there a short time. Coming back to Ohio, he located in Center township, where he bought 100 acres, half of which had been improved. He cleared the balance, and as his financial resources increased, added 150 acres to his farm. Starting out in life with very little capital—in fact, nothing but his strong hands and resolute will—the present condition of Mr. Nelson, socially and financially, reflects great credit upon him, both as an agriculturist and a business man.

In August, 1852, Mr. Nelson was married in Hancock county, the lady of his choice being Miss Rebecca Bowman, who was born March 20, 1830, and is a daughter of Henry Bowman, a prominent farmer of that county. Eight children were born of this union, all of whom survive, and in order of birth are as follows: James L., born July 23, 1853, is a farmer, and, by his marriage with Ellen Shinew, has eight children; William H., born July 26, 1855, carries on agricultural pursuits in Gratiot county, Mich.; Sarah E., born January 4, 1858, is the wife of Thomas Shinew, a farmer of Portage township; Liddie E., born August 31, 1860, is the wife of James Davis, a contractor and builder, of Plain township, Wood county; John A., born May 24, 1864, is a farmer living on the homestead; Louisa J., born October 10, 1866, is the wife of George Crom, a farmer of Michigan; Elmert, born August 7, 1868, married Della Stacy; and Emma R., born November 28, 1872, is the wife of Arthur Vermillia, a farmer of Henry county, Ohio.

Mr. Nelson still resides upon his farm, which is now conducted by his son John, but has laid aside business cares, resting in the enjoyment of the fruits of his former toil. He has liberally aided his children in securing good homes, and to all objects for the good of the community, he has been a cheerful and liberal contributor. His early education was quite limited, but his natural intelligence and habits of observation have served to keep him well informed upon matters of general interest. He is politically at true-blue Republican, and there are few people held in higher esteem than William Nelson and his excellent wife, who has been his faithful and sympathizing companion for upwards of forty-four years.

SAMUEL CASE, one of the most highly respected and influential citizens of Bowling Green, was born in Wayne county, Ohio, March 25, 1832. His great-grandfather, Joshua Case, was born either on Long Island or in Connecticut, and was a farmer by occupation. He reared a family of six children, of whom Augustus, our subject's grandfather, was born July 17, 1759, on Long Island, was there married and removed to New Jersey in 1792.

Augustus Case raised six children, two of whom were born in New Jersey, after which the family removed to Greene county, Penn. The father was a soldier in the Revolutionary war, and received a pension until the time of his death, which took place in Wayne county, Ohio, in 1852, he having reached the advanced age of ninety-three years. The record of his children is as follows: Anna married John Culberson, and they removed to Lawrence county, Ill., where she died; Samuel Y. comes next; John B. died in Indiana; Elizabeth married William Kean, of Wayne county, Ohio; Onesimus died in Wayne county; and Joshua died in Wayne county when thirty-two years old. All of those deceased left families. Dr. Augustus Case, of Miami county, Ind., is a son of Onesimus, and Harvey B. Case, of Loudonville, Ohio, is a son of Joshua.

Samuel Y., the father of our subject, was born September 22, 1796, in Sussex county, N. J., and, as will be seen, was two years of age when, in 1798, the family removed to Pennsylvania. In 1814 he came with his father to Wayne county, Ohio, where he was married, August 20, 1817, to Jane Eakright. The young couple at once settled on a farm in Plain township, Wayne county, which had been given to Mr. Case by his father, and which was their home for forty-five years, and until the death of the husband, which took place in 1870. Mrs. Case was born in Monongahela county, Penn., in 1795, and after the death of her husband made her home with our subject until 1876, when she, too, passed away. This worthy couple were both lifelong members of the Methodist Church, with which body they had worshiped over sixty years. A church was built upon their farm, which was named for them, and in the burying-ground adjacent many members of their family are laid to rest.

Nine children were born to Samuel Y. Case and his wife, of whom the following mention is made: Milton B. died at Grand Junction, Colo.,

S. Case

March 29, 1896; he reared a family of sixteen children. Augustus B. died in Cass county, Neb., in 1865. Youngs C. died in Bowling Green March 22, 1894. Reason B. lives on a part of the old farm in Wayne county. Aaron B. was a farmer in Schuyler county, Mo., where he died in 1886. John B. is a farmer in Sheridan county, Neb. Samuel, our subject, comes next. Elizabeth J. is the wife of M. A. Faws, of Bowling Green. W. H. H. died near Lyons, Colo., December 10, 1885.

The subject of this sketch spent his early days on his father's farm in Wayne county, and when eighteen years old began teaching school, which, in connection with farming, he carried on until he was twenty-eight years old, in the meantime, however, also attending school for two terms in Loudonville, also the O. W. U. at Delaware. After his marriage in 1860 he engaged in the mercantile business for one year at Big Prairie, Wayne county, afterward proceeding to Crestline, Crawford county, where he conducted a dry-goods store for six years. He then removed to Portage, Wood county, keeping a store there for one year, when, in 1868, he took up his residence in Bowling Green, and, in connection with Addison Fay, opened a store which they conducted some four years. Our subject then sold out his interest, and spent some time in traveling, after which he bought land on Liberty Prairie, in this county.

In 1874 Mr. Case was elected auditor of Wood county, on the Republican ticket, and served seven consecutive years, after which he engaged in the real-estate business, to which he has devoted the most of his attention up to the present time. For two years he was the secretary of the Bowling Green Natural Gas Co., in which he had an interest, and has been largely interested in the production of oil and the development of the oil field in his county. He received ninety-seven votes in the Republican State Convention, held in Columbus in 1881, for member of the Board of Public Works, and was only defeated because of his location.

Mr. Case was married September 6, 1860, to Miss Mary E. McMahan, who was born May 23, 1840, in Jeromesville, Ashland Co., Ohio. Of this union four children have been born, namely: Laura May, who married Rev. Lemuel Lee Warner; he died December 19, 1888, at Genoa, leaving two children—Marie L. and Donald C. Myron L. married Agnes Boyd; he is cashier of the National Bank at Dunkirk, Ind.; this couple have one daughter—Marjorie. Rosella C. is the wife of Rev. Elmer E. McCammon, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal Church at Marysville, Ohio; they have two children—John W. and Myron B. Samuel R. married Kate, only child of Dr. Whitehead; he is a merchant tailor in Bowling Green.

Mr. Case has been an important factor in the growth and development of the city and county, where he has made his home for so many years, and has always used his influence to promote their best interests. He took an active part in raising the subscription for the building of the T. & O. C. railway through Bowling Green, and has materially assisted in various other public enterprises. He was a member of the school board some eleven years, and a justice of the peace for one term in Plain township. He has been a consistent member of the Methodist Church since sixteen years of age, and his upright, honorable life is an example which any young man would do well to follow. He possesses the love and esteem of all who know him, and wields a powerful influence for good throughout the community.

NATHAN HOWARD MILLS, one of the leading and honored citizens of Wood county, prominent in business, political and social circles, was born in Perry county, Ohio, June 1, 1862, and is a son of Greenbury Mills. His father was born in Maryland, August 19, 1823, and when a boy left his native State, removing with his parents to Perry county, Ohio, the family locating on a farm near New Lexington. Before the war the father of our subject removed to Hancock county, where he was employed as a farm hand for a few years. There he was married in 1843, and soon after returned to Perry county, where he resided until 1862, when he went with his family to Hancock county, taking up his residence near Findlay. In 1871 he came to Wood county, and purchased forty acres of wild land in Jackson township. Part of the the town of Hoytville now stands upon this place, and the first grocery store there was built upon the father's land. Mr. Mills at once began to clear and improve his farm, and some years later erected thereon a comfortable dwelling, which he made his place of abode until his death, which occurred April 12, 1895. Mrs. Mills died August 17, 1891. She was a kind and faithful wife and mother, and dearly beloved by all who knew her. She was an active worker in the Christian Church, and the father also held membership with that Church. In politics he was a stanch Democrat, and was an honored and esteemed citizen.

Mr. and Mrs. Mills had a family of eleven children, namely: Mary, wife of T. J. Down-ham. of Jackson township; John T., a farmer of Jackson township; Delilah Jane, wife of W. M. Clarke, of Arkansas; Catherine, wife of John Eaken, of Hoytville; James E., a carpenter of Hoytville; William H., of Swanton, Ohio; Liddy M., wife of A. P. Kiger, of Hoytville; Nathan H.; Lucinda H., wife of John Embrey, of Athens county, Ohio; Henry C., of Hoytville; and Sarah, who died at the age of sixteen years. Our subject was only a year old when the family removed to Hancock county, Ohio, and a child of eight when they came to Wood county. He acquired his education in the district schools of these two counties; but at the age of fourteen left the school room to learn the harder duties of practical business life. He then entered the employ of the Dewey Stave Company, with which he has since been connected, working his way steadily upward, until since April, 1892, he has served as superintendent. Fidelity to duty is numbered among his chief characteristics, and was the secret of his advancement.

In Hoytville, on October 27, 1882, Mr. Mills married Miss Amy C. Wall, who was born February 4, 1862, in Hancock county, Ohio, daughter of Henry B. and Mary Jane (Green) Wall. They now have three children—William W., Mabel G., and Arnold E. They began their domestic life in Hoytville, Mr. Mills erecting a home close to his place of business, and there resided until June, 1895, when he sold his dwelling and removed to the old homestead. His business career has been one of success, and he now has considerable capital out at interest.

In his political affiliations he is a stalwart Republican, and in 1895 was elected mayor of Hoytville, but his pressing business duties forced him to resign. He has served as councilman for two years, and in all possible ways has promoted his county's welfare. He belongs to the Knights of Pythias fraternity, has filled all of the chairs, and represented the local lodge in the Grand Lodge. He also holds a life insurance policy in the Endowment Rank, K. P., and is secretary of Section 1,498. He has been dependent entirely upon his own resources since the age of fourteen years, and is the architect of his own fortune. Upon the solid foundation of diligence, enterprise, and sound judgment, he has erected the superstructure of success, and to-day is a substantial citizen of the community.

DAVID H. WIRICK, who has lived retired in Jerry City since the spring of 1891, is one of the successful self-made farmers of Wood county. He is a native of Ohio, born May 15, 1835, in Monroe township, Richland county, son of Henry and Catherine (Spade) Wirick, who had a family of ten children—seven sons and three daughters. Henry Wirick was born in Pennsylvania, and learned the trade of cabinet maker in Baltimore when a young man. He was married in Pennsylvania, where he lived for a time, moving from that State to Ohio in pioneer days, and locating in Richland county, where his wife died. He subsequently removed to Wyandot county, this State, where he passed his remaining days, dying at the home of his daughter Sarah; he and his wife rest side by side in the cemetery in Monroe township, Richland county. Mr. Wirick was a soldier in the war of 1812. He was a Democrat in politics, and in religious faith was an adherent of the Swedenborgian Church.

Our subject was the sixth child and fifth son of his father's large family. During his boyhood he attended the subscription schools then in vogue in the home neighborhood, and received a thorough training to agriculture under his father, working at home until he reached his majority. On commencing life for himself he worked for from three shillings to fifty cents a day and board. On November 18, 1859, he was married, in Richland county, to Mary A. Smith, a native of that county, who was born November 15, 1834, daughter of John H. Smith, and the following spring the young couple came to Wood county, where they commenced housekeeping. They made the trip by team, and on their arrival located on an eighty-acre tract which he had purchased, situated in Section 8, Bloom township, and which cost $800. Mr. Wirick paid down $200 of this amount, and settled the remainder in installments of $50, so it will be seen that he did not have an over-abundance of capital with which to begin. The land was timber covered, and the five acres which had been partly cleared, were, if anything, in a worse condition than the remainder. A log cabin was the only dwelling on the place, and they commenced in true pioneer style, Mr. Wirick working steadily until he had transformed the place from a wilderness to a fertile, productive farm. In 1888 he had an attack of "la grippe," which undermined his health so much as to unfit him for active labor, and he has since lived retired, having removed to his pleasant home in Jerry City, in the spring of 1891. He acquired a comfortable competence, and was able to give to each of his two sons an eighty-acre farm.

To David H. and Mary A. Wirick were born three children, viz.: Francis M., who is a farmer of Bloom township; Laura C., who died in infancy; and Charles, who is also a farmer in Bloom township. The mother of these passed from earth April 9, 1870, and was buried in Bloom Chapel cemetery, and Mr. Wirick wedded, for his second wife, Mrs. Lavina Edgar, widow of Hector Edgar, and daughter of John Davis, of Henry township, Wood county. She died June 3, 1880, without issue, and was laid to rest in North Baltimore cemetery. December 28, 1882, Mr. Wirick was again married, this time, in Bloom township, to Mrs. Sarah (Boyd) Swope, a native of Jackson township, Seneca county; no children have come to this union. Mr. Wirick is a most highly esteemed citizen, and he is as well liked for his kindness of heart as for his integrity and industry. Possessed of good common sense and judgment, he was an influential man in his community, and served as trustee and constable in Bloom township. He is a Democrat in political faith, but usually votes for the best man, regardless of politics.

WILLIAM H. MINTON, one of the pioneers of Wood county, now an honored resident of Plain Center, Plain township, was born March 7, 1828, in Morris county, N. J., where his ancestors had settled at an early period.

His grandfather, Nathan Minton, was a soldier in the war of 1812, and his great-grandfather, Isaac Johnston, was a soldier in the Revolutionary war. His father, Jacob Minton, was born February 26, 1796, and was in early life a wagon maker. He married Miss Philetta Willison, also a native of New Jersey, born September 27, 1798, and, in 1834, they moved to Ohio, traveling part of the way by water. They stopped for a short time at Fort Miami, and then after a few months at the old missionary station on the banks of the Maumee river, twenty miles above Toledo, they settled upon land in Plain township, Wood county, where they established their home in the clearing. They were both members of the Presbyterian Church, of Morristown, N. J. (Rev. Albert Barnes, pastor), but after coming west they united with the Plain Congregational Church, of which they remained throughout life, faithful and active members. Before the war issues arose, Mr. Minton, Sr., was a Whig, and then became a Republican, and later joined the Prohibition party. He died April 6, 1884, followed two years and a half later by his wife, who breathed her last on the eve of her eighty-eighth birthday. They had eight children: Hannah M. (deceased) married Martin Warner, of Tontogany, now an elder in the Presbyterian Church; Robert B. died in Carlinville, Ill.; and was a professor in Blackburn University at the time of his death; Nathan W. lives in Washington county, Ky.; William H.; Sarah (deceased); Martha B. is the wife of Luke Carr, of Bowling Green; Jacob was a soldier in the Civil war in Company H, 67th O. V. I., and was killed at Fort Wagner; Philetta died when four months old.

Our subject, who is the fourth child of this family, spent his boyhood upon his father's farm, and attended the neighboring schools. Later he studied for one year in the academy at Castalian Springs, Tenn. On October 23, 1850, he married Miss Sallie S. Woodbury, who was born in Falmouth, Mass., December 15, 1832. Their seven children are all living. Benjamin H. is a photographer at Bellevue, Huron county; he married Miss Eliza Clark. Alice J. married Fred Smedley, of Berea, Ohio, who is a graduate of Oberlin College and a photographer, and has four children—Grace, Ruth, Clifford, and Bessie. Lillie C. married Henry A. Ross, of Caldwell, Kans., and has four sons—Minton, Harry, Marshall, and Elbert. Charlotte M. is the wife of Thaddeus W. Heermans, a machinist of Evanston, Ill.; they have two children—Thomas and Miriam. Henry M. is a captain in the Salvation Army in the Hawaiian Islands. Jacob D. lives in Enid, O. T.; he married Miriam Lee, of Kansas City, and has one son—Harvey L. Mabel married Edwin Munn, of Portage, Ohio, and has one child—Lelia F.

Mr. Minton served his country during the Civil war by enlisting in Company B, 144th O. V. I. Both he and his wife are members of the Plain Congregational Church, with which Mr. Minton united at the age of fourteen. He is a prominent Prohibitionist, and has been a delegate to several State conventions, and his integrity and devotion to his principles win the respect of even political opponents.

IRA B. BANKS, deceased. The subject of this sketch, formerly a leading business man of Wood county, was born in New York State December 4, 1826. He came west early in life, locating first in Woodville, Sandusky county, and, later, on a farm near by, at what is now known as Banks' Corners.

In 1864 he came to Wood county, and started a mercantile business at Pemberville, which in 1865, he moved to Weston, where a few years afterward Mr. H. C. Uhlman became his junior partner. The business was confined to general merchandise, and finally limited to dry goods. Mr. Banks was an active agent in the development of trade in his vicinity, and his sterling qualities of mind and heart made him friends wherever he was known. His death, which occurred October 21, 1891, was widely mourned by a wide circle of acquaintances. His mother (who resides at Elmore, Ohio), his wife and five children survive him. He was a member of the Presbyterian Church, and had for many years given generous support to its work. In politics he was a Republican, and he belonged to Phoenix Lodge, F. & A. M., at Perrysburg.

Mr. Banks was married, in Fremont, Ohio, to Miss Jemima Smith, who was born in Essex county, N. J., August 10, 1834. She was the daughter of John and Catherine Smith, who came from New Jersey to Ohio in 1851 and settled near Woodville, where their last days were spent. Mrs. Banks still resides in Weston, and with her sons conducts the old business under the firm name of I. B. Banks Co. Her eldest son is Fred J. (2) Bradley D., born March 26, 1858, was educated in the Weston schools, and for some time clerked for his father—in 1880 taking a one-half interest in the hardware business. In 1884 he assumed charge of the branch hardware store at McClure, Henry county; but four years later sold out and returned to Weston. He is non-partisan in politics, and, fraternally, is a member of the F. & A. M. (3) George R., born October 20, 1862, was educated in the Weston schools. He has been connected with the store from boyhood, clerking there prior to his father's death. At that time, having been appointed executor of the estate, by his father's will, he took full charge of the business, which he has ever since conducted with eminent success, and in a manner highly creditable to himself. He is a stockholder in the Exchange Bank, and, though yet a young man, is regarded as a leader in business circles. Politically he is a Republican, and is at present serving his second term as village treasurer. Socially, he is a member of the K. O. T. M., at Weston. (4) John B. is in the furniture and undertaking business at Perry, O. T. (5) Julia is the wife of L. E. Long, of Deshler, Ohio. The Banks family have always been noted for sound business judgment and a spirit of enterprise, and the present generation are worthy representatives of the old stock.

LEWIS DIENST, one of Wood county's prominent farmers, and residing in Portage township, was born on a farm in Upper Canada, December 10, 1834. His father was born in Germany, and when a young man crossed the Atlantic to Canada, where he met and married Miss Barbara Unsicker, also a native of Germany, who came with her parents to America during her early girlhood. He died when our subject was a young lad, leaving but two children: Lewis, and Daniel, who is now engaged in farming near Lincoln, in Platte county, Neb. The mother afterward became the wife of Nicholas Dienst, and our subject has always borne the name of his step-father. Six children were born by the second union, namely: Eliza, wife of Rufus Sumner, of Trumbull county, Ohio; Nicholas, a mechanic and farmer living in Portage township, Wood county; Mrs. Barbara Jones, of Akron, Ohio; John, a farmer of Kansas; Henry, an agriculturist of Michigan; and one that died in infancy.

Our subject was only about two years old when he accompanied his mother and step-father to the United States. They made their way to Cleveland, Ohio, thence to Sandusky county, and subsequently removed to Lucas county. The year 1847 witnessed their arrival in Wood county, and they located in the town of Portage, where Mr. Dienst, Sr., purchased a house and lot. He was a tailor by trade, and followed that business throughout the greater part of his life. He passed away in Portage many years ago; his wife died in 1854.

The educational privileges which Lewis Dienst received were very limited. He was fourteen years of age before he began to learn the alphabet; then walked a quarter of a mile to the home of Henry Hoskins, to receive instruction, and subsequently attended the schools of Portage. Through experience and observation he has become a well-informed man, but is self-educated as well as self-made. He began to earn his living by working as a farm hand for Collister Haskins, at $6 per month and board. His wages were afterward increased from time to time until, on attaining his majority, he was receiving $14 per month and board. He remained in the employ of Mr. Haskins fifteen consecutive years. Trustworthy and reliable, he had the unqualified confidence of that gentleman, as is well indicated by his long service. He then operated the farm on shares for a few years, after which he purchased forty acres of prairie land in Liberty township, continuing its cultivation some four years. The labors of Mr. Dienst were then interrupted by his service in the Union army. On August 6, 1862, he enlisted at Portage, in Company K, 111th O. V. I. During his service he was once slightly wounded, but remained until the close of the war, and took part in every engagement in which his regiment participated. He received a wound in his left shoulder at the battle of Franklin, Tenn., and several times his clothes were pierced with bullets. He served as sergeant, and was promoted from first sergeant to second lieutenant, April 12, 1864, and was first lieutenant at close of the war, or when his regiment was discharged. The war having ended, he was mustered out at Cleveland, Ohio, July 27, 1865, and at once returned to his home.

LEWIS DIENST.

MRS. ELIZABETH DIENST.

In the fall of 1861, in Trumbull county, Ohio, Mr. Dienst was united in marriage with Miss Elizabeth Shaffer, and to them have been born four children: Albert, who became a conductor on the Baltimore & Ohio railroad, lost his health through exposure in that service, and died (a Christian man) at the age of twenty-four; Altha A. is the wife of Curtis Munn, of Portage, Ohio; Jennie E. is the wife of John Friend, of Rudolph, Ohio; one child died in infancy.

Before going to the war Mr. Dienst sold his first farm, and in the fall after his return he purchased 128 acres in Portage township, a wild and unimproved tract, but with characteristic energy he began its development. His first home was a log cabin, 16 x 20 feet, which he helped to build during his boyhood. He now has a large and comfortable frame residence, and a well-improved farm of fifty-two acres, having sold the remainder of the property. He also owns 392 acres of land in Sheridan county, Kans., situated within two miles of the county seat, Hoxie (in this vicinity Albert L. Dienst pre-empted seventy-two acres, and it was there he died). Success has attended his enterprising efforts, and his prosperity is the just reward of his labors. In politics he is a stalwart Republican. He has been offered various offices, but declined to serve, though he acted as assessor some four years, has been school director of the corporation for nine years, and was councilman for several years. The cause of education, and all interests calculated to improve the community, receive his support, and he is a valued and esteemed citizen of Wood county. He holds membership with the United Brethren Church, with which his wife and children are also connected.

MRS. MARY J. BECK, wife of A. D. Beck, was born in Beaver, (now Lawrence) county, Penn., on April 30, 1837, and is a daughter of Robert and Mary (McCarter) Mackey. Her father was a farmer of the Keystone State, and in 1850 drove across the country to Wood county, Ohio, locating on a new farm of 160 acres in Section 18, Bloom township. He continued to clear and cultivate his land until his death, which occurred November 16, 1871, and on the same farm his wife died November 28, 1874, being interred in Whitacre cemetery. In their family were the following children: (1) Daniel, born February 20, 1822, died in Lawrence county, Penn. (2) William, born July 13, 1825, died in Pennsylvania at the age of four years. (3) Alexander, born March 4, 1827, makes his home in North Baltimore, Ohio. (4) James, born July 5, 1829, died in Bloom township, Wood county, in 1861. (5) Robert, who makes his home in Perry township, was born April 17, 1831, and for twenty-seven winter terms and one summer term engaged in teaching, while for fifteen years he conducted a saw-mill. (6) Joseph, of Fannin county, Texas, was born December 22, 1832, and served throughout the Civil war as a member of the 9th Ill. Cav. (7) Mary J. is the next in order of birth. (8) John, born February 28, 1840, resides in Putnam county, Ohio. The political affiliations of the father were with the Democratic party.

On July 12, 1864, was celebrated the marriage of A. C. Russell and Miss Mary J. Mackey. The former was born in the Empire State, in 1838, and was a son of Norman Russell, an early settler of Perry township. He engaged in farming in Perry township until 1881, when he removed to Van Zandt county, Texas, where, in November of the following year, he died, and his remains were brought back and interred at West Millgrove, Ohio. On December 18, 1887, in Texas, Mrs. Russell became the wife of A. D. Beck, who was born in Washington county, Ind., June 19, 1831, son of Andrew and Susan (Diven) Beck. The father was born in 1800, in North Carolina, and when only eight years old was taken by his father to Washington county, Ind., where the latter was one of the honored pioneers.

In 1852 Mr. Beck went to Texas, but the following year returned to Lawrence county, Ind., where he wedded Catherine Horsey, by whom he had four children—Susan, now Mrs. Kemp Morley, of Greenville, Texas; Emma, wife of John Roberts, of Van Zandt county, Texas; Clara, who died in childhood, and John, of Van Zandt county. The mother passed away December 1, 1866, in Martin county, Ind. In October, 1864, Mr. Beck enlisted from Indiana, in Company B, 31st Ind. V. I., and served nearly a year. He had again married in his native State, and in 1880 removed with his wife to Texas, where she died. He was again married, in the Lone Star State, but this wife died there about ten months after their marriage.

In 1888 Mr. and Mrs. Beck returned North, locating in Perry township, Wood Co., Ohio, and here have a good farm of 100 acres, which he is successfully operating. A large willow tree, which stands on this farm, has grown from a little riding whip, brought from Perrysburg, nearly sixty years ago. Mr. and Mrs. Beck have a large circle of friends, who hold them in the highest esteem and confidence. Mrs. Beck has no children of her own, but is rearing a little niece, Mary Mackey, the daughter of Joseph Mackey. In politics Mr. Beck is an ardent Democrat, and he is a member of the Disciples Church.

LEWIS C. CAROTHERS, a well-known and highly esteemed hotel-keeper, of Rudolph, was born in Portage township, Wood county, May 23, 1844, and is the son of Francis and Elizabeth (Garthwaite) Carothers.

Francis Carothers was born in Pennsylvania, and was there married, October 17, 1815, to Miss Margaret Fitzsimmons, who was born February 20, 1788. She died in November, 1839, and was buried in Sargent cemetery. His second wife (the mother of our subject) was the widow of Pascal Besanson. She and Mr. Carothers were married August 5, 1841, in Wood county. Mr. Carothers died five years later in Portage township, and was buried in Sargent cemetery. Mrs. Carothers died in 1881, and was buried in Portage township. She always lived on the home farm, in Portage township; in religious faith she was a Presbyterian. Mr. Carothers took a prominent part in all matters pertaining to the county, and was associate judge and assessor of Wood county. In fulfilling the duties of the latter office he was obliged to go over the entire county. The children by his first wife were: James H., born November 18, 1816, died in California in 1878; William R., born January 1, 1818, died in Portage township in 1883; Samuel, born November 16, 1820, died in California in 1873; Nancy J., born February 18, 1823, died in April, 1852, unmarried; Eleanor, born February 14, 1825, died September 10, 1849; David N., born August 7, 1827, followed the sea all his life, traveled all over the world, and "came home to die"; Mary Margaret, born April 1, 1830, married William Brokaw, and died October 9, 1882, in Galion, Ohio. By the second wife two children were born: Francis, September 22, 1842, died May 28, 1845; and Lewis C., our subject.

Lewis C. Carothers was reared on the farm near the village of Portage. In 1862, he enlisted in Company D, 111th O. V. I., under Capt. J. E. McGowen. The regiment's first engagement was at Huff's Ferry, Tenn. Mr. Carothers participated in all the battles of his regiment, being with it continuously, with the exception of two weeks, until his discharge in June, 1865. The war now over, he returned to his home on the farm. When oil was discovered in Pennsylvania, he left home to work in the oil-field there. For a year he worked at the business until he had done all kinds of work that was to be done in the field, except the dressing of tools (at that time the driller was below the tool-dresser in rank). Returning to the farm, he remained until October, 1872, when he went to California, and embarked in the sheep business. Pleased with the prospects before him, he returned home at the lapse of a year and married a lady well known to the teachers of Wood county, she having taught for five years in the county. Miss Rose Call now becomes the happy Mrs. Carothers. On the 20th day of November, 1873, they are married, and on the same day started for the Pacific Coast to become partners in the sheep business, as well as all affairs pertaining to their future life. During the drouth of 1874-75 (nineteen months without a drop of rain), the sheep business became a general failure, and Mr. Carothers lost so heavily that he was forced to give up the business. In farming, however, and other work, he gathered a little means; but getting badly hurt by being thrown from a horse, which accident unfitted him for business for the time, he decided to return to the home farm once more, and care for his aged mother and brother, now very anxious for his return.

In 1878 he again finds himself on the old homestead. Two years later his mother died, and three years later his brother William followed, leaving Mr. Carothers the only representative of his father's family. On his farm he remained until the spring of 1892, when he took up the management of the Ruth-Miller farm, in Portage township, near Mermill. He farmed this place for three seasons, then embarked in the hotel business at Rudolph.

To Mr. and Mrs. Carothers have come the following children: Herbert L., born in Tulare county, Cal., September 7, 1874, died in same place, February 3, 1876; Frank L., born in Pacheco, Cal., March 20, 1878, died at Portage (on farm), February 23, 1891; William G., born June 12, 1881, and Leonard V., born February 26, 1886, both at home; and Jessie M., born October 24, 1890, died July 23, 1894. Politically, Mr. Carothers had always been a Democrat until 1884, when his great interest in the temperance reform led him out of the old party, and he declared himself, out-and-out, for Prohibition. His wife is an ardent lover of the W. C. T. U., and has been for years a faithful worker in the cause of temperance. They are members of the Christian Church. Mr. Carothers is of a genial nature, and his kind-hearted wife is a woman of noble character. They carry on their business in a very commendable and successful manner, and are highly spoken of by all who have the pleasure of their acquaintance.

PROF. W. G. ELLIOTT, a prominent educator of Wood county, and one of the leading citizens of Bloomdale, was born in Loudon township, Seneca Co., Ohio, November 7, 1860. His family is of English origin, his great-grandfather, Samuel Elliott, having come alone from England when a boy. He married, and reared a family of six children: George, Samuel, Joseph, Susan, Winnie and Lydia. Joseph Elliott, our subject's grandfather, was born near Fredericksburg, Md. He married Eleanor McKenny, who was born in the United States of Irish parentage, and had nine children: David, Frederick, Augustus, William, James, Ann, Susan, Eliza, and Melvina, all of whom lived to adult age. He was a successful farmer in Maryland until 1850, and then moved to a fine farm near Little Washington, Rappahannock Co., Va., where he and his wife lived to a ripe old age.

David Elliott, our subject's father, was born near Fredericksburg, January 31, 1824. He had but limited education, as the subscription schools of the locality only furnished instruction in reading and writing, and, while his parents were comfortably situated, they could not afford the cash needed for schooling elsewhere. He lived at home until after the removal of the family to Virginia, and in 1851 started for California in search of wealth, but impelled chiefly by a dislike for slavery. The only employment open to him was the guarding of negro slaves, and these he often allowed to escape. He stopped in Missouri, where he spent about a year, but the total severance of old ties of friendship proved too painful. A former neighbor, Mrs. Sarah Updyke, and her family, had settled in Seneca county, Ohio, in April, 1853, on an eighty-acre tract, and this fact led to a visit, in September, 1853, to that locality. He was married there, on October 4, 1853, to Miss Lydia A. Updyke, who was born in Rappahannock county, Va., October 20, 1826. She was one of a family of seven children: Rufus, who died in Fairfield county; Susan, who married Christopher Santemyer, and died in Bloom township, Wood county; Elizabeth, the widow of George Worley, of Bloom township; Lydia A. (Mr. Elliott's first wife); Jane, who died in Virginia at eighteen years of age; Mahala, now the widow of Caleb Worley, of Montgomery township; and Mary E. (Mrs. Elliott). Mr. Updyke died in 1840, and his widow kept a home for the family until her children were all settled in life, when she sold the farm and lived with her children. Her death occurred in Bloom township in 1894 at the age of ninety years.

After his marriage David Elliott located upon forty acres of land near his wife's family, where he remained until 1866. His first wife died February 13, 1855, leaving one child—Marshall H., born January 15, 1855, now a farmer in Bloom township. Mr. Elliott was married April 17, 1856, to Miss Mary E. Updyke, a sister of the former wife, born in Virginia, January 18, 1833. Four children were born of this union: Mary A., June 26, 1857, who is at home; William G., our subject; Sarah E., January 29, 1862, now Mrs. George W. Markwood, of Perry township, and David F., April 2, 1864, a resident of Ionia county, Mich. In April, 1866, David Elliott sold his farm and came to Wood county, purchasing forty acres in Bloom township, to which he added until he owned 160 acres, which he sold in 1887 for $15,000. In September, 1887, he moved to Perry township, and bought 100 acres, where he made his home. He was a tall, robust man, and until five years before his death, which occurred September 5, 1891, he had enjoyed the best of health. He was a Republican in politics, but sympathized strongly with the Prohibition party. He never allowed his name to be presented as a candidate for office. He and his wife were prominent members of the U. B. Church to which he gave liberally both of money and time, holding many different offices. His widow still lives at the homestead, passing her declining years free from care and highly respected by all who know her.

W. G. Elliott was a boy of five years when he first came to this county, and the district schools of Bloom township gave him his first draught at the well of knowledge. Their facilities were very limited, however, and when he had finished the common branches, they could do no more for him, and his later extensive knowledge of the higher branches was obtained by private study. He attended Fostoria Academy (Prof. Jackson, principal) for four months. His first teaching was in 1880, in the Kimberlin school, in Weston township, and he has since become one of the best known instructors in the county, holding the position of superintendent of schools at Bairdstown, Bloomdale and Milbury. His information is accurate, and covers a wide range of modern thought, and it has been won by his almost unaided efforts. He is peculiarly fitted to understand and smooth away the perplexities of other students. In the fall of 1893 he was elected superintendent of schools for Perry township, which position he held for three successive years, and is the only official of that rank in Wood county who succeeded in holding that position for more than one year. He is a shrewd business man also, and, as executor of his father's will, he displayed excellent management. From 1890 to 1893, he was engaged in the grocery and queensware business in Bloomdale, and erected a fine business block with two store rooms, and this building he still owns. In 1893, Mr. Elliott began the study of law, under the tutorship of Hon. Benjamin F. James, of Bowling Green, Ohio; in April, 1896, he entered the law school at Ada, Ohio, where he was admitted to the Senior class, from which institution he graduated with honors, and was admitted to the bar to practice in the Ohio courts, June 25, 1896. He is at the present time completing the post-graduate course in law from the same institution. He is a stockholder in the Bloomdale Building and Loan Association. He was married October 12, 1887, in Genoa, Ohio, to Flora A. Shaner, a native of Perrysburg, and a daughter of Wesley Shaner, of Genoa, Ohio. She is a lady of rare ability and culture, a member of the M. E. Church, and was a teacher before her marriage. With the exception of a few years in Millbury, their home has been in Bloom township. They have had three children: Ruth L., born January 4, 1890, died June 1, 1892; Howard W., born October 13, 1892; and Marion E., born February 24, 1895.

In politics Prof. Elliott is a staunch Republican, and his first vote was cast for James G. Blaine. He has always been an active worker in the ranks of his party. He is a member of the K. of P. Lodge No. 278, Bloomdale.

ABRAM HYTER, a prosperous agriculturist and sawmill operator of Montgomery township, is one of the most respected citizens of his locality, and he and his estimable wife have been identified with many progressive movements—social, religious and charitable.

He is a native of Carroll county, Md., where he began his earthly pilgrimage June 4, 1829. His parents were Jacob and Margaret (Koontz) Hyter. They came to Ohio when our subject was very young, and his early years were passed in Seneca county as a pioneer farmer's boy with only the district schools, often times two miles distant, to supply his thirst for knowledge. His time was mainly spent at home until his marriage, April 26, 1855, in Tiffin, Ohio, to Miss Mary Stewart, who was born in Lycoming county, Penn., November 8, 1830, the eldest child of Thomas D. and Fannie (Riddle) Stewart. In 1838 they came to Seneca county, Ohio, where Mrs. Stewart died in 1843; and in 1854, Mr. Stewart located in Perry township, Wood county, where he passed his remaining years. Mrs. Hyter, for three years before her marriage, taught in the district schools, her salary being sometimes as low as $10.00 a month, and of course, "boarded round."

Mr. Hyter bought forty acres of land in Perry township, upon which little clearing had been done, and here they began housekeeping. The land was very wet and sadly in need of ditching. A year later they returned to Seneca county, and Mr. Hyter there rented land of his father-in-law, for a time; but in 1859 he purchased ninety-five acres in Section 11, Montgomery township, and removed thither, occupying a log cabin which, with a small log stable, was the only building on the place. There were but a few acres of cleared land, and the ensuing years were full of toil; but he prospered, and now has 135 acres of land, with fine buildings and improvements. In the spring of 1871 he went to Genoa, Ohio, and remained until the spring of 1881, during his stay there conducting a wooden-bowl factory. For several years past he has engaged in the sawmill business, and his success in acquiring a competence demonstrates his business ability.

Mr. and Mrs. Hyter have had six children: Anna F., who married E. R. Kirk, of Ottawa county, Ohio, and has one son; Jennie A., who died in childhood; Nellie C., who married A. A. Stump, of Bradner, and has three sons; Charles E., a resident of Bradner, married Jennie Clark, and has two sons and one daughter; Schuyler C. married Gail Hamilton, and has one daughter (they live in Bradner), and Inez G. is at home. The parents are leading members of the M. P. Church, of Bradner, in which he now holds the office of trustee. Mrs. Hyter is a woman of noble character and fine mentality, whose helpfulness in varied lines of work has done much for the locality. She is a valued member of the Woman's Relief Corps, and of the Rebekah Lodge. Mr. Hyter belongs to the I. O. O. F. at Genoa. He has been a Republican from the formation of the party, and has taken an active share in the local work, serving as township trustee for six terms, and for some time as member of the Bradner District school board. He holds an interest in fourteen oil wells, nine of which are on his own land.

Abram Hyler

JONAS FRY. The early pioneers of the great State of Ohio are becoming few in number. The years which have seen the wonderful development and growth of the country where they built their log cabins in the dense forests, or on the wide stretch of uncultivated prairie, have also seen their hair become silvered and their stalwart form bend beneath the infirmities of old age. But they have the satisfaction of knowing that, by their industry and toil, patient endurance of privations, and hardships, and unbounded faith in the future of the magnificent country about them, they have made the State what it is—one of the greatest in the Union. Among the early settlers of Wood county is to be found the citizen whose name introduces this sketch, and who is entitled to share in the gratitude of the present generation for the part he has taken in developing the resources of this section. After a busy life full of useful activity Mr. Fry is now enjoying a well-earned rest in a beautiful house in North Baltimore, having moved there, in 1891, from the farm whereon his youngest son is now living.

Our subject was born in Lehigh county, Penn., July 10, 1825, the youngest of the five children of Adam and Catharine (Sourwine) Fry, both natives of Pennsylvania, of German extraction. The father of our subject came, in 1828, to Trumbull county, Ohio, where he purchased a farm in Jackson township. Here he lived until the death of his wife, who was eighty-two years of age at the time, after which event he made his home with his children until his death, which occurred when he was eighty-four years old. Jonas was reared to manhood in Ohio, attended the district schools, and assisted his father upon the farm until his marriage, May 24, 1849, with Miss Elizabeth Greenawalt, who was born December 11, 1829, in Schuylkill county, Penn. Her father, Peter Greenawalt, and mother, Elizabeth (Kistler), were both born in Pennsylvania, and died when she was an infant. She is the youngest of six children, and the only one now living. To Mr. and Mrs. Fry came seven children, as follows: (1) Sylvester A., born March 4, 1850, married Miss Sarah Fackler (who is now deceased), and had eight children—Emma V., Allen T., Effie A. (deceased), Elizabeth E., Cora May (deceased), Altie A. (deceased), Vemba L. and Sarah Hallie. (2) Elizabeth, born May 26, 1852, is the wife of J. W. Cole, and has had ten children—Cora A., Charles J., William E. (deceased), Oscar H. (deceased), Jonas Lloyd, Mary E., Maggie May, Nancy P., Florence M. and John W. (3) J. W., born January 16, 1855, married Miss Charlotte E. Graham (now deceased), and has had six children—Bert Clyde, Frank F. (deceased), Minnie E. (deceased), Lottie Hazel, Flora G. (deceased), and John H. (4) Mary Jane, born February 8, 1858, married Lewis Whitacre, and has one child—Frank S. (5) Augusta A., born July 17, 1860, married Henry Halboth, and has one child—Fred A. (6) Charles A., born February 10, 1862, married Miss Alice Haines, and has one child—Elizabeth M. (7) Emma A., born September 6, 1863, died in infancy.

After his marriage Mr. Fry lived for some years in Mahoning county, but came to Wood county nearly forty years ago, locating in Bloom township, and has made his home here ever since. His farm was all woods when he came to it, and he did all the clearing himself excepting a little his sons did after they grew up, and he has one of the finest farms in Bloom township. In early life he and his wife were members of the Reformed Dutch Church, but later united with the Presbyterian Church. They are consistent Christian people, ever ready to assist in all good works. The family is well known throughout the township, and enjoys the respect and esteem of the community. In politics Mr. Fry is a Democrat, and, while not taking an active part in political matters, does his duty as a loyal citizen in upholding good men for office.

LUTHER C. WINCHELL, a well-known business man residing at Risingsun, is a financier of high standing, and the owner of extensive oil and agricultural holdings. His advice is often sought in important interests, and the esteem in which he is held gives the strongest evidence of the unbroken good faith which he has kept with the public in his dealings.

Mr. Winchell's ancestry on both sides was of Yankee stock, but his father, Luther Winchell, was born in New York State, where he was bound out when a boy, his father having died. In early manhood he served in the war of 1812, taking part in the battle of Sackett's Harbor. He followed the blacksmith's trade for a time, but, disagreeing with his boss, he left him, and coming to Ohio settled in Lake county, there marrying Miss Phoebe Waterman, a native of Pennsylvania. Later he spent five years in DuPage county, Ill., and bought a large tract of land, which he sold at a handsome profit. Returning to Ohio, he purchased another large quantity of land at $10 per acre in Sandusky county, and his remaining years were passed there and in Lake county, where he died at the age of ninety-one years, his health being good up to the last and his faculties unimpaired. His wife lived to ninety years of age, and they were interred side by side in Scott township, Sandusky county. He left a fortune of $50,000, at his death, which had been acquired through his own industry and judicious investments. There was always a blacksmith shop on his farm, and for many years he did his own work; but later he bought and sold paper and managed his real-estate interests. He took great interest in the success of the Democratic party, in which he was a prominent worker, being often called upon to act as chairman of meetings. Our subject was one of eight children: Sabra, the widow of Elias Jewel, of Du Page county, Ill.; Stephen, a resident of Risingsun; Luther C., our subject; Phœbe, Mrs. Henry Phillips, of Scott township, Sandusky county; Cynthia, who married John Rinehart and died in Indiana; Lucy, who married Walter Butler, and died in Sandusky county, Ohio; Harriet, Mrs. Sylvester Phillips, of Scott township, Sandusky county; and David, a resident of the same township.

Luther C. Winchell was born August 9, 1836, at the old home in Lake county, and was reared as a farmer boy. His health was poor, and his attendance at the district schools was somewhat interfered with, his brothers and sisters having much better advantages than he in that respect, some of them fitting themselves for teaching. The family has a reputation for mental ability, and Mr. Winchell's own efforts in later years have made good his early lack of training. In August, 1862, he was married in Montgomery township by John Norris, J. P., to Miss Jane Baker, who was born January 20, 1847, in Findlay, Ohio, the daughter of Henry and Mary (Spangler) Baker, both of whom were natives of Pennsylvania, and of German descent. They died at the home of our subject, the father at the age of eighty-five and the mother at eighty-seven, and were interred in Scott township, Sandusky county. Mrs. Winchell was the youngest of a family of nine boys and two girls, and never attended school after she was twelve years old.

After his marriage Mr. Winchell rented a farm in Jackson township, Sandusky county, from his father, and, although he bought a tract of fifty-six acres, he remained at his first home until April, 1869, when he came to a farm in Montgomery township. In 1871 he moved to his present residence in Risingsun. He carried on a mercantile business there for some years, buying and selling stock, grain, produce, fruit, and other commodities, and dealt also in notes to a considerable extent. Since 1891 he has been largely interested in the oil business, and aside from his valuable realty in Risingsun, which includes a residence and business property, he owns 320 acres of land elsewhere. An active man physically and mentally, his enterprises receive his personal attention, and to this fact may be due his success in rising from limited circumstances to the possession of about $50,000. He is a liberal contributor to Church and charitable purposes, and his family has always been prominent in the social life of the village. Of three children, only one is now living. Phœbe married George H. Baker, and died in Toledo; Rose is the wife of Rev. William Wagner, a Baptist minister at Van Wert, Ohio; William Franklin died October 4, 1892, in his twenty-fourth year. Mr. and Mrs. Winchell are members of the Church of God, and he helped to build their edifice, and has served as elder, trustee, and superintendent of the Sunday-school. In principle Mr. Winchell now sympathizes with the Democratic party in State and National questions, but his first vote was cast for Abraham Lincoln. In local politics he votes for the best man, regardless of party. He has been a member of the village council, has served as street commissioner, and, since the new school house was built, has been director and treasurer of the board of education.

JACOB J. SNYDER, to whom success has come as the reward of well-directed efforts, is one of the leading farmers of Wood county. His father, Daniel Snyder, was born in Germany, November 11, 1818, and when a young man came to the United States with his parents. He was married in Liverpool, Medina Co., Ohio, to Miss Eppley, by whom he had one child, Christina, now the wife of August Ehnes, of Toledo, Ohio. In Medina county, Daniel Snyder married, for his second wife, Eva B. Swartz, who was born in Wurtemberg, Germany, in June, 1820, a daughter of Frederick Swartz, who came to the United States in 1830, and settled in Liverpool township, Medina county, where he died of typhoid fever three years later. About 1850, Daniel Snyder removed to Troy township, Wood county, where he now owns a desirable farm of 100 acres, which he has developed almost entirely from the wilderness. He has made his own way in life entirely unaided, and is an industrious, energetic man, of sterling worth. Politically he is a Democrat, and religiously a devout Lutheran. His wife died April 24, 1892, and lies buried at Luckey, Ohio. Their children are: Catherine, wife of Jacob Metzger, of Perrysburg township; Frederick, of Perrysburg township;

Daniel, of Lake township; John, of Cleveland; Elizabeth, wife of James Briggs, of Troy township; Jacob J., of Montgomery township; and Lucian, of Troy township. Two children, Julia and Mary, died in infancy in Medina county.

Jacob J. Snyder was born in Troy township, April 8, 1858, and acquired a fair English education in the district schools. He was reared on his father's farm, and early became familiar with all the labors connected with its development. On April 23, 1885, in Stony Ridge, Ohio, he was joined in wedlock with Mary Magdalena Burkin, who was born in Baden, Germany, January 18, 1862, a daughter of Jacob and Catherine (Joseph) Burkin, who came to the United States in 1866, making the voyage in four weeks on the sailing vessel "Kimball." They located first in Erie county, Ohio, and removed to Webster township, Wood county, when Mrs. Snyder was twelve years of age. The mother died in Sandusky, Ohio, August 3, 1895, and the father is still living in Webster township. They had thirteen children, of whom three sons and six daughters reached adult age. Mr. and Mrs. Snyder have two children—Amelia, born March 9, 1886, and Samuel H., born July 18, 1888. In October, 1884, Mr. Snyder purchased forty-two acres of land in Section 6, Montgomery township, and has since made that farm his home. It was in poor condition, but with characteristic energy he began its development and improvement, and his earnest labors, perseverance and capable management have converted it into a good property, and have brought to him a comfortable competence. He votes with the Democratic party, but has never sought or desired office. Both he and his wife are members of the Lutheran Church at New Rochester, and are people whose many excellencies of character have gained for them the high regard of all with whom they have been brought in contact.

FRANK P. KING is the sole proprietor of an extensive livery establishment in Prairie Depot, and one of the leading men in his line in Wood county. Thorough and systematic in the management of his interests, he has made his way to success, and he early won recognition of his ability in business.

Samuel King, his grandfather, was born early in this century in New York State, of Yankee parentage, and, when a young man, became a pioneer farmer of Sandusky county, Ohio. He was married there, in 1828, to Miss Mahala Imes, by whom he had seven children: William, our subject's father; Sarah, who married Addison Lansdale, and died in Prairie Depot, in December, 1895; Jasper, a resident of Chicago, Ill.; Hugh, who died in infancy; Mary, Mrs. Samuel Whitmore, of Constantine, Mich.; Harriet, Mrs. Daniel Garn, of Three Rivers, Mich.; and Jackson (deceased), formerly a resident of Jackson township, Sandusky county. The mother of this family died in 1845, and Samuel King was married, the second time, in Woodville township, Sandusky county, to Mrs. Mary Bixler, née Moore, the widow of Adam Bixler. She had two children by her first marriage: Minerva, now Mrs. Howard Carmon, of Prairie Depot, and Cary, of Three Rivers, Mich. Eight children were born to the second union: John S., who lives in San Jose, Cal.; James P., in Gratiot county, Mich.; Laura P., who died in infancy; Charles C., who is prominent in Isabella and Midland counties, Mich., has been sheriff of his county, and is an active worker in the Republican party; Edward H., an artist, in Grand Rapids, Mich.; Ella R., who married Charles Saunders, a minister of the Adventist Church, at Battle Creek, Mich. (she teaches in the college of that denomination); and Franklin and Emma, who died in infancy. Samuel King was a fine specimen of physical manhood, over six feet in height, and weighing at one time 240 pounds. He was a capable business man, industrious and systematic, and was a leader among the early settlers in his vicinity. Previous to the war he was a Democrat, but he loved the Union, and became a strong Republican. Starting in the woods as a poor boy, he was obliged to make the best of the inconveniences of primitive life for himself, and he often used strips of hickory bark for traces on his harness, burying them while he went to dinner in order to keep them moist. He succeeded in life, and was worth $20,000 at the time of his death, which occurred in April, 1865, at the age of sixty, after a lingering illness of two years which puzzled the medical fraternity and baffled their skill. He was laid to rest in the cemetery at Clyde, Ohio. After living at the old home three years, his widow removed to Clyde, but in 1895 she went to Battle Creek to reside with her daughter.

William King was born in Jackson township, Sandusky county, in 1829, and was reared as a farmer boy. He attended the schools of the neighborhood at times, but, being the eldest son, he was put in the harness at an early age, his father finding a plentiful supply of work for him, and he developed into a stout, robust young man, of practical ideas. He adhered to the principles of the Old-line Democratic party. In 1851 he was married, in Sandusky county, to Miss Susan Leshar, a native of the same locality, who was born February 27, 1830, the daughter of Daniel and Fanny (Cain) Leshar. They settled upon an estate near the old home, the "Brindel Farm," which Mr. King agreed to purchase from the heirs, but an attack of typhoid fever caused his death in December, 1854, after a brief illness, cutting short a career which had promised to be unusually successful. His remains were interred at Clyde, and his widow returned to her own relatives, who had removed in the meantime to Prairie Depot. There she lived until her marriage to John M. Adams, of Montgomery township. Of the two sons born to her first marriage, our subject is the eldest, and the other, William, born in October, 1854, is now a liveryman in Pemberville, Ohio.

Frank P. King was born January 27, 1853. He lived with his grandfather, Daniel Leshar, until the age of seventeen, when he began to work on his own account at such labor as his youth would permit. He showed great aptitude in the management of horses, and finally secured employment in the livery barn of an uncle, James Leshar, at Toledo, receiving a good salary. On October 10, 1874, he married Miss Lucy Sage, daughter of Edward R. Sage, a well-known resident of Montgomery township, and four children were born of this union: Eddie, who died at the age of four years; Bert H.; Charles and Carrie S. For one year after his marriage, Mr. King remained at the home of his father-in-law, and then bought a home in Prairie Depot, to which he removed. For five years he followed teaming, at the end of that time renting a farm near Prairie Depot belonging to E. R. Sage. After a short residence there he purchased a one-half interest in a livery stock with J. O. Hess; and embarked in the enterprise which he now conducts with such gratifying results. Mr. Hess sold his interest three years later to A. Leshar, who, in 1890, sold out to Mr. King, leaving him the sole owner. The business has shown constant increase from the time Mr. King became interested in it, and in 1895 he bought the property, which is near the business center of the village, and measures 8x16 rods. His barn is large and well arranged, and he keeps an average of fourteen head of horses.

Mr. King is regarded as one of the substantial citizens of his locality, and while he is no office-seeker, he has served as constable of Montgomery township, supervisor in the corporation of Prairie Depot, and for two years as a member of the village council. On State and National questions he is an unwavering Republican, but in local politics he at times supports a good man of another party. Socially he belongs to the I. O. O. F., and he is a charter member of Petroleum Lodge No. 499, at Prairie Depot.

W. C. HARRIS, a successful fruit raiser of Ross township, is among the stalwart and substantial citizens of Wood county who are of alien birth, but who have by their unaided exertions raised themselves to their present prosperous condition. He was born in Bedfordshire, England, October 31, 1834, and is a son of John and Elizabeth (Hilson) Harris, both of whom died at Stryker, Ohio.

The father was born in England, June 15, 1799, and in his native land accumulated a fortune, which, later, he lost. In 1850 he brought his wife to America, locating in Williams county, Ohio, where he purchased 160 acres of land at $3.50 per acre, and there continued to reside up to his death, which occurred April 24, 1891. In his family were fourteen children, only six of whom are now living, namely: Eliza is the widow of John Weston (a farmer), resides near Bangor, Van Buren Co., Mich., and has five children—Joseph, Orilla, John, Jacob C. and Minnie; James, a fisherman and boatman residing in Ross township, married Elizabeth Harrison, and has eight children—Josephine Lewis, Marion Wedder, John, Joseph, James, Lydia, Lucinda and Oscar; Richard, a resident farmer of Stryker, Ohio, married Margery Bailey, by whom he has seven children—Joseph H., John H., Phoebe, Ellen, Edward, Enos, Rufus and Perry; W. C., of this review; Joseph, of Lenawee, Mich.; and David.

Our subject is almost entirely self-educated, learning his letters at the Sabbath-school in England, and attending school only two winters after coming to the United States, but he now is a well-informed man. In 1846 he crossed the Atlantic, coming over on the "American Eagle," at that time the largest vessel afloat, and on that trip carrying 1,200 passengers. He took passage at London, and after a long voyage of forty days landed safely at New York City on the 11th of July. He accompanied a friend of his father, being the one chosen out of three boys, and his father paid his brother's passage, while our subject worked for his after coming to America. His older brother also came to the United States at the same time, and they remained together until the following spring, going with the friend of their father to northwestern Ohio, near the Indiana line. In the spring, however, our subject went to Hillsdale county, Mich., where, for some years, he worked on a farm by the month.

William C. Harris

In August, 1856, in Branch county, Mich., Mr. Harris was married to Miss Ann E. Simmons, whose father had formerly lived at Palmyra, N. Y., and by this union four children were born: (1) Charles W., a fruit grower of Perrysburg township, Wood county, married Ann Wisman, by whom he has three children—Frank C., Stanley, and Bessie (deceased). (2) George is deceased. (3) Mary A. is the wife of Elmer Gray, foreman of the Consolidated Rolling Car Stock Co., at Detroit, Mich., and to them were born five children—Bessie E. (deceased), Harold R., Ellis E., Iva and Sarah. (4) Alfred A., a fruit grower living on the farm of his father, in Ross township, married Bertha Merving, and had three children—Arthur B., Eva E. (deceased), and Carl E. The wife and mother died at Toledo, Ohio, March 19, 1867.

On July 4, 1868, Mr. Harris was again married, his second union being with Elizabeth Sangston, daughter of James M. and Elizabeth (Debolt) Sangston, who were natives of Pennsylvania, and the parents of nine children—Sarah, George D., Isaac M., Harriet, Elizabeth, Malinda, Electa, Adelma, and Naomi (deceased). The father died in Holland, Ohio, and the mother in Perrysburg township, this county. Mrs. Harris was born in Wauseon, Fulton Co., Ohio, February 3, 1848, and by her marriage with our subject has become the mother of three children—Frank A., born August 8, 1869, married Dorothea Burleigh, by whom he has two children, Mabel L., and Thomas M., and is engaged in farming at Oak Harbor, Ohio; Lottie M., born November 16, 1871, is a stenographer and typewriter, employed at the "Jefferson House" in Toledo, Ohio; Fred I., born October 6, 1873, married Mary Jacobs, and is a fruit grower of Ross township.

After being variously employed, Mr. Harris engaged in the wood business for fourteen years, was in the wholesale meat business for four years, and since that time has engaged in fruit culture, having upon his place 1,000 plum trees; 225 pear; 100 cherry; 2,300 peach; 12 apricot; and 10 quince; also three acres planted in grapes; six in raspberries; four in strawberries; three-quarters of an acre in gooseberries; and six acres in asparagus; also some Japanese prune and walnut. On starting this business twenty-six years ago, he had but three acres, but at the present time he has forty-two acres under cultivation, and from the products of his farm derives a comfortable competence.

For five years Mr. Harris served in the State militia, belonging to Capt. Daniel Collins' company, and to the 130th O. V. I., under Col. Phillips. Although for a time he was in the United States service, he never took part in any active engagement, and was discharged at Toledo, Ohio. He is now a member of Ford Post No. 14, G. A. R., and also belongs to Wapakoneta Lodge No. 38, I. O. O. F., the former of East Toledo and the latter of Toledo. He is a Republican in politics, and for a number of years served as school director of his district.

JOHN A. KELLY is classed among the influential and prominent farmers of Montgomery township. His birth occurred January 19, 1861, in Section 32 of that township, and he is the third son and fifth child in the family of R. W. and Eliza (Dresser) Kelly. His education was begun in District No. 9, and he later attended the West Millgrove schools for three terms. Being reared to agricultural pursuits, he has always made that vocation his life work.

In Perry township, Wood county, Mr. Kelly was married September 27, 1882, the lady of his choice being Miss Jennie Rosendale, who was born in that township November 22, 1864, the daughter of George W. and Elizabeth (Locey) Rosendale. When nine years of age she was taken to Elk county, Kans., where she remained seven years, returning then to West Millgrove, Ohio, and living with C. R. Rosendale until her marriage. Two children have come to our subject and his wife—Ralph L., born February 26, 1886; and Eliza J., born August 31, 1890. Mr. Kelly took his bride to his father's farm in Section 32, Montgomery township, where they made their home until their removal to his present farm in Section 31, which he has placed under a high state of cultivation, making many substantial improvements thereon. Though not an office-seeker, he takes considerable interest in political affairs as a loyal and faithful Republican. His wife holds membership with the Congregational Church at West Millgrove. They are genial, cultured people, and occupy a high social position in the community.

REV. JOSEPH M. CRIM, a well-known retired minister of the U. B. Church, now residing in Bowling Green, was born May 31, 1834, in Lancaster county, Penn., where his ancestors, "Pennsylvania Dutch" on both sides, with the exception of his grandmother Crim, who came from England, had lived for several generations.

His grandfather, Jacob Crim, and his father.

Jacob Crim (2), were both born there, the latter September 30, 1810, and there, too, our subject's mother, Christina Young, was born in 1811. His father was a farmer, and a preacher in the United Brethren Church. He came to Richland county, Ohio, in 1838, and died there in January, 1892, his wife having departed this life six years before. They had four children, of whom our subject is the eldest; Elizabeth lives in Richland county; Henry died at the age of twenty-seven, and Samuel resides in Crawford county, Ohio.

Our subject attended the district schools of Richland county during boyhood, and at the age of nineteen he was converted, and determined to devote his life to the highest uses. At twenty-one he entered Berea College, and on leaving he at once began teaching, continuing successfully for nine years in Richland, Crawford and Logan counties. In 1861 he made a trip to California, and remained four years. In 1867 he married Miss Rachel E. Biddle, daughter of Rev. Alexander Biddle, of Galion, Ohio, and a native of Ohio, born December 8, 1844. They have had five children: Albert Biddle, who died at two years of age; Mary Louise Gertrude, a teacher in the A Grammar Grade in the Bowling Green schools; Cora, formerly a teacher in Bowling Green, now a student at Otterbein University, Westerville, Ohio; and Reuben and Ruth, who are at home.

Our subject received his first appointment in 1872, was ordained in 1875, and joined the Sandusky Conference. For sixteen years he carried on his chosen calling in various places, leaving behind him evidences of his faithful work, in Churches built or restored, new societies formed, and old congregations enlarged and awakened to greater spiritual life. His last charge was in Bowling Green, and when the time came to leave, after a ten-years' service, the educational needs of his growing family induced him to remain, and in 1889 he retired from the ministry and opened a grocery store, which he has conducted ever since. Politically he is a Republican. He still assists in the local work of the Church, especially during revivals; every Sabbath morning finds him in his home church, teaching a Bible class of men. Faithful to that duty which lies nearest, his exhortations to right living are more effective than any mere glittering eloquence could be, the quiet but powerful force of example adding weight to precept.

HERMAN W. DEAN was born in Milton township, March 27, 1867, and is a son of James T. Dean, a native of Sandusky county, Ohio, and a farmer by occupation. He married Maria Cran, and sometime afterward came to Wood county, settling on a farm which he purchased in Milton township. Later he purchased a 100-acre farm in Jackson township, which he at once began to clear and place under a high state of cultivation. In the fall of 1893 he sold that property and went to Indian Territory, where he leased a farm, and also purchased a tract of land. He continued in the West for about a year, and then returned to Wood county, since which time he has lived in Milton Center. The children of the family are James T., who is now farming in Kansas; Herman W.; John, a farmer of Jackson township; Charles, who died at the age of four years; and Alta, at home.

Our subject began his education in the Powles school of Milton Center. His childhood days were passed in a manner similar to most farmer boys, and he remained at home until he had attained his majority, when he began work by the day as a farm hand. Two years later, with the money he had saved, he purchased forty acres of unimproved land in Jackson township, and at once began to clear and develop the place, erecting thereon a substantial residence. In the spring of 1875 he rented his farm and leased 200 acres of land in Jackson township.

In Deshler, Henry Co., Ohio, on May 14, 1887, was celebrated the marriage of Mr. Dean and Miss Lizzie Laney, who was born in Adair county, Mo., May 10, 1870, a daughter of Charles and Margaret (White) Laney, natives of Fairfield county, Ohio. They were married, however, in Missouri, and since 1874 have resided in Wood county. They had nine children, namely: Mrs. Alice Nutter, who died at the age of thirty years; Edwin, of Henry county, Ohio; Sarah, wife of George Whitney, of Weston; Rebecca, of Bowling Green; Mrs. Dean; Jennie, wife of Lincoln Hill, of New York; Peter, of Henry county; William, who died at the age of fourteen; and Thomas, at home. Two children grace the union of our subject and his wife: Earl, born April 5, 1890; and Floyd, born December 25, 1893. Their home is noted for its hospitality, and their circle of friends is extensive. In his political affiliations, Mr. Dean is a staunch Republican.

JAMES ROGERS, a prominent citizen of Scotch Ridge, Wood county, now holding the offices of postmaster, justice of the peace, and clerk of Webster township, is a native of this county, born in Freedom township, January 27, 1860. He is a son of one of our honored pioneers, Amos Rogers.

Our subject had the training in farm work which usually falls to the lot of a country boy, but his education was not neglected, and he supplemented his district-school studies by a course in the high school at Genoa. At an early age he started in business as a decorator of interiors, having learned the trade of painter and paper-hanger at Bowling Green. In 1879 Mr. Rogers married Miss Susan South, who was born in Cleveland, Ohio, August 23, 1861, the daughter of Robert South, a well-known resident of Webster township. They have one child, Gertie, now attending school. In March, 1892, Mrs. Rogers died at her home in Scotch Ridge, and November 22, 1894, Mr. Rogers was married to Frankie Gerding, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. Orr, of Pemberville, Ohio.

A staunch Democrat in politics, and a man of great public spirit, Mr. Rogers has been a favorite candidate of his party, and has held a number of official positions. He was appointed post-master under Cleveland's first administration, and is now serving a second time with satisfaction to all concerned, and as township clerk and justice of the peace his efficient services meet with hearty appreciation. He has a comfortable home, and he and his wife take a prominent part in the social life of the village. He is past grand of the I. O. O. F., Freedom Lodge No. 723, of Pemberville, and also, with Mrs. Rogers, belongs to the Daughters of Rebekah, No. 239.

C. D. YONKER is the proprietor of the only drug store of a metropolitan nature in Wood county, dealing exclusively in drugs, and articles of a similar character, and having an extensive trade both in Bowling Green and the surrounding country. He was born in Portage township, Wood county, August 10, 1855, and is a son of H. H. and Mary (Gunsaulus) Yonker.

Charles Yonker, his grandfather, was born, in 1795, in Germany, and in 1830 came to Ohio, and to Wood county in 1850. In 1866 he drilled a well with a horse drill on the Johnson farm, near East Prairie Depot, and at the depth of fifty feet struck oil. He died in 1878.

The father of our subject was born in New York State, September 20, 1830, and in 1854, after his marriage, which took place at Wadsworth, Medina Co., Ohio, he came to Wood county. He first located in Portage township, where he purchased a farm, which he afterward sold, and in 1867 removed to Bowling Green, where he entered the company of Kitchen & Lindsay, and they operated the first planing-mill, and sash, door and blind factory in that place, having also a lumber-yard in connection with these establishments. Later, disposing of his interests in these enterprises, he and his brother, in partnership, engaged in the undertaking business, in which he remained until his health failed, and he was compelled to retire from active life. He still resides in Bowling Green, and is one of the most esteemed citizens of the place. In politics he is a Republican, and in religious faith he is a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church. He was the father of seven children, namely: C. D. Yonker, our subject; John L., killed by accidentally falling down an elevator shaft in a hotel at Van Wert, Ohio; Sarah M., who married Edgar Sears, and lives in Bowling Green; M. E., deceased in infancy; L. L., a dentist in Bowling Green; Frank C., in business in the same city; and Arthur A., clerking in our subject's store. The paternal grandfather of Mr. Yonker, whose name was Charles, was born in Germany, and died in Prairie Depot, Ohio. He was a contractor on the Maumee and Western Reserve pike, and discovered oil in Wood county many years ago.

The subject of this sketch spent his boyhood days at Bowling Green, where he attended the public schools, and when fourteen years old became an apprentice in a drug store which stood on the same corner he now occupies. Three years later he went to Weston, where he took charge of a store for one year; then returned to Bowling Green, and worked for another year in the same store in which he was first employed. Subsequently he read medicine for a time with Dr. Lincoln. His father then bought a drug store, and the son took the management of it from 1875 to 1878, when it was sold to Bolles & Manville. Mr. Yonker then went into the restaurant business, which he carried on some six years, at the end of that time investing in a patent-right, from which he made enough money to start in business for himself. In 1889 he established his present store, with the object of carrying on a business in drugs exclusively, which was in direct opposition to the advice of his friends, who thought it an unfavorable field for a high-grade drug store. He has, however, proved the fallacy of their judgment, as he now owns the finest establishment of the kind in northern Ohio, outside the large cities. His is the only drug store kept open on Sunday in the city, and is the first to open and the last to close every day in the week.

Mr. Yonker was married October 4, 1876, to Miss R. L. Leonard, who was born in Seneca county, Ohio, December 17, 1853. Two children have blessed this union: Pearl N. and Earl E. Mr. Yonker and family are owners of a beautiful residence, which is one of the finest in the city, and is the scene of many delightful social events. Mr. Yonker is one of the most prominent workers among the Knights of Pythias in Bowling Green, of which society he is a charter member, and was the first master-at-arms. He has been representative to the Grand Lodge, was district deputy grand chancellor, and is now master of finance; is also captain of the Uniform Rank, K. of P. He is a member of the board of directors of the Bowling Green Improvement Co., also one of the executive committee.

HENRY O. NEARING, a progressive farmer of Washington township, was born December 14, 1827, at Waterville, Wood (now Lucas) county, Ohio, and is a son of Guy and Betsy (Fletcher) Nearing. (The family name was originally spelled Van Nearing).

The father of our subject was born in Germany, whence he came to the United States when young, locating in Onondaga county, N. Y., where he married and had three children: Horatio, deceased; Neptune, father of G. C. Nearing, of Wood county; and Zepimah, who died in New York. For his second wife Mr. Nearing wedded Betsy (Read) Fletcher, and to them five children were born: (1) Emulus, who died in Williams county, Ohio, where he resided with his family. (2) Minerva, wife of Judge Ewing, of Miltonville, by whom she had three children: Theodore, deceased; Mary, widow of William L. Decker, who now makes her home in Haskins; and Lucien B., who died in that place. (3) Eunice and (4) Freeman, both deceased in infancy. (5) Henry O., our subject. The father first came to Ohio in 1817, a year later returning to New York, and bringing his family to this State. He located at Waterville, where he was engaged in contracting, and in 1833 built a sawmill at Otsego, which he operated for a year or more. He also, in 1835, erected a sawmill for Fowler and C. W. Beard, on what is known as the John Creps farm in Middleton township. Prior to building the Otsego mill he purchased and lived on a farm of over 200 acres opposite Waterville. He there made his home some twelve years, during which time he greatly improved his land, and then removed to Miltonville, where he built a large hotel, which he conducted up to his death in 1840. His wife died at the home of our subject in January, 1857. He was an Old-line Whig in politics, and he and his wife were members of the Baptist Church. While engaged in contracting the father built the first jail in Perrysburg. For a number of years he served as justice of the peace, during which time he married many of the pioneer couples, and the decisions he rendered in the cases he tried were usually sustained.

The early educational privileges of Henry O. Nearing were somewhat meagre, being limited to three months attendance at the district schools during the winter months, the remainder of the year being passed at farm labor. When nineteen years of age, however, he worked for one month at steamboating on Lake Erie. On January 1, 1852, he wedded Matilda Whitney, daughter of David and Margaret (Carr) Whitney, the former a native of Vermont, of English descent, the latter of Scotch-Irish lineage; they were married in Allegany county, N. Y., and to them were born eight children, as follows: Lucy, who married John Bamber, and had three children, Archibald, Mary and Thaddeus. Samuel, Nancy and Maria all three deceased. Matilda, the wife of our subject, born April 7, 1832, in Allegany county, N. Y. Charles, an expert machinist, who conducts a patent office in Chicago, making his home in Winnetka, not far from that city. Caroline (widow of Oscar Snyder), residing in the northern part of the State of Washington. John, who was a member of a Minnesota regiment during the Civil war, and was held prisoner for ten months at Helena, Ark., during that struggle; he has since died at St. Louis, Missouri.

After his marriage, Mr. Nearing worked a short time at the cooper trade, but in April, 1852, he started for California, a trip of 2,100 miles, which was made with an ox-team, and occupied seven months. There he remained two years, during which time he was employed as a hostler and miner, meeting with good success. In connection with David Bamber, John Buttles and Milton Beard, he also owned a toll road, known as the Bamber & Nearing toll road, near Deer Creek, Cal. On his return to Ohio, he came by way of the Nicaragua route to New York City. For three years he then had charge of his father-in-law's place, at the end of which time, on June 17, 1858, he removed to Minnesota, returning to Wood county in the following March. For four years he made his home in Miltonville, and in 1881 he purchased a farm in Fulton county, where he resided five years. In December, 1887, he purchased his present farm, to the cultivation of which he has since devoted his time and attention. He and his worthy wife have no children of their own, but have reared five whom they have adopted. As a souvenir of his California mining experiences, Mr. Nearing has a scarf pin made of a nugget of gold dug by him during his last days in the "diggings," and which is set in its natural state, and is valued at twenty dollars.

Henry O. Keating

Montilda Keating

During the Civil war, Mr. Nearing enlisted at Tontogany in Company B, 144th O. V. I., under Capt. Black and Col. Miller, and was mustered in at Columbus. After faithful service he received an honorable discharge at Columbus, September 1, 1864. Politically, he supports the Republican party, and has been supervisor of Middleton township, and school director of District No. 1, Washington township. He takes an active interest in the I. O. O. F., belonging to Rouche-de-Boeuf Lodge No. 530, and also to the Encampment, No. 267, both of Haskins, and he and his wife are members of Rebekah Lodge No. 365; in the I. O. O. F. he has been past and noble grand and also vice-grand. He also holds membership with Walter A. Wood Post, G. A. R., of Tontogany. In all the relations of life, he has been true and faithful, and no man is more deserving the high regard in which he is held than Henry O. Nearing.

HENRY ROLFES. This gentleman worthily illustrates the commonly accepted view of the character of the enterprising citizen, who made his way into northwestern Ohio at a time when strong hands and stout hearts were needed, and putting his shoulder to the wheel gave a decided impetus to the car of progress, and assisted in the development of Wood county. As early as 1836 he came with his parents to Troy township, where his father purchased land in Section 25. In the kingdom of Hanover, Mr. Rolfes was born, May 28, 1828, and is a son of Frederick and Julia (Hunefelt) Rolfes, natives of the same province. At Bremen the family embarked on a sailing vessel, which, after a voyage of seven weeks, dropped anchor in the harbor of New York, and from there they proceeded by water to Toledo, Ohio. They arrived in this country in the fall of 1836, where the father purchased a tract of wild land in Troy township, on which no improvements had been made, and no road led to the place. He became a prominent member of the community, and served as trustee of his township. He died of cholera, September 1, 1852, which disease terminated the life of the mother on the 7th of the same month. Our subject was the eldest in their family of children, others being as follows: William, who died of cholera on the 5th of September, 1852; Herman, who died while young; Mary, also deceased; Mrs. Eliza Meyers, of Woodville, Ohio; and Lewis, who resides in Troy township.

Our subject was about eight years of age when he came to this county, and in the primitive schools of Troy township he received his education, but most of his time was employed in work upon the home farm. After leaving the parental roof he worked on a farm near Perrysburg, Ohio, and for three seasons sailed on the lakes. On August 11, 1853, in Troy township, was celebrated the marriage of Mr. Rolfes and Miss Julia Hilker, a native of Germany, and a daughter of Gerhard and Engel (Simpson) Hilker, also born in the Fatherland. About 1840 her parents located in Troy township, where the father's death occurred in 1851, and his wife died at the home of our subject in 1871. To Mr. and Mrs. Rolfes have been born the following children: Marie, who died in childhood, and Sophia, also deceased; Eliza, now Mrs. William Meyers, of Luckey, Ohio; Lewis H., who makes his home in the same place; Louisa, deceased; Julia A., who resides in Toledo, Ohio; Minnie, of Luckey.

After his marriage, Mr. Rolfes located upon the old homestead, in Section 25, Troy township, where he owns 120 acres of fertile and productive land. Upon his place are nine oil wells, which also add materially to his income. In 1879 he was called upon to mourn the loss of his wife, a most estimable lady. At the time he came to Wood county, few settlements had been made, the work of cultivation had scarcely begun, and he has watched with interest the great changes that have taken place, in the work of development and progress, always taking his share. Their nearest market at that time was Perrysburg, whence he would carry his purchases home on his back; but he bravely and cheerfully endured the trials and hardships incident to a life in the forests far from the haunts of men.

FLOYD D. HUFFMAN, the popular young editor and proprietor of the Grand Rapids Triumph, was born in Grand Rapids, Wood Co., Ohio, July 8, 1873, and is a son of John and Emma (Mins) Huffman, both natives of Pennsylvania, but now residing near Grand Rapids.

Here our subject passed his boyhood and youth, attending the common schools, and at the early age of fourteen years began learning the printer's trade, at which he has since worked, with the exception of one winter, when he attended school. He experienced all the vicissitudes incident to the life of a printer's "devil," and soon became an expert type-setter, as well as becoming versed in the all-round duties of a newspaper office. Being possessed of an energetic spirit, good executive ability, and an excellent judgment, he determined to establish himself permanently in some literary work, and accordingly in December, 1890, purchased his present paper, of which he is sole proprietor. The Grand Rapids Triumph is a five-column quarto sheet, independent in politics, and does a large amount of advertising, while, as a literary production, it is numbered among the foremost papers of the county.

HENRY MANDELL, a prominent pioneer agriculturist of Wood county, now residing in Perrysburg, was born in Hardwick, Worcester Co., Mass., January 12, 1814. His family has filled an honorable place in the history of this country. Paul Mandell, the great-grandfather, came from England and settled in Massachusetts. He had a son, Moses, our subject's grandfather, who served in the Revolutionary army with the rank of major. Martin Mandell, father of our subject, was a farmer in Massachusetts, a man of great intelligence and independence of thought, and one of the earliest supporters of the Unitarian faith. He married Miss Fannie Marsh, and reared a family of four children, of whom our subject was second in order of birth. He died at the age of sixty-seven years, and his wife in 1878, at the age of ninety-one.

Henry Mandell remained at the old homestead until he was twenty years old, when he came west to seek his fortune. In 1838 he located in Perrysburg, where for three years he traded with the Indiana and settlers in groceries, boots and shoes, and other commodities. He was married there to Miss Frederica Kreps, a native of Pennsylvania, who was about one month older than himself. Shortly after their marriage Mr. Mandell moved to Otsego, where for two years he held the position of postmaster under appointment from President Tyler. He then moved to a tract of land in Perrysburg township belonging to his wife, and cleared it, in time transforming it into a fine property. He still owns 100 acres there, which has risen in value from nothing to $60 or $70 an acre. Mrs. Mandell died in 1874, after thirty-two years of happy, helpful companionship. Seven children were born of this union: (1) Henry E., who lives at the old farm, is married and has seven children—Fred, Mary, Alice, Dwight, Kittie, Ernest and Ruth. (2) Phila E. lives with her father. (3) Catherine married Charles Drayton, of Perrysburg township, and has six children—Frederica, Jennie, William,

Frank, Grace and Ralph. (4) William Arthur, a sketch of whom follows. (5) Dwight died at the age of fourteen. (6) Ada married Leroy Weliver, of East Toledo, and has three children—Delia, Clarence and Ada. (7) Frederick died aged ten years. About two years ago Mr. Mandell came to Perrysburg, with his daughter, Phila E., to spend his declining years, free from business cares. He has always taken an active interest in politics, and his first vote was cast for Van Buren; he is now a Republican, and his last vote at the age of eighty-two was for McKinley.

GEORGE KLOPFENSTEIN, a prominent citizen of Center township, and one of the leading fruit growers of northwestern Ohio, was born in Wood county, March 20, 1847, and is a son of Peter and Henrietta (Moore) Klopfenstein. He has taken a commendable interest in the moral, educational, and material welfare of the community, and has made an untarnished record and unspotted reputation as a business man. In all places, and under all circumstances, he is loyal to truth, honor and right, justly valuing his own self-respect as infinitely more preferable than wealth, fame and position.

Mr. Klopfenstein has been twice married, his first union, which was celebrated August 5, 1874, being with Miss Prudence D. Craw, who was born October 4, 1855. One child came to them—Walter, born April 26, 1875, who is a graduate of the Bowling Green High School; he is now in his second year of a four-years' course in the Chicago Homeopathic College, and is studying medicine with Dr. Thomas, of Bowling Green. On August 15, 1883, Mr. Klopfenstein was united in marriage with Miss Eliza Jane Drake, who was born July 5, 1852, and the following children blessed their union: The first, born July 13, 1884, died in infancy; Ira Lee, born August 16, 1885, died August 3, 1887; Mabel Henrietta, born May 14, 1888; Floyd, born January 25, 1890; George M., born December 23, 1892; and the youngest, born January 17, 1895, died in infancy.

On the paternal side our subject is descended from Peter Klopfenstein, who was born in France in 1742, and was there married in 1768. In his family of nine children Christian Klopfenstein was the eighth in order of birth, being born June 17, 1788. In October, 1810, the latter married Catherine Stooky, who was born in France May 15, 1788, and they became the parents of ten children, namely: Peter, born November 3, 1811, was the father of our subject. Barbara, born in November, 1812, married A. R. Mead, by whom she had nine children; her death occurred in Summit county. Catherine, born in 1814, died in 1851. Mary, born January 1, 1817, was married January 6, 1842, to Jacob Grauber, and became the mother of ten children. Ann, born February 16, 1819, was married in 1839 to Christian Roth, by whom she had eleven children; she died in 1863. Christian, born in 1821, died in 1823. Joseph, born January 13, 1823, was married May 4, 1848, to Mary Ann Hevehill, and became the father of thirteen children. All of the above named children were natives of France. Benjamin, born in 1827, in Wayne county, Ohio, married Catherine Stooky, in 1850, and they had fourteen children. Fanny, born September 19, 1829, in Wayne county, married Jacob Roth, and became the mother of thirteen children; she died February 28, 1874. Eliza, born in 1830, in Utica, N. Y., died there the same year. The father of this family departed this life in Fulton county, Ohio, in March, 1871, and the mother in 1836.

Peter Klopfenstein, the father of our subject, was married in Wood county, Ohio, September 19, 1837, to Miss Henrietta Moore, who was born January 5, 1819, in Mogadore, Summit Co., Ohio, and came to this county in 1833, at the age of fourteen years. To them were born the following children: Lee M., born September 30, 1838, who was married May 13, 1860, to Julia Ann Elliott, and has had five children; Joseph, born February 23, 1842, who married Sarah Hill, and has five children (he was a soldier in Company A, 100th O. V. I., in which regiment he served three years; he is now a farmer, living in Rollersville, Sandusky county); George, subject of this review; Amelia E., born October 30, 1849, wife of George W. Houskeeper, of Center township; James E., born February 14, 1852, who is a dentist in Longmont, Boulder Co., Colo.; Mary Ann, born August 26, 1858, who died September 15, 1872, at the age of fourteen; and Chloe M., born March 26, 1861, died September 18, 1872. The mother's death occurred September 16, 1870.

On the maternal side our subject is descended from Samuel Moore, who was a native of Connecticut, where his father, who was from the British Isles, had located at an early day. Nathan Moore, the son of Samuel, was united in marriage with Julia Ann Lee, a daughter of John Lee, who, at an early day in the history of New England, sought refuge there from the rulers of his native land—Ireland. Mrs. Moore was also a native of Connecticut, and with her husband removed to Summit county, Ohio, where they both died at the age of fifty-five years. In their family were the following children: Chloe, born in Vermont, in 1788, became the wife of a Mr. Cook; Laura, born in the same State, in 1792, married Thomas Hall; Lee, born in Vermont, March 13, 1793, was the maternal grandfather of our subject; Lucy, born in 1795, married a Mr. Van Gorder; Betsy, born in 1797, married a Mr. Briggs; Julia, born in 1800, married a Mr. Ripson; and Nathan, born in 1807, died at the age of five years.

Lee Moore was married November 27, 1817, the lady of his choice being Miss Phœbe M. Bradley, who was born March 13, 1798, and was the third child of Ariel and Chloe (Lane) Bradley, both natives of Connecticut, the former born at Salisbury, December 30, 1768, and the latter at Killingworth, October 22, 1770. Her grandfather, James Bradley, died in Summit county, Ohio, at the age of ninety years. The family of Mr. and Mrs. Moore included eleven children, namely: Henrietta, born January 5, 1819, was the mother of our subject; Phœbe M. was born February 10, 1821; Nathan, born January 13, 1823, is now a resident of Toledo, Ohio; Ariel B., born June 6, 1826, died May 19, 1827; Albert, born April 24, 1828, died June 30, 1885; Julia Ann was born July 15, 1830; Olive was born October 23, 1832; Milton, born February 25, 1835, was drowned in a well in March, 1838; Chloe was born July 25, 1837; James was born December 9, 1839; and Charles was born in 1843. The mother of these children departed this life February 23, 1872, and the father's death occurred in 1874.

DANIEL ZIMMERMAN, a worthy representative of one of the honored pioneer families of Center township, then a part of Webster township, Wood county, was born there on May 12, 1835. His father, William Zimmerman, was a native of Virginia, born in 1798, and came to this county in 1835, locating on the farm where our subject's birth occurred. He took up 160 acres of wild land, which he at once began to improve and cultivate. His wife bore the maiden name of Isabella Householder, and to them were born fourteen children, named as follows: John and Monroe, who are both deceased; Eliza, deceased wife of Joseph Burdo; Lewis, who has also passed away; Daniel, of this sketch; Mary, deceased wife of George W. Garner; George, who died from the effects of his service in the Civil war; Milton, infirmary director of Wood county; Isaac, a farmer of Portage township; William and Isabella, twins, the latter the wife of William Wed-dell, deceased; James, an agriculturist of Center township; Lewis E., deceased; and Harvey, a farmer of Michigan. The father's death occurred in 1884, and the mother passed away in 1889.

The entire life of our subject has been passed in his native township, being reared to manhood on his father's farm, and receiving his education in the district schools of the neighborhood. On the outbreak of the Rebellion, he resolved to aid in the preservation of the Union, and in 1861, enlisted at Pemberville, Wood county, in Company K, 21st O. V. I. On December 31, 1863, he veteranized, and was given a furlough. For two weeks, in 1861, he was confined in the hospital at Nashville, Tenn., but during the remainder of his service was always found at his post of duty, and participated in the battles of Chattanooga, East Kentucky, Ivy Mountain, La Vergne, Stone River, Chickamauga, Missionary Ridge, the siege of Atlanta, and the capture of Jonesboro. He was with Sherman on the celebrated march to the sea, and on the close of his enlistment received an honorable discharge, August 25, 1865.

At the termination of his army experience, Mr. Zimmerman returned to Center township, where he purchased sixty acres of land, which, after cultivating some seven years, he sold and bought 110 acres, which comprises his present fine farm. It was then, however, in its primitive condition, mostly under water, not a tree having been cut, or a ditch made, and no roads yet been laid out to the place. After much hard labor he succeeded in clearing the land, which he drained, and on which he planted an orchard, and erected a fine dwelling house, barns and other outbuildings. It is now one of the model farms of the county, supplied with all modern improvements, and the well-cultivated fields indicate to the passerby the thrift and enterprise of the owner.

On May 24, 1866, Mr. Zimmerman was united in marriage with Miss Emma Fox, a pioneer teacher, who taught twenty-one terms in Wood county, and who was born in Livonia, N. Y., March 14, 1837, and is a daughter of John Fox, a farmer of that locality. Six children grace this union: William A., a carpenter, who was born August 12, 1867; Lucy M., a school teacher, born May 27, 1869; Jessie M., wife of Charles Barr (a farmer, but now a real-estate agent), born July 13, 1871; Aner, a carpenter of North Dakota, born March 8, 1873; Cever, a farmer residing at home, born January 5, 1875; and John W., born July 6, 1878.

Mr. Zimmerman has watched with lively interest the growth and development of the county, and has contributed largely to its reputation as one of the most highly cultivated districts in this great commonwealth. He and his estimable wife endured all the hardships and privations incident to a life in a new settlement, and well deserve the reward which is now beginning to crown their labors. Politically he identifies himself with the Republican party, whose principles he staunchly advocates, and has served as school director for six years. He belongs to J. Wiley Post No. 46, G. A. R., and he and his family adhere to the faith of the United Brethren Church.

H. E. NOBLE, M. D., a prominent physician and surgeon, was born in Broome county, N. Y., August 27, 1855, and is a son of Derwin and Betsey M. (McClure) Noble, also natives of Broome county. In 1860 the parents removed to Huron county, Ohio, where the father engaged in farming for six years, after which he removed to Lucas county, this State, but now makes his home in Stony Ridge, where his wife died in 1893. To them were born five children: Emma Jane, wife of Darius Carpenter, of Stony Ridge; H. E., our subject; Clarence, a traveling salesman, of Toledo, Ohio; Frank, a sawyer, of Perysburg, Ohio; and Clark D., also of that place. They also reared an adopted daughter, Nellie Hubbell, now Mrs. Henry Reifert, of Stony Ridge.

At the age of five years H. E. Noble was taken to Huron county, and was eleven years old when the family removed to Lucas county, in both of which counties he received a portion of his literary education, which he completed at Delta High School, at the age of eighteen years, after which he began the study of medicine. In 1877 he entered the Detroit Medical College, completing his course in 1879; he then located at Swanton, Fulton county, where he practiced until 1883, when he again took up his studies, this time in Toledo Medical College, from which he graduated in the class of 1884. He then established himself at Stony Ridge, Wood county, where he built up a large and lucrative practice, making a specialty of surgery and the diseases of women, having attended extra lectures on these subjects in New York City, where he was graduated from the New York Institute in 1891. In 1896 he removed to Toledo, where he has taken up the practice of his profession, devoting his attention to surgery and the diseases of women.

The Doctor holds membership in the Northwestern Ohio Medical Association and the Ohio State Medical Society, has served as health officer in Troy township, Wood county, two years, and has been physician for the poor in Lake township for ten years past. He is medical examiner for the Manhattan Life Insurance Co., of New York, and also the Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance Co., of Milwaukee, Wis. Socially he is connected with Perrysburg Lodge No. 527, K. of P., and with the K. of H., in which latter he has twice served as dictator. He is a contributor to the "American Medical Compend," of Toledo; also of the "Columbus Medical Journal," and "International Journal of Surgery." He has read papers on gynecology before the Medical Association. Politically he affiliates with the Republican party, of which he is one of its strongest supporters in his vicinity, and takes an active interest in everything for the good of the community. He is an extremely busy and successful practitioner, but finds time to aid in all worthy enterprises which will advance the welfare of his fellow man.

A. C. Noble, M. D.

At Swanton, Ohio, Dr. Noble was united in marriage with Miss Rebecca Hunlock, who died in Stony Ridge in 1884. Five years later he there wedded Miss Celina Bonda, who was born December 20, 1873, in Michigan. Her education was acquired in the public schools of Lenawee county, Mich. To the Doctor and his wife were born three children: Elizabeth A., born May 25, 1890, and died at the age of five months; Mabel, born July 30, 1894; and Jessie, born September 16, 1895.

N. A. McALLISTER is a leading and successful business man of Walbridge, Ohio, where he conducts a first-class general store, and carries a well-selected stock in order to meet the demands of his customers. He was born in Buffalo, N. Y., April 13, 1850, and is a son of Neil and Catherine McAllister, natives of Scotland, where their marriage was celebrated. The father was born in Greenock in 1809, and, in 1849, brought his wife to the United States, locating first in Buffalo, N. Y. From there he removed to Erie county, Ohio, and later became a resident of Wood county, where he engaged in farming. He also sailed on the lakes for some time, fitting out vessels at Milan, Ohio, and he was engaged in furnishing vessels after quitting the life of a sailor. He died at Walbridge on the 15th of March, 1889, and his wife, who was born in 1812, had died in 1883. Their family consisted of four children who grew to adult age, namely: Daniel H. and Angus, who are both now deceased; Mary W., wife of Eugene Winchester, of East Toledo, Ohio; and N. A., the subject of this sketch.

The last named was reared in Milan, Erie county, until eleven years of age, when he accompanied his parents to Wood county, and later engaged in sailing on the lakes, being mate on the vessel "Hattie Wells" for two years. On giving up that life, he began his present mercantile business at Walbridge, where he has now carried on operations with good success for twelve years, and does a large and lucrative business.

On December 28, 1882, Mr. McAllister was united in marriage with Miss Amanda E. Clark, who was born in Oberlin, Ohio, July 2, 1853, and two children bless their union—Ralph D., and Thorwell G. Besides his store our subject owns a good farm of eighty acres in Lake township, and he is widely known in business circles throughout the county, being regarded by all as a man of rare energy, superior business tact, and undoubted integrity of character. Socially, he belongs to the Odd Fellows Lodge at East Toledo, also to the Knights and Ladies of Security, and politically is identified with the Republican party.

JOHN W. BOWLES is a successful and energetic agriculturist, and one of the esteemed and valued citizens of Milton township. His well-spent life well entitles him to representation in this volume, and it is with pleasure that we present to our readers the record of his career. A native of Cambridgeshire, England, he was born on May 24, 1834, and is a son of John and Jane (Dickerson) Bowles. The public schools of his native land afforded him his educational privileges, and when quite young he started out to make his own living.

When a young man, Mr. Bowles determined to come to America, believing that he might better his financial condition by taking advantage of the opportunities afforded in the New World. He crossed the Atlantic in 1851, and located in Albany, N. Y., where he was employed for a time as gardener. He later went to Rhode Island, where he secured a situation with S. W. Foster, a wholesale merchant. In 1853 he came to Ohio, locating in Monroeville, Huron county, where he worked as a farm hand until 1856, when he took up his residence in Wood county. During the Civil war he enlisted at Perrysburg, in Capt. Cook's company—Company C, 21st O. V. I.—and was honorably discharged at Columbus, Ohio, in August, 1861. He then returned home and purchased forty acres of land, which he improved. He possesses good business ability, is a careful manager, is energetic and progressive in his methods, and that he has won a place among the substantial citizens of Milton township is due to his own efforts. In politics he is a Republican.

In Milton township Mr. Bowles was united in marriage with Miss Jane Watson, who was born in Delaware, Ohio, December 3, 1838. They became the parents of four children—Benjamin and Mary L., both deceased; William, who married Emma Reid, and aids in the operation of his father's farm; and Maxwell, who is also at home.

PROF. J. C. SOLETHER, principal of the Jerry City schools, has been engaged in teaching for over twenty years, and has an enviable reputation as an educator throughout Wood county and vicinity.

Our subject was born December 28, 1854, in Bloom township, eldest child of Charles and Sarah (Miller) Solether. He first attended at District School No. 5, in Portage township, and Alfred Smith was his first teacher. As he was the eldest, however, he was needed at home to help his father, being thoroughly trained to agricultural pursuits, and by the time he reached the age of eighteen he had only an ordinary literary training. He then attended six months at the Bowling Green schools, and by the time he was nineteen had fitted himself for teaching, a profession to which he has ever since given his principal attention, and it is a fact worthy of note that though he has held many different positions, his work has all been in Wood county and vicinity. After beginning to teach he educated himself from his own earnings, and he at first taught during the winter and engaged in farm work during the summer. He spent one term at the Normal at Fostoria, and studied at Oberlin College part of three years, but after he was twenty-four years old he advanced himself by reading and private study, acquiring no small amount of knowledge in this way. His first school was in Liberty township, and he received $1.50 a day for his services, and he has also taught in Bloom and Portage townships, having been principal of the Portage schools for four years. He is now serving his sixth year as principal of the schools in Jerry City, where he is most favorably known as a competent instructor and a good disciplinarian, and one who has the respect and good will of his pupils. Though he has been unusually successful, he deserves the rank he now occupies in his profession, for he has placed himself in his present position by hard study and untiring devotion to his work. In May, 1889, Prof. Solether was appointed, by Judge Young, one of the county examiners, and has held that position continuously since, serving with his customary efficiency and ability. In 1895 he and his wife went to Denver to attend the Convention of the National Association of Teachers, and on his trip visited Salt Lake City and many other points of interest and importance.

On November 10, 1880, Prof. Solether was married, in Henry township, Wood county, to Miss Lydia Peters, a native of that township, daughter of Squire B. L. Peters. Children as follows have blessed this union: Hallie, Lauren, Pliny, McClellan, and Harry, all of whom are living. At the time of his marriage our subject located on his present farm in Portage township, which comprises ninety-one acres of good land in Section 32, and forty acres in Section 29, and it is still more valuable on account of its situation in the midst of a good oil territory. All the farm buildings and the very pleasant and comfortable residence have been erected by him, and he has displayed as much ability in this line as he has in his profession, having acquired a very fair share of this world's goods. He has a well-stocked library and a most comfortable home. Prof. Solether has been a lifelong Republican in political sentiment, and in Bloom township served as trustee and for two years as clerk. But he is no politician, being thoroughly devoted to his profession and to his home.

T. J. VOSBURG, a well-known resident of Jerry City, was born November 27, 1820, in the town of Salisbury, Litchfield Co., Conn., son of John and Elizabeth (Miner) Vosburg, and grandson of Abraham Vosburg.

John Vosburg was an ore digger in Connecticut. He was married in that State, and lived there several years afterward, coming to Ohio when our subject, who was the eldest child, was about eight years old. They located on a new farm in Berlin township, Trumbull (now Mahoning) county, which was then a pioneer section, and remained there until 1836, when they came to Wood county, arriving June 1. They were fourteen days en route from Trumbull county; it rained every day, and they were obliged to cut their road out the greater part of the way after entering Wood county. It required four yoke of cattle to haul one of the covered wagons of the party from Millgrove to where they located. The Vosburgs settled in Montgomery township, which was then all in the woods and very swampy except on the ridges. Mr. Vosburg had come here the previous March, and entered eighty acres of land, also buying 160 acres that another had settled upon. The family made a temporary home with John A. Kelly, an earlier pioneer, who had a small double log house, until a cabin could be built, and they began pioneer life in earnest. Game was plentiful in that region at that early day, and wolves gave them considerable trouble on account of the stock. Mr. Vosburg lived and worked on this land the remainder of his life, gradually improving it and acquiring more property, until he found himself in comfortable circumstances. He died on the farm at the age of about sixty years, and his widow afterward moved to Millgrove, at which place she served as postmistress a few years. She passed her remaining days at Fostoria, dying at the home of her son Harmon, and she and Mr. Vosburg are both resting in the cemetery at Millgrove. They were the parents of ten children, all of whom grew to maturity, and six of whom are now living, viz.: T. J., whose name introduces this sketch; Jeanette, Mrs. John Hoiles, of Huron county, Ohio; Freeman, a farmer of Portage township, Wood county; Phoebe, who first married David Adams, and after his death wedded his brother, Alex. Adams, who is also deceased; Harmon, of Fostoria; and Hiram, of Huron county.

When the family settled in Wood county T. J. Vosburg was about sixteen years old, and, being the eldest, was his father's principal help. He had attended school in Connecticut, and also in Trumbull county, where the school house was two and a half miles from his home, and everything was of the most primitive character. His agricultural training, however, was not neglected, and he not only helped his father, but also worked away from home, the greater part of his earnings going to help his parents. After marriage he settled on twenty acres of land in Montgomery township, which he bought from his father, and lived there for some time, improving the place greatly. On selling this tract he came to Portage township, locating on the home farm of his father-in-law, John Davis, where he lived several years, finally selling out and buying a forty-acre tract, also in Portage township, and subsequently bought and removed to another farm of eighty acres in that township. In 1879 he removed to Jerry City, where he has ever since had his home. At the time of his removal here he bought forty acres of land in Section 4, Bloom township, which he held until 1895; but he never lived there.

On December 7, 1843, Mr. Vosburg was married, in Wood county, to Miss Eunice Davis, a native of Richland county, Ohio, whose father, John Davis, settled in Portage township in the fall of 1836. Children as follows were born to this union: Margaret E., widow of John Richards, who resides in Huron county, Ohio; Mary, Mrs. Benjamin Simons, of Millgrove, Wood county; Emma, Mrs. John Bunnell, of Fostoria; and Rachel, who died young. The mother of these passed from earth March 14, 1854, and was laid to rest in Millgrove cemetery. For his second wife our subject wedded, in Perry township, Miss Anna Snyder, who was born August 9, 1837, in Mahoning county, Ohio, the daughter of George and Barbara (Martin) Snyder. Mrs. Snyder died when Anna was only a child, and when she was twelve years old her father removed to Seneca county, later settling in Bloom township, Wood county, where he died. Seven children have come to this marriage, as follows: Phoebe A. (Mrs. John Boltz), of North Baltimore; Susan E. (Mrs. William Stuck), of St. Joseph county, Mich.; Martha M. (Mrs. Edward Adams), of Jerry City; Ella, widow of James McMann, of Jerry City; Clara A. (Mrs. O. T. Wilsey), of Jerry City; Ida (Mrs. William Davis), of St. Louis, Mo.; and Charles H., who lives at home.

Mr. Vosburg was originally a Whig in politics, becoming a Republican on the formation of that party, which he has always supported, except on one occasion, when he voted the Democratic ticket to please a neighbor. In anti-bellum days he was an Abolitionist. He served for ten years as trustee of Portage township, and held the office of constable there for eighteen years—the longest term of service in that position of any one man. He has been active in Church work, being a member of the Liberal contingent of the U. B. Church, and has held numerous offices, having been class-leader, trustee, Sabbath-school superintendent, etc., and the duties of every office in which he has been placed have been discharged with his usual fidelity and ability.

R. R. HILLARD, a rising young farmer of Portage township, is a native of the same, born April 7, 1873, son of Reuben P. and Mary (Dresser) Hillard.

Reuben P. Hillard was born in Crawford county, Ohio, son of Daniel Hillard. In 1862 he came to Portage township, Wood county, and married there. He was a life-long farmer, prospering in his chosen vocation, and he was an active man in the community, where he was highly respected. For several years he served as trustee of the township, and was offered other offices, but declined to serve, preferring to give all his attention to his own business interests. There were six children in his family—R. R., whose name opens this sketch; Nellie M., Mrs. B. F.

Musser, of Portage township; Charles R., a farmer, of Portage township; Frank D., Laura A. F. and Daisy E., all of whom live in Portage township. Mr. Hillard died December 26, 1891, and Mrs. Hillard passed from earth September 9, 1894, and their remains now rest in Mt. Zion Churchcemetery. They were both members of the Methodist Protestant Church, and in political affiliation Mr. Hillard was a Republican. He was a man of naturally broad intellect, and a close observer, keeping himself well informed on current events.

Our subject received his education in the schools of District No. 7, Portage township, and, being fond of books, he learned rapidly, acquiring a good common-school education. He subsequently studied bookkeeping at home, and he is a constant reader, keeping himself well abreast of the times, and posted on the issues of the day. He lived under the parental roof until his marriage, March 27, 1892, at Bradner, Wood county, to Miss Rillie A. Sprout, who was born in Seneca county, daughter of William F. and Angeline (Dicken) Sprout, the former of whom was a farmer. One child has been born to this union: Ronald M., January 22, 1894.

In the fall of 1892, Mr. Hillard located on the fifty-acre farm, in Section 35, Portage township, where he has since carried on general farming. He has two oil wells on this farm, and also holds a sixth interest in eleven other wells, nine of which are on the old Dresser farm, and two on the "Hillard Homestead." By his energy and industry, Mr. Hillard has won the good will of all who know him. On September 25, 1894, he was appointed notary public, and has since served in that office with ability and success. In political affiliation, he is a staunch Republican, as was his father before him, and socially he is a member of Rescue Lodge No. 345, K. of P., Jerry City.

F. WENZ, a well-known civil engineer of Perrysburg, was born October 4, 1850, near the historic city of Worms, Germany, where his ancestors had been for several generations Inspectors of the King's Forest. His grandfather, Nicolaus Wenz, and his father, Herman Wenz, were both born and passed their entire lives there, the latter engaging in agriculture in addition to his official duties. He married Miss Elizabeth Eberts, and their son, the subject of this sketch, enjoyed exceptionally good educational advantages in his youth; was graduated from the Polytechnic School at Darmstadt, his course having been interrupted by one year of military service in the Franco-Prussian war. In 1874 he came to America. He spent one year at Buffalo, N. Y., serving in the U. S. Coast Survey, and then came to Wood county, where he has since resided, except for trips to the Fatherland in 1878 and 1889.

Mr. Wenz married one of Perrysburg's charming daughters, Miss Celia Lucas, who was born February 28, 1859, a daughter of the late D. Lucas. They have two sons, Roscoe and Edward. Mr. Wenz has just completed a beautiful residence, one of the finest in the county, located at a picturesque spot on the Maumee river, outside of the corporation limits of Perrysburg, and here the family now reside. A young man of rare mental gifts and training, he holds a high place in the community. He is a recognized authority on civil engineering, and has served two terms as county surveyor. In politics he is a Republican.

JOHN H. WATSON, a well-known resident of Bowling Green, was born in Danube, Herkimer Co., N. Y., April 17, 1834.

His grandfather, Jude Watson, a native of New York, had a family of seven children, among whom were James, who lived in Canada; William, a Lutheran minister of Cobleskill, N. Y.; and Nathan, our subject's father, who was a tanner and shoemaker in Kerkiomer county, where he died in 1889, at the age of eighty-seven. He was a member of the Methodist Church, and in politics was first a Whig and later a Republican. He was married three times, the first time to Miss Anna Owens, a lady of Welsh descent, whose ancestors had been early settlers in New York State. Her mother was a Van Wagonen, a member of another old family in that State. Five children were born of this first marriage, of whom our subject was the youngest. The others were Catherine, who married Dr. Asa Christy, and second, George Ward; Mary, who died at the age of eighteen; William, who died at the age of forty-five; and Sarah, who married Henry Andrews, and died at the age of thirty-five. For his second wife he married Miss Sally Deyo, and four children were born to this union: Joseph, who served in an artillery corps during the war; Hannah; Elbert, who enlisted in the 77th (Bemis Heights) N. Y. V. I., and died at Fortress Monroe, after the battle of the Chickahominy; and Stephen, who died at home aged about twenty. His third wife was a widow, Mrs. Elizabeth Smith, and of this union was born one son, Davis S., a prominent inventor living at Canastota, New York,

John Herkimer Watson, our subject (whose mother died when he was an infant), was adopted by his maternal uncle, Abram Owens, and lived with him until the age of seventeen, attending school at "Indian Castle." He learned the carpenter's trade at Cherry Valley, N. Y., and later went to Bath, S. C., and engaged in business as a millwright. Two years later the war broke out, but not being in sympathy with the South he returned north to Norwich, Connecticut.

In 1859 he was married to Miss Kate Van-Dyke, who was born in Cherry Valley, N. Y., May 22, 1840. They lived for a short time in Norwich, then moved to Fort Plain, N. Y., and later to Onondaga county, N. Y., where they remained until 1876, when they came to Bowling Green, where the uncle of Mr. Watson, Abram Owens (before mentioned), then resided. Since that time they have identified themselves with all the interests of this progressive community. Mr. Watson has been employed in building some of the best structures of the town, and has also followed the occupation of millwright. Previous to the war he was a Whig, but since that time he has been a Republican, although he is a non-partisan in local affairs, and believes in voting for the best man. He has been a member of the Masonic fraternity for twenty-nine years, and now belongs to Wood county Lodge No. 112, F. & A. M., Crystal Chapter No. 157, R. A. M., Toledo Council No. 33, R. & S. M., and Toledo Commandery No. 7, Knights Templar.

JOHN WEIHL, one of the industrious and progressive agriculturists of Middleton township, was born in Berne, Germany, July 6, 1836.

His father, Clarius Wehl, was a native of the same place, and was extensively engaged in fruit raising and wine-making there. He married Fraulein Mary Linder, and had thirteen children, of whom seven lived to adult age, namely: John, Jacob, Henry, Clavius, Mary, Elizabeth and Maggie. The others died in early infancy.

Mr. Wehl was the only member of the family who came to America. He was educated in the schools of his native place, and worked for his father until he was eighteen years old, when he came to this country, spending forty-six days in crossing the Atlantic. Landing in New York City in 1854, he came to Cleveland, and, after a short stay there, went to St. Louis, Mo., where he worked five months at the blacksmith's trade. He then went to Huron county, Ohio, and worked on a farm near Norwalk until 1866, when he came to Wood county and located in Middleton township, purchasing a tract of land, which he afterward sold to Adam Beil, buying, instead, his present farm of eighty acres near Haskins. With true German industry, he has worked to improve his property, where he now has a handsome dwelling house and other buildings, and a fine orchard, among other improvements.

He was married in Erie county, in 1860, to Miss Eliza Beil, a native of Germany, born in Hassen in 1842, and a sister of Adam Beil, whose biography is given on another page. Fourteen children were born of this union, seven of whom are still living, viz.: Henry, a farmer; Rena, the wife of George Mohr; William and Charles, both now engaged in agriculture; and Louisa, Frederick and Lydia, who are still at home. The others were Adam, Minnie, Mary, Albert, Arthur, Anna, and one that died in infancy.

Mr. Wehl is an influential worker in local affairs, and has been supervisor of his township for three years, and school director for seven years. In politics he is a Democrat, and he is a prominent member of the German Reformed Church at Haskins.

JOHN LANDWEHR, one of the pioneer agriculturists of Webster township, was born April 11, 1828, in Hanover, Germany. His parents, Caspar and Catherine Landwehr, were natives of the same province. They had four children—Fred, Annie, Katie, and John, our subject, who is now the only survivor. His mother died when he was a year old, and at the age of fourteen he was bound out for wages by his father. He received a fair education, however, by making good use of his opportunities. In 1854 he came to America in a sailing vessel, and landed in Baltimore with but two shillings in his pocket. He made his way to Portsmouth, Ohio, and secured employment in a foundry, where he worked six years. In 1861 he came to Wood county, and bought eighty acres of wild land, which was one unbroken stretch of woods and water. There were no roads, and it took two days to make a trip from his home to Woodville and return, a distance of eight miles. His first dwelling was, of course, a log cabin, but the well-earned prosperity of his later years has enabled him to build a comfortable residence and farm buildings of modern pattern. He has also added sixty acres more to his estate, making one of the finest farms in his vicinity. He was married November 19, 1858, to Miss Julia Alert, of Portsmouth, Scioto county, a native of Hanover, Germany, born November 9, 1839. She was one in a family of nine children; born to Christopher and Mary Alert.

Mr. and Mrs. Landwehr have had five children: John; George; Louisa, the wife of Edward Howard; George, who died in infancy; and Annie, born January 28, 1871, the wife of Henry Myers, now the manager of his father-in-law's farm. They were married October 25, 1888, and have four children — George, born August 13, 1889; Delia, April 17, 1891; Lawrence, August 17, 1893; and Verna, August 26, 1895.

Mr. Landwehr is one of the public-spirited men of his township, and has served as school director for twelve years, and trustee for three years, discharging every duty with faithfulness and discretion. In politics he is a Republican, and he is a leading member of the German Lutheran Church at Luckey.

CHARLES A. MERCER is a native of Liberty township, and a son of Abraham and Harriet (Rice) Mercer. His father learned the shoemaker's trade in early life, and followed it to some extent, but his attention was mainly given to agricultural pursuits. He was born in Columbia county, Penn., and since his marriage has resided in Liberty township, now living a retired life in Rudolph. His first wife died about 1883, and he has since wedded Mary A. McCrory. Of the first union were born the following named: Charity, James, Charles A., Porterfield, William Marion, Clinton and Isadore.

Mr. Mercer acquired his education in the common schools, and remained in his father's home until his marriage, with the exception of one year spent in the army. He enlisted in 1864, in Company C, 11th O. V. I., and immediately went to the front, where he participated in the Atlanta campaign, and the battles of Goldsboro and Fayetteville. When the war was over he was honorably discharged in Washington in June, 1865, and returned to his home.

In the fall of 1868, in Liberty township, was celebrated the marriage of Mr. Mercer and Miss Ann Stevens. They located on the farm which is now their home, Mr. Mercer having previously purchased forty acres of land and erected thereon a good residence. He has upon this place five oil-producing wells, and, in addition to this property, he owns as fine a farm of 100 acres as there is in Jackson township. To Mr. and Mrs. Mercer have been born five children, namely: Abraham A., Carl, Bessie, Leon and Lloyd. Mr. Mercer started in life a poor boy, but has resolutely worked his way upward until he is now numbered among the substantial farmers of the community. He is serving as school director, and has filled that position for several terms, the cause of education finding in him a warm friend.

ANDREW PEBBLES. No nation has contributed more valuable citizens to our great commonwealth than the "land of the mountain and the flood," and the prominent traits of character for which the Scotch are famous—thrift, persistence and loyalty—thrive in our republican soil, and take kindly to our fostering institutions.

Among the best known and most highly respected citizens of Perry township will be found the subject of this sketch, who was born on the Eden, in Fifeshire, Scotland, March 25, 1815, the youngest child in the family of seven sons and three daughters born to Alexander and Jane (Mackay) Peebles. The father was a farmer who worked for other men, owning no property himself. Andrew received a good education in the Presbyterian schools of his native land, and when fourteen years old commenced a four-years' apprenticeship at the carpenter's trade, leaving for America two years after its completion, as will presently be related, so he worked at carpentering in Scotland six years in all. Wages were very small; it seemed impossible ever to be able to make enough to have a home of his own, and the young man, who had considerable ambition and enterprise, became dissatisfied with his lot. About this time, while doing some work for a rich gentleman, Mr. Peebles had access to his library, and there found a history of the United States. This he read with great interest, and it awakened a desire to try his fortune in the new country. His employer encouraged his idea of emigration, and recommended him to a brother-in-law of his, by the name of Smith, who lived in New York City. Mr. Smith offered to find employment for him, and a number of others if they would come to New York. Mr. Peebles undertook to get up a company of emigrants, and secured seven who had decided to leave their country in search of more work and better pay. Mr. Peebles accordingly went to Edinburgh and engaged passage on a sailing vessel for seven men, and on March 1, 1835, bade farewell to his widowed mother and other members of the family, and started on his long journey. On reaching Edinburgh he was disappointed to find that none of the other men were on hand, and he was obliged to set sail without them. The vessel, the "Margaret Bogle," Capt. Smith, was a poor one, and had only thirty-six passengers. They encountered severe storms, and, altogether had a rough voyage, making very slow time, and being eight weeks and four days on her passage to New York City, arriving at the latter place May 28, following.

Mr. Peebles landed in New York with $15, and at once hunted up Mr. Smith, for whom he worked during that summer. For the succeeding five years he followed his trade in the city and vicinity, and in 1840 started for the West. He came by way of canal from Albany to Buffalo, thence by the lake to Cleveland, and from there by canal to Chillicothe, where he had a brother-in-law living. He worked at his trade in that city and vicinity, and when he could find nothing else to do went into the fields as a harvest hand. Times were hard and money scarce, and the country was flooded with "shinplasters"; a man might have a pocket-full of bills when he went to bed, and wake up to find the banks broken and himself with nothing. Our subject lived in Chillicothe four years, during that time purchasing a small property there. His next home was in Circleville, Ohio, where he also owned his home, and where he remained three years. He then rented land near Bainbridge, in Paxton township, Ross Co., Ohio, and engaged in farming, also in the manufacture of fanning mills. Later he lived in Fayette and Clinton counties, farming in both. In March, 1864, Mr. Peebles removed to Montgomery township, Wood county, on one hundred acres of partly improved land, one farm, which he conducted until 1882, and in 1865 he bought 160 acres, also in Montgomery township. In 1883, owing to the poor health of his wife, he broke up housekeeping, and the latter spent some time with her children. In the meantime Mr. Peebles rented a small farm, and, later, removed to Perry township and lived with his son.

Mr. Peebles was married in New York City, in April, 1839, to Miss Ellen McDowell, a native of Scotland, who came to this country in 1835; her death took place March 2, 1888, and she lies in the cemetery at Freeport. The children born to this worthy couple were as follows: Jane, the wife of John L. Pursinger, of Washington Court House, Ohio; Andrew J., who died in infancy; James, a farmer in Perry township; Ellen, who married Daniel Wise, and died at Freeport, in 1895; Ann, who became the wife of Alonzo Hemminger, and died in Montgomery township in 1892. Mr. Peebles now lives by himself on a small piece of land in Perry township, and is passing the evening of his life in quiet and restful enjoyment. Besides his home place, he owns a tract of eighty acres in Bloom township. At one time he was a Democrat in political belief; but, seeing and deprecating the terrible evils which intemperance brings upon us as a nation, he has become a Prohibitionist from principle, and casts all his influence in behalf of that party which he thinks would remedy the evil if allowed the power. He has never held office, although repeatedly urged to do so, and although he was well-fitted to occupy any place in the gift of his locality. He is an honest, upright citizen, a typical Scotchman, and although his love for his native land is still strong within him, he is loyal to the country of his adoption. He has been a stanch Presbyterian ever since his youth, but is broadminded, and gives liberally to Churches of all denominations. Although he has arrived at a good old age, he retains his faculties, and is active and energetic, a congenial companion, and a man highly esteemed in the community.

EPHRAIM SHANABARGER, one of the successful representative farmers of Wood county, was born April 16, 1828, in Richland county, Ohio. His parents, Henry and Sarah (Royer) Shanabarger, were natives of Virginia and Pennsylvania, respectively. They were married in Richland county, Ohio, and there they both died in 1844. They had a family of eleven children: Robert, of Lucas, Ohio; Ephraim; Isaac, a shoemaker, who died in Missouri; Albert, a farmer of Whitley county, Ind.; Thomas Jefferson, a soldier of the 49th O. V. I.; Wilson Shannon, who died on the banks of the Mississippi river with camp diarrhea, and was buried there; Lavina, wife of Solomon Peterson, of Richland county, Ohio; Eleanor, who died at the home of her brother Ephraim, and was the widow of Thomas Reed, who was killed in a gristmill at Dayton, Ohio; Lucinda, wife of Ephraim Klink, of Mt. Zion, Ohio; Brageta, who died in 1844; and Leah, wife of James Marks, of Lucas, Ohio.

Common-school privileges were those afforded our subject, and his childhood and youth were passed on the old homestead in Richland county. He was seventeen years of age at the time of his parents' deaths. Not long after the farm was sold, and the administrator of the estate bound the children out to farmers. Our subject remained in the service of Patrick Yates until he had attained his majority, when he worked as a farm hand in the neighborhood, receiving $1 per day. In 1853 he went with his brother Robert to Miami county, Ind., and purchased eighty acres of wild land, which he at once began to improve. After a year, however, he returned to Wood county. In Bloom township, on Christmas Day, 1855, Mr. Shanabarger married Sarah J. Yeaman, who was born in Richland county, April 22, 1835, a daughter of Joshua M. and Catherine (Keefer) Yeaman, also natives of Richland county. Mrs. Shanabarger was seventeen years of age when she came to Wood county with her parents, who located on a 400-acre farm in Bloom township, there spending their remaining days. The father died October 2, 1871, at the age of sixty-three years, and his wife died December 12, 1876, aged seventy-eight years. Their children were Martha (widow of Henry Zoda) and Sarah J. (Mrs. Shanabarger).

Mr. and Mrs. Shanabarger lived four years on her father's farm, the former working in a gristmill owned by Mr. Yeaman. The latter gave to his daughter and our subject 100 acres of land in Henry township, and they removed to the place, erected thereon a frame residence, and began to clear and improve the property. After the death of Mr. Yeaman, Mr. Shanabarger and his brother-in-law, Mr. Zoda, operated the gristmill for two years, and then concluded to divide the property of the Yeaman estate, the latter retaining the ownership of the mill, while the former took the land. He has since disposed of a portion of this, but still retains the ownership of 216 acres. The children of Mr. and Mrs. Shanabarger are as follows: Francis C., born in Bloom township, September 30, 1856, is now a minister of the House of Israel; Martha Ellen, born February 20, 1858, is the widow of John Bowman, of Findlay, Ohio; Celestia Ann, born March 21, 1865, died November 17, 1884; Henry Albertus, born October 6, 1868, married Margaret Zink, and lives in Henry township; Minnie C., born February 10, 1872, is the wife of Alpheus Witmore, of Jerry City, Ohio. Mr. Shanabarger was formerly a Democrat in politics, but he is now independent, voting for the best men. He and his wife are members of the religious order known as the New House of Israel, the Living Temple. This religious organization was established on the 6th of April, 1891, in the city of Port Huron, Mich., and, when the ark of God's new covenant was brought forth according to divine order the Shanabarger family were among the witnesses. The ark here spoken of (Rev. 11, 19) was brought forth July 1, A. D., 1894, and dedicated in the New House of Israel, the Living Temple, at Pt. Huron, Mich., U. S. A. The New House of Israel is now located in Polk county, Texas, four miles northeast of Livingston. The presence of the divine ark will constitute the life of the Philadelphian Church (Rev. 3, 7), and wherever that is there must the ark of necessity be. The living testimony is now being handed to the people from the ark of the Lord this year A. D., 1896, through the columns of the Pinery by the true Philadelphian Church, the New House of Israel—Isaac was born

B. C., 1896; this proclamation is made A. D., 1896. The fulness of the Gentiles has come in, and Israel must be grafted into their own natural olive again (Rom. xi), and the covenant made with Israel (26th and 27th verses). The proclamation of this testimony of the Kingdom will be as by the sounds of a trumpet to alarm all nations of the earth, and especially all the professions of Christianity because attended with the power of acting all wonders. The birth of this virgin Church was visionally typified to St. John by the great wonder in heaven, bringing forth her first born that was caught up to the throne of God (see Rev. 12).—Geo. R. Sutton, H. P., Judge in Israel; residence, four miles northeast of Livingston, Texas.

JOSHUA O. AVERY, a well-known citizen of Weston township, is a native of Connecticut, born November 23, 1828, in New London county. The first of the Averys in this country came over in the "Mayflower," and in after years many of the name were massacred at Fort Ledyard.

Dudley Avery, father of our subject, was also of Connecticut nativity, born December 16, 1791, of English ancestry, and died near Monroeville, Huron Co., Ohio, September 30, 1854. He followed the occupation of a farmer, was a Universalist in religion, a Republican in politics. In Connecticut, October 16, 1814, he married Miss Prudence Avery, a native of that State, born August 26, 1788, of English parentage. Their children were: Dudley Austin, born September 21, 1815, died November 29, 1890; Hiram, b. February 7, 1817, d. March 30, 1855; Luther, b. April 30, 1819, d. February 28, 1895; Sydney S., b. April 16, 1822, d. February 24, 1830; Sarah Elizabeth, b. August 14, 1823, d. April 30, 1890 (she married Thomas B. Smith, in Huron county, and was residing at Dundee, Mich., at the time of her death; they had one child, Joseph B. Smith); John Q. A., b. June 12, 1825, d. June 2, 1826; Lucy Ann, b. December 30, 1826, d. February 9, 1830; Joshua O., our subject, comes next; Sylvia Ann, b. August 31, 1830, married William H. Chapman (he is deceased, and she now resides one mile east of Weston); and Prudence Olive, b. July 9, 1832, married to Edwin Mauley, of Sherman township, Huron county.

For a time our subject attended school in his native county, and then moved with his parents to Cleveland, Ohio, whence after a year's sojourn the family removed to Huron county, settling near Monroeville, in 1838. There Mr. Avery again attended school until he was twenty years of age, at which time he came to Wood county and located two and one-half miles east of Weston. In 1864 he enlisted at Tontogany, in Company K, 185th O. V. I., under Gen. Cummings, and was honorably discharged in May, 1865. He suffered many hardships connected with a soldier's life, and so shattered in health was he when he returned home that he has been an invalid ever since from paralysis and spinal trouble, so as to be unfit for performing manual labor. He was a corporal in Capt. Black's company. Returning home he had his residence in Tontogany two years, then remained at his former home near Weston till 1889, in which year he came to his present beautiful home, situated one mile north of that village. It contains twenty-four and one-half acres of highly improved land, in addition to which Mr. Avery owns a farm of 120 acres in Plain township. In early life he followed agricultural pursuits, but for ten-years he traveled for a plating firm, and for the past decade he has assisted in collecting the taxes of the county. In his political preferences he is a stanch Republican, and for several years he served as trustee of Plain township. As a member of the G. A. R., he has always taken great interest in the National Encampments, having attended nearly all that have been so far held. The county fairs have no better champion than Mr. Avery, and for the past twenty years he has been the able and active secretary of the Wood County Agricultural Society.

J. O. Curry

Harriet M. Avery

Mr. Avery has been thrice married; first time in Lyme township, Huron Co., Ohio, on June 8, 1851, to Miss Harriet Mauley, of Sherman, Ohio, born March 6, 1834, in Deerfield, Oneida Co., N. Y., a daughter of John and Thankful (Nicholson) Mauley, who were of English descent. To this union children as follows were born: Thankful J., born August 21, 1853, died in infancy; Dudley Hiram, b. April 11, 1857, married Ellie M. Wiley, of Bowling Green, Ohio; Harriet Jane A., b. March 6, 1859, married B. P. Stratton, of Bowling Green, and they have two children—Pearl and Harold; John Orlando, b. July 9, 1861, lives in Bowling Green, married Miss Cora Hemminger, of North Baltimore, Ohio, and they had two children—Lea M. (deceased), and Bernard; Florence Susanna, b. March 17, 1864, and married G. W. Cheeney, also lives in Bowling Green; Flora Adelia, b. September 23, 1865, died in infancy; and Cora Coen, b. July 30, 1868, single. The mother of these died August 4, 1868, and July 20, 1870, at Tontogany, Mr. Avery married his second wife. For his third he wedded January 6, 1883, Miss Letitia Elenor Fillmore, who was born October 23, 1864, a daughter of Timothy and Patience (Allen) Fillmore, the former of whom was born in New Brunswick, Canada, July 28, 1836, the latter in Nova Scotia, April 12, same year. Timothy Fillmore was a son of William Fillmore and wife, also natives of New Brunswick, and whose parents were English. In 1839, when Timothy was a small boy, the family moved by way of the St. Lawrence to Upper Canada (now province of Ontario), and on board the same vessel was his future wife, little two-year-old Patience Allen, who was accompanying her parents westward. She and Timothy were married August 3, 1856, in Canada, and in 1868 they moved into Michigan, settling in Midland county, where they are still living on their farm. They were the parents of eleven children, one of whom died in infancy; the others were: Julia D. (Mrs. John Marsh); William H., of Midland; James W., of Weston; Celia (Mrs. B. Canfield), now deceased; Letitia Elenor (Mrs. Avery); and Carrie, Sarah, Millard, Mahlon, and Corra, all five at home. The parents of these are both Methodists, and Mr. Fillmore is a Republican.

Mrs. Avery is affiliated with the Woman's Relief Corps, also with the L. O. T. M., and is a member of the Methodist Church.

CHARLES W. BRADSHAW, a well-known farmer and contractor, of Weston township, was born in Northampton, England, February 12, 1851.

John W. Bradshaw, the father of our subject, also a native of England, was there married May 4, 1846, to Charlotte Wortley, who was born in Northampton. In 1851, he set out with his wife and two little children—Emily and Charles W.—for America, embarking at Liverpool on a sailing vessel, the voyage occupying four weeks and four days. His first location was in Monroeville, Huron Co., Ohio, and his sole possessions on arriving there was $15 in money, and a few bedclothes. For a time he worked on a farm there, and in October, 1860, came by team to Portage, Wood county, where he bought ninety acres of land, on which he made his home until his death in 1883, his wife surviving him until 1893. In civic affairs, he held the offices of trustee, supervisor, and director of the school board; in religious faith he was originally a Methodist, later in life becoming a member of the Church of Christ. Five children were born to this worthy couple, as follows: Emily is the wife of Joseph Horn, of Bowling Green; Charles W. is our subject; Elizabeth H. married Henry Swope, and they reside in Columbus, Ga.; George is practicing medicine at Bluffton, Ohio; Lottie L. is the wife of H. B. Saylor, a hardware dealer, of Portage.

The early education of our subject was obtained at Hunt's Corners, in Huron county, and in the district schools of Wood county, which he attended until he was nineteen years old. He then taught some five winters, after which he spent two years in Ada, and there took the commercial and teachers courses, also higher mathematics and surveying, at the Northwestern Ohio Normal School, the average grade of his studies being 98. He left the institution in August, 1877, at the time of the great railroad strike at Mechanicsburg, Penn. In the meantime he assisted his father, and worked as a bridge contractor and carpenter during the summers. For six years he taught during the winters, and worked at his trade the remainder of the year. From September, 1881, to June, 1888, he was superintendent of public schools, at Tontogany and Portage. Mr. Bradshaw was married May 2, 1880, in Weston, to Miss Louisa Phillips, who was born in Troy township, Wood county, October 6, 1857, a daughter of Solomon and Maria (Chollette) Phillips, the former born in West Virginia, February 14, 1816, of English descent, the latter a native of New York State. They were married in Fremont, Ohio, where the father followed farming, and was a supervisor and contractor. He died at Weston, his former home, March 27, 1896, aged eighty years; his widow, who is of French extraction, is now sixty-two years old, and one of a family of thirteen children. She commenced teaching school at the age of thirteen years; is a member of the Methodist Church, and has been a great Sabbath-school worker. To this worthy couple were born two children: Louisa (Mrs. Bradshaw), and Eva, who died when two years old. Mrs. Bradshaw taught school until she was twenty-four years old, some eight years in all, having taught two years after her marriage. She is a lady of much culture and refinement, and is highly esteemed in the community.

In 1882 Mr. Bradshaw purchased forty acres in Weston, where he now resides. He has a pleasant home with fine barns and out-buildings, and is a prosperous and well-to-do farmer. Some six years ago he began operating as a contractor and builder, and has been very successful in that line. His family consists of four children: John W., born July 5, 1882; Pauline Louise, born March 17, 1884; Charles Blythe, born June 29, 1887; and Gladys Marguerite, born February 2, 1893.

Mr. Bradshaw is a staunch Republican, and an active worker in the interests of his party. Socially, he is a member of Weston Lodge No. 681, I. O. O. F. He has been a councilman for six years, and is looked upon as a worthy citizen. He attends the Methodist Episcopal Church, of which his wife is a member. Mrs. Bradshaw is also a member of the Foreign Mission Aid Society, of the M. E. Aid Society, of which she held the office of secretary for three years, and is always ready to assist in philanthropic work.

GREENBURY BURDITT, JR., a valued and esteemed agriculturist of Washington township, where he has a farm of sixty acres of good land, is meeting with a merited success in his farming operations, and bids fair to achieve an easy competence, so that in his declining years he may rest peacefully from the cares of life. The buildings upon his place are neat and substantial in character, and betoken thrift and prosperity.

The birth of Mr. Burditt took place in Washington township, September 12, 1867, and in his youth he attended school at Maple Grove; but owing to ill health his work in the school room was rather limited. He remained beneath the parental roof, surrounded by all the tender influences of that home until his marriage, which occurred April 26, 1888, Miss Ollie Long becoming his wife. She was a daughter of George Long, and her birth occurred in January, 1871. Two children blessed this union: Gracie Ann, born March 7, 1889; and Flossie Edna, born June 23, 1891. The mother died November 3, 1893, and for his second wife, Mr. Burditt wedded Charicie Jennie Lynn on April 15, 1895. Born October 15, 1866, she is a daughter of Melvin Lynn, a prominent farmer of Huron county, Ohio; she is a faithful member of the United Brethren Church.

On starting out in life for himself, Mr. Burditt first rented forty acres of land, which he operated for a year, and then purchased his present farm, in connection with the cultivation of which he is also engaged in the breeding of Jersey cattle. He is not strictly partisan, though he usually votes the Republican ticket; but at local elections his support is given to the man he thinks best qualified for the office, regardless of party ties. He attends the Christian Union Church.

E. H. CHILCOTE, M. D., a prominent physician of Bloomdale, senior member of the firm of E. H. & A. M. Chilcote, was born in Perry township, September 9, 1848. He is of English descent, the first of the American branch of the family being his great-grandfather, John Chilcote, who settled first in Maryland, and later came to Richland county (now Ashland county), Ohio, where his death occurred at the age of ninety-six. His son, Mordecai, our subject's grandfather, was born in Maryland, and was married there to Ruth McCrill. In 1814, they removed to Ohio, settling in the then unbroken wilderness of Ashland county. Their journey caused much alarm to them and their friends, as Indians were numerous and troublesome. Mordecai Chilcote died at forty-seven, before his farm had been fully brought under cultivation. His wife survived him and died at the age of eighty-one, in the home of her son Samuel, in Ashland county, where the remains of both of these brave pioneers now rest. They had seven children, none of whom are now living: John, formerly a farmer, died in Perry township; Rachel died in Ashland county; Delilah died there also, at the age of sixteen; Mary married William Murray, and died in Ashland; Elizabeth died at the old home; and Mordecai, in Hillsdale county, Michigan.

Samuel Chilcote, the youngest of this family, and the father of our subject, was born in Amanda township, Lancaster county, June 2, 1813, and was only a year old at the time of the removal to Ashland county. He had but limited educational advantages in that frontier neighborhood, but was an apt scholar, and made good use of his time when not working upon the farm. On February 21, 1833, he was married, in Orange township, Ashland county, to Miss Susan Hatfield, a native of Harrison county, born October 16, 1816, the daughter of William and Nancy (Craig) Hatfield. Her mother having died in 1823, she had been reared by strangers from the age of seven, until an older sister, Marian, was married to James Worley, and she then made her home with them, and came to Ashland county on their removal there. Samuel Chilcote was only nineteen years old when he married, and his portion of his father's estate could not be secured, so he continued to work upon the farm as before. After attaining his majority he came to Perry township, Wood county, where he arrived October 21, 1834, in the primeval forest, without even a roof to shelter his family. A shanty was hastily raised with bass bark roof and three sides made of slabs, the opening being toward a huge log fire where they did their cooking. He and his brother John then owned 160 acres, which they divided. "Uncle Sam," as he was called by everybody, became a leading man of his day in this county, first as a Democrat, and later as a worker in the Republican party. He held various offices, serving six years as county commissioner, twelve as justice of the peace, and he was also trustee for some time. He held various offices in the M. E. Church, with which he and his wife had united in early life. He had a genial nature, and possessed most admirable qualities of mind and heart. His physical strength was unusual, and he was six feet tall and built in fine proportion, weighing over 200 pounds. He met his death December 9, 1885, from being thrown from a double wagon box, injuring his spine, and he was buried in Perry Center cemetery by the Masonic fraternity, of which he had been a leading member. His widow remained at the old farm until 1890; but since that time she has lived with her three sons, who care for her with a filial devotion which does them honor. All are residents of this county: Russell A., the eldest, born February 16, 1841, is a farmer in Perry township; E. H., our subject; and Allen M., the youngest, born April 8, 1851, who is in partnership with the latter.

Our subject was reared as a farmer's boy, and attended the district schools until the age of sixteen, when he began to study at Fostoria. He learned rapidly, and at eighteen was competent to teach, and taught two terms in Loudon township, Seneca county. Afterward he attended school at Fostoria for some time, and then entered Miami Medical College at Cincinnati, graduating in March, 1871. He began the practice of his profession in Van Buren, Hancock county, and three years later moved to Bairdstown, where he remained two years, but failing health compelled him to relinquish his work, in which he was unusually successful. He spent a few years at the old home, and in 1890, with his health restored, he resumed his professional labors in partnership with his brother, they being now the oldest practitioners in Bloomdale.

In 1884 Dr. Chilcote was married in Cleveland to Miss Fannie Cooper, a native of Wood county, and a daughter of George Cooper, a prominent farmer of Perry township, Wood county. They have just built a beautiful residence, one of the finest in Bloomdale, and three children, Eva M., Florence Edna and Russell Cooper, make it merry. Mrs. Chilcote is active in all social and philanthropic movements, and is a leading member of the M. E. Church. The Doctor is an admirer of fine horses, and owns some fine specimens. In politics he is a Republican and a regular voter, but he has never been an office seeker.

GEORGE MURRAY BROWN, ex-sheriff of Wood county, Ohio, was born in Otsego county, N. Y., August 23, 1843, a son of Joseph and Cynthia (Jones) Brown, the former of whom was born in Otsego county, N. Y., in 1806, where he took up farming, thence coming, in 1856, to Wood county.

Mr. Brown traces his ancestry to one Nathaniel Brown, who, in 1730, came from England to the New World, settling in the town of Killingly, Conn. He had two sons, Jacob and Zacharias, the latter of whom died in Connecticut when yet comparatively a young man, leaving a family. Jacob, the elder of these brothers, married Lucy Russell, a French lady, and in 1780 moved to Columbia county, N. Y. In 1797 he journeyed to Decatur, Otsego county, on a wood-sled, drawn by oxen, bringing with him a few household chattels, among which were a Bible, tea-kettle, chair, table and some pewter dishes, which will be further mentioned presently. He was a farmer by occupation, and lived to the age of seventy years, dying in 1810. Eight children—three sons and five daughters—were born to him and his wife, the eldest son dying without issue. The second son, Barzillai, grandfather of our subject, was born, in 1764, in Connecticut, and went to New York State, where he engaged in farming. He married Miss Sarah Scoville, who was born in 1767, and they had ten children—seven sons and three daughters. Barzillai died May 7, 1844, his wife on February 9, 1847. Nathaniel, their eldest son, married Orpha Seward, and had nine children. At a reunion of the Brown family, held September 4, 1879, at Decatur, Otsego Co., N. Y., on the old farm, the articles brought by Jacob Brown, in 1797, to Decatur—the Bible, tea-kettle, etc., above mentioned—were used, the old Bible being read from, and the chair, table and pewter dishes used. On that day there were living 279 descendants of Jacob and Lucy Brown, and seventy descendants of Barzillai and Sarah Brown. The Brown family, as far as can be traced, have always been loyal, and records show that they were represented in every war in which this country was engaged, from the Revolution of 1775 down to the Civil war of 1861. Three members who lost their lives in the Rebellion are buried in Otsego county.

Joseph Brown, the father of our subject, located in Perrysburg township, Wood Co., Ohio, in 1856; in 1858 he moved to Bowling Green, in Plain township. When a young man he was employed as an overseer on a plantation in Virginia. He was well acquainted with Andrew Jackson, of whom he was a personal friend, and was a Democrat of the old school. His wife was born in Lewis county, N. Y., March 16, 1808, and died in Wood county, November 14, 1880. Mr. Brown died November 15, 1892, in Bowling Green, at the residence of George M. Brown, where he made his home. To this couple were born the following children: Paul J., born June 5, 1837, is a farmer of Plain township; Paulina, born August 27, 1840, married Lafayette Borden, of Lucas county, Ohio, where they live on a farm; George M. is our subject; Banyer Blakely, born July 12, 1845, left home, in 1867, for California, and was never heard from after he reached Kansas City; Gibson Lamont, born December 22, 1847, died September 24, 1863; and Gibbs F., born December 22, 1847, died in 1848.

George M. Brown, the subject proper of these lines, attended school in Perrysburg until 1857-58, after which he came to Bowling Green, where he completed his education, and was reared on the farm. In 1864 he entered the army, joining Company C, 144th O. V. I., and took part in engagements in Maryland and Virginia, being present at the battles of Monocacy (Md.) and Berryville (Va.). In the fight at the latter place several of the regiment were taken prisoners, some of whom afterward died in prison. Our subject was captured, but managed to escape after being detained only a few hours. He then joined Company K, 185th O. V. I., with which he served until the close of the war. He was promoted to the rank of corporal during his first service with Company C, which lasted about four months, and was sergeant of Company K.

After the close of the war Mr. Brown returned home, settled on a farm, and on February 14, 1868, was married to Miss Lucy Brown, a (daughter of Isaac and Cassia (Rhinehart) Brown), born in Perry county, Ohio, in 1843, and whose death occurred February 14, 1895, the anniversary of her wedding day. They had one child, Mary Bertha, born June 27, 1874, who married Fred W. Hankey (they also have one child named Don Brown Hankey, born January 17, 1895), and one adopted son, Banyer B. Brown, born in October, 1876, whom they took when three-months old. After his marriage our subject settled on his farm, and he and his brother have about 350 acres of land near the town of Bowling Green, and our subject has also forty acres within the corporation, on which he lives. He has also a royalty in ten or twelve oil wells. In 1891 he built what is known as the "Brown Hotel" in Bowling Green, which is considered to be the best of its kind in the county.

DON BROWN HANKEY.

Geo. M. Brown Mrs G M Brown

A staunch Democrat in his political predilections, Mr. Brown has been elected on that ticket to various offices of honor and trust, several terms as trustee of the township. In 1883 he was elected sheriff, and re-elected in 1885, the first time receiving a majority of 200 votes, and on the second occasion a majority of 700, being the first Democratic sheriff of Wood county since the war. While in office he hung two men, one each term, one of whom, a murderer, he followed to northern Wisconsin, near Eau Claire, where he captured him, took him back to Bowling Green, convicted him and hung him in the penitentiary, he being the last man hung by any sheriff in the State, as all now condemned to capital punishment are hung by the warden of the penitentiary. Socially, Mr. Brown has been a Mason since 1866, and is in the thirty-second degree; belongs also to the Blue Lodge and Chapter in Bowling Green Commandery No. 7, and in the Cincinnati Consistory. He is also a member of the I. O. O. F., K. of P., and G. A. R., and has passed all the degrees in each of them. A typical whole-souled American, he justly deserves and enjoys the confidence and esteem of the community at large.

ABEL COMSTOCK, a well-known justice of the peace of Bowling Green, was born September 4, 1843, in Mercer county, Penn., and is the son of Robert and Sarah (McDowell) Comstock. His father was born August 8, 1818, near Burlington, Vt., and his mother April 13, 1817, in Mercer county. Their marriage took place in the latter county, in 1842.

The paternal grandfather of our subject, Abel Comstock, was born in Connecticut, about the close of the Revolutionary war, and was a millwright by trade. He removed to northern New York, near Lake Champlain, and soon after his son Robert came to Ohio he went to Dubuque, Iowa, where he died at the age of ninety-seven years. He was one of the old Scotch Covenanters, of stern demeanor, adhering strictly to what he believed to be right, and was deeply imbued with the spirit of the old Blue Laws of Connecticut. His wife was a Miss McClintock, who was born in the Highlands of Scotland, and who died sometime in the "sixties," in Iowa. The maternal grandfather of our subject, John McDowell, was a native of Pennsylvania, where he followed farming. At the battle of Fort Meigs, he commanded a company of State volunteers, and was a brave soldier.

The father of our subject went to Pennsylvania about 1840, and engaged in lumbering and millling, operating a grist and saw mill. He came to Ohio in September, 1848, locating two and one-half miles from Bowling Green, on the old Findlay road, where he bought land from a man named Frank McGinnis, and where he has made his home ever since. His wife died May 17, 1889. Mr. Comstock, Sr., in his early life, belonged to the old Scotch Covenanter's Church, afterward, with his wife, going over to the Seceders, but is now a member of the Congregational Church. He was originally a Whig, later, on the formation of the Republican party, adopted its platform, and has cast his vote for both the Harrisons for President. To Robert Comstock and his wife were born eight children, as follows: Abel; John, who died in 1846; Robert H., who resides in St. Louis, Mich.; Jennie, married to Everett Chapman, and living at West Mystic, Conn.; Isabelle, who became the wife of S. C. Woodberry, and died in 1873; George, deceased in infancy; William, a commercial traveler, residing at Perrysburg, Ohio; and Edward, living on the old homestead.

The subject of this sketch was reared in Wood county, where he attended the common school, finishing his education at a university. When the guns of Fort Sumter were fired, the military spirit inherited from his brave ancestors broke forth in the young man, and, although he had not yet attained his majority, he enlisted in August, 1861, in Company C, 21st O. V. I., under Gen. Nelson, his regiment being sent to eastern Kentucky, and later to Louisville. It was then assigned to the 14th Army Corps, army of the Cumberland, and there remained until the close of the war, in 1865. Mr. Comstock took part in all the engagements in which his regiment participated during this time, until the spring of 1864, when he was stricken with smallpox, and was sent to the hospital at Chattanooga. On his recovery he again went to the front, and was with Sherman on his march to the sea. While stationed at Savannah, Ga., he went on December 16, 1864, on a foraging expedition, and was taken prisoner by a band of guerrillas. He was sent to Augusta, thence to Florence, S. C., and to Goldsboro, N. C., where he remained in prisons until March 4, 1865, suffering all the horrors endured by the captives in those terrible days, some idea of which may be gained from the fact that in these few months his weight was reduced from 180 to 90 pounds. He was very ill a greater part of the time, being delirious with fever, and was unconscious at the time he was paroled at Wilmington, N. C., March 4, 1865. He was honorably discharged June 8, 1865, having served his country well and faithfully during the entire war. His regiment made a brilliant record during its service. In the battle of Chickamauga, history states that it went into the fight with 448 privates and non-commissioned officers, and came out with 106 privates and two officers, our subject being one of the latter.

At the close of the war, Mr. Comstock returned home, and engaged in farming, but soon afterward removed to Michigan, where he taught school, and also worked at lumbering. His health failing, he came back to Bowling Green and opened up a lumber yard, which he carried on until the spring of 1879, when he began reading law with Col. J. A. Shannon, with whom he afterward formed a partnership, which continued until the former left the city in 1886. Mr. Comstock has made a specialty of pension cases, having had charge of over five thousand claims, and has practiced in the department at Washington. He was elected justice of the peace of Bowling Green in September, 1890, was re-elected in 1893, and is holding that office at the present time. He is an ardent Republican, and, as may be inferred from his war record, a loyal supporter of the government. He is a leading member of the G. A. R., belonging to Wiley Post No. 46, of which he was first adjutant for six years, and commander for two years. He also belongs to the K. of P. On February 21, 1864, he was married, in Wood county, to Miss Rosamond Davis, who was born in Perrysburg, October 12, 1846. They have had five children, of whom two are now living: Helen I., a graduate of the Oberlin Conservatory of Music, who has attained a local reputation as a contralto singer, and also as a pianist; Herbert, a telegraph operator in Chicago for the C. M. & St. P. R. R.; Harry, who died when twenty-two years old; James A., deceased in infancy; and Itana B., who died when sixteen years old of typhoid pneumonia.

BENJAMIN B. HOILES, deceased, was for a number of years one of the most prominent and influential agriculturists of Montgomery township. He was a native of Ohio, born in Georgetown, Columbiana county, September 18, 1825, and was a son of Joshua and Rachel Hoiles, who moved to Alliance, Ohio, when our subject was quite small, making their home in what is now known as Mount Union, a part of that city. In religious belief they were Friends, and were originally from Philadelphia, Penn. The father never accumulated much of this world's goods, but was an industrious, honest man, who was employed mostly at day labor in clearing land.

In the family were sixteen children, twelve of whom grew to adult age, namely: Nicholas, who died at Mount Union, at the age of eighty-five years; Mrs. Elizabeth Rinear, who died in Columbiana county, Ohio; William, who died in Lucas county; Charles, who died at Orville, Ohio; Maria, who was the wife of Joseph Barnaby, and died at Alliance; Joshua, who died at Mount Union; Benjamin B., of this review; Jonathan, who died in Montgomery township, Wood county; Melvina, now Mrs. John Watson, of Mount Union; Priscilla, who married Levi Pierce, and died at Mount Union; Zedrick, of Alliance; and Mary, who wedded John Johnson, and died in Stark county, Ohio. Many of the family died very suddenly of paralysis.

Most of the early life of Benjamin B. Hoiles was passed at Mount Vernon, where he learned the carpenter's trade with his brother Charles. He was married at Alliance November 11, 1852, to Miss Maria B. Stock, who was born at New Lisbon, Ohio, December 16, 1827, and is the daughter of Henry and Minerva (Stallcup) Stock. The former was of German parentage, and his birth occurred near Baltimore, Md., while his wife was born in Columbiana county, Ohio, about 1801, where her parents had located at a very early day, and there died. Her father, William Stallcup, was a millwright by trade, and was killed in a mill near New Lisbon. The parents of Mrs. Hoiles also died at that place, where their remains were interred. Going to Mount Union when a young lady, she there learned millinery and dress-making, and it was at that place she met and married our subject. They became the parents of four children: Frank L., who was born at Mount Vernon, and died at the age of ten years; Charley H., who now makes his home at Prairie Depot; Pressly C., a farmer of Montgomery township; and Addie M., now Mrs. Harry E. Blair, of Prairie Depot.

Being a carpenter, Mr. Hoiles built his own house at Mount Union, upon a lot for which he went in debt, as he had but little money at the time of his marriage, for he had always aided in the support of his parents. Early in January, 1855, he came to Wood county to look up a location. He had chopped wood, but could not secure enough money to pay his fare, so his wife gave him twelve gold dollars from her own savings. He came by rail to Fremont, and walked the remainder of the distance to Prairie Depot, where he bargained for forty acres in Section 2, Montgomery township, costing $350. A log house stood upon the place, but it contained no doors or windows, hence a robe and blanket had to be hung over the openings which he made. In March he returned to Mount Union for his wife and child. He there sold his home, which was uncompleted, for $300, but out of that amount had to finish paying for the lot. His wife had $50 which she had saved, and with the proceeds of other sales they were able to secure their forest home in Wood county free from debt. In their rude little cabin they spent fourteen happy years, and there their children were all born. Game was quite plentiful, and Mr. Hoiles added not a little to their income by selling coon skins. Money was greatly needed as their first summer here was very wet, and but little was raised.

The health of our subject had been quite poor at Mount Union, he suffering considerably from stomach trouble, but this was relieved after coming to Wood county, as from necessity their food was quite plain, corn bread being their regular diet. In those early days he also worked some at his trade, going away on Mondays, leaving his wife and baby boy alone, and would be gone for several days. In return for his labors he could only get produce, and corn at that time brought $1 per bushel and potatoes $1.25. He made his home upon four different farms in Montgomery township, owning each one, which he would sell at a profit, and at the time of his death had a good farm of seventy-three acres. He died very suddenly December 5, 1886, mourned by a wide circle of friends throughout the community, and his remains were interred at Prairie Depot cemetery. Though never very strong he was always a great worker, and well deserved the success which came to him. A strong Republican in politics, he was an active worker in his party, and for several terms served as trustee of his township, and was school director during most of his residence here. In manner he was conservative, and gained the respect and confidence of all with whom he came in contact.

After her husband's death Mrs. Hoiles lived upon the farm left her, until 1892, when she built an elegant home; but this she sold two years later, and now has a very comfortable and pleasant dwelling at Prairie Depot. On the farm owned by her, she has seven splendid oil wells, and upon the original lease of ten acres, was found one of the largest producing wells in this locality. Though nearly seventy years of age, she is exceedingly well preserved, and is still quite active. She has led a most industrious and useful life, is a woman of more than ordinary business ability, and was an excellent helpmeet to her husband, having many times in the early days assisted him even in the work of the fields. She is surrounded by many warm friends, who have for her the most sincere regard. We may add that at the time of her and her husband's coming to Wood county, buggies were unknown, and Mrs. Hoiles relates that on Sundays, after the week's labors were past, she and her husband would take their team of black oxen, and go visiting across the swampy prairies.

GEORGE D. INSLEY, an honored veteran of the Civil war, who for three years followed the old flag on Southern battle-fields, is now numbered among the leading and influential citizens of Liberty township. He was born in Wayne county, Ohio, November 16, 1834. His father, Thornton Insley, was born in Pennsylvania, in 1808, and when a young man learned the trade of a wheelwright; but ill health forced him to abandon this. With his widowed mother he came to Ohio, and settled on a farm in Wayne county. Here he married Miss Amelia Eagle, and in 1854 took his wife and family to Hancock county. From that time on he lived with his children. He went with two daughters and a son to Dakota in 1884, and there died in 1890. His wife died in Hancock county in December, 1882. They had the following children: Elizabeth, wife of Cornelius Ewing, of Findlay, Ohio; George D., of this sketch; Nancy, wife of Samuel J. Feller, of South Dakota; Geiles, wife of Solomon Hartman, of South Dakota; Isaiah, also a farmer of that State; and Almenia, wife of G. W. Phifer, who is living near Findlay, Ohio.

Mr. Insley, of this sketch, spent his boyhood days in the counties of Wayne and Hancock, and at the age of eleven years began his education in a district school, to which he walked three miles through the woods. When twenty years of age he began work in a flour-mill at Findlay, and for twelve years was thus employed at various places. While in Findlay he was married, March 19, 1860, to Miss Mary Feller, a native of Ohio. They began their domestic life in Hancock county, and were there living at the time of the Civil war. On the 16th of August, 1862, Mr. Insley joined the boys in blue of Company D, 99th O. V. I., and immediately afterward went to the front, participating in the battles of Perrysville and Stone River, those of the Atlanta campaign, Lookout Mountain, Chickamauga, and Nashville. After the second named he was promoted to the rank of sergeant, and was honorably discharged at Wilmington, N. C., where his regiment consolidated with the 50th O. V. I.

Mr. Insley continued his residence in Hancock county until the fall of 1871, when he came to Wood county, and got out timber to build his home. He purchased forty acres of land, and erected his residence in the spring of 1872. He afterward purchased eighty acres of land in Liberty township, which he disposed of in the spring of 1895. In 1887 he visited his relatives in South Dakota, and while there purchased 160 acres of land in Edmunds county. Again, in the fall of 1894, he made another journey to that State, and bought another quarter section. In politics he has always been a staunch Republican. Socially he is connected with the Odd Fellows Society of Portage, and religiously with the Methodist Church.

To Mr. and Mrs. Insley were born seven children: Millie became the wife of A. L. See, and died at the home of our subject, leaving two children; Thornton F. died in infancy, and Juddie T. at the age of three years and six months; Emma, also died in infancy; Enola, wife of E. P. Blackman, of Wood county; Gelie became the wife of J. W. Ackerman, and died in Liberty township, leaving one child; George D. completes the family.

J. F. WOLLAM, M. D., a rising young physician of Jerry City, is a member of one of the pioneer families of Wood county, being a son of H. B. Wollam, and grandson of Archibald and Catherine (Smith) Wollam.

Archibald Wollam was born in Columbiana county, Ohio, and was there married to Catherine Smith, who was born east of the Alleghanies, in Pennsylvania, and crossed the mountains with her parents, Lewis and ——— Smith, in a wagon, the family settling later in Columbiana county. In 1832, Archibald and Catherine Wollam came to Seneca county, and were among the first white people to live along Wolf creek; but the next spring they removed to what is now Montgomery township, Wood county, settling in the midst of a forest. Their habitation was a log shanty, 18 x 20 feet in dimensions, and, as Mr. Wollam invested what little capital he had in land, they were obliged to live very economically until their land became productive. Oxen were the beasts of burden, and on one occasion, when Mr. Wollam made a trip to Swope's Corners, Seneca county, a distance of twenty miles, the journey took three days. Four children were born to this couple: Mary, widow of James Milner, who lives in Millgrove; H. B., who is mentioned farther on; Andrew J., a farmer in Bloom township; and Leah (now Mrs. G. W. Cupp), who was first married to Gardner Teff. Archibald Wollam was originally a Democrat in politics, but later became a Whig, and on the foundation of the party joined the Republicans. He held various minor offices in the township, and took an interest in party affairs, but he was no politician. He died at the age of seventy-two years, his wife at the age of eighty-two, and they now sleep their last sleep in Mt. Zion cemetery, Portage township.

Henry B. Wollam was born January 6, 1825, in Columbiana county, and was eight years old when the family came to Wood county. He attended the primitive schools of his boyhood days, which were held in log buildings having greased paper windows, and other rude furnishings, and he taught school one winter in Henry township. He was reared to agricultural pursuits, and in early manhood worked three years in Huron county, as foreman for the Buffalo Stave Co., of Buffalo, N. Y., getting out staves. After his marriage he lived in Montgomery township for some years, finally during the war removing to Bloom township, and settling on sixty acres of land in Section 1, which at that time was all new and unimproved, a shanty being their first dwelling there. In 1875 he removed to his present farm in Section 36, Portage township, which comprises forty acres, and he still owns the sixty acres in Bloom township.

On May 10, 1857, Mr. Wollam was married, in Montgomery township, to Miss Lydia A. Bair, who was born August 28, 1837, near Hanover, Penn., daughter of Jacob and Elizabeth (Hoover) Bair, the former of whom died in Pennsylvania. The widowed mother subsequently came with her four children—Susan, Jacob, Lydia and George—to Seneca county, Ohio, and about three years later settled in Montgomery township, Wood county, where Mrs. Bair owned eighty acres of land. After all the children married she removed to Fostoria, where she passed away at the age of sixty-six, her death being caused by cancer of the stomach. Five children were born to Mr. and Mrs. Wollam, as follows: J. F.; Tудie, Mrs. Thomas Wisner, of Gratiot county, Mich.; George J., a farmer of Portage township; Libbie, who died unmarried, at the age of twenty-one years; and Charles N., who died in infancy. The parents are both members of the Liberal U. B. Church, and in political affiliation Mr. Wollam is a Republican. He served as trustee of Bloom township, and has filled various local positions of responsibility and trust.

J. F. Wollam, the subject proper of this sketch, was born July 7, 1858, in Montgomery township, and received his primary education in the district schools of Bloom and Portage townships, his first teachers being Roxie McFarren and Jane Swinehart. Later he attended the Normal at Ada, Ohio, and he was afterward engaged in teaching some fourteen years, in Bloom, Portage, Montgomery, Henry and Jackson townships. He completed his general scientific studies at Ada, and commenced to read medicine with Dr. J. H. Whitehead, of Bowling Green, after which he attended Hahnemann Medical College, Chicago, earning the money for his college expenses by teaching. He commenced practice in Jerry City in 1892, and is meeting with deserved success in his chosen profession, his personal reputation being almost as great a factor in his success as his professional ability.

J. F. Hollam M.D.

On May 7, 1891, Dr. Wollam was married, in Portage township, to Miss Nettie M. Teller, who was born and reared in that township, and daughter of James Teller. She attended the Normal at Ada, Ohio (where she and Dr. Wollam became acquainted), and subsequently taught school in Wood county for eight years, and in Ashland county, two years. Two children have been born to this union: Florence T. and Helena A. The Doctor is a Republican in politics, and during President Harrison's administration served as postmaster of Jerry City; while in Portage township he served as assessor. Socially he is a member of the I. O. O. F., belonging to Vitus Lodge No. 604, Jerry City, and is a member of the Homeopathic Medical Society, of Ohio; medical examiner for several life insurance companies; a member of and medical examiner for the K. O. T. M., of Jerry City, Tent No. 92.

WILLIAM P. COBLEY, mayor of Haskins, and one of the ablest business men, and most successful agriculturists of Middleton township, is a native of the locality, born March 24, 1849.

Sebastian Cobley, his father, was born in Germany February 9, 1811, and when a young man came to Ohio. At Toledo, he was married to Miss Elizabeth Buriger, who was born in France in 1816. Her father, Joseph Buriger, brought his family to Norwalk, Ohio, and made a permanent home there. For some years after his marriage, Sebastian Cobley worked as foreman in a brick yard at Toledo, and he at one time owned fifteen acres of land on what is now Summit street, in that city. About the year 1840 they came to Middleton and entered land, which, by careful cultivation, he developed into a productive farm. He and his wife were members of the Roman Catholic Church, and died in that faith, Mr. Cobley passing away February 8, 1885, his wife on March 22, 1895. Eight children were born to them, namely: Caroline, who was born in 1841, married Joseph Debacher, and died June 20, 1888; Andrew, who was a soldier in the 111th O. V. I., and was sent home to die from the effects of a cold caught "on guard" while convalescing from an attack of mumps; Sophronia, the wife of G. W. Yount, of Toledo; William P., our subject; and Anthony, who was a farmer within the corporation of Haskins, and died July 30, 1895; Mary, who married A. F. Chase, a farmer at Haskins; Louisa, who married J. C. Nufer, November 18, 1873, and died October 23, 1885; and John, who died when about the age of twelve years.

Mr. Cobley attended the old "two-mile-woods school house," and at the same time gained a knowledge of farm work. In 1871 he married Miss Fannie Wickham, who was born September 18, 1854, on Parker's Island, near Perrysburg. Two children came of this marriage: John, born September 22, 1874; and Charles, born February 13, 1879.

For ten years after his marriage Mr. Cobley was engaged in agriculture, and then, coming to Haskins, established a grocery business which he successfully conducted until September, 1895, when he retired from that line of business, and now devotes his time and attention to his farm, and his several offices. He owns a fine home in Haskins, besides a business block. Those qualities which command the esteem and friendship of the people, he possesses in a marked degree, and he has held more offices than other man in the township. In politics he is a Democrat, as was his father before him; but he receives votes irrespective of party lines when he consents to be a candidate. He was postmaster at Haskins during Cleveland's first term; has been treasurer of his school district six years; justice of the peace three years; and is now serving his second term as the latter. Socially he is affiliated with the I. O. O. F. Encampment at Bowling Green, the order of Rebekah, and of the K. O. T. M., in which fraternities he has held many responsible positions, and is at present treasurer of the I. O. O. F.; record-keeper of the K. O. T. M., and record-keeper of Lincoln Division No. 7, of the Uniform Rank, K. O. T. M., of Bowling Green.

GEORGE P. SUTTON, a practical and progressive farmer, who owns and operates a valuable tract of land of fifty-four acres in Middleton township, is a native son of the Buckeye State. He was born in Erie county, September 8, 1857, and is a son of George P. Sutton, a native of England, who became a representative farmer of Washington township, Wood county. It was during the early boyhood of our subject that his parents removed from Erie to Wood county, and took up their residence in that township. In the district schools of the neighborhood George pursued his studies through the scholastic year, and in the summer months worked on the old homestead, giving to his father the benefit of his services until 1885, when he started out for himself. He removed to Middleton township, where he purchased fifty-four acres of land, upon which, in the midst of well-cultivated fields, stands a fine dwelling, substantial barn and the various other improvements and accessories which go to make up a model farm, and which indicate to the passerby the thrift and enterprise of the owner.

On the 17th of March, 1885, in Middleton township, was celebrated the marriage of Mr. Sutton and Miss Jennie M. Fox, who was born September 21, 1864, and is a daughter of John Fox, a farmer of Middleton township. Five children graced their union: Jessie, born October 31, 1886; Roy, who died in childhood; Mildred, born June 30, 1890; Julia, born May 24, 1893; and Hazel, born June 20, 1896.

Mr. Sutton is an energetic, honest, upright man, whom to know is to respect.

J. H. ZIEGLER, an old-time agriculturist of large experience, is now numbered among the prominent residents of Portage township, by whose people he is held in that reverence and respect tacitly accorded those whose lives have been distinguished by integrity and usefulness. A native of Pennsylvania, he was born in Cherry Tree township, Venango county, March 5, 1830, at the modest homestead of his parents, George and Catherine (Murray) Ziegler, natives of Maryland, the former born in April, 1796, and the latter a few months previous. Their marriage was celebrated in their native State, after which they removed to Pennsylvania, residing in Venango county for fifteen years. One year was then spent in Trumbull county, Ohio, while for the following six years they made their home two and a half miles west of the city of Ashland, in what was then Richland county, but is now a part of Ashland county. They next located near Republic, in Scipio township, Seneca county, where they lived for the same length of time. Their remaining days, however, were passed in Portage township, Wood county, the father dying in October, 1865, while the mother survived him for fourteen years, and they now sleep side by side in the Mennonite cemetery of Perry township, Wood county. The father was quite an athlete, six feet tall and weighing about two hundred pounds. He always supported the doctrines of the Democratic party, and when quite old was asked why he did not change his politics, and his answer was, "My hair is too gray to be turned black."

His family consisted of the following children: William, of Warren, Penn.; George, residing near Oil City, Penn.; John, of Cattaraugus county, N. Y.; Hannah, widow of Stephen Landis, of Jamestown, N. Y.; Susan, widow of Daniel Siccafoos, of Iowa; Elizabeth, wife of James Loker, of Venango county, Penn.; Levi, residing near Traverse City, Mich.; Daniel, who has been a United Brethren minister for thirty years, and also follows farming in Union county, Ohio; J. H., who is next in order of birth; Mary, now Mrs. Matthew Irvin, of Crawford county, Ohio; Ann, who married William Lee, and died in Michigan; Fannie, wife of H. R. Longacre, of Portage township; Catherine, who was the thirteenth child, and died in Seneca county, Ohio, at the age of fourteen years, hers being the first death in the family; and Andrew, who died in the same county at the age of twelve years.

Our subject was a boy of sixteen years when he left his native county, where he secured a limited education, as his parents were poor and his assistance was needed in the support of the large family. He remained under the parental roof until his marriage. In Ashland county, July 10, 1851, he married Miss Harriet Barr, a native of that county, and a daughter of James Barr. He had not a dollar at that time; but he went to work for the farmers at clearing away the timber and making rails. In July, 1854, he removed to Putnam county, Ohio, where he purchased forty acres of wild land, making a temporary home with his brother Daniel, while his own log house was being constructed. As the land was wet and swampy, and his wife was in poor health, he removed to Seneca county, Ohio, in November, 1855. There, on March 29, 1856, she died and was laid to rest in Republic cemetery. One son had been born to them — William E., who died at Six Points, Ohio, in 1884, leaving four children — Otis, Elfa, Dora, and Tinsey.

In April, 1857, at Attica, Ohio, Mr. Ziegler wedded Mrs. Mary J. Richards, widow of William M. Richards. Her birth occurred in Mansfield, Ohio, November 14, 1831, and she is a daughter of David and Elizabeth (Wannamaker) Mader, the former a native of Maryland, and the latter of the Keystone State. Her father was a farmer by occupation, and died in Portage township when over eighty years of age, while her mother passed away in Seneca county, at the age of fifty-seven. In their family were six children, one son and five daughters. The son served in the Union army during the war of the Rebellion, then, joining the regular army, was sent west, and since the latter part of the '60s has never been heard of.

After his second marriage, Mr. Ziegler rented land for sometime in Seneca county; but in 1857 bought forty acres of land on Section 26, Portage township, Wood county, for which he paid $400 cash, that sum constituting his entire capital. In October he built a log house, 18 x 24 feet, and the following February removed his family to their new home. He was compelled to borrow $28 with which to meet the expenses of the journey, but they took great pleasure in their home. He was young and full of hope, and went earnestly to work to clear and develop his land. He was drafted in 1864, and assigned to Company B, 55th O. V. I. In November of the same year he joined the regiment at Atlanta, went with Sherman to Savannah, and followed that General through the Carolinas, participating in the last fight near Goldsboro. In March, 1865, at Bentonville, N. C., he was wounded in the left shoulder, and, after remaining in the hospital at Goldsboro' for ten days, was transferred by a vessel up the coast to New York City. He lay in the hospital at David's Island until May 28, 1865, was mustered out in New York on June 1, and arrived home on the 3d of the same month. His wound was by no means healed, and his arm was very stiff. Going to the government physician at Fostoria, Ohio, he was given the liberal (?) sum of $2.50 per month until he should be able to use his arm. He has since devoted his attention to farming, and has a good farm of seventy acres.

By his second union have been born the following children—Dora L., wife of Jonas Hampshire, of Fostoria, Ohio; Frank, who has followed the various occupations of a teacher, telegrapher and photographer, and is now engaged in farming in Nebraska; Abia J., who married George Brubaker, and died in Perry township, Wood county, at the age of thirty-one years; James O. and John L., both of Portage township; and Ida, now Mrs. E. R. Shaffer, of the same township.

The political support of Mr. Ziegler has always been given the Democratic party, he has served as school director, and he and his wife are members of the Protestant Methodist Church, in which he has been class-leader. He takes great pleasure in travel, and has visited many parts of the United States. He is a kind-hearted, genial gentleman, and contributes liberally to all worthy charities.

H. B. SAYLER, a leading and popular merchant of Portage, is now engaged in the hardware business, carrying a complete and well-selected stock, and has built up an excellent trade by his fair dealing and courteous treatment of customers. He was born in Tiffin, Seneca Co., Ohio, in 1855, and is a son of S. K. and Juriah (Culp) Sayler, both natives of Pickaway county, Ohio, and whose wedding was celebrated in Marion county. In 1850 they located in Tiffin, where the father followed his trade of shoemaking until 1860, when he came to Liberty township, Wood county, and there opened up a farm in Section 2, in the midst of the wilderness. On that place he continued to live until 1881, since which time he has made his home in Weston. His wife departed this life in Weston, in 1895. At a very early day, the paternal grandfather of our subject, Henry Sayler, who was a native of Pennsylvania, emigrated to Pickaway county, Ohio, but later became a resident of Marion county, where his death occurred.

In the family to which H. B. Sayler belongs were eight children, namely: C. L., now a resident of Kansas, enlisted in Liberty township, in 1861, as a member of the 11th O. V. I., for three years, on the expiration of which time he enlisted again and served until the close of the war. J. B., who enlisted in Liberty township, in 1862, in the 10th Ohio Cav., for three years, served in the Western army, as a scout for Gen. Sherman, and was killed in Georgia. Mrs. Louanna White makes her home in Kansas. Susie Bentley resides in Illinois. H. B. is the next in order of birth. W. H. is married, and resides in Portage. O. L. lives in Trinidad, Colo. A. O. is a resident of Kansas City, Missouri:

Mr. Sayler, whose name introduces this sketch, was only five years old when he accompanied his parents to Liberty township, where he obtained his education in the district schools, and he early became familiar with the labors that fall to the lot of the agriculturist. For thirteen winters he engaged in teaching in that township, and for one term had charge of a school in Center township, though most of his time was taken up in farming, which he continued to follow until he established his present business in Portage, in February, 1888. However, he still owns a valuable farm of 160 acres in Liberty township, which is under a high state of cultivation, and well improved with substantial buildings.

In October, 1879, in Liberty township, Mr.

Sayler married Miss Lottie Bradshaw, who was born in Huron county, Ohio, and is a daughter of John and Charlotte (Wortley) Bradshaw, both natives of England. It was in 1852 that they made a settlement in Huron county; but eight years later they became residents of Liberty township, where the father developed a farm in the midst of the forest, and thereon died in 1883. His wife, who survived him for some years, died in 1894, at Bowling Green, Ohio. Three children bless the union of our subject and his wife—Merlie, Pearl, and Bernie. In politics, Mr. Sayler is a hearty supporter of the policy of the Republican party, has served as a member of the school board, and is at present school treasurer for the corporation. Socially, he belongs to Whitney Lodge No. 589, I. O. O. F., and, religiously, is a member of the Christian Church, at Rudolph. He is a man of remarkably good judgment, sound common sense, and ability, which traits have made him prosperous and influential, and the respect in which he is held is due to his high moral character and disinterested benevolence.

HUGH CAMPBELL, the well-known and popular druggist of North Baltimore, was born June 12, 1837, in Washington county, Penn., and is a son of William and Elizabeth (McFadden) Campbell. The father of our subject was a native of Pennsylvania, while the mother came from Ireland. They were married in Washington county, Penn., and in October, 1838, came to Ohio, entering land in Henry township, and also buying a farm in Bloom township, Wood county, where they made their home for the remainder of their lives. William Campbell was born in 1798, and died in 1874. His wife was born in 1795, and died in 1872. They were consistent members of the Presbyterian Church, and the father was originally a Whig, joining the ranks of the Republican party on its formation. They were the parents of nine children, of whom seven grew to maturity: Nancy, who married James Eckles, and is deceased; William, who was a soldier in the Rebellion, from Hancock county, Ohio, and died in Liberty township; John, who was in the 144th O. V. I. during the Civil war, and died in Michigan; Elizabeth, who married Ephraim Miller, and is deceased; Henry, living in North Baltimore; Sarah, the wife of James Morehead, of Seward, Neb.; and Hugh.

The subject of this sketch attended school in his boyhood in the Stone Battery school house in Bloom township, and assisted his father upon the farm until his marriage. This event took place

October 10, 1861, when he was united to Miss Margaret Telfer, who was born in Jefferson county, Ohio, August 31, 1833. Four children have come to them, namely: Corwin E., born July 8, 1862, married Miss May Lampitt, and has one child—Edith; William S., born April 19, 1866, is at home; Frank B., born September 22, 1867, married Miss Cora Trout; James Owen, born October 26, 1870, married Miss Katie Miller.

After his marriage Mr. Campbell settled on a farm in Bloom township; but did not long pursue this peaceful avocation of a farmer, for on August 20, 1862, he enlisted in defense of the old flag, going out as corporal in Company I, 111th O. V. I., which regiment was assigned to the Twenty-third Army Corps. During his three-years' service he saw much active fighting, being in the battles, amongst others, of Campbell Station, Buzzard's Roost, the siege of Atlanta, Franklin, and Nashville, Tenn. He was honorably discharged June 27, 1865, with the rank of sergeant.

On his return from the army Mr. Campbell resumed his occupation as a farmer, which he continued until 1889, when he sold his place and removed to North Baltimore, a year later opening the drug store which he has since so successfully carried on. He is recognized as a man of much ability, of high principles, undoubted integrity, and a force of character which brings him to the front in all public enterprises. His genial manners and straightforward methods of business have made him many friends and brought him a large trade, while his worth as a citizen has made him a leader in his community. Mr. Campbell is a Republican in politics, a Presbyterian in his religious belief, and a member of Sill Post No. 57, G. A. R., of which he was commander for one term.

LUCIUS MARSH, a liveryman of Prairie Depot, is one of the prosperous young business men of that village, where he was born in September, 1873. He is the youngest of four children, two sons and two daughters, born to Lucius and Sarah Marsh. He acquired his education in the common schools of his native village, where he has spent his entire life. Having a fondness for horses, his work has been mainly connected with those animals, so that he is well fitted for his present business. On August 11, 1894, he purchased the livery business of F. H. Fike, and in May of the following year removed to his present commodious quarters, his main building being 80 x 32 feet, and the annex 30 x 30. While a young man, he has shown himself capable of managing his large business, which he has built up through his own efforts.

On October 17, 1892, Mr. Marsh was united in marriage with Miss Clara Rosendale, of West Millgrove, the only daughter of Dr. Charles R. and Rebecca (Wade) Rosendale, and to them has been born one child—Earl R. A staunch Republican politically, our subject keeps himself well posted in regard to current events, and is one of the reliable and straightforward young business men of the community, well and favorably known.

JOEL FOOTE, deceased. Among the straightforward, energetic and successful farmers in Washington township, none stood higher than the subject of this sketch. A native of Massachusetts, he was there born July 26, 1815, to Epaphroditus, a son of Epaphroditus and Eunice (Ringe) Foote. They were Connecticut people, and from that State our subject's father went with his parents to Madison county, N. Y., where he received his education. After his marriage he removed to the Bay State, but later returned to New York, this time locating in Genesee county. Leaving his family there, he, in 1825, came to Ohio, where he remained some four years, and then returned for them on an Indian pony. In the spring of 1829 he brought them to this State by water. From Utica, N. Y., to Black Rock they proceeded by the Erie canal, and at Buffalo they took passage on the schooner "Eagle," commanded by Capt. David Wilkison, but, on account of delays from ice, they were six weeks upon the journey before reaching Maumee. They located on Granger Island, where the mother died the same year. There the father operated a distillery two years, at the expiration of which time, in the spring of 1831, he bought eighty acres of land, and entered eight more one mile north of Haskins, Wood county. This he improved and cultivated, and in 1850 traded for the farm on which our subject now resides. In the meantime, from 1835 to 1841, he conducted a hotel at Miltonville, and after disposing of the hotel, he removed to the farm, which comprises 120 acres of rich and arable land.

By his first marriage, Mr. Foote became the father of five children, of whom our subject was the eldest. The others are Delos, who died and was buried at Lockport, N. Y.; Mary, deceased wife of James Blinn, a farmer of Perrysburg; Sarah Ann, deceased wife of John Arnold, of Iowa, where her death occurred; and Epaphroditus, who died in the fall of 1840, at the age of twenty years. In 1830, Mr. Foote wedded his second wife, Charlotte Smith, a native of Herkimer county, N. Y., and to them were born children, to wit: Leroy, a farmer in Canada; Oscar, deceased; Emily, wife of Freeman Smith, of Wayne county, Ind.; Frederick, a merchant of Kent, Portage Co., Ohio, where he is living with his wife; Eunice, wife of John S. Matthews, of Tontogany; one who died at the age of eight years; and Harriet, wife of Frank Yost, a merchant of Tontogany.

Our subject was fourteen years old when he arrived in this State, so his education had been acquired in New York before that time; and he remained under the parental roof until he attained his majority. In 1836 he began work for J. W. Smith, a brother of D. B. Smith, with whom he remained some three years, receiving $10 per month during the first year; $15 during the second; and $20 during the third. For the following two years he drove a stage for the firm of Neal, Moore & Co., the former, the builder of the "Neal House" in Columbus. Our subject was the first to run a boat over the levee between Providence and Miami, Ohio, and in 1842 began his farming operations, in which he met with excellent success.

In 1841, Mr. Foote was united in marriage with Margaret Canela, a native of Ireland, and to them were born seven children, three of whom still survive: Alice, wife of George E. Bliss, of Kendallville, Ind.; Albert Delos, postmaster of Tontogany; and Clara, wife of F. A. Baldwin, of Bowling Green. Those deceased were: Ella, who died when fifteen years old; Calvin, who was a veteran of the 100th Regiment, O. V. I., during the Civil war, and was killed by being run over by a team after the close of the struggle; Mary, who died when young; and James Knox, who died at the age of thirty-six. The mother of this family died in 1864, and in 1867 Mr. Foote wedded Emily (Soash) Oswald, widow of John Oswald, and four children graced this union; Eddie and Freddie (twins), the former of whom died when four weeks old, and the latter now conducts a livery stable at Liberty Center, Ohio; Frank Forest, a merchant of Rochester, Fulton Co., Ind., and Joel W., a clerk at Warsaw, Indiana.

The death of our subject occurred February 22, 1896. In politics he was an ardent and loyal Democrat, and for several years he served as a trustee of Weston township, also, later, of Washington township. In religious faith he was a Universalist, while his first wife was a Catholic; his second a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

JOHN H. LE GALLEY, who is a highly respected farmer in Plain township, was born in Huron county, Ohio, April 22, 1839, and is the son of William and Abigail (Terry) Le Galley. Our subject lived in Huron county until eighteen years of age, when he came with his parents to Wood county, and settled in Plain township. His education was obtained in the district schools, and on September 12, 1861, he was married to Miss Mary S. White. He carried on farming, and was so engaged when the Civil war broke out. When the call was made for hundred-days' men, he enlisted, in May, 1864, in Company C, 144th O. V. I., and served four months. During this time he contracted rheumatism, from which he has been a sufferer ever since. Mr. Le Galley is a Democrat in his political views, and is highly respected for his integrity and worth. He has a good farm, and is progressive in his methods. To him and his estimable wife, three children have been born, as follows: Henry W. was born in 1862, and lives in Bowling Green; he is married, and has one child. Marion E. and Myron E., twins, were born in 1872, and both are dentists.

Mrs. Le Galley was born May 9, 1844, and is the daughter of Jonathan and Sallie M. (Moore) White. Her father was born in Vermont, October 5, 1818, and was married in Huron county, Ohio, in 1842. He subsequently removed to Kansas, where he died in 1883. His wife was born in Tompkins county, N. Y., January 19, 1818, and now lives in Anderson county, Kans. They had two children: Mary S. (Mrs. Le Galley), and Ellen M., wife of Jesse Dotts. The paternal grandfather of Mrs. LeGalley was Cephas White, a native of Vermont, who, in 1844, came to Huron county, Ohio, and settled in Norwalk township, where he was a successful farmer. He served in the war of 1812, participating in the battles of Chippewa, Lundy's Lane, etc. He left seven children, of whom three are living, namely: Mrs. Sarah F. Moore; Luther, who was a soldier in the Civil war; and Mrs. Rhoda R. Benn, a widow, living in Norwalk. Those deceased are Cephas, Jonathan, Henry and Mary K. Rogers.

Mrs. Le Galley's maternal grandfather was Joseph Moore, who was born November 19, 1787, and died October 5, 1876. He was a weaver by trade, and also carried on a small distillery. In June, 1833, he came to Ohio, and settled in Norwalk township, Huron county, where he bought a farm, and, in 1855, moved to Hartland township. He married Susannah Silcox, a daughter of Henry Silcox, of New Jersey, who was a soldier in the Revolutionary war. They had the following children: Sallie Marie, mother of Mrs. Le Galley; H. L. and David R., twins, the latter deceased; a daughter who died in infancy; and Lewis, who died in Hartland township, Huron county, March 7, 1896.

ALBERT DELOS FOOTE, the efficient and popular postmaster at Totogany, this county, and a leading merchant of that town, is a native of Weston township, where he was born February 23, 1851. His early education was obtained in the schools of his district, and he had also the training in farm work which falls to the average country boy. He had some experience as a clerk, and continued in that vocation some five or six years after his marriage, moving then to Belmore, Ohio, where he engaged in the grocery trade on his own account; but three years later he was burned out. After winding up his affairs there he returned to his old situation, and in 1884 he and Frank Yost bought out the mercantile business of Capt. Black, and together they conducted the store, under the firm name of Foote & Yost, some twelve years, or until January 1, 1896, at which date Mr. Foote bought out his partner, and he has since carried on the business alone. Among other commodities his lines of trade consist of general groceries, boots and shoes, and queensware.

On February 10, 1878, Mr. Foote was married to Miss Viola J. Parsons, who was born in Plain township, March 27, 1855, and five children were the result of this union: Clarence, Ella, Albert, Glenn and Mildred. Mrs. Foote is a daughter of John and Charlotte (Whitehead) Parsons, the former of whom, a native of Wood county, whose parents were of New York nativity, was a soldier in the Civil war, having, in 1861, become captain of Company H, 67th Regiment, O. V. I., and was killed at Deep Run, Va., August 11, 1864. Mrs. Charlotte Parsons was born in 1835, on Station Island, in the Maumee river, and died in 1891, the mother of three children: Viola J. (Mrs. A. D. Foote); John A., a hardware merchant in Leipsic, Putnam county; and Sidney B., who died in 1862.

Mr. Foote is an active and influential worker in the Democratic party, and was appointed postmaster at Tontogany during Cleveland's first administration, serving over four years. In 1893 he was again appointed, and still discharges the duties of the office to the entire satisfaction of the public. Socially he belongs to the I. O. O. F., was a charter member of Tontogany Lodge No. 755, and was the first noble grand in that Lodge; in religious faith he and his wife are prominent members of the Presbyterian Church. Mr. Foote a ruling elder in the Church, and has been superintendent of the Sabbath-school for a number of years, and continues in that position.

HENRY J. PELTON, a highly respected citizen of Bloomdale, and formerly one of the representative agriculturists of Perry township, was born April 2, 1841, in LaGrange Center, Lorain Co., Ohio.

James Pelton, the grandfather, was a farmer in New York State for many years. He reared a family, among whom was Daniel Pelton, our subject's father. James Pelton came to Ohio in an early day, locating in Lorain county, where he was a pioneer. In 1839, Daniel Pelton was married, in Lorain county, to Miss Eleanor Helm, a native of New York State, and, in 1850, they came to Wood county, settling in Perry township; a brother, P. J. Pelton, had come some time before. At the time of the removal, the family consisted of three children, of whom our subject was the eldest; T. V. is now a farmer and stock-buyer, of Bloom township, and W. S. lives in Perry township. Four children were born in Wood county, of whom Philo S. is a farmer in Perry township; Mary married Nelson Lowe, of the same locality; Matilda, died in 1873; and Robert C. is a farmer in Perry township. Before coming to Wood county, Daniel Pelton invested his capital in a steam sawmill, which he brought with him, it being the third in Perry township. He leased land for a mill site, and rented a residence until his increasing prosperity enabled him to buy a tract of 120 acres, where he was engaged in milling, and, in later years, in farming, also. He was an active, industrious man, slender in build, but fairly robust. He took a prominent part in local affairs, and, although he never sought office, he was a regular voter, and attended the caucuses of the Republican party from its formation, having previously been a Whig. He and his wife were leading members of the United Brethren Church. He died November 24, 1873, at the age of fifty-four years, and his wife survived him nearly nineteen years, dying March 29, 1892, at the age of seventy-two years. Both now rest in the cemetery at Perry Center.

Henry J. Pelton was nine years old when his parents came to this county, and his early training was that of the average country boy, with plenty of hard work at home and not too thorough instruction in the district schools. Time was found for recreation also, and he has attended many a rural dancing party. In June, 1861, he married Miss Amanda Baird, a native of Wayne county, born January 29, 1844, a daughter of Asa I. Baird, a well-known farmer of Perry township. In September, 1861, he enlisted at Fostoria, in Company B, 55th Regiment, O. V. I., with Capt. A. S. Bement. They went into camp at Norwalk until January, 1862, when they went to the front with nearly 1,000 men. From Grafton, W. Va., they went to their first engagement at Cross Keys, Va., and then followed Cedar Mountain, the second battle of Bull Run, and Chancellorsville, where this regiment was under a terrific fire. The next morning at roll call half the number failed to respond, and none had been captured. Next came the three-days' struggle at Gettysburg, then a long march with Hooker to the banks of the Tennessee, near Chattanooga, then Lookout Mountain, Missionary Ridge, and the raising of the siege of Knoxville, involving a long march in the dead of winter without tents, and, indeed, with hardly a blanket for each man, and many without boots or other suitable footwear. However, when Mr. Pelton's term expired he re-enlisted for another three-year term, and, after a short visit at home on a furlough, he rejoined the regiment, and took part in the continual skirmish from Chattanooga to Atlanta with Sherman, the battles at Resaca, Peach Tree Creek, and Atlanta, and the historic march "down to the sea." After the engagements at Savannah, Averbysboro and Bentonville, they went to Washington and participated in the Grand Review, and were afterward transferred to Louisville, not being mustered out until July 11, 1865. His regiment saw much hard fighting, and recruits were constantly added, 1,400 men having been members. Mr. Pelton enlisted as a private, and September 1, 1862, was made sergeant; October 1, 1864, orderly sergeant; January, 1865, quarter-master sergeant, and was then commissioned 1st lieutenant, but never served in that capacity, the war closing soon after. He never lost a day from duty throughout his service.

When at home in 1864 Mr. Pelton bought forty acres of cleared land in Perry township for $1,200, for which he went in debt to some extent, paying for it from his wages as a soldier. His young wife had remained at her father's home during the war, but on his return home they began housekeeping in a "plank" house on this farm. A great deal of hard work, and a thorough knowledge of farming, was required to bring the property into its present satisfactory condition, but Mr. Pelton was equal to it. He added to his first purchase as time passed, and now owns 160 acres. June 3, 1895, he retired to Bloomdale, having erected a tasteful dwelling at the corner of Main and Mulberry streets, where he and his estimable wife hope to enjoy the harvest of their past labors. They have had six children: Sarah E. married M. K. Fox, a farmer of Perry township; Hartwell died at twenty years of age; Carrie married George Bair, of Montgomery township; Elsie married Charles Coe, of Perry township; Burr is in the public schools of Bloomdale, and Ethel is also at school.

Mr. Pelton has always been among the leaders in local affairs, and a personal knowledge of the deficiencies of the old-time rural schools has made him an active advocate of the best that can be obtained for the future, and for nearly thirty years he has been a member of the Perry township board of education. He was also assessor for four years, and real-estate assessor in 1880. Politically he is a Republican, and he is a member of Urie Post No. 110, G. A. R., of Bloomdale. A kind neighbor, an honorable business man and a patriotic citizen, he deserves and holds the esteem of the community. As a farewell tribute to him and his family, the citizens of Perry township gave a surprise party at his home June 1, 1895, the entire neighborhood, regardless of age or sex, being present—an honor of which any one might well be proud.

S. P. HARRISON, a successful attorney at law of North Baltimore, was born April 23, 1849, his parents being John K. and Mary A. (Reepsumer) Harrison, the former of whom was born in Harrison county, Ohio, July 26, 1816, the latter born on October 22, 1818. The paternal grandparents of our subject were born in Cadiz, Harrison county, and moved to Indianapolis, Ind., where his grandfather died from sunstroke in the harvest field on a July 4th. They came from the same stock as Benjamin Harrison, ex-President of the United States.

John K. Harrison was reared to manhood in his native county, and then went to Youngstown, where he worked at mining coal for David Todd, during which time he became an exhorter for the Christian, or Disciples, Church. He was married to Miss Reepsumer December 16, 1838, in Trumbull county, Ohio, and they went to live at Girard, in the same State, where Mr. Harrison learned the trade of a wagonmaker, which he followed until 1846. In the spring of that year he started on horseback to find a home in the "Far West." Stopping one day at Flint Hill, in the Whitaker settlement, near where Jerry City is now located, he learned that the community there were Disciples, so remaining over Sunday, he preached for them. So well did they like him that they secured for him a house in Portage, persuaded him to locate there permanently, and become their preacher in Wood county. He did so, and preached at a school-house where Mermill is now located, in the forenoon, and at a school house where Rudolph is now located, in the afternoon. He reared his family in Portage, where he started a wagon shop, in which he worked during the week. Politically, he was a firm supporter of the Republican party. He died in the fall of 1867, and his widow is now living at Gordon, Neb. Nine children were born to them, namely: Almon G., born July 25, 1840, was a member of Company C, 21st O. V. I., during the Civil war; was captured at Stone River, and was confined in Libby prison; he died at Portage in 1872. John H., born January 14, 1843, was in the 86th O. V. I. 100-days' service, and also in the 144th O. V. I., 6-months' service; he died and is buried at the Dayton Soldiers' Home. Sarah J., born January 12, 1845, died October 10, 1847. Alcinda A., born January 10, 1847, is the wife of Manning Abbott, and now resides near Gordon, Neb. S. P. is our subject. Mary A., born August 18, 1851, became the wife of R. M. Donnelly, formerly clerk of Wood county court, and died at Findlay, Ohio, in 1892. Austin R., born October 23, 1853, resides at Bowling Green, where he has been deputy clerk of the court for ten years; Lucy E., born June 24, 1858, married A. J. Holcomb, of Gordon, Neb., where she now resides. Freeman, born May 22, 1861, lives in Gordon, Nebraska.

Our subject spent the days of his youth in Portage, where he received his education, and at the remarkably early age of fifteen years began teaching school, in which line he continued some twelve terms in the district schools of Wood county, and then went to Portage and taught one term in the high school there. When only twenty years old he was principal of the Girard (Ohio) High School, where he stayed one year, and then studied law with the firm of Watson & Strong, of Norwalk, Ohio. In 1870 and 1871 he was mayor of Portage, and in 1874-75-76 was a justice of the peace in Bowling Green. In 1871 he entered the law department of Michigan University at Ann Arbor, and, after graduating in 1872, formed a partnership with J. R. Tyler and J. W. Canary, of Bowling Green, which was known by the firm name of Tyler,

S. P. Harrison

Canary & Harrison. The latter dropped out of the firm after one year, for twelve years thereafter practicing alone in Bowling Green, and then for one year in Toledo. In 1885 he went to New York, and practiced there for a while, then moved to Ellsworth, Kans., remaining in that place for three years, thence proceeding to Phoenix, Ariz., sojourning there for a few months. He finally returned to Wood county, locating in North Baltimore, where he has continued the practice of his profession. He was the first city solicitor of North Baltimore, being elected to that office in 1890. In 1891 he lost all he possessed in the great fire, and was obliged to start afresh.

Mr. Harrison was married October 15, 1873, to Miss Sarah E. Flint, who was born in Fort Plain, Montgomery Co., N. Y., where she spent her childhood, receiving her education in the Fort Plain Seminary. Mr. Harrison was a charter member of Whitney Lodge, Portage, and of Centennial Lodge, Bowling Green, I. O. O. F., which he named.

T. J. CAMPBELL, the well-known merchant and banker, of Bloomdale, is justly regarded as one of the leading men in the commercial circles of southern Wood county. A shrewd business man, he is at the same time generous and public-spirited, and is ever ready to encourage any movement to benefit the community. He is the only child of one of the most prominent of Bloom township's pioneers, Andrew Campbell, who was born May 10, 1803, in Canonsburg, Pennsylvania.

William Campbell, our subject's grandfather, came from the North of Ireland, in 1787, and died in Pennsylvania in 1810. Andrew Campbell was reared in Washington county, Penn., experiencing the common lot of a country boy in pioneer times. In 1832 he came to Wood county, on foot, and entered 160 acres of land in Henry township, which was among the earliest claims taken. He visited this land each year for some time, making some improvements each time, and in 1839 he purchased eighty acres in Bloom township adjoining the tract of 160 acres; on this he erected a rude log cabin. In August of the following year he was married to Miss Mary Harsha, a native of Washington county, Penn., and a daughter of Thomas Harsha, a leading citizen there. A month later the young couple set out for their new home in the swamps of Wood county, driving a team the entire distance. When they reached their destination they took shelter for a time in a small log pen 15 x 15, until the floor of their cabin could be laid. Much remained to be done to prepare for the chilly blasts of the winter, and it required years of hard labor to transform their section of wilderness into a farm; but this was done. Andrew Campbell was a man of fine abilities and liberal ideas, and, although his schooling had been limited, his information was varied and extensive. Previous to the war he was a Whig in politics, but later he voted the Republican ticket, and took a hearty interest in the success of the party, attending conventions and primaries, but never entering the race for office himself. He was active up to the time of his death, which occurred November 19, 1878, from pneumonia. His wife, who had been for many years a consistent and devoted member of the Presbyterian Church, had passed away on August 20, of that year, and the mortal remains of both were laid to rest in Weaver cemetery.

T. J. Campbell spent his boyhood upon the farm, with plenty of work and such educational advantages as the district schools afforded. He has seen great improvements in these schools since his day, and endorses them most heartily. On August 18, 1862, he enlisted in Company I, 111th Regiment, O. V. I. (Capt. John Yeager, commanding), which was sent first to Covington, Ky., to help intercept Bragg, who was threatening the Ohio border. Mr. Campbell was under fire for the first time at Huff's Ferry, and then followed the battles of Lenoir, Campbell's Station, Knoxville, Rocky Face, Burnt Hickory, New Hope Church, Alatoona, Kenesaw Mountain, Peach Tree Creek, Atlanta, Jonesboro, Franklin, Nashville, Fort Anderson and Wilmington. He was never wounded, and was always on duty, except when physical ailments prevented him from taking his place. June 27, 1865, he was discharged at Salisbury, and came home to assume the active management of the farm.

On January 18, 1866, he was married to Miss Emeline Foster, who was born within the present city limits of Findlay, a daughter of Silas Foster, a prominent resident of Henry township. Seven children were born of this union: Orrin F., the cashier of the Exchange Bank at Bloomdale; Boyd E., a clerk in his father's store; Minnie, who died at the age of three months; Ford H., employed in his father's store; Curtie, now Mrs. M. A. Probert; Charles R., the bookkeeper in the Exchange Bank; and Edna, who is at home.

After carrying on the farm successfully until September, 1888, Mr. Campbell sold a part of it, retaining 120 acres. He moved to Bloomdale, and gave his native business talent scope for activity in several lines of work. He bought of L. C. Smith a one-third interest in the Gas Center Mill, opened a grocery store, and became interested in the grain business of Stacy & Co., owning the elevator. Later he disposed of these interests, and in 1891 established the Exchange Bank with a capital of $20,000, and in 1893, erected the Exchange Block, a fine office building, where he provided suitable accommodations for the bank. In 1895 he opened there the hardware and stove store, which has the largest quarters and most extensive trade of its kind in the town. He is a stockholder in the Bloomdale Creamery, a director in the Bloomdale Building and Loan Association, of which he was an organizer, and he is also interested in the Star Addition to Bloomdale. He is not an office seeker, but is a staunch supporter of the Republican party, and has given some time to local affairs, serving four years as township clerk, and several terms as trustee, and he was the second mayor of Bloomdale. He and his wife are members of the Lutheran Church. In G. A. R. affairs he has been very active, and was a charter member of Sill Post, at N. Baltimore. At present he belongs to Urie Post No. 110, at Bloomdale.

THOMAS STONE, one of the honored veterans of the Civil war, was born in Yorkshire, England, November 23, 1829, and is a son of William and Mary (Booth) Stone, both of whom died in England, the father in 1838, the mother in 1866. They were the parents of twelve children: John, a farmer and preacher of Yorkshire, England; Annie, wife of John Carr, a farmer of Yorkshire; Harriet, wife of William Chaplain, a resident of the City of York, England; William, who was drowned at the age of twelve years; Robert, who was drowned at the age of ten; Mary, who was burned to death at the age of seven; Thomas, subject of this sketch; Maria, widow of William Whitehead, of Southport, Lancashire, England; Francis, who died in infancy; Frank, who died in Yorkshire, in 1881, at the age of forty years; and two who died in infancy.

In his native land the education of our subject was mostly acquired, and in 1850 he embarked on the ship, "Seringapatam," at Hull, England, which, after a long and stormy voyage of eight weeks, dropped anchor in the harbor of New York. On landing on the shores of the New World, Mr. Stone came to Erie county, Ohio, locating near Sandusky City, where he worked on a farm until 1861, in which year he came to Wood county, where in April, 1858, he had purchased his present farm of sixty acres, at that time all wild land, mostly covered with water, in part so bad was it that in order to drive a team to the mill he had to go round by the river.

In June, 1852, in Erie county, Ohio, Mr. Stone married Miss Emma Smith, daughter of Jeremiah and Mary (Clarke) Smith, both natives of Lincolnshire, England. The family came to this country in 1849, and the father died in Marshalltown, Iowa, in 1881; the mother had passed away in 1852. They had six sons and four daughters, namely: Charles, who belonged to the Fifth Iowa Infantry, was taken prisoner by the Rebels at the battle of Missionary Ridge in 1863, and died in Andersonville prison in September, 1864; Cooke, who was a member of the Tenth Ohio Cavalry, and died from the effects of army service, in Michigan, in November, 1872; John and Robert, who both died in Iowa; Clark, who served in an Iowa regiment, and now lives in that State; Thomas, a farmer in Washington township; Emma (Mrs. Stone); Mary Ann, now the wife of Edwin Meeks, a farmer of Cadillac, Mich., who formerly operated a flouring-mill at Fostoria, Ohio, which he had to abandon on account of ill health; and two girls who died in infancy. Mrs. Stone, who is the eldest in the family, was born March 27, 1833.

Ten children were born to the union of Mr. and Mrs. Stone, seven of whom are yet living: George W., born May 29, 1856, is a farmer of Washington township, married Hattie Brillhart, and has four children—Fred, Allie, Francis J. and Birdie. Samantha, born September 11, 1860, is the wife of John McCombs, who resides near Blissfield, Lenawee Co., Mich. Francis C., born August 14, 1862, rents the Joel Foote farm in Washington township, which he operates; his wife bore the maiden name of Mary Crool. Clara, born April 2, 1864, is the wife of Louis Jefferies; they make their home near Monclova, Lucas Co., Ohio. Clarke J., born May 21, 1866, married Louisa Mozenia, and now carries on farming in Plain township, Wood county. Josephine, born August 15, 1868, is the wife of C. E. Gundy, a farmer of Washington township. Hattie N., born November 4, 1870, is the wife of John Welch, a farmer of Monclova, Lucas county. Three died in infancy, namely: William, born August 8, 1854, died September 7, following; Mary, born December 1, 1858, died April 9, 1861; and Nettie, born October 20, 1872, died on November 3, following. The parents also reared two brothers and a sister of Mrs. Stone.

In May, 1864, Mr. Stone enlisted at Tontogany in Company B, 144th Regiment, O. V. I., under Capt. Black and Col. Miller. On May 1, 1864, the troops left Perrysburg, Ohio, for Columbus, being mustered in at Camp Chase. They then proceeded to Pittsburg, thence to Harrisburg and Baltimore, where they remained two nights, and thence to Camp Parole, Md., near Annapolis, where they did guard duty until the 1st of July. Then they went to Monocacy Junction, near Fredericksburg, participating in several skirmishes, and while thus engaged Mr. Stone was taken prisoner on the 13th of August. When within five miles of Culpeper, he with four others succeeded in making their escape; but were five days and six nights on the road before reaching the Union lines near Fairfax Court House. On the close of his term of enlistment our subject was mustered out at Columbus, where he had suffered from an attack of fever. He is now a member of Walter A. Wood Post, G. A. R., of Tontogany.

In June, 1889, Mr. Stone returned to England, visiting the scenes of his youth and renewing old friendships, being absent on his trip about four months. He has aided in every enterprise calculated to enhance the best interests of his township and county, and labored earnestly for the welfare of their citizens. In politics he is a staunch Republican, and filled the position of trustee for one year, was supervisor several years and also school director. In religious faith he attends the services of the United Brethren Church. He has ever found his greatest pleasure in his home, and on June 15, the anniversary of his marriage, always holds a re-union of the family, which now comprises thirty-one members, including his children and fifteen grandchildren.

JAMES BRANDEBERRY, one of Perry township's most honored citizens, was born in Richland county, Ohio, May 4, 1828, and is a son of Philip and Catherine (Zimmerman) Brandeberry. In the fall of 1838, the father brought the family to Wood county, locating on 240 acres in Section 15, Perry township, but he later sold that tract and purchased a like amount in Bloom township. For his service in the war of 1812, he received eighty acres of land in Eaton county, Mich., and in that struggle took part in the engagements around Fort Meigs. He made the first improvements upon his land in Perry township, and, while their first cabin was being constructed, the family found a temporary home with John Chilcote. Philip Brandeberry was quite successful in his business transactions, and gave to each of his children eighty acres of land, or its equivalent. He was very fond of hunting, and used to engage in that sport to a great extent. In politics he was first a Whig, and later a Republican. His death occurred in Perry township at the age of eighty years, eight months and eleven days, while his wife lived to be nearly seventy-eight, and they were buried side by side at Center of Perry. In the family of this worthy couple were the following children: Betsy, who became the wife of John Chilcote, and died in Perry township; Jonathan, who died in Portage township; Philip, who departed this life in Bloom township; Christina, who was the wife of William Burke, and died in Freedom township; William, who died in Bloom township; Mary, who became the wife of Henry Hays, and passed away in Perry township; Isaac, who died in the same township; Thomas, a prominent citizen of Bloom township; and James, of this sketch.

The last named was less than eleven years of age when brought by his parents to Wood county, and acquired his education in the district schools. Farm machinery in those early days was quite primitive, so that the life of an agriculturist was not an easy one, but he continued to devote his energies to the cultivation of the old homestead until his marriage. He then began its operation on his own account, making his home there until April, 1885, since which time he has lived with his step-grandchildren, in Perry township.

On May 10, 1849, in Sandusky county, Ohio, Mr. Brandeberry led to the marriage altar Miss Jane Bates, a native of Columbiana county, Ohio, and a daughter of Andrew Bates, a pioneer of Sandusky county. Five children blessed this union—Minerva, who married Abraham Long-acre, and died in Perry township; Mary J., who first wedded Marcus Keefer, but is now the wife of Randall Baird, of Perry township; George, who makes his home in Wood county; Emily, now Mrs. William Johnson, of Perry township; Laura, wife of Simon Hartley, of the same township. The mother of these children was buried in Perry township. In 1872 Mr. Brandeberry was united in marriage with Mrs. Rosanna Zepernick, widow of Frederick Zepernick, and daughter of Samuel Burns, one of the honored early settlers of Perry township. On the 29th of August, 1890, Mrs. Brandeberry was called to her final rest, and was buried at Center of Perry.

For twenty years Mr. Brandeberry followed threshing, besides his regular agricultural pursuits, and became widely known throughout the county. Although his school training was slight, he is a man of great natural ability, and is well informed on the current events of the day. His support has always been given the Republican party, and he has been called upon to fill several local positions, being supervisor and school director, and for two years was treasurer of Perry township, but always preferred to devote his time and attention to his business affairs, rather than to political matters.

HON. H. L. HUDDLE, ex-mayor of North Baltimore, well deserves a place in this history of the representative men of Wood county, and a brief sketch of his life will prove of interest to the readers of this volume.

Mr. Huddle was born July 5, 1854, in Bloom township, Seneca Co., Ohio, a son of Noah and Lavinia (Bretz) Huddle, who were both natives of Seneca county, the former born in 1825, the latter in 1828. They were there married, followed agricultural pursuits, and passed the rest of their busy lives, the father dying in 1863, and the mother in 1872. To them eight children were born, namely: John, a farmer in Seneca county; A. C., engaged in the undertaking business in Fredericktown, Ohio; Homer L., the subject of this sketch; Barbara, who married Wesley George, and died in Michigan; George M., a farmer in Ionia county, Mich; Gratten G., who died in 1892; and two who were killed in a runaway when young.

The paternal great-grandfather of our subject came from Germany and settled in Pennsylvania, where he followed farming and died in that State. The grandfather, Benjamin Huddle, left Pennsylvania at an early day, and became a pioneer settler of Seneca county, Ohio. His wife was a sister of Elder Seitz, a noted pioneer preacher of that section. Benjamin Huddle began life a poor man, but, by industry and perseverance, accumulated a fortune, owning at one time 400 acres of land, and passing his last years in a comfortable home, surrounded by an abundance of the good things of life. The family were all "hard-shell" Baptists, and were proud of the title, answering all captious or sneering remarks on their peculiar sect by saying that "a hard shell is better than no shell at all."

The subject of this sketch is essentially a self-made man. His father died when he was nine years old, and he was left to the tender mercy of relatives, living here and there, working for a living at odd jobs, and drifting with the tide, and knocked about by the waves of adversity during his boyhood days. As maturer years approached, he realized that destiny is generally the result of individual effort, and bringing to mind a favorite adage, "A rolling stone gathers no moss," he determined to have a purpose in life, and made a start to fulfill it. He had been living in Marion county, Ohio, with relatives, and, although nineteen years old, had little or no education. This he set about rectifying, and entered the Northwestern Ohio Normal School, at Republic, Ohio, working at anything through his leisure hours, and on farms during the vacations, in order to pay his way. When the school was removed to Fostoria, he followed, and by untiring application, and in spite of numerous obstacles, obtained a good English education.

On October 14, 1875, Mr. Huddle was married, in Fostoria, to Miss Amanda M. Tumpaugh, of which union four children have been born, of whom the eldest, Frank, died when two years old; the others are—Charles, Hazel and Fred. After his marriage Mr. Huddle remained in Fostoria, working at anything he could find to do until 1876, when he removed to North Baltimore. His means were very limited, but he was able to buy a blind horse, with which he began draying. This he carried on with increasing success for a few years, when he bought a half interest in a dry-goods store in North Baltimore. Sixteen months later, in 1884, he disposed of this business and leased the elevators, becoming the principal grain buyer and shipper in the vicinity. His motto is "live and let live," and he has built up an extensive business by his fair dealing, honesty and untiring activity. His road to fortune seems now assured, and he can look back upon the obstacles surmounted as so many incentives to action which really served as good purpose in bringing out the reserve forces within him.

Mr. Huddle is a man of genial nature, and exceedingly popular in the community, which was proven by his election as mayor of North Baltimore in 1892. He held that office for two years, to the satisfaction of all concerned. He is a liberal-minded, patriotic citizen, and merits the high esteem in which he is held. In politics is a staunch Republican; socially is a Knight of Pythias, and in religious affiliation is a consistent member of the Presbyterian Church, as is also his wife.

ALEXANDER MCCOMBS. The representatives of the farming interests of Wood county acknowledge this gentleman as one of the important factors in bringing this section of the State to its present enviable condition. He is a man of more than ordinary business capacity, intelligent and well informed, and has identified himself with the progress and best interests of the people.

H. L. Hudelle

Mr. McCombs was born October 15, 1834, in Tuscarawas county, Ohio, a son of Archibald and Catherine (Jeffers) McCombs, both natives of Pennsylvania, the father born May 13, 1799, in Washington county; the mother born February 14, 1802, in Susquehanna county. They were married in Harrison county, Ohio, after which Mr. McCombs bought a fifty-acre lot in Tuscarawas county, near New Philadelphia, all in timber, whither he removed, and which he cleared and put into good shape. To him and his wife were born eleven children, as follows: (1) John, who was a member of the 144th O. V. I. during the Civil war, and died in a Rebel prison at Salisbury, N. C.; was married, and had a family of eight children; at the time of his enlistment he was a prominent farmer of Washington township, Wood county. (2) Sarah Jane, widow of Charles Patterson, has three children—Henry, Jacob and Percy—and resides near Scotch Ridge with a son. (3) William, a farmer of Mecosta county, Mich., also served in the war of the Rebellion as a member of the 51st O. V. I. (4) Jacob was a member of the 21st O. V. I., and died at Nashville from the effects of hard service. (6) Martha is the wife of Wesley Cochran, a farmer of Ann Arbor, Mich., by whom she has two children—William and Agnes. (7) Catherine, who makes her home in Whiteside county, Kans., is the widow of Henry Grooves, and has five children—John, Lewis, Alex., Thomas and Sadie. (8) Margaret died at the age of twenty-two years. (9) Mary died at the age of ten. (10) Charles died in infancy. (11) Alexander, the subject of this sketch, completes the number. The entire family grew to manhood and womanhood on the Tuscarawas county farm, except our subject, who was thirteen years old when his parents moved, in the fall of 1847, to Wood county, Ohio, in the spring of 1848 buying a home in Washington township, where they lived some years—the children in the meantime, one by one, leaving the parental roof, some for homes of their own, others, as already related, crossing the dark river to the Unknown. When they became old and feeble, the parents were persuaded by their son, Alexander, to move, in the spring of 1874, to his home in Washington township, and there they died, the father on April 18, 1874, the mother on June 22, 1885. They were members of the United Brethren Church, and in politics Mr. McCombs was a stalwart Democrat.

Alexander McCombs began his education in the schools of Tuscarawas county, and continued his studies for a short time after coming to Wood county with his parents; but his school training was rather limited. On July 24, 1862, he enlisted at Tontogany, in Company G, First Ohio Light Artillery, under Capt. Alex. Marshall and Col. Barnett, and was mustered in at Toledo. From there the troops proceeded to Nashville, Tenn., after which they participated in the battles of Stone River, Chickamauga, Franklin, Mission Ridge and Lookout Mountain, besides numerous small engagements. While in winter quarters at Chattanooga, Mr. McCombs was cooking some meat about ten feet from his tent, when a shell was thrown down from the mountain above, and exploded in the tent, totally destroying everything, yet he was uninjured! Though in many hotly contested battles, he was never wounded. At the battle of Franklin, two pieces of his battery were sent out on the pike to cover the retreat of the Union army, and, while marching into Franklin, Hood had his forces massed so solidly on a high knoll, that three out of the four men at the gun on which our subject served were killed, he alone surviving. They held the Confederates at bay as long as they could; but it became so hot the captain ordered them to limber to the rear, and get inside the line of works. Mr. McCombs had not time to put up equipments, but carried sponge-bucket in one hand and sponge-staff in the other, and, while marching in, quite a number of Hood's men followed them inside the breastworks. It was a hard fight while they were at it; "but," Mr. McCombs says, "the 'Johnnies' used us much better at Franklin than they did at Stone River, where, on the third day's fight, they killed about half of our horses and took four of our guns. It was a terrible slaughter, and after the conflict was over they went to Nashville and drew new guns and horses." Mr. McCombs and his "bunk-mate," H. G. Mercer, grew up together in boyhood, and served together throughout the war. Mercer was Mr. McCombs' partner when his tent was blown up at the foot of Lookout Mountain, as related above. On the close of hostilities our subject was discharged at Nashville, Tenn., June 13, 1865, and returned home, having made for himself an honorable war record, of which he may be justly proud.

Mr. McCombs then gave his attention to agricultural pursuits, operating a rented farm for seven years, when he purchased forty acres of land, which had been entered by his uncle from the government at seventy-five cents per acre, since which time it has never passed out of the family. Nineteen acres had already been improved, but he has since drained the tract, using 16,000 tile, erected a fine house at a cost of $1,100, built fences, and set out a fine orchard upon his land, the place being now a credit to the enterprise and industry of the proprietor. On February 11, 1868, he married Catherine Crom, a daughter of John Crom, a prominent farmer of Washington township, and five children blessed their union: G. E., who died at the age of fourteen months; L. A., a farmer of Washington township, who married Martha Daniels, by whom he has two sons—George and Harold; J. Chester, a farmer, at home; W. H., who is still under the parental roof; and H. A., who died at the age of three years. The unwavering support of Mr. McCombs is given the Republican party, whose principles he staunchly advocates, and has held several offices in his township, being trustee for seven years, and for many years he was school director and a member of the board of education. His religious belief is that of the United Brethren Church, while socially he is connected with Walter A. Wood Post, G. A. R., at Tontogany. In the summer of 1895 he attended the grand encampment at Louisville, Kentucky.

F. M. COOK. The subject of this sketch, who is a prominent farmer of Plain township, is well-known as a man of intelligence and enterprise, and also as a brave soldier, the story of whose adventures in the "Far West," as it was called some twenty-five years ago, reads like some tale of fiction. He has no need to recall fairy stories to relate to the children, for his own experiences are quite as exciting as any of these, and have the added merit of being true.

Mr. Cook was born in Liberty township, April 3, 1845, to Robert and Elizabeth (Huff) Cook. His father was born in Pickaway county, Ohio, December 12, 1816, and spent his younger days in Circleville, Ohio. He came to Wood county when about twenty-five years of age and was here married. Soon after this event, in 1848, he removed to Miami county, Ind., where he carried on general farming and dealt in stock, driving hogs to the market at Cincinnati. He was a Whig in his earlier years, but afterward became a Republican. He died in Indiana, September 23, 1870. Henry Cook, the father of Robert Cook, was born in Virginia in 1790, and was a soldier in the war of 1812, and by that means became a resident of Ohio. He was a shoemaker by trade, and in religion was a Universalist. He died in Indiana at the home of our subject's father. His family comprised ten children, of whom the following grew to maturity: Robert; Cervantes, who was a soldier in the Civil war, belonging to Company B, 40th Indiana, and died at Nashville, Tenn., from wounds received at the battle of Stone River; Reason, who died in Indiana; Alvin, who was killed by the falling of a tree; Melissa married George Gordon, and died in Kansas; Catherine married Joab Gordon, a brother of George; Susanna married a Mr. Morehead, and died in Indiana. Henry Cook was of Scotch-Irish descent, and his ancestors fought in the Revolutionary war.

The mother of our subject was a daughter of Henry and ——— Huff, who were natives of England, and were there married. She was also born in England, and was the only one of the family who grew to maturity. Her parents came to America in 1832, and settled at Erie, Penn., where they remained one year, and then came to Wood county, Ohio, locating first in Liberty township, and later in Plain township, where the father died in at the age of eighty-six years. He did not vote until the time of the Civil war, when he became a Republican. He belonged to the Methodist Church.

The subject of this sketch was one of four children, of whom the following record is given: Adaline, married William Lucas, and died in Indiana. William lives in Lake county, Ind.; he served during the Civil war in Company B, 40th Ind., and was wounded at Mission Ridge, but did not leave the army until the war was over. F. M. is the third in order of birth. Mary is the wife of Thomas Mearing, whose sketch will be found in another place. Mr. Cook was a child of three years when his parents removed to Miami county, Ind., and there obtained his education, and grew to manhood. In 1864, he enlisted in Company A, 138th Ind., for the hundred-days' service. His time expired when he was in Nashville, Tenn., and he re-enlisted in the 151st Ind. regiment, in which he served until the close of the war. He was honorably discharged at Indianapolis, and returned home, where he remained two years, then went west with the purpose of locating. His first stop was at Fort Scott, Kans., which at that time was a pretty rough place, being infested with bushwhackers from the North and South, who had congregated there. Two men were killed the first night Mr. Cook was in the town, and, although he remained there, and in the vicinity, for about four months, he decided to find some other place in which to try his fortune.

Mr. Cook's next step was to take up a claim on the Salmon river, and in the latter part of August, of the same year, the settlement was raided by the Indians. They killed a number of the white settlers, and took the women and children captives, destroying and burning the cabins and everything within their way. Gov. Crawford, of Kansas, came to the rescue of the whites, and organized a company of young men to follow the savages and exterminate them. Our subject was one of these volunteer soldiers who composed what was known as the 19th Kans. Cav., and on September 20, 1868, they started in pursuit of the red men. Driving the Indians before them, this brave band swept up the Salmon river, finally reaching Fort Hayes, where they were met by gallant "Little Phil" Sheridan and the 7th U. S. Cav.; this little army then was extended in a line from Kansas on their forward march, determined that none of the savages should escape them. The latter made a stand at the Arkansas river, but were so closely pressed that they fled. The soldiers all massed at Camp Supply, and, under the command of the lamented Gen. Custer, marched sixty miles south of Wolf creek and struck the river, on whose banks the Indians were encamped. The troops attacked them before daylight, taking them by surprise and capturing all who were not killed. The prisoners were marched back to Camp Supply, and a few days later some of the soldiers returned to the battle field to care for the dead, but found only the bones of their comrades, the wolves having destroyed the bodies.

Mr. Cook was one of a company of men detailed to accompany a train of five hundred wagons sent to Fort Hayes, five hundred miles distant, for supplies. On the way they met a band of roving savages, and sent two men back to report the fact at headquarters. On the return of the expedition they found the head of one of these men in one place and parts of his body in other places, and later the other man was found tied to a tree, his body full of arrows. Both had been killed by these terrible scourges of the Plains. In addition to the other hardships of this never-to-be-forgotten trip, the teamsters drove both ways in a blizzard. Many other most thrilling and interesting incidents are related by our subject, of his experiences during this wild life on the Western frontiers. Among other things he saw herds of buffaloes, so numerous that no team or horseman could drive through them, and containing thousands of these great animals. Mr. Cook remained with the army in the West until June 19, 1869, when he went to Kansas City and worked in a woolen-mill there for a year. On the death of his father in 1870, he returned to his old home in Indiana, and took charge of affairs. He succeeded his father as justice of the peace, in Miami county, holding the office for eight years. In 1881 he came to Wood county, Ohio, where he has since made his home.

Mr. Cook was married November 4, 1875, to Miss Martha E. Paul, who was born September 30, 1856, and they have two children, Glenn C. born August 7, 1876, and James H., born July 7, 1883. Mr. Cook is a Republican, a member of the G. A. R., and is popular among his acquaintances.

GEORGE H. SPECK. Among the newspaper men of northwestern Ohio, few have a wider acquaintance than the popular editor and proprietor of the Pemberville Leader. At the time he assumed the management of the paper, the tide of its fortunes was at a very low ebb, but his energy and tact have succeeded in gaining for it a place among the most prosperous journals of Wood county. Possessing an inexhaustible fund of humor, together with a wide range of information upon topics of every nature, he is well fitted for the responsible position he holds.

The family to which our subject belongs originated in Germany, where his great-grandfather, Godfrey Augustus Speck, was born in 1754, and whence he emigrated to America. His wife, who bore the maiden name of Sarah Townsend, was born in September, 1763, and passed away December 13, 1815. His death occurred December 24, 1828. Among their eight children was Augustus, our subject's grandfather, who was born in Pennsylvania, December 13, 1787, and died in Guernsey county, Ohio, June 12, 1870. His wife, Sarah Reed, was born April 22, 1789, and died August 7, 1875. Their family consisted of eleven children.

On his mother's side our subject traces his ancestry to Benjamin Hiskett, a native of Virginia, who died in Belmont county, Ohio. A son of the latter, Norval Valentine Hiskett, our subject's grandfather, was born in Loudon county, Virginia, February 15, 1805, and died in Morrow county, Ohio, in 1852. He married Massey Nichol, who was born December 13, 1811, and passed away April 19, 1844. Isaac G. Speck, the father of our subject, was born near Westchester, Guernsey Co., Ohio, April 11, 1832, and is a merchant by occupation. At Cardington, Ohio, June 23, 1853, he married Matilda Ann Hiskett, who was born near Mt. Gilead, Morrow Co., Ohio, March 3, 1836. They became the parents of ten children, namely: John F., who was born July 17, 1854; Sarah E., February 16, 1856; Mary V., born June 14, 1857, and died July 23, 1857; Eda A., born July 18, 1858; Ira E., July 4, 1860; Ocenie B., January 4, 1862; George H., June 8, 1865; Charles E., May 21, 1867; Clarence C., who was born August 27, 1875, and passed away September 12, 1879; and Clive L., whose birth occurred December 5, 1880.

In the public schools of Defiance and Green Spring, Ohio, our subject received such educational advantages as those institutions of learning afforded. At the age of seventeen years he entered the office of a newspaper at Green Spring, the "Times," and though he commenced, with the humble position of "devil", soon worked his way upward, and within two years was local editor of the paper. In 1885 he became connected with the Greenwich Enterprise, of which he was editor and business manager for one year. In 1887 he went to Chicago, and for a year and a half he was employed in a job printing office. In April, 1889, he came to Pemberville, and became editor of the Leader, of which he has since been in charge. The task of resurrecting the departed fortunes of this paper was not an easy one; but he applied himself to it with ardor, and soon achieved noteworthy success. Besides his regular newspaper work, he has a job printing office, and turns out a very superior quality of work. While the Leader is independent in politics, Mr. Speck himself is a staunch advocate of Republican principles, and always casts his ballot for the candidates of that party. Socially, he is connected with the Independent Order of Odd Fellows and K. O. T. M., and in religious belief is a Methodist. His marriage was solemnized at Lima, Ohio, June 12, 1888, his wife being Miss Cora Ann Smith. They have lost one child by death, and have two sons living, Clayton S., and Claire H.

S. P. HATHAWAY has the reputation of a strictly first-class business man, reliable and energetic, and is a citizen of whom Wood county may justly be proud. He is one of the oldest merchants of Luckey, having begun business there in 1872, and in 1881 erected a two-story building, which burned down in 1893, but with characteristic energy he at once rebuilt it, and now has a substantial two-story brick block, in which he is doing a large and lucrative business.

A native of Wood county, Mr. Hathaway was born in Webster township October 6, 1847, and is a son of Isaac M. and Nancy (Stevens) Hathaway, the former a resident of Geauga county, Ohio, and the latter a native of Pennsylvania. The father's birth occurred in 1822, and in his native county he acquired his education, after which, at the age of eighteen years, he came to Montgomery township, Wood county, with his parents, Daniel and Polly (Merricks) Hathaway, both of whom were born in Fall River, Mass. About 1820 the grandparents of our subject removed to Geauga county, Ohio, and later came to Montgomery township, this county, where they opened up a farm; for many years made their home in Webster township, Wood county, where the grandfather died in 1856, and his wife in 1880. He served his country in the war of 1812. By trade the father was a shoemaker, but also carried on farming. In Webster township he enlisted, in 1861, as a member of Company K, 21st O. V. I., for three years, being mustered in at Findlay, Ohio, and served in the army of the Cumberland. At the close of his term he re-enlisted in the same company and regiment, and was killed on May 31, 1864, at New Hope Church. His wife still survives him, and makes her home in Luckey. Our subject is the eldest in their family of six children, the others being James and John, both of Luckey; Mary, who died in Webster township; Mrs. Elizabeth Nichols, of Michigan; and Mrs. Lasetta Hibbs, of Auburndale, Lucas Co., Ohio.

S. P. Hathaway was reared in the usual manner of farmer boys, receiving his education in the district schools of Webster township, but after the outbreak of the Civil war, although quite young, he laid aside civil pursuits, and in 1864 joined Company K, 21st O. V. I., enlisting for three years or until the close of the war. He was mustered into the United States service at Toledo, Ohio, and was assigned to the army of the Cumberland. He participated in many battles and skirmishes, including the engagements at Buzzard's Roost, Rocky Face Ridge, Resaca, Kingston, Kenesaw, Atlanta, Jonesboro, siege of Savannah, went in pursuit of Hood, and was with Sherman on the celebrated march to the sea. He was in the Carolina campaign, being in the battles of Averyboro and Bentonville, and at the latter place was taken prisoner. He was confined at Danville and Richmond. On being discharged at Columbus, Ohio, in June, 1865, he returned to his home in Webster township, where he followed farming for a time. At Toledo, in 1866, he joined the regular army, and during the three years of his service was stationed at Fort Leavenworth, Fort Randall and Fort Sully, after which he returned to Wood county.

On August 20, 1873, Mr. Hathaway was married to Delila (Bochman) Kinney, and to the marriage was born a daughter, Mary (Mrs. Clem Eberhart), September 7, 1874. She was educated in the public schools of Luckey and of Albion, Ind., and is now a resident of Ann Arbor, Mich., and has one child, Gertrude.

S. P. Hathaway

In 1878, in Troy township, Mr. Hathaway was the second time married, this time to Miss Mary Bushnell, a native of Sandusky county, Ohio, and a daughter of William and Emily (Clough) Bushnell, who were early pioneers of Troy township, and are both now deceased. The lady is a sincere and faithful member of the Christian Church.

In his political relations, Mr. Hathaway is identified with the Republican party, served acceptably as postmaster under both Harrison and Garfield, and is a notary public of Troy township. He belongs to Benedict Post, No. 26, G. A. R., at Pemberville, in which he has filled the chair of quartermaster-sergeant, and is a member of Freedom Lodge No. 127, I. O. O. F. Personally and in a business sense he is popular among his townsmen, and considered a valuable addition to the community.

J. E. SOMMERS, M. D. This well-known and popular physician of North Baltimore was born May 22, 1854, on the Atlantic Ocean, while his parents were on their way to this country from Germany. He is the son of Frederick and Rosina (Groh) Sommers, both of whom were natives of Wittenberg, Germany.

The parents of our subject settled on a farm in Medina county, Ohio, where they lived until 1861, when they moved to Wood county, taking up their residence in Portage township. The year following Mr. Sommers offered his services in defense of the flag of his adopted country, enlisting in Company I, 111th O. V. I., and serving as a private for three years. In all this time he was not wounded, but contracted rheumatism from which he was a sufferer the remainder of his life. He was born in 1821, and died in 1878 in the prime of life. His wife, who was born in 1829, is still living in North Baltimore. Four children comprised their family, as follows: J. E., the subject of this sketch; Jacob, living in Henry township; Frederick, also in North Baltimore; and Christina, who was the wife of Dr. Knight, of Portage, and is deceased. The parents were both members of the Lutheran Church, although the mother is now connected with the Christian Church at Mungen.

Our subject was seven years old when his parents took up their residence in Wood county, and here he attended the public schools, acquiring a good common-school education. In 1889 he began the study of medicine under Dr. Bryant, of Toledo, afterward attending the Cincinnati Medical College, from which he was graduated in June, 1892, with the degree of M. D. He began his professional career in North Baltimore soon after his graduation, and in a short time has built up an extensive practice. He is a man of fine ability, a close student, and has the confidence of the people, a most necessary factor in the success of a physician. He is also popular on account of his genial ways and many excellent qualities as a neighbor and friend.

Dr. Sommers was first married, in 1878, to Miss Clara Wallace, who died a little more than two years after her marriage, leaving one child, Henry. The Doctor took for his second wife Mrs. Rebecca McCrory, of Liberty township, who was born June 3, 1852. She has one child, Mary, by her first marriage, and one by her marriage with our subject, Floyd. Dr. Sommers belongs to the Northwestern Ohio Eclectic Medical Association, and the Ohio State Medical Association, and is medical examiner for the lodge of Woodmen of the World at North Baltimore. He is a Democrat politically, and in religious connection is a member of the United Brethren Church at North Baltimore. In addition to his practice, he looks after a tract of land which he has leased to the Ohio Oil Co., and on which he has placed many improvements. He also owns city property in North Baltimore, and the Columbia Drug Store, in the same city, which is conducted by a professional pharmacist, F. M. Hoffman, the Doctor's time being entirely taken up with his extensive practice.

MARSHALL R. GORRILL owns and controls one of the leading industries of Middleton township, being engaged in the manufacture of lumber and staves at Dowling. Fully in sympathy with the spirit of progress and enterprise characteristic of the age, he carries forward his business interests with energy and perseverance, and is recognized as one of the leading representatives of commercial circles in his locality.

Mr. Gorrill is one of the native sons of the county, his birth having occurred in Troy township, August 3, 1854. His father, Thomas Gorrill, was born in Devonshire, England, in 1807, and about the year 1830 crossed the Atlantic, taking up his residence in Center township, this county. Subsequently he removed to Troy township, where he secured a claim of 260 acres, which he cultivated and improved. He married Miss Eliza Barr, a native of Peru, Ohio, and they had eight children: Robert W., a contractor and farmer; Martha J., wife of Wesley Thurston, a lawyer of Toledo; Marshall R.; Samuel B., Thomas A., and Henry L., James C., all four now deceased; and Mary G., deceased wife of S. Smith, of Elmore, Ohio. Two of the sons—Samuel B. and Thomas A.—were soldiers in the Civil war, the former serving in the 189th O. V. I. some nine months; Thomas A., who had a gallant record, served three years in all, first in the 72nd O. V. I., but on April 8, 1865, he was commissioned lieutenant in the 189th O. V. I., receiving an honorable discharge with his regiment at the close of the campaign. The father of this family served as county commissioner of Wood county for several years, was justice of the peace in Troy township, and was an honored, respected man. In his political relationship he gave an unswerving support to the Republican party. His death occurred in 1874, that of his wife in 1880.

Our subject was educated in Troy township, and in the Normal Schools at Fostoria and Berea. For several terms he taught school, and then worked on the home farm until 1881, when he and his brother, Samuel B., built a hoop and stave factory at Stony Ridge, this county, expending thereon some $4,000. On July 26, 1885, they were burned out, and, unfortunately, were uninsured; but with characteristic energy, they in the following year commenced the manufacture of staves and hoops, at Dowling, furnishing employment to from twenty-five to forty hands. On December 31, 1890, Samuel B. died from injuries received on the 26th of the same month, being crushed by a log, and then Marshall R. assumed exclusive control of the business, which he has since conducted with well-merited and gratifying success, shipping the product of his factory to all parts of the country. In addition to this he is interested in the oil industry, being a director in the Dunbridge Oil Co., who have ten wells in operation at present, and contemplate drilling more in the near future. Mr. Gorrill also owns and manages 120 acres of land in Middleton township.

On January 25, 1887, Marshall R. Gorrill was married to Ida A. Gast, daughter of George W. and Elizabeth (Lahman) Gast, of Troy township. They are farming people, natives of Pennsylvania, married in Ohio, and in 1887 moved to Alabama where they are now making their home. They had a family of six children, two of whom are living—Mrs. Gorrill, and John Mc., who is a merchant at Huntsville, Ala.; Emery, Joseph, George and Anna are deceased. To Mr. and Mrs. Gorrill have been born two children: Irvin

A., May 8, 1889; and Grace, March 13, 1893. Our subject is a Republican in politics, and socially is affiliated with Phoenix Lodge No. 123, F. & A. M., of Perrysburg, also of Fort Meigs Lodge, I. O. O. F., of Perrysburg. He holds membership with the Methodist Episcopal Church, and is serving as steward and trustee therein.

SIDNEY B. VAN TASSEL, who occupies a fine and well-improved farm in Washington township, is numbered among its well-to-do farmers, and from a small beginning has gradually worked his way upward, making all that he now possesses by his own well-directed and persevering efforts. He is a native of the Buckeye State, born in North Amherst, Lorain county, November 30, 1830, and is a son of Luke and Sallie (Richmond) Van Tassel.

The father was born in 1795 in New York, of Holland parentage, while the mother's birth occurred in Rhode Island, in 1800. They were married in 1818, and to them were born eleven children: Amelia, widow of A. H. Plant, of Maumee, Ohio; Lyman, who was born December 4, 1820, and resides with our subject; Isaac and Olive, both deceased; Ann, a resident of Wood county, and the widow of Josiah Kuder; Harriet, deceased wife of Hiram West; Silas, a farmer of McClure, Henry Co., Ohio; Sidney B. and Leroy A., both farmers; Luman, who works for the Toledo Blade, and resides in Bowling Green; and Reuben, also a resident of Bowling Green. By occupation the father was a farmer, and on coming to Ohio in 1837, located in Plain township, Wood county, but after one year removed to an Indian mission farm, on the banks of the Maumee river, at the mouth of Tontogony creek, where he made his home for four years. His death occurred December 2, 1869, on his farm of sixty acres, one mile north of the present home of our subject. The mother died in September, 1874.

Sidney B. Van Tassel (during the family's residence at the Indian mission, he found as his playmates the little Indians) obtained his literary education in the district schools of Washington township, and besides aiding in the work of the home farm also worked for others, his wages going toward the support of the family until he was twenty-five years of age. He then had no capital with which to start out in life, owning nothing but his clothes. At first he rented land, and besides general farming began raising stock—both horses and mules. He finally sold enough of his stock to purchase forty acres of the land, on which he now makes his home, though he continued to operate rented land for several years, and, in the meantime, however, he cleared eleven acres of his tract, to which he subsequently added twenty acres, and, as his financial resources increased, added still another tract of thirty acres. With the exception of five acres of timber land, his place is now under a high state of cultivation, improved with good buildings, and is one of the model farms of the neighborhood. For the past five years he has also dealt in Jersey cattle, having now a fine herd of thirteen. He also gave some attention to sheep raising, having as many as two hundred in his flocks, but owing to the low price of wool has given up that enterprise.

In 1855 Mr. Van Tassel married Jane Ann McCauley, a daughter of Capt. John and Betsy (Hart) McCauley, farming people of Washington township. One daughter graced this union—Ann Elizabeth, born June 7, 1858, is the wife of William Mawer, a farmer of Washington township, by whom she had four children, only two of whom are still living—Septimus and Sidney R. Mrs. Van Tassel died in June, 1884. For his second wife our subject married Letta Moore on August 9, 1887, and they have a daughter, Jennie, born in June, 1888. Miss Moore was the daughter of J. C. and Mary Ann (Green) Moore, and by her first marriage became the wife of Mr. Dunbar, by whom she had two children—Hattie May, born August 9, 1883; and Cecil Urania, born November 29, 1885. Mr. Moore, the father of Mrs. Van Tassel, was formerly a prominent farmer of Washington township, but later engaged as a machinist in Blissfield, Mich. In his family were five children: Ellen, wife of A. O. Neifer, of Weston township, Wood county; Sarah Frances, wife of John Bullis, of Tennessee; Hattie, wife of D. C. Credicott, of North Baltimore, Ohio; J. W., a farmer residing in the southern part of Missouri; and Mrs. Van Tassel. The father now makes his home in Weston, Ohio, but the mother departed this life February 16, 1884. She was born in England in 1821, and when quite young was brought to America by her parents; her mother died when she was but eleven years of age, leaving her and her father the care of six children, with the Indians of the neighborhood as their only advisors.

During the Civil war Mr. Van Tassel was a strong Republican, but later voted the Democratic ticket, and now intends to give his allegiance to the men and measures of the Peoples party, whose principles he strongly endorses. For two terms he served as trustee, was constable seven years, and for a number of years was school director, ever discharging his various duties with promptness and fidelity. Socially, he holds membership with Tontogany Lodge No. 755, I. O. O. F., and formerly was a member of the Grange, of which for two terms he served as master, and the same length of time as overseer. His religious belief is that of the Spiritualists. He has ever been a hard-working, industrious man, and well deserves the success which now crowns his efforts. Each year, on August 16, the family hold a reunion.

GEORGE ROBINSON, a farmer and fruit raiser, of Troy township, came to Wood county in 1870 from England, his native land. He was born in 1843, in Cambridgeshire, and is a son of Nathaniel and Martha (Wright) Robinson, who were the parents of six children, five still living. In order of birth they are as follows: Charles; George, of this sketch; Mrs. Sabina Gatson, of England; Lizzie, deceased; and Henry and Mrs. Salena Howard, also of England. The father was born in Haddenham, Cambridgeshire, followed gardening as a means of livelihood, and died in his native land in 1880. The mother still survives, and has never left England. She had a brother, George Wright, who came to Perrysburg, Ohio, in 1853, and the following year located on the farm where our subject now resides. There his death occurred, in 1879, and his wife died in 1887, at the same place.

Mr. Robinson, of this review, received the benefit of a common-school education in his native land, and was otherwise fitted for the battle of life. At Haddenham, Cambridgeshire, in 1866, he was united in marriage with Miss Eliza Whetstone, a native of Cambridgeshire, and a daughter of James and Frances (Moxon) Whetstone. Her parents, who were also born in Cambridgeshire, crossed the Atlantic in 1871, locating on a farm in Des Plaines township, Cook Co., Ill., but in 1895 removed to Minnesota, where they now reside. Seven children came to bless the union of our subject and his wife, but Charles died in November, 1879, at the age of twenty-seven months. Those living are: Emily Jane; Nathan George; Lizzie, wife of Hiram Cabel, of Lime City, Ohio; James; Salena; and George.

In 1870 Mr. Robinson emigrated to the New World, locating first in Perrysburg, where he worked for some time, but in 1884 removed to his present farm, where he owns thirty-three acres of lime-stone land. He gives special attention to fruit culture, and his products find a ready sale in the market. He is not an active politician, but, as his sentiments and beliefs dictate, votes with the Republican party. His wife is a sincere and faithful member of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

CURTIS PLOWRIGHT, who is among the prosperous young farmers of Plain township, is of English descent, his parents, Henry and Mary (Cross) Plowright, both being natives of that country. Henry Plowright was born August 1, 1821, and his wife July 21, 1829. They came to America in 1850, first settling in Huron county, Ohio, and fifteen years later coming to Wood county, where Mr. Plowright purchased a farm, which he put under good cultivation and made into a valuable piece of property. He died November 3, 1891, and his wife is still living. They were the parents of eight children, as follows: Susan died when eight years old; Bertha is the wife of L. Stoots; Elizabeth married J. Manges; Willie died when three years old; Ida is the wife of Henry Kramp; Curtis is the subject of this sketch; Cora is the wife of John Philips; Mary is at home.

Curtis Plowright was born in Huron county, Ohio, December 6, 1863, and was reared to manhood on his father's farm in Plain township, where he obtained a fair education in the district schools. He was married October 6, 1887, to Miss Mary Vernon, whose birth took place in Plain township, January 28, 1863. Three children have blessed their union, namely: Ethel A., born March 1, 1889; Otho C., October 11, 1892; and Harold V., May 18, 1894. After his marriage Mr. Plowright settled on ten acres of land which he owned in Plain township, and on the death of his father, he purchased from the heirs the old homestead on which he has since resided. He is a man of much energy and enterprise, and has made a success of farming, being considered one of the best and most thrifty of the younger class of agriculturists in the county. In politics he is a Prohibitionist, and is an active worker in the interests of his party. He is a man of integrity, highly esteemed by his associates, and with his amiable wife holds an enviable place in the community.

MYRON CHAMBERLAIN, a prominent educator of Wood county, and one of the well-to-do agriculturists of Webster township, was born in Lorain county, Ohio, November 11, 1849.

His father, Luther Chamberlain, was a native of Ontario, Canada; but in early manhood he came to Ohio and purchased sixty acres of land in Lorain county, where he remained some years, afterward removing to Hardin county. Here he continued his occupation of farming until 1877, when he came to Wood county, and bought a farm in Webster township. He was married in 1848 to Miss Emily Smith, and they reared a family of eight children, of whom our subject is the eldest. The others are Jesse, Willard, Phillips, Louis, Frank, Bert and Lorin. Both parents are still living at the old homestead, where our subject's father has been for years one of the leading members of the Democratic party, and an active worker in all public movements, and especially in educational affairs, having been school director for many terms.

Mr. Chamberlain met with a sad accident at the age of sixteen, while feeding a cane-crusher with his hands, both were caught and so injured as to necessitate their amputation. He prepared for teaching as a life work, completing his education at the Normal University at Ada, Ohio, and for twenty-seven years has followed his profession. His fine mental gifts and professional training make him an unusually successful instructor, and he has taught in every district in his township with universal satisfaction, and is still teaching. Through his own efforts he has bought and paid for fifty-four acres of the finest land in Webster township, located near Fenton, and most of it is under cultivation. On April 3, 1877, Mr. Chamberlain was married to Miss Lavilla Loomis, of Scotch Ridge, who was born June 5, 1850. Six children were born to them: George L., January 15, 1878; Kenneth and Benjamin (twins); Permelia Ray, Fred and Winn E.

Mrs. Chamberlain died in 1888, her early demise bringing deep grief to her many friends as well as to the smaller home circle, who miss her loving ministrations. In all public affairs Mr. Chamberlain's advice and influence are given to the side of progress. As a justice of the peace, he has served the people of his township for three years with ability and impartiality.

GEORGE W. HARTMAN, farmer and stock raiser, Plain township, was born in Center township, May 26, 1841. He grew up on his father's farm, receiving his education in the common schools of his native place. In 1863 he enlisted in Company H, 67th Regiment, O. V. V. I., for the Union cause, and served nearly two years, doing duty at the siege of Richmond, Va., where his regiment was under fire for nearly a whole summer. The 67th was kept in Virginia, getting the State under martial rule, until December 19, 1865, at which time Mr. Hartman was discharged. He was fortunate enough to escape without receiving a wound. After the war he sheathed his sword, came home and returned to pursuits of peace. Shortly after he returned he bought his present excellent farm in Plain township. He was married in October, 1871, to Miss Barbara Apel, who was born in Sandusky, Erie Co., Ohio, March 27, 1849. They have had three children: John, born May 21, 1873, died June 6, 1895; Walter, born November 19, 1878; and Irene, born March 18, 1881.

Mr. Hartman has continued to live upon his present farm since the war, and has been engaged in general stock and grain raising, his farm giving evidence of careful cultivation. It is fertile, and capable of producing a large amount of grain. Our subject is recognized by his fellow-citizens as one of the opulent men of the county. He is a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church, and in politics is a Republican.

Jacob Hartman, father of our subject, was born on the Lower Rhine, Germany, May 26, 1808. He came to America when about twenty-three years of age, and married Miss Margaret Listenburger, who was born in Germany, and who is still alive. They moved to Perrysburg in 1833, later to Center township, where they made their home.

ELLIOT M. WARNER, who is engaged in fruit culture in Ross township, belongs to a family that was early established in Connecticut. Near New Milford, that State, his grandfather, Martin Warner, was born April 27, 1781, and was the third of five sons born to Martin Warner, Sr., the others being, Orange; Solomon, who was married and had one son, Asa; Ruggles, who had two sons, Ashbel and Hiram, both of whom graduated at Yale College; and Lemuel, who also had two sons, Luzon and Elmer. There were also two sisters in the family, one of whom married a son of Rev. Brooks, a Congregational minister, for whom Brookfield, Connecticut, was named.

On November 20, 1803, the grandfather led to the marriage altar Miss Nancy Hart, daughter of Lewis and Anne Hart, and they became the parents of the following children—Elliot, Henry, Martin, John H., George L., Mary, Eliza, Harriet, Margaret, and Sarah, who were born in Brookfield, Derby, and Huntington, Conn. In 1806 the grandfather began farming on a thirty-three-acre tract, two miles northeast of Brookfield, in Fairfield county, Conn., and twenty-three miles from Bridgeport. In 1811, in company with his father-in-law, he built a schooner of 170 tons burden, which was sailed by Lewis Hart, and in the war of 1812 was shot and fired by the British, off Bridgeport, Conn., but, after being run down, the fire was extinguished and the vessel saved. It was named the "Nancy," and was partly wrecked off the coast of Nantucket Island, but was repaired at a cost of $500.00. Martin Warner removed to Derby, Conn., in April, 1815, where he engaged in distilling rum and whisky, which at that time was thought to be consistent in a Christian and deacon in the Church. Reverses of fortune followed, and in November, 1823, he went to Rochester, N. Y., making the journey partially by canal, which became frozen. On January 1, 1824, he proceeded to Black Rock; but on May 1, removed to Buffalo, locating on Pearl street, one and a half squares northwest of the junction of Main and Niagara streets. His wife and three children had joined him at Black Rock, and the same year they removed to Lyons, Wayne Co., N. Y., where he engaged in carpentering. In 1824, his son Elliot sailed as cabin boy on the "Red Jacket" and the "Erie," the former of which was sent over the Falls with a black bear on board. In 1827, the grandfather purchased 119 acres in Rose township, Wayne county, for $6.00 per acre; but in September, 1833, with his son, Elliot, and his son-in-law, James Barber, he came, by way of Buffalo and Lake Erie, to Perrysburg, Wood Co., Ohio. However, in the latter part of October of the same year, he returned to New York, and the family came by way of Detroit to Perrysburg on Capt. Asa Hart's schooner. The grandfather built the first frame dwelling in Washington township, Wood county, in which religious services were held in 1835 and 1836, by Rev. Benjamin Woodbury, who organized a class of Presbyterians in Plain township, Martin Warner and Jacob Minton becoming deacons. In 1838 a house of worship was erected in Section 12, Plain township. In Washington township the grandfather departed this life November 14, 1854.

Henry Warner, the father of our subject, learned the hatter's trade, of Van Vorhes, at Lyons, N. Y., in 1827, and came with the family to Wood county in 1835. He was born March 11, 1811, and died April 24, 1894. On January 19, 1841, he was united in marriage with Jane Elizabeth Wright, whose birth occurred in Hardin county, Ky., in June, 1820, and to them were born five children—Liberty P., born May 11, 1842, became a member of the 21st O. V. I., during the Civil war, and was killed at the battle of Chickamauga; Elliot M. is the next in order of birth; Eliza J., born November 23, 1845, is now the wife of Charles E. Allen; Mary W., born September 15, 1847, is now Mrs. William Rhymers, living at 895 Bancroft street; and Hat-tie, who was born November 20, 1851, died at the age of ten years. For twenty-two years the father engaged in the work of the Methodist min-istry, preaching at the following places in this state—Findlay, Bucyrus, Congress, Copley, Doylestown, Fostoria, Mt. Blanchard, Mellmore, Port Clinton, Bryan, Sylvania and Waterville. In September, 1859, he located in Washington township, Wood county, where he made his home for fourteen years, when he retired to Perrysburg, where he resided for twenty years. He was a conscientious Christian gentleman, be-loved by all who knew him.

Elliot M. Warner, whose name introduces this sketch, was born January 23, 1844, in Waynes-burg, Wayne Co., Ohio. On attaining to man's estate, he married Miss Margaret E. Brown, who was born on Beaver creek, in Weston township, Wood county, in November, 1843, and is a daughter of Alexander Brown, of Grand Rapids township, this county. They now have three children—Howard N., a fruit grower, born De-cember 25, 1872; Otis Arthur, also a fruit grow-er, born March 26, 1874; and Jennie E., all at home. Until 1874, Mr. Warner devoted his at-tention to general farming, but since that time has engaged in fruit culture, at first having twenty-five acres, to which he has since added fifty-seven acres, which he has thoroughly cleared, drained, and erected thereon good buildings, in-cluding a fine residence. The following is the average production of his fruit farm—500 bushels of peaches, 400 of pears, 125 of plums, 100 of apples, 60 of cherries, 25 of currants, 10 of quinces, 8 of gooseberries, and 4 tons of grapes, all of the best varieties. He rents the remainder of his farm, for which he receives one-third of the crop raised, and his corn generally yields 100 bushels to the acre.

Mr. Warner is a member of the Clark street Methodist Episcopal Church, of Toledo, Ohio, in which he has served as trustee and class leader; has always been a Republican in politics, to which party his ancestors also belonged, after the dis-solution of the Whig party, which they had for-merly supported. For sixteen years he capably served as trustee of his township, and for several years was also school director.

On May 2, 1864, Mr. Warner enlisted at Perrysburg in Company B, 144th O. V. I., under Lieut. Miller, Capt. Luther Black and Col. Hunt, and participated in the engagements at Monocacy, Md., and Berryville, Va. Out of seventeen, twelve were captured by the Rebels, our subject being among the five who escaped, and in September, 1864, he was honorably dis-charged at Columbus, Ohio. He now holds membership in Ford Post No. 14, G. A. R., at East Toledo. His brother Liberty, who was killed at the battle of Chickamauga, was buried in the National Cemetery, at Chattanooga, among the thousands marked "Unknown."

EDWARD BALDWIN, a prominent and well-known grain dealer and agriculturist, of Weston, was born November 28, 1843, at Townsend, Hu-ron Co., Ohio, and is the son of Watson and Almira (Church) Baldwin.

To some men there is no such word as fail. Unkind fortune may buffet them about, they may be now on the topmost wave of prosperity and to-morrow in the depths of adversity, but their courage never falters, and obstacles and disap-pointments seem to bring out all the force of their character, and to incite them to still more strenuous efforts. Mr. Baldwin has had a checkered career, but, thanks to his undaunted energy and unflagging perseverance, he has con-quired all difficulties, and sees before him smooth sailing, it is to be hoped, for the remainder of his life. The history of such a man is worth reading for the lessons it teaches.

The father of our subject was born November 2, 1805, at Wilkesbarre, Penn., and was there married April 15, 1832, to Almira Church, who was born April 27, 1814. He was a farmer, and also kept store at his native place. In 1837, he came with his wife and four children to Ohio, locating at Townsend, Huron county, where he bought a large farm. This he carried on for a year, when, owing to the fact that another person had a prior claim on the property, he lost it, and all he possessed. He afterward engaged in mer-cantile business, and also carried on the manufac-ture of potash. In 1846 he came to Wood coun-ty, making the trip, which occupied an entire week, with an ox-team. He purchased sixty acres of land in Portage township, afterward buying fifty acres more of wild land, which he improved. He resided on this place for nine years, and in 1852, when our subject was thirteen years old, he removed to Weston township. Here he carried on the manufacture of potash for two or three years, and then rented a farm. He traded the property, he had at this time in Weston, for a farm east of Portage, on which he spent the remainder of his life, his death occurring January 15, 1867. His widow then disposed of this farm, and returned to Weston, where she purchased property and re-sided until her death in 1892.

The four children born to this worthy couple in Pennsylvania, were: Elinor E., born January 26, 1833, who died in infancy; Ruth Ann, born March 21, 1834, was married February 14, 1854, to D. A. Gunn, and died October 21, 1873; Helen E., born August 28, 1835, was married June 8, 1853, to Francis Franklin, and died October 21, 1873; Byron C., born December 6, 1836, was married February 4, 1864, to Emeline Clark. He was a soldier in the Civil war and was killed at the battle of Franklin, Tenn., November 30, 1864. The flag which he carried, and which was stained with his life's blood, is now in the Capitol at Columbus, Ohio. The children born in Ohio were: Charles B., born August 1, 1839, in Townsend, Huron county, was married June 20, 1874, at Weston, to Miss Ella Jeffery; Abid V., born April 11, 1841, was married January 29, 1866, to Miss Jane E. Caswell; Edward is the subject of this sketch; Wilson M., born March 22, 1845, died September 25, 1855; Mary J., born February 12, 1848, died July 23, of the same year; Sarah E., born June 13, 1849, was married December 17, 1868, to John Freyman, and died October 7, 1881; Alice G., born June 28, 1852, died November 29, 1852. The youngest children died in infancy. Of this family, Charles, Avid, Edward and William were born in Huron county, and reside in Wood county.

Edward Baldwin obtained his education in the schools of Weston and Portage, at which he was a student until he was seventeen years old, his leisure time being employed in assisting his father upon the farm. After leaving school the young lad determined to make his own way in world, and, following the advice of the poet to "seize the duty that lieth nearest," he took up the first occupation that presented itself, which was sawing and splitting wood. He worked at this until he had finished six cords at fifty cents a cord, which, at the rate he worked, gave him about ten cents a day. This was, however, the means of getting him a good job in a store, the proprietor of which admired the boy's pluck. He worked for this man three years, his wages the first year being $5.00 a month, $8.33 1-3 the second year, and $12.00 the third year. Out of this he saved $60.00, with which he speculated in produce with good success, making $300 from fall until spring. The next summer he bought potatoes at fifty cents a bushel, on the advice of a stranger, who promised to buy them of him; but the price fell, and Mr. Baldwin shipped them to Cincinnati, where he realized $138 from their sale.

On his way home from Cincinnati, Mr. Baldwin met a stranger who entered into conversation with him, and who soon discovered from the young man's appearance that he was feeling rather blue and discouraged. He inquired into the latter's history, and seemed favorably impressed with his story and his evident enterprise and ambition, and, without knowing anything more about him, advanced him $600, taking not even a note for it, and advised Mr. Baldwin to return home and invest the money in hides. This he did, and the result of the transaction was that Mr. Baldwin made $400 for himself, besides paying back the $600 loaned him by his new friend, Mr. May, and also paid the latter $50.00 for the use of the money.

Mr. Baldwin continued buying and selling hides until 1864, when he went to Milton Center and bought a store. This he carried on for six months, in which time he made $2,000, then built a store in Weston, and, in connection with J. E. Clarke, engaged in general merchandising. At the end of a year Mr. Baldwin sold out his interest to his partner, and went on a farm, which after a couple of years he was obliged to sell on account of ill health. He then formed a partnership with W. B. Ladd, in the hardware business, and subsequently owned a gristmill which he operated for twelve years. During this time Mr. Baldwin was also speculating in lands, in 1870 buying the 120 acres where he now lives, and for which he paid $55. per acre. On this property he erected a fine dwelling at a cost of $3,300, and engaged in general farming for three or four years, when he purchased the stock of goods belonging to Mr. Clarke, afterward trading it for 200 acres of land adjoining his present home. This gave him quite an extensive farm; but owing to severe winters and other ill fortune he lost $10,000. His next enterprise was the purchase of a stock of goods at Mt. Blanchard, where he carried on a store for six months, then removing it to Weston, and traded a farm for a stock of goods in Columbus Grove; he brought that to Weston, and in 1884 Mr. Baldwin cleared $10,000, in his business, and the following year, $11,000; in connection with the store he handled stock and grain. Fortune, which hitherto had smiled upon him, now turned a cold shoulder, for, in the following three years he lost $42,000, owing to dishonest help. This caused his failure in business, and came near destroying his faith in mankind, for, when he most needed their assistance, those whom he had helped failed to show their gratitude, and left him to face the storm alone. He, however, put his trust in a Higher Power, remembering how, when a lad of seventeen he started out on his career, his dear mother placed in his hands an old black Testament, and told him to guard against doing anything wrong, and, whenever he was tempted, to read his Testament and follow its teachings.

With renewed perseverance, and by diligent labor, he recovered from this disastrous blow, and to-day is the owner of a good farm of seventy acres, also of a grain elevator, and of various other business interests, which bring him in a good income. He is the gainer in many ways by his hard experiences, and, as he is now still in the prime of life, can look forward to many years of activity and it is to be hoped of uninterrupted prosperity. Mr. Baldwin was married January 1, 1866, to Maria Taylor, a sister of Thomas Taylor. Five children have blessed this union, as follows: Albert B., born March 14, 1867, travels for the wholesale notion and dry-goods house of L. S. Baumgardner & Co., of Toledo; Thomas Watson is deceased; James V. married a daughter of A. J. Munn; Almon is deceased; Harriet A. is at home.

Mr. Baldwin is a staunch Republican, but has never cared to run for office. He is a trustee in the Methodist Episcopal Church, in which he is also steward and a class leader, and has been superintendent of the Sabbath-school for twenty-three years. He is a member of the I. O. O. F., and the K. of P., and is esteemed and respected by all who know him.

HENRY W. STERLING, a wealthy oil operator and real-estate owner of Wood county, now residing in Bowling Green, was born April 6, 1843, in Hancock county, Ohio, where his ancestors were among the earliest settlers. His grandfather, Jacob Sterling, came there from Ireland in early manhood, and cleared the land upon which he made his home until his death, at the age of seventy years. His wife lived to the advanced age of ninety-five.

Their son George, our subject's father, was born in Guernsey county February 13, 1812, and died July 15, 1885, in Iowa. He was twice married, and had twenty children. At the age of sixteen he married Miss Delilah Cummings, who was born October 1, 1812, and died June 30, 1843. Ten children were born to this union, as follows: Olive M., born July 28, 1832, married James Lanning, of Hancock county; John Althans, born March 2, 1833, is a resident of Ham-mansburg, Ohio; George C., born November 27, 1834, lives in California; infant, born March 17, 1835, died two days later; twins, born in 1836, died the same year; Mary Ann Isabel, born June 22, 1837, died October 11, 1887, the wife of N. Richmond; William Jackson, born February 15, 1839, was murdered in Umatilla, Ore., September 30, 1886; Nancy J., born August 20, 1841, died in 1892; Henry Wesley is our subject. Mr. Sterling's second wife was Miss Mary Ann Llewellyn, who was born March 26, 1828, and died August 16, 1888. Ten children were born to them: James Wellington, born October 7, 1846, now living in Wisconsin; Delilah, born November 13, 1840, died September 8, 1850; Melissa J., born April 5, 1850, married and living in Iowa; Arkinson B., born February 17, 1852; infant, born February 19, 1854, died when three days old; Margaret D., born May 25, 1855, the wife of George Helline, of Des Moines, Iowa; Francis M., born March 10, 1859, a resident of Des Moines; Hiram Perry, born July 5, 1861, living in Iowa; Rebecca E., born May 10, 1864, married and living in Montana; Amanda E., born July 19, 1869, died December 19, same year. Our subject's parents lived in Hancock county for some years after their marriage, then moved to Michigan and later to Indiana. Returning to the old home after about fourteen years of absence, they lived there a short time, and finally moved to Iowa. The father was a man of exceptional strength, and weighed 240 pounds. In politics he was a Democrat, first, last and all the time.

Henry W. Sterling spent his boyhood in Hancock county. When nine years old he went to live with Jacob Crist, remaining with him eight years, when, not being able to agree as to what he was to receive on reaching his majority, he left and hired out to do farm labor for $4.00 per month. In September, 1862, at the age of nineteen, he enlisted in Company H, 21st O. V. I., which was assigned to the army of the Tennessee. He was taken prisoner at Murfreesboro, and spent three months in Libby prison, entering in good health, weighing 185 pounds, and coming out weighing 94 pounds, and wholly unfit for duty. The prison was so crowded while he was there that all the men could not lie down at the same time. After four months in a hospital, and a short stay at home, during which he was married, on December 24, 1863, to Miss Catherine Fellers, he rejoined his regiment in Atlanta, and took part in the famous march to the sea. He was in the battles at Bentonville, Fort McAllister and Savannah, and from the latter place went by boat to Raleigh. When the war closed his regiment marched to Washington, and had its place in the Grand Review. Returning home, he spent a year there, and then located in Henry township, Wood county, buying a farm, where he lived some twenty-one years. Having invested in a place in Liberty township, he lived there for five years before purchasing his present residence in Bowling Green.

Julia Sterling

Henry W. Sterling

Mr. Sterling's first wife was a native of Hancock county, Ohio, born July 7, 1845. She died May 13, 1884, mother of nine children: Mary E., born September 24, 1864, married W. Thrush and has five children—Scott, Wesley, Gertrude, Earl and Burton; Daniel M., born January 9, 1869, married Miss Laura Courtright, and has one son—Clarence; Florence C., born January 9, 1869, is the wife of Cornelius Swope, of Wood county; Dallas W., born December 26, 1871, married Miss Addie Buchanan, and has one daughter—Melinda; Henry W., born May 19, 1875, and John S., born October 13, 1877, are both living at home; Oliver, born April 26, 1884, died July 15, 1884; Grace C., born August 15, 1881, died September 15, same year; Willie C., born April 6, 1874, died aged one month and seven days. On October 6, 1885, Mr. Sterling married, for his second wife, Miss Julia MacFaden, who was born in Bowling Green, March 26, 1848.

Mr. Sterling has been one of the most enterprising and successful business men in Wood county. At present he is engaged in the livery business. For fourteen years he ran a sawmill, and also made a specialty of contracting for the digging of ditches. He is a member of an oil company, which is extensively engaged in operating upon leased lands in various parts of the county, and he owns an interest in fifteen wells, having eleven on his farm in Liberty township. He never sold the farm in Wood county, which he bought when a young man, and his two farms in the county now comprise 340 acres of land. In politics he is a Democrat; socially he is a member of the I. O. O. F. and Encampment, and he is also an active member of the P. O. S. of A. and the G. A. R.

L. N. LEMBRICH, treasurer of Portage township, and one of its prosperous farmers and leading citizens, was born December 24, 1855, in Section 8, of the same township. His parents are Martin and Margaret (Amos) Lembrich. In District School No. 3, he received his education, and being the eldest son early began to assist in the labors of the home farm, remaining a member of his father's household until reaching man's estate, when he started out in life for himself.

Mr. Lembrich was first married in 1878 to

Miss Flora Johnston, of Portage, who bore him one child, Edith M., at home. This wife died December 6, 1881, and was laid to rest in Mercer cemetery. Later he wedded her sister, Miss Sophia Johnston, daughter of Robert Johnston, and they have two children—Ray A. and Wanda. She is an earnest Christian woman, a faithful member of the Disciples Church.

For a time after his first marriage, Mr. Lembrich rented land, and then purchased forty acres in Section 8, Portage township, which he yet owns, though his home is located on another tract of forty acres in Section 3, which he subsequently purchased. He has been quite successful in his undertakings, is progressive and enterprising, and all that he possesses is the result of his own industry and good management. He is one of the leading Democrats of the community, enthusiastic in the support of his party, has served as constable for four years, and in 1887 was elected treasurer of Portage township, which office he has since capably filled to the satisfaction of all concerned. Though quiet and unassuming in manner, he gains many friends, which he always retains, and socially is a member of Whitney Lodge No. 589, I. O. O. F., of Portage.

WILLIAM A. MANDELL, son of Henry and Frederica (Kreps) Mandell, was born February 1, 1849, in Perrysburg, Ohio, and at Mandell school, District No. 6, some four and one-half miles from Perrysburg, he received a liberal education.

At the age of eighteen years he left school, and during the succeeding twenty-three years he followed agricultural pursuits. He has always lived on the old homestead of his parents, and has a comfortable frame residence, and owns a well-kept farm near by. On November 18, 1880, he was married to Miss Ella Whitson, by whom he has had five children, as follows: Henry Elbert, born March 6, 1882; Mabel Edith, born September 11, 1883, and died July 5, 1887; Raymond A., born September 1, 1888; Harry W., born November 12, 1890, and died October 18, 1895; and Ralph E., born September 7, 1895. In his political preferences Mr. Mandell is a Republican, his first Presidential vote being cast for Gen. Grant. He has neither sought nor accepted office, merely taking a voting interest in public matters. Socially he is a member of the I. O. O. F., Fort Meigs Lodge No. 774, Perrysburg, Ohio.

CHARLES LEMART JUNKINS has, by his well-spent life, shown that success is not always a matter of genius, or talent, but may be achieved through persistent, earnest and honorable effort. He was born in Weston township, September 25, 1863, his parents being Thomas and Elizabeth Nancy (Long) Junkins. He received a common-school education, and spent his boyhood days on his father's farm. At the age of twenty-two he was married in Weston township, July 2, 1885, to Inez Lucretia Wright, who was born May 19, 1864, and is a daughter of O. H. Perry and Mary Jane (Marks) Wright, both natives of Ohio. Their daughter, however, was born in Jay county, Ind., and during her early girlhood was brought by her parents to Wood county. Two children grace this union—Thomas Perry and Ethel Lotta.

Upon his marriage, Mr. Junkins took his bride to his parents' home, but after a short time purchased his present farm of eighty acres, for which he paid $1,000. Many of the improvements on the place are the work of his hands, and he is well known as an enterprising, progressive agriculturist, whose well-directed efforts have brought him success. In politics he is a Republican, but has never sought office, giving his time and energies to his business interests. His estimable wife is a member of the Disciples Church at Milton Center.

JERRY LOMAN, of Bloomdale, is an encouraging example of a self-made man, having become, with but little help, one of the substantial men of that vicinity. His great-great-grandfather Loman, came from Old England at an early period, and settled in Maryland, where our subject's father, Richard Loman, was born in 1803. His father, Richard Loman, Sr., moved to Lancaster county, Penn., at an early day, later coming to Ashland county, Ohio, where he remained until April, 1832, when he moved to Wood county, and located on a tract of wild land in Perry township, there being at that time only four other settlers in that township. His first home was a shanty which had been abandoned by some Indians. The road to it had to be cut out for the wagon, as he proceeded through the almost unbroken forest of heavy timber. Richard Loman, Sr., was a heavy-set man of five feet eight inches in height, and was of an active and aspiring disposition. He died in 1853, and five years later his wife followed him, both being buried at Fostoria. They had six children—three sons and three daughters—of whom our subject's father was the eldest, and the one who lived longest.

Richard Loman, our subject's father, had but limited opportunities for an education, and his youth was spent on his father's farm, which he afterward inherited. In 1842, he was married in Fostoria to Miss Caroline Ward, a native of Gallia county, Ohio, and four children were born to this union, our subject being the eldest; Thomas R. is a grain dealer, and owner of an elevator at Newmarket, Iowa; Nancy J. married William Fry, of Siam, Iowa; and Sarah married Samuel Hiller, of Bloom township. The mother of this family died in October, 1851, and was buried in Fostoria. In 1854, for his second wife, he married Miss Jane Hannan, of Fostoria, who died in 1879, leaving two children: Mary E., now Mrs. John E. Wineland, of Bloomdale, and Delilah, the wife of J. F. Smith, also of Bloomdale. Richard Loman was prominent in local affairs, and, although no office seeker, he held various offices in the township, and was school director for many years. He was a steadfast supporter of Democratic principles, but sometimes in local politics "scratched the ticket," if the Republicans nominated a better man. He was member of the U. B. Church at the time of his death, which occurred in 1886, when he was aged eighty-two years. He had enjoyed the best of health until within the last four years of his life, when he was seized with dropsy, and he then retired to Bloomdale. In 1884 he went to Iowa to visit his sons, but returned only to breathe his last at the home of our subject.

Jerry Loman was born April 5, 1844, on the old farm in Perry township, and in boyhood attended the district school, his first teacher being Rey. Andrew Hays. At the age of sixteen he began to study in Fostoria with the intention of preparing for a medical course—Dr. William Cake, of Fostoria, a cousin by marriage, having offered to assist him; but at the beginning of the third term this benefactor entered the army as surgeon of the 53d O. V. I., and on October 1, 1861, Mr. Loman enlisted in Company B, 57th O. V. I., under Capt. Phillip Faulhaber. They remained in camp at Findlay until January 14, 1862, and were then mustered in at Columbus. They took part in some of the fiercest battles of the war, including those of Shiloh, Corinth, Chickasaw Bayou (where their captain was killed, December 28, 1863), and Arkansas Post, where, on January 11, 1863, they captured the garrison and all. They then worked on the attempted canal at Vicksburg for a time, in Sherman's Fifteenth Corps, going up the Yazoo river to Haines' Bluff and Milliken's Bend, crossing the Mississippi at Port Gibson, and joining the fight at Champion Hills, May 12 and 13, 1863. Then followed operations around Vicksburg, and on May 22, during the second grand charge, 600 volunteers were called for to proceed in the van of the line of battle, and carry ladders and planks to surmount the breastworks when reached—surely as brave a piece of work as any soldier ever did. Mr. Loman was one of that heroic band, of whom only 135 came out without a wound. A few days prior to that, he had been slightly wounded in the right arm. He worked for nearly two weeks in the tunnel leading under the fort at Vicksburg. After Pemberton's surrender, July 4, 1863, Mr. Loman's regiment left for Jackson, Miss., and took part in the battle there. They then joined the forces at Chattanooga, arriving the day before the engagement at Missionary Ridge. Their next work was to march to Knoxville to relieve Burnside; but when sixteen miles away Longstreet left for Virginia, and they moved on to Larkinsville, Ala., arriving December 31, 1863. On the next day Mr. Loman's regiment re-enlisted—the first regiment of the Fifteenth Corps to re-enlist. He came home on a thirty-days' furlough, and, April 1, re-joined the regiment. On May 5, they left Larkinsville to participate in Sherman's campaign, and then came the battle of Resaca, May 14; Dallas, New Hope Church, Kenesaw Mountain, June 27; Peach Tree Creek, July 20, and Atlanta two days later. On August 31, came the desperate and bloody struggle at Jonesboro, where the Rebels fought to recover the railroad which brought their supplies to Atlanta, and, on September 1, Atlanta fell. Mr. Loman took part in Sherman's raid of November 14, 1863, and the engagement at Fort McAllister was his next. He was one of the host that marched to the sea under that great leader, and was the detailed forager for Company B, during that historic journey. From Savannah the 15th and 17th Corps were taken to Port Royal by vessel, and after the battle at Bentonville, March 19, 1865, there followed the surrender of Johnson at Durham Station, without a struggle. After this affair Sherman's army marched to Washington, and took part in the grand review May 22, 1865. Although most of the participants in that glorious parade were allowed to go to their homes, the Second division of the 15th Corps was sent to Little Rock, Ark., to do guard duty, and Mr. Loman's brigade went several hundred miles into the Indian Territory. On their return to Little Rock, the "boys" concluded that they would go home, and one morning at bugle call they stacked their rifles and made known their intention, despite the severe threats of their officers, who telegraphed to Washington for instructions. An order to discharge them came forthwith, so they were mustered out at Little Rock, August 15, 1865, and at Columbus, twelve days later, were discharged. Mr. Loman lacked only four days of four-years' service, during which time he had three furloughs, and had spent twenty days in Cumberland Hospital, Nashville, having been injured by a log rolling on him while building breast-works.

On his return home he rented his father's farm, and October 28, 1866, was married, in Tiffin, to Miss Colletta Steckel, a native of Hamilton county, and daughter of William Steckel, a well-known farmer there. Two years later he bought forty acres of wild land in Clinton county, Mich., and began farming there, remaining until 1871, when he moved to Charlotte, Mich., and began clerking for Baughman & Fouts, dry-goods merchants; after two years he entered the carpet and dry-goods store of Hazlett Bros., in the same capacity. On August 22, 1874, his wife died, and was buried in Tiffin. Her loss so affected him that he resigned his position, but later resumed the work, until 1875, when he returned to Wood county and again engaged in farming, buying an eighty-acre tract adjoining the old homestead. On December 27, 1876, our subject was married, in Tiffin, to Miss Rosa Troxell, a cousin of his first wife, and a native of Lehigh county, Penn., and by her had three children: Nina, Lloyd R., and Carl C., all yet at home. In 1883 he made up his mind to go west, and sold his property, but undertook to do some teaming for E. S. Bryant, the lumberman of Bloomdale, later becoming superintendent of teams for him, finally the superintendent of the entire plant of Bryant & Linhart, continuing until 1895. His second wife died November 20, 1890, and was buried in Baird cemetery. Mr. Loman was again married, August 23, 1891, this time to Miss Rhoda S. Redfearn, daughter of Joseph and Ann (Phillip) Redfearn. She died December 1, 1894, and was buried at Fostoria.

Mr. Loman moved to Bloomdale in 1879, and two years afterward bought a house and lot there. In 1884 he traded eighty acres of land in Iowa for forty acres within the present limits of Bloomdale, and later added twenty-three and a half acres to it, making a fine farm where he now resides; he also owns several village lots. He is cautious and shrewd in his investments. In politics he has always been a Republican, casting his first vote while in the army, and that for Abraham Lincoln. He has been township trustee, and treasurer of the school board for three years, but is not an office seeker. In G.

A. R. affairs he is very active, and was a charter member of Urie Post No. 10, Bloomdale, and was first adjutant and has been commander. He belongs to the I. O. O. F. Lodge No. 406, Bloomdale, joining August 13, 1868, and is a charter member of Bloomdale Lodge No. 278, K. of P., and a member of Green Encampment at Bowling Green.

DAVID B. BROWN, M. D. The professional men of Pemberville are an element in the development of this progressive little city, to the reputation of which they are constantly adding by their talents and skill. To this class belongs Dr. Brown, who has conducted a general practice as a physician and surgeon here since 1881. As a physician he is patient, constant, sympathetic, yet, in the hour of extremity, cool, calm, and courageous, thus inspiring his patients with the greatest confidence in his skill. Although his practice requires almost his entire time, yet he still continues the study of his profession, keeping himself abreast with the practical details in the improvements of medicine.

For several generations the family to which the Doctor belongs has resided in Ohio. His father, Thomas Brown, was born in Knox county, this State, near the city of Mt. Vernon. He was reared upon a farm, and upon arriving at man's estate selected agriculture for his life occupation. Settling in Morrow county about 1850, he engaged in cultivating a farm there for about nine years. In 1859 he came to Wood county, and afterward made his home upon a farm seven miles south of Pemberville, where his death occurred in 1887. His widow, who is still living on the old homestead in this county, was a native of Maryland, and bore the maiden name of Rachel Mills. Orphaned by the death of her parents when she was a mere child, she came to Ohio with a family by the name of Meyers, with whom she remained until her marriage.

During the residence of the family in Morrow county, Ohio, the subject of this sketch was born April 17, 1852. The family of which he is a member consists of three brothers and three sisters, all of whom are living. Henry B. has for twenty-four years been principal of a college at Valparaiso, Ind.; William T. resides on a farm near Bradner, Ohio; Sarah is the wife of James Shoewalter; Ellen married Milton Ashley; and Mary is the wife of Joseph Jennings. The first seven years of the life of our subject were passed on the home farm near Mt. Gilead. In 1859 he came with his parents to Wood county, where he attended the district schools of the neighborhood, and the public schools of Bradner. On completing his studies he began to teach, and followed that profession five years. It was not, however, his intention to make this his life work, and having resolved to become a physician, he in 1872 commenced the study of medicine at Freeport, Ohio, under the guidance of Dr. N. W. Goodrick, with whom he remained two years. In 1874-75 he attended lectures in the Cincinnati Medical College, from which institution he was graduated February 23, 1876.

At once, after completing his medical studies, Dr. Brown opened an office for practice at Sherwood, Defiance Co., Ohio, where he remained a number of years. In 1881, he came to Pemberville, where he has given his attention to professional duties ever since, and has built up a large and remunerative practice. Through devotion to his profession he has gained a place among the successful physicians of the county, and has also become the possessor of some valuable property, including a comfortable residence. Here he and his wife, with their three children—Truman Glen, Dale Benton, and Neva B.—have established a pleasant home. Mrs. Brown was Miss Minnie Truman prior to her marriage in 1881, and is the daughter of a farmer living near Woodville. In his fraternal relations Dr. Brown is a Scottish Rite Mason, and for five years filled the position of master of the Blue Lodge. In the Odd Fellows Lodge he is serving as noble grand. He is also connected with order of the Maccabees. His religious views incline him to the faith of the Baptist Church, with which his father was connected, having aided in the erection of the Ladd Hill Baptist church, of which he was a member until death. Mrs. Brown is an active member of the Presbyterian Church, and is always ready to aid in charitable enterprises to assist those in distress. While the Doctor has never been an aspirant for official honors, he never fails to cast his ballot for the men nominated by the Democratic party, and his views coincide with the principles promulgated by that organization.

AARON LESHER, the popular proprietor of the "Freeport House" at Prairie Depot, and a veteran of the Civil war, was born in Sandusky county, Ohio, November 5, 1845. When he was seven years old his parents, Daniel and Fannie (Cain) Lesher, came to Wood county, where his father purchased some 250 acres of land in Section 15, Montgomery township, near Freeport.

Daniel Lesher was born in Berks county, Penn., in 1801, his wife in the State of Virginia, in 1811. He was a carpenter and shoemaker by trade, and followed the latter vocation after coming to Ohio, from the time of his settlement in Montgomery township, carrying on farming during the remainder of his life. He was educated in the common schools of his day, his attendance being limited to a few weeks in the winter season, and, as he was a bright, intelligent man, he accumulated, in the course of his life, a comfortable property. At the time of his marriage, which took place in Pennsylvania, his only wealth was an axe, and a large stock of energy and ambition. He was a Republican, and held some minor offices in the township. Both he and his wife were members of the Methodist Church, and were estimable people. He died in 1872, aged seventy-one years, and his wife in 1864, at the age of fifty-three years; both are buried in Minkler's cemetery, in Sandusky county. The children of this couple were as follows: David, who died when twenty-one years old; Susan, who married William King, and after his death wedded John M. Adams, of Montgomery; Elizabeth, who married George Bonlus, and died in Illinois; Rebecca, who became the wife of Frank Langworthy, and died in Illinois; Sarah A., deceased when eighteen years old; Joseph, living in Cripple Creek, Colo.; Jane, the widow of George Freatenburg, living in Toledo; Martha, who married Henry Miller, and resides in Columbus, Ohio; Fannie, who married John Scott, and died in Toledo; and Frances, Mrs. Oliver Hall, of Toledo.

DAVID B. BROWN, M. D.

Our subject's early schooling was obtained in the public schools of Freeport, Wood county, Phœbe Osborne being his first teacher. He remained at home with his parents until his enlistment, May 2, 1864, in Company K, 144th Regiment, O. V. I., under Capt. Philo Hathaway. Their first engagement was at Berryville, Va., where the entire company was captured by the Rebels, nine only escaping, and our subject was one of the fortunate number. Several Rebel cavalymen rode up to where he lay on the ground, and drawing their carbines ordered him to follow the rest, but he feigned sickness and refused to move. After they left he took to the woods, and made for Harper's Ferry, eighteen miles away. On the road he met another Union man, and in twenty-four hours they were both safe within the Union lines at Harper's Ferry. A few days after this adventure Mr. Leshar was sent to Columbus, Ohio, where he was honorably discharged in September, 1864. His mother died during his absence in the army. Mr. Leshar remained at home until 1868, when he entered the dry-goods business in Prairie Depot and later took as a partner, James Yant. After several years he bought out his partner, and sold out the business to J. W. Graham, resuming farming in Montgomery township, in Section 21. Our subject was only twenty-one years old when he was married to Miss Caroline Chapman, of Freeport, the daughter of John Chapman. Since that time he has made his home in Prairie Depot, and in 1869 built his elegant residence, which is one of the most pleasant in the town. In 1895 he completed the present modern hotel known as the "Freeport House", of which he is proprietor, and which has a high reputation throughout the county. Mr. Leshar is a Republican and an active worker in the interests of his party. He served as mayor of the city for one year, also in the city council, and as clerk of the corporation of Prairie Depot. Both he and his wife are members of the Congregational Church, in which he is at present a trustee, and to which he has always been a liberal contributor. He is a member of the G. A. R. at Prairie Depot. Personally he is very popular, being a man of generous disposition, sincere and devoted in his friendships, and thoroughly reliable. He has been considerably interested in the oil business and in addition to his property in Prairie Depot, owns sixty acres of land in the township. He is considered one of the leading citizens and farmers of the place.

PROF. HENRY B. BROWN, now principal of the Northern Indiana Normal School, at Valparaiso, Ind., was formerly a resident of Wood county, his home having been with his parents, Thomas and Rachel Brown, near Bradner. He was born October 6, 1847, at Mount Vernon, Knox county. At the early age of two years, his parents removed to Morrow county, and later to their home near Bradner.

Until he was fifteen years old, Henry attended simply the country school; subsequently he went to Fremont to the public school one term, and then began to teach in the country. This laid the foundation for a still higher education, which was gratified, in part, by attendance for a brief period at the Wesleyan University of Delaware, Ohio. After additional teaching he entered the National Normal University, at Lebanon, Ohio, in 1869, and graduated from its Scientific Department in 1871. In September following he became one of the instructors in the Northwestern Normal School, at Republic, Ohio, under the management of Prof. J. Fraise Richard, and rendered acceptable service for two years. In September, 1873, he established at Valparaiso, Ind., the Normal School, of which he is now principal, taking with him from Republic, as associate laborers, Miss Mantie E. Baldwin, Mr. M. E. Bogart, and Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Perrine. From a humble beginning of thirty-five students, he has developed the largest educational institution in America, its patrons coming from all parts of the United States, and being counted annually by the thousands.

Prof. Brown was married in February, 1886, to Miss Neva Axe, of Valparaiso, the union being a very happy one. Three interesting children—Helen A., Henry Kinsey, and Ruth A.—have blessed this union.

Prof. Brown and his wife are both active members of the Church of Christ, in Valparaiso. Politically, he has always been identified with the Democratic party. He is in many respects a most remarkable man; magnetic, industrious, self-sacrificing, ambitious, and thoroughly in earnest, he is a natural leader and organizer of forces. His presence is inspiring and encouraging, and his students are passionately attached to him. He is a thorough financier. These qualifications have enabled him to build up and maintain, not only the largest, but one of the best, schools in the nation.

Prof. Brown has always been devoted to his parents. His father, Thomas Brown, who died in 1887, was a deacon in the Baptist Church, and for many years served his neighbors in the capacity of justice of the peace. Mrs. Rachel Brown, mother of Prof. Brown, still lives on the old homestead, near Bradner, and cheers by her presence and kindly administrations her faithful children, as they come back to visit her under the parental roof. Possessed of the confidence of her neighbors, among whom she and her late consort lived so many years, she enjoys the satisfaction of knowing that her son has become not only one of the great educators of the age, but a man of influence and usefulness in the religious world.

L. L. YONKER, D. D. S. The subject of this sketch was born in Center township, October 16, 1865, and is the son of H. H. Yonker. His boyhood was spent in Bowling Green, where he attended school until thirteen years of age, when he started out in life for himself. He was, for a time, clerk in a store, but when seventeen years old, began studying dentistry with Dr. B. R. Taber, then a prominent dentist of Bowling Green. After remaining with Dr. Taber for several years, he entered the dental department of Vanderbilt University, at Nashville, Tenn., from which he was graduated, in 1887, with the degree of D. D. S. On his return to Bowling Green, he went into partnership with his former preceptor, which continued until Dr. Taber's death, when our subject succeeded to the business.

Dr. Yonker is a skillful practitioner, and is highly respected both by members of his profession, and by the public generally. He has an extensive practice and is well-known throughout the county. He is a member of the Ohio State Dental Association and the Northwestern Ohio Dental Association, belongs to the Knights of Pythias, and is adjutant of the Sixth Regiment, Ohio Brigade, Uniformed Rank, K. of P. He is an ardent Republican, and has always taken an active part in politics, being for a number of years a member of the County Central Committee. Dr. Yonker was married June 20, 1892, to Miss Bell Goldamer, a daughter of the late Dr. Goldamer, the Rabbi, of Cincinnati, who, with Dr. Wise, were the leaders of the reformed Jewish Church in the United States. Dr. Yonker and his wife hold a high social position, and are popular with all classes.

WILLIAM T. BROWN is numbered among the most progressive and intelligent agriculturists of Montgomery township, where he has a good farm of forty acres in Section 1, and is a complete master of the calling which he is following. His sterling integrity, and honorable, upright manhood, fully entitle him to the position which he holds in the estimation of the people of the community. He was born at Mt. Vernon, Knox Co., Ohio, July 17, 1845, though at the time of his birth, his parents, Thomas and Rachel (Mills) Brown, were living near the town which now covers their land, and when fourteen years of age was brought to Wood county, the father purchasing eighty-one and a half acres in Section 2, Montgomery township, which was but slightly improved. The timber was very dense, little having been cleared. The family drove the entire distance from Morrow county, via Tiffin, Fostoria, and West Millgrove. Wild game was still found in the locality, deer and turkeys being often seen.

Thomas Brown, the father of our subject, was born at Mt. Vernon, Knox Co., Ohio, May 3, 1812. His father, David Brown, was of German descent, and died while Thomas was yet a boy. The young man worked faithfully on the farm, and at the age of thirty-one was united in marriage to Rachel Mills, who was born September 20, 1820, at Clear Springs, Md., and came to Knox county, Ohio, in 1835. Her ancestors were Scotch. They commenced life without any property, but by careful work and economy they soon acquired a comfortable competency. In 1850 they moved to Morrow county, Ohio, and nine years afterward to Wood county, where Mrs. Brown now resides. He, while living, filled various offices, constable, justice of the peace, etc. He was a faithful member of the Baptist Church, of which he was for many years an officer, and to this Church almost all of his children belong. Perhaps no parents ever gave more careful attention to the direction of the lives of their children, and few children have followed more faithfully in the footsteps of their parents. To the training received at the home, all the children attribute whatever success they may have acquired. The word of Thomas Brown was always as good as his note. He was the soul of honor, and he, together with his most excellent wife, was held in the highest esteem by his neighbors and friends. He died April 25, 1887, at the ripe age of seventy-five years. His wife still remains at the old homestead, and makes a pleasant and happy home for the frequent gatherings of her children. Though quite old, he has successfully managed the farm and has taken care of the business in such a way that it has increased in value rather than decreased. She has shown marked business ability in the manner in which she has conducted the affairs of the estate.

To this couple were born seven children; three sons and four daughters: Elizabeth Ellen, William Thomas, Henry Baker, Emily Ann, David Benton, Sarah Katherine and Mary Emeline. Emily Ann died at the age of two years, and all of the others with the exception of one, are near the old homestead. The husbands of Sarah Katherine and Mary Emeline are also prosperous farmers, living in the immediate vicinity of the old home. (1) Elizabeth Ellen was married to John Stahl, March 17, 1861. Theirs was a happy marriage, but in 1867 Mr. Stahl died, leaving no children. In 1872 Mrs. Stahl married Milton Ashley, and is now residing with her husband and one child at Bradner. Mr. Ashley is a successful mechanic, and they have a very pleasant home. To them two children have been born, Allen and Dot. Allen died at the age of ten years. (3) H. B. Brown was interested in literary pursuits, and commenced teaching school when but a boy. In 1871 he completed his course of study and began teaching at the Northwestern Normal School at Republic, Ohio, where he remained two years. In 1873 he established the Northern Indiana Normal School at Valparaiso, Ind., at which place he has remained ever since. The school has been a great success. Starting with thirty-five students and four teachers, it now has an average of more than 2,000 students, with more than twenty fully equipped departments and fifty teachers. He was married in February, 1886, to Neva Axe, and to them three children have been born, Helen A., Henry Kinsey, and Ruth A. (5) D. B. Brown gave his attention to medicine, completing his course at Cincinnati, Ohio, and since that time has had a very successful practice at Pemberville, Ohio. He was married on July 7, 1881, to Minnie Truman, and to them three children have been born, Glen T., Dale B. and Neva B. (6) Sarah Katherine was married to James Showalter, October 3, 1877. To them one child, Belva, has been born. (7) Mary Emeline married Joseph Jennings December 24, 1878. To them three children have been born, Rachel, Benson and Guy.

William T. Brown, the subject proper of this sketch, when young taught one term of school in Sandusky county, then returned to his parents' home, where he remained for two years. On April 28, 1867, in Montgomery township, he was united in marriage with Miss Roena Stahl, who was born in Section 1, of the same township, the daughter of Godfrey and Rosanna Stahl. To them were born five children—Hattie B., now the wife of L. O. Broyles, of Montgomery township, and they have three children; John T., at home; William R., who died August 1, 1888, at the age of fourteen years; and Jesse E., and Clarence B., also at home. The wife and mother departed this life October 16, 1888, dying in the faith of the Methodist Protestant Church, and was laid to rest in Bradner cemetery.

On his marriage our subject located on a rented farm in Section 1, Montgomery township, and later lived at other places until he purchased forty acres of land in Section 2, of the same township, going in debt for much of the amount. There he made his home for several years, but in the spring of 1883 bought his present forty-acre farm in Section 1. Mr. Brown has ever been quite a student, finding great pleasure in reading, and is a patron of literature. The cause of public education has always received his most earnest support, for three years he served as a member of the Bradner school board, and was also clerk of the board. As was his father, so is he an earnest Democrat, and for two terms was trustee of his township. Religiously he is a Baptist.

GEORGE K. DAILY, an old soldier of the Union, is now numbered among the thorough-going and enterprising farmers of Montgomery

but, as his sentiments and beliefs dictate, votes with the Republican party. His wife is a sincere and faithful member of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

CURTIS PLOWRIGHT, who is among the prosperous young farmers of Plain township, is of English descent, his parents, Henry and Mary (Cross) Plowright, both being natives of that country. Henry Plowright was born August 1, 1821, and his wife July 21, 1829. They came to America in 1850, first settling in Huron county, Ohio, and fifteen years later coming to Wood county, where Mr. Plowright purchased a farm, which he put under good cultivation and made into a valuable piece of property. He died November 3, 1891, and his wife is still living. They were the parents of eight children, as follows: Susan died when eight years old; Bertha is the wife of L. Stoots; Elizabeth married J. Manges; Willie died when three years old; Ida is the wife of Henry Kramp; Curtis is the subject of this sketch; Cora is the wife of John Philips; Mary is at home.

Curtis Plowright was born in Huron county, Ohio, December 6, 1863, and was reared to manhood on his father's farm in Plain township, where he obtained a fair education in the district schools. He was married October 6, 1887, to Miss Mary Vernon, whose birth took place in Plain township, January 28, 1863. Three children have blessed their union, namely: Ethel A., born March 1, 1889; Otho C., October 11, 1892; and Harold V., May 18, 1894. After his marriage Mr. Plowright settled on ten acres of land which he owned in Plain township, and on the death of his father, he purchased from the heirs the old homestead on which he has since resided. He is a man of much energy and enterprise, and has made a success of farming, being considered one of the best and most thrifty of the younger class of agriculturists in the county. In politics he is a Prohibitionist, and is an active worker in the interests of his party. He is a man of integrity, highly esteemed by his associates, and with his amiable wife holds an enviable place in the community.

MYRON CHAMBERLAIN, a prominent educator of Wood county, and one of the well-to-do agriculturists of Webster township, was born in Lorain county, Ohio, November 11, 1849.

His father, Luther Chamberlain, was a native of Ontario, Canada; but in early manhood he came to Ohio and purchased sixty acres of land in Lorain county, where he remained some years, afterward removing to Hardin county. Here he continued his occupation of farming until 1877, when he came to Wood county, and bought a farm in Webster township. He was married in 1848 to Miss Emily Smith, and they reared a family of eight children, of whom our subject is the eldest. The others are Jesse, Willard, Phillips, Louis, Frank, Bert and Lorin. Both parents are still living at the old homestead, where our subject's father has been for years one of the leading members of the Democratic party, and an active worker in all public movements, and especially in educational affairs, having been school director for many terms.

Mr. Chamberlain met with a sad accident at the age of sixteen, while feeding a cane-crusher with his hands, both were caught and so injured as to necessitate their amputation. He prepared for teaching as a life work, completing his education at the Normal University at Ada, Ohio, and for twenty-seven years has followed his profession. His fine mental gifts and professional training make him an unusually successful instructor, and he has taught in every district in his township with universal satisfaction, and is still teaching. Through his own efforts he has bought and paid for fifty-four acres of the finest land in Webster township, located near Fenton, and most of it is under cultivation. On April 3, 1877, Mr. Chamberlain was married to Miss Lavilla Loomis, of Scotch Ridge, who was born June 5, 1850. Six children were born to them: George L., January 15, 1878; Kenneth and Benjamin (twins); Permelia Ray, Fred and Winn E.

Mrs. Chamberlain died in 1888, her early demise bringing deep grief to her many friends as well as to the smaller home circle, who miss her loving ministrations. In all public affairs Mr. Chamberlain's advice and influence are given to the side of progress. As a justice of the peace, he has served the people of his township for three years with ability and impartiality.

GEORGE W. HARTMAN, farmer and stock raiser, Plain township, was born in Center township, May 26, 1841. He grew up on his father's farm, receiving his education in the common schools of his native place. In 1863 he enlisted in Company H, 67th Regiment, O. V. V. I., for the Union cause, and served nearly two years, doing duty at the siege of Richmond, Va., where his regiment was under fire for nearly a whole summer. The 67th was kept in Virginia, getting the State under martial rule, until December 19, 1865, at which time Mr. Hartman was discharged. He was fortunate enough to escape without receiving a wound. After the war he sheathed his sword, came home and returned to pursuits of peace. Shortly after he returned he bought his present excellent farm in Plain township. He was married in October, 1871, to Miss Barbara Apel, who was born in Sandusky, Erie Co., Ohio, March 27, 1849. They have had three children: John, born May 21, 1873, died June 6, 1895; Walter, born November 19, 1878; and Irene, born March 18, 1881.

Mr. Hartman has continued to live upon his present farm since the war, and has been engaged in general stock and grain raising, his farm giving evidence of careful cultivation. It is fertile, and capable of producing a large amount of grain. Our subject is recognized by his fellow-citizens as one of the opulent men of the county. He is a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church, and in politics is a Republican.

Jacob Hartman, father of our subject, was born on the Lower Rhine, Germany, May 26, 1808. He came to America when about twenty-three years of age, and married Miss Margaret Listenburger, who was born in Germany, and who is still alive. They moved to Perrysburg in 1833, later to Center township, where they made their home.

ELLIOT M. WARNER, who is engaged in fruit culture in Ross township, belongs to a family that was early established in Connecticut. Near New Milford, that State, his grandfather, Martin Warner, was born April 27, 1781, and was the third of five sons born to Martin Warner, Sr., the others being, Orange; Solomon, who was married and had one son, Asa; Ruggles, who had two sons, Ashbel and Hiram, both of whom graduated at Yale College; and Lemuel, who also had two sons, Luzon and Elmer. There were also two sisters in the family, one of whom married a son of Rev. Brooks, a Congregational minister, for whom Brookfield, Connecticut, was named.

On November 20, 1803, the grandfather led to the marriage altar Miss Nancy Hart, daughter of Lewis and Anne Hart, and they became the parents of the following children—Elliot, Henry, Martin, John H., George L., Mary, Eliza, Harriet, Margaret, and Sarah, who were born in Brookfield, Derby, and Huntington, Conn. In 1806 the grandfather began farming on a thirty-three-acre tract, two miles northeast of Brookfield, in Fairfield county, Conn., and twenty-three miles from Bridgeport. In 1811, in company with his father-in-law, he built a schooner of 170 tons burden, which was sailed by Lewis Hart, and in the war of 1812 was shot and fired by the British, off Bridgeport, Conn., but, after being run down, the fire was extinguished and the vessel saved. It was named the "Nancy," and was partly wrecked off the coast of Nantucket Island, but was repaired at a cost of $500.00. Martin Warner removed to Derby, Conn., in April, 1815, where he engaged in distilling rum and whisky, which at that time was thought to be consistent in a Christian and deacon in the Church. Reverses of fortune followed, and in November, 1823, he went to Rochester, N. Y., making the journey partially by canal, which became frozen. On January 1, 1824, he proceeded to Black Rock; but on May 1, removed to Buffalo, locating on Pearl street, one and a half squares northwest of the junction of Main and Niagara streets. His wife and three children had joined him at Black Rock, and the same year they removed to Lyons, Wayne Co., N. Y., where he engaged in carpentering. In 1824, his son Elliot sailed as cabin boy on the "Red Jacket" and the "Erie," the former of which was sent over the Falls with a black bear on board. In 1827, the grandfather purchased 119 acres in Rose township, Wayne county, for $6.00 per acre; but in September, 1833, with his son, Elliot, and his son-in-law, James Barber, he came, by way of Buffalo and Lake Erie, to Perrysburg, Wood Co., Ohio. However, in the latter part of October of the same year, he returned to New York, and the family came by way of Detroit to Perrysburg on Capt. Asa Hart's schooner. The grandfather built the first frame dwelling in Washington township, Wood county, in which religious services were held in 1835 and 1836, by Rev. Benjamin Woodbury, who organized a class of Presbyterians in Plain township, Martin Warner and Jacob Minton becoming deacons. In 1838 a house of worship was erected in Section 12, Plain township. In Washington township the grandfather departed this life November 14, 1854.

Henry Warner, the father of our subject, learned the hatter's trade, of Van Vorhes, at Lyons, N. Y., in 1827, and came with the family to Wood county in 1835. He was born March 11, 1811, and died April 24, 1894. On January 19, 1841, he was united in marriage with Jane Elizabeth Wright, whose birth occurred in Hardin county, Ky., in June, 1820, and to them were born five children—Liberty P., born May 11, 1842, became a member of the 21st O. V. I., during the Civil war, and was killed at the battle of Chickamauga; Elliot M. is the next in order of birth; Eliza J., born November 23, 1845, is now the wife of Charles E. Allen; Mary W., born September 15, 1847, is now Mrs. William Rhymers, living at 895 Bancroft street; and Hattie, who was born November 20, 1851, died at the age of ten years. For twenty-two years the father engaged in the work of the Methodist ministry, preaching at the following places in this state—Findlay, Bucyrus, Congress, Copley, Doylestown, Fostoria, Mt. Blanchard, Mellmore, Port Clinton, Bryan, Sylvania and Waterville. In September, 1859, he located in Washington township, Wood county, where he made his home for fourteen years, when he retired to Perrysburg, where he resided for twenty years. He was a conscientious Christian gentleman, beloved by all who knew him.

Elliot M. Warner, whose name introduces this sketch, was born January 23, 1844, in Waynesburg, Wayne Co., Ohio. On attaining to man's estate, he married Miss Margaret E. Brown, who was born on Beaver creek, in Weston township, Wood county, in November, 1843, and is a daughter of Alexander Brown, of Grand Rapids township, this county. They now have three children—Howard N., a fruit grower, born December 25, 1872; Otis Arthur, also a fruit grower, born March 26, 1874; and Jennie E., all at home. Until 1874, Mr. Warner devoted his attention to general farming, but since that time has engaged in fruit culture, at first having twenty-five acres, to which he has since added fifty-seven acres, which he has thoroughly cleared, drained, and erected thereon good buildings, including a fine residence. The following is the average production of his fruit farm—500 bushels of peaches, 400 of pears, 125 of plums, 100 of apples, 60 of cherries, 25 of currants, 10 of quinces, 8 of gooseberries, and 4 tons of grapes, all of the best varieties. He rents the remainder of his farm, for which he receives one-third of the crop raised, and his corn generally yields 100 bushels to the acre.

Mr. Warner is a member of the Clark street Methodist Episcopal Church, of Toledo, Ohio, in which he has served as trustee and class leader; has always been a Republican in politics, to which party his ancestors also belonged, after the dissolution of the Whig party, which they had formerly supported. For sixteen years he capably served as trustee of his township, and for several years was also school director.

On May 2, 1864, Mr. Warner enlisted at Perrysburg in Company B, 144th O. V. I., under Lieut. Miller, Capt. Luther Black and Col. Hunt, and participated in the engagements at Monocacy, Md., and Berryville, Va. Out of seventeen, twelve were captured by the Rebels, our subject being among the five who escaped, and in September, 1864, he was honorably discharged at Columbus, Ohio. He now holds membership in Ford Post No. 14, G. A. R., at East Toledo. His brother Liberty, who was killed at the battle of Chickamauga, was buried in the National Cemetery, at Chattanooga, among the thousands marked "Unknown."

EDWARD BALDWIN, a prominent and well-known grain dealer and agriculturist, of Weston, was born November 28, 1843, at Townsend, Huron Co., Ohio, and is the son of Watson and Almira (Church) Baldwin.

To some men there is no such word as fail. Unkind fortune may buffet them about, they may be now on the topmost wave of prosperity and to-morrow in the depths of adversity, but their courage never falters, and obstacles and disappointments seem to bring out all the force of their character, and to incite them to still more strenuous efforts. Mr. Baldwin has had a checkered career, but, thanks to his undaunted energy and unflagging perseverance, he has conquered all difficulties, and sees before him smooth sailing, it is to be hoped, for the remainder of his life. The history of such a man is worth reading for the lessons it teaches.

The father of our subject was born November 2, 1805, at Wilkesbarre, Penn., and was there married April 15, 1832, to Almira Church, who was born April 27, 1814. He was a farmer, and also kept store at his native place. In 1837, he came with his wife and four children to Ohio, locating at Townsend, Huron county, where he bought a large farm. This he carried on for a year, when, owing to the fact that another person had a prior claim on the property, he lost it, and all he possessed. He afterward engaged in mercantile business, and also carried on the manufacture of potash. In 1846 he came to Wood county, making the trip, which occupied an entire week, with an ox-team. He purchased sixty acres of land in Portage township, afterward buying fifty acres more of wild land, which he improved. He resided on this place for nine years, and in 1852, when our subject was thirteen years old, he removed to Weston township. Here he carried on the manufacture of potash for two or three years, and then rented a farm. He traded the property, he had at this time in Weston, for a farm east of Portage, on which he spent the remainder of his life, his death occurring January 15, 1867. His widow then disposed of this farm, and returned to Weston, where she purchased property and resided until her death in 1892.

The four children born to this worthy couple in Pennsylvania, were: Elinor E., born January 26, 1833, who died in infancy; Ruth Ann, born March 21, 1834, was married February 14, 1854, to D. A. Gunn, and died October 21, 1873; Helen E., born August 28, 1835, was married June 8, 1853, to Francis Franklin, and died October 21, 1873; Byron C., born December 6, 1836, was married February 4, 1864, to Emeline Clark. He was a soldier in the Civil war and was killed at the battle of Franklin, Tenn., November 30, 1864. The flag which he carried, and which was stained with his life's blood, is now in the Capitol at Columbus, Ohio. The children born in Ohio were: Charles B., born August 1, 1839, in Townsend, Huron county, was married June 20, 1874, at Weston, to Miss Ella Jeffery; Abid V., born April 11, 1841, was married January 29, 1866, to Miss Jane E. Caswell; Edward is the subject of this sketch; Wilson M., born March 22, 1845, died September 25, 1855; Mary J., born February 12, 1848, died July 23, of the same year; Sarah E., born June 13, 1849, was married December 17, 1868, to John Freyman, and died October 7, 1881; Alice G., born June 28, 1852, died November 29, 1852. The youngest children died in infancy. Of this family, Charles, Avid, Edward and William were born in Huron county, and reside in Wood county.

Edward Baldwin obtained his education in the schools of Weston and Portage, at which he was a student until he was seventeen years old, his leisure time being employed in assisting his father upon the farm. After leaving school the young lad determined to make his own way in world, and, following the advice of the poet to "seize the duty that lieth nearest," he took up the first occupation that presented itself, which was sawing and splitting wood. He worked at this until he had finished six cords at fifty cents a cord, which, at the rate he worked, gave him about ten cents a day. This was, however, the means of getting him a good job in a store, the proprietor of which admired the boy's pluck. He worked for this man three years, his wages the first year being $5.00 a month, $8.33 1-3 the second year, and $12.00 the third year. Out of this he saved $60.00, with which he speculated in produce with good success, making $300 from fall until spring. The next summer he bought potatoes at fifty cents a bushel, on the advice of a stranger, who promised to buy them of him; but the price fell, and Mr. Baldwin shipped them to Cincinnati, where he realized $138 from their sale.

On his way home from Cincinnati, Mr. Baldwin met a stranger who entered into conversation with him, and who soon discovered from the young man's appearance that he was feeling rather blue and discouraged. He inquired into the latter's history, and seemed favorably impressed with his story and his evident enterprise and ambition, and, without knowing anything more about him, advanced him $600, taking not even a note for it, and advised Mr. Baldwin to return home and invest the money in hides. This he did, and the result of the transaction was that Mr. Baldwin made $400 for himself, besides paying back the $600 loaned him by his new friend, Mr. May, and also paid the latter $50.00 for the use of the money.

Mr. Baldwin continued buying and selling hides until 1864, when he went to Milton Center and bought a store. This he carried on for six months, in which time he made $2,000, then built a store in Weston, and, in connection with J. E. Clarke, engaged in general merchandising. At the end of a year Mr. Baldwin sold out his interest to his partner, and went on a farm, which after a couple of years he was obliged to sell on account of ill health. He then formed a partnership with W. B. Ladd, in the hardware business, and subsequently owned a gristmill which he operated for twelve years. During this time Mr. Baldwin was also speculating in lands, in 1870 buying the 120 acres where he now lives, and for which he paid $55. per acre. On this property he erected a fine dwelling at a cost of $3,300, and engaged in general farming for three or four years, when he purchased the stock of goods belonging to Mr. Clarke, afterward trading it for 200 acres of land adjoining his present home. This gave him quite an extensive farm; but owing to severe winters and other ill fortune he lost $10,000. His next enterprise was the purchase of a stock of goods at Mt. Blanchard, where he carried on a store for six months, then removing it to Weston, and traded a farm for a stock of goods in Columbus Grove; he brought that to Weston, and in 1884 Mr. Baldwin cleared $10,000, in his business, and the following year, $11,000; in connection with the store he handled stock and grain. Fortune, which hitherto had smiled upon him, now turned a cold shoulder, for, in the following three years he lost $42,000, owing to dishonest help. This caused his failure in business, and came near destroying his faith in mankind, for, when he most needed their assistance, those whom he had helped failed to show their gratitude, and left him to face the storm alone. He, however, put his trust in a Higher Power, remembering how, when a lad of seventeen he started out on his career, his dear mother placed in his hands an old black Testament, and told him to guard against doing anything wrong, and, whenever he was tempted, to read his Testament and follow its teachings.

With renewed perseverance, and by diligent labor, he recovered from this disastrous blow, and to-day is the owner of a good farm of seventy acres, also of a grain elevator, and of various other business interests, which bring him in a good income. He is the gainer in many ways by his hard experiences, and, as he is now still in the prime of life, can look forward to many years of activity and it is to be hoped of uninterrupted prosperity. Mr. Baldwin was married January 1, 1866, to Maria Taylor, a sister of Thomas Taylor. Five children have blessed this union, as follows: Albert B., born March 14, 1867, travels for the wholesale notion and dry-goods house of L. S. Baumgardner & Co., of Toledo; Thomas Watson is deceased; James V. married a daughter of A. J. Munn; Almon is deceased; Harriet A. is at home.

Mr. Baldwin is a staunch Republican, but has never cared to run for office. He is a trustee in the Methodist Episcopal Church, in which he is also steward and a class leader, and has been superintendent of the Sabbath-school for twenty-three years. He is a member of the I. O. O. F., and the K. of P., and is esteemed and respected by all who know him.

HENRY W. STERLING, a wealthy oil operator and real-estate owner of Wood county, now residing in Bowling Green, was born April 6, 1843, in Hancock county, Ohio, where his ancestors were among the earliest settlers. His grandfather, Jacob Sterling, came there from Ireland in early manhood, and cleared the land upon which he made his home until his death, at the age of seventy years. His wife lived to the advanced age of ninety-five.

Their son George, our subject's father, was born in Guernsey county February 13, 1812, and died July 15, 1885, in Iowa. He was twice married, and had twenty children. At the age of sixteen he married Miss Delilah Cummings, who was born October 1, 1812, and died June 30, 1843. Ten children were born to this union, as follows: Olive M., born July 28, 1832, married James Lanning, of Hancock county; John Althans, born March 2, 1833, is a resident of Hamansburg, Ohio; George C., born November 27, 1834, lives in California; infant, born March 17, 1835, died two days later; twins, born in 1836, died the same year; Mary Ann Isabel, born June 22, 1837, died October 11, 1887, the wife of N. Richmond; William Jackson, born February 15, 1839, was murdered in Umatilla, Ore., September 30, 1886; Nancy J., born August 20, 1841, died in 1892; Henry Wesley is our subject. Mr. Sterling's second wife was Miss Mary Ann Llewellyn, who was born March 26, 1828, and died August 16, 1888. Ten children were born to them: James Wellington, born October 7, 1846, now living in Wisconsin; Delilah, born November 13, 1840, died September 8, 1850; Melissa J., born April 5, 1850, married and living in Iowa; Arkinson B., born February 17, 1852; infant, born February 19, 1854, died when three days old; Margaret D., born May 25, 1855, the wife of George Helline, of Des Moines, Iowa; Francis M., born March 10, 1859, a resident of Des Moines; Hiram Perry, born July 5, 1861, living in Iowa; Rebecca E., born May 10, 1864, married and living in Montana; Amanda E., born July 19, 1869, died December 19, same year. Our subject's parents lived in Hancock county for some years after their marriage, then moved to Michigan and later to Indiana. Returning to the old home after about fourteen years of absence, they lived there a short time, and finally moved to Iowa. The father was a man of exceptional strength, and weighed 240 pounds. In politics he was a Democrat, first, last and all the time.

Henry W. Sterling spent his boyhood in Hancock county. When nine years old he went to live with Jacob Crist, remaining with him eight years, when, not being able to agree as to what he was to receive on reaching his majority, he left and hired out to do farm labor for $4.00 per month. In September, 1862, at the age of nineteen, he enlisted in Company H, 21st O. V. I., which was assigned to the army of the Tennessee. He was taken prisoner at Murfreesboro, and spent three months in Libby prison, entering in good health, weighing 185 pounds, and coming out weighing 94 pounds, and wholly unfit for duty. The prison was so crowded while he was there that all the men could not lie down at the same time. After four months in a hospital, and a short stay at home, during which he was married, on December 24, 1863, to Miss Catherine Fellers, he rejoined his regiment in Atlanta, and took part in the famous march to the sea. He was in the battles at Bentonville, Fort McAllister and Savannah, and from the latter place went by boat to Raleigh. When the war closed his regiment marched to Washington, and had its place in the Grand Review. Returning home, he spent a year there, and then located in Henry township, Wood county, buying a farm, where he lived some twenty-one years. Having invested in a place in Liberty township, he lived there for five years before purchasing his present residence in Bowling Green.

Fuhia Sterling

Henry W. Sterling

Mr. Sterling's first wife was a native of Hancock county, Ohio, born July 7, 1845. She died May 13, 1884, mother of nine children: Mary E., born September 24, 1864, married W. Thrush and has five children—Scott, Wesley, Gertrude, Earl and Burton; Daniel M., born January 9, 1869, married Miss Laura Courtright, and has one son—Clarence; Florence C., born January 9, 1869, is the wife of Cornelius Swope, of Wood county; Dallas W., born December 26, 1871, married Miss Addie Buchanan, and has one daughter—Melinda; Henry W., born May 19, 1875, and John S., born October 13, 1877, are both living at home; Oliver, born April 26, 1884, died July 15, 1884; Grace C., born August 15, 1881, died September 15, same year; Willie C., born April 6, 1874, died aged one month and seven days. On October 6, 1885, Mr. Sterling married, for his second wife, Miss Julia MacFaden, who was born in Bowling Green, March 26, 1848.

Mr. Sterling has been one of the most enterprising and successful business men in Wood county. At present he is engaged in the livery business. For fourteen years he ran a sawmill, and also made a specialty of contracting for the digging of ditches. He is a member of an oil company, which is extensively engaged in operating upon leased lands in various parts of the county, and he owns an interest in fifteen wells, having eleven on his farm in Liberty township. He never sold the farm in Wood county, which he bought when a young man, and his two farms in the county now comprise 340 acres of land. In politics he is a Democrat; socially he is a member of the I. O. O. F. and Encampment, and he is also an active member of the P. O. S. of A. and the G. A. R.

L. N. LEMBRICH, treasurer of Portage township, and one of its prosperous farmers and leading citizens, was born December 24, 1855, in Section 8, of the same township. His parents are Martin and Margaret (Amos) Lembrich. In District School No. 3, he received his education, and being the eldest son early began to assist in the labors of the home farm, remaining a member of his father's household until reaching man's estate, when he started out in life for himself.

Mr. Lembrich was first married in 1878 to

Miss Flora Johnston, of Portage, who bore him one child, Edith M., at home. This wife died December 6, 1881, and was laid to rest in Mercer cemetery. Later he wedded her sister, Miss Sophia Johnston, daughter of Robert Johnston, and they have two children—Ray A. and Wanda. She is an earnest Christian woman, a faithful member of the Disciples Church.

For a time after his first marriage, Mr. Lembrich rented land, and then purchased forty acres in Section 8, Portage township, which he yet owns, though his home is located on another tract of forty acres in Section 3, which he subsequently purchased. He has been quite successful in his undertakings, is progressive and enterprising, and all that he possesses is the result of his own industry and good management. He is one of the leading Democrats of the community, enthusiastic in the support of his party, has served as constable for four years, and in 1887 was elected treasurer of Portage township, which office he has since capably filled to the satisfaction of all concerned. Though quiet and unassuming in manner, he gains many friends, which he always retains, and socially is a member of Whitney Lodge No. 589, I. O. O. F., of Portage.

WILLIAM A. MANDELL, son of Henry and Frederica (Kreps) Mandell, was born February 1, 1849, in Perrysburg, Ohio, and at Mandell school, District No. 6, some four and one-half miles from Perrysburg, he received a liberal education.

At the age of eighteen years he left school, and during the succeeding twenty-three years he followed agricultural pursuits. He has always lived on the old homestead of his parents, and has a comfortable frame residence, and owns a well-kept farm near by. On November 18, 1880, he was married to Miss Ella Whitson, by whom he has had five children, as follows: Henry Elbert, born March 6, 1882; Mabel Edith, born September 11, 1883, and died July 5, 1887; Raymond A., born September 1, 1888; Harry W., born November 12, 1890, and died October 18, 1895; and Ralph E., born September 7, 1895. In his political preferences Mr. Mandell is a Republican, his first Presidential vote being cast for Gen. Grant. He has neither sought nor accepted office, merely taking a voting interest in public matters. Socially he is a member of the I. O. O. F., Fort Meigs Lodge No. 774, Perrysburg, Ohio.

CHARLES LEMART JUNKINS has, by his well-spent life, shown that success is not always a matter of genius, or talent, but may be achieved through persistent, earnest and honorable effort. He was born in Weston township, September 25, 1863, his parents being Thomas and Elizabeth Nancy (Long) Junkins. He received a common-school education, and spent his boyhood days on his father's farm. At the age of twenty-two he was married in Weston township, July 2, 1885, to Inez Lucretia Wright, who was born May 19, 1864, and is a daughter of O. H. Perry and Mary Jane (Marks) Wright, both natives of Ohio. Their daughter, however, was born in Jay county, Ind., and during her early girlhood was brought by her parents to Wood county. Two children grace this union—Thomas Perry and Ethel Lotta.

Upon his marriage, Mr. Junkins took his bride to his parents' home, but after a short time purchased his present farm of eighty acres, for which he paid $1,000. Many of the improvements on the place are the work of his hands, and he is well known as an enterprising, progressive agriculturist, whose well-directed efforts have brought him success. In politics he is a Republican, but has never sought office, giving his time and energies to his business interests. His estimable wife is a member of the Disciples Church at Milton Center.

JERRY LOMAN, of Bloomdale, is an encouraging example of a self-made man, having become, with but little help, one of the substantial men of that vicinity. His great-great-grandfather Loman, came from Old England at an early period, and settled in Maryland, where our subject's father, Richard Loman, was born in 1803. His father, Richard Loman, Sr., moved to Lancaster county, Penn., at an early day, later coming to Ashland county, Ohio, where he remained until April, 1832, when he moved to Wood county, and located on a tract of wild land in Perry township, there being at that time only four other settlers in that township. His first home was a shanty which had been abandoned by some Indians. The road to it had to be cut out for the wagon, as he proceeded through the almost unbroken forest of heavy timber. Richard Loman, Sr., was a heavy-set man of five feet eight inches in height, and was of an active and aspiring disposition. He died in 1853, and five years later his wife followed him, both being buried at Fostoria. They had six children—three sons and three daughters—of whom our subject's father was the eldest, and the one who lived longest.

Richard Loman, our subject's father, had

but limited opportunities for an education, and his youth was spent on his father's farm, which he afterward inherited. In 1842, he was married in Fostoria to Miss Caroline Ward, a native of Gallia county, Ohio, and four children were born to this union, our subject being the eldest; Thomas R. is a grain dealer, and owner of an elevator at Newmarket, Iowa; Nancy J. married William Fry, of Siam, Iowa; and Sarah married Samuel Hiller, of Bloom township. The mother of this family died in October, 1851, and was buried in Fostoria. In 1854, for his second wife, he married Miss Jane Hannan, of Fostoria, who died in 1879, leaving two children: Mary E., now Mrs. John E. Wineland, of Bloomdale, and Delilah, the wife of J. F. Smith, also of Bloomdale. Richard Loman was prominent in local affairs, and, although no office seeker, he held various offices in the township, and was school director for many years. He was a steadfast supporter of Democratic principles, but sometimes in local politics "scratched the ticket," if the Republicans nominated a better man. He was member of the U. B. Church at the time of his death, which occurred in 1886, when he was aged eighty-two years. He had enjoyed the best of health until within the last four years of his life, when he was seized with dropsy, and he then retired to Bloomdale. In 1884 he went to Iowa to visit his sons, but returned only to breathe his last at the home of our subject.

Jerry Loman was born April 5, 1844, on the old farm in Perry township, and in boyhood attended the district school, his first teacher being Rev. Andrew Hays. At the age of sixteen he began to study in Fostoria with the intention of preparing for a medical course—Dr. William Cake, of Fostoria, a cousin by marriage, having offered to assist him; but at the beginning of the third term this benefactor entered the army as surgeon of the 53d O. V. I., and on October 1, 1861, Mr. Loman enlisted in Company B, 57th O. V. I., under Capt. Phillip Faulhaber. They remained in camp at Findlay until January 14, 1862, and were then mustered in at Columbus. They took part in some of the fiercest battles of the war, including those of Shiloh, Corinth, Chickasaw Bayou (where their captain was killed, December 28, 1863), and Arkansas Post, where, on January 11, 1863, they captured the garrison and all. They then worked on the attempted canal at Vicksburg for a time, in Sherman's Fifteenth Corps, going up the Yazoo river to Haines' Bluff and Milliken's Bend, crossing the Mississippi at Port Gibson, and joining the fight at Champion Hills, May 12 and 13, 1863. Then followed operations around Vicksburg, and on May 22, during the second grand charge, 600 volunteers were called for to proceed in the van of the line of battle, and carry ladders and planks to surmount the breastworks when reached—surely as brave a piece of work as any soldier ever did. Mr. Loman was one of that heroic band, of whom only 135 came out without a wound. A few days prior to that, he had been slightly wounded in the right arm. He worked for nearly two weeks in the tunnel leading under the fort at Vicksburg. After Pemberton's surrender, July 4, 1863, Mr. Loman's regiment left for Jackson, Miss., and took part in the battle there. They then joined the forces at Chattanooga, arriving the day before the engagement at Missionary Ridge. Their next work was to march to Knoxville to relieve Burnside; but when sixteen miles away Longstreet left for Virginia, and they moved on to Larkinsville, Ala., arriving December 31, 1863. On the next day Mr. Loman's regiment re-enlisted—the first regiment of the Fifteenth Corps to re-enlist. He came home on a thirty-days' furlough, and, April 1, re-joined the regiment. On May 5, they left Larkinsville to participate in Sherman's campaign, and then came the battle of Resaca, May 14; Dallas, New Hope Church, Kenesaw Mountain, June 27; Peach Tree Creek, July 20, and Atlanta two days later. On August 31, came the desperate and bloody struggle at Jonesboro, where the Rebels fought to recover the railroad which brought their supplies to Atlanta, and, on September 1, Atlanta fell. Mr. Loman took part in Sherman's raid of November 14, 1863, and the engagement at Fort McAllister was his next. He was one of the host that marched to the sea under that great leader, and was the detailed forager for Company B, during that historic journey. From Savannah the 15th and 17th Corps were taken to Port Royal by vessel, and after the battle at Bentonville, March 19, 1865, there followed the surrender of Johnson at Durham Station, without a struggle. After this affair Sherman's army marched to Washington, and took part in the grand review May 22, 1865. Although most of the participants in that glorious parade were allowed to go to their homes, the Second division of the 15th Corps was sent to Little Rock, Ark., to do guard duty, and Mr. Loman's brigade went several hundred miles into the Indian Territory. On their return to Little Rock, the "boys" concluded that they would go home, and one morning at bugle call they stacked their rifles and made known their intention, despite the severe threats of their officers, who telegraphed to Washington for instructions. An order to discharge them came forthwith, so they were mustered out at Little Rock, August 15, 1865, and at Columbus, twelve days later, were discharged. Mr. Loman lacked only four days of four-years' service, during which time he had three furloughs, and had spent twenty days in Cumberland Hospital, Nashville, having been injured by a log rolling on him while building breast-works.

On his return home he rented his father's farm, and October 28, 1866, was married, in Tiffin, to Miss Colletta Steckel, a native of Hamilton county, and daughter of William Steckel, a well-known farmer there. Two years later he bought forty acres of wild land in Clinton county, Mich., and began farming there, remaining until 1871, when he moved to Charlotte, Mich., and began clerking for Baughman & Fouts, dry-goods merchants; after two years he entered the carpet and dry-goods store of Hazlett Bros., in the same capacity. On August 22, 1874, his wife died, and was buried in Tiffin. Her loss so affected him that he resigned his position, but later resumed the work, until 1875, when he returned to Wood county and again engaged in farming, buying an eighty-acre tract adjoining the old homestead. On December 27, 1876, our subject was married, in Tiffin, to Miss Rosa Troxell, a cousin of his first wife, and a native of Lehigh county, Penn., and by her had three children: Nina, Lloyd R., and Carl C., all yet at home. In 1883 he made up his mind to go west, and sold his property, but undertook to do some teaming for E. S. Bryant, the lumberman of Bloomdale, later becoming superintendent of teams for him, finally the superintendent of the entire plant of Bryant & Linhart, continuing until 1895. His second wife died November 20, 1890, and was buried in Baird cemetery. Mr. Loman was again married, August 23, 1891, this time to Miss Rhoda S. Redfearn, daughter of Joseph and Ann (Phillip) Redfearn. She died December 1, 1894, and was buried at Fostoria.

Mr. Loman moved to Bloomdale in 1879, and two years afterward bought a house and lot there. In 1884 he traded eighty acres of land in Iowa for forty acres within the present limits of Bloomdale, and later added twenty-three and a half acres to it, making a fine farm where he now resides; he also owns several village lots. He is cautious and shrewd in his investments. In politics he has always been a Republican, casting his first vote while in the army, and that for Abraham Lincoln. He has been township trustee, and treasurer of the school board for three years, but is not an office seeker. In G.

township. He owns a good farm of forty acres in Section 4, of which he purchased in April, 1880, when only five acres had been cleared, and the house upon the place was a rude affair. He has made many valuable and useful improvements, including the substantial buildings now found there, and is accounted one of the most industrious, energetic and highly respected agriculturists of the community.

Our subject was born in Troy, Miami Co., Ohio, December 8, 1841, the sixth child and third son in the family of nine children born to William and Susan (Brown) Daily, the former of whom was a native of Pennsylvania; the latter is said to have been the first female white child born within the corporation limits of Troy, Ohio, where her father, William Brown, had located at a very early day. The father of our subject was a large man, above the ordinary height, and was a blacksmith by trade, though in early life he conducted a tavern at Troy. He was first a Whig, and on its organization, joined the Republican party. He died in 1861, in Troy, where both he and his wife are buried, the latter having died at La Fayette, Ind., while on a visit there in 1888. In religious belief they were both Methodists. The family of this worthy couple included the following children: David, who went to California in 1849, and returned in 1865, is now a printer of La Fayette, Ind.; Elizabeth is now Mrs. Jerry Layton, of Troy, Ohio; Catherine first married William Carroll, a colonel in the Union army during the Civil war, and is now the wife of William Creiger, of La Fayette, Ind.; William is a blacksmith of Troy; Mary is now Mrs. Washington Bemis, of La Fayette; George K. is next in order of birth; Thomas, a baker by trade, died at Homer, Ill.; Sarah is the wife of Robert Adams, of Chicago, Ill.; and Belle is now Mrs. J. L. Adair, of Frankfort, Indiana.

Mr. Daily, whose name opens this review, was reared at Troy, where he attended the public schools, and assisted his father in the blacksmith shop. At that place he enlisted, in 1861, in Company H, 11th O. V. I., and the first engagement in which he participated was along the Kanawha river, in West Virginia. He remained with his regiment until the battle of Chickamauga, where he was shot through the right foot, and it was a year before he was fit for duty. He was at Camp Dennison hospital when his three-years' service expired, and was discharged. In the fall of 1864 he began cabinet-making at Troy, under Andrew Helpman, and there continued to follow that trade until May, 1867. It was in the summer of 1865 that Mr. Daily first visited Wood county, and on December 26, 1866, in Montgomery township, was celebrated his marriage with Miss Ella D. Adams, who was born in Section 9, of that township, November 20, 1847, the daughter of Thomas and Mary (McGill) Adams. They have become the parents of the following children: Thomas B., born October 14, 1868, now located at Bradner, Ohio; William I., born August 3, 1870, who is an oil-pumper of Montgomery township; Frank R., born September 22, 1872, who is also an oil-pumper, residing at home; David O., born July 10, 1874; Albert E., born October 4, 1876; Charles K., born March 6, 1878; Mary B., born November 12, 1879; Bessie M., born August 17, 1881, died in infancy; Leroy, born April 9, 1883; James L., born December 9, 1886; and Alpha, who was born August 23, 1889, and died in infancy.

Mr. Daily took his wife to La Fayette, Ind., soon after their marriage, and there worked at his trade until failing health compelled him to abandon it. For eight years he then made his home at Homer, Ill., where he was engaged in the bakery and confectionery business until 1875, when he came to Montgomery township, Wood county, and lived on his father-in-law's place until April, 1880. Since that time he has lived upon his present farm, and no man is more widely or favorably known within the limits of the township than George K. Daily. He was a Republican in politics until Gen. Weaver became a candidate, when he joined the Greenback party, and he is now a staunch supporter of the People's party. For fifteen years he has efficiently served as school director of District No. 1.

SILAS FOSTER is familiar with pioneer experiences in Henry township. He now owns a farm there, which he cultivates in addition to his labors as a minister of the United Brethren Church. He is now the oldest citizen of the community in which his home is located, and as an honored pioneer well deserves representation in this volume. He was born in Logan county, Ohio, February 17, 1822, and is a son of Jacob and Mary (Burket) Foster, natives of Maryland. After their marriage they removed to a farm in Logan county, Ohio, and in 1829 went to Hancock county, locating on a tract of land which now lies partly within the corporation limits of Findlay, spending their remaining days upon that farm of 160 acres. The father died in 1844, the mother in 1857. Their family of children was as follows: Jacob and Daniel, both deceased; Mrs. Sarah Carlin; John, Thomas and James, who have also passed away; Mrs. Mary Douglas, of Findlay, Ohio; Elizabeth, deceased; Mrs. Rachel Greer, deceased; Mrs. Phoebe Hickson, of New Mexico; Jackson, deceased, and Silas.

Silas Foster

Susan Foster

Our subject, who was about seven years of age when his parents removed to Hancock county, attended the public schools of Findlay, and was reared on his father's farm, assisting in the work of cultivating and improving it until his marriage. In the spring of 1843 he wedded Susan Loehr, who was born in Plainfield township, Northampton Co., Penn., March 19, 1826, a daughter of Jacob and Sarah (Brood) Loehr. Her mother died in Pennsylvania, and when Mrs. Foster was twelve years of age she accompanied her father to Hancock county, Ohio, where he spent his remaining days on a farm near McComb. She was the fourth in order of birth in the following family: Adam, Sophia and Louisa, deceased; Susan; William, who has passed away; Catherine, wife of David Wilson, of Allen township, Hancock county; twins, who died in infancy; Abraham, deceased; and one other who died in infancy. After the death of his first wife, Mr. Loehr wedded Mrs. Frances Kemper, and to them were born these children: Sarah, Frederick and Harmon, all deceased; Jacob, in the West; Frances, wife of Cyrus Dillinger, of Hancock county; and twins, who died in infancy. For about four years after their marriage Mr. and Mrs. Foster remained on the home farm, and then removed to Wood county, locating on their present place, containing ninety-five acres, which was given to our subject by his father. Their cabin was the first house in the township, built by Henry Shaw, in whose honor the township was named. They experienced many hardships and trials in those early days; but as the years passed prosperity smiled upon their efforts, a substantial residence replaced the log cabin, and the farm became a valuable and productive one. Mr. Foster has also given much time to the work of the Church, and in 1848 was appointed a minister of the United Brethren Church, since which time he has engaged in preaching through this section of the country.

Fifteen children have been born to our subject and his wife: Emeline, wife of Johnson Campbell, of Bloomdale, Ohio; Samilda, wife of Benjamin Bair, of Hancock county, Ohio; Thomas, who was State Senator from Fort Wayne District, Indiana, and died at the age of thirty-five; Matilda, wife of Charles Wilson, of Fulton county, Ohio; William, a painter of Jackson, Mich.; Elizabeth, wife of Jesse Berger, of Albion, Ind.; Rachel, wife of Nelson Anderson, of Findlay, Ohio; Corwin, of Wood county;

Minnie, wife of Olin Robbins, of Van Buren, Hancock Co., Ohio; A. Lincoln, at home, and a twin brother who died at birth; Nellie, the wife of Ben Thurston, of Bairdstown, Ohio; James Sherman, of Van Buren; Susie, wife of Jasper Elton, of Toledo, Ohio; and Jennie Olive, who died at the age of twelve years.

Mr. Foster is a supporter of the Prohibition party, and has served as assessor, school director, trustee and supervisor, discharging his duties with a promptness and fidelity that have won him high commendation. His life has been an upright and honorable one, commanding the respect and confidence of all.

ISAAC NEIFER. From Germany to America came the founder of the Neifer family in this country, Isaac Neifer, who was the father of our subject. He was then a young man of eighteen, who, with the hope of bettering his financial condition, had come to the New World, and for a year after his arrival worked in order to get money to pay for his passage. Locating at New Holland, Penn., he there married Elizabeth Miller. Subsequently he moved to Ohio, and later to Indiana, where his last days were spent. Our subject, Isaac Neifer (2), was born in New Holland, Penn., July 29, 1813, and was a cabinet maker by trade, following that pursuit until 1859, also, at odd times, for a few years later. On November 13, 1838, he married Harriet Oberly, who was born in Leacock township, Lancaster Co., Penn., May 16, 1821, a daughter of Adam and Catharine (Myers) Oberly, the former of whom made farming his life work, and both continued their residence in Lancaster county, until called to their final home, the father passing away in 1873 aged ninety-three years, the mother in 1856, aged seventy-eight years. Their children were: Elizabeth, deceased wife of Benjamin Miller; John and Isaac, deceased; Catharine, deceased wife of John Sullinberger; Daniel, who died in Lancaster county, in April, 1896, aged eighty-nine years; Samuel, deceased; Margaret, deceased wife of Christian Erb; Liddie, deceased wife of Samuel Hafer; Sarah, wife of Daniel Geist, of Lancaster county; Levi, also of Lancaster county; Harriet (Mrs. Neifer); and Adam, the last born, who died when two years old. The Oberly family was also of German origin.

Mrs. Clauser, the great-grandmother of Harriet Oberly Neifer, was killed by the Indians in Lancaster county, Penn., in 1743, being pierced under the left arm with a spear. A son was shot off his horse by an arrow from the bow of an Indian, and fell dead beneath the animal, and a daughter, Catharine Clauser, then a child of nine years, was taken from the wagon, carried away some distance by the Indians, who were in the act of scalping her when overtaken by the men of the party who were in close pursuit. The Indians had cut a great gash across her forehead from ear to ear, the scar of which she carried to her grave, living to be seventy-eight years of age. On growing up she married a Mr. Jacobs, who died three years subsequently, leaving one son who moved to Ohio and died. After the death of Mr. Jacobs, she was married to Valentine Myers, and to them were born two sons and three daughters, namely: Mary, Catharine, Jacob, Isaac and Margaret. Catharine became the wife of Adam Oberly, and mother of Harriet Oberly Neifer.

In 1848 Isaac Neifer (2) brought his family to Wood county, Ohio, and rented the farm, one mile south of the present village of Weston, known as the "Keeler Farm," in Milton township. The same year he purchased what is now the old family homestead, comprising 120 acres, to which he afterward added forty acres. He built a log house, and then a cabinet shop, also of logs, that are still standing, and in connection with farming he worked at his trade. Here he made his home until his death, which occurred May 17, 1892. His children were as follows: Catharine, who died in infancy; Adam O., born February 13, 1841; John M., born January 15, 1843, and died July 22, 1892; Amos M., born November 17, 1844; Sarah E., born May 25, 1848, died in infancy; and Isaac Newton, born October 5, 1854. Of the children who married and reared families, the following is a brief record: (1) Adam O., the eldest, at the age of eight years came with his parents to Ohio, where he worked in the cabinet shop with his father, but gave the most of his attention to farm labor. His education was acquired in Pennsylvania and Ohio. On November 12, 1863, he married Helen J. Moore, who was born in Milton township March 30, 1844, and they became the parents of four children: Sarah J., wife of Albert Smith, of Milton township; Mary Nettie, wife of Henry Steinman; John N., who married Gertie Stretchberg; and Jessie, a young girl at home. (2) John M. was married in 1872, to Eliza Sawyer, and to them were born eleven children, eight of whom are living; John's death occurred in 1892 from disease contracted while in the army. (3) Amos M. was married to Flora S. Bassett, and to them were born four daughters, of whom the eldest two are now married, while one died in infancy; Amos M. is now living in Bowling Green, Ohio. (4) Isaac Newton, the youngest, is spoken of more fully farther on. The father of this family in political affiliation was for the most part a stalwart Whig and Republican, but was never given to office-seeking, preferring to give his time and attention to his business interests, in which he met with good success. The widowed mother still remains on the farm where she has passed many years of her life, beloved and respected by all who know her. She is among the oldest settlers, and holds the U. S. patent for the farm she lives on, with only one transfer from the original enterer, Samuel Cobb, who made the entry and got the patent direct.

ISAAC N. NEIFER, a leading citizen of Weston, is a native of Milton township, Wood Co., Ohio, where he was born October 5, 1854. He is a son and youngest child of Isaac and Harriet (Oberly) Neifer, whose sketch appears above.

Our subject attended school at Weston, his spare moments being occupied on the home farm. He worked at various employments until his marriage, October 13, 1875, with Miss Addie Alice Henry, who was born November 26, 1857, in Ashland county, whence she moved with her parents to Weston in May, 1873. They have had two children: Willie, who died in infancy, and Annie Alice, who was born August 10, 1887.

In 1876, Mr. Neifer commenced in the produce-shipping business, for his father-in-law, and with the exception of one year, continued with him up to January, 1892, when he rented, and one year later bought out the business of the firm, since which time he has continued in the produce-shipping business with success. He is the only extensive dealer in the egg and poultry business in this section of Wood county, most of his produce being shipped to New York City. His trade is such as to necessitate the keeping of a wagon on the road continually, gathering in produce. Socially Mr. Neifer is a member of the I. O. O. F., and also of the F. & A. M.

John Henry, father of Mrs. Neifer, was born in Savannah, Ashland Co., Ohio, in 1824, and came to Weston in 1873. He entered the produce trade in which he continued until our subject purchased his business, as related above, when he retired. He amassed a comfortable fortune, and is to-day recognized as one of the monied men of Weston. Although over seventy, he is hale and hearty, and is recognized as one of the patriarchs of the town. In his political predilections he is a Democrat; and socially he is a member of the I. O. O. F., and also of the F. & A. M.

L. P. TRIBBLE, the genial host of the "Tribble House" at Haskins, was born April 14, 1846, in Clermont county, Ohio, where his paternal grandfather, Cornelius Tribble, a native of South Carolina, was among the earliest settlers.

Amos Tribble, our subject's father, was born in the same county April 10, 1820. He was married in Bethel, Clermont county, to Miss Margaret Higby, a native of New Jersey, born in 1819. Her family is of old New England stock, but her parents were born in New Jersey, and moved to Ohio during her girlhood. Amos Tribble and his wife lived in Clermont county until 1853, when they came to Wood county and settled on a farm in Middleton township, afterward removing to Portage for a few years. They were members of the Congregational Church, and honored for their consistent example. Our subject's mother died November 1, 1892, but his father is still living, and resides on his farm, near Haskins. He is a Republican in politics, and when inclined to active work was influential in local affairs. Mr. Tribble is second in a family of six children, the others being: Julia A., the widow of H. N. Rush, of Portage; Lizzie married Eli Chapman, of Bowling Green; Charles, a farmer in Middleton township; and Helen and Annie, who both died in childhood.

After acquiring a good education in the schools of District No. 6, and the town of Haskins, Mr. Tribble taught for ten years in different parts of the county, and then took charge of the C. H. & D. R. R. office at Haskins. This position he held for fifteen years, in the meantime establishing and conducting successfully his hotel business. He was married October 13, 1872, to Miss Jessie Pope, a native of Sandusky county, born September 12, 1855. Two children were born to this union: Julia, the wife of J. I. McCaslin, and Dwight, who lives with his parents. Mrs. Tribble is a lady of unusual mental endowments and force of character, and is a leader in various organizations. In all progressive movements both our subject and his wife are active supporters, and Mr. Tribble takes a prominent part in political affairs also, having been elected lately for the fifth time on the Republican ticket to the office of township treasurer. He is a member of the F. & A. M. and the I. O. O. F.

J. L. RUMLER is one of the highly-respected farmers of Montgomery—his native township—where he first opened his eyes to the light, February 19, 1860, in Section 21. He belongs to one of the prominent pioneer families of the county, his grandfather, John Rumler, having arrived here in 1833. He entered at that time 160 acres of wild land in Section 21, receiving a deed for the same signed by Andrew Jackson. John Rumler was born in Lancaster, Penn., of German parentage, and on reaching manhood married Catherine Augustine, a native of Mahoning county, Ohio, where their wedding was celebrated. In Wood county he located upon the farm where our subject now resides, but at that time not a tree had been felled or an improvement of any kind made upon the place. There both he and his wife died at the age of eighty-eight years, his death occurring in 1862, and her's in May, 1864, and both were buried near Bradner, Ohio. In their family were five children: Eva, now Mrs. David Henline, of Sandusky, Ohio; Busias L., the father of our subject; Amelina, who became the wife of Benjamin Plants, and died in Sandusky county; John, a farmer of Montgomery township; and Elias, of the same township. In early life the grandfather learned the trade of a weaver, and he also followed teaming over the Alleghany Mountains from Lancaster, Penn., to Pittsburg; but his later life was devoted exclusively to agricultural pursuits. Religiously, he was a Lutheran.

Busias L. Rumler was born in Columbiana county, Ohio, July 12, 1816, and during his boyhood received a fair education in German, which language was used principally by his father and their immediate neighbors. At the age of seventeen years he accompanied his parents to Wood county, where he became a successful hunter, being very fond of the sport. He was very hardy and robust, and used to walk miles and miles in search of game, often staying out all night; but the exposure told upon his constitution in later years. He was a hard worker, and assisted many of the pioneers in clearing their land. On August 24, 1856, in Montgomery township, he was united in marriage with Miss Eliza J. Mogle, who was born in that township, May 6, 1840, daughter of David and Sarah (Stahl) Mogle, the former a native of Richland county, and the latter of Wayne county, Ohio. Mrs. Rumler was the second in order of birth in a family of eight children, the others being Mary, now Mrs. C. T. Hardaker, of Fulton county, Ohio; Susan, who died in infancy; John W., of Lime City, Ohio; Daniel J., who died at that place; Levina, wife of Isaac Whitson, of Lime City; Oliver, of Fulton county, Ind.; Annie, who became the wife of John Galbreath, and died at Prairie Depot, Wood county. The parents of these children were married in Wood county, where they arrived in 1833. The father came in the spring with his father, Michael Mogle, who made a location in Montgomery township, and the mother accompanied her married sister, Mary, the wife of Daniel Edmunds, to the county in the fall of the same year.

After his marriage Mr. Rumler built a hewed-log house, upon the farm where our subject now resides, and upon the site now occupied by the latter's residence. Later he located on the old homestead, where he lived for two years, and then returned to the log house, which was destroyed by fire in October, 1877; the following year the present substantial brick residence was erected. Upon that farm his death occurred February 1, 1895. For about nine years previous he had been in failing health, but was never confined to his bed until the day before he died. His remains were interred in the Prairie Depot cemetery. He had been very active in his younger years, and his feats of strength were almost marvelous. He used his right of franchise in support of the Democratic party, and religiously was an earnest member of the Lutheran Church.

Since the death of his father, J. L. Rumler, whose name introduces this review, and his mother have lived on the home farm, which he operates. He obtained a common-school education, and early became familiar with the duties that fall to the lot of an agriculturist. He has picked up carpentering, and is also quite familiar with other mechanical trades; but he devotes most of his time to the care and cultivation of the farm, which under his able management ranks among the best of the township. In manner he is quiet and unassuming; but is one of the most industrious and enterprising agriculturists of the locality, where he has always made his home and has many warm friends. Though not strictly partisan, he usually supports the men and measures of the Democratic party. Living with Mr. Rumler and his mother are the two sons of her youngest sister, Sarah Annie, who married John M. Galbreath, and these little boys, aged respectively six and four years, there find a pleasant home.

A. E. SMITH, carriage manufacturer and dealer, is a native of New York State, born March 25, 1850, at Newburg. He resided in that town until twenty-six years old, learning and working at the trade of wagon-maker, which he followed in Newburg some four or five years. He then went to Hornellsville, N. Y., and various other places throughout the State, and, coming west, worked at Cleveland, whence he came to Tontogany in July, 1875. Mr. Smith remained at Tontogany until the following March, and then he went to Van Wert, Ohio, staying there about two years. On March 1, 1878, he came to Weston, and engaged in business for himself, succeeding in building up a very substantial trade, and he has an extensive stock of carriages, wagons and harness.

Our subject was married in Grand Rapids, Ohio, April 19, 1877, to Miss Emma Yost, a daughter of Peter Yost. They have no children. Mr. Smith has two brothers: William P., an engineer in Weston, and Charles A., a salesman in our subject's factory. All the three brothers are Democrats in politics.

Eli Smith, the father, was a farmer, who came from New York State in 1880, and settled in Ohio. Politically he was a Democrat. He was married on January 18, 1848, to Miss Hannah E. Fergusson, of Newburg, Orange Co., New York.

H. N. VAN VOORHIS, a successful farmer of Montgomery township, was born September 25, 1825, in the township of Whetstone, Crawford Co., Ohio, and is the son of William and Hannah (Jones) Van Voorhis. The great-grandfather of our subject was born in Holland, and H. N. is of the fourth generation in the United States. William Van Voorhis, the father of our subject, was a farmer in Crawford county, where he and his family were early pioneers.

Mr. Van Voorhis is the oldest male representative of his family in Ohio. He did not receive over six months' schooling altogether. In 1836, when he was ten years old, his parents moved to Michigan, passing en route through Wood county, and along the "Old Stone Road." They were three days going from Fremont, Ohio, to Perrysburg, as the road was very bad and swampy, and they spent four years in St. Joseph and Cass counties, Mich. Mr. Van Voorhis lived with his parents until he was between twenty-three and twenty-four years old, with the exception of one year, during which he was learning the harness-making trade at Bucyrus. He taught school for four or five terms in Knox and Crawford counties, receiving for the first term $8 per month, and "boarding round"; his highest salary was $14 per month, without board. Mr. Van Voorhis was married in Crawford county, March 15, 1849, to Miss Sarah Beck, who was born near New Lisbon, Columbiana county, February 26, 1831, a daughter of Henry and Rachel (Roselle) Beck, both of whom were from New Jersey. When our subject was married he did not have a dollar; but he rented a small log house in Olentangy, Crawford county, for which he paid $12 per year, and his wife's parents gave them furniture with which to go to housekeeping. Later Mr. Van Voorhis bought two lots in the village, whereon he built a hewed-log house, and for seven years lived there, occupied in making shingles from rough timber, and teaching school. In the spring of 1858 he rented a farm in Morrow county, living there until the fall of the same year, when he returned to Whetstone township, bought ten acres of timbered land, and, moving an old house onto it, lived there until he came to Wood county, April 10, 1866. He located in Section 20, Montgomery township, buying forty acres, for which he went into debt $1,100. After remaining there one year, he sold the farm at cost, and moved to Scott township, Sandusky county, bought thirty-seven acres, and after one year's residence there, removed to Section 7, Montgomery township, where he bought ninety-eight acres, for which he contracted a debt of $1,200. An old log house and a barn were the only buildings on the place, and this was his home until 1880, when he built the excellent brick house which now stands on the farm. On November 14, 1895, Mr. Van Voorhis moved to Prairie Depot, where he now resides in his house on North Center street.

The children of Mr. and Mrs. Van Voorhis were as follows: Augustus, born February 12, 1850, is a farmer of Portage township; George H., born August 27, 1851, died in Portage township; Augusta J., born August 22, 1853, is now Mrs. Joseph J. Harris, of Perry county, Ill.; David C., born August 14, 1856, is a resident of Bowling Green; Owen, born March 21, 1859, died in infancy; Isaac, born November 8, 1861, is a farmer in Portage township; Frank, born September 13, 1868, follows farming in Montgomery township; Seretta, born February 23, 1871, is now Mrs. George Histe, of Portage village; Orrin, born September 9, 1877, died in infancy. Mr. Van Voorhis is a Democrat, served as township clerk in Crawford county, and was trustee for several terms in Montgomery township. He and his wife are members of the Deciples Church. He is a self-made man, and by industry and economy has acquired a comfortable amount of this world's goods.

SPENCER W. DEWITT. The subject of this sketch is a well-known farmer residing in Weston township, one and one-half miles northeast of Weston village. His birth occurred February 3, 1859, in Weston township, on the farm where he now lives. Isaac Dewitt, father of our subject, was born in Pennsylvania, August 20, 1801. He was married three times, his third wife being Miss Theodosia Haughwout, the mother of Spencer W. They were married at her home in Erie county, Ohio, but in 1855, they removed to Weston township, Wood county, where they remained about six years, or until the death of Mr. Dewitt, July 7, 1861. Three children were born of this marriage, one of whom died in infancy; the others being Harriet, who married John Gingery, Jr., and died January 17, 1875; and Spencer W., our subject.

Spencer W. Dewitt, the subject proper of this sketch, was but two years of age when his father died, and was then taken by his mother to her former home in Erie county, where he found a home with an uncle. Here he attended the district schools; but when he was eleven years old, accompanied his mother on her return to the old homestead in Wood county. In 1873, Mrs. Dewitt was married to Abram Leonard, and our subject made his home with them, and worked upon the farm. Mr. Leonard died March 25, 1884.

On September 29, 1884, Spencer W. Dewitt was married to Miss Amanda J. McCrory, who was born in Wood county, September 7, 1865. They made their home with Mrs. Leonard on the old farm until the following spring (1885), when Mr. Dewitt built the house, in which he now resides, on the east half of the old homestead, making all improvements necessary to establish a comfortable home for his family. The marriage of our subject and his wife has been blessed with the following children. Charles Jesse, born September 18, 1885; George Spencer, born October 6, 1887; Harriet Elizabeth, born July 24, 1890; Alta Rosetta, born February 23, 1893; Vernie Wilson, born February 18, 1895, and died April 19, 1896.

Mr. Dewitt has never taken much interest in politics, but has always sought to vote, regardless of party, for the best man for the office to be filled. He is a member of the Disciples Church. Since his mother's death, October 8, 1890, the homestead farm has been divided between Mr. Dewitt and his neice, Mrs. Addie Heckerman, who was the only daughter of his sister, Harriet Gingery—Mr. Dewitt retaining the east half, on which he had built his house. Mr. Dewitt is much respected by all his friends and neighbors for his integrity, and good, honest citizenship.

JOHN R. ARCHER, M. D., one of the younger members of the medical profession, and an enterprising and progressive citizen of North Baltimore, was born in Wood county, October 14, 1861. He spent his early childhood there, later attending school at Fostoria, and having become sufficiently qualified he began teaching school, which occupation he followed some five years. At the end of that time he took up the study of medicine, paying his way from the money earned while teaching, and was graduated from Starling Medical College, Columbus, Ohio, in 1887. Locating first at Holgate, Henry county, with his brother, who is also a physician, he remained there for one year, and then came to Wood county, settling in North Baltimore, where, by industry, ability, and strict attention to business, he has acquired a large and extensive practice. He is a member of the Northwestern Ohio Medical Association, the State Medical Association, and the Wood County Medical Association. Dr. Archer is looked upon as a rising man in his community, and possesses the confidence of all who come in contact with him.

Joseph Archer, father of our subject, was born in Richland county, Ohio, September 3, 1827, and was married December 20, 1853, in Huron county, to Miss Nancy Jane Howard, a native of Hancock county, born April 22, 1836. They became the parents of the following children: James Dallas, born October 30, 1858; Sarah M., born March 15, 1860; John R., born September 14, 1861; Tebertha A., born January 2, 1865, died August 24, 1872; Millie B., born November 4, 1871, died March 16, 1874; Amanda E., born April 12, 1875, died March 30, 1880; Susie, born March 12, 1878. Mr. Archer settled in Bloom township from the time of his marriage until 1887, when he returned to North Baltimore, where he now lives, one of the respected pioneers of the place. He still owns eighty acres of land in Bloom township. He is a Democrat, and a member of the United Brethren Church.

Grandfather James Archer was born in Guernsey county, Ohio, of German ancestors. He lived in Richland county, where he followed the occupations of a blacksmith and farmer until 1834, when he moved to Wood county, and died in Bloom township at the age of forty years. He married a Miss Nancy Copas, who was born in Guernsey county, and who was over seventy years old at the time of her death. They were the parents of twelve children.

ALEXANDER SCHWARTZ, a prominent baker, confectioner, and ice cream manufacturer of Bowling Green, was born in Lorraine, a German province, August 20, 1863. He is the son of John and Mary (Riff) Schwartz, the former of whom was born in Lorraine, June 2, 1817, and the latter in the same place, in 1828. She died in the old country, where her husband followed the occupation of a farmer.

Mr. Schwartz, Sr., came to America in 1882, and joined his son Alexander in Waverly, Ohio, later removing to Bowling Green, where he died July 27, 1895. He and his wife became the parents of seven children, as follows; George died at Batavia, Ohio, aged thirty-six years; Mary died in Germany; Victoria died in the old country; Paulina married John Bras, and lives in France; Alexander is our subject; Louisa lives in Nancy, France; Edward died in infancy.

The paternal grandfather, John Schwartz, was a weaver by trade, and died in Lorraine. He was in the French army under Napoleon I, and carried two bullets in his body, which were received at the battle of Waterloo. He lived to the good old age of ninety-five. Our subject's father was also a soldier, and fought in the Franco-Russian war.

Mr. Schwartz spent his boyhood days in Lorraine attending the public schools, where he learned the German language. For a while he worked in a mill, in order to learn the miller's trade, but left his position to come to America. Upon arriving in this country he first located in Cincinnati, Ohio, where he learned the baker's and confectioner's trade. He worked at this in various cities, among which were Jackson (Ohio), Batavia, Waverly, Nelsonville, Fostoria and Findlay. For the first year and a half he went in business for himself at Batavia; then sold out and came to Bowling Green in February, 1892, and immediately opened a place of business which he has been operating ever since. He met with success from the start, and to-day leads all others in his line. The building in which Mr. Schwartz carries on his work is fitted out with all the latest improvements, required in the manufacture of ice cream and confectionery, and a visit through his establishment would prove interesting as well as instructive. The immense ovens in which the baking is done, the engine and machinery used in the manufacture of ice cream, and all the equipments of his business are of the best. When he put in his machine for freezing his ice cream, he was laughed at, but the first year he sold 1,400 gallons, the second 2,200 gallons, and the third, over 4,200 gallons, and this year he sold over 7,000 gallons. Besides his ice cream and confectionery plant, Mr. Schwartz owns forty acres of land east of Bowling Green.

Our subject was married in Findlay, Ohio,

January 21, 1890, to Miss Anna M. Urschaltz, who was born in Plymouth, Ohio, June 5, 1871. Mr. Schwartz' politics are Democratic. Socially, he belongs to the C. K. of St. John. He justly deserves the large and growing patronage which he at present enjoys, as he is progressive and industrious, and although he came to America empty handed, possessing nothing but a desire to earn an honest living, he not only acquired knowledge of a trade, but stuck to it, until to-day he is one of the most prosperous and successful business men in the county.

JOHN D. ROSEN, a popular citizen and successful farmer, and oil operator, of Henry township, was born in Franklin, Warren Co., Ohio, February 12, 1848, and is a son of John and Eliza (Dial) Rosen. The father was a native of Pennsylvania, and followed the various pursuits of farming, carpentering and milling. In his native State he married Eliza Dial, who was also born in Pennsylvania, and subsequently removed with his wife to Warren county, Ohio, where he followed the trades previously mentioned. Later he carried on agricultural pursuits in Miami county, Ohio, and then returned to Pennsylvania, where he made his home for five years. On the expiration of that period Mr. Rosen purchased a 120-acre farm in Henry township, Wood county, and in an old log cabin made his home while he improved his farm. As time passed greater prosperity came to him. His last days were spent in the home of his daughter, Mrs. Sarah Jeffers, in North Baltimore, Wood county. In politics he was a Democrat, and, in religious belief, a Methodist. His wife passed away five years before him. Their family contained the following children: Mrs. Sarah Jeffers; Sargent J. and Joanna (twins), the former of whom died at the age of twenty-eight years, the latter when a child; John E.; Joseph, of Ashland county, Ohio; and Elizabeth, who became the wife of B. A. Lawrence.

The educational privileges of our subject were limited. When his father went to Pennsylvania he secured work as a farm hand in Miami county, Ohio; but after a year joined the family, and continued to reside in the Keystone State for three years, during which time he worked in a gristmill. He then came with his elder brother to Ohio, securing work on a farm near Cincinnati, where he remained for three years, receiving from $10 to $15 per month. He was afterward employed on another farm for six months.

On the 26th of February, 1874, in Butler county, Ohio, was celebrated the marriage of Mr. Rosen and Miss Mary S. McCoy, who was born in that county in 1850. They now have one child—Albert, of North Baltimore, Ohio, who was born January 23, 1875. After their marriage they came to Wood county, locating on forty acres of land given Mr. Rosen by his father. In 1889, he discovered oil upon his place, and has since developed five wells which have proved a profitable source of income. He is an energetic and enterprising business man, and has won success in his undertakings. In politics he was formerly a Democrat, but his views on the temperance question have led him to give his support to the Prohibition party.

JOSEPH DREPS, SR. (deceased), was among the pioneers of Middleton township, his residence dating from 1856. He was long numbered among the leading and esteemed agriculturists of this locality, and the success he acquired also gave him rank among the substantial citizens. A son of Antony and Alener (Crotzburgh) Dreps, natives of Germany, he was born in that country, March 4, 1824, and was one of a family of five children, the surviving members being Elizabeth, wife of Joseph Roldorf, of Germany; and Augusta, residing in that country.

Joseph Dreps attended school in his native land, and was employed on his father's farm until nineteen years of age, when he began working as a farm hand for others in order to carry out his cherished wish of coming to America. When he had acquired sufficient money, in 1852, he took passage on a sailing vessel, and after a voyage of thirty-five days landed in New York. He at once went to Detroit, Mich., thence to Toledo, Ohio, where he worked for four years. In 1856 he came to Wood county, and entered forty acres of land in Middleton township—a timber tract, also covered by water. He cut and sold the wood, then drained and tiled the land, set out an orchard and planted crops. In 1886 he purchased an additional forty acres, and later bought another forty, so that he had at the time of his death, November 2, 1895, 120 acres, all under a high state of cultivation, with good buildings and modern improvements. He led an energetic, industrious life, and in clearing his land experienced those hardships known only to pioneer settlers. He came to this country with only three dollars, but steadily worked his way upward from humble surroundings to a position of affluence.

In September, 1854, in Toledo, Mr. Dreps wedded Mary Malter, of that city, who died January 26, 1856. In the month of May following he was again married, his second union being with Barbara Auth, a native of Hessen, Germany. They had ten children: Joseph, born May 14, 1857; Barbara, December 14, 1858, wife of John Shiple, a farmer of Middleton township; Henry A., July 11, 1862; Andrew, May 30, 1863; John, February 11, 1865; George, October 26, 1866; Sylvester, who was born February 14, 1870, and died October 20, 1889; Mary, Lena and Elizabeth, triplets, born June 23, 1873. The last named is the wife of Charles Redouty, of Michigan, but the other two are single.

His fellow townsmen appreciating his worth and ability frequently called Mr. Dreps to office, and for seven years he efficiently served as road supervisor, while for six years he was school director. In politics he was a Democrat, and his religious connection was with the Catholic Church. His life was well spent, and his energy, resolute purpose and honorable dealing, brought to him success in business. His name is above reproach, his reputation spotless, and he possesses a genial disposition that won him many warm friends who held him in the highest regard.

HENRY A. DREPS, a worthy representative of this family, now living in Lansing, Mich., is one of the native sons of Middleton township, where he was born, reared and attended school, acquiring his education in the common schools near his home. He worked upon his father's farm until 1881, when he entered commercial life as a traveling representative of the Toledo Molding Company, and remained in the employ of that firm until 1885. With the capital he had then acquired through his own exertions, he embarked in business for himself at Lansing, Mich., where he has since continued as a wholesale and retail dealer in molding and frames, meeting with good success. He is a wide-awake and progressive business man whose standing is high in commercial circles, and his own efforts have brought him a prosperous trade.

In politics, Mr. Dreps is a supporter of the Democracy, and, like his father's family, he is a member of the Catholic Church. He was married April 21, 1890, to Marietta Bunline, who was born in Michigan, May 19, 1866.

JOHN FLOYD MCKEE, whose reputation as a stockman, particularly in the line of fine-bred horses, has become almost world-wide, as well as national, is a native of Wood county, having been born December 23, 1856, in Grand Rapids township.

Capt. John McKee, father of our subject, was born in Washington county, Penn., June 30, 1823, a son of John McKee, who first saw the light in Ireland in 1777, emigrated to this country, and was married in Pennsylvania, whence he removed to Wood county, Ohio, in 1833, dying here the same year. He left a widow and four children, namely: John, father of John Floyd; Elizabeth, who married a Mr. Buckland, and died in 1886; Jane, who died young; and Nancy (Mrs. Smith), now deceased. The father of this family was a Freemason, having joined the order in Ireland.

Capt. John McKee was ten years old when he came with his parents to Weston township, Wood county, where he passed the rest of his days. He there married Caroline Brown, who was born in Grand Rapids township, March 10, 1823, daughter of Alexander Brown, one of the early settlers of Wood county, coming from Pennsylvania. To this union were born five children, three of whom are deceased—two daughters having died in infancy, and one son, Edward, born January 13, 1854, died October 18, 1854; the two living are John F. (our subject), and Alice, born December 22, 1848, married March 19, 1875, to William Meggison, of Grand Rapids, Ohio. The mother of these was called from earth December 26, 1856. In the fall of 1863 Capt. McKee enlisted in Company I, 144th O. V. I., of which, later, he was elected captain, G. Weddell being first lieutenant, and G. Kimberlin, second lieutenant. The company did not leave for the seat of war until May, 1864. At the battle of Monocacy Capt. McKee's command was badly scattered, and he received a severe wound in the thigh of the right leg, from which he suffered more or less until his death. His service in the war lasted four months. He died December 22, 1885, mourned by a large circle of friends. He was a successful farmer, a good citizen, straightforward and honest, and firm in the upholding of his principles of integrity. He was not a member of any church, although his family have always been Presbyterians, to which faith he strongly inclined, and of which denomination he had for years been a substantial supporter.

John Floyd McKee received his education at the district schools of his native township, and assisted his father in the work of the farm until he was twenty-one years old, when he assumed entire control of the homestead. To-day he is the possessor of over 500 acres of excellent land, whereon stands his magnificent residence, the admiration of all, and the finest barn in northwestern Ohio, one especially constructed with a view to the comfort and health of his numerous stock. For several years Mr. McKee has enjoyed a wide and enviable reputation as a breeder of and dealer in fine-bred horses, in all varieties, his business in this line—matching and selling—having extended to the farthest limits of both the Eastern and Western States. Not long since he sold a car-load of matched horses (bought in Chicago), in Bowling Green, and his market is not confined to the United States, for he has from time to time bought and sold many valuable animals for European purchases. To-day the King of Belgium is driving a fine team of horses which Mr. McKee bought in the Chicago market, and is said to have been the best team ever bought or sold in that market up to that time. Mr. McKee paid $670 for the team; within ten days sold them for $1,800 to John Miller, who in turn sold them to the King of Belgium for $4,400. Mr. McKee also feeds a large number of cattle, and at the present time has on his farm some twenty-three head of as fine cattle as can be found anywhere. As a thoroughly reliable, practical and expert stockman, and a master of the business, he has as we have already said, almost a national reputation, and that he has every facility for caring for and handling the finest of stock goes without saying.

J. F. McKee

On December 20, 1882, John Floyd McKee was married, in Grand Rapids township, to Miss Flora Heymann, daughter of Philip W. Heymann, and three children have blessed this union, their names and dates of birth being as follows: John, June 22, 1884; Grace, September 21, 1887; and Maud, August 17, 1892. Mr. and Mrs. McKee are members of the Presbyterian Church; in politics he is a Republican, but is no office seeker, though he has served as supervisor three terms, and on the board of education three years. He has inherited many of his father's characteristics, and is greatly respected for his uprightness, genial nature and philanthropy.

R. W. KELLY. One of the best known and most prominent agriculturists of Perry township, is the gentleman whose name opens this sketch, and whose birth took place May 1, 1826, in what was then Richland county, Ohio, but is now Ashland county.

The parents of our subject were John A. and Rachel (Shawhan) Kelly, the former of whom was born in Pennsylvania, in 1796, and the latter in Virginia July 13, 1806. Their marriage took place in eastern Ohio on August 22, 1822, and on June 19, 1832, they came with their family to Montgomery township and settled in Section 32. The father had come to Wood county the previous month, and pre-empted 160 acres of land, on which not a stick of timber had been cut.

The family made the journey from their former home by ox-team, with one horse as a leader. On the first night of their arrival they slept in the wagon, there being no building of any kind on the place or in the vicinity. A large maple tree, four feet in diameter, was cut down, and the body hollowed out and covered with puncheons, with blankets for the front and ends, this rude habitation affording them shelter until a round-log house was built. Drinking water was scarce, and their first effort was to dig a well, which they succeeded in doing after much difficulty. The first crop raised was potatoes and corn, and wild animals, such as wolves, deer, and bear, were plentiful. In reaching this isolated spot the father had to precede his family with an axe, cutting his way through the woods for four miles before reaching their future home, and in the eight miles from Risdon, now Fostoria, to their destination, they passed the homes of only two settlers, who were Isaac Keely and William Shawhan. Tiffin, Fremont, and Green Springs, were their milling points, which were reached with ox-teams, and about six days were consumed in making the trip.

To this brave pioneer couple eight children were born, of whom the following record is given: Josiah S., born September 21, 1824, died of cholera at Ellsworth, Kans., where he kept a boarding house during the construction of the Union Pacific railway through that section; Eleanor W., born November 24, 1828, is the widow of Josiah Kiger, and lives in Millgrove; Lorenzo D., born October 15, 1830, died at Maple Rapids, Mich.; Frederick S., born May 15, 1832, lives in Gratiot county, Mich.; Mary, born July 14, 1834, married Samuel Fayler, and died in Kansas; William H. H., born May 12, 1836, lives in Coffee county, Kans.; Elizabeth, born April 15, 1838, married Amos K. Rainey. He was a soldier in Company B, 111th O. V. I., and was captured by the Rebels on his return from a visit to his sick wife, and died in Andersonville prison June 18, 1864. His wife died October 19, 1863, in Perry township. The mother of these children died January 23, 1840, and is buried at Millgrove.

Mr. Kelly was married, a second time, in Seneca county, in 1841, to Miss Nancy Patterson, who bore him one child, Rachel, who was born December 20, 1842, and became the wife of Lewis Heller and died in Toledo. The father died August 8, 1859, and his second wife in 1866. Mr. Kelly was a strong, robust man, and very active in his early days. He served as land assessor of Wood county, and spent many days and nights also showing land to persons wishing to pre-empt it, for which purpose he kept a rude chart of lands not already entered. For this work he received one dollar a day. He was originally a Whig, and afterward became a Republican, being a leading man in his party in his locality. He held at various times the offices of county commissioner and probate judge, and was justice of the peace in Montgomery township. At the time of his death he owned 280 acres of good land, and was one of the most prominent citizens of the township.

Our subject was but six years old when his parents removed to Wood county, and his first schooling was in a log cabin, 14 x 16 feet, his teacher being a lady by the name of Emeline Palmer. He did not learn his "A, B, Cs," until he was thirteen years old, and then had but few advantages for pursuing his studies, as there was always plenty for him to do, and he only went to school when it was too wet to work. He afterward attended school for two winters in Tiffin, Ohio, living with Abel Rawson, an attorney of that place, and working for his board. One of his reminiscences of this time is his attendance in June, 1840, of a meeting at Perrysburg during the celebrated "hard cider campaign" at which he saw William H. Harrison, who was afterward elected President. When nineteen years old, Mr. Kelly entered the store of his uncle, R. W. Shawhan, at Tiffin, Ohio, as a clerk. This gentleman was a general merchant who owned two stores, one in Tiffin and one in Fort Ball, the latter now being a part of the former city. He remained in this position until February 1, 1849, when he became one of a company of four sent out by his uncle to California to dig gold on shares.

Mr. Shawhan gave this party $2,800 under the following conditions: they were to refund this money out of their first profits, and in case the project was a failure Mr. Shawhan was to lose the whole amount; if a success, he was to receive one-half of the proceeds of their work. They set sail from New York to Chagres, on the eastern coast of the Isthmus, well provided with six months' provisions, camp outfit, and other necessaries. At the Isthmus they hired natives to take their outfit to Panama for $100. Eight dimes went to the dollar, and they had supplied themselves with $100 in dimes. They had shipped one year's extra provisions around Cape Horn, and when these reached San Francisco they did not even take them from the steamship offices. Each man also had a trunkfull of clothing, which was more than needed and which was never taken from the storage room. On their arrival at Panama, no vessels yet being running in the San Francisco trade, they waited ten days, and then with over a hundred other passengers boarded a British mail vessel, plying between Panama and Valparaiso. They all agreed to stay on this boat until they could put in at a port and charter a vessel for San Francisco. At Callao, Peru, they found a whaler four months out from Nantucket, which they chartered, and after ten days' delay, which was necessary to transform this vessel into a rudely equipped passenger boat, in which they finally set sail, and fifty-two days later arrived at their destination. Soon after they went to Sacramento, and found they had but $280 left out of their $2,800. This was the first party that left Seneca county, Ohio, for California, and consisted of the following men: R. E. Brewster, William Holt, John Schmitt, and R. W. Kelly. It took them from February 1 to June 8, to make the journey from Tiffin, Ohio, to San Francisco, California.

Soon after their arrival this party began mining in what is now Eldorado county, Cal., on the middle fork of the American river, and wintered four miles from Sutter's mill, the place where gold was first discovered. The party remained together for two months, when our subject and William Holt formed a partnership, and worked together during the remainder of their stay there. On October 1, 1850, Mr. Kelly and his partner, Mr. Holt, left San Francisco on a steamer, and returned to New York by Panama, reaching Tiffin on the first of the following December. These men were strictly honorable, and carried out their agreement, dividing their profits with Mr. Shawhan, each having a snug sum of money left, and which, in the case of our subject, was the foundation of his success in business.

His first enterprise was the purchase of 159 acres of land in Section 14, in Perry township, for which he paid $2,000 cash, leaving a balance of $900 on time. He was married June 5, 1851, in Portage township, to Miss Eliza J. Dresser, who was born in Richland county, Ohio, May 23, 1830. Aaron Dresser, her father, was a son of Samuel Dresser, and was born in New Hampshire. When he was eighteen years old his time was given him by his father, and he came to Richland county, Ohio, about 1820. He had a good common-school education, and taught school for a number of years. He married Esther Davis, and in the summer of 1834 came with his family to Portage township, Wood county, the journey being made with ox-teams, and they crossing many deep streams, some of which the cattle had to swim. Their land was in an uncleared forest, where they built a small house, and much hard labor was expended in preparing the land for cultivation. The children of this family were as follows: Sarah A., who died when fourteen years old; Eliza J., wife of our subject; Susan L., who married Andrew J. Hall, and died at twenty-two years of age; Daniel, who died when twenty-four years old; John, who died at sixteen; Margaretta (now Mrs. Henry Adams), who lives in Portage township; Mary A., who became the wife of Reuben Hillard, and died in Portage township. Aaron Dresser lived to be over ninety-two years old, his wife passing away at the age of forty-seven years. Both are buried in Millgrove cemetery. Mrs. Kelly taught school for four years before her marriage, the salary being $1.50 per week, which was considered excellent wages in those days.

When Mr. Kelly located on his farm, in Perry township, it was in poor shape, its only improvements being a small frame house and a round-log stable. He spent considerable time and labor on it, and in March, 1852, traded farms with Justus Stearns, of Montgomery township, receiving 200 acres in exchange for his 159 acres. Later he sold this farm for $3,000, and in 1854 opened up a general merchandise store in West Millgrove, buying his goods in New York City. He was very successful in this business, which he carried on for five years; but failing health compelled him to retire from business, and he traded his store and other property for 400 acres of land in Montgomery township, and, renting his father's old-home farm in that township, removed to it in the spring of 1860, where he lived until March, 1882. He then removed to his present location, in Section 4, Perry township, where he has ever since resided. He has practically been a farmer continuously since 1859, and now owns over 700 acres of valuable farming land. In 1881 he built one of the best farm residences in Wood county, which is situated near West Millgrove, and where he and his family are enjoying all the comforts and conveniences of life.

The children of Mr. and Mrs. Kelly were as follows: Josiah D., born April 5, 1852, lives in Damascus township, Henry Co., Ohio; Rachel E., July 31, 1853, resides with her parents; Charles W., October 31, 1855, died August 11, 1857; Eleanor E., October 20, 1860, married George A. Adams, and died in Montgomery township, June 25, 1886; John A., January 19, 1861, lives in Montgomery township; Rezin W., Jr., December 12, 1864, resides with his parents.

Mr. Kelly has always been a public-spirited citizen, and has contributed liberally toward getting the railroads through his portion of the county. He was originally a Whig, becoming a Republican on the formation of that party. In 1854 he served as assessor in Perry township, and in 1856 was elected justice of the peace, which office he resigned after one year. In 1870 he was elected land assessor of Montgomery township, and later served for one year as trustee. In 1871 he was elected county commissioner, and, after serving four and a half years, was re-elected; but resigned the office. In 1880 he served as real-estate assessor in Montgomery township. In all these responsible positions he showed much business ability and good judgment. He has for thirty-one years been a member of the Order of Odd Fellows, belonging to the various lodges at Perrysburg, Tiffin, and Fostoria. In 1886 Mr. Kelly took a trip to the Pacific coast, visiting places where he had been in 1849, and noting with pleasure the wonderful growth and development in that portion of the country.

Mr. Kelly is a man exceedingly well preserved for his years, and possesses a wonderful memory, which makes him a very entertaining companion. He is a man of good judgment and much common sense in business matters, and is consulted by his neighbors on many subjects. He is one of the best citizens of Perry township and, with his wife, has a host of friends throughout the county. Mrs. Kelly has for many years been a member of the Congregational Church, and is a most estimable woman.

GEORGE ELLSWORTH, fruit grower, etc., was born June 3, 1828, in Allegany county, N. Y., whence, when six years old, he came with his mother to Scott township, Sandusky county, Ohio, where he received his education in a log school house.

Mr. Ellsworth learned the trade of carpenter and joiner, and followed the occupation of contractor and builder in Scott township, until 1865, when he came to Wood county, and located in Milton township, on a tract of land which he improved, working at farming in connection with his trade. He remained in Milton township until 1878, going from there to Center township, where he bought fifteen acres of land, now situated in the corporation of Bowling Green, and began the cultivation of fruit, making a specialty of grapes, from which he produces some excellent wine. Mr. Ellsworth was married July 4, 1852, to Miss Elizabeth Clinger, who was born March 12, 1838, a daughter of John and Sarah Clinger. They are the parents of the following children: Reuben M., born December 11, 1854, is a police officer in Bowling Green (he married Belle Ferriot, and they have two children); Francis H., born March 30, 1856, is in the insurance business in Kansas (he married Nellie Finnucan, and they have three children); George W., born November 16, 1864, is a music teacher and piano tuner in Bowling Green (his wife was Hattie Shutt); Willis G., born November 19, 1867; Eugene E., born April 22, 1880; and one child died in infancy. Mr. Ellsworth was justice of the peace for four years in Scott township, Sandusky county, and no appeal was taken from his court while he was on the bench; he also held the office of assessor in the township. He is a man of broad mind and liberal views, and his sense of justice so clear that even his political opponents acknowledge his worthiness, and were satisfied with the manner in which he conducted the office. In politics he is liberal, voting for the man rather than the party. In all matters pertaining to the moral advancement of the community, he has always acted a zealous part. Mrs. Ellsworth is a devout member of the Adventist Church, accepting its primitive doctrines as orthodox. She is an extensive reader, a student in all Church matters, and her friends consult her as an authority on all religious topics.

James Ellsworth, the father of our subject, was born in New York State in 1768, and was by occupation a building and contractor. He died when our subject was four years old. He married Miss Margaret Smith, who was born in Pennsylvania, and in 1832, after the death of her husband, she came to Ohio, locating in Scott township, where she bought ten acres of land, which her sons helped to clear. Those who see the present prosperous condition of the county can not fully realize the struggles and hardships endured by this noble pioneer woman in her efforts to make a home in the wilderness for her four small children. They were fifteen miles from mill, and hence they pounded their corn for the customary "Johnny cake" and "mush;" it was of frequent occurrence, when the mother had prepared a meal for her children, that some Indian squaw would come in and demand her share—a share sufficiently large to make it inconvenient for the hungry children. Wild animals carried off the poultry and stock, and the necessity of guarding their possessions early developed the instincts of the hunter in the son George. In spite of all the difficulties that beset the widowed mother, she succeeded in accomplishing her purpose, and, in the consciousness of a duty performed, passed to her final rest in the eighty-fourth year of her age.

DANIEL FRALICK. Prominent among the men who have carved out their own fortunes by honest toil and careful management, is the subject of this biography, a highly respected agriculturist of Montgomery.

He was born in Dauphin county, Penn., December 28, 1828, the son of Jacob and Elizabeth (Shupp) Fralick, and was brought to Ohio, during his childhood, by his parents. His father secured a tract of woodland near Bucyrus, where a brother resided, with whom he made a temporary home while constructing a log cabin upon his own property. He was a hard worker, but remained comparatively poor, owning at his death only a small farm. He lived to the age of eighty-eight years, but his wife died a number of years before him. They had eleven children, of whom five were boys.

Mr. Fralick, who was the third child and second son, from an early age was made useful upon the home farm, and did some work for others. The schools were distant, the roads bad, and at best the instruction was poor, and his chances for an education were limited. At twenty years he began working, on his own account, as a farm hand at fifty cents a day, and in a few years saved several hundred dollars. At twenty-six he was married in Crawford county to Miss Ann Newcomer, who was born in Delaware county, Ohio, about 1835, the daughter of Samuel and Polly (Houseworth) Newcomer, who both died during her childhood, leaving her to be reared by strangers. Mr. Fralick rented a small log house which he furnished very simply, and here the young couple began housekeeping, and for some years he lived upon rented farms in different parts of Crawford county.

In 1858 he came to Wood county and bought forty acres in Section 3, Montgomery township, near Bradner, upon which a few trees had been cut here and there, the cleared portion not being more than five acres in all. A log cabin stood upon the place, which, though small, had the unique charm of being the first home that he could call his own, and, when he could look over five acres of growing corn and two of wheat, he began to feel truly independent. His labor was rewarded with increasing prosperity, and he added small tracts of land until his farm now contains 120 acres—less the amount taken by the T. & O. C. R. R. for a right of way. His buildings and other improvements are excellent; but we regret to say that his success was not won without the impairment of Mr. Fralick's health by overwork. He is a steadfast believer in Democratic principles. Of five children, Edwin, the youngest, is the only survivor; Calvin died at thirty years of age, Nelson at twenty-eight, and two daughters — Minerva and Mary — were called from earth in childhood.

DANIEL FRALICK.

MRS. ANN FRALICK.

DANIEL PHILO, a prominent agriculturist and stock raiser of Webster township, was born in 1827 in Luzerne county, Penn., where his father, Hurlbert Philo, was for many years engaged in agricultural pursuits. On reaching his majority Mr. Philo left home and worked as a laborer for three years. He then rented a farm of 200 acres in Erie county, Ohio, where he remained until April, 1858, when he came to Wood county and settled on a farm near Tontogany. He was married in Erie county, January 19, 1854, to Miss Caroline Marks, a native of England, born April 27, 1835, who came to America with her parents when she was seven years old. Of this union seven children were born: James Dell is a farmer; Mary is the wife of Isaac Emmett; William Albert, George, and Ward are prosperous farmers; William L. died September 22, 1859, aged one year and ten months; Sarah Jane, the second in the family, who became the wife of Job Walker, died September 12, 1888, aged twenty-seven years and one day.

In 1866 Mr. Philo removed with his family to Webster township, where he bought twenty acres of land, to which he has added by subsequent purchases until he now owns 200 acres, and ranks as one of the largest land owners in the township. His thrifty and energetic management have been well rewarded, and his farm is considered a model one. In 1895 he built a residence costing $2,700. For the last twenty years, he has borne a heavy affliction, the gradual loss of his sight from cataract. He is interested in several business enterprises, and holds stock in the Dunbridge Elevator Company and the Lime City Mutual Fire Association.

Politically he is a Democrat, and the esteem in which he is held among his neighbors has given him much influence in local affairs. He has been school director for twelve years, and has also served as supervisor of his township. He and his family are leading members of the M. E. Church.

JOHN ERVEN, deceased. Among the enterprising agriculturists of Grand Rapids township, there were none who commanded in a greater measure the esteem and confidence of the community than did the late John Erven. His parents, Henry and Sarah (Ward) Erven, were prominent residents of Noble county, Ohio, where he first saw the light, November 27, 1850. Henry Erven, the father, was killed in a railroad accident in 1862, leaving his wife with five children to support, of whom our subject, then a lad of twelve years was the eldest.

John Erven received a good education there, and for some years was engaged in teaching, and later in farming and stockraising. In 1875 he came to Wood county and purchased fifty-six acres of land, which he cleared and improved, digging ditches, planting an orchard, and erecting neat and substantial buildings. To this home he brought his bride, formerly Miss Lucretia McLain, to whom he was married in Jefferson county, November 6, 1878. She was born February 20, 1852, and was one of the eleven children of William McLain, a prominent agriculturist of Jefferson county, Ohio, and his wife Elizabeth (Clarke) McLain. Mr. McLain died April 12, 1878, and his wife survived him until August 3, 1887. After his marriage Mr. Erven added sixty-eight acres to his original purchase, making in all a fine farm, which is now under the judicious management of his widow, a lady of unusual executive ability.

Four children were born to their union: Orrin, December 4, 1879; Lottie, May 1, 1881; Lewis, December 18, 1884; and Bessie, November 11, 1886, all of whom are living. To his little family the death of the father on January 17, 1893, was an irreparable loss, and outside the home circle the cutting off of so strong and vital an influence for good, was felt wherever he was known. To use his mother's words, "John always was a good boy." In the Methodist Church, which he and his wife had joined in early years, he was an active worker, holding the office of steward, and doing faithful work in the Sunday-school, both as teacher and superintendent. In politics he was a Republican, and his generous assistance was given to every local movement, especially those which promised educational advancement, and he served as school director a number of years.

ANDREW P. JAMESON, a prominent agriculturist and teacher of Webster township, was born in Pickaway county, Ohio, July 2, 1831, of Irish parentage.

Rev. Ira Jameson, the father of our subject, an ordained minister of the Methodist Episcopal Church, sometime in the early '30s settled on a large tract of land in Hancock county, and engaged in agriculture, at the same time continuing his ministerial labors among the settlers and Indians. Of the three sons of Ira, our subject is the eldest; C. S., the second son, is an agriculturist still residing on the old homestead; and Ira M., the youngest in the family, is an ordained minister in the M. E. Church.

On September 25, 1861, Andrew P. Jameson enlisted in the Federal army, becoming a member of Company H, 57th O. V. I. He was appointed sergeant; but was disabled at the battle of Shiloh, and on October 28, 1862, at Corinth, Miss., he was discharged on surgeon's certificate of disability.

In 1863, our subject was married to Miss Mary A. Boltz, daughter of Jacob and Mary C. Boltz, of German descent, born in Lebanon county, Penn., January 9, 1836. Four sons graced the union of our subject and his wife: (1) Elmer was engaged in the agricultural-implement business for some years, but is now a farmer in Jackson township. In October, 1889, he was married to Fannie L. Egbert, of Vanlue, Ohio, and to them three children have been born—Mary, Ralph S. and Ira Deloy. (2) Milan, the second son, completed a course at the N. A. N. S., and then taught school for some years. Under Gov. Campbell's administration, he was appointed guard in the Ohio penitentiary; but since the change in the administration he has had charge of the old homestead near Dowling, where his mother resides with him. In 1895 he was elected assessor of his township. On December 29, 1892, he was married to Miss Althea Hanney, a daughter of John and Maretta Hanney, of Dowling. One child has been born to them, Jewell J., born January 30, 1895. (3) Curtis, more familiarly known as "Curt," is a practical machinist, having engaged in that work almost from boyhood. At present he is running a line of farm machinery on Jackson Prairie. He is still unmarried. (4) Deloy H., the youngest of this family of boys, was ordained a minister in the M. E. Church, and is now stationed at Kingston, Tenn. When only seventeen he began teaching in the public schools, and was elected superintendent of the schools at Gibsonburg, Ohio, before he was twenty-one, and he held this position until he entered the O. W. U., at Delaware, Ohio, to prepare himself for the work of the ministry. His health failing, he went to Tennessee, where he entered the U. S. Grant University; but while in his Sophomore year, his health failed him again, and he entered at once on the active work of the ministry. In 1894, he was married to Miss Kate Wetzel, who at that time was principal of the Grammar Department of the Perrysburg, Ohio, schools. They have one son; Raymond Deloy, born August 15, 1895. Rev. D.

H. Jameson is a member of the F. & A. M., I. O. O. F., and K. P. fraternities.

In 1870, Andrew P. Jameson, the subject of this sketch, moved, with his family, to Wood county, purchasing 128 acres of the northwestern corner of Webster township, principally forest land, which he cleared and improved. For a number of years he taught school in the county, but consumption having fastened upon him, he went to Santa Barbara, Cal., for his health; after which he returned to Wood county, but died January 18, 1876, shortly after his return. Socially, he was a member of the F. & A. M., and politically, he was a member of the Democrat party, as are all of his sons, but one.

MILTON ASHLEY, a well-known carpenter and manufacturer residing at Bradner, is one of the prosperous business men of that town, and his success in business is due no less to his skill as a mechanic than to the confidence which his integrity in his dealings has won in the community. Since he started in his chosen calling he has always found plenty to do wherever he might be, and there is no one who has employed him for whom he could not work again. He is of "Down East Yankee" stock on both sides, and was born March 30, 1830, in what is now Bennington township, Morrow Co., Ohio, then a part of Knox county.

William H. Ashley, his grandfather, came from New England with his family in 1818, descending the Ohio river to Portsmouth, and from there going up the Scioto to Morrow county. Our subject's father, William T. Ashley, was among the oldest children, and was the first son. He was married a few years after their arrival, to Miss Nancy Davis, a daughter of Samuel Davis, a New Englander by birth. Of the four children of this marriage our subject was the second, and is now probably the only survivor. Leroy, the first child, died at the age of four years; Harlas died in Cardington, Ohio, and Seaman, an expert jeweler, went to Washington State, and all trace of him has been lost. The father owned a small farm, and also followed the mason's trade. He died in 1845, and about five years later his widow married William Maley. She was a woman of fine executive ability and artistic tastes, and was engaged in the millinery business for many years. Her death occurred March 10, 1895, while she was in Bradner visiting her son.

Mr. Ashley's educational advantages were of the primitive order, the log school house of his district, with puncheon seats and floor, giving him his only opportunities. These were well-improved, however, and there is no one more desirous of better facilities for the youth of to-day than our subject. At twenty he began to learn the carpenter's trade, serving two and one-half years at three dollars per month. In April, 1851, he was married in Sparta, Ohio, to his first wife, Ruth Rees, a daughter of Theophilus Rees, of Chester township, Morrow county. They began house-keeping at Sparta, where three children were born to them: Mary, now Mrs. John Sanderson, of Mt. Vernon, Ohio; William, who engaged in stove manufacturing and the tinware business at Newark, Ohio, but died at the age of twenty-eight; and Wallace, now a leading plumber and gas-fitter at Newark. For a number of years Mr. Ashley followed his trade at Sparta, but after the death of his wife, which occurred December 31, 1867, he worked at different places, and was employed to some extent in the manufacture of carriage bodies. On December 24, 1872, he contracted a second marriage, with Ellen Brown, who was born January 5, 1845, a daughter of Thomas and Rachel (Mills) Brown, and widow of John Stahl, of Company I, 72nd O. V. I. They have had two children: Allen B., a remarkably talented boy, possessing great mechanical skill, died at the age of ten years; and Dot, an accomplished musician, is now attending school at Valparaiso, Indiana.

In 1873 Mr. Ashley moved to Freeport, Ohio, and after about three years, established himself in Bradner, where he has since remained with the exception of three years in Mt. Vernon in a sash, door and planing mill. He is a man of excellent business ability, and aside from his trade he has carried on the manufacture of sucker rods, tanks and other contrivances in demand for various purposes. He owns fifty-five acres of valuable land adjoining Bradner, and his home is a most pleasant one from every point of view. He and his wife are prominent members of the Baptist Church, and take an interest in the various lines of work. Mr. Ashley has always been a Democrat, in principle, although not a strict partisan, and he belongs to the Masonic order, and the I. O. O. F.

JOHN RUSSELL, a prominent carriage dealer of Bloomdale, is a native of Bloom township, and a representative of one of our oldest and most highly esteemed pioneer families.

John Russell, his father, for many years known as Squire Russell, was born in Austintown, Mahoning county, August 23, 1814. He was married at Middlesex, Mercer Co., Penn., by Rev. William Nesby, to Miss Lois May, a native of New Troy, Kingston township, Luzerne Co., Penn., born August 6, 1820. They lived in Mahoning county for about six years, Mr. Russell following the occupation of millwright. Two of their eleven children were born there: Caroline, who was born in Boardman township, June 11, 1840, and died January 23, 1850, at their later home in Wood county; and Benton, born on Mill creek, January 11, 1843, who enlisted in Company F, 49th O. V. I., and died of typhoid fever at Nashville before seeing any active service. His remains were brought home and buried in Bloom township. In October, 1843, our subject's parents came to Wood county by wagon, the father having previously bargained for eighty acres of land in Bloom township. His brother Jonathan had come two weeks before to prepare a shelter, and on their arrival they found a 20x20 cabin, minus floors, doors and windows; blankets supplied the places of the latter, and with true pioneer spirit they made the best of everything. The father had only $20 left at the journey's end; but he began to work as he could at carpentering, and the mother made some money by tailoring. They went to mill at Fostoria, Tiffin or Perrysburg, their ox-team taking two days to make the trip. The timber on their land was heavy, and they had to hire help to assist in clearing, paying for it in farm produce. Nine children were born at their new home: Mary, October 20, 1844, who now resides in Bloomdale; John, February 17, 1847; our subject; Homer, September 24, 1849, a farmer of Cass township, Hancock county; Pierce, November 20, 1851, who met his death by accident, June 4, 1870, while shearing sheep; Frank, September 1, 1853, a resident of Jackson township, Hancock county; James, March 21, 1855, who died November 26, 1872; Lois, July 19, 1857, who died August 30, 1878; Adaline, March 17, 1860, now a resident of Youngstown; and Lorinda J., March 18, 1863, who died April 9, 1866. In spite of some misfortunes, including the entire loss of home by fire in 1868, Squire Russell managed to acquire a fine property, and owned at the time of his death 200 acres in good condition. He was a Democrat until the Dred Scott decision, when he became an ardent advocate of Republican principles. He was a man of sterling integrity, possessing the courage of his convictions, and was highly respected throughout the community. He was a justice of the peace for twenty-three years, and held that office during the stirring time attending the removal of the county seat. He died December 24, 1884, and his wife, who was a devout and consistent member of the Disciples Church, greatly loved for her many good qualities, survived him but a few years, dying January 17, 1890. She had lived on the farm forty-five years.

The subject of this sketch found plenty of work to do in his early days upon the farm, but he availed himself of the advantages afforded by the schools of his day. At twenty-one he began working for wages on neighboring farms, and in 1870 he went to Kansas and followed the same occupation in Jefferson and Douglas counties. Later he pre-empted 160 acres, not then surveyed, in Howard county, now Chautauqua county. He remained two years, keeping "bachelor's hall" in a plank house, and in the fall of 1872 returned to Bloom township, with health permanently impaired by chills and fever. He remained at home until after his mother's death, working at the carpenter's trade, and in November, 1890, he and his sister Mary went to Bowling Green to reside. In September, 1892, they moved to Bloomdale. For some time Mr. Russell has been engaged in selling carriages, and in 1894 he built a repository to accommodate his rapidly extending trade. He is a stockholder in the Bloomdale Building & Loan Association, and by the success of his various enterprises he has won a high rank in business circles. In politics he is a Republican, and has taken an active share in local work, serving as township trustee and supervisor. He is a member of Lodge No. 406, I. O. O. F., at Bloomdale, and Green Encampment No. 210, at Bowling Green.

D. K. BROUGHER, one of Wood county's intelligent and progressive farmers, belongs to that class of representative citizens on whom the welfare of every nation depends. History usually deals with the lives of those who are prominent in political, military or literary circles; but it is the men who remain quietly at home, faithfully and honorably performing each day's duties to whom the stability of the country is due. Such a man is our subject.

Mr. Brougher was born October 18, 1828, in the village of Liberty, Randolph Co., N. C. His great-grandfather was the founder of the family in America. The grandfather, Adam Brougher, was a native of Pennsylvania, whence he emigrated to North Carolina. His son Frederick was born and reared in the latter State, and when a young man learned the trade of shoemaking, but on account of his health was obliged to abandon this, and turned his attention to the tanning business, which later he carried on in connection with farming. In Randolph county he married Miss Nellie Staley, a native of that county. Her father's mother was a cousin of the royal family of Germany. Frederick Brougher, after some years, removed with his family to Florida; but as his wife did not like that country, he returned northward, and for a short time lived in Ohio. He then removed to Fort Wayne, Ind., where he left his family, and on horseback journeyed over that part of the country in search of a suitable location. Not finding what he wanted, he spent a short time at Ft. Wayne, Ind., and returned to southern Ohio, where he remained two years, then removed to Allen county, Ohio, thence to Putnam county, where he entered ninety-three acres of land in Greensburg township, being the third settler there. From Allen county he brought with him a hand-mill in which he used to grind corn, otherwise he would have been compelled to go forty miles to a water-mill. This old mill of his has been on exhibition at the Pioneer meetings of Putnam county, as a relic of pioneer days. His farm he increased from time to time until it comprised 493 acres, and to its cultivation he devoted his energies until his death, which occurred there June 13, 1875. His wife passed away in 1889.

This worthy couple were the parents of the following children: Brockmon, who died on the old homestead in Putnam county, in 1894; Jackson, who entered the army in 1861, and died in a hospital at Vicksburg; Hoadley, a farmer of Monroe township, Putnam county; Hogan, also of Putnam county; Staley, who enlisted in the army at the beginning of the war, served throughout the struggle, and is now following farming in Oklahoma; Bersheba, who became the wife of William R. Crow, and died in Putnam county; Mrs. Tennie Goris, of Montana, and Ann, widow of William Ault, of Putnam county.

Our subject was quite young when, with his parents, he left his native State. He accompanied them on their various removals until their final settlement in Putnam county, Ohio, where he was reared to manhood and acquired his education in the district schools. When about eighteen years of age he inherited eighty acres of land from his father, and to this he added eighty acres, for some time clearing and cultivating sixty acres. He then sold, and purchased 520 acres in Palmer township, Putnam county, of which he remained owner for a year. He then disposed of the property, and returned to the old homestead, buying out the interest of the other heirs. This he afterward sold, and in the spring of 1882 came to Wood county, where he purchased his present farm of 320 acres. He has tilled and fenced the place, erected thereon good barns, and has made other excellent improvements, until he now has one of the valuable and desirable places of the community. He is a man of energy and determination, one who carries forward to successful completion whatever he undertakes, and his industrious efforts have brought to him a handsome property. In politics he is independent, voting for the best man regardless of party. In religion he is a Free-thinker, regarding man's duty to man to be the only requisite.

H. H. Brougher

WASHINGTON LINK, deceased, was born in Ingham county, Mich., on February 22, 1840. His parents, William and Sarah Link, were natives of New York, but their marriage was celebrated in Ingham county, Mich., where the father carried on blacksmithing in connection with the improvement and development of his farm. There he died in March, 1889, but his wife still makes her home in that county.

On attaining man's estate Washington Link was married in his native county, the lady of his choice being Elizabeth Guisfert, who was born in Seneca county, Ohio, and they became the parents of three children, namely: Mrs. Myrtle Mitchell, of Plain township, Wood county; Wellington, and William. In Ingham county, Mich., Mr. Link engaged in agricultural pursuits until his death, which occurred in 1888, and his wife, who still survives him, now makes her home in Plain township, Wood Co., Ohio, where she has gained many warm friends. She is a lady of kind and generous impulses, was ever a devoted wife, and is a loving mother.

The early home of WILLIAM LINK was in Ingham county, Mich., where he first opened his eyes to the light of day in 1876. He was reared under the parental roof, and early became familiar with the duties of farm life. His education was obtained in the schools of his native county, and on coming to Wood county, in 1889, he located in Liberty township, but in 1895 removed to Plain. For two years after coming to the county he was engaged in the oil business, working on a salary, and is also employed now in the oil fields. He is one of the rising young business men of the county, and will, no doubt, make a success in life.

FREDERICK STROBLE, one of the thrifty and prosperous agriculturists of Perrysburg township, residing near Stony Ridge, was born March 7, 1831, in Wellenberg, Germany. He grew to manhood there, acquiring a fair education in the public schools, and for a short time worked in a mill, but later determined to make farming his occupation. In 1859 he came to America in search of better opportunities than his native land afforded, and after thirty days on the ocean, in a sailing vessel, he landed in New York.

On coming to Ohio Mr. Stroble located first at Liverpool, Medina county, but soon moved to Columbia township, Lorain county, where he worked for five years. He was married there April 10, 1862, to Miss Anna Eckler, a native of that township, born January 8, 1844. Her parents, Henry and Ann Eckler, were both natives of Germany, where they were married, coming shortly afterward to this country and settling upon a farm in Erie county for some years, but finally making their home in Lorain county, where they died, the father at the age of eighty-six, the mother at the age of fifty-seven. They had seven children: Catherine, the wife of H. Hempy, of Cleveland; John, who died at the old home in 1893; Margaret, who married Louis Ganss, and died at Toledo; Anna, Mrs. Stroble; May, the wife of Julius Kinesy, a miller of Lorain county; Elizabeth, the wife of Edward Bickle, a farmer of the same county, and Emanuel, a teamster in Elyria.

A few years after his marriage Mr. Stroble moved with his family to Wood county, settling upon the farm of seventy-two acres upon which they have since resided. Politically he is a Democrat, but he is not an active worker in party affairs, giving his influence in quiet ways to the support of the men and measures he deems worthy. He and his wife are leading members of St. John's Church (Lutheran) at Stony Ridge, the ancestors of both for generations having been adherents of the Lutheran faith. They have two children--Frank L., born December 17, 1862, and Mary E., born October 21, 1878.

FRANK L. STROBLE is one of the sturdy, enterprising young men who promise to make the future of our county a worthy advance upon the achievements of the past. He was educated in the schools of his district, and of late has assumed much of the labor and responsibility of the farm. In politics he is a supporter of the Republican party, and he is a member of the Knights of Honor at Stony Ridge.

JAMES TELLER, a successful farmer, business man, and financier of Portage township, was born in Westchester county, N. Y., one mile below the Croton Dam, April 14, 1831, and is the son of Samuel and Bashaba (Underhill) Teller.

Solomon Teller, the paternal grandfather, was born of German parents, who came to America at about the time of the Colonial settlement at New York. He and two of his sons were in the war of 1812. He was a hatter by trade, and accumulated considerable property. He was twice married, his first wife dying when Samuel, father of our subject, was eight years old. When he married again his second sons were bound out to various trades, Samuel going to work in a woolen factory, which was situated just above the old Quaker bridge, near the mouth of the Croton river. He was born October 25, 1797, and had no opportunity for schooling. He served his apprenticeship from the time he was nine years old until he reached his majority, when he rented the factory, operated it for a number of years, making cloth from the raw material. Samuel Teller was married January 4, 1825, to Miss Underhill, who was born October 11, 1806, in Westchester county, N. Y. She was the daughter of Benjamin Underhill, a farmer and a descendant of an old Colonial family. The following children comprised the family of Mr. and Mrs. Teller: Phoebe, born November 21, 1825, married and died in Huron county, Ohio; Charity, born April 22, 1829, was accidentally burned to death when twelve years old; James is our subject; George, born July 22, 1834, died in Greenwich township, Huron county; Benjamin, born February 22, 1836, died in Portage township; Robert, born November 24, 1840, died when young; Mary, born January 8, 1843, died at the age of nineteen years; Martha, born April 4, 1846, died young; Emily, born April 4, 1850, married Henry Cline, and died in Greenwich township.

About the year 1836 the family came to Ohio, via the Hudson river and Erie canal to Buffalo, and our subject remembers the details of the trip. They came by boat from Buffalo to Sandusky, thence by wagon to Greenwich township. The father had means; but rented some land instead of buying it, as it was a new business to him. Besides operating the farm, he worked two or three years in a woolen factory at Monroeville, Ohio. His first wife died in Greenwich township, Huron county, in 1860, and was buried in Ruggles township, Ashland county. Mr. Teller afterward married a Miss Foster, by whom he had no children. He died suddenly in Greenwich township, in 1876, and was buried by the side of his first wife. Both were Christians and strict observers of religious customs. In politics he was a Democrat, and a regular voter, but never sought office. He was robust and active up to the time of his death.

James Teller attended the district schools near his Ohio home, and worked upon his father's farm until he was twenty-one years old, occasionally doing some odd jobs for an outsider. In the fall of 1861 he left by wagon for Wood county, where, after looking around for a favorable locality, he bought 129 acres of land in Section 8, Portage township, which he paid for out of his own earnings. It was in its primitive condition of wilderness, and, while he was clearing a part of it, he boarded with some neighbors, until his marriage, July 22, 1862, in Perrysburg, with Miss Frances Casswell. She is a native of Jackson county, Mich., born October 29, 1840, a daughter of Asa Casswell, a blacksmith, and Lucinda (Lewis) Casswell, both of whom were born in New York. They had five children: Frances, our subject's wife; Jane and George, twins; Harriet, wife of Frank Stratten, of Portage village, and Isa. George was a member of Company C, 21st O. V. I., and died in Andersonville prison.

Mr. Teller's first house was built of round logs, hewed on the inside of the house, and was 18 x 26 feet in dimensions. It stood north of and adjoining the present home. Subsequently he bought forty acres in Section 4, also eighty acres in Section 5, and in 1880 built his present substantial residence. To our subject and his wife have been born children as follows: Emily, born December 14, 1863, now the widow of George Lembrick, of Portage; Nettie M., born December 10, 1865, unmarried J. F. Wollam, of Jerry City, Ohio; Charles J., born July 20, 1868, lives on a farm in Portage; Harriet L., born September 29, 1870, became Mrs. E. W. Fisher, of Portage village; Charity, born January 5, 1873, is at home; Anna, born September 16, 1875; Andrew, born September 8, 1878, is at home.

Mr. Teller is a Democrat, has served twelve consecutive terms as township trustee; has also served as director in District No. 3; and has refused other offices. In the spring of 1895, he had 320 acres of land, eighty of which he gave his son Charles. His farm is drained by 75,000 tiles, which, together with all the improvements of the place, has either been done by him personally or under his direction. He is a self-made man, possesses good common sense and excellent judgment, and is one of the successful farmers of the township. He has been a member of the Masonic Lodge No. 112, at Bowling Green, for over twenty years.

A. C. WALKER. The well-appointed farm of this gentleman is located in Section 11, Portage township, and to it he has given his close attentiop with results which can hardly fail to be satisfactory to himself and where his labors have met with success. He is a native of Scotland, born in the vicinity of Aberdeen, January 16, 1854, and in the following fall was brought to America by his parents, James and Anna (Mitchell) Walker.

The father took his family to Ruggles township, Ashland Co., Ohio, where with his limited capital he purchased thirty acres of partially improved land. On that farm he passed his remaining days, dying in 1878, at the age of eighty-four years. His wife survived him until February 15, 1896. To them were born eight children, namely: George, of Bay City, Mich.; Anna, now Mrs. C. A. Neuman, of Ruggles township, Ashland county; William, of Fitchville township, Huron county; Robert and John, both of Ruggles township, Ashland county; Jennie, now Mrs. David Crowell, of Savannah, Ohio; A. C., of this review; Jeannette; and Isabel, wife of Oliver Carping, of Ruggles township, Ashland county. The father was a well-educated man, six feet tall and weighed about 185 pounds. He regularly supported the Republican party by his ballot, and was a faithful member of the Presbyterian Church, which he joined in Scotland.

Until reaching his majority, our subject remained a member of his father's household, aiding in the labors of the farm and attending the district schools of Ashland county; but at that time started out in life for himself, being employed at farm labor. On February 19, 1879, he was joined in wedlock with Miss Anna Emslie, who was born October 17, 1858, in Rochester township, Lorain Co., Ohio, whence her parents removed to Ruggles township, Ashland county, when she was but an infant. There she was educated in the district schools and later married. Three children grace this union: Clyde M., born May 26, 1882; Alice W., born November 3, 1885; and Lillian Lucile, born August 22, 1896.

On a rented farm in Ruggles township, our subject began housekeeping, and there resided until August, 1884, when he removed to his present farm of forty acres in Section 11, Portage township. He has made many substantial improvements upon the place, and thirty-four acres are now under a high state of cultivation. In the spring of 1891 he returned to Ashland county, but at the end of a year came again to his farm in Portage township, which he is now successfully conducting. He is public-spirited and progressive, giving his support to all worthy enterprises for the advancement of the community, and socially is a member of Excelsior Lodge No. 223, K. O. T. M., at Prairie Depot. In religious belief both he and his wife are Methodists, and he is at present trustee of Bethel Church of Portage township. His political affiliations are with the Republican party.

GEORGE AND CLAYTON ROGERS, who, under the firm name of Rogers Brothers, conduct an extensive trade in drugs and kindred articles at Bowling Green, are natives of Wood county, educated in her schools, and trained here to business life. Thus identified from birth with the interests of this locality, they have early taken a prominent place among the young business men of the county seat. The elder brother George, was born in Portage, May 10, 1864, the younger, Clayton, in Bowling Green, June 18, 1868.

Their father, the late Charles Rogers, was for many years a leading druggist in Bowling Green. After attending the excellent public schools there, during boyhood, they worked in the store, to which they succeeded on the death of their father, on March 10, 1891. Under their energetic management the prestige of the firm is not likely to suffer.

